PREFACE

A DETAILED exposition of the prominent features of the study of the Holy Qur-án I reserve for a separate volume to be issued at a later date. In this Preface I would draw the reader's attention to two important points, viz. (1) a summary of the teachings of the Holy Qur-án, and (2) its collection and arrangement.

I. SUMMARY OF THE TEACHINGS

While dealing with the first important point, I propose to answer the question, What is Islam? Briefly, it is the religion which the Holy Qur-án teaches, and every student of the Holy Book, with the aid of a little knowledge as to the manner in which the Holy Prophet carried the Quranic precepts into practice, will know everything necessary about Islam. But for the facility of the readers of this volume I answer that question briefly in this Preface.

Islam as the religion of humanity.

"Islam" is the name by which the religion preached by the Holy Prophet Muhammad, who appeared in Arabia over thirteen hundred years ago, is known, and it is the last of the great religions of the world. This religion is commonly known in the West as Muhammadanism, a name adopted in imitation of such names as Christianity and Buddhism, but quite unknown to the Muslims themselves. According to the Qur-án, the religion of Islam is as wide in its conception as humanity itself. It did not originate from the preaching of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, but it was equally the religion of the prophets who went before him. Islam was the religion of Adam, Noah, Abraham, Moses, and Jesus; it was, in fact, the religion of every prophet of God who appeared in any part of the world. Nay, Islam is the religion of every human child that is born, according to the Holy Prophet, who, to be accurate, is not the originator, but the latest exponent of that Divine system which was made perfect at his advent. And, according to the Qur-án, Islam is the natural religion of man: "The nature made by Allah in which He has made men; there is no altering of Allah's creation,—that is the right religion" (30 : 30). And since, according to the Holy Qur-án, prophets were raised among different nations in different ages, and the religion of every true prophet was in its pristine purity no other than Islam, the scope of this religion, in the true sense of the word, extends as far back and is as wide as humanity itself, the fundamental principles always remaining the same, the accidents changing with the changing needs of humanity. The latest phase of Islam is that which made its appearance in the world with the advent of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him.

Significance of the name.

The name "Islam" was not invented, as in the case of other religions, by those who professed it. This name is, on the other hand, expressly given to this religion in the Holy Qur-án. It says: "This day I have perfected for you your religion and completed My favour on you, and chosen for you Islam as a religion" (5 : 3). And in another place: "Surely the true religion with Allah is Islam" (3 : 18). It is, moreover, a significant name; in fact, the word "Islam" indicates the very essence of the religious system known by that name. Its primary significance is the "making of peace," and the idea of "peace" is the dominant idea in Islam. A Muslim, according to the Holy Qur-án, is he who has made his peace with God and man, with the Creator as well as His creatures. Peace with God implies complete submission to His will Who is the source of all purity and goodness, and peace with man implies the doing of good to one's fellow-man; and both these ideas are briefly but beautifully expressed in the Qur-án in the following words: "Yea, whoever submits himself entirely to Allah, and he is the doer of good to others, he has his reward from his Lord, and there is no fear for him, nor shall he grieve" (2 : 112). That, and that only, is salvation according to the Holy Qur-án. And as the Muslim is in perfect peace, he enjoys peace of mind and contentment. "Peace" is the greeting of one Muslim to another, and "Peace" shall also be the greeting of those in paradise: "And their greeting in it shall be Peace" (10 : 10). Nay, in the paradise which Islam depicts no word shall be heard except "Peace, Peace," as the Holy Qur-án says: "They shall not hear therein vain or sinful discourse except the word 'Peace, Peace'" (56 : 25, 26). The "Author of Peace" is also a name of Allah mentioned in the Holy Qur-án (59 : 23), and the goal to which Islam leads is the "Abode of Peace," as is said in 10 : 25: "And Allah invites to the Abode of Peace." Peace is, therefore, the essence of Islam, being the root from which it springs and the fruit which it yields; and Islam is thus pre-eminently the "Religion of Peace."

The distinctive characteristic of Islam.

The great characteristic of Islam is that it requires its followers to believe that all the great religions of the world that prevailed before it were revealed by God; and thus Islam, as I have shown its very name indicates, laid down the basis of peace and harmony among the religions of the world. According to the Holy Qur-án, all religions have Divine revelation as the common basis from which they start. The great mission of Islam was not, however, to preach this truth only, which, on account of the isolation from each other of the different nations of the earth, had not been preached before, but also to correct the errors which had crept into the prevailing religions on account of the length of time, to sift truth from error, to preach the truths which had not been preached before on account of the special circumstances of a society or the early stages of its development, and, most important of all, to gather together in one book the truths which were contained in any Divine revelation granted to any people for the guidance of man, and, last of all, to meet all the spiritual and moral requirements of an ever-advancing humanity. Thus, as a distinctive characteristic of its own, Islam claims to be the final and the most perfect expression of the will of God; as the Qur-án says: "This day I have perfected for you your religion and completed My favour on you, and chosen for you Islam as a religion" (5 : 3). What it has in common with all religions is that it is a revealed religion like them, while it is distinguished from them in being the final and perfect revelation of God. Hence the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, is called the "Seal of the Prophets" (33 : 40), and the Holy Qur-án is spoken of as "Pure pages wherein are all the right Books" (98 : 2-3).

A historical religion.

I wish to notice one more peculiarity of Islam. Islam is beyond all doubt a historical religion and its holy founder a historical personage. Every event of the Holy Prophet's life can be read in the light of history, and the Holy Qur-án, which is the source of all the spiritual, moral, and social laws of Islam, is, as shown later on, a book absolutely unique in its preservation. Having a book of Divine revelation so safely preserved through centuries to guide him for his spiritual and moral welfare, and the example of such a great and noble Prophet, whose varied earthly experiences furnish the best rules of conduct in all the different phases of human life, a Muslim is sure that he has not rejected any truth which was ever revealed by God to any nation, and that he has not set at naught any good which was to be met with in the life of any good man. He thus not only believes in the truth of all Divine revelations and accepts the sacred leaders of all peoples, but also follows all the lasting and permanent truths contained in them by following the last and most comprehensive of them, and imitates all good men in all the good that is to be met with in their lives by taking for his model the most perfect exemplar.

The fundamental principles of Islam.

The main principles of Islam are given in the very beginning of the Holy Qur-án, which opens with the words : "This book, there is no doubt in it, is a guide to those who guard against evil; those who believe in the unseen and keep up prayer and spend benevolently out of what We have given them; and who believe in that which has been revealed to you and that which was revealed before you; and they are sure of the hereafter" (2 : 2-4). These verses point out the essential principles which must be accepted by those who would follow the Holy Qur-án. Here we have three main points of belief and two main points of practice, or three theoretical and two practical ordinances. Before I take up these points separately, I think it necessary to point out, as is indicated in this verse, that in Islam mere belief counts for nothing if not carried into practice : "Those who believe and do good" is the ever-recurring description of the righteous as given in the Qur-án. Right belief is the good seed which can only grow into a good tree if it receives nourishment from the soil in which it is placed. That nourishment is given by good deeds. Another point necessary to be borne in mind in connection with the five principles of belief and practice mentioned in the verses quoted above is that they are, in one form or other, universally accepted by the human race. The five principles, as already indicated, are a belief in God, the great Unseen, in Divine revelation and in the life to come, and, on the practical side, prayer to God, which is the source from which springs the love of God, and charity in its broadest sense, indicating respectively the performance of our duties to God and the performance of our duties to man and other * creatures of God. Now, these

* The Holy Qur-án says : "There is no beast on earth nor bird which flies with its two wings, but they are a people like you, and to their Lord shall they return" (6 : 38). And the Holy Prophet is reported to have said : "Surely there are rewards for our doing good to quadrupeds and giving them water to drink. There are rewards for benefitting every animal having a moist liver (i.e. every one alive)." And again, "Fear God in these dumb animals, and ride them when they are fit to ride and get off them when they are tired."

five principles, as the principles of belief and action, are recognized by all nations of the earth, and these are the common principles on which all religions are based. In fact, these five fundamental principles of the holy religion of Islam are imprinted on human nature. Now, I take them separately as detailed in the Holy Qur-án.

Conception of God in Islam.

Of the three fundamental principles of belief, the first is a belief in God. The belief in a power higher than man, though not seen by him, can be traced back to remotest antiquity, to the earliest times to which history can take us: but different peoples in different ages and different countries have had different conceptions of the Divine Being. Islam, in the first place, preaches a God Who is above all tribal deities and national gods. The God of Islam is not the God of a particular nation, so that He should look after their needs only, but He is described in the opening words of the Holy Qur-án as being the "Lord of the worlds"; and thus, while widening the conception of the Divine Being, it also enlarges the circle of the brotherhood of man so as to include all nations of the earth, and so widens the outlook of human sympathy. The Unity of God is the noble theme on which the Holy Qur-án has laid great stress. There is absolute Unity in Divine nature; it admits of no participation or manifoldness. Unity is the key-note to the conception of the Divine Being in Islam. It denies all plurality of persons in Godhead and any participation of any being in the affairs of the world. His are the sublimest and most perfect attributes, but the attribute of mercy reigns over all. It is with the names Ar-Rahmán and Ar-Raḥīm that every chapter of the Holy Qur-án opens, and Beneficent and Merciful convey to the English reader of the Holy Qur-án only a very imperfect idea of the deep and all-encompassing love and mercy of God indicated by the original words. "And My mercy encompasses all things" says the Holy Qur-án (7: 156). Hence the Messenger who preached this conception of the Divine Being is rightly called in the Holy Qur-án "a mercy to all the nations" (21: 107). The great Apostle of the Unity of God could not conceive of a God who was not the Author of all that existed. Such detraction from His power and knowledge would have given a death-blow to the very loftiness and sublimity of the conception of the Divine Being. Thus while Islam, in common with other religions, takes the existence of God for its basis, it differs from others in claiming absolute Unity for the Divine Being, and in not placing any limitation upon His power and knowledge.

Unity.

The Unity of God is, as I have said, the one great theme of the Holy Qur-án. The laws of nature which we find working in the universe, man's own nature, and the teachings of the prophets of yore, are again and again appealed to as giving clear indications of the Unity of the Maker. Consider the creation of the innumerable heavenly bodies: are they not, with their apparent diversities, all subject to one and the same law? Think over what you see in the earth itself, its organic and inorganic worlds, the plant and animal life, the solid earth, the seas and the rivers, the great mountains: is there not unity in all this diversity? Think over your own nature—how your very colours and tongues differ from each other; yet in spite of all these differences are you not but a single people? Look at the constant change which everything in the universe is undergoing, the making and unmaking, the creation and recreation of all things, the course of which does not stop for a single instant: is there not a uniform law discernible in this?

If, in fact, you clearly observe uniformity in diversity in nature, do you not see therein a clear sign of the Unity of the Maker or Evolver? Then look to the incontestable evidence of human nature, how, even when believing in the plurality of gods, it recognizes a unity in the very plurality and thus bears testimony to the oneness of God. Again, turn over the pages of the sacred scriptures of any religion, search out the teachings of the great spiritual guides of all nations: they all testify to the oneness of the Divine Being. In short, the laws of nature, the nature of man, and the testimony of almost all the religious teachers of all ages declare with one voice the Unity of God, and this is the cardinal doctrine of the spiritual teachings of the faith of Islam.

Divine revelation.

The second fundamental principle of faith in the Islamic religion is a belief in the Divine revelation—not only a belief in the truth of the revealed Word of God as found in the Holy Qur-án, but a belief in the truth of Divine revelation in all ages and to all nations of the earth. Divine revelation is the basis of all revealed religions, but the principle is accepted subject to various limitations. Some religions consider revelation to have been granted to mankind only once; others look upon it as limited to a particular people; while still others close the door of revelation after a certain time. With the advent of Islam we find the same breadth of view introduced into the conception of Divine revelation as into the conception of the Divine Being. The Holy Qur-án recognizes no limit of any kind to Divine revelation, either in respect of time or in respect of the nationality of the individual to whom it may be granted. It regards all people as having at one time or other received Divine revelation. Without the assistance of revelation from God, no people could ever have attained to communion with God, and hence it was necessary that Almighty God—who, being the Lord of the whole world, supplied all men with their physical necessities—should also have brought to them His spiritual blessings. In this case too, Islam, while sharing with other faiths the belief in the fact of Divine revelation, refuses to acknowledge the existence of any limitation as regards time or place. Hence it also announces that though no prophet is needed after the Holy Prophet Muhammad, as religion and religious laws were made perfect at his advent, the door of Divine revelation is still open, and a true Muslim can have access to it.

There is also another aspect of the Islamic belief in Divine revelation in which it differs from some other religions of the world. It refuses to acknowledge the incarnation of the Divine Being. That the highest aim of religion is communion with God is a fact universally recognized. According to the holy faith of Islam, this communion is not attained by bringing down God to man in the sense of incarnation, but by man rising gradually towards God by spiritual progress and the purification of his life from all sensual desires and low motives. The perfect one who reveals the face of God to the world is not the Divine Being in human form, but the human being whose person has become a manifestation of the Divine attributes by his own personality having been consumed in the fire of the love of God. His example serves as an incentive, and is a model for others to follow. He shows by his example how a mere mortal can attain to communion with God. Hence the broad principle of Islam that no one is precluded from attaining communion with God or from being fed from the source of Divine revelation, and that any one can attain it by following the Holy Word of God as revealed in the Holy Qur-án.

The life after death.

Belief in a future life, in one form or another, is also common to all religions of the world, and it is the third fundamental article of a Muslim's faith. The mystery of the life after death has, however, nowhere been solved so clearly as in Islam. The idea of a life after death was so obscure, as late as the appearance of the Jewish religion, that not only is there very little of it found in the Old Testament, but an important Jewish sect actually denied any such state of existence. This fact was, however, due to the lack of light thrown upon it in earlier revelations. The belief in transmigration was also due to the undeveloped mind of man mistaking spiritual realities for physical facts. In Islam the idea reached its perfection, as did other important fundamental principles of religion. This statement may appear an exaggeration to those who have been taught to look for nothing but sensuality in Islam; but the several points established by the Holy Qur-án with regard to a future life, while nothing is said about them in the sacred books of other religions, bear ample testimony to its truth. Belief in a future life implies the accountability of man in another life for actions done in this life. The belief, if properly understood, is no doubt a most valuable basis for the moral elevation of the world. The Holy Qur-án lays particular stress upon the following points:—

The life after death is only a continuation of this life.

(1) The gulf that is generally interposed between this life and the life after death is the great obstacle in the solution of the mystery of the hereafter. Islam makes that gulf disappear altogether: it makes the next life only a continuation of the present one. On this point the Holy Qur-án is explicit. It says: "And We have made every man's actions to cling to his neck, and We will bring forth to him on the resurrection day a book which he will find wide open" (17:13). And again it says: "And whoever is blind in this, he shall also be blind in the hereafter" (17:72). And elsewhere we have: "O soul that art at rest! return to your Lord, well pleased with Him, well pleasing Him; so enter among My servants and enter into My garden" (89:27-30). The first of these three verses makes it clear that the great facts which will be brought to light on the day of resurrection will not be anything new, but only a manifestation of what is here hidden from the physical eye. The life after death is, therefore, not a new life, but only a continuance of this life, bringing its hidden realities to light. The other two quotations show that a hellish and a heavenly life both begin in this world. The blindness of the next life is surely hell, but according to the verse quoted, only those who are blind here shall be blind hereafter, thus making it clear that the spiritual blindness of this life is the real hell, and from here it is taken to the next life. Similarly, it is the soul that has found perfect peace and rest that is made to enter into paradise at death, thus showing that the paradise of the next life is only a continuation of the peace and rest which a man enjoys spiritually in this life. Thus it is clear that, according to the Holy Qur-án, the next life is a continuation of this, and death is not an interruption but a connecting link, a door that opens upon the hidden realities of this life.

The state after death is an image of the spiritual state in this life.

(2) Nowhere but in Islam has the most significant truth with regard to the next life been brought to light. No attempt at all has been made in any religion but Islam to unveil the secrets of the hereafter. No doubt in the Christian teaching the corporeal and the spiritual are melted together—the weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth and the quenchless fire as the punishment of the wicked are spoken of in the same breath with the kingdom of heaven, the treasure in heaven, and the life eternal as the reward of the righteous, but there is no clear indication as to the sources of the one or the other. The Holy Qur-án, on the other hand, makes it clear that the state after death is a complete representation, a full and clear image, of our spiritual state in this life. Here the good or bad conditions of the deeds or beliefs of a man are latent within him, and their poison or panacea casts its influence upon him only secretly, but in the life to come they shall become manifest and clear as noonday. The shape which our deeds and their consequences assume in this life is not visible to the eye of man on earth, but in the next life it will be unrolled and laid open before him in all its clearness. The pleasures and pains of the next life, therefore, though spiritual in reality, will not be hidden from the ordinary eye as spiritual facts are in this life. It is for this reason that while, on the one hand, the blessings of the next life are mentioned by physical names as an evidence of their clear representation to the eye, they are on the other hand spoken of in a saying of the Holy Prophet as things which "the eye has not seen, nor has ear heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man to conceive of them." This description of the blessings of the next life is really an explanation given by the Holy Prophet of the verse of the Qur-án which says: "No soul knows what is in store for them of that which will refresh the eyes" (32: 17).

To the same effect we may quote another verse of the Holy Qur-án: "On that day you will see the faithful men and the faithful women, their light running before them and on their right hands" (57: 12). This verse shows that the light of faith by which the righteous men and women were guided in this life, and which could here be seen only with the spiritual eye, will be clearly seen going before the believers on the day of resurrection.

As in the case of the blessings of paradise, the punishment of hell is also an image of the spiritual tortures of this life. Hell is said to be a place where one shall neither live nor die (20: 74). It should be remembered in this connection that the Word of God describes those who walk in error and wickedness as dead and lifeless, while the good it calls living. The secret of this is that the means of the life of those who are ignorant of God, being simply eating and drinking and the satisfaction of physical desires, are entirely cut off at their death. Of spiritual food they have no share, and therefore, while devoid of the true life, they shall be raised again to taste of the evil consequences of their evil deeds.

The next life is a life of unlimited progress.

(3) The third point of importance which throws light on the mystery of the life after death is that man is destined to make infinite progress in that life. Underlying this is the principle that the development of man's faculties as it takes place in this life, however unlimited, is not sealed by finality; but a much wider vista of the realms to be traversed opens out after death. Those who have wasted their opportunity in this life shall, under the inevitable law which makes every man taste of what he has done, be subjected to a course of treatment of the spiritual diseases which they have brought about with their own hands, and when the effect of the poison which vitiated their system has been nullified, and they are fit to start on the onward journey to the great goal, they shall no more be in hell. This is the reason why the punishment of hell, according to the Holy Qur-án, is not everlasting (see foot-note 1201). It is meant to clean a man of the dross which is a hindrance in his spiritual progress, and when that object has been achieved its need vanishes. Nor is paradise a place to enjoy the blessings only of one's previous good deeds, but it is the starting-point of the development of the higher faculties of man. Those in paradise shall not be idle, but they shall be continually exerting themselves to reach the higher stages. It is for this reason that they are taught to pray even there to their Lord, "O our Lord! make perfect for us our light" (66:8). This unceasing desire for perfection shows clearly that progress in paradise shall be endless. For when they shall have attained one excellence they shall see a higher stage of excellence, and considering that to which they shall have attained as imperfect, shall desire the attainment of the higher excellence. This ceaseless desire for perfection shows that they shall be ever attaining to higher and higher excellences.

Belief in angels and its significance.

I have now briefly indicated the three fundamental principles of a Muslim's faith, but I may further add that belief in the unseen also includes a belief in those agencies which we call angels. This belief, though common to many religions, is not as widely accepted as the three principles explained above, and therefore a few remarks relating to the truth underlying this belief will not be out of place here. In the physical world we find it as an established law that we stand in need of external agents, notwithstanding the faculties and powers within us. The eye has been given to us to see things, and it does see them, but not without the help of external light. The ear receives the sound, but independently of the agency of air it cannot serve that purpose. Man, therefore, essentially stands in need of something besides what is within him, and as in the physical, so also in the spiritual world. Just as our physical faculties are not by themselves sufficient to enable us to attain any object in the physical world without the assistance of other agents, so our spiritual powers cannot by themselves lead us to do good or evil deeds, but here, too, intermediaries which have an existence independent of our internal spiritual powers are necessary to enable us to do either. In other words, there are two attractions placed in the nature of man: the attraction to good, or to rise up to higher spheres of virtue, and the attraction to evil, or to stoop to a low, bestial life; but to bring these attractions into operation external agencies are needed, as they are needed in the case of the physical organs of man. The external agency which brings the attraction to good into work is called an angel, and that which assists in the working of the attraction to evil is called the devil. If we respond to the attraction to good we are following the Holy Spirit, and if we respond to the attraction to evil we are following Satan. The real significance of the belief in angels is, therefore, that we should follow the inviter to good, or the attraction to good which is placed within us.

Significance of belief.

The above remarks explain not only the significance of a Muslim's belief in angels, but also the meaning underlying the very word belief. Belief, according to Islam, is not only a conviction of the truth of a given proposition, but it is essentially the acceptance of a proposition as a basis for action. As already shown, the proposition of the existence of the devils is as true as that of the existence of the angels; but while belief in angels is again and again mentioned as part of a Muslim's faith, nowhere are we required to believe in the devils. Both facts are equally true, and the Holy Qur-ān speaks on numerous occasions of the misleadings and insinuations of the devils; but while it requires a belief in angels, it does not require a belief in devils. If belief in angels were only equivalent to an admission of their existence, a belief in devils was an equal necessity. But it is not so. The reason is that whereas we are required to accept and follow the call of the inviter to good, we are not required to follow the call of the inviter to evil, and therefore, as the former gives us a basis for action which the latter does not, we believe in the angels but not in the devils. On the other hand, the Holy Qur-ân requires us to disbelieve in the devils: "Therefore whosoever disbelieves in the devils and believes in Allah, he indeed has laid hold on the firmest handle" (2:256).

It will thus be seen that the principles of belief enumerated above, as given in the Holy Qur-ân, are really principles each of which serves as a basis for action, and no other belief is known to Islam. The Islamic beliefs are not formulæ for repetition, but formulæ for action. The word Allah—the Arabic word for God—indicates that Being who possesses all the perfect attributes, and when a Muslim is required to believe in Allah he is really required to make himself the possessor of all those attributes of perfection. He has to set before himself the highest and the purest ideal that the heart of man can conceive, and to make his conduct conform to that ideal. The belief in Divine revelation makes him accept and imitate all the good that is met with in the lives of righteous men, and the belief in the hereafter is equivalent to the recognition of that most important principle of the responsibility of man: his accountability for his actions. Thus the Islamic beliefs are really axiomatic truths upon which are based the moral and spiritual aspects of the life of man.

Principles of action.

Next we take the practical side of the faith of Islam. As I have already said, in Islam actions are as essentially a component part of religion as belief. In this respect Islam occupies a middle position between religions which have ignored the practical side altogether and those which bind their followers to a very minute ritual. It sees the necessity of developing the faculties of man by giving general directions, and then leaves ample scope for the individual to exercise his judiciousness. Without a strong practical character, any religion is likely to pass into mere idealism, and it will cease to exercise influence on the practical life of man. The precepts of Islam which inculcate duties towards God and duties towards man are based on that deep knowledge of human nature which cannot be possessed but by the Author of that nature. They cover the whole range of the different grades of the development of man, and are thus wonderfully adapted to the requirements of different peoples. In the Holy Qur-ân are found guiding rules for the ordinary man of the world as well as for the philosopher, and for communities in the lowest grade of civilization as well as for the highly civilized nations of the world. Practicability is the key-note of its precepts, and thus the same universality which marks its principles of faith is to be met with in its practical ordinances, suiting as they do the requirements of all ages and nations.

The verses which give us the three fundamental principles of faith also contain two fundamental principles of action, viz. the keeping up of prayer and spending benevolently out of what one has. These two, in fact, cover the whole sphere of man's actions. Generally speaking, these two principles may be described as standing for man's duties towards God and man's duties towards man. But properly speaking, this distinction is superficial. In the true sense of the word, every duty of man is a duty towards God, and hence it is that the Holy Qur-ân, when mentioning the most ordinary duties of man towards man, follows up its injunctions with the words be careful of your duty to Allah. To the same effect is the Holy Prophet's saying: The person who violates his brother's right is not a believer in the Unity of God. It is to his Maker that man is actually responsible in all cases. But in another sense, every duty of man is either a duty towards self or a duty towards fellow-beings, and God is over and over again stated to be Ghani, i.e. Self-sufficient, above any need of the worlds. If the whole world is engaged in praying to Him, it does not add one whit to His transcendental glory, and if the whole world disbelieves in Him and is ungrateful to Him, it does not detract from His dignity in the least. Hence, what are generally called duties towards God are in fact duties towards self, or duties which do not affect one's fellow-beings but affect oneself. These are, in fact, the means of man's moral advancement and spiritual betterment, and the principal duties under this head are the keeping up of prayer, fasting for one month, and performing a pilgrimage to Mecca. The most important duty of man towards man, which is one of the fundamental principles of the practical code of Islam, is zakāt, or the paying of the poor-rate, a tax levied on the rich for the benefit of the poor, and this, together with the three principal duties towards self, form as it were the four pillars of the Islamic faith on its practical side. These four are therefore considered further on more fully, though briefly. As regards man's duties towards man in general, a few remarks will be sufficient.

Scope of moral teachings.

The Holy Qur-ān was not meant for one people or one age, and accordingly the scope of its moral teachings is as wide as humanity itself. It is the Book which offers guidance to all men in all conditions of life, to the ignorant savage as well as to the wise philosopher, to the man of business as well as to the recluse, to the rich as well as to the poor. Accordingly, while giving varied rules of life, it appeals to the individual to follow the best rules which are applicable to the circumstances under which he lives. If, on the one hand, it contains directions which are calculated to raise men in the lowest grades of civilization and to teach them the crude manners of society, it also, on the other, furnishes rules of guidance to men in the highest stages of moral and spiritual progress. High and ideal moral teachings are no doubt necessary for the progress of man, but only those will be able to benefit by them who can realize those high ideals. But to this class do not belong the vast masses in any nation or community, however high its standard of civilization may be. Hence the Qur-ān contains rules of guidance for all the stages through which man has to pass in the onward march from the condition of the savage to that of the highly spiritual man. They cover all the branches of human activity and require the development of all the faculties of man. Islam requires the display of every quality that has been placed in man, and makes only one limitation—viz. that it should be displayed on the proper occasion. It requires a man to show meekness as well as courage, but each on its proper occasion. It teaches forgiveness, but at the same time it requires that when the nature of an offence demands punishment, it should be administered in proportion to the crime. It says: Forgive when you see that forgiveness would be conducive to good. Again, it teaches men to display high morals under the most adverse circumstances, to be honest even when honesty is likely to lead one into complications, to speak truth even when one's truthful statement is against those nearest and dearest to one, to show sympathy even at the sacrifice of one's own interest, to be patient under the hardest afflictions, to be good even to those who have done evil. At the same time it teaches the middle path: it teaches men to exercise the noble qualities which have been placed in their nature by God while transacting their own affairs. It does not inculcate severance from one's worldly connections ; it requires men to be chaste, but not by castration ; it requires them to serve God, but not as monks : it enjoins them to spend their wealth, but not in such a manner as to sit down "blamed and straitened in means" ; it teaches them to be submissive, but not by losing self-respect ; it exhorts them to forgive, but not in such a manner as to bring destruction upon society by emboldening culprits ; it allows them to exercise all their rights, but not so as to violate those of others ; and, last of all, it requires them to preach their own religion, but not by abusing the religion of others.

The brotherhood of Islam.

In the first place, Islam abolishes all invidious class distinctions. "Surely the most honourable of you with Allah is the one among you most careful of his duty" sounds a death-knell to all superiority or inferiority based on rigid caste or social distinctions. Mankind is but one family, according to the Holy Qur-án, which says: "O men! surely We have created you of a male and a female and made you tribes and families that you may know each other: surely the most honourable of you with Allah is the one among you most careful of his duty" (49: 13). Islam thus lays down the basis of a vast brotherhood in which all men and women—to whatever tribe or nation or caste they may belong and whatever be their profession or rank in society, the wealthy and the poor—have equal rights, and in which no one can trample upon the right of his brother. In this brotherhood all members should treat each other as members of the same family. The slave is to be clothed with the clothing and fed with the food of his master, and he is not to be treated as a low or vile person. Your wives, says the Holy Qur-án, have rights against you as you have rights against them. No one is to be deprived of any right on the score of caste or profession or sex. And this great brotherhood did not remain a brotherhood in theory, but became an actual living force by the noble example of the Holy Prophet and his worthy successors and companions. The strict rule of brotherhood is laid down in the following words in a saying of the Holy Prophet: "No one of you is a believer in God unless he loves for his brother what he loves for himself."

Reverence for authority.

But while thus establishing equality of rights, Islam teaches the highest reverence for authority. The home is the real nursery in which the moral training of man begins, and therefore the Holy Qur-án lays the greatest stress upon obedience to parents. Here is one of the passages of the Holy Qur-án: "And your Lord has commanded that you shall not serve any but Him, and goodness to your parents. If either or both of them reach old age with you, say not to them so much as 'Ugh,' nor chide them, and speak to them a generous word. And make yourself submissively gentle to them with compassion, and say, 'O my Lord! have compassion on them, as they brought me up when I was little'" (17: 23-24). It is elsewhere said that they should be disobeyed only if they compelled one to serve others than God. This high reverence for parents is the basis from which springs up the high moral of reverence for all authority. And thus the Holy Qur-án plainly says: "Obey Allah and obey the Apostle and those in authority from among you" (4: 59.) By those in authority are meant not only the actual rulers of a country, but all those who are in any way entrusted with authority. It has been remarked by the Holy Prophet: "Every one of you is a ruler, and every one of you shall be questioned about those among whom he is in authority." Therefore, Islam requires all men to obey those who are in immediate authority over them, and thus cuts at the root of all kinds of rebellion and anarchy. The person in authority may belong to any religion, but he is to be obeyed in the same manner as the parents are to be obeyed, though they may not be believers in Islam. According to a saying of the Holy Prophet, even if a Negro slave is placed in authority he must be obeyed.

Four fundamental institutions.

The four fundamental institutions of the Muslim faith are noted below at some length, especially the prayer.

1. ṢALĀT, OR THE ISLAMIC PRAYER

Prayer is an outpouring of the heart's sentiments, a devout supplication to God, and a reverential expression of the soul's sincerest desires before its Maker. In Islam the idea of prayer, like all other religious ideas, finds its highest development. Prayer, according to the Holy Qur-ān, is the true means of that purification of the heart which is the only way to communion with God. The Holy Qur-ān says: "Recite that which has been revealed to you of the Book and keep up prayer; surely prayer keeps (one) away from indecency and evil, and certainly the remembrance of Allah is the greatest" (29: 45). Islam, therefore, enjoins prayer as a means of the moral elevation of man. Prayer degenerating into a mere ritual, into a lifeless and vapid ceremony performed with insincerity of heart, is not the prayer enjoined by Islam. Such prayer is expressly denounced by the Holy Qur-ān: "Woe to the praying ones who are unmindful of their prayers" (107: 4, 5).

With a Muslim his prayer is his spiritual diet, of which he partakes five times a day, and those who think that it is too often should remember how many times daily they require food for their bodies. Is not spiritual growth much more essential than physical growth? Is not the soul more valuable than the body? If food is needed several times daily to minister to the needs of the body, is not spiritual refreshment at the same time badly needed? Or if the body would be starved if it were fed only on the seventh day, has not the soul been actually starved by denying to it even the little which it could get after six days? The founder of Christianity himself emphasized this when he said: "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God" (Matt. 4: 4). What Christ taught in words has been reduced to a practical form by the Holy Prophet Muhammad.

It may be noted that while other religions have generally set apart a whole day for Divine service, on which other work is not to be done, Islam has given quite a new meaning to Divine service by introducing prayer into the everyday affairs of men. A day is not here set apart for prayer, and in this sense no sabbath is known to Islam. What Islam requires is this, that when most busy a Muslim should still be able to disengage himself from all worldly occupations and resort to his prayers. Hence it is also that Islam has done away with all institutions of monkery, which require a man to give up all worldly occupations for the whole of his life in order to hold communion with God. It makes communion with God possible even when man is most busy with his worldly occupations, thus making possible that which was generally considered impossible before its advent.

But while Islam has given permanence to the institution of prayer by requiring its observance at stated times and in a particular manner, it has also left ample scope for the individual himself to select what portions of the Holy Qur-ān he likes and to make what supplications his soul yearns after. General directions have no doubt been given, and on these the whole of the Muslim world is agreed, for these directions were necessary to secure regularity, method, and uniformity but in addition to these, ample scope has been left for the individual to give vent to his own feelings before the great Maker of the universe. As regards the time and mode of prayer, the following directions will be sufficient for the information of the ordinary reader.

Times of prayer.

The saying of prayer is obligatory upon every Muslim, male or female, who has attained to the age of discretion. It is said five times a day as follows :—

1. Ṣalāt-ul-Fajr, or the morning prayer, is said after dawn and before sunrise.

2. Ṣalāt-uz-Zuhr, or the early afternoon prayer, is said when the sun begins to decline, and its time extends till the next prayer.

3. Ṣalāt-ul-ʿAṣr, or the late afternoon prayer, is said when the sun is about midway on its course to setting, and its time extends to a little before it actually sets.

4. Ṣalāt-ul-Maghrib, or the sunset prayer, is said immediately after the sun sets.

5. Ṣalāt-ul-Ishā, or the early night prayer, is said when the red glow in the west disappears, and its time extends to midnight. But it must be said before going to bed.

Note 1.—When a person is sick, or on a journey (or in case of rain, when the prayer is said in congregation in a mosque), the early afternoon and the late afternoon prayers may be said in conjunction, and so also the sunset and early night prayers. In the case of conjunction the *sunna*t may be dropped.

Note 2.—Besides these five obligatory prayers there are two optional ones. The first of these is the Ṣalāt-ul-lail, the tahajjud, or the late night prayer, which is said after midnight, after being refreshed with sleep, and before dawn. This prayer is specially recommended in the Holy Qur-ān. The other is known as the Ṣalāt-ud-duḥā, and it may be said at about breakfast-time. This is the time at which the two ʿId prayers are said.

Note 3.—The service on Friday takes the place of the early afternoon prayer.

Preparation for prayer.

Before saying prayers it is necessary to wash those parts of the body which are generally exposed. This is called wuḍū, or ablution. The ablution is performed thus :—

1. The hands are cleansed, washing them up to the wrists.

2. Then the mouth is cleansed by means of a tooth-brush or simply with water.

3. Then the nose is cleansed within the nostrils with water.

4. Then the face is washed.

5. Then the right arm, and after that the left arm, is washed up to the elbow.

6. The head is then wiped over with wet hands, the three fingers between the little finger and the thumb of both hands being joined together.

7. The feet are then washed up to the ankles, the right foot first and the left after.

But if there are socks on, and they have been put on after performing an ablution, it is not necessary to take them off: the wet hands may be passed over them. The same practice may be resorted to in case the boots are on, but it would be more decent to take off the boots when going into a mosque. It is, however, necessary that the socks be taken off and the feet washed about once in every twenty-four hours.

Note 1.—A fresh ablution is necessary only when a man has answered a call of nature or has been asleep.

Note 2.—In cases of intercourse between husband and wife, a total ablution or washing of the whole body is necessary.

Note 3.—When a person is sick, or when access cannot be had to water, what is called tayammum is performed in place of ablution or total ablution. Tayammum is performed by touching pure earth with both hands and then wiping over the face with this only once, and the backs of the two hands.

Service.

The service consists ordinarily of two parts, one part, called the farḍ, to be said in congregation, preferably in a mosque, with an imām leading the service; the second part, called sunnat, to be said alone, preferably in one's house. But when a man is unable to say his prayers in congregation, the farḍ may be said like the sunnat, alone.

Each part consists of a certain number of rak'ats, as explained below:—

The I'ajr, or morning prayer, consists of two rak'ats (sunnat) said alone, followed by two rak'ats (farḍ) said in congregation.

The Zuhr, or early afternoon prayer, is a longer service consisting of four, or two, rak'ats (sunnat) said alone, followed by four rak'ats (farḍ) said in congregation, and followed again by two rak'ats (sunnat) said alone.

In the Friday service held at the time of zuhr, which takes the place of the sabbath of some other religions, the four rak'ats (farḍ) said in congregation are reduced to two, but these two rak'ats are preceded by a sermon (Khutbah), exhorting the Muslims to goodness and showing them the means of their moral elevation and dwelling upon their national and communal welfare.

The 'Aṣr, or the late afternoon prayer, consists of four rak'ats (farḍ) said in congregation.

The Maghrib, or the sunset prayer, consists of three rak'ats (farḍ), said in congregation, followed by two rak'ats (sunnat) said alone.

The 'Ishā, or early night prayer, consists of four rak'ats (farḍ) said in congregation, followed by two rak'ats (sunnat) said alone, again followed by three rak'ats (witr) said alone, the last of these rak'ats constituting the well-known prayer known as qunūt.

The Tahajjud, or late night prayer, consists of eight rak'ats (sunnat) said in twos.

The Duḥā, or the before-noon prayer, may consist of two rak'ats or four rak'ats.

The 'Id prayer consists of two rak'ats (sunnat) said in congregation, being followed by a sermon or khutbah, the object of which is the same as the object of the sermon in the Friday service.

Note 1.—When a person is journeying, the sunnat is dropped in every one of the prayers except the morning prayer, and the four rak'ats farḍ in each of the Zuhr and the 'Aṣr and the 'Ishā prayers are reduced to two. When one is aware that his stay at a particular place in his journey will be four days or more, the complete service should be performed there.

Note 2.—When there are two or more persons, they may form a congregation, one of them acting as the imām, or the leader; but when a person is alone, he may say the farḍ alone, as he does the sunnat.

Two chief features of the Muslim congregational service are that the service may be led by any one, the only condition being that he should know the Qur-ān better than the others, and that he should excel the others in righteousness and in the performance of his duties towards God and His creatures; the second is that not the least distinction of caste or rank or wealth is to be met with in a Muslim congregation: even the king stands shoulder to shoulder with the least of his subjects.

Note 3.—Every congregational service must be preceded by an azān and an iqāmat, the former being a call to prayer said in a sufficiently loud voice, and the latter requiring those assembled for the congregational service to stand up in a line, or in several lines if necessary.

The azān, or call to prayer, consists of the following sentences, uttered in a loud voice by the crier, standing with his face to the qiblah, i.e. towards Mecca, which is the centre of the Muslim world, and in fact the spiritual centre of the whole world, with both hands raised to his ears:—

1. اَللّٰهُ اَكْبَرُ Allāh-u Akbar, i.e. Allah is the greatest (repeated four times).
2. اَشْهَدُ اَنْ لَا اِلَهَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ Ash-hadu al-lā-ildā ill-Allāh, i.e. I bear witness that nothing deserves to be worshipped but Allah (repeated twice).
3. اَشْهَدُ اَنَّ مُحَمَّدًا رَّسُوْلُ اللّٰهِ Ash-hadu anna Muhammadar-rasūl ullāh, i.e. I bear witness that Muhammad is the Apostle of Allah (repeated twice).
4. حَيَّ عَلَى الصَّلٰوةِ Hayya 'alaṣ-ṣalāh, i.e. come to prayer (repeated twice, turning the face to the right).
5. حَيَّ عَلَى الْفَلَاحِ Hayya 'alal-falāh, i.e. come to success (repeated twice, turning the face to the left).
6. اَللّٰهُ اَكْبَرُ Allāh-u Akbar, i.e. Allah is the greatest (repeated twice).
7. لَا اِلَهَ اِلَّا اللّٰهُ Lā ildā ill-Allāh, i.e. there is no god but Allah.

The following sentence is added in the call of morning prayer after No. 5, i.e. before the two final sentences: اَلصَّلٰوةُ خَيْرٌ مِّنَ النَّوْمِ Aṣ-ṣalāt-u khair-un min-an-naum, i.e. prayer is better than sleep (repeated twice).

The iqāmat is said in the same words, every sentence being said only once, and with the addition of the following sentence repeated twice before the two final sentences: قَدْ قَامَتِ الصَّلٰوةُ Qad qāmat-iṣ-ṣalāh, i.e. the prayer has indeed begun.

Both azān and iqāmat are dispensed with in the case of 'īd prayers. Instead of these, Allāh-u Akbar is repeated seven times in the first rak'at and five times in the second after the takbīr-i-takrīmah. In the Friday service there are generally two calls, the second being given when the imām is about to deliver the sermon.

Note 4.—A mosque is a building dedicated to Divine service, but a service, whether alone or in congregation, may be held anywhere when necessary. The Holy Prophet is reported to have said that the whole of the earth had been made a mosque for him, indicating not only that no place stood in need of being consecrated, but also that the true servants of Allah would spread over the whole surface of the earth.

Description of a rak'at.

One rak'at is completed as follows :—

1. Both hands are raised up to the ears in a standing position, with the face towards the qiblah, i.e. Mecca, while the words Allāh-u Akbar (Allah is the greatest of all) are uttered, and this is called the Takbir-i-tahrimah.

2. Then comes Qiyām. The right hand is placed upon the left on the breast, while the standing position is maintained, and the following prayer, or a part of it, should be recited :—

إِنِّي وَجَّهْتُ وَجْهِيَ لِلَّذِي فَطَرَ السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضَ حَقِيقًا وَمَا أَنَا مِنَ الْمُتَسِرِّكِينَ
 إِنَّ صَلَاتِي وَنُسُكِي وَمَحْيَايَ وَمَمَاتِي لِلَّهِ رَبِّ الْعَالَمِينَ لَا شَرِيكَ لَهُ وَبِذَلِكَ أُمِرْتُ
 وَأَنَا مِنَ الْمُسْلِمِينَ ۝ اللَّهُمَّ أَنْتَ الْمَلِكُ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا أَنْتَ أَنْتَ رَبِّي وَأَنَا عَبْدُكَ ظَلَمْتُ
 نَفْسِي وَاعْتَرَفْتُ بِذُنُوبِي فَأَعِزَّنِي بِذُنُوبِي جَمِيعًا إِنَّهُ لَا يَعْفِرُ الذُّنُوبَ إِلَّا أَنْتَ وَاهْدِنِي
 إِلَى حَسَنِ الْإِسْلَامِ لَا يَهْدِي إِلَّا حَسَنُكَ لَا أَنْتَ وَاصْرِفْ عَنِّي سَيِّئَهَا لَا يَصْرِفُ عَنِّي

Translation.

“Surely I have turned myself, being upright, to Him Who originated the heavens and the earth, and I am not of the polytheists. Surely my prayer and my sacrifice and my life and my death are all for Allah, the Lord of the worlds; no associate has He, and this am I commanded, and I am of those who submit. O Allah! Thou art the King, there is no god but Thou; Thou art my Lord and I am Thy servant; I have been unjust to myself, and I confess my faults, so grant me protection against all my faults, for none grants protection against faults but Thou, and guide me to the best of morals, for none guides to the best of them but Thou; and turn away from me the evil morals, for none can turn away from me the evil morals but Thou.”

The following brief prayer is, however, the one more generally adopted :—

سُبْحَانَكَ اللَّهُمَّ وَبِحَمْدِكَ وَتَعَالَى جَدُّكَ وَلَا إِلَهَ غَيْرُكَ اَعُوْذُ بِكَ يَا اللَّهُ
 مِنَ الشَّيْطَانِ الرَّجِيمِ

Transliteration.

Subḥāna-ka Allāhumma wa bi-ḥamd-i-ka wa tabārak-asm-u-ka wa ta'āla jadd-u-ka wa lā ilāha ḡair-u-ka A'ūzu billāhi min-ash-shaīṭān-ir-rajīm.

Translation.

Glory to Thee, O Allah! and Thine is the praise, and blessed is Thy Name and exalted is Thy Majesty, and there is none to be served besides Thee. I betake me for refuge to Allah against the accursed devil.

After this the Fātiḥah, which runs as follows, is recited in the same position :—

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ ۝ الْحَمْدُ لِلَّهِ رَبِّ الْعَالَمِينَ ۝ الرَّحْمَنُ الرَّحِيمُ ۝ مَلِكُ يَوْمِ

عَلَيْهِمْ ۝ غَيْرِ الْمَغْضُوبِ عَلَيْهِمْ وَلَا الضَّالِّينَ ۝

Transliteration.

Bismillāh-ir Raḥmān-ir Raḥīm. Al-ḥamd u lillāh i Rabbil-'ālamīn. Ar-rahmān-ir-Raḥīm. Mālik i-yaum-id-dīn Iyyaka na'budu wa iyyaka nasta'in. Iḥdi-nāṣ-ṣirāṭ-al-mustaqīm. Ṣirāṭ-allazīna an'amta 'alaihim gair-ul magh-ḍūb i 'alaihim wa lalḍḍāllīn.

Translation.

In the name of Allah the Beneficent, the Merciful. All praise is due to Allah, the Lord of the worlds, the Beneficent, the Merciful; Master of the day of requital. Thee do we serve, and Thee do we beseech for help. Guide us on the right path, the path of those upon whom Thou hast bestowed favours, not of those upon whom wrath is brought down, nor of those who go astray.

At the close of the above is said Amin—i.e. Be it so—and then any portion of the Qur-ān which the worshipper has by heart is recited. Generally one of the shorter chapters at the close of the Holy Book is repeated, and the chapter termed Al-Ikhlāṣ (Unity) is the one recommended for those who are unacquainted with the Qur-ān. This is as follows :—

قُلْ هُوَ اللَّهُ أَحَدٌ ۝ اللَّهُ الصَّمَدُ ۝ لَمْ يَلِدْ وَلَمْ يُولَدْ ۝ وَلَمْ يَكُنْ لَهُ كُفُوًا أَحَدٌ ۝

Transliteration

Qul huw-allāhu Aḥad. Allāh-uṣ-Ṣamad. Lam yalid wa lam yūlad. Wa lam yakul-la-hū kuḥuwan aḥad.

Translation.

Say: He, Allah, is one; Allah is He of Whom nothing is independent; He begets not, nor is He begotten; and none is like Him.

3. Then, saying Allāh-u Akbar (Allah is the greatest of all), the worshipper lowers his head down, so that the palms of the hands reach the knees. In this position, which is called Rukū', words expressive of the Divine glory and majesty are repeated at least three times. They are the following :—

سُبْحَانَ رَبِّيَ الْعَظِيمِ Subḥān-a Rabb-iy-al-'Azīm, i.e. Glory to my Lord, the Great.

The following words may also be added or adopted instead of the above :—

سُبْحَانَكَ اللَّهُمَّ رَبَّنَا وَبِحَمْدِكَ اللَّهُمَّ اغْفِرْ لِي Sub-ḥanaka-Allāhumma Rabbana wa biḥamdika allāhum-maghfir li, i.e. Glory to Thee, O Allah, our Lord, and Thine the praise; O Allah ! grant me protection.

4. After this, the standing position is assumed, with the words :—

رَبَّنَا وَلَكَ الْحَمْدُ Sami'-Allāh-u liman ḥamidah. رَبَّنَا وَلَكَ الْحَمْدُ
Rabbunā wa-lak-al-ḥamd, i.e. Allah accepts him who gives praise to Him;
O our Lord, Thine is the praise.

5. Then the worshipper prostrates himself, the toes of both feet, both knees, both hands, and the forehead touching the ground, and the following words expressing Divine greatness are uttered at least three times in this position, which is called the Sajdah :—

سُبْحَانَ رَبِّيَ الْأَعْلَى Subḥana Rabbiyal-'Alā, i.e. Glory to my Lord, the Most High.

The following words may also be added to the above or adopted instead :—

سُبْحَانَكَ اللَّهُمَّ رَبَّنَا وَبِحَمْدِكَ اللَّهُمَّ اغْفِرْ لِي Subḥana-ka Allāhumma Rabba-nā wa bi-ḥamdika Allāhum-maghfir li, i.e. O Allah ! Glory to Thee, and Thine is the praise; O Allah ! grant me protection.

This is the first sajdah.

6. Then the worshipper sits down in a reverential posture. This is called jalsah.

7. This is followed by a second prostration, or the second sajdah, as described above under 5, with the repetition of the words there given.

8. This finishes one rak'at. The worshipper then rises and assumes a standing position for the second rak'at, which is finished in the same manner as the first, but instead of assuming a standing posture after the second rak'at, he kneels down in a reverential position called the qa'dah, and with the glorification of the Divine Being combines prayers for the Holy Prophet, for the faithful, and for himself, called the tahyiyah, which runs as follows :—

الْحَمْدُ لِلَّهِ وَالصَّلَاةُ وَالطَّيِّبَاتُ السَّلَامُ عَلَيْكَ أَيُّهَا النَّبِيُّ وَرَحْمَةُ اللَّهِ وَبَرَكَاتُهُ
السَّلَامُ عَلَيْنَا وَعَلَى عِبَادِ اللَّهِ الصَّالِحِينَ أَشْهَدُ أَنْ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ وَأَشْهَدُ أَنَّ مُحَمَّدًا
عَبْدُهُ وَرَسُولُهُ

Transliteration.

At tahyiyāt u lillāh i waṣ-salawāt u wat-tayyibāt u. As-salām u 'alaika anna Muḥammadan 'abdu-hu wa rasūluh.

Translation.

Translation.

My Lord! make me keep up prayer, and my offspring too; Our Lord! accept the prayer; Our Lord! grant Thy protection to me and to my parents and to the faithful on the day when the reckoning will be taken.

10. This closes the service, which ends with the saldm, or the greeting, being also the greeting of the Muslims to each other. The worshipper turns his head first to the right and then to the left, saying each time:—

الْسَّلَامُ عَلَيْكُمْ وَرَحْمَةُ اللَّهِ As-salammu 'alaikum wa rahmat-ullah i, i.e. Peace be with you and the mercy of Allah.

11. Thus the service finishes, if the worshipper had to say only two rak'ats; but if he had intended three or four rak'ats, then after the qa'dah (see 8), and repeating tahiyyah therein (see 8), he takes the standing position, again saying, Allāh-u Akbar, and finishes the remaining one or two rak'ats in the same manner (see 1 to 7), the last act being always kneeling in a reverential mood, saying tahiyyah and prayer of blessings for the Prophet, etc., and the concluding prayer (see 8 and 9), to be followed by the saldm.

Besides this, the worshipper is at liberty to pray in any position, as the yearning of his soul leads him to, for the ṣalāt, or the liturgical service of Islam, is a prayer throughout. It is to be observed that in first standing up for prayer and in changing from one position to another, the worshipper says Allāh-u Akbar, or "Allah is the greatest," and therefore it is only just that man should in all positions and places be truly submissive to Him, sitting, standing, bowing, and prostrating himself when he is called upon to do so by One Who is the Greatest of all. Only when rising from the ruk'u (see 3) he says, Sami'-Allāhu li-man hamidah, i.e. "Allah accepts him who gives praises to Him," instead of Allāh-u Akbar.

Note.—When the prayer is said in congregation, the congregation, or those who follow the imām, repeat all the prayers, etc., and also the Fātiḥah, but not the portions of the Qur-ān following the I'atīḥah, and when the imām, rising from the bowing posture, says, Sami'-Allāh-u liman hamidah, the congregation say, Rabbān wa lak-al-ḥamd (see 4).

12. The prayer known as the qunūt is recited after rising from the ruk'u (see 3), or immediately before assuming that position, when standing, generally only in the last of the three last rak'ats (witr) of the 'Ishā prayer. The most well known qunūt is the following:—

اللَّهُمَّ اهْدِنِي فِيمَنْ هَدَيْتَ وَعَافِنِي فِيمَنْ عَافَيْتَ وَتَوَلَّنِي فِيمَنْ تَوَلَّيْتَ وَبَارِكْ لِي
فِيمَا أَعْطَيْتَ وَقِنِي شَرَّ مَا نَصَيْتَ فَإِنَّكَ تَقْضِي وَلَا يُفْضَى عَلَيْكَ إِنَّهُ لَا يَدُلُّ مَنْ
وَلَّيْتَ بَارَكْتَ رَبَّنَا وَنَعَايَيْتَ

O Allah! guide me among those whom Thou hast guided aright, and preserve me among those whom Thou hast preserved, and befriend me among those whom Thou hast befriended, and bless me in what Thou dost grant me, and protect me from the evil of what Thou hast judged; for surely Thou judgest, and none can judge against Thee; surely he whom Thou befriendest is not disgraced. Blessed art Thou, our Lord, and Exalted.

O Allah! we beseech Thy help, and ask Thy protection and believe in Thee, and trust in Thee, and we laud Thee in the best manner, and we thank Thee, and we are not ungrateful to Thee, and we cast off and forsake him who disobeys Thee! O Allah! Thee do we serve, and to Thee do we pray and make obeisance, and to Thee do we flee, and we are quick, and we hope for Thy mercy and we fear Thy chastisement; for surely Thy chastisement overtakes the unbelievers.

The whole of the Muslim prayer is only a declaration of Divine majesty and glory, and Divine holiness and perfection, and of the entire dependence of man on his Maker. As the body assumes every posture of humbleness and adoration, the tongue gives expression to every form of Divine glory and perfection, and the heart cannot but be full of the deepest and purest emotions. What a spirit of Divine grandeur permeates every word! What a great reliance on God! What a noble expression of obedience to Him and willingness to have no concern with those who are not of God! What a true fear of the Deity, and fearlessness of the rest! There is no noble desire, emotion, or sentiment which has not found its expression in the above words.

2. FASTING

Fasting is one of those religious institutions which, though universally recognized, have had quite a new meaning introduced into them by the advent of Islam. Fasting was generally resorted to in times of sorrow and affliction, probably to appease an angry deity. In Islam, fasting is enjoined for the moral elevation of man and for his spiritual betterment. This object is made clear in the Holy Qur-ān itself, where fasting is enjoined: Fasting is prescribed for you . . . so that you may guard against evil (2: 183). Thus, as in prayer, the object is the purification of the soul, so that man may learn how to shun evil. The Holy Qur-ān does not content itself with simply enjoining the doing of good and refraining from evil, but teaches man the ways by walking in which the tendency to evil in him can be suppressed and the tendency to good improved. Fasting is one of those means. Hence fasting in Islam does not mean simply abstaining from food, but from every kind of evil. In fact, abstention from food is only a step to make a man realize—if he can, in obedience to Divine injunctions, abstain from that which is otherwise lawful for him—how much more necessary it is that he should abstain from evil, the consequences of which must no doubt be evil. It is, in fact, like a training of the faculties of man, for as every other faculty of man requires to be trained to attain its full force, the faculty of submission to the Divine will also requires to be trained, and fasting is one of the means by which this is achieved. In addition to that, fasting has its physical advantages. It not only makes man habituated to bear hunger and thirst, and thus to accustom himself to a life of hardship, so that he may not be too much given over to ease, but also exercises a very good effect upon health generally.

The subject is dealt with in the Holy Qur-án in the 23rd section of the 2nd chapter. The number of days on which fasts are to be kept is twenty-nine or thirty, according to the number of the days of the month of Ramaḍán. Food and drink of every kind are prohibited on the fast days from dawn till sunset. So also sexual intercourse. Being a lunar month, the Ramaḍán falls in different seasons in different years, and accordingly the days are sometimes too lengthy in some countries for ordinary constitutions to bear hunger and thirst during the long interval. The analogy of the sick and the traveller, who are enjoined to keep fasts during other days than Ramaḍán, leads us to the conclusion that in such exceptional cases the observance of the fasts may be transferred to shorter days—say to the season when from dawn to sunset would be about fifteen hours, being about the longest duration of the fast in Medina or Mecca.

It may be noted that persons who suffer from constant sickness, men and women too old to bear the hardship, and women who are in the family way and those who give suck, are excused, but they should give away a poor man's food every day, if this is within their means. There are sayings of the Holy Prophet which expressly mention these exceptions.

3. "ZAKÁT," OR THE POOR-RATE

Every religion of the world has preached charity, but, like prayer, we find here method and regularity given to this institution, so that it has assumed in Islam a permanence which is not encountered anywhere else. Islam makes charity obligatory and binding upon all those who accept the Muslim faith. Here we have a brotherhood into which the rich man cannot enter unless and until he is willing to give part of his possessions for the support of its poorer members. There is no doubt that the rich man is not here confronted with the insuperable difficulty of making the camel pass through the eye of the needle before he can enter the kingdom of heaven, but he is subjected to a practical test which not only makes him stand on the same footing with his poorest brother, but also requires him to pay a tax—a tax which is levied on the rich for the benefit of the poor; and thus a real brotherhood is established between the rich and the poor.

The payment of the poor-rate is an injunction next in importance only to prayer. In the Holy Qur-án it is very often mentioned in conjunction with prayer. The zakát is, according to a saying of the Holy Prophet, a charitable gift taken from the rich for the benefit of the poor. Every person is rich within the meaning of this saying who has in his possession silver or other property of the value of approximately Rs.50, or gold of the value of about £12. No zakát is, however, payable on jewels, nor on house furniture, utensils, implements, or other property or live stock in ordinary use. On all hoarded wealth within the above definition which has remained in the possession of the owner for one year, one-fortieth portion is payable into the bait-ul-mal, or the public treasury. In the case of immovable property, zakât is paid on the income or rent that accrues therefrom.

As regards the expenditure of the income of zakât, eight heads are mentioned in the Holy Qur-ân (9 : 60) :—

1. The poor.
2. The needy.
3. Those in debt.
4. (Ransoming of) captives.
5. The wayfarer.
6. The officials appointed in connection with the collection and expenditure of zakât.
- 7. Those whose hearts are made to incline to truth.
- 8. The way of Allah.

A few words may be added to explain the above. As distinguished from the poor, the needy are those who may be able to earn their livelihood, but lack the means, as implements, etc. A person may be able to support himself, but if he is in debt, his debts may be paid off from the zakât fund. The captives are those who are taken prisoners in a war. A portion of the public funds must go for their release. A traveller, though in well-to-do circumstances, may sometimes stand in need of help in a strange place or country ; hence a part of the zakât must also be spent for the wayfarer. The sixth head of expenditure shows that zakât must under all circumstances be collected and disbursed as a public fund, and the individual is not at liberty to spend zakât as he likes. Officials must be appointed to collect it and manage its expenditure, and their wages must be paid out of the zakât fund.

The last two heads relate to the propagation of the faith. With respect to the preaching of a religion, there is always a class which is ready to listen, but money is needed to enable them to listen. These persons are spoken of here as those whose hearts are made to incline to truth. Fi sabit-illâh, or in the way of Allah, stands, as shown in foot-note 350, for the advancement of the cause of the religion of Islam or its defence. Under this head, therefore, zakât may be spent for the propagation of the religion of Islam and to meet the objections advanced against Islam. It may be noted that this head has for the past few centuries been totally neglected by the Muslims, and the result is that there is rarely any effort made for the propagation of the holy religion of Islam.

4. PILGRIMAGE

Performance of the pilgrimage to Mecca is incumbent upon every Muslim once in his life, subject to the condition that he has the means to undertake the journey as well as to make provision for those dependent on him. Security of life is also a necessary condition.

The pilgrimage is performed in the month of Zuhaj, and the pilgrim must reach Mecca before the 7th of that month. As regards the formalities to be observed during the pilgrimage, every one can easily learn them from the Mu'allim, or instructor.

The arkân, or principal points in connection with the pilgrimage, are :—

1. Entering upon a state of ihrâm, in which the ordinary clothes are put off and all pilgrims wear one kind of apparel, consisting of two seamless sheets, leaving the head uncovered.
2. Tawdf, or making circuits round the Ka'ba seven times.
3. Sa'y, or running seven times between Safa and Marwa, two small hills.
4. Staying in the plain of 'Arafât.

It will be seen that the state of iḥrām makes all men and women stand upon one plane of equality, all wearing the same simple dress, and living in the same simple conditions. All distinctions of rank and colour, of wealth and nationality, disappear there, and the king is there indistinguishable from the peasant. The whole of humanity assumes one aspect, one attitude, before its Maker, and thus the grandest and the noblest sight of human equality is witnessed in that wonderful desert plain called the ʿArafāt, which truly makes a man have a true knowledge of his Creator, the word being derived from ʿarafa, meaning he came to have a knowledge (of the thing). The whole of the world is unable to present another such noble picture of real brotherhood and practical equality.

The condition of the pilgrim and the different movements connected with the pilgrimage, the making of circuits and running to and fro, in fact represent the stage in which the worshipper is imbued with the spirit of true love of the Divine Being. That love of God which is so much talked of in other religions becomes here a reality. The fire of Divine love being kindled in the heart, the worshipper now, like a true lover, neglects all cares of the body, and finds his highest satisfaction in sacrificing his very heart and soul for the beloved one's sake, and, like the true lover, he makes circuits round the house of his beloved one and hastens on from place to place. He shows, in fact, that he has given up his own will, and, completely surrendering himself to the Divine will, has sacrificed all his interests for His sake. The lower connections have all been cut off, and all the comforts of this world have lost their attraction for him. The pilgrimage, in fact, represents the last stage in spiritual advancement, and by his outward condition and his movements the pilgrim only announces to the whole world how all lower connections must be cut off to reach the great goal of human perfection, which can only be attained by holding true communion with the Divine Being.

II. THE COLLECTION AND ARRANGEMENT OF THE HOLY QUR-AN

I now come to the second point, viz. the collection and arrangement of the Holy Qur-ān.

The Holy Qur-ān is mentioned by various names in the revelation itself. It is called Al-Kitāb, or the Book (2 : 2, etc.); Al-Qur-ān, or what is or should be read (2 : 185, etc.); Al-Furqān, or that which makes a Distinction between truth and falsehood (25 : 1, etc.); Az-Zikr (other forms of the same word used being zikrā and Tazkirah), or the Reminder (15 : 9, etc.); Al-Tanzil, or the Revelation (26 : 192, etc.); Al-Hadīth, or the Saying (18 : 6, etc.); Al-Mawʿizah, or the Admonition (10 : 57, etc.); Al-Ḥukm (other forms of the same word being ḥikmat, ḥakīm, muhkam), or the Judgment or Wisdom (13 : 37, etc.); Ash-Shifā, or the Healing (10 : 57, etc.); Al-Hudā, or the Guidance (2 : 2, etc.); Ḥabl-Ullah, or the Covenant of Allah (3 : 102); Ar-Raḥmat, or the Mercy (17 : 82); Al-Khair, or the Goodness (3 : 103); Ar-Rūḥ, or the Spirit or the Life (42 : 52); Al-Bayān, or the Explanation (3 : 137); An-Niʿmat, or the Favour (93 : 11); Al-Burhān, or the Argument (4 : 175); Al-Qayyim, or the Maintainer of Truth (18 : 2); Al-Muhaimin, or the Guardian (of previous revelation) (5 : 48); An-Nūr, or the Light (7 : 157); Al-Ḥaqq, or the Truth (17 : 81); Al-Mubārak, or the Blessed (whose blessings are never intercepted) (21 : 50, etc.). It is also mentioned by several other names.

Pains have been taken by non-Muslims to spread the belief that the Holy Qur-ān is a book absolutely devoid of arrangement—that not only are the chapters put together without any regard to their subject-matter, but that even the text in the individual suras is in a perplexed state. The absence of arrangement in the Holy Qur-án has rather become an article of faith with the Christian writers, so that the different writers on this topic, instead of giving any serious and important consideration to the question, have blindly imitated or copied one another in their unwarranted statements.

For instance, Sale, in his preliminary discourse to his translation of the Holy Qur-án, says: "After the new passages had been from the Prophet's mouth taken down in writing by his scribe, they were published to his followers, several of whom took copies for their private use. . . . The originals, when returned, were put promiscuously into a chest." And again: "Muhammad left the chapters complete as we now have them, excepting such passages as his successor might add or correct from those who had gotten them by heart."

Palmer, the latest English translator of the Holy Qur-án, says: "The individual portions of the Qur-án were not always written down immediately after their revelation." And again: "That the Qur-án was, or that even the individual suras were, however, arranged in the present order by the Prophet himself is impossible, both from internal evidence and that of traditions." He also adds: "And, lastly, many odd verses appear to have been inserted into various suras for no other reason than that they suit the rhyme."

*And the basis of all these statements is no other but that the present arrangement of the chapters does not follow the chronological order of revelation. No critic has, however, given a serious thought to the fact that the chronological order of the writing of the various parts of even an ordinary book may be quite different from its subsequent arrangement with reference to the subject-matter. That the arrangement of the whole and of the individual chapters is based on its subject-matter, many Arabic commentators of the Holy Book have pointed out, but while drawing so much other material from them, the English translators of the Holy Qur-án have always utterly ignored this important point. It is to give prominence to this point that I have added an introductory note to each chapter, supplementing it by an abstract of every section of the chapter. This feature of the present translation, and occasional references in the foot-notes, will make it clear that an arrangement based on the subject-matter is observed not only in the order in which the different verses of a chapter follow each other, but also in the construction of the suras.

How this arrangement was brought about is shown by the following considerations:—

1. That the whole of the Holy Qur-án was written down in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet by his own direction.
2. That the whole of the Holy Qur-án was committed to memory by the followers of the Holy Prophet in his lifetime.
3. That the arrangement of the verses in each chapter, and of the chapters themselves, was effected in the lifetime and under the direction of the Holy Prophet.
4. That the collection of the Qur-án under the orders of Abu Bakr was no more than a collection of the different writings into one volume, in accordance with the arrangement observed by the Holy Prophet.
5. That the differences of the readings do not effect any important alteration in the meaning of the text of the Holy Qur-án.

Each of these statements is borne out by internal as well as external evidence, which I briefly consider below under each head.

1. Evidence as to the writing of the Qur-án.

The first and the most important circumstance which assisted in the preservation of the text of the Holy Qur-án is that every verse of it was put into writing in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet before his own eyes. Writing was known at Mecca and Medina before the advent of Islam, and though the Arabs generally relied upon their wonderfully retentive memories for the preservation of thousands of verses and long lists of genealogies, yet they reduced to writing their more important compositions, and hung them in some public place where their compatriots could see and admire them. Hence their seven famous odes are known as as-sab'ul-mu'allaqát—"the seven suspended ones." These odes were so named from the circumstance that they were suspended in the Ka'ba by their authors at the pilgrimage season as odes of unequalled poetic beauty, and there they remained placarded for some time. These were seven different odes by seven different famous poets of the pre-Islamic days, and their being in writing conclusively proves that the art of writing was not unknown to the Arabs, and that they put their prized works into writing.

Various anecdotes have been reported which show that the whole of the Holy Qur-án also existed in a written form in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet. That there is overwhelming evidence of the Qur-án having been reduced to writing before the eyes of the Holy Prophet is amply attested by Sir William Muir, one of the most hostile critics of Islam, who has found it impossible to deny its truth. He writes:—

"But there is good reason for believing that many fragmentary copies, embracing amongst them the whole Qur-án, or nearly the whole, were during his lifetime made by the Prophet's followers. Writing was without doubt generally known at Mecca long before Muhammad assumed the prophetic office. And at Medina many of his followers were employed by the Prophet in writing his letters or despatches. . . . The poorer captives taken at Badr were offered their release on condition that they taught a certain number of Medina citizens to write. And although the people of Medina were not so generally educated as those of Mecca, yet many are noticed as having been able to write before Islam" (Introduction to Muir's Life of Muhammad, p. xxviii).

The Holy Qur-án itself furnishes abundant evidence that it existed in a written form. It again and again calls itself "kitáb," which means a book, or a writing which is complete in itself (see foot-note 13). The Qur-án is also designated as the ṣuḥuf, which means written papers. Thus in 98:2 we have: "An Apostle from Allah reciting pure pages, wherein are the right books." The pure pages are the pages of the Holy Qur-án, and the right books are its chapters; for not only is the entire Qur-án called Al-kitáb or the Book, but its different chapters are also called books. Again in 80:11-16 we read: "Nay! surely it is a source of eminence—so let him who pleases mind it—in honoured books, exalted, purified, in the hands of scribes, noble, virtuous." The word ṣaḥīfah (plural ṣuḥuf), which is used here, is the very word applied to the collection made by Zaid in the Caliphate of Abu Bakr and later in that of 'Uṣman. Thus we see that the Holy Qur-án describes itself in clear and unmistakable words both as a kitáb and as a ṣaḥīfah, words used in the Arabic language to denote a written book, a fact to which every dictionary of the Arabic language testifies. From the same root ṣaḥaf is derived the word Muṣ-ḥaf, a name to this day applied to the Holy Qur-án, which means a book or a volume consisting of a collection of ṣaḥīfas or written pages (see Lane's Lexicon under the root ṣaḥaf). The word Qur-án is derived from the root Qara', which means reading or reciting, and the Holy Book is called the Qur-án, showing that it was meant for reading or reciting.

Every portion of it was both written and recited, and hence it is the Qur-án as well as the Kitáb.

There are many other references in the Holy Qur-án showing that its chapters existed in a written form at an early date. The 56th chapter of the Holy Book, which is entitled Al-Waqi'ah, or the "Great Event," is among the earliest chapters revealed at Mecca, and the following words occur therein: "Most surely it is an honoured Qur-án, in a book that is protected: none shall touch it save the purified ones" (77-79). These words establish two points: firstly, that the Qur-án asserted itself to be a protected book, i.e. a book which none could alter; and secondly, that it claimed to be written at that early date, because the impure are forbidden to touch it. If it was not found in a written form, it could not be described as a thing which could be touched. Rodwell gives the following foot-note under this passage: "This passage implies the existence of copies of portions at least of the Qur-án in common use. It was quoted by the sister of 'Umar when, at his conversion, he desired to take her copy of sura 20 into his hands. Verses 78, 79 were directed by the Caliph Muhammad Abul Qasim bin Abdulla to be inscribed on all copies of the Qur-án." The conclusion, of course, is evident. The words not only signify that the portions already revealed had been reduced to writing, but they clearly imply that the whole must become a written book in time, a book that is protected, and that the impure shall not touch it. It is an admitted fact that every portion of the Holy Qur-án was regarded with equal reverence by the Muslims, and every word of it was believed to be the Word of God. It is, therefore, quite unreasonable to suppose that some portions of the Holy Qur-án were written while others were not. There is not a single circumstance in the whole history of Islam which can entitle us to make any such distinction between the different portions of the Holy Qur-án, and to suppose that while some chapters were written, others were not thought fit to be written, or that equal care was not taken of all the parts or that the laudable desire to preserve every word of the Holy Qur-án was not manifested by the Holy Prophet or his followers. The Holy Qur-án was a "book" "written in pure pages," which none but the pure should touch, and these descriptions apply to each and every word of the Holy Book.

Again, it is in a chapter revealed and proclaimed at Mecca that we meet with the following challenge to the unbelievers who looked upon the Holy Qur-án as a fabrication of the Prophet: "Or do they say, He has forged it? Say, Then bring ten forged chapters like it, and call upon whom you can besides Allah if you are truthful" (11: 13). A similar challenge is contained in a chapter of a still earlier date: "Say, If men and jinn should combine together to bring the like of this Qur-án, they could not bring the like of it, though some of them were aiders of others" (17: 88). And in a chapter revealed at Medina we have: "And if you are in doubt as to that which we have revealed to Our servant, then produce a chapter like it, and call on your helpers besides Allah, if you are truthful. But if you do it not—and never shall you do it—then be on your guard against the fire" (2: 23, 24). Now, all these challenges to the opponents to produce one sura or ten suras like the Qur-án imply that the suras of the Holy Qur-án existed in a written form at the time of the challenge, because otherwise the challenge would have been meaningless, for they could not be challenged to produce its like unless they could have access to the written chapters.

There are numerous anecdotes showing that when the Holy Prophet received a revelation it was at once reduced to writing, and thus every verse or chapter of the Holy Qur-án, when it was revealed, was put into writing in the presence of the Holy Prophet. According to a report narrated by Abu Dáood, Tirmazi, and Ahmad, the Caliph 'Uṣman thus explained the practice as to the writing of the revelations of the Holy Qur-án: "It was customary with the Messenger of God (may peace and the blessings of God be upon him!) that when portions of different chapters were revealed to him, and when any verse was revealed, he called one of those persons who used to write the Holy Qur-án and said to him, 'Write these verses in the chapter where such and such verses occur.'" This report mentions, not what the Holy Prophet did on one occasion, but what he always used to do whenever any verse of the Holy Qur-án was revealed to him. The person who describes this practice of the Holy Prophet is 'Uṣman, one of the earliest converts to Islam and a son-in-law of the Holy Prophet. Thus we have the clearest testimony that every verse of the Divine revelation was put into writing by the order and in the presence of the Holy Prophet, while additional care was taken by him to point out the place and chapter of a verse when there were two or more unfinished chapters, so that the scribes might not confuse the verses of one chapter with those of another. This evidence is conclusive, and there is absolutely no evidence to the effect that any portion of the Holy Qur-án was left unwritten.

Other reports of the highest authority support the evidence of 'Uṣman. Thus Bukharee narrates under the heading The Amanuenses of the Prophet, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, the following report from Bará: "When the verse lá yastawí-l-qá'idína . . . (4: 95) was revealed, the Prophet, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, said, 'Bring Zaid to me, and let him bring the tablet and the inkstand.' Then he said to him (Zaid), 'Write lá yastawí . . .' (the verse revealed)." In another report narrated by Bukharee under the same heading, Abu Bakr addresses Zaid, the same man who was ordered to write the verse in the above report, in these words: "You used to write the revelation for the Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him." Besides Zaid, who, being the official scribe, did by far the greater part of the work of writing the revelations of the Holy Prophet at Medina, many other persons are mentioned who did this work at Mecca, and, in the absence of Zaid, at Medina. Among these are mentioned Abu Bakr, 'Umar, 'Uṣman, 'Ali, 'Abdulla bin Sa'd bin Abi Sarh (who became an apostate, but embraced Islam again after the conquest of Mecca), Zubair son of 'Awam, Khalid and Aban sons of Sa'id, Ubayy son of Ka'b, Hanzala son of Rabi', Mu'ayqab son of Abu Fatima, 'Abdulla son of Arqam, Sharhubail son of Hasana, and 'Abdulla son of Rawaha.* But it is not to be supposed that these were the only persons among the companions who could write, or actually transcribed copies of the Holy Qur-án. These were the men who performed the work of amanuenses for the Holy Prophet, and whose names have been preserved to us in reports. Nor is the list given above a complete list of all the amanuenses.

Besides these reports, which directly establish the fact that every verse of the Holy Qur-án was written at the time of its revelation, there are many other anecdotes supporting the same conclusion. For instance, Muslim narrates a report according to which the Holy Prophet said to his companions: "Do not write from me anything except the Qur-án." This direction, which was meant as a precautionary step against the confusion of the Holy Qur-án with what the Holy Prophet spoke on other occasions, also shows clearly that arrangements had been made by him for the writing of the Holy Qur-án. The direction takes it for granted that the Holy Qur-án was written. If it had not been the practice to write every verse and chapter of the Holy Qur-án, no objection would have been taken to the writing of other words uttered by the Holy Prophet. This conclusion is further corroborated by the circumstance that where there was no danger of confusion on the part of the writers, the writing of certain reports was also allowed.*

There is another report mentioned by Ibn-i-Hisham, in the story of the conversion of 'Umar, which shows that written copies of the chapters of the Holy Qur-án were in common use among the early Muslim converts at Mecca. 'Umar, with a drawn sword in his hand, one day left his house with the intention of murdering the Holy Prophet. On the way he learnt that his own sister and brother-in-law were secret converts to Islam. So he turned his steps to his sister's house. "At that time there was in the house a third man, Khabbab son of Art, who had with him a volume in which was written Tá Há (the 20th chapter of the Holy Qur-án), which he was teaching to 'Umar's sister and her husband. When they perceived 'Umar coming, Khabbab hid himself in a corner of the house, and Fatima, 'Umar's sister, took the volume and hid it under herself. But 'Umar had already so far approached them that he had heard the voice of Khabbab reciting the Holy Qur-án. So the first question he asked, when he entered the house, was as to what they were reading. They replied, 'You have not heard anything.' He said, 'Yes, I have heard, and I have been informed that you have followed Muhammad in his religion.' Then he caught hold of his brother-in-law, Sa'd, son of Zaid. His sister advanced towards him to protect her husband and was severely hurt in the struggle. Then 'Umar's sister and her husband told him that they were really converts to Islam and that he might do what he liked. When 'Umar saw his sister bleeding, he was sorry for what he had done, and asked her to let him have the book which they were reading, so that he might see what it was that Muhammad had brought to them. 'Umar himself could read and write. On hearing his demand, his sister expressed the fear that he might destroy the volume. 'Umar gave her his word, and swore by his idols that he would return the volume to her after perusing it. Then she told him that, being a Mushrik (one who set up false gods with God), he was impure and could not touch the Qur-án, because there was a verse in it to the effect that none should touch it except the pure. Then 'Umar washed himself, and his sister handed over to him the book which had Tá Há written in it. 'Umar read a portion of it, and began to admire it and showed a reverence for the book. Thereupon Khabbab, seeing that he was well disposed towards Islam, asked him to accept Islam." This long quotation, which is a part of the lengthy report of the conversion of 'Umar, shows conclusively that at that early period copies of the Qur-án were commonly used by the believers. - It is sometimes argued that such anecdotes only show that some chapters were written, and that therefore there is no evidence that every verse of the Holy Qur-án was reduced to writing. But there is a fallacy in this argument. The statement that the 20th chapter of the Holy Qur-án existed in a written form before the conversion of 'Umar is not made for the purpose of giving any importance to that chapter, or to show that the reporter mentioned it because of its peculiarity. It is made incidentally in a narrative reported with quite a different object, and hence it is only illustrative of the practice of the Holy Prophet and the Muslims at that early date. Even if there were no other evidence of the writing of the Holy Qur-án except this anecdote, still we should be justified in drawing from it the conclusion that the portions of the Holy Qur-án revealed up to that time existed in a written form, and that it was the practice to write the revelation. The 20th chapter did not possess any peculiarity which could have entitled it to be written while the other chapters were only orally recited. On the other hand, it is not one of the chapters which are mentioned as being commonly recited in public prayers, while numerous other chapters, some of them much longer, are so mentioned, and it can be easily seen that written copies of chapters which were commonly recited in prayers must have been in use to a far greater extent. Hence the existence of the 20th chapter in a written form, and the use made of the manuscript in 'Umar's sister's family, shows that similar use was made of this and other chapters among the believers; and that lady's consciousness that the Holy Qur-án forbade the touching of its manuscripts by impure hands affords us the clearest evidence that written copies of every chapter of the Holy Qur-án existed, even at Mecca, at a time when the converts to Islam were very few in number.

The above conclusion is corroborated by another report related by Bukharee. It runs thus: "We were forbidden to travel to the enemy's land with the Qur-án." This report conclusively proves that written copies of the Holy Qur-án existed in such abundance that it was found necessary to issue an order against the taking of such copies to the enemy's country for fear lest they should fall into the hands of men who might spitefully treat them with disrespect. It is thus clear that the Muslims generally had written copies of the Qur-án in their possession.

The circumstances attending the collection of the Holy Qur-án in the time of Abu Bakr also show that every verse of the revelation had been written down in the presence of the Holy Prophet. Thus we read of two verses which, in spite of Zaid's knowledge that they formed part of the Holy Qur-án, were not admitted until a written copy of them was found with one of the companions. This is clear from the words of Zaid, as recorded in Bukharee: "So I searched the Qur-án . . . until I found the last portion of the chapter entitled Immunity with Abu Khuzaima, one of the Anṣar" (see Bukharee, chapter on the Collection of the Qur-án). In explaining the report, part of which has been quoted here, the famous commentator of Bukharee, the author of the Fat-hul-Bārī, says: "Abu Bakr did not order the writing of anything (i.e. any verse) which was not already written (i.e. in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet), and it was for this reason that Zaid hesitated to write the concluding portion of the chapter Bard'at (Immunity) until he found it written, though it was known to him and to those who are mentioned with him." And a little further on: "And the whole Qur-án was written in manuscripts, but the manuscripts were dispersed, and Abu Bakr collected them in one volume" (Fat-hul-Bārī, vol. ix. p. 10). Another report by Ibn-i-Abi-Ḍaood is also mentioned, according to which "'Umar publicly announced (when the collection of the Qur-án was taken in hand by Abu Bakr) that whoever possessed any portion of the Qur-án which he had directly received from the Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, should bring it; and they used to write these on paper and tablets and palm branches shorn of leaves. Nothing was accepted from anybody until two witnesses bore witness"; to which the author of the Fat-hul-Bārī adds: "And this shows that Zaid did not deem it sufficient that a verse was written until somebody bore witness who had heard it directly from the Holy Prophet's mouth, though Zaid himself remembered it. This he did for greater precaution."* There is another report mentioned by Zohrī which says: "The Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, died while the Qur-án was written upon palm branches shorn of leaves and skins.* After mentioning some of these reports the commentator adds: "And their object was that nothing should be copied except from what had been written in the presence of the Prophet, not from memory only."† All these reports point to the certain conclusion that every verse and chapter of the Holy Qur-án had been written by the direction of the Holy Prophet in his own presence.

I have already given the names of several scribes. There were so many men among the companions who could write that as many as forty-two of these are related to have acted as scribes for the Holy Prophet. We have seen that copies of the different chapters of the Holy Qur-án were in common use among the faithful, a fact clearly borne out by the report of 'Umar's conversion. This shows that there was no paucity of scribes. Besides the Holy Qur-án, many other things were written. Some of the companions used to write the words uttered by the Holy Prophet, which were generally reported only orally.‡ Letters were written by order of the Holy Prophet to several potentates. The truce at Hudaibiyya was written by 'Ali. Correspondence was also kept up with the Jews in Hebrew.§ Not only could men read and write, but even women were taught the art. Among the wives of the Holy Prophet, at least 'Ayesha and Hafsa could read and write, as many reliable reports show.

2. The Qur-án was committed to memory.

With the Arabs memory was the safest of repositories. In fact, they placed so great a reliance upon memory that they took a pride in being called ummi's, i.e. men who did not know reading or writing, and for whom, therefore, memory served the purpose of writing. They had all their poems and long genealogies by heart. Being possessors of wonderful memories, every verse of the Qur-án when revealed was not only reduced to writing but was also preserved in memory. We learn from numerous reports that whenever a passage was revealed, it was recited by the Holy Prophet to those who happened to be present at the time, whether friends or foes, and many of his followers committed it to memory at once, others again learning it from those who heard it from the mouth of the Holy Prophet. The importance of the Holy Qur-án for the companions lay not only in the fact that for them it was a code of moral and social laws. It was not sufficient for them to know only its general purport. They believed every word and every letter of it to proceed from no other than the Divine source, and hence every word of it was for them a heavenly treasure they had on earth, so they secured it in the securest of places, viz. their hearts. For its sake they suffered all kinds of persecution and forsook their friends, their relatives, their properties, their homes. Every new verse revealed breathed new life into them. Hence they tried their utmost to keep themselves acquainted with every fresh revelation. Those among them who followed a trade or a profession spent a part of the day in the transaction of their affairs and the rest in the company of the Holy Prophet. Many of them had made special arrangements among themselves to be kept apprised of the new revelations that came to him. The second Caliph, 'Umar, tells us, according to a report of Bukharee, that he and one of his neighbours from among the Ansár living in

* See Nihaya, by Ibn-ul-Asir, under the root 'asb.

† Fat-hul-Bari, vol. ix. p. 12.

‡ Bukharee tells us in the Kitáb-ul-'Ilm that 'Abdulla, son of 'Amru, used to write reports in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet. Some other cases are also mentioned in the same chapter, according to which some reports were reduced to writing.

§ This is mentioned in a report narrated by Abu Dáood under the heading Reports from the Ahl-i-Kitáb.

one of the suburbs of Medina used to go by turns to the Holy Prophet, each of them remaining in his company for a day while the other did his work. "When I went to the Holy Prophet, I returned to bring him the news of that day relating to revelation and other things, and when he went, then he brought me the news" (Bukharee). There were also companions who, after the flight to Medina, had no work to do because of the interruption of their business by their persecutors. They passed their whole time in the mosque, and were ever ready to commit to memory any fresh revelation that the Holy Prophet might announce.

The Holy Prophet himself laid the greatest stress upon the learning, reciting, and teaching of the Holy Qur-ān. Muslim relates in his Sahih a report from 'Aqba bin 'Amir, who said that one day "the Holy Prophet came out and we were in the Suffah (an annexe) of the mosque, and he asked, 'Which of you likes to go every day to Baṭ-ḥau or 'Aqiq and bring two female camels with large humps upon their backs, without doing any wrong to any body or to a relative?' We replied, 'O Messenger of God, we all like it.' He said, 'Does not one of you come in the morning to the mosque, and teach or repeat two verses of the Book of God, which is better for him than two camels?—and three verses are better than three camels, and four verses than four camels: in this way is any number of verses better than the same number of camels.'" Bukharee reports 'Uṣman as saying that "the Holy Prophet said that 'the best man among you is he who has learnt the Qur-ān and teaches it.'" Other reports to the same effect, and adjudged to be trustworthy by both Bukharee and Muslim, run as follows: "'Ayesha says that the Holy Prophet said: 'The skilful in reciting the Qur-ān are classed with the scribes, who are honoured and virtuous; and he who reiterates in reciting the Qur-ān, on account of his inability to recite it, has a double reward.'" "Ibn-i-'Umar reported that the Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, said: 'No one is to be envied but two persons—one, a man to whom God has given the Qur-ān, and he recites it day and night and acts upon it, and the other a man whom God has given wealth, and he spends it in the way of Allah day and night.'" "Abu Musa Ash'ari reported the following words from the Holy Prophet: 'The condition of a Muslim who reads the Qur-ān is like the fruit of the orange-tree: its taste is agreeable, and so also is its odour; and the condition of a Muslim who does not read the Qur-ān is like the date, which has a sweet taste but no odour.'" The last report contrasts the Muslim who acts upon the injunctions of the Holy Qur-ān, but does not recite it, with him who both acts upon it and recites it; and thus it shows that it was not simply acting upon the Holy Qur-ān on which the Holy Prophet laid stress, but he made its simple recitation equally important. The recitation was needed not only to guard the text of the Holy Qur-ān, but also to keep its injunctions fresh in the mind.

Various other reports of undoubted authenticity, showing that the recitation of the Qur-ān was an important obligation which rested upon every Muslim, are contained in the collections of reports. Bukharee has a chapter named the Chapter on the istizkār of the Qur-ān and its ta'dhūd, that is, "reciting the Qur-ān frequently and recurring to it time after time." In this chapter various reports are narrated enjoining the frequent recitation of the Holy Qur-ān. The same renowned and trustworthy collection has another chapter headed The teaching of the Qur-ān to children, a third with the heading, The most excellent of men is he who recites and teaches the Qur-ān, and a fourth which is headed The reading of the Qur-ān from memory. For the sake of brevity, I give simply the headings of the chapters and refrain from quoting the reports narrated by the learned collector to prove the various assertions contained in them. These headings are sufficient to show that committing the Qur-án to memory was enjoined by the Holy Prophet upon all his followers, and it was considered by the companions to be a duty fraught with great religious merit. Hence it was necessary that every one of them should commit to memory at least some parts of the Holy Book. Though even now there are thousands of men in every Muslim country who can repeat the whole of the Qur-án from memory, the peculiar conditions existing in Arabia facilitated the task to a far greater extent. This is admitted even by a hostile critic: "Passionately fond of poetry, but without the ready means for committing to writing the effusions of their bards, the Arabs had long been used to imprint these, as well as the traditions of genealogical and tribal events, on the living tablets of the heart. The recollective faculty was thus cultivated to the highest pitch; and it was applied, with all the ardour of an awakened spirit, to the Qur-án" (Muir).

It appears from the above reports that the Holy Prophet desired that his companions should try to excel each other in their knowledge of the Holy Qur-án. There were other reasons which made the companions vie one with another in committing the Holy Book to memory. The office of imdmāt, or leading of public prayers, was as a rule bestowed upon the man who had the greater knowledge of the Holy Qur-án. All authentic reports establish this point. One report tells us that in a certain tribe a boy eight years old used to lead the prayers because he knew a greater portion of the Holy Qur-án than any other member of that tribe. This boy, 'Amru bin Salma, thus relates his own story: "We [i.e. the tribe to which the narrator belonged] had alighted in a place by water, and people who went to the Holy Prophet passed by us. When they returned they used to repeat to us the revelations which they heard from the Holy Prophet. I had a good memory, and so while there I committed to memory a great portion of the Holy Qur-án from these visitors. After a time my father also went to the Holy Prophet with some people of his tribe to declare their acceptance of Islam. The Holy Prophet taught them the prayers, and told them that the prayers should be led by a person who knew more of the Qur-án than others. On account of what I had already committed to memory, I satisfied this condition. So they made me their imdm." These people were among the later converts to Islam. Bukharae also tells us that the office of imdmāt was conferred upon deserving persons irrespective of their nationality or position in society. The distinction of having the office of imdmāt (the leading of public prayers) conferred on one was a practical incentive to a greater knowledge of the Qur-án. Similarly, when a new tribe accepted Islam, the man who was chosen to be sent to them to teach them the doctrines and principles of the new faith was one who was most acquainted with the Qur-án. And these were not the only ways in which the reciters of the Qur-án were honoured in those early days, for there are many reports which show that the reciters of the Qur-án were highly honoured and respected in every way among the companions.

These were the reasons which led a great number of the companions of the Holy Prophet to engrave the words of the Qur-án on the tablets of their hearts. The Holy Prophet himself set an example in frequently reciting the Holy Qur-án in public as well as in private. It was not only in prayers that long portions of the Holy Book were recited. We have on record instances showing that he recited certain chapters when travelling on the back of a camel,* and that he loved to hear others recite the Holy Word. According to one report he kept awake on a certain night to listen to a person who was reciting the Qur-án in the mosque (Bukharee, chapter on the "Forgetting of the Qur-án"). Another report, also related by Bukharee, represents 'Abdulla as saying: "The Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, said to me, 'Recite to me the Qur-án.' I replied, 'What! should I recite to you, and to you it has been revealed?' He said, 'I love to hear others recite it.' Thereupon I began to recite the chapter entitled Women."

These anecdotes show that the Holy Prophet induced his companions by his own example to recite the Holy Qur-án. These inducements were not without their effect. The Muslims treasured up the Word of God in their hearts, and its reading and teaching became very common. So common, indeed, had the recitation of the Qur-án become, that when the Holy Prophet spoke of the disappearance of the knowledge of the Qur-án at some future time, Ziyad, son of Labid, one of the companions, at once cried out: "How would knowledge disappear, O Messenger of God, when we read the Qur-án and teach it to our children, and our children will teach it to their children, so on till the judgment day?" This question arose out of a misapprehension of the words of the Holy Prophet, who meant, not that the words of the Holy Qur-án would disappear, but that people would not act in accordance with the spirit of those words.

There are also reports which show that the injunction of the Holy Prophet relating to the committing of the Holy Qur-án to memory and its frequent recitation were so literally carried out by the companions that he himself had to give them directions against a course which might be a burden to them. In a report recorded in Bukharee (chapter headed, In how many days should the Qur-án be read?) it is stated that one of the companions of the Holy Prophet, who finished the recitation of the whole of the Qur-án once every night, was expressly enjoined by him to finish it at the least in three or five or seven days, and was forbidden to go through the whole once every night. This shows clearly that there were companions who could recite the whole of the Qur-án in a single night. The direction given by the Holy Prophet that the recitation of the Holy Qur-án should not be finished in less than three days was meant to inform them that it should be read thoughtfully. Similarly, in a report received through a different chain of reporters, the same companion, 'Abdulla, son of 'Amru, is represented as asking the Holy Prophet how much time he should take to finish one reading of the Qur-án. The Prophet told him that he should finish it in thirty days. He replied that he could do it sooner, whereupon the Holy Prophet lessened the time by five days. Thus he continued to express his ability to finish the Qur-án sooner, and the Holy Prophet went on lessening the limit every time by a few days, till he reached the number five (according to another report, three) (Darimi). Ibn-i-Mas'ud relates that the Holy Prophet said: "Read the Qur-án in seven days, and do not read it in less than three days." According to another report, 'Ayesha said that "the Holy Prophet did not usually finish the Qur-án in less than three days" (see Fat-hul-Bárr, vol. ix. p. 53). All these reports show clearly that the companions vied with one another in the frequent recitation of the Qur-án, and that many of them could recite the whole in a single day. In fact, so frequently was the recitation of the Holy Qur-án resorted to, that injunctions became necessary to stop a too rapid recitation. It is also clear from these reports that the whole of the Qur-án was committed to memory by many of the companions, otherwise it could not be spoken of as being finished in a stated interval of time. That it was recited from memory is clear from the fact, that it was recited at night

These conclusions are further supported by many trustworthy reports, which show that there were numerous men among the companions who could recite the Holy Qur-án from memory. These men were called the qurrá, or the reciters, and they were known to have committed the Qur-án to memory. The author of the Fat-hul-Bárí explains the word qurrá as meaning "persons noted for committing the Qur-án to memory and for teaching it to others." Of course, the word also signified persons having a sound knowledge of the Qur-án. Seventy of the qurrá were treacherously put to death at the Bi'r Ma'unah by a tribe of unbelievers. This fact is attested by the most trustworthy and authentic reports related by Bukharee and other reliable collectors. The fact that such a large number of them was murdered in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet shows that there were hundreds of them among the companions. In the chapter headed, The Qurrá from among the Companions of the Holy Prophet, Bukharee relates several anecdotes. In the first of these 'Abdulla, son of 'Amru (who, as we have already seen, had committed the whole of the Qur-án to memory), is reported to have said, when speaking of 'Abdulla, son of Mas'ud: "I shall ever love him, for I heard the Holy Prophet, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, say, 'Learn the Qur-án from four men, from 'Abdulla, son of Mas'ud, Salim, Mu'áz, and Ubayy, son of Ka'b.'" This, of course, did not imply inability on the part of the other companions to teach the Holy Qur-án, nor did the words mean that none of the companions besides these four retained the whole of the Qur-án in their memory. In fact, to be a good teacher of the Holy Qur-án, it was not sufficient that a person should be able to recite the Holy Book from memory. It was absolutely necessary that he should have a good understanding and a sound knowledge of the Holy Qur-án. The report only shows that the four men named could teach any and every chapter of the Holy Qur-án, and hence they themselves also knew the whole of it. Probably they were named because they always tried to learn the revelations directly from the Holy Prophet. One of them, 'Abdulla, son of Mas'ud, it is reported, used to say that he received over seventy chapters of the Holy Qur-án directly from the mouth of the Holy Prophet. It was probably on account of some such peculiarity that the Holy Prophet named four men only, for other reports tell us that there were many other companions who could recite the whole of the Qur-án from memory.

To take an example, Abu Bakr is not named in the above report, but it is a fact that he retained the whole of the Qur-án in his memory. It was Abu Bakr whom the Holy Prophet appointed on his death-bed to lead the public prayers. Authentic reports, as already stated, show that the person appointed to lead the prayers was always one who knew more of the Qur-án than his congregation. In cases where several persons had equal knowledge, as, for instance, when they all knew the whole of the Qur-án by heart, other tests were applied. Now, it is certain that there were men among the companions who could recite the whole of the Qur-án from memory. Therefore Abu Bakr could not be appointed to lead the prayers if his knowledge of the Qur-án were not as extensive. Hence it follows that Abu Bakr also could recite the whole of the Qur-án from memory. There are many other indications, such as the building of a mosque in the yard of his house, in which he recited the Holy Qur-án every day, his being in daily converse with the Holy Prophet, etc., all of which assist in showing that Abu Bakr knew the whole of the Qur-án by heart. Similarly 'Abdulla, son of 'Umar, retained the whole of the Qur-án in his memory, finishing its recital every night, whereupon the Holy Prophet, learning this fact, told him to finish the recital once in a month. In fact, many persons are mentioned as being able to recite the whole of the Qur-án from memory in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, among these being the four Caliphs, viz. Abu Bakr, 'Umar, 'Uṣman, and 'Ali, and such renowned companions as Ṭalḥa, Sa'd, Ibn-i-Mas'ūd, Salim, Abu Huraira, etc., while three women, viz. 'Ayesha, Hafsa, and Umm-i-Salma, are also named in the same category. Several other persons are also named from among the Anṣār as being able to recite the whole of the Qur-ān from memory. But it is not to be supposed that only those persons were the reciters whose names have been preserved to us in reports. Seventy of them were killed by treachery in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, and about the same number fell in the battle of Yemamah, which was fought a few months after his death. Among these was also Salim, whose name is clearly mentioned among those who could recite the whole of the Qur-ān; yet when 'Umar made a representation to Abu Bakr for the collection of the Qur-ān, he did not particularly name Salim, but only said that death had taken away many of the qurrā (reciters) in the field of Yemamah. Had there been none among the slain except Salim who could recite the whole of the Qur-ān from memory, 'Umar would not have spoken of the reciters generally.

There is only one report the evidence of which is considered to be conflicting with that furnished by all the reports cited above. This report, which is narrated by Bukharee, runs as follows: "Anas reported that the Holy Prophet, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, died while none had collected the Qur-ān with the exception of four men, Abu Darda and Mu'az, son of Jabal, and Zaid, son of Sābit, and Abū Zaid." In a report to the same effect narrated by the same authority, the name of Ubayy, son of Ka'b, is mentioned in the place of Abu Darda. This report apparently contradicts many other reports, if the "collecting" of the Qur-ān is taken to be equivalent to the committing of the whole of the Qur-ān to memory and no limitation is placed upon the meaning. The word Jam'a, which means collecting, is generally applied in the reports with reference to the Holy Qur-ān in the sense of collecting different manuscripts into a single volume, but it may also mean the retaining of the whole of it in memory. Taking the word in its ordinary significance, viz. collecting the different written chapters into a single volume, the report does not negative the existence of any number of reciters who had memorized the whole of the Qur-ān. There is no difficulty in accepting this interpretation, except that when steps were taken for the collection of the Qur-ān in the Caliphate of Abū Bakr, no collection prepared in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet was brought forward to facilitate the heavy task before Zaid, who was chosen for collecting the scattered manuscripts of the Holy Qur-ān into one volume. But the fact is that Zaid sought the manuscripts that were written in the presence and by the direction of the Holy Prophet, and thus the objection vanishes. But even if the "collection of the Qur-ān" in the report under discussion is taken to mean the recitation of the entire Qur-ān from memory, there is no difficulty. The meaning is made clear by another report, which gives the circumstances under which these words were spoken by Anas. There were two rival tribes at Medina, the Khazraj and the Aus, and Anas belonged to the former. Before the advent of Islam their relations were hostile, but on their conversion to Islam they both became one. Still, the old feelings of rivalry were sometimes stirred up, and it is to one such occasion that the report relates. The Aus prided themselves on the possession of certain members, four in number, who had earned a good fame. As against this the Khazraj named four of their men who had collected the Holy Qur-ān, or who could recite the whole of it from memory. Accordingly, the claim was made only against the single tribe of Aus. This conclusion is corroborated by the fact that the four men named all belong to the tribe of Khazraj, and the exclusion of such famous men as 'Abdulla, son of Mas'ud, Salim, and others from among the refugees, shows clearly that the claim was advanced only for one tribe as against a rival tribe.

Even if we admit, for the sake of argument, the existence of certain differences in the various reports quoted above, the one conclusion upon which they all agree is absolutely certain, viz. that among the companions of the Holy Prophet there were certain persons, whether their number amounted only to four or to more than that, who retained in memory the whole of the Qur-án as taught by the Holy Prophet, and who at his death had the whole of it engraved on the tablets of their hearts. Thus while every companion committed to memory a certain portion of the Holy Qur-án, certain companions committed to memory the whole of it. The entire Qur-án was, therefore, not only guarded by the comparatively few men who could recite the whole of it from memory, but the whole body of the companions had the whole of it safe in their memories by every one having memorized a certain portion. All this was done in obedience to the injunctions of the Holy Prophet, who laid great stress upon the reciting of the Qur-án and the committing of it to memory. And these measures to guard the text of the Holy Qur-án were in addition to writing. It may also be pointed out here that the gradual revelation of the Qur-án afforded great facility in committing it to memory. The interval between the revelation of two verses or two chapters afforded the companions an opportunity to repeat it as often as they liked. The entire Qur-án was revealed in the long period of twenty-three years, and if Muslim boys of the age of ten or twelve years can even now commit the whole Qur-án to memory within one or two years, the Arab possessors of wonderfully retentive memories, to whom the importance of the Qur-án was far greater than to any Muslim of a later age, could not find it difficult to memorize it within the long period of twenty-three years, especially when it was given to them gradually.

The recitation of the Qur-án and its committal to memory were not, however, only optional, for the Qur-án formed a part of public as well as private prayers. Five times a day had the Muslims to pray publicly, while prayers in the latter portion of the night were of a private nature. The recitation of portions of the Holy Qur-án in all these prayers was obligatory, and thus every Muslim had of necessity to repeat certain portions of it every day. Now, it is an established fact that generally very long portions were recited in the prayers, especially in those said during the latter part of the night. The Holy Prophet is himself related to have often recited the long chapters in the beginning of the Qur-án in the latter part of the night, i.e. in the tahajjud prayers. His companions also followed his example. Thus one companion is said, in an anecdote left of him, to have recited in his tahajjud prayers the chapter entitled the Cow, which forms a twelfth part of the Qur-án. Even in the public prayers long chapters were recited. There are many reports from which it appears that such long chapters as the Cow were read in a single rak'at in the morning prayers. The evening prayers are the least suited for the recitation of the longer chapters, but even in these the Holy Prophet recited such chapters as the Túr, or the Mountain, which contains nearly fifty verses. In imitation of the Holy Prophet, his followers, whenever they had occasion to lead the prayers, recited very long chapters. One of them recited the second chapter, i.e. the Cow, in prayer at the nightfall, and a complaint was made against him by one who, tired by a whole day's labour, wanted to go to rest sooner. In their private prayers also the companions recited long chapters. Thus not only was it necessary that every one of them should commit the whole or a certain portion of the Holy Qur-án to memory, but the part so committed was always kept fresh in the mind by constant recitation in prayers, though, as we have already seen, the Qur-án was frequently recited by the companions even outside prayers. Therefore, even if the Holy Qur-án had never been written, no verse of it could have been lost, so great was the publicity which every verse of it received, and so often was it recited by the Holy Prophet and his companions in public as well as in private. One report relates how a certain chapter was learned by heart by a companion from its frequent recitation in the prayers. In fact, if there had been no other means of giving publicity to the Qur-án, its mere recitation in prayers was sufficient to give it such a publication as would have guarded it against any possible alteration or loss.

3. Arrangement of verses and chapters.

It has already been shown that the Holy Qur-án was both written and committed to memory in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet. We also know that the Qur-án was revealed piecemeal during a long period, extending over twenty-three years. Some of the chapters were revealed in complete form, but the revelation of many others was fragmentary and extended over long periods. It not infrequently happened that while one chapter was still unfinished a new chapter was revealed, and sometimes verses belonging to more than two unfinished chapters were revealed at one and the same time. Now, the arrangement of chapters and verses in the copies of the Holy Qur-án at present in the hands of the Muslims does not follow the order of revelation. The important question before us now, therefore, is whether the Holy Prophet himself arranged the verses and chapters in an order different from that of their revelation, and, if so, whether the present arrangement of the verses and chapters is the same as that which prevailed in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet. In other words, was the Holy Qur-án left by the Holy Prophet in the same condition, as regards the arrangement of its verses and chapters, as that in which we now find it, or is its present condition different from that in which the Holy Prophet left it?

Intrinsic and extrinsic evidence both conclusively show that the present arrangement of the chapters and verses of the Holy Qur-án was effected by the Holy Prophet under the guidance of Divine revelation. For intrinsic evidence on this point I would refer the reader to the introductory notes on the various chapters and to the abstracts of the various sections. The different verses in different chapters, and the chapters themselves, are so well arranged that no better arrangement is conceivable. It is only ignorance of the Holy Qur-án and Arabic idiom which has made some critics remark that there is no connection between certain verses or that there are some chasms. A deep reflection over the Holy Book reveals a close connection between verses which are considered by hasty writers to be disconnected. Apart from intrinsic evidence, there is sufficient extrinsic evidence to prove that the present arrangement of the verses and chapters of the Holy Qur-án is not the work of Abu Bakr or Zaid, but that of the Holy Prophet himself, who did it under the guidance of Divine revelation. Such evidence is not only met with abundantly in reports, but it is also contained in the Holy Qur-án. Thus in 75 : 17, 18 we have : "Surely on Us (devolves) the collecting of it and the reciting of it. Therefore, when We have recited it, follow its recitation." These verses clearly show that the collection of the Qur-án, that is, its gathering into one whole, with an arrangement of its various parts, was brought about by the guidance of Divine revelation. Arrangement and collection were, according to this verse, as much the work of Divine revelation as the reading of a verse to the Holy Prophet, i.e. its revelation. The Qur-án itself, therefore, asserts not only that it is the Word of God, but that its collection and arrangement were also brought about by Divine revelation. It should be borne in mind that the word Jam'a in the above verse implies both collection and arrangement, since no collection could be brought about without an arrangement. Now, the verse shows that this arrangement was different from the order of the revelation of the verses. It describes arrangement and collection as a process different from the revelation of a verse to the Holy Prophet, thus showing that from the first it was meant that the verses and the chapters of the Holy Qur-án should be arranged in an order different from that of their revelation. If the order in collection were to be the same as the order of the reading of the different verses to the Holy Prophet, i.e. the order of their revelation, collection and reading would not have been described as two different things in the verse quoted above.

History bears ample testimony to the truth of the above assertion made in the Holy Qur-án, and we meet with the clearest proof in authentic and reliable reports that the Holy Prophet left at his death the complete Qur-án with the same arrangement of the verses and the chapters that we have now in every Arabic Qur-án. We will consider the arrangement of verses and that of chapters separately, and in each inquiry we shall have to discuss the following points :—

1. Was any arrangement followed by the Prophet himself and by his companions in his lifetime?

2. Was that arrangement different from the order in which the verses or the chapters were revealed?

3. Does the present arrangement differ from that followed by, or which existed in the lifetime of, the Holy Prophet?

That such a large book, treating of so many and such varied subjects, should have been committed to memory and regularly recited in and outside prayers, and taught by one man to another, without there being any settled arrangement of its parts, is a most preposterous proposition, but there is hardly a Christian critic of Islam who has not advanced it. The grounds for this assertion are the same in every case. Not the least regard is paid to historical evidence, and mere supposition that no arrangement is discoverable in the verses and chapters is at present the only basis on which the proposition rests. Even Muir, who sat down to write his Life of Muhammad on a strong historical basis, has in this respect followed the earlier Christian critics, closing his eyes to the whole historical evidence. The following short paragraph from Muir's introduction is not only illustrative of the assertions of Christian critics in general, but it also shows how the author himself has evaded the historical evidence. He says :—

"We are not, however, to assume that the entire Qur-án was at this period repeated in any fixed order. The present compilation, indeed, is held by the Muslims to follow the arrangement prescribed by Muhammad; and *early tradition might appear to imply some known sequence. But this cannot be admitted; for had any fixed order been observed or sanctioned by the Prophet, it would unquestionably have been preserved in the subsequent collection. Now the Qur-án, as handed down to our time, follows in the disposition of its several parts no intelligible arrangement whatever, either of subject or time; and, it is inconceivable that Muhammad should have enjoined its recital invariably in this order. We must even doubt whether the number of suras, or chapters, was determined by Muhammad as we now have them. The internal sequence at any rate of the contents of the several suras cannot, in most cases, have been that intended by the Prophet."

Some of the foot-notes given under this paragraph show the struggle in the writer's mind between historical facts and religious prejudice. Thus, while denying the existence of any fixed order in the Qur-án in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, Muir had to admit that "we read of certain companions who could repeat the whole Qur-án in a given time, which might be held to imply some usual connection of the parts." In another foot-note it is admitted that there were four or five persons who could repeat "with scrupulous accuracy" the whole of the Qur-án, and "several others who could very nearly repeat the whole, before Muhammad's death." Again, while denying that even the number of suras was determined by the Holy Prophet, for fear of being contradicted he cautiously adds the following foot-note:—

"But there is reason to believe that the chief suras, including all passages in most common use, were fixed and known by name or other distinctive mark. Some are spoken of, in early and well authenticated traditions, as having been so referred to by Muhammad himself. Thus he recalled his fugitive followers at the discomfiture of Honein by shouting to them as 'the men of the sura Baqr' (i.e. Sura ii.).

"Several persons are stated by tradition to have learnt by heart a certain number of suras in Muhammad's lifetime. Thus 'Abdulla bin Mas'ud learned seventy suras from the Prophet's own mouth, and Muhammad on his death-bed repeated seventy suras, 'among which were the seven long ones.' These traditions signify a recognized division of at least some part of the revelation into suras, if not a usual order in repeating the suras themselves.

"The liturgical use of the suras by Muhammad must, no doubt, have in some measure fixed their form, and probably also their sequence."

In connection with the same subject it is said in another foot-note that "the traditions just cited as to the number of suras which some of the companions could repeat, and which Muhammad himself repeated on his death-bed, also imply the existence of such suras in a complete and finished form."

In this manner, almost every remark made in the paragraph quoted above is contradicted in the foot-notes on the basis of historical facts met with in authentic reports. And though the statements in the foot-notes are made reservedly, yet the contradictions are too clear to escape unnoticed by any careful reader, and the struggle in the writer's mind can be easily discerned. In the text it is asserted that there was no fixed order or arrangement in the verses and chapters of the Holy Qur-án, and historical evidence is produced in the foot-notes showing that there was a connection. The text makes the allegation that even the suras were not distinctly marked out by the Holy Prophet and their number was not determined by him, and the foot-note brings forward historical testimony to the effect that there was a recognized division and that the form of the chapters was no doubt fixed. The reservations contained in such expressions as "some part" and "some measure" were only natural, considering the allegations in the text. It can be easily seen that if "seventy suras, including the seven long ones," existed "in a complete and finished form," as the foot-note admits—and there is no evidence showing that the remaining forty-four short suras, which were, no doubt, generally recited in prayers, did not exist in the same form—the presumption will be that all the suras existed "in a complete and finished form." This conclusion becomes clearer still when it is borne in mind that the same writer has also admitted that there were several companions who could repeat, not only seventy suras, but the whole Qur-án, and that too "with scrupulous accuracy."

The assertion that no arrangement was followed in the case of single verses revealed at different times is so absurd on the very face of it that it hardly requires a refutation. How was it possible for anybody to commit the Holy Qur-án to memory if there was no settled order in which the verses were read? What order did the different copies follow? Or was it that each copy of the Holy Qur-án current at the time followed a different order? And every man who knew any portion of the Holy Qur-án—and every one of the companions knew some portion—followed a different arrangement! Does any evidence support these assertions? And what order did the reciters of the Holy Qur-án follow? Or did each reciter follow a different order? What, again, was the order of the verses followed by those who led the public prayers? Is it conceivable that a book which was so widely committed to memory, and which was so frequently recited by thousands of men, existed in such an orderless state?

If there were no other evidence to show that the verses in the different chapters of the Holy Qur-án followed some arrangement, the mere fact that the Holy Book was committed to memory by the companions would be sufficient to establish that conclusion. There are many chapters containing more than a hundred verses each, and unless these were arranged in a settled order, no one could be said to have committed to memory the whole of any chapter. Take the different permutations of only a hundred verses, and you will see that no two out of a hundred thousand men could have agreed upon one arrangement. In such a case there would have been not one Qur-án, which the companions could learn from each other, but everybody would have his own Qur-án, and no one would be certain of the correctness of what his brother recited. Moreover, we learn from authentic reports that when any person, while reciting a portion of the Holy Qur-án from memory, made a mistake or left out a verse, some one of those who listened to him corrected the mistake or pointed out the particular verse. Now, this could not be done unless the same arrangement of verses was followed by all. In fact, it was simply impossible to commit thousands of verses to memory unless there was some arrangement to be followed.

Considerations such as the above clearly show that some arrangement of verses was necessarily followed. Was it the order of revelation? There is clear historical evidence that the Holy Prophet arranged the verses, not according to their chronological order, but according to matter. There were no doubt many chapters that were revealed complete, but there were others, particularly the longer ones, that were revealed by portions. Chronologically, verses of one chapter were followed by those of another, and hence in the arrangement of verses in chapters the chronological order could not be observed. The practice of the Holy Prophet in such cases is clearly stated in authentic reports. As 'Ugman tells us, in a report already quoted, "It was customary with the Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, when portions of different chapters were revealed to him, that when any verse was revealed he called one of the amanuenses and said to him, 'Write these verses in the chapter where such and such verses occur.'" From this it appears that the place and chapter for every verse were pointed out by the Holy Prophet himself. With such obviously conclusive testimony before him, no sensible person would deny that the work of the arrangement of the verses in every chapter was done by the Holy Prophet himself, and, as the Holy Qur-án tells us, it was done under the guidance of Divine revelation, and the arrangement did not follow the chronological order of the revelation of verses.

If the arrangement of verses was different from the order of their revelation, the next question that arises is, was that arrangement different from the one upon which the whole Muslim world is now agreed? We must answer this question in the negative. The arrangement of the verses in the Qur-án we have in our hands is not in accordance with the order of revelation, and hence, if there is no trace in the history of the Qur-án of any change having been brought about in the arrangement of its verses at any time, the conclusion that the present arrangement is exactly the same as that followed by the Holy Prophet will be absolutely certain and final. Now, it is admitted on all hands, and the truth of the fact has not been questioned by the most hostile critic of Islam, that there has not been the slightest change in any word or letter of the Qur-án or in the arrangement of its verses or chapters since the time of 'Uṣman, the third of the Muslim Caliphs. Our copies of the Qur-án are admittedly exact copies, true and authentic in every way, of the collection made by 'Uṣman, and hence, to prove that the arrangement of verses and chapters at present is the same as that followed by the Holy Prophet, we have only to show that the collection made by 'Uṣman followed the original arrangement. It can easily be seen that at the time of his making the collection 'Uṣman had no motive for changing the fixed arrangement which up to that time was followed by the companions of the Holy Prophet. That an arrangement different from the order of revelation was followed by the Holy Prophet, and that the same arrangement was followed by the companions in the learning and teaching of the Holy Qur-án, has already been shown. That that arrangement was changed by 'Uṣman is for him to show who makes the assertion. When 'Uṣman began to make his collection, or, more correctly, when he began to make copies of the Qur-án from Abu Bakr's collection, thousands of the companions of the Holy Prophet were still living, and no change in the arrangement of verses could have remained unnoticed. Moreover, the task of making the required copies was not in the charge of 'Uṣman personally, but in that of several of the most well-known companions, reputed for their knowledge of the Qur-án, and none of these can be shown to have had any motive for altering the arrangement of verses existing at the time. Nor is there the slightest trace in the historical record of the time that the arrangement was altered. No charge has ever been preferred against 'Uṣman by any sect of Islam or any individual that he had changed the arrangement of the verses in the chapters of the Holy Qur-án. In fact, the only charge against him is that he disallowed certain readings, and the nature of this charge I will describe later on. But of any alteration in the arrangement of verses there is absolutely no mention whatever in any report, authentic or unauthentic.

* Besides the negative proof cited above, which conclusively shows that at no time in the history of the Qur-án was the arrangement of its verses altered in the slightest degree, there is positive evidence leading to the same conclusion. This evidence may be gathered from incidental remarks made in certain authentic reports. Under the heading, The Excellence of the chapter entitled Al-Baqarah, Bukharee relates the following: "The Holy Prophet, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, said, 'Whoever reads the last two verses of the chapter entitled Baqarah on any night, they are sufficient for him.'" This saying, which reports the exact words of the Holy Prophet, shows two things. Firstly, that the Holy Prophet himself followed an arrangement which he had made known to his companions, and they all followed the same arrangement; for if such had not been the case, he could not have referred to two verses as the last two verses of a certain chapter. The report unmistakably proves that every verse had a known and fixed place in a chapter which no reciter of the Qur-án could change. In the second place, it shows that the verses with which the chapter entitled the Cow now ends were also the concluding verses of that chapter in the time of the Holy Prophet, and therefore the arrangement in the copies of the Qur-án at present is the same as that followed by the Holy Prophet. In support of this, there is another report in which the concluding verses of the chapter entitled the Cow are identified with the 285th and 286th verses of that chapter as enumerated in the present translation (Fat-hul-Bdri). According to another authentic report, the Holy Prophet told his followers to recite the "first ten verses" of the chapter entitled the Cave at the appearance of the Antichrist. Had there been no arrangement of verses, the "first ten verses" would have been a meaningless phrase, because it would not have indicated any particular ten verses. This report occurs in the Sahih Muslim. The first ten verses as in our copies of the Qur-án are plainly the verses meant, as in these verses the doctrine of the sonship of Jesus, a doctrine identified with the teaching of the Antichrist by the Holy Qur-án, is refuted in forcible words. This report also shows that the arrangement of verses in the time of the Holy Prophet was the same as it is now.

In no report is any arrangement of verses other than the one which exists in the current copies of the Holy Qur-án hinted at. Had the Holy Prophet left the Qur-án in an unarranged form, different arrangements of verses would no doubt have been followed by different companions, and in the great mass of reports there would have been references to some of these arrangements. But the absence of any such reference conclusively proves that there was only one arrangement of verses, which was followed by all the companions, and that arrangement was the same as we have now in our copies of the Qur-án, because there is no reference at all to any change having been introduced at any time. There is only one report which speaks of 'Ali having made a collection of the Qur-án in the order of its revelation, but this, if true, only supports the conclusion we have already arrived at as to the present arrangement being the one in existence at the time of the Holy Prophet. The fact, if true, is mentioned only on account of the peculiarity of the arrangement, and by reason of its distinction from the recognized and accepted arrangement. Had there been a third arrangement besides these two, we should also have had a reference to it. The order of revelation, as we have seen, was not followed by the Holy Prophet, for his arrangement was according to subject-matter and not according to chronology. 'Ali might have thought of preserving the order of revelation for historical purposes. In the time of 'Uṣman, when copies of the Qur-án were made for distribution, 'Ali was one of the companions who superintended the copying, and there is no doubt that if he had looked upon the present arrangement as inaccurate, he would have either objected to it or refused to co-operate in such an arrangement. But, along with the whole body of the companions, 'Ali followed an arrangement different from the order of the revelation, though he might also have preserved the chronological order. Had he considered the latter arrangement to be the authentic arrangement, he would no doubt have given currency to it during his Caliphate. But neither in the time of the first three Caliphs nor in his own reign did he ever, privately or publicly, make a statement that the arrangement of verses and chapters in the current copies of the Holy Qur-án was not followed by the Holy Prophet, and that it ought to be superseded by a chronological arrangement. These considerations clearly show that the arrangement of verses in the copies made by 'Uṣman was recognized by all the companions without a single exception to be the arrangement followed by the Holy Prophet. Had it not been so, there would have been many differences among them as to arrangement. But as a matter of fact, even Ibn-i-Mas'ud, who otherwise expressed his dissatisfaction with the action of 'Uṣman in having disallowed certain readings which he favoured, never raised any objection to the arrangement of the verses in the copies made by the order of the Caliph, nor did Ibn-i-Mas'ud ever propose a different arrangement.

The above considerations prove conclusively that the division of the Holy Qur-ān into chapters and the arrangement of verses in each chapter were both performed under the directions of the Holy Prophet. When a new verse was revealed, a place was assigned to it by the Holy Prophet, and no companion could assign it a place at his own choice. The greater part of the chapter entitled Al-Baqarah, for instance, was revealed during the early days of the Holy Prophet at Medina, but some verses belonging to it were revealed later. Such were the verses relating to the prohibition of usury, as some reports show. The place assigned to these verses is immediately after the verses which speak of alms. The reason for this arrangement is that both injunctions, viz. the injunction relating to the giving of alms and the injunction relating to the prohibition of usury, were meant for the benefit of the poor, and these were two steps in the same direction, that is, the amelioration of the poor. The state of the society whose reform the Holy Qur-ān had in view was such that the two injunctions could not be given together. It was necessary that the people to whom the injunction relating to the prohibition of usury was to be given should be first prepared to accept that teaching. Hence the two injunctions were revealed at different periods, but the subjects of which they treated were so closely related that in an arrangement of verses they had to be placed side by side. The division into chapters was marked by the Holy Prophet himself, and we find the names of most of the chapters expressly mentioned in authentic reports. In fact, the division of the Holy Qur-ān into chapters, and the arrangement of verses in these chapters, by the Holy Prophet, are such clear facts that there is no indication that a difference of opinion ever existed on these points, either among the companions or the later Muslims. No one can be shown to have ever asserted that a certain verse in a certain chapter in the collection in our hands belonged to a different chapter, or that a verse occupying a certain position occupied a different position at any time. In many reports references to verses are contained in numbers, and this shows clearly that the arrangement of verses was complete in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet. To add another example to those already given, there is a report which narrates that Ibn-i-Mas'ud recited forty verses of the chapter entitled Al-Anfāl in a certain prayer. This is narrated in the Ṣaḥīḥ Bukhāree. Another reporter, 'Abdul Razzaq, has mentioned the same report through a different chain of narrators, with this difference, that instead of mentioning the reciting of forty verses of the chapter, the narrator only says that he recited up to the verse which ends with such and such words (Fat-hul-Bārī, vol. ii. p. 212). Now, if we compute forty verses from the beginning, as mentioned by the first narrator, we find them ending with the words mentioned by the second narrator. From this it is clear that the present arrangement of verses was well known in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet. According to another report narrated by Bukhāree, the Holy Prophet used to recite, when he would wake for his tahajjud prayers, the last ten verses of the chapter entitled Al-i-Imrān, and in imitation of him the Muslims still recite the same ten verses. This fact also proves that the same arrangement of verses was followed during the lifetime of the Holy Prophet that is followed now, and that the division of the Holy Qur-ān into chapters was distinctly marked at the time.

The next question that we have to consider is the arrangement of chapters. In the discussion of this question it may be stated at the very outset that any arrangement of the recital of chapters in or apart from prayers was regarded as unnecessary, except when the whole of the Qur-ān was to be recited. As we have seen in reports already quoted, there were men among the companions who knew the whole of the Qur-ān by heart, and to keep it fresh in their memory they used to recite the whole within a stated time. Indeed, Bukharae has a chapter with the heading, In how much time should the recital of the Qur-án be finished? Under this heading, as already stated, reports are mentioned according to which the Holy Prophet forbade one of his companions to finish the recital of the Qur-án in less than three days, and forbade another to finish it in less than seven days. These reports show the practice of the companions of the Holy Prophet. Those among them who knew the whole of the Qur-án by heart used to repeat it constantly, and finished the recitation of the whole ordinarily in seven days. Indeed, it would not have been possible to retain such a large book in memory except by its constant recital and repetition. The Holy Prophet himself had told them that they should constantly resort to a recital of the Holy Qur-án, and that otherwise it could not be retained in memory. Hence they constantly resorted to its recital. Now, to finish the Qur-án within a stated time and to recur to it again and again, it was necessary that some arrangement of chapters should have been observed. Ahmad and Abu Daood and others have narrated the following report which shows that the arrangement of chapters was also effected by the Holy Prophet. Anas says: "I was in the Saqif embassy at the time of the Bani Saqif's conversion to Islam. . . The Holy Prophet said to us, 'My portion of the Holy Qur-án has come to me unexpectedly, so I do not intend to go out until I finish it.' Thereupon we questioned the companions of the Holy Prophet, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, as to how they divided the Qur-án into portions. They said: 'We observe the following division into portions, three chapters and five chapters, and seven chapters and nine chapters, and eleven chapters and thirteen chapters, and all the remaining chapters beginning with Qaf, which are termed the mufassal.'" There is good reason to believe the authenticity of this report. It divides the Holy Qur-án into seven portions, each portion to be recited in one day, and the recital of the whole Qur-án is thus finished in seven days. From other trustworthy reports we learn that the Holy Prophet had enjoined some of his companions not to finish the Holy Qur-án in less than seven days; and the two reports, communicated through entirely different channels, corroborating as they do the testimony of each other, testify to each other's truth and authenticity. Moreover, they are both accepted by eminent collectors of reports. Hence we have no reason to doubt the truth of the reports. Now, the report quoted above shows clearly an arrangement of chapters, for the division into portions mentioned in this report is observed to this day by the whole Muslim world. The seven portions are called the seven manzils, or stages, and they include the same number of chapters as is mentioned in the report. The seventh portion begins with the chapter entitled Qaf, as stated in the report, and the total number of chapters contained in the first six portions is forty-eight, as in the copies of the Qur-án in our hands. It should be borne in mind that in our copies the Qaf is the fiftieth chapter, the difference arising from the fact that in the report quoted above the Fatihah, or the Opening Chapter, is not included. This report affords the clearest and most conclusive testimony that the arrangement of the chapters of the Holy Qur-án was brought about by the Holy Prophet himself, like that of its verses, and their present arrangement does not differ in the least from the original.

It may perhaps be objected that such an arrangement was not possible, as the Qur-án was not complete till the death of the Holy Prophet, and verses and chapters were constantly being revealed. It is quite true that the Qur-án could not be said to be complete so long as the recipient of the Divine revelation lived, but this could not interfere with the arrangement of verses and chapters. The word "Qur-án" signified the part of the Qur-án that had been revealed. Now, the report quoted above speaks of the conversion to Islam of the Bani Saqif, which did not take place till the ninth year of Hejira, in which year the chapter entitled Immunity, which is looked upon as the latest in chronological order, was revealed. Hence, at the time of which the report speaks, almost the whole of the Qur-án had been revealed, and the division into seven portions, which speaks of the number of chapters in each portion, has in its favour the authority of the Holy Prophet himself, and no objection to it is based on reasonable ground. The verses that were revealed afterwards were put in their proper place in the chapters to which they belonged, and if any short sura was also revealed afterwards (as the Help), it also found its proper place in the arrangement of chapters, and did not interfere with the enumeration of the chapters contained in the first six portions.

There is no evidence that the arrangement of chapters existing in the time of the Holy Prophet was altered in any way by Abu Bakr or 'Uṣman. Against Abu Bakr no one has ever advanced such a charge, and 'Uṣman only followed the collection of Abu Bakr. The copies made in the time of 'Uṣman were made under the directions of the companions who possessed the best knowledge of the Qur-án, and many of them, as Ubayy bin Ka'b, knew the whole of it by heart. The arguments which I have advanced above as to the arrangement of verses apply mutatis mutandis to the arrangement of chapters. But as some reports speak of different arrangements of chapters, I shall consider them before leaving this subject.

Let us take first the chapter headed Tálif-ul-Qur-án in Bukharee. According to the first report mentioned in this chapter, a man from 'Iráq came to 'Ayesha and asked her to show him her copy of the Qur-án. On being questioned as to what he meant to do with it, he said that no arrangement was followed in the recital of the Qur-án, and that he wanted her copy for a right arrangement of the Holy Book. Upon this, the report tells us, "Ayesha rebuked him and accosted him in the following words: 'What harm is there which is read first? Verily what was revealed of it first was a chapter from among the mufassal, speaking of paradise and hell. But when people began to accept Islam, injunctions were revealed about the things legal and the things prohibited. Had the first injunction revealed been the prohibition of drinking, they would have said that they could not give up drinking.' . . . Then she brought out her copy of the Qur-án and recited verses of some chapters." In this report we have the objection of a man from 'Iráq, not one of the companions but a new convert to Islam, and the reply of 'Ayesha. In the reply the objector is rebuked for saying that no arrangement was followed in the recital of the Qur-án, and it is explained to him what necessitated an arrangement different from the chronological order. It appears from the reply that his question related to the order of revelation, for he was told that there was no harm in placing a verse revealed before another after it in the arrangement. The copy of the Qur-án which 'Ayesha showed the questioner had also its arrangement different from the order of revelation, for she is stated to have recited verses of different chapters in support of her argument. And the man was satisfied with 'Ayesha's argument and did not take her copy, which he would have certainly done if the arrangement of 'Ayesha's copy had been different from the current copies of the Qur-án.

It should also be borne in mind that the arrangement of chapters to which we have referred above was observed only in the recital of the whole Qur-án, and no such arrangement was observed in its recital in prayers or outside prayers, when only certain portions were recited. In prayers, for instance, if any chapter or any portion of a chapter was recited in one rak'at, any other chapter or portion of a chapter whatever could be recited in the second rak'at. There is ample evidence as to this in reports. Similarly, two or more chapters could be read in a single rak'at, and in some cases there were combinations of such chapters for recital in prayers. In his tahajjud prayers, for instance, the Holy Prophet used sometimes to recite twenty chapters, eighteen of which were termed the mufasssal, or the shorter chapters, towards the close of the Qur-án, beginning with Qáf, and two Há Mims, or chapters commencing with Há Mím. Thus in each rak'at two of these chapters were recited, the total number of rak'ats being ten. The Holy Prophet made a peculiar combination which has been preserved to us through Ibn-i-Mas'ud, and accordingly it is known as the talíf-i-Ibn-i-Mas'ud, or the combination of Ibn-i-Mas'ud. Now, this combination has nothing to do with the arrangement of chapters in the Qur-án; nor was it followed on all occasions. It was a combination which, according to Ibn-i-Mas'ud, the Holy Prophet followed upon one occasion, or more occasions than one, in his later midnight prayers; and as authentic reports show that the ordinary arrangement of chapters was not followed by the Holy Prophet or his companions in prayers, this peculiar combination does not detract aught from the value of the original arrangement. On the other hand, this peculiar combination was preserved and mentioned only on account of its peculiarity and departure from the original arrangement of chapters. Nor was this peculiar combination followed always, even in tahajjud prayers, for there are other authentic reports showing other combinations and the recital of other chapters. Even in the public prayers the arrangement of chapters was not followed. On one occasion the Holy Prophet recited the fourth chapter, An-Nisá, in the first rak'at and the third chapter, Al-i-'Imrân, in the second, and the incident has been preserved to us in a report only because a departure was made in this case from the recognized arrangement. Many other instances of the same kind are on record, and as it was not obligatory to follow the arrangement of chapters in reciting them in prayers, such cases furnish only additional testimony to the fact that the arrangement of chapters followed at present is the same as was followed in the recital of the whole Qur-án in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, according to his directions.

The circumstance narrated above as to the peculiar combination of the twenty chapters termed the mufasssal, a combination resorted to by the Holy Prophet sometimes in his tahajjud prayers, has led some men to think that Ibn-i-Mas'ud's copy of the Qur-án followed a different arrangement of chapters. But the only trustworthy evidence to support this is the report quoted above, which speaks of a certain combination of twenty short chapters in the tahajjud prayers; and when it is shown that the observance of the arrangement of chapters was not necessary in prayers, the force of that evidence vanishes altogether. Even supposing for the sake of argument that Ibn-i-Mas'ud followed a different arrangement of chapters, and that it was according to that arrangement that the chapters were written in his copy of the Holy Qur-án, it does not follow that his was the right arrangement or that the arrangement in Abu Bakr's or 'Uṣman's copy was the wrong one. None of the companions favoured the arrangement of Ibn-i-Mas'ud. On the other hand, all of them recognized the arrangement in 'Uṣman's copy, as the arrangement followed by the Holy Prophet. Among the companions who superintended the copying of the Qur-án in the reign of 'Uṣman there were such eminent men as 'Alí, Ubayy bin Ka'b, Zaid bin Sabít, and others. 'Uṣman had chosen, as I will show later on, twelve of the most eminent companions, who were distinguished for their sound knowledge of the Qur-án, and they decided all points on which any dispute arose. They could not be unaware of the particular combination of chapters which the Holy Prophet followed in his later midnight prayers, but they knew that no particular arrangement was adhered to by the Holy Prophet in the recital of chapters in prayers, and no arrangement could in fact be observed. It is absurd to suppose that they were all ignorant of a certain combination, and that Ibn-i-Mas'ud alone knew it. Had the arrangement of chapters been left to private judgment, we could have supposed Ibn-i-Mas'ud's arrangement to be the right one and attributed the error to the rest of the companions. But the matter was to be decided by what the Holy Prophet had ordered. Ibn-i-Mas'ud thought that a certain arrangement which he had seen the Holy Prophet following in his tahajjud prayers was the right arrangement. But he made a mistake. The companions knew that the arrangement followed in prayers was not, and could not be, the right arrangement. Authentic reports related by them show that the Holy Prophet used to recite a portion of one chapter in one rak'at and a portion of another chapter, whether before or after the first in actual arrangement, in the second rak'at. They also knew the case in which a companion who led the prayers in a certain mosque commenced every rak'at with the short chapter entitled Unity, and then followed it with any other chapter, and when the Holy Prophet was apprised of this circumstance he did not object to it. They knew further that in the morning prayers on Fridays the Holy Prophet generally recited the chapter As-Sajdah, the 32nd chapter, in the first rak'at, and the chapter Ad-Dahr, the 76th chapter, in the second rak'at; yet this did not mean that the latter chapter should follow the former in actual arrangement. They knew the actual arrangement and they followed it. Ibn-i-Mas'ud based his arrangement on a certain combination followed in certain prayers, and thus made an error in judgment. Yet in the main even his arrangement was not different from the arrangement followed in 'Usman's copy. The same longer chapters, the Tiwal, were first in his copy as in 'Usman's, with this difference only, that An-Nisa preceded Al-i-Imrin, the order of the third and fourth chapters being thus reversed. The reversal of this order is also due to the Holy Prophet having once done it in reciting them in prayers. These are the only two differences as regards the arrangement of chapters that are mentioned to have existed in Ibn-i-Mas'ud's copy. So the error is either to be attributed to Ibn-i-Mas'ud or to those who have supposed that his arrangement of the chapters of the Qur-án differed in these two points from the recognized arrangement followed in the official copies issued by 'Usman. Even the existence of the difference confirms the conclusion that the arrangement of chapters followed by 'Usman was exactly the same as that followed by the Holy Prophet. There is agreement in the main between other companions and Ibn-i-Mas'ud, and the difference arises only out of an error of judgment. Now, we ask, if the order of chapters was not fixed by the Holy Prophet himself, what led Ibn-i-Mas'ud to follow the same arrangement as was followed by 'Usman and the other companions? Such an agreement in the arrangement of 114 chapters was not possible unless both were following one and the same authority who had fixed that order. Such authority could be none but the Holy Prophet. As further testimony that Ibn-i-Mas'ud's arrangement of chapters was materially the same as was followed in 'Usman's copies, and as is followed by us to this day, we have a report in Bukharee in which Ibn-i-Mas'ud names the five chapters in the middle of the Qur-án, Bani Isráil, Al-Kahf, Tá Há, Maryam, Anbiyá, in the same order in which they are found in our copies of the Holy Qur-án. All this evidence leads us to the certain conclusion that Ibn-i-Mas'ud's arrangement of chapters was the same as in the copies made by the order of 'Usman, that if there was any difference it was very slight and immaterial, and that this difference arose out of a misunderstanding on the part of Ibn-i-Mas'ud.

Two other persons are named as having followed a different arrangement of chapters in the collection of the Qur-án. These are Ubayy bin Ka'b and 'Ali. The case of the former may be disposed of at once, as there is no testimony worthy the name which shows that Ubayy followed a different arrangement of chapters. The only thing stated about him is that he placed the fourth chapter before the third. If that was the only difference of arrangement, it is quite immaterial, and the error may have arisen from the same source as in the case of Ibn-i-Mas'ud. But, as I shall now show, if Ubayy ever entertained such an opinion, he afterwards gave it up when he came to know the facts. 'Ali is said to have collected the chapters in the order of revelation, and there is a report stating that he did not rest after the Holy Prophet's death until he had collected the Qur-án, arranging its chapters in chronological order. The authenticity of this report has been questioned, for that Qur-án was never handed down to posterity, though 'Ali reigned as Caliph immediately after 'Usman. Moreover, there are reports of a higher authority which do not give to 'Ali such credit. According to one (see Fat-hul-Bárr, p. 10), 'Ali himself said that "the greatest of men as regards the collection of the Qur-án is Abu Bakr; he is the first man who collected the Qur-án." Therefore the report which makes 'Ali say that he did not rest after the death of the Prophet till he had collected the whole of the Qur-án is contradicted by those whose evidence is corroborated by other historical facts, one of which is that even during his Caliphate 'Ali never referred to or accepted a different copy of the Qur-án or a different arrangement of its chapters. But, besides this, there is another consideration which shows that neither 'Ali nor Ubayy followed any arrangement of chapters other than the one which was followed by 'Usman. Ubayy and 'Ali were among the men under whose directions the copies of the Qur-án were written, and therefore they were as greatly concerned in giving us the present arrangement of chapters as 'Usman or any other companion.

There is one report more which may be mentioned in connection with the arrangement of chapters, as from it a contrary conclusion is sometimes drawn by mistake. Ibn-i-'Abbas thus narrates this report: "I said to 'Usman, 'What led you to put Al-Anfíl (the eighth chapter) in juxtaposition with Bará'at, and you did not write between them the Bismilla?" thus classing these two chapters with the seven long ones?' Upon this question 'Usman gave me the following reply: 'It was customary with the Holy Prophet, when many chapters were being revealed to him, that when any portion of any chapter was revealed, he sent for one of his amanuenses and told him to write down those verses in the chapter where such and such things were spoken of. Now Al-Anfíl was one of the chapters revealed early at Medina, and Bará'at was one of the latest revealed chapters, and the subject-matter of these two chapters was identical. Therefore I believed that the latter chapter was a part of the former chapter, and the Holy Prophet died, and he did not distinctly say to us that it was a part.'" This report, far from ascribing the arrangement of chapters to the judgment of 'Usman, makes it clear that the arrangement of chapters was effected by none other than the Holy Prophet. It shows that, except in the case mentioned in the report, the Holy Prophet had "distinctly" told his companions where a verse or a chapter was to be placed. It also shows that the arrangement was effected according to subject-matter by the Holy Prophet himself, for it was the identity of the subject-matter which decided that the eighth and the ninth chapters should be placed in juxtaposition. In fact, leaving the case of this one chapter, viz. the ninth, out of question, the report relates in express and clear words, not only that the Holy Prophet pointed out the position of every verse, but also that he pointed out the position of every chapter, and distinctly told his companions which chapter should follow which in the collection, and that it was he who arranged the chapters according to their subject-matter. Now, taking the case of the two chapters mentioned in the report, does it follow from what is said in it that the Holy Prophet gave no directions at all as to their arrangement? The chapter entitled Bard'at ("Immunity") was, we know, revealed to the Holy Prophet more than a year before his death, and accordingly it is not right to say that he had no time to give distinct directions as to its place. The fact is that the Holy Prophet himself desired the two chapters to be thus placed side by side, and the Bard'at to be written without Bismillah, the formula with which every chapter begins. The two chapters, although known under two different names, were really parts of a single chapter. The first thirty verses of the Bard'at (according to others thirteen or forty), were proclaimed to the assembled hosts in the days of pilgrimage, and this was the reason that the Bard'at was regarded as a different chapter. Hence the Holy Prophet never told his companions distinctly that the Bard'at was only a part of Al-Anfal, and it was for this reason that it was looked upon as a distinct chapter. But neither did the Holy Prophet commence it with the opening formula, because in a certain sense—that is, the identity of the subject-matter—it was regarded as a part of the eighth chapter. This is what 'Uṣman explained to Ibn-i-'Abbas.

All these circumstances lead us to the certain and undeniable conclusion that the arrangement of the chapters of the Holy Qur-ān and the arrangement of the verses in each chapter were both effected by the Holy Prophet. There is strong internal evidence to the same effect. The chapters, like the verses, have a connection with each other, as is shown in the introductory notes on the different chapters.

4. The collection of the Qur-ān.

The next point to be considered is, if the whole of the Qur-ān was safe in writing as well as in memory, and if even its verses and chapters were arranged before the death of the Holy Prophet, what was meant by the collection of the Qur-ān in the time of Abu Bakr or in that of 'Uṣman.

As I have already remarked, the primary work of the collection of the Holy Qur-ān was done by the Holy Prophet himself under the guidance of Divine revelation. To this the Holy Book itself refers in the following words: "Surely on Us devolves the collecting of it and the recital of it; therefore when We have recited it, follow its recitation" (75: 17, 18). On another occasion the objection of the unbelievers to the gradual revelation of the Holy Qur-ān is thus met: "And those who disbelieve say: Why has not the Qur-ān been revealed to him all at once? Thus that We may establish your heart by it, and We have arranged it well in arranging" (25: 32). Here again it is asserted that the putting together and arranging of parts was the work of Divine revelation. These verses and the facts already mentioned go a long way to show that the primary collection of the Holy Qur-ān was effected by the Holy Prophet. But we have seen that such collection was needed only by those who wished to commit the whole of the Qur-ān to memory, and that it was in reciting the whole that the arrangement of chapters was needed. Hence, though the whole Qur-ān existed in a complete and arranged form in the memories of the companions, it did not exist in a single volume in a written form. Every verse and every chapter was, no doubt, committed to writing as soon as it was revealed, but so long as the recipient of the Divine revelation lived, the whole could not be written in a single volume. At any time a verse might be revealed which it was necessary to place in the middle of a chapter, and hence the very circumstances of the case made the existence of a complete volume impossible. Hence a collection of the Qur-án in a volume was needed after the death of the Holy Prophet, which should be in accordance with the collection made by the Holy Prophet, as existing in the memories of his companions. Such a collection was also needed to facilitate reference to and circulation of the Holy Word, and to give it a more permanent form than was secured to it in being consigned to memory. Such was the object with which the collection of the Holy Qur-án was taken in hand by Abu Bakr.

A reference to the report which describes the circumstances necessitating the collection of the Qur-án confirms the statement made above. The account is given by Zaid bin Sabit, the Holy Prophet's amanuensis at Medina, and it has been preserved to us in an authentic report recorded in the Sahih Bukharee. Soon after the death of the Holy Prophet, Abu Bakr had to send an expedition against the impostor Musailma. A battle was fought at Yemamah, in which great carnage occurred among the Muslims, and many of the reciters of the Holy Qur-án lost their lives. Since the Holy Qur-án existed as a whole up to this time only in the memories of the reciters, and the written fragments had not been collected in a single volume, 'Umar apprehended a great danger if more reciters fell in some other battle. Straightway he went to Abu Bakr and advised him to give immediate orders for the collection of the written portions of the Qur-án into one volume. "A great number of the reciters of the Qur-án have been slain in the battle of Yemamah," he said, "and I fear that slaughter may again wax hot among the reciters of the Qur-án in other fields of battle, and that much of the Qur-án may be lost therefrom. In my opinion it is absolutely necessary that you should give immediate orders for the collection of the Qur-án." But the companions of the Holy Prophet were so faithful to their master that the doing of a thing which the Holy Prophet had not done seemed to them a departure from the path which he had shown to them. "How can I do a thing," replied Abu Bakr, "which the Holy Prophet, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, has not done?" "But," urged 'Umar, "that is the best course under the circumstances." Abu Bakr was convinced, after some discussion, and Zaid was sent for. "You are," said Abu Bakr to him when he came, "a young man and wise, against whom no one amongst us can cast an imputation of any kind, and you were wont to write the revelations of the Holy Prophet. Search therefore (the written portions of) the Qur-án and collect it (into one volume)." The first impulse of Zaid was the same as that of Abu Bakr. "How can you do a thing," said he, "which the Holy Prophet, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, has not done?" And so heavy did the task appear to him, that at that time he thought: "It would not have been more difficult for me if I had been asked to remove a mountain." But at last he was prevailed upon, and began the search.

The report quoted above proves several points. Firstly, it shows that the whole of the Qur-án was safe in the memories of the reciters who had learned it in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet. There was nothing to be feared so long as the reciters were safe, but if they perished in a battle, then, it was feared, certain portions of the Holy Qur-án might be lost, because the manuscripts of different chapters and verses had not been up to that time collected in one place. Secondly, it appears from it that the collection of the Qur-án undertaken in the time of Abu Bakr was meant only to supply the place of the reciters if by some mishap in a battle they were all lost. The apprehensions in the mind of 'Umar arose because he feared that, as many reciters had perished in the battle of Yemamah, many others might be lost in some other battle. Hence he insisted upon a collection of the Qur-ân which should have nothing to fear from the death of certain persons. From this it is clear that the original collection of the Qur-ân, with an arrangement of its chapters and verses, was effected by the Holy Prophet himself, and 'Umar only desired to supplement the collection of the Qur-ân in memories with a collection in writing. The report does not allege that the Qur-ân had not been collected up to that time: on the other hand, it asserts that the Qur-ân was safe in men's memories, but that a written collection was needed in view of the possible loss of the reciters in a field of battle. Memory was a good repository, no doubt, but such a collection could at any time be entirely lost by the loss of those who retained the Holy Book in memory. Thirdly, the report proves that up to the time when Abu Bakr took in hand the collection of the written Qur-ân no portion of it had been lost, and that there were still many reciters who had it safe in their memories. 'Umar only feared loss of portions of the Qur-ân by the loss of the remaining reciters in some other battle that might ensue. It was only a contingency: certain reciters who were alive at the time at which 'Umar was speaking might be lost in some future battle. Nothing had been lost up to that time, but something might be lost in the future if immediate steps were not taken for a collection in writing. To sum up, the report shows that the entire Qur-ân was safe in the memories of the reciters, that 'Umar only desired to make a collection of the Qur-ân in writing in addition to the collection existing in the memories of the reciters, and that nothing had been lost from the collection existing in their memories when the collection in writing was undertaken. These are three important points which settle the matter that the collection of the Quranic revelations in our hands does not differ in any way from the collection existing in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, and that nothing was added to or lost from it at any time. It must also be borne in mind that the report which disposes of these points is not only one of the most authentic and trustworthy, but no one has ever questioned its accuracy.

We have now to explain what was meant by Abu Bakr when he said that he could not do a thing which had not been done by the Holy Prophet. 'Umar's question related, not to the mere collection of the Qur-ân, but to the collection of the Qur-ân in writing. Now, it is a fact admitted on all hands that, though the complete Qur-ân with a perfect arrangement of its chapters and verses existed in the safest of repositories, the memories of the companions of the Holy Prophet, the different writings containing different portions of the Qur-ân had never been collected together and arranged. Nor could this be done so long as the Holy Prophet was alive. For whereas, as already pointed out, it was easy for the reciters to place any verse of any chapter revealed at a subsequent time in its proper place in that chapter as pointed out by the Holy Prophet, a complete volume could not admit of such a course. Hence the Holy Prophet did not order the collection of the different writings. Now, 'Umar asked Abu Bakr to collect these writings, and this was what the Holy Prophet had not done, and therefore, in the first instance, Abu Bakr refused to do it. It shows only how scrupulous the companions were not to interfere with the Divine revelation. But 'Umar's case was based on strong and sound reasoning, and hence he argued it with Abu Bakr until the latter was convinced of the truth and advisability of what he said. Thus there is nothing in the report to show that the Holy Qur-ân had not been collected up to the time of the incident. It only shows that the different writings had not been collected and arranged, and that the completely arranged Qur-ân was entrusted only to the memories of men.

Another point to be elucidated in the report quoted above is the statement of Zaid as to the great difficulty which he thought he was likely to experience in the performance of the task with which he was entrusted. Indeed, he thought that it would not have been more difficult for him if he had been asked to remove a mountain. What were his difficulties? A report narrated by Ibn-i-Abi-Doood makes it clear. "'Umar rose and declared that whoever had received anything directly from the Holy Prophet should bring it (to Zaid), and they (i.e. the companions) used to write it upon papers and tablets and palm branches in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, and nothing was accepted from anybody until two witnesses bore testimony" (Fat-hul-Bari, vol. ix. p. 12). The report clearly confirms the conclusion already arrived at, that the object of the collection undertaken in the time of Abu Bakr was to gather together what had been written in the presence of the Holy Prophet. Zaid's collection was meant to secure the original writings, and this was the great difficulty to which Zaid alluded. A great portion of the Holy Qur-án had been revealed at Mecca, and even the portion that was revealed at Medina was not wholly in the possession of Zaid. Zaid had to search not only writings, but writings which had been written in the presence of the Holy Prophet. He was chosen for the task because he had written the greater portion of the revelation at Medina, and was presumed to have all those copies safe in his custody. But the task before him was a very difficult one. He had to search all the original writings and then give them an arrangement in accordance with that of the verses and chapters as followed in the recitation of the entire Qur-án from memory, in obedience to the directions given by the Holy Prophet. That these writings were safe cannot be doubted. Everything relating to Divine revelation was preserved with the utmost care. But the task was no doubt an arduous one, and required hard labour and diligent search; hence Zaid, with a true appreciation of the difficulties before him, said that it was equivalent to the removing of a mountain.

These are clear considerations showing that the service with which Zaid was entrusted was the collection and arrangement of the original copies of the different verses and chapters made in the presence of the Holy Prophet. The object of Abu Bakr and 'Umar was not to have a volume of the Holy Qur-án prepared by Zaid writing down the Holy Book as recited by the reciters, but to prepare a book by collecting the original writings. This is the reason that the word collection (Ar. Jam'a) is always used in connection with this task, not arrangement or compilation. Hence also the first direction of Abu Bakr to Zaid was to "search the Qur-án and collect it," and it is easy to see that a search had only to be made for writings. The words of 'Umar, expressing a fear that much of the Qur-án might be lost if the reciters fell in other fields as in that of Yemamah, clearly imply that he was sure that no portion of the Holy Qur-án had been lost up to that time, and accordingly, if the object of the new collection for which 'Umar contended were simply to reduce the Qur-án to writing as recited by the experts, Abu Bakr would not have told Zaid to "search the Qur-án and collect it." Nor would Zaid, in such a case, have considered the task to be as difficult as the removing of a mountain. Sufficient accuracy could have been obtained by gathering together a few reciters, and Zaid had only to write out the Holy Qur-án as dictated by them and approved by the companions. But 'Umar's object was to gather the original writings, which had been written according to the directions of the Holy Prophet himself, and thus to make the accuracy of the text doubly certain. And the report further tells us that Zaid actually followed this course; for, after being convinced that Abu Bakr and 'Umar were right, he thus describes what was done: "Then I began to search the Qur-án, and to collect it from palm branches and tablets of stone and the hearts of men, until I found the concluding verses of the chapter entitled Immunity in the possession of Abu Khuzaima Ansári, and I did not find them in the possession of anybody else." This shows that Zaid had two things to do: to search the writings and to collect them in a single volume. Now, collection required an arrangement of verses and chapters, for the writings themselves were found in the possession of different men, and they could give no clue to the arrangement that was to be followed. It was for the sake of arrangement that Zaid had to resort to the reciters, and it is to this that the words "hearts of men" refer in the report quoted above. Moreover, memory had also to be resorted to, to test the accuracy of the writings. In fact, without the help of reciters the collection of the writings in the form of a complete volume was not possible. It was for this reason that 'Umar urged that the collection should be commenced whilst a large number of reciters were still alive, and it is for this reason that Zaid mentions that in collecting the writings he had to resort to memory, or "the hearts of men," as he puts it. The words do not indicate that he sought for some chapters from writings and for others from memory, for if he limited his inquiry to memory in the case of one part of the revelation, he had no need to search for writings for the rest, and the whole could have been easily written down from the dictation of the reciters.

The most important question with regard to the collection made under the orders of Abu Bakr is: Did it accord in every respect with the Qur-án as stored and collected in the memories of the companions, and as repeated and recited, publicly as well as privately, in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet? There is not the least reason to believe that it did not. In the first place, none of the compilers was actuated by any motive to make any change in the text. The earnest desire of all those engaged in the task was to have a complete and faithful reproduction of what had been revealed to the Holy Prophet, and Zaid had only undertaken the task after a full appreciation of the difficulties. Secondly, the collection began only six months after the death of the Holy Prophet, while almost all of those who had heard the Qur-án from his lips were still alive. The Qur-án as recited by the Holy Prophet was still fresh in the memories of the companions, and any tampering with the text could have been easily brought to notice. Thirdly, we find the companions so cautious even in reporting the words of the Holy Prophet that we cannot imagine that they would tamper with the Divine revelation only six months after his death. They held the Divine word in such great awe and reverence that it is impossible they should have fabricated a word or sanctioned the omission of any part of the Holy Book. Fourthly, as we have already seen, there were many among them who could repeat the whole of the Qur-án from memory. There were others who knew large portions, and these were kept fresh in memory by constant recitation in and apart from prayers. It was impossible that any variation from the text as prevalent in the time of the Holy Prophet should have found its way into the collection in the presence of such men. Fifthly, there were many transcripts of the revelation current among the companions. And since every verse was written at the time of its revelation, and copies of it were then made by the companions, there were ample means for testing the accuracy of the collection of Zaid. These writings were in the possession of different companions, and so they all had a chance to see for themselves that the collection made by Zaid was a faithful copy of the original writings. Moreover, the writings in the possession of one man could be compared with those in the possession of another, and thus, as in the case of recitation, there was no probability of any error creeping into the text. Memory and writing corroborated the already unimpeachable testimony afforded by each, and thus placed beyond the shadow of a doubt the accuracy of the text of the Holy Qur-án. Sixthly, there is no mention at all in any report whatever that anything was left out of the collection made under the orders of Abu Bakr, or that anything had been added to it which was not considered to be part of the Divine revelation. As Sir William Muir says: "We hear of no fragments, sentences, or words omitted by the compilers, nor of any that differed from the received edition. Any such would undoubtedly have been preserved and noticed in those traditional repositories which treasured up the minutest and most trivial acts and sayings of the Prophet."

Thus there are strong and conclusive arguments showing that the copy made from the transcripts under the orders of Abu Bakr agreed in every way, in text as well as in arrangement, with the collection made under the directions of the Holy Prophet himself and preserved in memory by the reciters. Unless there had been a complete agreement in the text as received through the two sources, memory and writing, the companions would never have been satisfied with the collection. The copy thus made remained, we are told, in the possession of Abu Bakr, and after his death in that of 'Umar. After the latter's death, the copy was transferred to the custody of Hafsa, the daughter of 'Umar, and a widow of the Holy Prophet. Thus the copy of the Holy Qur-án transcribed by the orders of Abu Bakr came down to the reign of 'Uṣman without any alteration in its text or arrangement. It is highly probable that copies were made from this collection by those who needed them, and thus it was sufficiently circulated. But some circumstances coming to the notice of 'Uṣman, he deemed it necessary to circulate official copies, transcribed by official scribes, and suppress all those made by private persons, either from the collection of Zaid or other writings still prevalent among them. An authentic report narrated by Bukharae thus describes the circumstances: "Anas son of Málík relates that there came to 'Uṣman Huzafa, who had been fighting with the people of Syria in the conquest of Armenia and with the people of Iraq in Azerbaijan, and who was alarmed at their variations in the modes of reading, and he said to 'Uṣman: 'O Commander of the Faithful! stop the people before they differ in the Holy Book as the Jews and the Christians differ in their Scriptures.' So 'Uṣman sent word to Hafsa, asking her to send him the Qur-án in her possession, so that they might make other copies of it and then send the original copy back to her. Thereupon Hafsa sent the copy to 'Uṣman, and he ordered Zaid bin Sabit and Abdulla bin Zubair and Sa'id-ibn-il-'As and 'Abdul Rahman bin Haris bin Hisham, and they made copies from the original copy. 'Uṣman also said to the three men who belonged to the Quraish (Zaid only being a Medinite): 'When you differ with Zaid in anything concerning the Qur-án, then write it in the language of the Quraish, for it is in their language that it was revealed.' They obeyed these instructions, and when they had made the required number of copies from the original copy, 'Uṣman returned the original to Hafsa, and sent to every quarter one of the copies thus made, and ordered all other copies or leaves on which the Qur-án was written to be burned."

The report states clearly the circumstances which led 'Uṣman to destroy all private and substitute in their place official copies transcribed from the collection of Zaid made in the time of Abu Bakr. The Caliph was told by one of his generals who had been fighting in Armenia and Azerbaijan that there were variations in the modes of reading the Qur-án in such distant parts of the kingdom as Syria and Armenia. No such differences are pointed out to have existed at Medina or Mecca, or anywhere within Arabia. It was only in newly converted countries, where Arabic was not spoken, that these differences were noticed. As to the nature of these differences, it is stated in clear words that they were only differences in qird'at, or the modes of reading. Nor were they of such a serious nature as those existing among the Jews and the Christians with regard to their Scriptures, but it was feared that if nothing was done to put a stop to the slight differences existing at that time, they might, after the lapse of a few generations, develop into serious ones. What the differences exactly were it is difficult for us to say, but a reference to earlier anecdotes casts some further light upon their nature. We are told in authentic reports that different modes of reading certain words were allowed by the Holy Prophet himself, and companions unacquainted with the permission at first severely took to task anybody whom they heard reading any word of the Holy Qur-án in a different method. Thus 'Umar on one occasion heard Hisham pronouncing certain words of the Qur-án in a different method, and in great wrath dragged him into the presence of the Holy Prophet, who approved Hisham's reading. The reason for this permission was that people belonging to certain tribes could not pronounce certain words in the ordinary way. These people were allowed to read them in the manner in which they could easily pronounce them. But I do not wish to enter into details here, as I intend to discuss under a separate heading the subject of the various readings. From what I have stated above, it will be seen that the permission to read any word in a different method was based on a necessity. Only those could avail themselves of this permission who, on account of their being accustomed from their very childhood to pronounce certain words in a certain manner, could not pronounce them in the pure dialect of the Quraish. But when Islam spread beyond Arabia, the need to read certain words in a different method disappeared, for the foreigners could pronounce a word in the dialect of the Quraish with the same facility as in any other dialect. Some of the companions, however, still taught the Qur-án adhering to certain readings which were not in accordance with the pure style of the Quraish. Some of them may have even abused the permission and favoured certain readings, though they had no need for them. This evil seems to have spread at Kufa, and it was to this that Huzaifa referred when he was alarmed at the variation in the readings. According to certain reports he strongly reproved those who took to peculiar readings, some saying that they followed the reading of Ibn-i-Mas'ud, others that of Abu Musa, and others still of Ubayy-ibn-i-Ka'b, whereas they could without any difficulty recite the Qur-án according to the original reading, that is, in the dialect of the Quraish. This conclusion is corroborated by an anecdote relating to a period earlier than the time of 'Usman. 'Umar was told that Ibn-i-Mas'ud read 'attá hín instead of hattá hín. Now, in the dialect of the Huzail and the Saqeef hattá was pronounced 'attá (see Lane's Lexicon under the root 'attá'). Ibn-i-Mas'ud did not belong to either of these tribes, but he favoured a peculiar reading which had been permitted only because people belonging to certain tribes could not utter the word otherwise. When 'Umar was told that Ibn-i-Mas'ud taught 'attá instead of hattá, the Caliph wrote to him that the Qur-án was revealed in the language of the Quraish, and that he should not read it in the dialect of the Huzail. The words of 'Umar as given in the report are: "Surely the Qur-án was revealed in the language of the Quraish and not in the dialect of the Huzail, so teach it to the people in the language of the Quraish and not in that of the Huzail." Another evil that had sprung out of these variations in readings was that the new converts, unable to realize the need for which they had been permitted, began to attribute heresy one to another for a difference in the reading of certain words. It was this evil which made Huzaifa and 'Usman have great apprehensions, as many reports show, and the only remedy for it was that the variations for which there now remained no need should be entirely suppressed in reading as well as in writing, and that the pure language of the Quraish, in which the Qur-án had been revealed, should be used by all.

The considerations and the anecdotes given above help us to understand the nature of the differences and the evil at which Huzaifa was alarmed, and to remove which was the object of 'Uṣman in destroying all private copies of the Qur-án. The instruction which 'Uṣman gave to the syndicate of the scribes further supports this conclusion. To the members of the committee who belonged to the tribes of the Quraish he gave the direction in plain words: "When you differ with Zaid in anything concerning the Qur-án, then write it in the language of the Quraish, for it is in their language that it was revealed." This direction, we are told, was obeyed. 'Uṣman then went no further than 'Umar. Only the variations of readings became more pronounced in his time, and became the source of much evil, and he took a step which was calculated to wipe off once for all those variations which 'Umar also wanted to put a stop to. It may be asked what was meant by differing with Zaid in anything concerning the Qur-án. In another report, also related by Bukharee, instead of "When you differ with Zaid in anything concerning the Qur-án," we have the words, "When you differ with Zaid in an 'arabiyyat in the 'arabiyyat of the Qur-án," the word 'arabiyyat signifying the Arabic language. The word clearly implies that by difference in the report is meant difference in the method of pronouncing a word in different dialects. Zaid, as previously stated, did not belong to the tribe of the Quraish, and hence, where there was a difference in the manner of reading or writing a word, the decision of the Quraish members was to be accepted. The only example of the difference alluded to has been preserved to us in a report. On the authority of Ibn-i-Shaháb, the same narrator as in Bukharee's report, Tirmazi adds the following anecdote to the report accepted and narrated by Bukharee: "And they differed on that occasion as to tabút and tabúh. The Quraish members said that it was tabút, and Zaid said that it was tabúh. The difference was reported to 'Uṣman, and he directed them to write it tabút, adding that the Qur-án was revealed in the dialect of the Quraish." This anecdote illustrates the nature of the differences at which Huzaifa was alarmed. It shows that the differences whose removal was aimed at by 'Uṣman were not ordinarily more serious than this. But since the companions of the Holy Prophet believed every word to proceed from a Divine source, they could not tolerate even such slight differences. And since the need for which such variations in the reading of certain words were previously permitted ceased to exist, and the danger of differences being accentuated increased with the influx of large numbers of foreigners into the holy religion of Islam, 'Uṣman thought it expedient to put a stop to all variations by circulating copies of the Holy Qur-án transcribed and superintended by competent men under his own orders, and suppressing all private copies which contained such variations.

Did the copies transcribed under the orders of 'Uṣman differ from the original collection made by Zaid in the time of Abu Bakr? The report tells us that when variations of readings in the distant parts of the kingdom were brought to the notice of 'Uṣman, the first idea to which he gave expression was to obtain the copy in the possession of Hafsa, and to have other copies transcribed from it for circulation among the Muslims. And from this intention he made no departure. The copies of the Qur-án transcribed under his orders were true and faithful copies of the collection of Zaid, which, as we have seen, was in the custody of Hafsa after the death of 'Umar. It was Zaid who transcribed the copy in the time of Abu Bakr, and it was Zaid who was called upon to make fresh copies from it in the time of 'Uṣman. To remove any difference of dialect or variation in the mode of reading certain words that might possibly arise, 'Uṣman gave, no doubt, the orders that the reading of the Quraish should be adopted in preference to any other reading. But the only example of such variation that has been preserved to us in reports is that Zaid read a word as tabūh and the Quraish read it as tabūt, there being a very slight difference as to the manner in which the final letter of the word was to be written, without there being the slightest change in significance; and such importance was given to this trifling difference that the matter was reported to 'Uṣman for decision. There is no mention at all of any other departure having been made from the writing of Zaid in the copy of Ḥafsa. Hence we have conclusive testimony in our hands showing that the copies of the Qur-ān made and circulated under the orders of 'Uṣman were exact and faithful copies of the original collection of Zaid. Again, the message of 'Uṣman to Ḥafsa was: "Send us the copy of the Qur-ān that we may make copies from it, and then we will return it to you." In accordance with this, the copy of Ḥafsa was returned after the requisite number of copies had been made. Had there been any difference between the original and the copies made, it would no doubt have come to light in the long reign of 'Uṣman or in that of 'Ali, when the Muslims had been divided into factions, and that copy was still in the possession of Ḥafsa. The men who murdered in cold blood the aged and venerable prince 'Uṣman could not have failed to bring to light any difference that might have existed between the copy of Ḥafsa and the copies made by him. But there is nothing on record to show that any such difference really existed, and this evidence further corroborates the conclusion that the copies made by 'Uṣman were true and faithful copies of the original collection made by Zaid in the time of Abu Bakr.

Had the action of 'Uṣman in destroying all private copies of the Holy Qur-ān been arbitrary or unjustifiable, the companions of the Holy Prophet would never have yielded to it. But it appears that they not only approved of his action, but also assisted him with willingness in the execution of his designs. Huzaifa, one of the learned companions, had come to him in all haste from distant Syria to request that he should take immediate steps to put a stop to variations in readings, and this he could not do except by issuing official copies of the Holy Qur-ān as collected by Abu Bakr and suppressing all private copies, which were perhaps not made with sufficient care and contained any variation of reading. Nor did 'Uṣman take this step without consulting the companions. According to a report narrated by Ibn-i-Abi-Daood through a chain of narrators which has been admitted as trustworthy (see Fat-hul-Bārī, vol. ix. p. 16), 'Ali said: "Do not say aught of 'Uṣman but what is good, for he did not take the step with regard to the suppression of the private copies of the Qur-ān except after consultation with us. He spoke to us, saying, 'What do you think about this reading? I have been informed that some of them say to others, "My reading is better than thine." This, I think, may amount to unbelief.' We asked him what step he thought it advisable to take in this matter. He replied that he thought it necessary to gather people on one reading. To this we all heartily agreed." This anecdote shows that it was only after consultation with the general body of the companions that 'Uṣman took any step. There are said to have been twelve members in the syndicate which superintended the transcription of the copies. Among these were Zaid, Sa'id, Ubayy, Anas bin Málík, 'Abdulla bin 'Abbas, and others. It appears that originally there were four members only, as the report in the Bukharee tells us, but that others were added later on, perhaps because a larger number of copies than that imagined at first was required. 'Abdulla bin Mas'ud was the only companion noted for his knowledge of the Qur-ân who was not included in the committee, but his exclusion was not due to any prejudice against him, but to his residence at a considerable distance from Medina. 'Abdulla lived at Kufa, and much delay would have been caused in the progress of the work if he had been included in the committee. And as 'Usman began his work after due consultation with the general body of the companions, they approved of his action after its completion. According to a report, Mus'ab bin Sa'd said that he met many companions when 'Usman gave orders for burning all private copies of the Qur-ân, and they were all pleased with it, and none of them took exception to it. In fact, 'Usman's apprehensions and those of the companions, as the words of 'Ali reported above show, were not due so much to the existence of variations in readings as to the differences resulting from these variations. Those who had newly entered into Islam were unaware of the circumstances as a result of which the Holy Prophet permitted certain variations in readings, and adopting the reading of a particular companion, they were severe upon others who adopted a different reading, and thus the slight variations in the mode of reading certain words began to lead to great controversies and quarrels. 'Usman and the other companions saw that the people were falling into errors and making a wide departure from what the Holy Prophet intended to be the use of variations, and they adopted the best way of remedying the evil.

Ibn-i-Mas'ud, for the reason stated above, could not take any part in the supervision of the transcription of copies made under the orders of 'Usman, and he is the only person who in some reports, by no means of the highest authority, is said to have made certain remarks against Zaid. For instance, he is reported to have disliked the appointment of Zaid for transcribing the copies, and to have remarked: "What! the transcription of the Qur-ân is taken away from me and it is entrusted to a man who was in the back of an unbeliever when I was a Muslim," referring to his older age and priority in the acceptance of Islam. Either this report is not true or Ibn-i-Mas'ud, if he actually uttered these words, made a grievous error. Zaid was the person who had collected and transcribed the Qur-ân in the time of Abu Bakr. Abu Bakr and 'Umar could not think of a better man than Zaid, and they entrusted to him the task of collection. When 'Usman felt a similar need, he inquired of the companions as to who was best qualified for the task and who excelled others in the art of writing, and he was told that Zaid was the man. This was the reason for his selection of Zaid to do the work of transcribing, and with him was joined a syndicate of several other companions to superintend the work, and it was in accordance with their directions that he transcribed the copies. Ibn-i-Mas'ud was, therefore, hardly right in speaking of Zaid in disparaging terms, if he spoke those words. But we may entertain grave doubts as to his having spoken them, for on the earlier occasion, when more important work was done than mere transcription, Ibn-i-Mas'ud never spoke a word against Zaid. The remarks which he is said to have made would have been more appropriate if they had been uttered at the time when Zaid was entrusted by Abu Bakr and 'Umar with the work of collecting the Holy Qur-ân from writings in manuscripts. It is strange that such remarks should have been made when nothing had to be done except transcription from an earlier original. But if the report be true, then its concluding words are sufficient to show that Ibn-i-Mas'ud was really in error, for we are told that "the most eminent companions disliked this remark of Ibn-i-Mas'ud." Moreover, according to this report, Ibn-i-Mas'ud did not find any fault with 'Usman. There are certain reports of very doubtful authenticity which assert that Ibn-i-Mas'ud had really refused to give up his copy of the Qur-án or to accept that sent by 'Uṣman, but these reports have not been accepted by any reliable collector. Even supposing them, for the sake of argument, to be authentic, they do not throw any discredit upon the copies made under the orders of 'Uṣman. Ibn-i-Mas'ud read certain words, we are told, in a manner different from that in which the Quraish read them, and even 'Umar had enjoined him to give up such readings. On that ground he may have refused to give up his copy, but not a single other companion ever supported his views. They were free to express what view they liked, but they all, without any exception, sided with 'Uṣman.

These considerations can leave no doubt that the copies circulated by 'Uṣman were true and faithful copies of the collection of Abu Bakr, which again agreed in every word and point with the Qur-án as taught by the Holy Prophet. When 'Uṣman issued his copies, thousands of the companions were still living, and many of these, such as Ubayy, 'Abdulla son of 'Umar, and others, were among the men who had committed to memory the whole of the Qur-án in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, while hundreds of others might have learnt it by heart after his death, as it was then in circulation. It was only thirteen years after the death of the Holy Prophet that 'Uṣman had given orders for making official copies of the Holy Qur-án, and if these had in any way differed from the original copy or from what had been preserved in memory, the companions would certainly have raised their voices against such maltreatment of the Holy Book. The Qur-án was still their most precious treasure, and they could not suffer a word of it to be changed. They would rather have given up their lives than permitted any tampering with the Qur-án. They were not only sincere and earnest in their professions, but they had also ample means to judge the correctness of the copies made under the orders of 'Uṣman. Anything left out from the Qur-án or anything added to it would at once have been pointed out by hundreds of the companions. But even Ibn-i-Mas'ud, with all the ill-will which he is reputed to have borne against 'Uṣman and Zaid, never pointed out a single word in the Qur-án that had been either altered, omitted, or added by 'Uṣman. He only remonstrated that he should be allowed to retain his peculiar reading of certain words, an example of which has been given in the word hatta, which he pronounced 'atta, following the dialect of the Huzail.

'Uṣman, then, made no alteration in the Qur-án as it was collected by Abu Bakr immediately after the death of the Holy Prophet. He employed the same scribe who was employed before him by Abu Bakr and in his lifetime by the Holy Prophet himself. He acted after consultation with the companions, securing the services of the most eminent who were noted for their knowledge of the Qur-án to superintend the work of transcription. The copies made by his orders were recognized as true copies by the whole Muslim world. Nor could any alteration in the copies alter the text as preserved in the memories of thousands of men. The bitterest foes of 'Uṣman, those who cut off his head while he was reading the Qur-án and who had the whole power in their hands, never charged him with having tampered with the Qur-án, though ordering the burning of the copies of the Holy Book was one of their charges against him. But this latter charge was advanced because the act of burning papers on which the Holy Word was written was considered sacrilegious. Even during the reign of 'Ali no one pointed out a word which had been omitted by 'Uṣman, and 'Ali is himself stated to have transcribed copies of the Qur-án from the official copies circulated by 'Uṣman.

As regards the copies in our hands, it is admitted by the bitterest enemies of Islam that the copies made by 'Uṣman have been handed down to later generations entirely unaltered. The purity of the text of the Qur-án is thus conclusively demonstrated. The collection of Abu Bakr was a faithful reproduction of the revelation as reduced to writing in the presence of the Holy Prophet, and agreed every whit, in text as well as in arrangement, with the Holy Qur-án as preserved in the memories of the companions; the copies circulated by 'Uṣman were true and faithful copies of Abu Bakr's collection, and these copies have admittedly remained unaltered through the thirteen hundred years that have since elapsed.

5. Differences of readings.

Alleged differences of readings are said to interfere with the purity of the Quranic text in two ways. It is alleged that certain readings which had been permitted by the Holy Prophet were suppressed by 'Uṣman, and thus with their loss a portion of the original text was lost. This is one objection, and the other is that the variety of readings existing at the present time makes it difficult to decide with any degree of certainty as to which is the original or the authentic reading. These objections really arise out of a misconception of the significance of the word "readings" when used with regard to the Quranic text, and out of a confusion between the meanings of ḥarf and qir'at when used to denote "reading," and, accordingly, it is necessary to inquire first into the true nature of the "differences of readings."

In the first place it is important to bear in mind that the Arabic word used in the reports to denote reading is ḥarf. This word means "a dialect, an idiom, or a mode of expression, peculiar to certain of the Arabs," according to Lane's Lexicon, which is based on the best Arabic authorities. It is this meaning which the word conveys in the reports speaking of the variety of readings, as Lane himself adds: "So in the saying of Muhammad (TA), the Qur-án has been revealed according to seven dialects, of the dialects of the Arabs (A'Obeyd, Az, I As, Q): or this means, according to seven modes or manners (Mgh, Msh) of reading: whence (you say) such an one reads in the manner of reading of Ibn-i-Mas'ud." These quotations would show that the differences spoken of in certain reports were only those arising from the variations of dialects, which necessitated the reading or expressing of certain words in a different manner by various tribes.

Let us now turn to the reports and see how far this conclusion is supported by them. The following reports bear on this subject:—

(1) Bukharee reports from Ibn-i-'Abbas: "The Holy Prophet, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, said, 'Gabriel taught me to read the Qur-án according to one ḥarf only. I addressed him repeatedly, and asked him to read it in other dialects also, and this I continued to do until he read it to me in seven dialects.'" Muslim gives the same report in the same words through a different chain of narrators, the original narrator being still Ibn-i-'Abbas, but the following words are added: "Ibn-i-Shahab said, 'It has been brought to my knowledge that seven ḥarfs (dialects) are in a matter which remains the same (that is to say, reading in any one of these dialects does not change the meaning), and they give rise to no difference as to what is lawful and what is forbidden.'"

(2) Bukharee reports from Ibn-i-Mas'ud: "I heard a man recite the Qur-án, and I had heard the Holy Prophet, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, read it differently. So I brought him to the Holy Prophet, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him. When I informed him of what had happened, I perceived displeasure in his countenance, and he said, 'Both of you read correctly; therefore do not differ, for surely there were those before you who differed and they perished.'"

(3) Bukharee and Muslim report from 'Umar bin Khattab: "I heard Hisham bin Hakim bin Hizam read the chapter entitled Furqan in a manner different from that in which I read it, and it was the Holy Prophet himself, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, who had taught me to read it thus. So I was about to stop him hastily, but I waited and let him read until he had finished. Then I threw my mantle round his neck, and brought him to the Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, and I said, 'O Messenger of God, I have heard this man recite the chapter entitled Al-furqān in a manner different from that in which you taught me to read it.' The Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, ordered me to release Hisham, and then ordered him to recite the chapter. He read in a manner in which I had heard him read it. The Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, said, 'Thus has it been revealed.' Then he ordered me to read it, and when I read it he said, 'Thus has it been revealed. Surely this Qur-ān has been revealed in seven dialects; therefore recite it in the manner in which you find it easy to do so.'"

(4) According to another report by Muslim, Ubayy bin Ka'b heard two persons read the Qur-ān in a manner different from that in which he had been taught to read it. On his bringing the matter to the notice of the Holy Prophet, the latter approved of their reading. This perplexed Ubayy, whom the Holy Prophet satisfied by the following explanation, of which Ubayy himself is the reporter: "O Ubayy, the Holy Qur-ān was revealed to me to be read in one dialect only. I asked for permission to read it in other dialects, so that it might be easy for my people to recite it. Thereupon I was permitted to read it in two dialects; and again I asked for permission for more, so that it might be easy for my people, and I was permitted to read it in seven dialects."

(5) Muslim reports from Ubayy bin Ka'b to the following effect: "The Prophet of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, was near the place known as the 'pool of the Bani-Ghafār' when Gabriel came to him and said, 'Surely God commands you to make your people read the Qur-ān in one dialect only.' The Holy Prophet replied, 'I crave the pardon of God and His forgiveness, for my people cannot bear this.'" We are then told that the Holy Prophet continued to ask for permission to read the Qur-ān in other dialects until he was permitted to read it in seven dialects.

(6) Abu Daood makes Jābir narrate the following words: "The Holy Prophet came to us, and we were reading the Qur-ān, among us being Arabians as well as foreigners, and he said, 'Keep on reading, for every one's reading is good. And there will come crowds of men who will read the Qur-ān straight on (that is to say, with good voices), like as an arrow is made straight, and they will hasten their reward in this life and will not look for it in the next.'"

(7) Tirmazi reports the following from Ubayy bin Ka'b: "The Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, was visited by Gabriel, and he said to him, 'O Gabriel, surely I have been sent to a people who are without learning; among them is the old woman and the old man, and the boy and the girl, and the man who has never read a book.' Gabriel said, 'O Muhammad, surely the Qur-ān has been revealed in seven dialects.'"

These are the only important reports dealing with the subject of various readings as permitted by the Holy Prophet. The one conclusion upon which they all agree is that the alleged differences were not differences of text, but differences in the manner of reading or pronouncing certain words. To make this point clearer, I would discuss the several points mentioned in them at some length. The first question is, can the time to which these reports relate be fixed with any degree of certainty? In other words, was the permission to read the Qur-ān in seven dialects granted contemporaneously with the commencement of the revelation or at a later time, and in the latter case, what was the probable date? This circumstance will serve to throw much light on the question of the nature of the differences, as I will show later on. It will also settle the question of the text. One inference as to time can be drawn from the fifth report given above, which tells us that at the time when the permission was granted the Holy Prophet was near the place known as the "pool of the Bani-Ghafâr." This place, as is well known, is situated at Medina, and consequently one thing of which we are certain as regards the time of the permission is that it was after the flight of the Holy Prophet to Medina. No variety of readings was therefore permitted at least during the first thirteen years at Mecca, when Islam was properly limited to the Meccans. There is another point, however, which shows that the permission to read in different dialects was not granted until after the conquest of Mecca; that is to say, about the ninth year of Hejira. In one of the reports given by Bukharee, Hisham bin Hakim bin Hizam is mentioned as the person who surprised 'Umar by reading the Qur-ân in a manner or dialect different from that in which 'Umar read it. Now, Hisham did not become a convert to Islam until after the conquest of Mecca, which event took place in the eighth year of Hejira, or nearly two years before the death of the Holy Prophet. The inference which can be drawn from this circumstance is that the permission as to reading in various dialects was granted about this time, for if it had been granted before, a man like 'Umar could not have remained ignorant of it. 'Umar was the man who had made arrangements with another companion to remain alternately in the company of the Holy Prophet in order to be kept informed of every new revelation and every new circumstance, and with the close relation which he had with the Holy Prophet, it is inconsistent that he should have remained ignorant of the permission to read the Qur-ân in dialects other than the pure idiom of the Quraish for any very long time—say several months, or at most a year. Not one of the reports, moreover, names any of the earlier converts as having read the Qur-ân in a dialect different from the pure idiom of the Quraish in which it was revealed originally.

Considerations such as the above show that the permission to read the Qur-ân in other dialects was granted when many of the Arabian tribes had embraced Islam, i.e. towards the close of the Holy Prophet's ministry. And it is a fact that more than nine-tenths of the Qur-ân had been revealed before the conquest of Mecca, and the whole of that was revealed in the language of the Quraish. This also shows that the permission was meant originally for such other tribes, and this point settles conclusively that the text of the Holy Qur-ân was that in which it was revealed originally. The differences of the readings were only such as were naturally necessitated by the influx into Islam of unlearned tribes, who spoke an idiom which was Arabic to all practical purposes, but which in the pronunciation of certain words differed slightly from the pure idiom of the Quraish. Examples of these differences have already been given. The Quraish say hattâ (meaning until), while the Huzail pronounce the same word as 'attâ, there being no difference in the significance of the two words. (See Lane's Lexicon, which explains 'attâ as being "a dial. var. of hattâ of the dial. of Hudheyl and Thakeef.") Other variations of the same kind are ti'lamin instead of ta'lamin, as the tribe of Asad read it; yâsin instead of âsin in 47:15; the reading of hamzah (one of the letters of the alphabet) by the Tamim, where the Quraish did not read it; and so on.

In support of the above are certain anecdotes left by early authorities. Thus Abu Shâma reported from one of the earlier authorities (vide Fat-hul-Bârt, vol. ix. p. 24) that "the Holy Qur-ân was first revealed in the language of the Quraish and such of the Arabs as were in their neighbourhood and spoke the chaste Arabic idiom; then it was permitted to the other Arab tribes to read it in their own idioms, to the use of which they were habituated from their childhood, and they differed (from the pure idiom) in the pronunciation of certain words and the vowel-points. Therefore none of them was compelled to leave his own idiom for that of another, because of the difficulty which they would have experienced in doing so, and because of their great regard for their own idioms, so that they might easily understand the significance of what they read. All this was subject to the condition that there should be no change in the significance."

Most of the reports given above point out the reason for which the permission was granted, and in each case we find the reason to be in accordance with the view of the differences as advanced above. For instance, according to one of the reports the Holy Prophet asked the angel to "make it easy" for his people, showing that they experienced a difficulty in reading it otherwise. According to another, he is made to say that his people "could not bear it"—in other words, all the Arab tribes could not read in one dialect; according to a third, he pleads for his people, saying that they were unlearned, and among them were the old woman and the old man, and the boy and the girl, and the man who had never learned to read a book. Of course, if they had been educated, they could have easily spoken the literary and chaste idiom of the Quraish, but as most of them were unlearned, it was very hard for them to utter every word in the manner of the Quraish. Hence they were permitted to read certain words according to their own dialects. We have also one report ending with the words: therefore read it in the manner in which you find it easy to do so, which shows that the permission to read the Qur-án in dialects other than that of the Quraish was meant to afford facility to certain people.

Another remarkable circumstance is that among the earlier converts to Islam no such differences can be shown to have existed, nor were there any differences of readings among such eminent and learned companions as, for instance, Abu Bakr and 'Umar or Abu Bakr and 'Ali. This leads us to the same conclusion as we have arrived at above, viz. that the different readings were not variations of texts, but only different modes of pronouncing the same word in various dialects. It was, as we have seen, an actual need. It was very hard for the uneducated Arab tribes, whose dialects slightly varied from the standard of the Quraish—whose idiom was regarded as the purest and most chaste of all Arabic idioms—to speak every word exactly as the Quraish spoke it. It was necessary for every person who embraced Islam to know and to be able to recite a certain portion of the Holy Qur-án, and they were allowed the facility, with Divine permission, to express a word according to their own idiom when they found it hard to express or utter it in accordance with the chaste idiom of the Quraish.

To what extent the various dialects in which the recital of the Qur-án was permitted differed from each other is not a question of much importance, but there seems to be no doubt, as many instances preserved in reports show, that the variations were very slight and generally very unimportant. But while holding this on the basis of historical evidence, so far as access can be had to it, we have no reason for denying that in certain cases a word of one dialect may have been allowed to be expressed by its equivalent in another dialect, where the latter dialect did not possess the original word. This is what is meant when it is said in certain reports that the expression of meaning by a synonymous word was allowed in certain cases. Such a case is exemplified in one report by the use of any of the words ta'dil, halumma, and aqbil, all meaning "come." This is not an actual case of variation of reading in the Holy Qur-án according to different dialects, but the example is only given to show the nature of the variation in such cases. This example shows that it was only in cases where the idea expressed by a word was so plain as not to be mistaken by a man of even ordinary understanding that the use of one word for an equivalent one of a different dialect was permitted. Other variations of reading in these dialects were of a much more insignificant nature, and related to certain changes in vowel-points. Thus the meaning was in no case altered. There were differences in the utterance of certain words, but there was no difference at all in the significance conveyed. This is attested by the report which tells us that by reading the Qur-án in any one of the seven dialects no difference was caused as to the things allowed and the things prohibited.

It has been objected that, if the differences had been so slight as to have naturally arisen in the utterance of certain words by an illiterate people speaking different dialects, the companions would not have dealt so harshly with each other. 'Umar was about to stop Hisham in his prayers, as the report tells us, and at last brought him before the Holy Prophet with his mantle thrown round his neck, as if he had been guilty of some great offence. Such an incident, it is alleged, could not have taken place unless Hisham were reading a text totally differing from the text as known to 'Umar. This is, of course, a mere conjecture. We have produced above the strongest historical evidence showing that the differences of readings among the companions of the Holy Prophet arose only from the variations of dialects. But the companions were so scrupulous about every word and every letter of the Divine revelation, that the slightest change in any word or letter of the Holy Qur-án was to them the greatest of sins. This is a fact which every right-minded critic must bear witness to. Hence it was that 'Umar was so impatient when he heard Hisham reading.

Another objection against the variety of readings being only dialectic is that Hisham and 'Umar both belonged to the tribe of the Quraish, and that hence the dialect of Hisham could not have been different from that of 'Umar, whereas the report shows that there was a difference between them. To understand this point, it must be borne in mind that once the necessity of dialectic variation was recognized and permission was granted, that permission could not be limited to a particular tribe. The Holy Qur-án was taught by the companions to each other, and hence to a certain extent the peculiarities of one dialect or tribe found their way into another. Moreover, it was not necessary that, if one tribe was unable to utter a certain word according to the dialect of another tribe, the latter should also be unable to utter the equivalent word of the former. To give an example, the tribe of Huzail said 'attā for hattā (meaning until), the latter pronunciation being that of the Quraish, but the Quraish could pronounce it in both ways, and they had no version to either form of the word. Though they ordinarily said hattā, they could also pronounce the word as 'attā, as the case of Ibn-i-Mas'ud shows, who read 'attā hīn instead of hattā hīn. The Quraish, in fact, seem to have had the aptitude to speak freely in the dialects of the other Arabian tribes, the reason of this probably being that thousands of men from every corner of the country flocked every year to the Ka'ba, when, besides paying a visit to the Holy Temple, they had also literary assemblies and commercial transactions in which the Quraish took part. On account of their being guardians of the Ka'ba, the Quraish had to come into contact with every tribe, and this intercourse had become more permanent by the establishment of commercial relations. It had also facilitated for them the utterance of certain words according to the peculiar modes of other tribes.

Now, Hisham became a Muslim after the conquest of Mecca, and this was the time when many Arabian tribes were embracing Islam. It is therefore probable that Hisham learned the chapter Al-Furqân, which gave rise to the difference, from the Holy Prophet when the latter was teaching it to some other tribe, and thus certain dialectic variations found their way into Hisham's recital.

It must not be thought that every word of the Holy Qur-ân was pronounced in seven different ways. What is meant is only this, that the variations of reading permitted belonged to one or other of the seven dialects. These variations were very few, for had there been a greater number of them, authentic reports would no doubt have preserved them in large numbers. The confusing of these dialectic variations with the readings which are mentioned in certain commentaries is a blunder. The nature of these readings I will describe later on. But so far as the dialectic variations permitted by the Holy Prophet (the sab'at-i-ahruf of the reports) are concerned, there are wonderfully few traces of them in the reports, showing that they were actually very few. For if there had been a large number of them, there is no reason why reports should not have preserved a good many. 'Uṣman's action in not allowing the writing of these variations in copies of the Holy Qur-ân could not bring about their entire extinction, for the numerous sayings of the Holy Prophet were never written, yet the minutest details have come down to us in reliable reports. Indeed, as I have shown above, the regular intercourse of the Arab tribes with the Quraish, and their commercial relations, had left no difference of importance in their dialects, and the variations that existed were very few and unimportant. Hence the dialectic variations permitted in the readings of the Qur-ân were also very few. The seven dialects in which the readings were permitted were those which were considered as the most chaste by the Arabs, and some authorities have named them, while according to others the number seven is not meant to convey a definite numerical significance, but only to express that some dialectic variations were permitted.

The above considerations clearly show that the variations at no time formed a part of the text of the Holy Qur-ân, nor were they ever meant for permanent retention. The necessity which had given rise to them was of a purely local and temporary nature. Almost the whole of the Qur-ân had been revealed before the time that these variations were permitted. The more we ponder over them, the more are we convinced that these variations were only allowed for the facility of certain tribes, and they did not in any way alter the text of the Holy Qur-ân as it was originally revealed. The Holy Prophet himself never recited in his public prayers any portion of the Holy Qur-ân in any dialect other than that of the Quraish, for if he had done so, men like 'Umar and Ubayy, who said their five daily prayers with the Holy Prophet, would not have found fault with dialectic variations, as they are reported to have done. The practice of the Holy Prophet, therefore, shows that the permission to use certain dialectic variations did not alter the original text of the Holy Qur-ân in the slightest degree. This was the text which the Holy Prophet used in his public recitals and public prayers. Another evidence that the Holy Prophet intended only the dialect of the Quraish to be retained for permanent use, and permitted the variations only for a temporary need, is to be met with in the circumstance that the writing of the Qur-ân, even after the permission as to dialectic variations, suffered no change. The ~~text~~ as it was written was still the same, i.e. in conformity with the dialect of the Quraish. These two points, viz. the writing of the Qur-ân and the Holy Prophet's own recital, conclusively show that the dialectic variations permitted towards the close of the Holy Prophet's ministry did not in any way affect the original text. Perhaps one of the reasons why Zaid was ordered by Abu Bakr and 'Umar to collect the Qur-án from the original writings made in the presence of the Holy Prophet, and not to trust to memory alone, was that they knew that the originals were all free from dialectic variations, and therefore, to avoid them and secure the pure text, the safest course was to search those writings and copy them.

We are now in a position to consider the first of the objections stated in the beginning of this article. I have shown the true nature of the variations which were permitted by the Holy Prophet himself. I have also shown that these variations were meant to answer only a temporary need, and that the Holy Prophet did not order them to be written, nor did he ever use them when leading the public prayers. Nor do we find any trace of any scribe having ever been directed by the Holy Prophet to note any of the variations. And in spite of the permission to use in oral recitation of the Holy Qur-án certain dialectic variations, the Qur-án was generally spoken of as having been revealed in the dialect of the Quraish only. We find 'Umar writing during his Caliphate to Ibn-i-Mas'ud, who then taught at Kufa, not to teach the Qur-án according to the dialect of the Huzail, for it was revealed in the dialect of the Quraish. This order was given by 'Umar on hearing that Ibn-i-Mas'ud taught the people to read 'atta', a dialectic variation, as used by the Huzail, of the word hattá. Again, when 'Usman ordered copies to be made from the collection of Zaid, he gave the express direction that when there was any difference as to the mode of writing a word, it should be written according to the dialect of the Quraish, for the Qur-án was revealed in that dialect. Thus it appears that neither the Holy Prophet himself nor his eminent companions ever gave any importance to the dialectic variations, nor did they ever consider them to have the effect of altering the text of the Holy Qur-án. Just as before the permission, so after it, the text was regarded as one which remained unaltered during the whole ministry of the Holy Prophet and has remained pure and unaffected to this day.

From the above it becomes clear that 'Usman did not suppress any part of the text of the Holy Qur-án by disallowing the writing of the dialectic variations, for these were never a part of it. Whatever may be said of 'Usman's action, it cannot be claimed that he suppressed a part of the text of the Holy Qur-án by disallowing certain dialectical variations. The text of the Holy Qur-án could not suffer anything by losing that which never formed a part of it. 'Usman only followed the example of the Holy Prophet and his two predecessors in the Caliphate. The Holy Prophet never ordered the variations to be written, nor did he ever use them in his public prayers. In the time of Abu Bakr, when the necessity of having a complete copy of the Qur-án was felt, that Caliph gave orders for the search of original writings, so that no variation should find its way into the authentic copy. Coming to 'Umar, we find him writing to Ibn-i-Mas'ud not to teach the people the dialectic variations of the Huzail. 'Usman, therefore, only followed in the footsteps of his eminent and worthy predecessors. The circumstances which obliged him to take this step have been narrated elsewhere. Islam had spread far and wide beyond Arabia, and people whose mother-tongue was not Arabic were embracing Islam in large numbers. To teach the Qur-án to these people was a task different from teaching it to the Arabian tribes. The latter, when they embraced Islam, had special facilities for learning the Qur-án, for it was in their language. But they had their special difficulties. They were accustomed to a particular idiom and particular way of pronouncing certain words from their childhood, and it was very difficult for them to dispense with their own idioms. The people of other countries had, however, to learn Arabic before learning the Holy Qur-án, and hence it was as easy for them to read the original text as the dialectic variations. It was, however, brought to the knowledge of 'Uṣman that some people were teaching these dialectic variations to the new converts, and as these new converts could not easily understand the true nature and significance of such variations, differences and quarrels were the result. 'Uṣman's object was to put a stop to such quarrels. It was for this reason that he ordered copies of the Qur-án to be made from the collection of Zaid, as made in the time of Abu Bakr, and all other copies to be destroyed. He knew that the collection made in the time of Abu Bakr was made with the utmost care, and the original writings made in the presence of the Holy Prophet had all been gathered together after diligent search, and that, therefore, that was the only copy which contained the pure and original text of the Holy Qur-án. Individuals teaching in distant centres were not so careful, and had probably put into writing in their private copies certain dialectic variations which they were permitted to recite orally in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet. Hence it was to secure the purity of the text of the Holy Qur-án that other copies were ordered by 'Uṣman to be destroyed. It was a most judicious and most necessary step. At all events, Uṣman only prevented the writing of the dialectic variations, and we know for a fact that even the Holy Prophet did not order their writing. 'Uṣman's action was, therefore, entirely in accordance with the wishes of the Holy Prophet. By the suppression of the writings containing dialectic variations the text of the Holy Qur-án did not lose anything, but had its purity firmly established.

We may now consider the second objection referred to in the beginning of this article. It is alleged that the existence of certain readings which are to be met with in certain reports and commentaries makes it uncertain which is the original and the revealed text, and that thus the purity of the text of the Holy Qur-án is destroyed. Now, whatever may be the nature of the readings referred to above, the one consideration which settles the absolute purity of the text of the Holy Qur-án, as in our copies of the Holy Book, is that no different text is met with in any copy of the Holy Qur-án anywhere in the world. During all the ages and in all the countries, with all the differences, there has been only one text. Not a single one of the alleged various readings has ever replaced any word of the current text anywhere in the Muslim world. There are Muslims in countries situated farthest off from each other, there are Muslims who have been separated from each other for long ages, there are Muslim sects bearing the utmost enmity towards each other, yet they have always followed the same text of the Holy Qur-án, and not a single copy can be produced with a varying text. Yet if temporal authority could not or did not interfere with the recital of these readings, there is no reason to believe that it could or did interfere with their writing in the text. In fact, temporal authority could not have access to what millions of men possessed and had in their hearts. Therefore, if the men to whom those readings are attributed had given them the same value as the critics now give, they would certainly have introduced them into their private copies and replaced the text by those readings, and to-day we should have had many such copies in circulation in the Muslim world. But, strangely enough, there does not exist a single copy varying from the received edition in the slightest degree. The text is in all cases the same, and thus the variety of readings in no way detracts from the value of the purity of the Quranic text.

Let us now consider the nature of the readings. It should be borne in mind that the readings of which traces are met with in certain reports and commentaries are not identical with the dialectic variations permitted by the Holy Prophet, though they may contain some of the latter. It is a great error to confuse the two. But this error has been committed by some, owing to the confusion arising from the circumstance that the various readings were considered to be seven, which number corresponded with the seven dialectic variations. Now, the various readings may be dealt with under the following heads. Firstly, there are the dialectic variations. 'Usman could not stop their recitation. Though, therefore, these variations ceased to affect a wider circle, they could not at once come to an end. Some of these must have been preserved in reports by the admirers of those who used them, and by others for the sake of curiosity. With a few exceptions, it is difficult to say now which of the existing readings belong to this class. It has been pointed out by some that those readings which do not agree with the writing of the Qur-án belong, if authentic, to this class, but this is a mere conjecture. Indeed, it does not concern us to know which readings may be brought under this head, for, as we have seen, they have never been considered parts of the text of the Qur-án. Secondly, there are differences in the number of wāws (meaning "and"), and some other such unimportant differences in the number of one or two other letters, not affecting the meaning in the slightest degree. Thirdly, apart from the necessity of dialectic variations there may have been some revelations in which an optional reading, differing from the text which has been safely preserved to us, may have been permitted. Readings belonging to this class can be accepted only on the highest authority, and the trustworthiness of the report must be clearly established. There can be no objection to the existence of such readings, but neither is it necessary for a reader of the Qur-án to know them, for the text is complete even without them. Such readings, if traced with certainty to the Holy Prophet, are considered to have the value of an authentic report in explaining the meaning of the text. Fourthly, a number of readings have been introduced by misapprehension of an expository word or phrase as part of the text of the Holy Qur-án. Some companion might have explained a word when reading the Qur-án by some other word or phrase, or he might have noted it on the margin of his copy of the Holy Qur-án, which some hearer of his words or reader of his copy mistook for an alternative reading. The copies of the Qur-án we possess are free from all such readings, as has been shown above, for the greatest care was taken by Abu Bakr and Usman in the collection and copying of the Holy Volume, and with them were associated all the other companions. Fifthly, there are said to be certain readings introduced after 'Usman had sent the official copies in various directions. The original writings are said to have been without dots and without vowel-points, and this is stated to be the reason of certain differences in readings having arisen in different centres. It is further asserted that these different readings were actually followed in reciting the Qur-án by reciters in different centres, each one thinking his reading to be the only true reading. There are two very strong objections to this theory which do not permit us to believe in its truth. In the first place, if the Qur-án was publicly recited in different ways in the different centres, and at each centre a peculiar reading was considered to be the only correct reading, and as such actually the true text of the Holy Qur-án, why were not these readings made to supplant at that centre the text of the Qur-án as we now have it? Why were not these readings introduced into the copies of the Qur-án? Is it not strange that the copies of the Qur-án made and circulated at a particular centre continued to follow the original text, while that text was not followed in reciting or teaching or learning the Qur-án? What use did the writing serve in such a case, and why did not those very men make their copies of the Qur-án tally with their recital? Certainly they had nothing to fear from the authorities, for the authorities, according to the supposition, did not interfere with their public recital of the Qur-án and their publicly teaching it in a different manner. Hence there was no reason why persons who believed a certain reading to be the true reading, and followed the same in their prayers or in teaching the Qur-án to others, should not introduce such reading into their copies of the Qur-án. But as no copy of the Qur-án with a text differing from ours is ever known to have existed, we may be sure that no such readings were ever publicly promulgated.

The second objection to the above theory is that if at different centres different readings of the Qur-án had been followed and taught, these differences, at least in oral recitation, would have become permanent, and we should have had to-day a different version followed, not only in every different country, but also in every important city of even a single country; and thus we should have had to-day no two persons belonging to two different countries or towns agreeing in the same reading. But do we find this to be the case as a matter of fact? Not at all. On the contrary, take any two Muslims from the most distant places who can recite the Qur-án and they will be found to be following one and the same text, the text that we have in our copies. Hence we cannot believe that at some earlier time different readings were followed by different reciters in different centres. If such differences had existed, their scope would have widened day by day, and they could not have vanished all of a sudden. But their utter absence to-day shows that different readings of this class never existed, or, if they existed, they were never considered, even by those who favoured them, to be part of the Divine revelation to supersede the text, but only as possible alternatives by adopting which the meaning was not changed.

It should also be borne in mind that writing was not the only means of preserving the text, and therefore the possible want of dots and vowel-points in the copies of 'Uṣman would not have left the text undecided. Memory was another safe repository in which the text of the Holy Qur-án was preserved with the utmost care, and when recited from memory no uncertainty or doubt of any kind was left. Therefore, side by side with writing, memory also guarded the text, and the combined evidence of the two could not leave the least doubt. There were even in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet many reciters of the Qur-án, that is to say, men who could repeat the whole of the Qur-án from memory, and their number fast increased with the spread and progress of Islam. At every centre of learning there were hundreds of these reciters, and thus there was ample means to decide any moot point concerning the text if a doubt ever arose.

It should also be noted that the number of readings alleged to have been reported by earlier authorities was very small, and the great mass of readings, like the great mass of reports, developed later. This is a very significant circumstance, as it shows that the number of authentic readings must be insignificantly small. The number of companions and ṭabī'in (immediate followers of the companions) who are mentioned to have reported readings is very small, but after them came a generation who made recitation their profession and multiplied the number of readings. Therefore it is only on the highest and most trustworthy authority that any reading can be accepted, and it would then have to be seen to which class that reading belongs. The mere circumstance that a reading can be traced with certainty to an earlier authority or even a companion does not show that it is actually an alternative Divine revelation. But the one point which is certain, and which is the only point which requires practical settlement, is that, whatever the nature of a reading, the purity of the text of the Holy Qur-án remains unassailed.

As regards the readings of the last class, I think that they may have been put forward as possible alternatives which did not substantially affect the meaning of the text. This appears to be the only reasonable conclusion when all the circumstances are considered, and especially when it is borne in mind that these readings never supplanted the text which was always followed when the Holy Qur-án was recited on any important occasion, as, for instance, in public prayers, or when, by transcribing copies, permanence was meant to be given to it.

The above discussion conclusively settles the true significance of the word "readings" when applied to the Holy Qur-án and the true nature of such readings. The term "reading" does not carry its general application. The existence of a reading generally makes the text uncertain, but not so in the case of the Holy Qur-án. In fact, the term "reading," in this case, has a significance totally different from that which it conveys when applied to other codices, as, for instance, to the codices of the Jewish or the Christian scriptures. The copies of the Qur-án throughout the world are free from all differences, errors, imperfections, interpolations, or corruption, and they have ever remained free from all these defects during the thirteen centuries that have elapsed since the first promulgation of Islam.

6. Allegations against the purity of the Quranic text.

"Though the testimony produced under the previous headings of this important subject is sufficient to convince an intelligent reader of the absolute purity of the text of the Holy Qur-án, and quite conclusive as to the fact that the Holy Book has been handed down to us without any addition, alteration, or loss, yet it seems necessary for a comprehensive discussion of the subject to deal separately and at some length with the few objections which are met with in Christian writings on the Muslim religion. These objections may be briefly summed up as follows:—

(1) The existence of some passages in a fragmentary form leads to the logical conclusion that these passages must have been complete originally, and that some portions must have been lost in the transmission of the Holy Book.

(2) The suppression by 'Uṣman of some codices of the Qur-án in the possession of the companions must have resulted in the loss of some portions of the Qur-án.

(3) Certain passages might not have been intended by the Holy Prophet for permanent insertion in the Holy Qur-án, or might have been abrogated, and Zaid, on account of his ignorance of the circumstances, might have retained them in the Holy Book.

(4) The existence of some reports showing that certain passages were recited in the time of the Holy Prophet, combined with the circumstance that those passages are not now met with in the Qur-án, is a proof that the Qur-án has not been handed down to us complete.

(5) The existence of a Muslim sect (the Shias) holding the belief that the Qur-án is not complete leads to the same conclusion.

This is a brief summary of all the objections I have been able to gather from different writings by Christian critics of the Qur-án. Taking these objections in the order given above, I shall first consider the position of the critics who, like the author of the article on "Muhammadanism" in the Encyclopædia Britannica, assert that 'Uṣman's copies of the Holy Qur-án were not complete because "some passages are evidently fragmentary." An intelligent reader will easily see that such a poor contention against the strong historical testimony in support of the absolute purity of the text of the Holy Qur-án must be rejected as absurd. It is an erroneous conclusion, and utterly illogical, that because a certain passage appears to a certain reader to be incomplete and fragmentary, therefore some portion must have been lost, and the speaker must have uttered it in another form. To apply such a test to historical facts is dangerous logic. When there is the strongest historical evidence that among the companions of the Holy Prophet there were many men and women who had committed the whole of the Qur-ân to memory, and that most of them were still alive when a complete copy was prepared by Zaid from a collection of the transcripts made in the presence of the Holy Prophet, it is a mere delusion to think that some portions might have been overlooked by him. The report which describes the work of collection tells us that he not only sought out all the manuscripts, but that he also called in the assistance of the memory of the reciters. And what is the alleged fragmentariness of certain passages but a form of rhetoric, the beauty and force of which cannot be realized by critics unacquainted with Arabic idiom? The so-called fragmentary passages are really expressions of exquisite beauty, and it is only a superficial knowledge of Arabic idiom that makes the European critics think that some portion has been lost.

As if to support the assertion that the fragmentariness of certain passages is evidence of something having been lost, the writer in the Encyclopædia Britannica, whose objection I have quoted above, adds, probably thinking it to be corroborative testimony, that "a few detached pieces are still extant which were originally parts of the Qur-ân, although they have been omitted by Zaid." Now, this properly relates to the fourth objection, where the nature of such "detached pieces" and the trustworthiness of the reports containing them will be fully inquired into. But the critic would no doubt have given some weight to his assertion if he had shown that any of the "detached pieces" which are met with in certain reports so fit in with any of the alleged fragmentary passages that the whole may become a complete sentence. Proceeding upon the supposition that reliable reports have preserved some of the lost passages, the question is, do the passages so preserved answer to the allegations made in the first and the fifth objections? In other words, can they be regarded as parts of some fragmentary passages in the Holy Qur-ân, or do they favour the higher pretensions advanced for 'Ali, the immediate successor of 'Usman? The answer to both these questions must be given in the negative. What according to the critics was lost, therefore, is nowhere to be found, and what is preserved in some of the reports was never lost.

Take the second objection now. 'Usman gave orders for the destruction of all copies of the Qur-ân current in his time with the exception of the original collection made in the time of Abu Bakr, from which his own copies were made. Of the copies destroyed, or ordered to be destroyed, the greatest importance is attached to two, that of Ubayy and that of Ibn-i-Mas'ud. Regarding the nature of the differences between these copies and the official copies of 'Usman, I would take, as representing sane hostile criticism at its best, the opinion of the author of the article "Muhammadanism" in the Encyclopædia Britannica. Under the heading "other editions" he writes:—

"At the same time, the other forms of the Qur-ân did not at once become extinct. In particular we have some information about the codex of Ubayy. If the list which gives the order of its suras is correct, it must have contained substantially the same materials as our text; in that case, Ubayy must have used the original collection of Zaid. The same is true of the codex of Ibn-i-Mas'ud, of which we have also a catalogue. It appears that the principle of putting the larger suras before the shorter was more consistently carried out by him than by Zaid. He omits I, and the magic formulæ of CXIII, CXIV. Ubayy, on the other hand, had embodied two additional short prayers which we may regard as Muhammad's. One can easily understand that differences of opinion may have existed as to whether and how far formularies of this kind belonged to the Qur-án. Some of the divergent readings of both these texts have been preserved, as well as a considerable number of their ancient variants. Most of them are decidedly inferior to the received readings, but some are quite as good, and a few deserve preference."

To do justice to the author of this article, I may also quote the following paragraph in which grounds are given for believing 'Uṣman's text to be the only valid text. This paragraph immediately follows the one quoted above, and runs thus:—

• "The only man who appears to have seriously opposed the general introduction of 'Uṣman's text is Ibn-i-Mas'ud. He was one of the oldest disciples of the Prophet, and had often rendered him personal service; but he was a man of contracted views, although he is one of the pillars of Muslim theology. His opposition had no effect. Now, when we consider that at that time there were many Muslims who had heard the Qur-án from the mouth of the Prophet, that other measures of the imbecile 'Uṣman met with the most vehement resistance on the part of the bigoted champions of the faith, that these were still further incited against him by some of his ambitious old comrades until at last they murdered him, and, finally, that in the civil wars after his death the several parties were glad of any pretext of branding their opponents as infidels; when we consider all this, we must regard it as a strong testimony in favour of 'Uṣman's Qur-án that no party, not even that of 'Ali, found fault with his conduct in this matter, or repudiated the text formed by Zaid, who was one of the most devoted adherents of 'Uṣman and his family."

Two points deserve to be discussed in this connection. It is admitted that substantially the copies of Ibn-i-Mas'ud and Ubayy agreed with the copy of 'Uṣman in text as well as in arrangement of the verses and the chapters, so much so, indeed, that the writer of the article from which the above quotations are taken thinks that the collections of Ubayy and Ibn-i-Mas'ud must have been based on the original collection of Zaid, made in the time of Abu Bakr. But, as I have already shown, the text and arrangement were complete in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, and there were many companions who could recite the whole of the Qur-án by heart before the Holy Prophet died. It was this fact which made the collections of Ubayy and Ibn-i-Mas'ud substantially agree with the copies made by Zaid, because all drew their knowledge from the same source. The differences of these two copies from the copy of 'Uṣman were, according to the same writer, only on two points, viz.: firstly, Ubayy had in his copy two short prayers besides the known suras, and Ibn-i-Mas'ud omitted from his copy the last two chapters which are contained in our copies of the Qur-án, and also the opening chapter which is called the Fātiḥah: and secondly, both had a certain number of readings differing from the copy of 'Uṣman.

Accordingly, we have only to see whether Ubayy and Ibn-i-Mas'ud had their own copies, whether they differed from 'Uṣman's copies in the number of chapters and in the variety of readings, and if so, how far. We take Ubayy first. There is no reliable report showing that Ubayy had a copy of the Qur-án differing from the ordinary copies in circulation, or that it had two short formulæ of prayer added at the end as two more chapters of the Holy Qur-án. Vague reports to this effect are mentioned by Jalāl-ud-Dīn Sayutī in his Itqān, but Sayutī is unanimously looked upon as the last person on whom any reliance can be placed in the matter of the authenticity of reports. The following remarks of Shāh 'Abd al 'Azīz in his 'Ujālāh Najī'ah are an echo of the general opinion of all authorities on the trustworthiness of reports: "To the fourth class belong all those reports of which no trace at all is to be met with in the earlier generations, and which were reported only by people of a later time. With regard to these reports one of two things must have happened: either the earlier collectors, after inquiry into them, found them to be unauthentic or fabricated, and therefore they did not report them, or they did not think them to be fabricated, but found some of their narrators to be untrustworthy. Upon whatever supposition we may proceed, it follows that the reports of this class are not reliable. . . . The whole stock of reports on which Jalal-ud-Din Sayuti depends in his writings and pamphlets belongs to this class."

From the above, the reader will see how far the Itqān may be relied upon when there is nothing to support its conclusions in reliable collections. Nay, more than this, reliable reports, accredited by Bukharee and others, contradict the Itqān. There are some reports which clearly state that Ubayy was one of the men whom 'Uṣman had entrusted with the supervision of the work of transcription when he ordered the making of official copies from the original collection of Zaid. There are other reports which show that even in the time of Abu Bakr he assisted in the work of collection. Indeed, even the writer in the Encyclopædia arrives at the conclusion that Ubayy must have based his copy on the first collection of Zaid. But if we suppose, for the sake of argument, that Ubayy had a copy of the Qur-ān in which he wrote down two additional chapters containing short formulæ of prayer, even then it does not follow that these two prayers actually formed a part of the Qur-ān, and that the copies circulated by 'Uṣman are defective for omitting them. Among more than a hundred thousand companions of the Holy Prophet there was not a single person who supported Ubayy's views. Even Ibn-i-Mas'ud, with his strange opinions on some other questions, did not share Ubayy's views. Now, the Qur-ān was not the property of one or two individuals, so that any portion of it might have been known to Ubayy alone and thousands of other companions should never have heard of it. Every verse of the Holy Qur-ān was, when revealed, proclaimed widely and circulated among friends as well as foes. One person could make an error, but this could be immediately rectified by the testimony of hundreds of others. The one thing which placed the Qur-ān beyond the danger of the loss of any portion of it was that every verse obtained a wide publicity at the time of its revelation, and thus it had not one guardian or custodian, but hundreds of them. It is the collective testimony of the whole body of companions that settles the point. It is not a case of difference between 'Uṣman and Ubayy, so that a critic might think that the truth might have been with this person or that, but it is a case of the solitary view of one person opposed to the combined testimony of all the companions. In such a case and under such circumstances, when sufficient publicity was given to every verse revealed, it cannot be admitted that the two chapters were brought only to the knowledge of Ubayy while the other companions remained ignorant of them, and even opposed his views. All this, of course, is based on the supposition that the report mentioned in the Itqān is true in fact, which, as I have shown above, is really not the case.

We may, however, make this point clearer still by a reference to the words of the alleged additional chapters in Ubayy's codex. The Itqān tells us that they were only two short formulæ of prayer, the first running thus*: "O Allah! we beseech Thy help and ask Thy protection, and we laud Thee in the best manner, and we cast off and forsake him who disobeys Thee!" And the second thus: "O Allah! Thee do we serve and to Thee do we pray and make obeisance, and to Thee do we flee, and we are quick, and we hope for Thy mercy and we fear Thy chastisement, for surely Thy chastisement overtakes the unbelievers!"

The Muslim reader will at once see that this is the du'd-ul-qunūt (lit. the supplication of the standing), which is still repeated by many Muslims in their prayers, others substituting for it any of the other prayers taught by the Holy Prophet. I may mention only one form of an alternative prayer which is even more authentic than this. It runs thus: "O Allah! guide me among those whom Thou hast guided, and protect me among those whom Thou hast protected, and befriend me among those whom Thou hast befriended, and bless me in what Thou hast granted me, and save me from the evil of what Thou judgest, for Thou judgest and art not judged; surely he whom Thou befriendest is not disgraced: Blessed art Thou, our Lord! and High" (vide Mishkat, chapter Witr). It is easy to see that the first and the second prayers are both contained in reports of the Holy Prophet, and have nothing to do with the Holy Qur-ān. Early and later Muslims all used these formulæ in their nightly prayers called the witr, and the Holy Prophet taught them to do so. If there is any difference it is this, that the second form is met with in more reliable reports than the former. It was not, then, only that the companions of the Holy Prophet had never been taught these words as part of the Qur-ān, but they had been taught, and they knew, that they were not part of the Holy Qur-ān. The Holy Prophet himself recited this formula in his prayers, as did also his companions. They were recited not as part of the Qur-ān following the Fāṭḥah, or the opening chapter of the Qur-ān, but they were specially recited as prayer formulæ. Similarly, other prayer formulæ are recited in the prayers when standing or sitting or when prostrate, and these are not verses of the Qur-ān. If Ubayy actually wrote down the two formulæ in his copy of the Qur-ān, which we have very strong reasons to doubt, he made a mistake, probably thinking that their recital in prayers entitled them to a place in the Holy Qur-ān. But thousands of the other companions who had also heard the Holy Prophet reciting the same formulæ in his prayers, and who themselves also recited them, knew that they were not parts of the Divine revelation. Ubayy was clearly in error and he soon renounced it, for when 'Uṣman had the official copies made after consultation with all the companions, Ubayy, who was himself one of the supervisors, recognized their authority. It was the consensus of opinion of the companions which made Ubayy conscious of his error, if he was ever guilty of that error, and, having then seen that his view had neither authority nor reason on its side, he gave it up.

As regards the variation of certain readings, I have already discussed the question, and will now proceed to deal with the alleged rejection by Ibn-i-Mas'ud of the two concluding chapters, and, as some add, of the opening chapter also. On this point Bukharee has only this much, that somebody said to Ubayy that "Ibn-i-Mas'ud said so and so" with reference to the Mu'awwazātīn (the last two chapters). Ubayy's answer to this question is reported to have been to the following effect: "I asked the Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, and he said to me that they were so read out to him and so he read." Then he said: "So we say as the Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, said." The wording of this report is not quite clear, and, accordingly, the concluding words are understood by some to have been spoken by Ibn-i-Mas'ud, and by others they are taken to be the words of Ubayy. Both opinions have other reports to support them. In the former case, Ibn-i-Mas'ud accepted Ubayy's opinion, and in the latter Ubayy stated his own belief. But even supposing that Ibn-i-Mas'ud entertained a different opinion, he was alone in this case, and his opinion was not supported by a single other companion of the Holy Prophet. This is not only clear from their support of 'Uṣman, but we have it also on record that "not a single other companion followed Ibn-i-Mas'ud in this opinion" (see Fat-hul-Bari under the report quoted above). And, as we have seen, even Ubayy opposed Ibn-i-Mas'ud on this point. It is rather an interesting circumstance that the two men, who are said to have differed from the other companions on one or two points, did not agree among themselves: each objected to the opinion of the other on the point on which he differed. The result is, that if they differed at all, neither of them had his views supported by any other companion on the points in which he differed, and his solitary opinion stands condemned by the consensus of opinion of the whole body of the companions.

Against Ibn-i-Mas'ud's view there are other circumstances also. It is clear from many of the reports that the two chapters objected to by Ibn-i-Mas'ud were well known to the companions as part of the Divine revelation. There are reports which tell us that the Holy Prophet used to recite these two chapters in his prayers. Now, it is an established fact that he always followed the recital of the Fātiḥah with some other portion of the Qur-ān, and since these two chapters were so recited, it follows conclusively that they were regarded as part of the Qur-ān by the Holy Prophet. Ibn-i-Mas'ud based his opinion on certain grounds, but he was wrong. One report ascribes to him the words: "Surely the Holy Prophet, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, said that they [the two chapters] taught men how to seek refuge in the Lord." The reference in these words of Ibn-i-Mas'ud is to 16:98: "So when you recite the Qur-ān, seek refuge with Allah from the accursed devil," so that he thought that the two chapters were only meant to teach how to seek refuge in the Lord. But it does not follow from this commandment of the Holy Qur-ān that they were not part of the Qur-ān, and the mistake made by Ibn-i-Mas'ud thus becomes manifest. It has been suggested by Qazi Abu Bakr Baqalani, and Qazi 'Ayaḍ entertains the same view, that Ibn-i-Mas'ud did not deny their being part of the Qur-ān, but only objected to their being written in the same column because he had not, probably, heard the Holy Prophet ordering them to be written down. It may be further mentioned that some of the reports speaking of Ibn-i-Mas'ud's views with regard to these two chapters describe him as "blotting them out" from his copy, as if it were an afterthought on his part that these two chapters should not be written in the Qur-ān. Be that as it may, the conclusion is undeniable that Ibn-i-Mas'ud's view was not supported by a single other companion, and accordingly his opinion, standing thus condemned by the agreement of all the companions, is utterly devoid of weight, and must be rejected as erroneous. As regards his omission from his copy of the Qur-ān of the Fātiḥah, or the opening chapter, no reliable report bears testimony to it, and the only report which speaks of it belongs to the unreliable class. If the report be true, the error may have arisen from the circumstance that the Fātiḥah was looked upon as a kind of abridgment of the whole Qur-ān, and therefore Ibn-i-Mas'ud did not write it with the rest of the Qur-ān. In view of the great importance universally attached to the Fātiḥah, it is impossible to think that any Muslim should ever have entertained the idea that it did not form part of the Divine revelation.

The third objection is a mere conjecture. What the Holy Prophet intended, he pointed out to the scribes who wrote the Holy Qur-ān and to others of his companions who committed it to memory. Had the collection of the Qur-án been the work of Zaid alone, unaided by any other companion, there might have been room for such doubts as that he might have overlooked certain passages or embodied others in the Holy Book which were not meant for insertion. But as the concurrent testimony of numerous reports received through different channels shows, Zaid was assisted on each occasion in the task of the collection by the whole body of companions whose assistance was available. In such a case it was impossible, when many of those who knew the whole of the Qur-án by heart were still living, that anything which the Holy Prophet had taught to his followers as being part of the Qur-án should have been overlooked, or any words should have found their way by mistake into it which the Holy Prophet had not meant to be included in the Divine revelation. Such an error could have been made by one man, but it could have been easily rectified by the testimony of the reciters and by the manuscripts written in the presence of the Holy Prophet and the companions, who day and night heard the Holy Qur-án recited by the Holy Prophet and other reciters. No one would deny the possibility of error on the part of one or two individuals, but the fact is self-evident that there were ample means for the correction of all possible errors. Zaid, who did not depend upon writing alone, sought out the writings chapter by chapter where complete chapters had been revealed, and verse by verse where separate verses were revealed, and he had the testimony of the reciters—who had committed to memory the whole of the Qur-án during the lifetime of the Holy Prophet—to corroborate that which was supplied by the writings. To avoid mistakes, he did not rely upon one or two reciters; but in order to correct all possible errors, he sought the evidence of many reciters, comparing their recitals with the written word, for as a rule every verse of the Holy Qur-án was reduced to writing immediately after its revelation. These two mutually corroborative measures precluded all possibility of any error finding its way into the collection or of anything being overlooked. It was the double test which Zaid applied to every verse of the Qur-án that he referred to when he spoke of his collecting the Qur-án from writing and from memory.

I shall now proceed to consider the fourth objection, relating to the existence of reports which speak of certain passages being recited in the time of the Holy Prophet or the existence of the "detached pieces," as the writer in the Encyclopædia Britannica calls them. That there are some reports showing the existence of some such passages I admit, but they are neither authentic nor reliable, though I am bound to add that misconception with regard to the meaning of certain words has given rise to much misunderstanding as to the true significance of some of these reports. Before considering each of these reports separately, I shall make some general remarks which will, I hope, help the reader to a clear understanding of the subject. To establish the purity of the text of the Holy Qur-án we have to prove two points: firstly, that nothing has been added to the original text, and secondly, that nothing has been omitted. As regards the first of these points, no report, reliable or unreliable, authentic or fabricated, makes the assertion that anything contained in the Holy Qur-án was not part of the Divine revelation in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, except the solitary report which relates that Ibn-i-Mas'ud blotted out from his copy the last two chapters as contained in our copies of the Holy Qur-án. This I have already discussed, and have clearly shown that Ibn-i-Mas'ud was in error, and that the whole body of the companions opposed him on this point. Ibn-i-Mas'ud thought that these two chapters were meant only to be recited after any portion of the Holy Qur-án was recited, and that, therefore, they could not be embodied in the written copy of the Qur-án; as some men thought of Bismilladh, the opening formula of every chapter of the Qur-án, that it was only meant to begin with, and was not a part of every chapter. It was exactly in this way that Ibn-i-Mas'ud thought that the last two chapters should not be written along with the rest of the Divine revelation. But the opinion of a solitary person, especially when it is clearly seen to be based on a misconception of the real facts, can have no weight against the unanimous testimony of all the other companions, based as that testimony is on their sure and certain knowledge. But, besides this, there is no other report whatever showing that anything which forms a part of the Qur-án at present was not a part of it in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet. This circumstance is very valuable in considering the question whether any passage which is not to be found in our copies of the Holy Qur-án was at any time a part of it. Only by means of a profound investigation and searching inquiry could the Holy Qur-án be so collected that nothing might find its way into it which could not be considered a part of it; and as the collection in our hands has been admittedly successful in this respect, it follows that such an inquiry was made. But the same searching inquiry which successfully kept everything out of the Holy Qur-án which was not part of it, must reasonably be taken to have been successful in embodying in the Holy Book everything which was a part of it. Such an inquiry was possible on account of the presence of many of those who knew the whole of the Qur-án by heart, and whose collective testimony as to whether any passage was or was not a part of the Holy Qur-án was the most conclusive and certain proof that could be obtained. Had there been any carelessness, it was as probable that anything should have been lost as that something should have been added. But the absence of all proof as to addition indirectly leads to the conclusion that no passage was overlooked.

The next point on which I wish to lay special stress is the wrong method of drawing inferences from certain reports, a method which is generally followed by all European critics. It is not the collective evidence of reports on which conclusions are based in all cases, but sometimes, when there is a preconceived idea, or where there is a proneness to hostile criticism, a solitary report is made to yield a conclusion which contradicts the strongest historical testimony, however absurd on the face of it such a conclusion may be. There is a large element of historical unreliability in many of the reports, and it was only after great patience and diligent search that the more reliable and authentic reports were compiled by some of the collectors. The chief place among these is occupied by the Bukharee, and, accordingly, it is safest to resort to it where some reports give rise to conflicting evidence. The first rule, then, which should be followed in interpreting reports is to distinguish the reliable from the unreliable generally. Without this we can never be safe in drawing a conclusion from any report. The second rule which should be followed, in the case of conflicting testimony afforded by certain reports, more or less reliable, is to see on which side the weight of evidence lies. But the most important and the surest test of all is, what conclusion is supported by practice?

These tests I shall now apply to the different reports which are relevant to the question of the purity of the text of the Holy Qur-án. But before doing this, I will quote the reports on which the objections are based. They are as follows:—

(a) In the Sahih Muslim, Kitab-uz-Zakat, 'Abdul Aswad' reports the words of Abu Musa Ash'ari, who said: "Surely we used to recite a sūra which we likened in length and warning to the Bará'at, but I have forgotten it except this piece: 'If there were for the son of man two valleys of wealth, he would desire a third, and nothing can fill the belly [i.e. satisfy the desire] of the son of man except dust'; and we used to recite a sūra which we likened to one of the Musabbihāt [the shorter chapters at the end of the Holy Qur-án], but I have forgotten it, and now remember only this much: 'O you who believe! why do you say what you do not do; surely the testimony of this is written in your necks, and of this you will be questioned on the day of judgment.'"

(b) In the Sahih Muslim, Kitáb-ur-Riqā', the following is reported as having been related by 'Ayesha: "Surely in what was revealed of the Qur-án there was this injunction, that ten known acts of suckling are effective in the prohibition of marriage relations, but these were abrogated and replaced by five acts of suckling, and the Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, died, and this was among what was recited of the Qur-án."

(c) In the Sahih Muslim, Kitáb-ul-Hudūd, there is a report from 'Abdulla, son of 'Abbas, who quoted the words of 'Umar, son of Khattáb, spoken while he sat in the pulpit: "Surely God raised Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, with truth, and He revealed to him the Book, and there was among what was sent down upon him the verse relating to stoning [of the adulterer and the adulteress]; we read it, and guarded it, and understood it, and the Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, stoned [the offenders], and after him we also stone [them]. But I fear that when time lengthens with the people, a sayer will say, 'Surely we do not find stoning in the Book of God,' and thus they will go astray by forsaking an injunction which God has sent down; and surely stoning is truly in the Book of God a punishment for the person who commits adultery, whether man or woman, either after its having been proved by witnesses, or by the woman's conception or the confession of the accused."

(d) In the Itqán, vol. ii. p. 30, 'Ayesha is reported to have said that "there used to be recited two hundred verses in the chapter Al-Ahzāb in the time of the Holy Prophet, but when 'Usman wrote the copies of the Qur-án, we could not get more of it than what we have now."

(e) In the Itqán, vol. i. p. 81, there is a report from Málik saying that "when the first part of it [the chapter entitled Immunity] came down, the Bismillāh [or the opening formula] also came with it, from which it appears that it was like the Baqrah in its length. And in the copy of Ibn-i-Mas'ud there were 112 chapters, for he did not write the Mu'awwazāt [the last two chapters], and in the copy of Ubayy there were 116 chapters, for he wrote at the end two chapters, Haǧá and Khala'."

These are the five reports on the basis of which it is sought to establish that some verses, passages, or chapters which once formed part of the Holy Qur-án are not now contained in it. The first question is, Are there any reports which contradict the conclusion that is sought to be drawn from these? If there are, then the next point to be settled will be which set of reports is more reliable, on which side the weight of evidence lies, and which is the conclusion which early practice and established historical facts confirm. It is in the Itqán that the two last-mentioned reports are met with, and the Itqán is the work of Jalal-ud-Din Sayuti, the material for whose writings, as already shown, is entirely drawn from reports of the lowest value—reports of which no trace is to be met with among the earlier generations. Such reports cannot be depended upon even reliability is sufficient to condemn them. Thus there remain the three reports contained in the Sahih Muslim. In accordance with the first principle laid down above, let us now resort to the Bukhdree and see if it supports any of these three narratives of the Muslim, for it must be borne in mind that the Bukhdree is our best and highest authority on reports, and so the Muslim world has regarded the work ever since it became public. The Sahih Bukhdree, according to the unanimous verdict of all learned Muslims, not only surpassed in authority and reliability all the collections which were made before it, but even the later collections do not approach its trustworthiness. If, then, any report in the Muslim or any other collection contradicts the Bukhdree, we should without any hesitation reject such a report. In the present case, however, it is not the testimony of the Bukhdree alone which contradicts the three reports quoted above, but there is ample testimony in the Muslim itself and other collections which is against those reports.

Let us take these three reports separately and see how far they can be relied upon. The first mentions an address of Abu Musa Ash'ari to certain reciters of Basrah to the effect that he and the other companions of the Holy Prophet used to recite two sūras, but that with the exception of one passage of each of these sūras he had forgotten the whole. Both external and internal evidence supplied by the Muslim itself condemns the trustworthiness of this report. For external evidence we will consider first the chain of narrators on whose authority Muslim believed the report to be authentic. On referring to the chain of narrators we find Suwaid bin Sa'id to be the immediate informer of Muslim, and much depends on the circumstance as to how far he can be relied upon. The Mizān-ul-Itidāl by Zahabi is the best and the most reliable work which criticizes the narrators. Referring to this work, we find a long article on Suwaid bin Sa'id, in which a few of the collectors of reports express a good opinion about him, but the majority discredit him. It is, however, agreed upon by all that he attained to a very old age and became blind during his latter days, and in this condition he reported and taught reports which were not really his. Bukhdree rejected his evidence as absolutely untrustworthy, and so did most of the other collectors. From an anecdote related of him in the same work it also appears that he had a tendency towards Shi'ism, for we are told that when a person came to him with a book of the excellences of the companions, he placed 'Ali first and then Abu Bakr. Some have gone so far as to condemn him as a liar, but there is no doubt that with the exception of some two or three collectors, Muslim being one of them, all the others agree that reports narrated by him could not be accepted. Abu Daood judges him to be "worth nothing," while Ibn-i-Habban tells us that he was accused of being a zindeeq, or one who concealed unbelief and made an outward show of belief. Muslim's most important and immediate informer, therefore, possessing so unenviable a record for unreliability bordering on mendacity, it is hardly necessary to consider the question of the reliability of the other narrators of this report.

There is another kind of external evidence supplied by Muslim which also contradicts the testimony of the report under discussion. Immediately preceding this report there are recorded in the Muslim four other reports to the same effect, with this difference, that they describe the words here attributed to Abu Musa Ash'ari by the said Suwaid as being remnants of a forgotten chapter of the Qur-ān, not as portions of the Holy Qur-ān, but as words uttered by the Holy Prophet. According to the first of these, three men, Yahya bin Yahya, Sa'id bin Mansur, and Qutaiba bin Sa'id, informed Muslim, through a chain of narrators ending with Anas, that the Messenger of God, may peace and the blessings of God be upon him, said on one occasion (referring to man's love of riches) that "if there were two valleys of wealth for the son of man, he would still desire to possess a third, and nothing but dust can fill the belly of the son of man, and God certainly repents on him who repents." It will be seen that the words reported here to have been spoken by the Holy Prophet are exactly the same as are related to be a portion of a sūrah in the report of Suwaid. Of the three men who vouched the truth and authenticity of this report, two, viz. Sa'id bin Mansur and Yahya bin Yahya, are expressly mentioned in the critical work of Zahabi, the Mizān-ul-Itidāl, as being trustworthy, while of the third it is related that nothing is known about him. This report, therefore, stands on a far firmer basis than that under discussion. As against a single man who has been pronounced a zindeeq, liar, untrustworthy, by the almost unanimous testimony of the collectors, we have here the evidence, furnished by Muslim himself, of three men, two of whom at any rate are admitted to be trustworthy, that the passage in question did not form any part of the Qur-ān, but was only the word of the Holy Prophet himself. Three other reports are narrated by Muslim, each of which ascribes the utterance of these words to the Holy Prophet, and none asserts that they were portions of chapters of the Qur-ān which were quite forgotten. In one of these reports, to Ibn-i-'Abbas, the first narrator in this case, are ascribed the words that he was not aware "whether it was or was not a portion of the Qur-ān," but these words are immediately contradicted by a second narrator, who does not mention the name of Ibn-i-'Abbas in connection with their utterance.

If we turn to Muslim himself, we find that of all the five reports which he has narrated relating to the passage, "If there were two valleys of wealth for the son of man, he would desire a third," such being the heading of his chapter, he has given the least credit to the report related by Suwaid bin Sa'id, who makes the passage in question a remnant of a lost chapter. He begins his chapter with the report related by the three narrators quoted above, then follows it with three others, none of which makes the passage in question a portion of the Qur-ān, and then relates the report in dispute, which, by placing it last, he himself hints to be the least credible of all and the lowest in authority. This is not a mere conjecture, for Muslim himself tells us in the introduction to his collection that under each heading he gives the priority in relation to those reports which he considers to be the more reliable. His words, literally translated, run as follows: "We have set this rule before ourselves, that we should mention first those reports which are freer from defects than others, and which on account of the reliability and righteousness of their narrators are purer. . . . And we follow reports of this class with other reports, among whose narrators are men who cannot be relied upon to the same extent as narrators of the first class of reports, because they are not marked by the same degree of truthfulness and the same good memory." These words clearly show that Muslim considered the report under discussion to be the least reliable of all, and hence we should not have the least hesitation in condemning it as false.

I will now consider the internal evidence afforded by the report itself. In the first place, the style of the passage is remarkable. Any one who has any acquaintance with the Arabic language will see that it has no resemblance whatever to the style of the Holy Qur-ān, and this consideration is alone sufficient to show that the passage never formed a part of the Holy Qur-ān. Secondly, the words attributed to Abu Musa Ash'ari are a clear evidence of the falsity of the report. He is made to say, "We used to recite a sūra," indicating that he was not the only man who could recite the whole of that chapter by heart, but that there were others too. In fact, by "we" he means the companions of the Holy Prophet. The alleged chapter, therefore, must have been well known to the companions. Supposing it was possible that Abu Musa Ash'ari should forget the whole of it with the exception of a single passage, how was it that all the other companions also forgot it at the same time? None of the companions makes the slightest mention of such a chapter having ever formed a part of the Qur-ān; none, including Abu Musa Ash'ari, brought it to the notice of Zaid in the time of Abu Bakr, at the time when public announcement was made that any one who had received any portion of the Qur-ān from the Holy Prophet should bring such portion, or in the time of 'Uṣman, when a large number of companions were associated with Zaid to assist him in making copies of the Holy Qur-ān. No reciter of the Qur-ān ever pointed out that such an important chapter was missing from the Holy Book. Even the codices of Ibn-i-Mas'ūd and Ubayy, with their alleged differences, did not contain any trace of such a chapter. Not a single voice out of thousands of the companions was raised in support of Abu Musa, if he ever uttered these words. And, wonder of wonders, men who made long journeys for the sake of ordinary reports made no inquiry about these long chapters of the Qur-ān which Abu Musā had unfortunately forgotten. And how was it that Abu Musa himself, who had forgotten these chapters, did not care in the least for their recovery? In fact, the statements made in the report are too absurd to be believed by any sensible person for a single moment. Thus both external and internal evidence clearly show the report to be absolutely false, and not a tittle of evidence can be produced in support of its authenticity or truth. The mere fact that Muslim has recorded it in his collection is no evidence, for, as I have shown, even Muslim did not give it any credit.

A detailed critical examination of the remaining two reports would perhaps be tiresome, and from what has already been written on one, the reader can easily see how unreliable reports of this sort are. It will, therefore, be sufficient to consider briefly the internal evidence which the remaining two reports supply. According to one of these, 'Ayesha is reported to have said that there was a verse in the Holy Qur-ān plainly saying that ten known acts of suckling were effective in marriage prohibitions; that this injunction was abrogated by another, by which the number was reduced to five, and that this was recited in the Qur-ān at the death of the Holy Prophet. This report must have been wrongly attributed to 'Ayesha. The statement attributed to 'Ayesha in the report gives us to understand clearly that the verse was recited by others than herself. In fact, if there had been any such verse, it could not have remained unknown to the companions generally, for it contained an injunction of daily application. On the other hand, it would have been the best known of all verses. It contained an injunction as to marriage prohibition, and in a society in which the infants were generally suckled by others than their mothers, it was of the utmost importance that everybody should know which were the women with whom marriage was forbidden by reason of foster relationship. Hence the knowledge of the verse could not be limited to a single person. The collectors of reports have laid down a principle that when an event from the very circumstances of the case ought to be known by a large number of people who all disclaim a knowledge of it, this is clear evidence of its fabrication. This principle is a very reasonable one, and it will be easily seen that, judged by it, the report relating to acts of suckling and attributed to 'Ayesha is a clear fabrication. As we have seen, such a verse should have been one of the most well known of all verses. Up to the death of the Holy Prophet, 'Ayesha had heard it recited generally. Six months after this, her father, Abu Bakr, ordered the collection of the Holy Qur-án, and no such verse was brought to his notice or that of Zaid. 'Ayesha herself never told the collectors that any such verse existed. Even at the time when 'Usman made transcripts, 'Ayesha was still living, and no such verse was pointed out even then by her. How was it that she spoke of such a verse to 'Urwa years afterwards and had nothing to say of it to her own father when a collection of the Holy Qur-án was being made under his orders? How was it, again, that no one besides 'Ayesha knew anything of such a verse? As in the case of the report already discussed, there is further evidence in the report recorded by Muslim himself that no such verse was ever known to any of the companions of the Holy Prophet. 'Ayesha and other reporters are represented as giving expression to reports according to which the Holy Prophet was on different occasions asked as to whether one or two acts of suckling were effective in marriage prohibitions. Had there existed a verse plainly stating that ten or five acts of suckling had such an effect, the question would never have been asked. Nor can it be supposed that the verse was revealed on such questions being asked, for in such a case the report would have clearly stated that such and such a revelation was received by the Holy Prophet on the question being asked. Therefore all considerations point to the fabrication of the report we are discussing.

The third report that remains may now be disposed of in a few words. The conclusion which is drawn from the words of 'Umar is that a passage regarding the punishment of adulterers and adulteresses was known to 'Umar and the other companions to be a part of the Qur-án, but that it was not met with in the Qur-án. 'Umar is said to have also related that that passage was recited and kept in memory and understood, and that the Holy Prophet acted upon it and so did his successors after him. Now, it may be asked—'Umar himself being the man who had the greatest hand in the collection of the Qur-án, and the copy made being in his possession during his caliphate—what was it that led to the omission of the passage? With regard to the passage in question there can be only two propositions: (1) 'Umar and the other companions agreed that the passage was a part of the Qur-án; (2) 'Umar held the opinion that it was a part of the Qur-án, but the other companions rejected his view. Now, if they all agreed that the passage was a part of the Qur-án, who withheld them from placing it in the Holy Book? The first proposition is, therefore, evidently absurd. As regards the second proposition, there is no evidence at all that 'Umar's statement was contradicted by any of the companions. But if it were actually contradicted, 'Umar must himself have been convinced of his error by not finding any support from any of the other companions. Thus either the report must be rejected as having been wrongly attributed to 'Umar or it should be taken that there was a misconception on the part of 'Umar. Possibly there can be a third explanation, that the words "Book of God" as used in the report do not indicate the Qur-án, but simply an ordinance of God, as in the Holy Qur-án, 4 : 24, where Kitab-Allah-i 'alaikum means Allah's ordinance to you.

It will be seen from the above that no reliability can be attached to all these reports. But it will be asked, How was it that fabricated reports derogatory to Islam found a currency among the Muslims and were embodied in their collections by some well-known collectors? It should be borne in mind that the fabrication was effected at a later period by the zindeeqs. In the case of one of these reports, the character of whose first reporter has been laid bare, we have seen that he was accused of being a zindeeq. Yet Muslim accepted his authority, though he did not attach much weight to it. One reason of this, probably, was that at the time when Muslim wrote his hidden feelings had not been seen into. It was in this way that some false reports derogatory to the dignity of Islam found currency and gained credit. But in most cases critical inquiry regarding the narrators of reports has successfully sifted the unreliable from the reliable reports. And, even if external evidence did not exist, a critical study of such reports is in itself sufficient. And lastly, when differing statements clash with one another, we have to see on which side the weight of evidence lies. For instance, take the report traced back to Abu Musa Ash'ari. Even if Muslim himself had not discredited it, even if Suwaid were not known to be a zindeeq, we should have, on the one hand, the evidence of Abu Musa Ash'ari that two chapters were recited by the companions, but that he had forgotten them at the time when he mentioned this circumstance; and on the other hand we have the evidence of all the companions disclaiming all knowledge of any such chapters. No reciter of the Qur-ān, no one who possessed any transcription of the Holy Book, had ever heard of them. How can the evidence of one man carry any weight against the unanimous testimony of all* the companions?—especially when that evidence relates to a circumstance the existence of which, if it ever existed, must have come to the knowledge of a very large number. Had there been the evidence of even two or three companions, there might have been cause for doubt in the mind of the historian, but such a claim made on the evidence of a single person, when negated by the evidence of thousands of better informed witnesses, is the most preposterous claim that has ever been made. And what is true of this one report is true of every other report belonging to the same class. In each case we have the evidence of only one person, whose testimony is quite unsupported. Abu Musa Ash'ari is said to have asserted that two chapters were lost: there is nobody else to support him; 'Ayesha is alleged to have asserted the loss of some verses: she cannot produce the evidence of a single other witness from among thousands of companions; and so with all the others. Where Ibn-i-Mas'ud makes an assertion, Ubayy's evidence, along with that of the whole body of companions, goes against him, and where Ubayy makes an assertion, Ibn-i-Mas'ud's evidence, along with that of all the rest of the companions, contradicts him. In fact, each of these reports has but a single companion to support it. It may be added that the evidence of one witness could not prove that any verse really belonged to the Holy Qur-ān, for it is a fact borne out by numerous reports that every verse of the Qur-ān was widely published at the time of its revelation, and was secured in the memories of many reciters. The anecdote related at the end of the report, speaking of Zaid's collection in the time of Abu Bakr, which is to the effect that a certain verse of the chapter entitled Barā'at, was not found in the possession of anybody except Abu Khuzaima, does not negative this conclusion, for, as I have already shown, it is the verse in writing that is meant there, as other reports show that there was a considerable number of men who could recite the whole of the Qur-ān from memory. In short, the evidence of a single companion as against the unanimous testimony of all the others is absolutely devoid of weight.

The third criterion by which such reports may be judged is to ascertain how far early practice supports the conclusions to which they give rise. The Qur-án, after the Holy Prophet, was the most valuable thing which the Muslims had in their possession, and every Muslim, no doubt, did his best to have it preserved and transmitted in all its purity to the next generation. Now, supposing for the sake of argument that 'Uṣman arbitrarily suppressed certain copies, was it in his power to destroy every transcript of every verse or chapter in the possession of the widely spread community of the Muslims? Supposing he could seize the copies of such prominent men as Ibn-i-Mas'ud, how could he get hold of the numerous transcripts that must have been made from Ibn-i-Mas'ud and others? For the practice of early Muslims shows that transcripts of the Holy Qur-án were extensively made. If any of the Muslims had therefore considered 'Uṣman's copy to be defective, and they had in their possession any transcript substantially differing from it, they would experience no difficulty in keeping it hidden during the reign of 'Uṣman. In such a case, however, such copies would have become abundant as soon as 'Uṣman's power declined, or at least during the reign of 'Alī, who could not have any motive to continue the policy of 'Uṣman with regard to the suppression of variant copies. During the reign of 'Alī, therefore, many other copies would have come into circulation, and even if he had not the courage to stop the circulation of 'Uṣman's copy he would have favourably regarded the circulation of other copies. But the wonder is that even the men who murdered 'Uṣman did not interfere with the circulation of 'Uṣman's copy of the Holy Qur-án, nor did they put into circulation a different edition or a new chapter or even a single new verse. They never pointed out that a single word in the Divine revelation had been changed by 'Uṣman. When 'Uṣman's power ceased to exist, or when he himself was murdered in cold blood by the insurgents, what hindrance was there then to the circulation of parts which 'Uṣman might have suppressed? Even if the transcripts could by some extraordinary means be all destroyed, the words imprinted on the living tablets of Muslim hearts could not be blotted out by any means in the power of a mortal. It was simply impossible. The end of 'Uṣman's reign would have seen the circulation of all these parts which, it is alleged, had been suppressed by him, and such parts would no doubt have then been embodied in the copies of the Qur-án. But history shows no trace of any such happening. With all their differences, different men and different sects have always used one and the same copy of the Qur-án. Had any difference actually existed, such difference must have appeared in subsequent copies of the Qur-án; but the use of the same Qur-án by sects which have sometimes had the deadliest designs against each other shows clearly that no difference actually existed.

The recent "discovery" of Dr. Mingana, who has given us Leaves from Three Ancient Qur-áns, has proved from a critical point of view as great a failure in assailing the purity of the text of the Holy Qur-án as the unwarranted assertions of earlier writers. Certain leaves are said to have been bought by Dr. Agnes Lewis from a commercial antiquary, containing three writings crossing each other, the oldest of these writings being some passages of the Qur-án. When these passages were written and who wrote them are questions which Dr. Mingana has not answered. All statements to the effect that they are pre-'Uṣmanic, or copies made from pre-'Uṣmanic manuscripts, are simply conjectures, boldly put forward as "facts" to attract public attention. And what are the differences that are shown to exist? That certain words are written in a different style of writing; that there are some variants (three in all); that there are three omissions, huwa, káffah and má-lakum, in three places, and that there is one addition, the word Allah.

This "discovery" is, I think, additional proof that the text of the Holy Qur-ân is the one and the same, and has always remained the same, for these leaves do not show the omission, addition, or variation of any verse or part of a verse, or any change in the order of a chapter or in the order of the verses contained in a chapter, nor do they show that any verse was misplaced. Substantially, the Qur-ân as found in these manuscripts is the same as that of the received text. If there are any differences, they are such as would necessarily arise in the transcription of copies by inexperienced hands. Mistakes would necessarily occur in making transcriptions from other copies, and it was to guard against such mistakes that 'Uṣman caused the official copies to be prepared, so that all copies made should be compared with them and mistakes arising in transcription should thus be corrected. It is clear that the very few mistakes discovered in these ancient leaves are the mistakes of transcription by inexperienced hands, as the text given by Dr. Mingana clearly shows; for instance, writing صل instead of قرآن; واعض instead of واعرض; قرن instead of قرآن;

ينللو instead of ينالو; اذنا instead of اذننا; and so on. These are clear mistakes of transcription, as recognized by Dr. Mingana, and it is rather amusing to find him contesting the purity of the text of the Holy Qur-ân on the basis of certain stray leaves, containing unknown and uncultured writing, once obliterated to give place to quite another writing. If there is an omission in these leaves it is not due to a clerical mistake of the writer, according to Dr. Mingana, but it is a clear proof that the received text was interpolated, and this in spite of the admission that it is uncertain which of the two was written first. It is clear from this that bias against the Holy Qur-ân quite unbalanced the mind of Dr. Mingana. The "discovery" of the manuscripts only shows that there has always been only one text of the Holy Qur-ân. As for the alleged variations, it may be said, without entering into details, that they are partly due to a slip of the pen of the scribe, partly to the rubbing off of the vellum for a second writing, partly to cross super-impositions, and partly, perhaps, to doubtful reading on the part of Dr. Mingana himself. The smallest variation in the style of writing has been proclaimed to be a variation giving an entirely different meaning, as in the case of the word bāraknū, occurring in 17:1, which means We have blessed, whether written as بركنا, or as باركنا, the former being the style adopted by the Qur-ân, the variation in Dr. Mingana's manuscript only omitting the alif written over the letter bā.

As regards the fifth objection, viz. that the Shias regard the Qur-ân as incomplete, the following remarks from Muir's Life of Mohammad, which has raised and answered this question, will be a sufficient answer. He says:—

"Assuming, then, that we possess unchanged the text of 'Uṣman's recension, it remains to inquire whether that text was an honest reproduction of Zaid's, with the simple reconciliation of unimportant variations. There is the fullest ground for believing that it was so. No early or trustworthy tradition throws suspicions upon 'Uṣman of tampering with the Qur-ân in order to support his own claims. The Shias, indeed, of later times pretend that 'Uṣman left out certain sūras or passages which favoured 'Alī. But this is incredible. When 'Uṣman's edition was prepared, no open breach had taken place between the Omeyyads and the 'Al'yites. The unity of Islam was still unthreatened. 'Ali's pretensions were as yet undeveloped. No sufficient object can, therefore, be assigned for the perpetration by 'Usman of an offence which Muslims would have regarded as one of the blackest die. Again, at the time of the recension, there were still multitudes alive who had learnt the Qur-án by heart as they had heard it originally delivered; and copies of any passages favouring 'Ali, if any such passages ever existed, must have been in the hands of his numerous adherents, both of which sources would have proved an effectual check upon any attempt at suppression. Further, the party of 'Ali, immediately on 'Usman's death, assumed an independent attitude, and raised him to the Caliphate. Is it conceivable that, when thus arrived at power, they would have tolerated a mutilated Qur-án, mutilated expressly to destroy their leader's claim? Yet we find that they continued to use the same Qur-án as their opponents and raised not the slightest objection against it."

The Shias, however, do not all believe that portions of the Holy Qur-án have been lost or that passages favouring 'Ali's claims were intentionally omitted by Zaid or 'Usman. The vast majority of them admit that the Holy Qur-án has been handed down to us in all its purity. Such is the belief of the more learned Shias, while it is largely the ignorant masses that think that some portions have been lost. In the Tafsir Sáfi, an important Shia commentary on the Holy Qur-án, the author, Mulla Muhsin, thus denounces the ignorant Shias who taught that certain portions were lost:—

"Certain men from among us and the Hashwia masses have reported that the Qur-án has suffered loss and alteration. But the true belief of our friends is against this, and such is the belief of the vast majority. For the Qur-án is a miracle of the Holy Prophet and the source of all knowledge relating to law and all religious injunctions, and the learned Muslims have taken the utmost pains for its protection, so that there is nothing relating to its vowel-points, its recital, its letters, and its verses, which they do not know. With such strong measures of protection and such faithful preservation of the Holy Book [by the Muslims] it cannot be supposed that any alteration or loss could take place" (p. 14).

The learned author goes on to say:—

"Surely the Qur-án was collected and arranged in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet exactly as it is in our hands. This is inferred from the fact that the Qur-án was even then recited and committed to memory as a whole, and there was a body of the companions whose duty it was to commit it to memory. It was also recited and read out as a whole to the Holy Prophet [by the angel]. A large number of the companions, as 'Abdulla bin Mas'ud and Ubayy bin Ka'b, had finished the Holy Qur-án in the presence of the Holy Prophet several times. All these facts show conclusively that the Holy Qur-án was complete and collected in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, and it was not dispersed or scattered. It has been stated that those from among the Hashwia and Imamia sects [of the Shias] who hold a contrary view are nothing when compared with the vast majority who hold the right view. It should also be borne in mind that the contrary view was held only by some of the reporters who gave circulation to very weak and unreliable reports."

After this, Mulla Muhsin quotes the opinions of several learned Shias, honoured and respected by the whole Shia world, who taught in clear words that "the Qur-án as sent down by God to His Prophet is exactly what is now between the two boards [that is, in the written volume] and in the hands of the people." He also quotes a report the trustworthiness of which has never been questioned by any Shia. That report also supports the conclusion that the Holy Qur-án has come down to us without the alteration or loss of a single word or letter.

The above quotations are sufficient to show that learned Shia theologians agree with all the other Islamic sects in holding the contents and arrangement of the Qur-án to be exactly in the condition in which the Holy Prophet left them. In fact, it is easy to see that if, as is admitted on all hands, the Holy Qur-án could be handed down to us from the time of 'Uṣman without any alteration or loss, during a long period of nearly thirteen hundred years, with the Muslims spread in every country and in all corners of the world, all agreeing upon one and the same book with no variation, not even so much as of a letter or a vowel-point, it is the height of absurdity to suppose that alteration or loss could take place in the thirteen years after the death of the Holy Prophet, when the Muslims were all yet in one place, and when many of those were still living who had learnt the whole of the Qur-án by heart direct from the Holy Prophet. The circumstances which contributed to the preservation of the purity of the text and arrangement of the Holy Qur-án after 'Uṣman were present even in a greater degree in the early Muslim society. The companions of the Holy Prophet and the early Muslims all knew and believed that nothing had been lost or omitted from the Holy Qur-án. Bukharee tells us in a report, the truth of which has never been questioned, that when Ibn-i-'Abbas and Muhammad bin Hanfiah ('Ali's son by a wife belonging to the Hanafī tribe) were asked as to what the Holy Prophet had left behind him, they both replied: "He left nothing but what is contained between the two boards," i.e. in the copies of the Qur-án as circulated by 'Uṣman, for it was to these copies that the words mā bain-ad-daffatain, or "what is contained between the two boards," were first applied.

In conclusion, I should like to say that my object in dealing at some length with the above two points, viz. the summary of the teachings of the Holy Qur-án and its collection and arrangement, is to give the reader of this volume an idea how religion has been made perfect in Islam and then guarded against every corruption; and thus I have established the two points which demonstrate Islam to be the final religion of the world, under the banner of which all the nations may gather together and form one vast brotherhood of humanity. We know that not only has no other scripture ever advanced the claim of being a perfect and final manifestation of the Divine will, as the Qur-án has done, but further, that every religious scripture revealed before the Holy Qur-án has undergone alterations in the course of time, and the Holy Qur-án is therefore the only Book that can be a true guide for an ever-advancing humanity.

Chief features of the work.

So much for the sacred work of which a translation is offered in this volume. As regards the translation itself, I need not say much. That a need was felt for a translation of the Holy Book with full explanatory notes, in spite of the existing translations, is universally admitted; that this translation satisfies that need, only time will decide. I may, however, say that as regards the translation (as distinguished from the explanatory notes) I have tried to be more faithful to the words of the Holy Writ than all existing translations in the English language, among which Palmer has remained nearest to the words. I have, however, given up the antiquated thou (except when the Divine Being is addressed), but have in all such cases, and in other cases where sense would have been sacrificed by a too literal rendering, given the exact significance of the original in the margin, showing the departure by the use of italics. It will be noticed that additional words as explaining the sense of the original have generally been avoided, and where necessary—and these cases are very few—they are given within brackets. Occasionally, alternative significances of words have also been noted in the margin, the use of italics in the translation pointing to the other significance. Wherever a departure has been made from the ordinary or primary significance of a word, reason for this departure has been given in a foot-note and authorities have been amply quoted.

There are some novel features in this translation. The Arabic text has been inserted, the translation and the text occupying opposite columns. Each verse begins with a new line in both the text and the translation, and verses are numbered to facilitate reference. Necessary explanations are given in foot-notes in running numbers, and generally either authorities are quoted or reasons given for the opinion expressed. This made the work very laborious, but I have undertaken this labour to make the work a real source of satisfaction to those who might otherwise be inclined to be sceptical regarding many statements which will appear new to the ordinary reader. I have tried to avoid repetition in the explanatory foot-notes by giving a reference in the margin where repetition was necessary, but I must confess that these references are far from being exhaustive. When the significance of a word has been explained in one place it has been thought unnecessary, except in rare cases, to make a reference to it in the margin. For the reader's facility I have, however, added a list of the words explained, and the reader may refer to it when necessary. This list, however, contains only those words and phrases about which the reader is likely to feel any difficulty.

Besides the foot-notes, ample introductory notes have been given at the commencement of each chapter. These introductory notes give the abstract of each chapter in sections, at the same time showing the connection of the sections and also explaining that of the different chapters with each other. And at the commencement of each section is added an abstract of that section, which explains the connection with each other of the verses of that section, being supplemented, when necessary, by an explanation in the foot-notes. The arrangement of the verses in a chapter and the arrangement of the chapters themselves is thus made clear. This feature of the translation is altogether new, and will, I hope, in course of time, prove of immense service in eradicating the idea which is so prevalent now that there is no arrangement in the verses and chapters of the Holy Qur-ân. It is quite true that the Qur-ân does not classify the different subjects and treat them separately in each section or chapter. The reason of this is that the Holy Qur-ân is not a book of laws, but essentially a book meant for the spiritual and moral advancement of man, and therefore the power, greatness, grandeur, and glory of God is its chief theme, the principles of social laws enunciated therein being also meant to promote the moral and spiritual advancement of man. But that there exists an arrangement will be clear even to the most superficial observer of the introductory notes on these chapters. It will be further noted that the Meccan and Medinian revelations are beautifully welded together, and there are groups of chapters belonging to about one time and relating to one subject. The introductory notes also show whether a particular chapter was revealed at Mecca or Medina, and also the probable period to which it belongs. Exact dates and specified order of the revelation of different chapters are often mere conjectures, and therefore I have avoided this useless task. On account of the various events referred to in Medina revelation, it is often easier to give a probable date of the Medianian revelations, but no such help being obtainable in the case of the Meccan revelation, I have thought it safer to divide the Meccan revelation into three periods, and any chapter can with a certain degree of probability be referred to one or other of these periods. I take the early Meccan period to about the first flight to Abyssinia, the middle Meccan period to four years previous to the Hijra, while the last four years of that period I designate as the last Meccan period.

The references to the authorities quoted in the notes are explained in the list of abbreviations given on p. cxii. Among the commentators, I have made the greatest use of the voluminous commentaries of Imam Fakhr-ud-Din Razi (known as Tafstr-i-Kabir, or the Great Commentary), Imam Asirud Din Abu Hayyan (known as the Bahr-ul-Muhit), and Ibn-i-Jarir Tabri, and the shorter but by no means less valuable commentaries of Zamakhshari (known as Kashshaf), Baidari and Jami'-ul-Bayân. Among the lexicons, the Tâj-ul-'Arûs and the Lisân-ul-'Arab are voluminous standard works and have been freely consulted, but the smaller work of Imam Raghib Isphhani, known as the Mufradât fi gharib-il-Qur-ân, has afforded immense help, and it undoubtedly occupies the first place among the standard works in Arabic lexicology so far as the Qur-ân is concerned. The valuable dictionary of Haudees, the Nihâyah of Ibn-i-Asir, has also proved very serviceable in explaining many a moot point. It will, however, be noted that I have more often referred to Lane's Arabic-English Lexicon, a work the value of which for the English student of Arabic can hardly be overestimated; this has been done purposely, so that the reader of this volume may have the facility to refer to an easily accessible work. Besides commentaries and lexicons, historical and other works have also been consulted. Among the collections of reports, Bukharee's Kitâb-ut-Tafstr, or chapter on the commentary of the Holy Qur-ân, has been before me throughout. And lastly, the greatest religious leader of the present time, Mirza Ghulam Ahmad of Qadian, has inspired me with all that is best in this work. I have drunk deep at the fountain of knowledge which this great reformer—Mujaddid and Mehdi in Islam, of the present century—and founder of the Ahmadiyya movement, has made to flow. There is one more person whose name I must mention in this connection, the late Maulvi Hakim Nurud Din, who in his last long illness patiently went through much the greater part of the explanatory notes and made many valuable suggestions. To him, indeed, the Muslim world owes a great debt of gratitude as the leader of the new turn given to the exposition of the Holy Qur-ân. He has done his work and passed away silently, but it is a fact that he spent the whole of his life in studying the Holy Qur-ân, and must be ranked with the greatest expositors of the Holy Book. It is a pity that his valuable Arabic commentary has not yet been given to the world, but when that manuscript sees the light, it will reveal that he was one of the master minds.

The principle of the greatest importance to which I have adhered in interpreting the Holy Qur-ân is that no word of the Holy Book should be interpreted in such a manner as to contradict the plainer teachings of the Holy Qur-ân, a principle to which the Holy Word has itself called the attention of its reader in 3 : 6; see 387. This rule forms the basis of my interpretation of the Qur-ân, and this is a very sound basis, if we remember that the Holy Qur-ân contains metaphors, parables, and allegories side by side with plain teachings. Practice (sunnat) and sayings of the Holy Prophet when contained in reliable reports are the best commentary of the Holy Word, and I have therefore attached the greatest importance to them. Earlier authorities have also to be respected, but reports and comments contradicting the Qur-ân itself cannot but be rejected. I have also kept before me the rule that the meaning to be adopted in any case should be that which suits the context best, and the only other limitation to which I have subjected myself is that the use of that word in that sense is allowed by the lexicons or by the Arabic literature. Existing translations have rendered me great help, but I have adopted an interpretation only after fully satisfying myself and having recourse to original authorities. Many of the stories generally accepted by the commentators find no place in my commentary, except in cases where there is either sufficient historical evidence or the corroborative testimony of some reliable saying of the Holy Prophet. Many of these stories were, I believe, incorporated into the Islamic literature by the flow of converts from Judaism and Christianity into Islam. Nor have I placed much reliance upon the stories of shah-i-nazûl (i.e. the occasion on which a particular verse was revealed), accepting their evidence when necessary as affording an illustration of the significance underlying a verse. A full discussion as to the principles and rules of interpretation I reserve for a separate exposition. But I must add that the present tendency of the Muslim theologians to regard the commentaries of the Middle Ages as the final word on the interpretation of the Holy Qur-ân is very injurious, and practically shuts out the great treasures of knowledge which an exposition of the Holy Book in the new light reveals. A study of the old commentators, to ignore whose great labours would indeed be a sin, also shows how freely they commented upon the Holy Book. The great service which they have done to the cause of truth would indeed have been lost to the world if they had looked upon their predecessors as uttering the final word on the exposition of the Holy Qur-ân, as most theologians do to-day.

The laborious work which I now place before the public has kept me occupied for about seven years, and has had, in fact, to be hastened on account of the impatience of the public. I am conscious of the many defects which will be met with in the present volume, and only hope that when there is a demand for a second edition I shall be able to revise this work thoroughly. I cannot, however, bring this Preface to a close without acknowledging the heavy debt of gratitude I owe to my learned friend and brother, the Maulvi Sadr ud Din, B.A., B.T., at present Imam of the Mosque at Woking (England), who has, while pressed with heavy work in connection with the Woking Muslim Mission, helped me with untiring energy and zeal in bringing out this work. He has not only thoroughly revised and corrected the proofs, which work would have been impossible for me at such a distance, but he has, in fact, been solely responsible for getting this work through the press, looking carefully to the minutest details of the work. And lastly, all those gentlemen are to be thanked who have assisted the Ahmadiyya Anjuman-i-Isha'at-i-Islam, Lahore, with generous donations, and thus enabled it to bring out the first edition of this work. And all praise is due to Allah, the Lord of the worlds, who enabled us all to perform our share in this noble undertaking.

PREFACE TO THIRD EDITION

THE first edition of this translation was exhausted within four years and a second edition of eleven thousand copies was brought out in 1920. A shorter edition in which the text was omitted and the notes were abridged was issued in 1928, a second edition of eleven thousand copies of the same appearing again in 1934. And now a third edition of the larger work is going into press. I have not made any alteration in either the second or the third edition, but if I am spared to see a fourth edition, I hope to revise it thoroughly, as my hands by that time will be free from other work.

PART I

CHAPTER I

THE OPENING

(Al-Fātiḥah)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(7 verses)

Abstract:

1. ALLAH, the Lord of the whole creation, brings the creation to its goal of completion. 2. His loving beneficence and mercy are exercised both before and after man makes himself deserving of them. 3. His dealing with man is as that of a master with his servants, and therefore His law of requital is characterized by forgiveness. 4. Man's dependence on Him and His assistance of man. 5-7. Prayer for being kept always on the right or the middle path and not to be diverted to either side.

General Remarks.

The Fātiḥah or the Opening is known under various other names. It is spoken of as Sab'an minal Maḡāni or the Seven Oft-repeated Verses in the Qur-ān itself (15 : 87) because its seven verses are constantly repeated by every Muslim in his prayers at least thirty-two times a day. It is spoken of as the Fātiḥat-ul-Kitāb or the Opening of the Book in a saying of the Holy Prophet in which it is said that "No prayer is complete without the recitation of Fātiḥat-ul-Kitāb" (AlI, Tr.). Hence it is also called Sūrat uṣ Ṣalāt, i.e. the chapter of Prayer, being essential to every prayer whether performed in congregation or in private. It is also called Sūrat-ul-Du'd, i.e. the chapter of Supplication, because the entire chapter is a supplication or a prayer to the Great Master, and because as a prayer it not only occupies the highest place among the prayers of other sacred books, but also among those taught by the Holy Qur-ān itself. It is also called Ummul-Kitāb, i.e. the Basis of the Book, because it contains the whole of the Qur-ān as it were in a nutshell. Some of the other names given to this chapter are the Praise, the Thanksgiving, the Foundation, the Treasure, the Whole, the Sufficient, the Healer, and the Healing.

Al-Fātiḥah or Fātiḥat-ul-Kitāb contains seven verses in a single section, and was revealed at Mecca, being without doubt one of the earliest revelations. Muir, who divides the whole of the Meccan revelation into five periods, places the Fātiḥah in the first period—though he is mistaken in placing it before even the 96th chapter, for which there is overwhelming evidence as being the first revelation. It is, of course, impossible to give the exact date or even the exact order in which the various chapters were revealed, but there is not the least doubt that the Fātiḥah must be placed among the earliest revelations. It is referred to in 15 : 87 as the Seven Oft-repeated Verses, a name by which this chapter is generally known, and the 15th chapter, which is undoubtedly Meccan, can by no means be placed among the latest Meccan revelations. Again, it is a fact that the Fātiḥah formed an essential part of the Muslim prayers from the earliest days when prayer was made obligatory for the Muslims, and there is a vast mass of evidence showing that this happened very early after the Prophet's call. For not only is the fact referred to in the earliest revelations, such as the 73rd chapter, but there are also other historical incidents showing that prayer was observed by the earliest Muslim converts. The Holy Prophet's removal to the house of Arqam is a historical fact of undoubted truth, and it occurred at the latest in the fourth year of his preaching, and this removal was necessitated by the troubles caused to the Muslims on account of their saying prayers in places which were not safe from the interference of the unbelievers. Thus the story of Sa'd, who "retired for prayer with a group of believers to a valley near Mecca," and the occurrence of an affray with some of his neighbours, as narrated by Muir, may be taken as a preliminary to the choice of Arqam's house so as to avoid interruption.

The chapter is headed by the words Bismillāh-ir-Rahmān-ir-Rahīm, which also head every one of the other 114 chapters of the Holy Qur-ān with the exception of one only, the ninth, while the same sentence occurs once in the middle of a chapter, viz. in 27:30, thus occurring 115 times in the Holy Qur-ān. The phrase has besides acquired such a wide usage among the Muslims that it is the first thing which a Muslim child learns, and in his everyday affairs the Bismillāh is the first word which a Muslim utters.

The Bismillāh is the quintessence of the chapter Fatiḥah, in the same manner as the latter is the quintessence of the Qur-ān itself. By commencing every important affair with the Bismillāh the Muslim in fact shows in the midst of his everyday life affairs that the right attitude of the human mind towards the Great Mind of the universe is that it should always seek a support in the Mighty One who is the source of all strength, and thus Divine Unity finds expression in the practical life of man in a manner unapproached anywhere else in the history of religion.

The revelation of the Bismillāh seems to have soon followed the first revelation of the opening verses of Chapter 96, for it forms a part of even the shortest chapter revealed to the Holy Prophet. Moreover, the words of the Bismillāh show a deep connection with the account of the first revelation as given by the Holy Prophet himself. He was in the well-known cave of Hira when the first message came to him. This message was brought by an angel, who asked the Holy Prophet to read. "I am not one who can read," was the reply. The request and the answer were repeated thrice, when the angel said: "Read in the name of your Lord Who created, He created man from a clot; read and your Lord is most Honourable" (Bkh). And as the Prophet, who on the most trustworthy testimony did not know either reading or writing, was able to read with the help of the Lord, even so is every Muslim taught to seek the help of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful, in everything that he seeks to do. The Bismillāh must thus have immediately followed the very first revelation.

Besides the word Allāh, which in the Arabic language is the proper name of the Divine Being, there occur in the Bismillāh the two chief attributive names Ar-Rahmān and Ar-Rahīm, which signify respectively the Beneficent One Who exercises His love towards all His creatures in providing for them before they come into existence, and the Merciful One Who deals mercifully with His servants in making their humble deeds bear fruit. Thus, in addition to the dependence of man on his Divine Maker, the Bismillāh teaches the absolute and transcendental Unity of the Divine Being in the use of the word Allāh, which was never applied to any other object of worship by the Arabs, and His great and unbounded love and mercy for His creatures in the use of the two words Ar-Rahmān and Ar-Rahīm. So great is His love that He requires no compensation for its exercise, as the Christian doctrine of atonement teaches, and so great is His mercy that He can make the deeds of man bear an unbounded fruit, and the gift of His salvation is therefore permanent and not temporary, as taught by the Vedic religion.

Rodwell's suggestion that the Bismillāh in the form in which it appears in the Holy Qur-ān was first taught to the Quraysh by the poet Umayya of Tāif seems to have been due to some misconception, for there is unimpeachable testimony to show that the Quraysh not only did not know the name Ar-Rahmān of the Divine Being, to which they asserted themselves to be utter strangers (25:60), but that they were averse to the use of the Bismillāh itself in the form in which it was taught by the Holy Prophet. For so late as the sixth year of Hejira, when a truce was drawn up between the Muslims and the Quraish, Suhail ibn-i-'Amru, on behalf of the Quraish, refused to prefix Bismillāh-ir-Rahmān-ir-Rahīm to the agreement, saying "I do not know this," and the agreement was therefore headed by Bismika Allāhumma, the form in common use among the Quraish (Tb). That some nations had some such form which they prefixed to their writings cannot be denied, but the mere existence among any other people, as the Jews or the Sabeans or the Zoroastrians, of any expression which they prefixed to their writings does not show that the Holy Prophet had borrowed the idea from here or there. It is in the choice of the words that the real beauty lies, for the real message of Islam was the perfection of religion, and this perfection is made clear in its Bismillāh, in the very first words with which it opens. Islam has never claimed that what it preached was never preached to the world before; on the other hand, it lays claim to purifying and making perfect the old doctrines (5:3). Even the words Bakhshishgar and Dādar, meaning respectively the Pardoner and the Just, make no approach to the beauty of the two fundamental attributes of love and mercy made manifest in the words Ar-Rahmān and Ar-Rahīm. The choice of these two attributes of love and mercy as the prime attributes of the Divine Being is sufficient comment on the misstatements of the carpenters at Islam, who misrepresent the God of Islam as a Cruel and Wrathful Being.

The Āditiyah has a special importance as a prayer, being an essential part of every prayer, whether offered in congregation or in private. Its Of-ten-repeated Seven Verses constitute the prayer for guidance of every Muslim at least thirty-two times a day, and therefore it has a much greater importance for him than the Lord's prayer for a Christian. And there is another difference too. The latter is instructed to pray for the coming of the kingdom of God, whereas the Muslim is instructed to seek for his right place in that kingdom, which had already come, the hint no doubt being that the coming of the Holy Prophet was really the advent of the kingdom of God about whose approach Jesus preached to his followers (Mark 1:15). Thus the prayer is a model prayer taught to the Muslims, and the objection as to the inconsistency of the form of address adopted here with the Divine authorship of the Book vanishes in the light of these facts. The numerous prayers contained in the Holy Qur-ān follow the same rule and are never preceded by the word "say" or any other word to that effect. For instance, compare the prayer contained in the concluding verse of the 2nd chapter, and also the prayer contained in 8: 7, 8 and 3: 190-193 and elsewhere. That a form of prayer or supplication is meant for the supplicant is so clear that any introductory word commanding men to pray in that form would have been superfluous.

Some hostile critics have suggested that such a prayer is suited only for blind and sinful men groping in the dark to find out the way. Surely it is a very distorted view of the sublime words, which express the natural yearning of the sincere soul to be kept on the right way and to be saved from stumbling. The prayer contained in this chapter is the sublimest of all the prayers that exist in any religion, and occupies the first place among all the prayers contained in the Qur-ān itself. A chorus of praise has gone forth for it from the greatest detractors of the Holy Qur-ān, and they have been compelled to "admire its spirit." The entire chapter is composed of seven verses, the first three of which speak of the four chief Divine attributes, viz. providence, beneficence, mercy, and requital, thus giving expression to the grandeur and praise of the Divine Being, and the last three lay open before the Great Maker the earnest desire of man's soul to walk in righteousness without stumbling on either side, while the middle one is expressive of man's entire dependence on Allah. 'The attributes referred to are those which disclose Allah's all-encompassing beneficence and care, and His unbounded love for all of His creatures, and the ideal to which the soul is made to aspire is the highest to which man can rise, the path of righteousness, the path of grace, and the path in which there is no stumbling. If, on the one hand, the narrow views which addressed the Divine Being as the Lord of a particular nation are swept off before the mention of His equal providence and equal love for all mankind, nay for all the creatures that exist in all the worlds, and the idea of paternal care and affection contained in the word Father dwindles into insignificance before the all embracing beneficence and love of the Rabb of all existence Who provides and regulates the means of existence, nourishment, and perfection of the creatures long before they come into existence, there is, on the other, the high aspiration of the soul for an unbounded spiritual rise unhampered by all considerations of cares of the body which craves for the "daily bread," and even of solicitude for forgiveness of wrongs done and injuries inflicted, for the soul seeks to rise to a place where wrongs and injuries are not known. It makes the soul aspire to the great spiritual eminence to which arose those to whom Allah was gracious, the prophets, the truthful, the faithful, and the righteous (4:71). It sets before the eye that high goal, the goal of Divine grace wherein is no displeasure and which is beyond the reach of error. With all its beauty, even the Lord's prayer sinks into insignificance before the all-comprehensiveness and majestic glory of the Fātiḥah, and one would in vain turn over the pages of sacred books to find anything approaching the grand and sublime ideas contained in this chapter of the Holy Qur-ān.

The four attributes of the Divine Being mentioned here are, moreover, a refutation of the wrong conceptions of the fundamental principles of faith met with in some of the prominent religions of the world. The name Rabb, for instance, which signifies Divine providence, indicates that all things in creation are so made as to attain gradually to a state of perfection within their spheres of capacity, and thus points out the erroneousness of the doctrine of the "Fall of man," which upholds that an original state of perfection has given place to degeneration. The designation of the Divine Being as Lord of the worlds gives a death-blow to all narrow views of the spiritual blessings and their limitation to certain territorial bounds, racial distinctions, or particular times, and thus makes clear that the highest of these blessings, the gift of Divine revelation, could neither be limited to a particular country nor to a particular nation, nor yet to a particular age. The attribute of loving beneficence in Ar-Rahmān is a refutation of the doctrines of atonement and sonship, as it directs attention to the fact that benefits are conferred on man by the Divine Being without exacting any compensation from him, Ar-Rahmān being the Beneficent Lord whose manifold blessings are conferred on man without his ever having done anything to deserve them. The attribute of mercy in Ar-Rahīm points out the error of the Vedic doctrine which teaches that the Divine Being is unable to give manifold and unlimited reward for limited acts of man and that therefore his salvation, even when it has been earned after going through innumerable states of life, must be shortlived, for Ar-Rahīm signifies the Merciful Being Who multiplies rewards to an unlimited extent. And the last attribute, mastership of the day of requital, is directed against those doctrines which deny the quality of forgiveness in the Divine Being, the most prominent of these being the doctrine of the transmigration of souls, for Mālik is not the king or the judge whose duty is to hold the balance equally between two parties, but He is the Master, and those that are guilty are only His creatures, whom He can wholly forgive without any idea of injustice or favouritism being attributed to Him.

I have also said that the seven verses of the Fātiḥah contain the whole of the Qur-ān in them. It is for this reason that in 15:87, already quoted, it is spoken of as the Great Qur-ān (Bkh). And so in fact it is, as the name Umm-ul-Qur-ān, a name given to it by the Holy Prophet himself, shows (Bkh). For the Qur-ān is a Book which declares the glory of Allah and teaches the right way to man, and both these themes find expression in the Fātiḥah. The fundamental principles of faith, the prime attributes of the Divine Being, which are the basis of all other attributes, the relations which ought to hold between man and his Creator, are all contained in their essence in the seven short sentences of which this wonderful chapter is made up. And to crown all, this chapter opens with the broadest possible conception of the Lordship (this word is intentionally adopted in the place of Fatherhood) of the Divine Being and the brotherhood of man, nay of the oneness of all creation, for the unity of the creation necessarily follows the unity of the Creator.

Beneficent, the Merciful.³

أَحْمَدُ لِلَّهِ رَبِّ الْعَالَمِينَ ۝

1 (All)⁴ Praise is due to Allah, the Lord⁵ of the Worlds.⁶

1 I retain the ordinary translation of the particle bā, but I must warn the reader that the sense of this particle is not the same in Arabic as the sense of the word in in the equivalent phrase in the name of God, in the latter case signifying on account of, whereas the bā in Arabic signifies by, or through, or, to be more exact, with the assistance of. The phrase is in fact equivalent to: I seek the assistance of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful (AH).

2 Allāh, according to the most correct of the opinions respecting it, is a proper name applied to the Being Who exists necessarily by Himself, comprising all the attributes of perfection (TA-LL), the al being inseparable from it, not derived (Msb-JJ). Al-ilāh is a different word, and there is nothing to show that Allāh is a contraction of Al-ilāh. The word Allāh is not applied to any being except the only true God, and comprises all the excellent names (TA-LL), and the Arabs never gave the name Allāh to any of their numerous idols. Hence, as being the proper name of the Divine Being, and not having any equivalent in any other language, I have adopted the original word in this translation.

3 Ar-Rahmān and Ar-Rahīm are both derived from rahmat, signifying tenderness requiring the exercise of beneficence (Rgh), and thus comprising the idea of love and mercy. Ar-Rahmān and Ar-Rahīm are both active participle nouns of different measures denoting intensiveness of significance, the former being of the measure of fa'lān and indicating the greatest preponderance of the quality of mercy, and the latter being of the measure of fa'il and being expressive of a constant repetition and manifestation of the attribute (AH). The two words have been explained by the Holy Prophet himself, and though the words are different, the ultimate significance is the same as that which is the result of the grammatical consideration. He is reported to have said: "Ar-Rahmān is the Beneficent God Whose love and mercy are manifested in the creation of this world, and Ar-Rahīm is the Merciful God Whose love and mercy are manifested in the state that comes after" (AH), i.e. in the consequences of the deeds of men. Thus the attribute of mercy in Ar-Rahmān is manifested before man comes into existence in the creation of things that are necessary for his life here, and therefore without his having deserved them, while the same attribute in Ar-Rahīm is manifested when man has done something to deserve it. Thus the former is expressive of the utmost degree of love and generosity, the latter of unbounded and constant favour and mercy. Lexicologists agree in holding that the former includes both the believer and the unbeliever for its objects, while the latter particularizes more the believer (LL, Rgh, LA, TA). Hence I render Ar-Rahmān as meaning the Beneficent God, because the idea of doing good is predominant in it, though I must admit that the English language lacks an equivalent of Ar-Rahmān even making an approach to giving expression to the all-comprehensive love and goodness manifested in that word.

It may also be noted that Ar-Rahmān, though manifesting an attribute, is like a proper name and applicable only to the Divine Being. The word is, in fact, used as an alternative with Allāh, very clearly so in 17:110. Hence it is not applied to denote the quality of mercy in man, though Ar-Rahīm is so applied. The only exception mentioned by the lexicologists is that Musailma the Liar was called the Rahmān of Yamamah by his followers, but such a use of a proper name has always been considered allowable. As the word Rahmān as a name of the Divine Being was quite new to the Arabs (25:60), the followers of the Liar may have applied it to him as a retort to the Muslims.

4 The al in al-hamd-u is for istighbrāq-ul-jins, i.e. the universal inclusion of the genus (AH), showing that all kinds of praise are included.

5 The Arabic word Rabb conveys not only the idea of fostering, bringing-up, or nurish

ing, but also that of regulating, completing, and accomplishing (TA-LL), i.e. of the evolution of things from the crudest state to that of the highest perfection. According to Rgh, Rabb signifies the fostering of a thing in such a manner as to make it attain one condition after another until it reaches its goal of completion. Hence Rabb is the Author of all existence, Who has not only given to the whole creation its means of nourishment but has also beforehand ordained for each a sphere of capacity and within that sphere provided the means by which it continues to attain gradually to its goal of perfection. It will thus be seen that the word Rabb, which, for want of a better word, I render as Lord, conveys a far nobler and grander idea than the word ab or father, which has comparatively a very limited significance. The Muslim prayer therefore prefers the use of the word Rabb or Lord to that of ab or father in addressing the Divine Being.

7 English translations have usually adopted King as the translation of the word Mâlik, which is not strictly correct. Mâlik and malik are two different words from the same root, the former signifying master and the latter king. According to the rule of forming derivations in Arabic, an additional letter (as the alif in Mâlik) gives the meaning a greater intensity (AH), and hence a master is more than a king. The adoption of the word malik or master is to show that Allah is not guilty of injustice if He forgives His servants, because He is not a mere king or a mere judge, but more properly a Master.

8 The word yaum is applied in the Holy Qur-ân to any period of time, from a moment (55: 29) to fifty thousand years (70: 4), and may therefore indicate an indefinitely small or indefinitely large space of time. According to LL yaum is a time, whether day or night (Mab); time absolutely, whether night or not, little or not; also a day, meaning the period from the rising of the sun to its setting. According to Rgh the word yaum indicates a period of time, whatever period it may be, and this is the proper signification. As there are ample indications in the Qur-ân that the Divine law of requital is working every moment, and there is nothing to support the idea that it will not come into force before a particular day, the law of requital referred to in this verse is therefore a law which is constantly at work.

9 Those upon whom favours are bestowed are according to I'Ab the four classes mentioned in 4: 69, viz. the prophets, the grateful, the faithful, and the righteous (AH). This shows that according to the Holy Qur-ân, the favours that were bestowed upon the prophets, the gift of Divine revelation being one of the chief of them, can still be bestowed upon the righteous who follow the right way.

Or, other than.

7 Not those upon whom wrath is brought down, nor those who go astray.¹⁰

عَبْرَ الْمَغْضُوبِ عَلَيْهِمْ وَلَا الضَّالِّينَ ⑩

10 The Holy Prophet is reported to have said: Those upon whom wrath is brought down are the Jews and those who go astray are the Christians (AH). Of course the words are only explanatory and do not limit the significance of the original words used. The Holy Prophet made the Arabs realize by the case of the two peoples whom they knew well how men sometimes desert the right or the middle path, leaning to either extreme, the Jews rejecting Jesus Christ, a righteous servant of God, as a liar, while the Christians went to the other extreme and raised that same mortal to the dignity of Godhead. Islam inculcated that the middle path was to be followed, neither leaning to the side of hatred nor being excessive in love, because the former brings down Divine wrath as it did in the case of the Jews and the latter leads a man astray as it led the Christians.

Title and Subject-matter.

THE name of this chapter is taken from the story narrated in vv. 67-71 regarding the slaughter of a cow. As this chapter deals chiefly with the Jews, and as cow-worship, as shown in foot-notes 84 and 108, was the particular form of idolatry which took a hold among the Jews, the importance of that incident seems to have been rightly estimated in giving this chapter the name that it bears.

This chapter deals mainly with the Jews and their contentions against Islam, and hence it is that much of the legislation, details of which necessarily differ from the Jewish law, and most of the Jewish objections to the prophethood of Muhammad—may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him—are dealt with in this chapter. A perusal of the analysis of the chapter will show how the various sections fit into each other, the allegation of confusedness in the arrangement being simply due to want of reflection. The chapter opens with a brief statement of the fundamental principles of Islam, and, after mentioning the consequences of their acceptance or rejection in the first section, and dealing with lip-professions in the second, draws an inference of the truth of those principles, and more particularly of Divine Unity, by referring to the work of God in nature in the third. The fourth section proceeds to show that man is endowed with vast capabilities, but suffers the consequences of wasting his opportunity, and this is illustrated in the story of Adam. Then in the fifth section the case of the Israelite nation is introduced, and they are told how the Qur-án fulfils the prophecies met with in their books, and the next two sections are devoted to Divine favours on them and their stubbornness, being followed by three others which speak of their degeneration, their hard-heartedness, and their violation of covenants. The eleventh section speaks of their objections to the Holy Prophet, and the twelfth refers to their great enmity and to their plans against him. The thirteenth states that former scriptures are abrogated and a better and more advanced code is given in the form of Islam, the religion of entire submission. The next section points out that partial good is met with in all religions, but it is only in Islam that religion attains to perfection. The fifteenth reminds the Israelites of the covenant with Abraham, which required the raising of a prophet from among the Ishmaelites, being followed by another dealing with the religion of the great patriarch. The subject of Qiblah being transferred to the Ka'ba, the house rebuilt by Abraham, is thus introduced, and the next two sections, while declaring the Ka'ba to be the new centre of spiritual activity, also give reasons for the change. The nineteenth warns the Muslims that they must undergo hard trials before they obtain mastery of the Sacred House, which was henceforth to be the centre of the Muslims, though the idolatry prevailing there was certainly destined to disappear, while Unity must ultimately obtain the triumph, this being made clear in the twentieth section. Certain minor differences with the Jewish law are then introduced as against the common principle of the doctrine of Unity, and thus the laws relating to foods, retaliation, transfer of property on decease, fasting, fighting, pilgrimage, wine, gambling, orphans, marital obligations, divorce, and widowhood are discussed in the eleven sections that follow. The next two make a reversion to the subject of fighting, which was necessary if the Muslims would escape national death, and illustrations are given from the Israelite history. We are then told in the thirty-fourth section of the mighty power of Allah to give life to the dead, and the Muslims are told that they should not use compulsion in the matter of religion, as their opponents had done. Two instances are then quoted in the following section, one from the history of Abraham and the other from the Israelitish history, showing how dead nations are raised to life. But national growth and prosperity, we are immediately told in the thirty-sixth and thirty-seventh sections, depends on acts of sacrifice, and every penny spent in the cause of truth yields seven hundredfold and even much more fruit. The Muslims, being thus promised abundance of wealth as the result of their sacrifices, are warned in the following section against usurious dealings which breed an inordinate love for wealth, for the amassing of wealth was not the goal of a Muslim's life. They are at the same time told, in the thirty-ninth section, to guard their property rights by the employment of writing in their transactions and securing evidence. In conclusion they are taught a prayer for the ultimate triumph of the truth. Thus we find no break in the continuity of the subject, and the change, whenever necessary, is introduced quite naturally.

Connection with the preceding Chapter.

There is a clear connection between this chapter and the last one. There in the concluding words is a prayer for being guided on the right path (1:5), while here that guidance is afforded in the opening words: "This book, there is no doubt in it, is a guide" (v. 2). Again, that prayer seeks to establish us in the path of those who have received Divine favours (1:6), and here we are told in v. 5 who are they on the right direction and who shall be successful. Similarly, while that prayer creates in us the yearning to avoid the path of those upon whom wrath has been brought down and those who go astray (1:7), this one hastens to point out that those who do not care for the Prophet's warning, neither reflecting upon it nor lending ear to it (v. 6), have ultimately their very hearts and ears closed against the truth, this grievous punishment being the form in which wrath is brought down upon them (v. 7), and that those who consider faith to be only a lip-profession are really they who go astray, because they buy error at the price of right direction (v. 16). Any one who has read the Holy Qur-án will easily see that no other chapter could have so fittingly followed the Fātiḥah, and as in the beginning, so in the end, there is a clear connection with the opening chapter.

But though this chapter follows the Fātiḥah it is really the first chapter, because the Fātiḥah is placed at the head, being the essence of the whole of the Qur-án. This affords very clear evidence of the wisdom displayed in the arrangement of the chapters of the Holy Book. For this chapter fittingly opens with a prelude as to the object which is aimed at in the revelation of the Holy Qur-án, and contains in its very opening verses the fundamental principles of the Islamic religion, which are also in fact the fundamental principles which can form the basis of the natural religion of man. These principles are five in number, three of them containing theoretical ordinances or articles of belief and two containing practical ordinances or principles of action. The theoretical ordinances are a belief in the Unseen, i.e. Allah, in Divine revelation to the Holy Prophet as well as to the prophets before him, and in the life to come, while on the practical side is mentioned prayer, the outpouring of the human heart before the Great Divine Mind, which is the source from which springs true Divine love, and charity in its broadest sense. The result of the acceptance of these fundamental principles is mentioned in v. 5, being guidance in the right direction and success. Similarly, it is with a reiteration of the broad principles of the Islamic faith and with a prayer for the triumph of the truth that the chapter ends, and the whole of the chapter is really an illustration of the truth of the principles enunciated in its beginning. If this chapter were removed from its place, there is not a single other chapter in the whole of the Qur-án that could take its place and serve the purpose of a prelude to the Holy Book.

Date of Revelation.

There is little doubt that this chapter was revealed at Medina, and belongs to the earliest Medinian revelations. Doubt has been entertained as to vv. 21-39 and 164-172, but the reasons given are very poor. That all those verses in which the words "O men" occur belong to the Meccan revelation, and those in which the words "O you who believe" occur belong to Medinian revelation, is the unwarranted generalization of some exegetists; and European students of the Holy Qur-án have taken it from the Itqán, without caring to see that even the Itqán does not rely on this test, and without giving any consideration to facts. For the 4th chapter, the Women, undoubtedly belongs wholly to the Medinian revelation, and it opens with the words "O men." Similarly, the 22nd chapter, which is unanimously accepted as belonging to the Meccan period, begins with the words "O you who believe." Hence the criterion on which vv. 21-39 are regarded as belonging to Meccan revelation fails altogether. As regards the testimony of the subject matter in these verses, as well as in 164-172 and 256-258, doubt being also entertained as to the Medinian origin of the latter, it seems to me to be a mere fancy of the critics, for no hard-and-fast line can be drawn as to the subjects which are treated in Meccan or Medinian revelations. The latest European criticism on this point inclines more to a right view than the hasty opinion of earlier critics. In his "New Researches" Hirschfeld observes: "If we had no other critical aid, it would frequently be quite impossible to distinguish between Medinian and later Meccan revelations. . . . Medinian addresses, like the Meccan ones, abound in declamatory, narrative, and parabolical passages." But I must add that many of the unwarranted conclusions of European critics are based on the rash generalizations of Oriental exegetes.

The doubt regarding vv. 285, 286, the concluding verses of the chapter, is equally groundless. V. 285 only reiterates the cosmopolitan nature of the religion of Islam, which has already been established in the very beginning in v. 4, and then in the middle of the chapter in v. 136, a belief in the truth of all the prophets being mentioned as the very basis of the religion of Islam in all the three places. V. 286 teaches a prayer, about the Medinian origin of which it is rather strange that a doubt should have been entertained.

I do not find any reliable report as to the Meccan origin of any portion of this chapter. Even if there were any such report, I would warn the reader to receive it with caution. The whole of the 2nd chapter thus belongs to earlier Medinian revelation, and I very much doubt the reports which refer the injunctions regarding the prohibition of usury in the concluding sections to about the closing period of the Holy Prophet's life. That portion may have been revealed at a later period than the rest of the chapter, but in view of the same prohibition having been revealed in 3: 129 it could not be so late. An analysis of the chapter leads one to the conclusion that almost the whole of it was revealed previous to the revelation of the next or the 3rd chapter.

11 The original words are alif, lám, mín. Translations of the Holy Qur-án generally leave abbreviations, like the one occurring here, untranslated. The combinations of letters or single letters occurring at the commencement of several chapters of the Holy Qur-án, 29 in all, are called الحروف المقطعه or simply muqatta'at, and according to the best received opinion these letters are abbreviations standing for words. The Arabs used similar letters in their verses, as in قلت لها فلي قتالت قات where the letter qáf stands for wagaft-u, i.e. I stop (AH). Another instance of the same is contained in the verse, بالخير خيرات وان شرقاً . . . ولا اريد الا ان تآ where fa' stands for fasharrun, meaning then evil let there be, and tá' for tashá', meaning thou pleasest (AI). And in ordinary conversation you hear a man saying fa' in answer to one who says, Will thou come? The fa' in this case means فاذهب بنا i.e. then go thou with us (LL). Abbreviations are known to all languages, the only peculiarity of their use in Arabic literature being that the letters carry different meanings in different places, and the meaning is decided in each case by the context. Such is the opinion of I'Ab (AH). Both he and IMsd agree in interpreting the combination لَآ (read alif, lām, mīm) occurring here, as well as at the commencement of the 3rd, 29th, 30th, 31st, and 32nd chapters of the Holy Qur-án, as standing for اَنَا اللهُ اَعْلَمُ i.e. I am Allāh, the best Knower, alif standing for ana, lām for Allāh, and mīm for a'lannu (AH, IJ), being respectively the first, the middle, and the last letter of the words for which they stand. Others regard them as contractions for some Divine attribute. That they may also serve as the names of chapters is no ground for supposing that they carry no significance. The strange suggestion of Golius that alif, lām, mīm stands for amr-li-Muhammad, which is said to mean at the command of Muhammad, is not only devoid of authority but is also grammatically incorrect, and the correct Arabic equivalent would be bi-amr-i-Muhammad, which, however, does not give us the actual letters. Rodwell's statement, made in his comment on the significance of the letter nūn occurring in the beginning of chapter 68, that "the meaning of this and of the similar symbols, throughout the Qur-án, was unknown to the Muhammadans themselves even in the first century," is equally devoid of truth, for the significance of these letters can in most cases be traced to the companions of the Holy Prophet, and hence the suggestion that these were "private marks or initial letters attached by their proprietor to the copies furnished to Zaid, when effecting his recension of the text under 'Usmán" is not even worth consideration, and it is further opposed to the surest historical testimony, which proves beyond all doubt that these letters were recited as parts of these chapters in the time of the Holy Prophet himself.

12 Palmer translates the word zālika as that, and thinks that its rendering as this is an error, but as LL says: "Like as a person held in mean estimation is indicated by hāzā, which denotes a thing that is near, so, on account of its high degree of estimation, a thing that is approved is indicated by zālika, whereby one indicates a thing that is remote." In other words zālika does not refer here to a remote thing, and should not be rendered as that, but it indicates the high estimation in which the Qur-án is held.

13 The Qur-án is here called al-kitāb, or the Book. The root-word Kataba means he wrote and also he brought together (IL) and kitāb, or book, is a writing which is complete in itself. Thus a letter may also be called a kitāb, and in this sense the word occurs in 27: 28. 29. The application of the word kitāb to the Holy Qur-án occurs in very early revelations, and the use of the word shows clearly that the Qur-án was from the first meant to be a complete book, and one that existed not only in the memory of men but also in visible characters on writing material, for otherwise it could not be called al-kitāb. Thus there is conclusive internal evidence in the use of this word that its arrangement, without which it could not be called a book, was effected by the Holy Prophet for himself, and the copy prepared by Zaid in the time of Abú Bakr followed that arrangement. For the explanation of the word Qur-án see foot-note 228.

14 I make a departure here from the rendering of the word muttaqī, which English translators generally render into God-fearing or pious. The root is waqā, and conveys the sense of saving, guarding, or preserving (LL). According to Rgh, waqāyah signifies the guarding of a thing from that which harms or injures it. The verb of which muttaqī is the nominative form is illaqā, which means, he preserved or guarded himself exceedingly. "In the conventional language of the law," according to LL, "he preserved or guarded himself exceedingly from sin or what would harm him in the world to come." Hence the word muttaqī may properly be translated only as one who guards himself (against evil), or one who is careful (of his duty).

3 Those who believe in the unseen¹⁵ and keep up prayer¹⁶ and spend out of what We have given them;¹⁷

Ar. thee,

4 And who believe in that which has been revealed to you and that which was revealed before you,¹⁸ and they are sure of the hereafter.¹⁹

الَّذِينَ يُؤْمِنُونَ بِالْغَيْبِ وَيُقِيمُونَ
الصَّلَاةَ وَيُسَارِقُونَ نَفْسَهُمْ بِفِقْرٍ
وَالَّذِينَ يُؤْمِنُونَ بِمَا أُنْزِلَ إِلَيْكَ وَمَا
أُنْزِلَ مِنْ قَبْلِكَ وَيَا أَلْحِقْهُمْ بِرُفُقُونَ

15 Al-ghaib is that which is unseen or unperceivable by the ordinary senses, such as the existence of Allah, the certainty of which is obtained through Divine revelation. To render it as mysteries of faith, as Sale has done, is to introduce the Christian formulas of mysteries into the clear principles of Islam. As regards the acceptance of the unseen, it must be borne in mind that every science is based on certain fundamental principles, the truth of which is actually witnessed only in the result.

16 Ṣalât among the Arabs stood for supplication or prayer, as A'shâ says, speaking of wine: وقابلها الريح في دثها .: و صلى على دثها وارتمس i.e. and he exposed it to the wind in its jar, and he prayed over its jar and petitioned for it (IJ). Similarly in another verse the same poet says,

لها حارس لا يبرح الدهر بيتها وان ذبحت صلى عليها وزمرها

The phrase صلى عليها is here equivalent to دعاها i.e. he prayed for her (IJ). In Islam Aṣ-ṣalât assumed a regularity and a form, and became an established institution of religion, for details of which see Preface. The verb used to indicate the observance of ṣalât is throughout the Holy Qur-ân aqâma, from اقام الامر i.e. he kept a thing or an affair in a right state (LI), and hence it is not the mere observance of the form that the Qur-ân requires, but the keeping of it in a right state, i.e. being true to the spirit of the prayer. It should, however, be borne in mind that besides the regular service, which is performed five times a day and which is obligatory, there is ample room for the individual in the Muslim ṣalât for the outpouring of the heart's sentiments. It may also be added that prayer, according to the Holy Qur-ân, is the true means of the purification of the heart, for "prayer keeps one away from indecency and evil" (29:45).

17 Spending out of what one has been given stands here for charity in its broadest sense, or the doing of good to all creatures. Like its other institutions useful to humanity, Islam has given a regularity and a permanence to the institution of charity. No one can enter into the brotherhood of Islam unless and until he is willing to give annually a part of his wealth for the support of the poorer members of the brotherhood. The part thus required to be paid into the public funds is called Zakât, which is a kind of tax, amounting generally to a fortieth portion of certain possessions -- a tax which is levied on the rich for the benefit of the poor. The conditions subject to which it is made obligatory, and other details, will be found in the Preface. Besides the obligatory payment, however, the expression used here includes voluntary charitable acts of every kind, from a complete devotion of oneself to the cause of humanity to a smile to one's fellow-being; the last is included in the definition of charity according to an express saying of the Holy Prophet.

18 Of all the religions of the world Islam is the only one that laid down the broad basis of faith in all the prophets of the world, and the recognition of truth in all religions is its distinctive characteristic. The words that which was revealed before you include revelations to all the nations of the world, for we are elsewhere told that "there is not a people but a warner has gone among them" (35:24). The Qur-ân does not, however, mention all the prophets by their names, for "there are some of them that We have mentioned to you, and there are others whom We have not mentioned to you" (40:78). It should also be noted that the word anzala (inf. n. inzāl), which occurs here in connection with revelation, is frequently used in the Qur-ān in the simple sense of irsāl or ibtligh, i.e. the making a thing attain or arrive at or come to a certain place, and does not necessarily imply sending down. Hence, wherever the word is used in connection with Divine messages, I have translated it as revealed, because revelation is the form in which Divine messages are communicated to men. It should also be noted that the singular personal pronoun kiif has been translated as you, while the exact sense of the original is given in the margin invariably.

19 A belief in a life after death is the last of the five fundamental principles of Islam that are stated here. It is only this belief that can make the generality of men conscious of the responsibility of human actions. A life after death, according to Islam, implies a state of existence which begins with death, but a complete manifestation of which takes place later, when the fruits of the actions done in this life take their final shape. It should be borne in mind that a belief in Allah and a belief in the hereafter, being respectively the first and the last of the fundamental principles of Islam as mentioned here, often stand for a belief in all the fundamental principles of Islam, as in vv. 8, 62, etc. That the word ākhirat does not signify the later revelation is made clear by a comparison with a similar use of the word elsewhere, as, for instance, in 12:37, where Joseph is made to say: "Surely I have forsaken the religion of a people who do not believe in Allah and they are deniers of the hereafter"; or in 27:3: "Who keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate, and of the hereafter they are sure." In fact, it is quite unwarranted to take al-ākhirat as meaning some particular revelation to be granted after the Holy Prophet, for the door to revelation is open to all the followers of the Holy Prophet, and thousands have been made to drink deep at this source.

20 The passage سَوَاءٌ عَلَيْهِمْ أُنذَرْتُمْ أَمْ لَمْ تُنذِرْهُمْ is parenthetical (AII), and should be translated as such. The ordinary rendering of the passage, which makes the parenthetical passage an enunciative one, makes the verse meaningless, for it would then run thus: "Surely those who disbelieve, it is alike to them whether you warn them or do not warn them; they will not believe." Now this amounts to saying that no one who has once disbelieved would ever believe, a statement which is absurd on the face of it. Treating the portion quoted above as parenthetical, the meaning is quite clear, viz. disbelievers of a particular type, i.e. those who pay no heed at all to the Prophet's warning, cannot benefit by his preaching. This interpretation makes the passage agree with the spirit of the Holy Qur-ān. Otherwise the preaching of the Qur-ān would be meaningless, for as a matter of fact it was from among those who disbelieved first that the converts to Islam were continually gained.

21 It should be noted that only those disbelievers are spoken of here who so hardened their hearts as not to pay any heed to the Prophet's preaching and warning, as clearly indicated in the previous verse. It is not on every heart that the seal is set, but only on that of the reprobate, the hardened sinners who pay no heed to the call of the reformer. They refuse to open their hearts to receive the truth, and do not lend their ears to listen to it nor use their eyes to distinguish the truth from the falsehood. This is stated clearly in 7: 179: "They have hearts with which they do not understand, and they have eyes with which they do not see, and they have ears with which they do not hear: they are as cattle." And in 41: 5 we have: "And they say, Our hearts are under coverings from that to which you call us, and there is a heaviness in our ears and a veil hangs between us and you." A comparison with these two verses is sufficient to show that what is indicated by "the setting of the seal on the hearts and hearing" in the first case is indicated in the second by "the possession of hearts with which they do not understand, and ears with which they do not hear," and in the third by "their hearts being under coverings and their ears having a heaviness in them." Thus the significance of "their hearts being sealed" is simply this, that they pay no heed to the Prophet's warning, and refuse to understand and hear what he says, and so their very refusal becomes the sealing of their hearts and ears. And as Allah made them taste the consequences of their hoodlessness, He is spoken of as having sealed their hearts and ears.

22 Belief in Allah and the last day is here equivalent to the profession of the faith of Islam. See foot-note 19. The persons spoken of in this verse are the hypocrites, who were a source of constant trouble to the Holy Prophet at Medina. Before he came to that city, Abdulla bin Ubayy was a person of note there, and he expected to become the leader. But the Holy Prophet's advent, and his recognition by all the communities of that city as the head of the republic there, robbed Abdulla of those dearly cherished hopes, and he along with his followers adopted an attitude of hypocrisy towards the Holy Prophet and his companions. The case of the hypocrites is dealt with at length here, in 3: 148-180, 4: 60-152, 9: 38-127, and in the 63rd chapter, and occasionally elsewhere.

23 Khāda'a-hū signifies he strove, endeavoured or desired to deceive him: (LL). . . . One says this of a man when he has not attained his desire, for many a verb of the measure of fa'ala relates to one only as in the instance of عَاتَبَ اللص i.e. I pursued the thief (LA-LL). Khāda'a also indicates, when used concerning the Divine Being, He requited to him his deceit (TA-LL). See further foot-notes 27 and 637. But note that khāda'a also means taraka (Q), i.e. he forsook, as in خَادَعَ الْمَجْد i.e. he forsook glory

14 And when they meet those who believe, they say, We believe; and when they are alone with their devils,²⁶ they say: Surely we are with you, we were only mocking.

15 Allah shall pay them back their mockery,²⁷ and He leaves them alone in their inordinacy, blindly wandering on.

Or ring-leaders.

Or bring disgrace upon them.

وَإِذَا قِيلَ لَهُمْ لَا تُفْسِدُوا فِي الْأَرْضِ قَالُوا إِنَّمَا نَحْنُ مُصْلِحُونَ

وَإِذَا قِيلَ لَهُمْ آمِنُوا كَمَا آمَنَ النَّاسُ قَالُوا أَنُؤْمِنُ كَمَا آمَنَ السُّفَهَاءُ إِنْ هُمْ إِلَّا

اللَّهُ يَسْتَهْزِئُ بِالَّذِينَ هُمْ فِي طَائِفَتِهِمْ يُحْزَنُونَ

(TA-J.L.), and similarly khada'a means he refrained, as in كان فلان يعطى ثم خدع (S-J.L.).

24 The disease is the pain in their hearts due to the advent of the Holy Prophet, for it deprived them of leadership. Allah's adding to this disease signifies that their pain became greater as they witnessed the triumphant progress of Islam. As for attributing this addition to Allah, compare 71:6, where Noah is made to say: "But my call has only made them fly the more." The increase in the disease or the aversion was the result of their own act in each case, but as Allah's raising the Prophet and the triumph of his cause or the invitation of the Prophet became the respective occasions of that act, Allah or the invitation is spoken of as the effective cause. Similarly in 95:5 it is said: "Then we render him the lowest of the low"; whereas the degradation is the result of man's own action and the Divine Being only brings about the consequences of the evil that man does. Or the disease here stands for the weakness of their hearts (AH), for they had not the courage to deny Islam openly, and this weakness only became the greater as the cause of Islam became more and more triumphant.

25 Their idea of making peace was only this, that they mixed with both parties, but they were really taking advantage of this opportunity to sow the seeds of dissension and mischief among the various parties. In fact, they were a constant source of mischief, for whereas outwardly they were with the Muslims, they always plotted against them and gave help to their enemies.

26 By their shayāṭīn or devils are meant their evil companions, as plainly stated in v. 76: "And when they meet those who believe they say, We believe; and when they are alone with one another they say," etc.; where, instead of being alone with their devils, they are spoken of as being alone with others from among themselves. IMsd says that by their devils are meant their leaders in unbelief (IJ). This significance is given in the margin. Kf and Bḍ say by their shayāṭīn or devils are meant those men who made themselves like the devils in their insolence and rebellion. In fact, in the Arabic language the word shayṭān (devil) signifies, as A'Ub puts it, "every insolent or rebellious one from among the jinn and the men and the beasts (Rgh). Hence the word is freely used to indicate insolent men, serpents," etc

27 The word istihsā occurring in this verse is thus explained by Kf: The meaning is,

16 These are they who buy error for the right direction, so their bargain shall bring no gain, nor are they the followers of the right direction.²⁸

17 Their parable is like the parable of one who kindled a fire,²⁹ but when it had illumined all around him, Allah took away their light,³⁰ and left them in utter darkness³¹—they do not see :

أُولَٰئِكَ الَّذِينَ يَشْتَرُونَ الضَّلَالَةَ بِالْهُدَىٰ
فَمَا يَكْتَسِبُونَ خَيْرًا لَهُمْ وَمَا كَانُوا مُهْتَدِينَ
مِثْلَهُمْ كَشَلِّ النَّارِ إِذَا سَوَّقَهَا نَارًا فَلَمَّا
أَضَاءَتْ مَا حَوْلَهُ ذَهَبَ اللَّهُ بِنُورِهِمْ وَتَرَ لَهُمْ فِي ظُلُمٍ لَا يَبْصُرُونَ ۝

the sending down of disgrace and contemptibility, for the object which a mocker has in view is to seek to hold him whom he mocks in light estimation, and to lower his condition, and to bring down contempt and disgrace upon him. The significance of mocking, the equivalent of the Arabic word, which is "treating derisively or contemptuously," lends support to the explanation given by Kf. This significance of the word is, however, given in the margin, while I adopt another which is preferred by the lexicologists, as IA says : "And, it is allowable, and this is regarded as the more preferable explanation by the lexicologists, that the meaning of يستهزئ بهم may be He will requite them with punishment according to their mockery, and thus the punishment of an evil is spoken of in the terms of that evil, another instance of which in the word of Allah is جزاء سيئة سيئة مثلها (lit., the reward of an evil is evil like it), where the second evil is really not an evil (but punishment)." A comparison with 6 : 10 makes this significance still more clear : "And certainly apostles before you were mocked at, but that which they mocked at encompassed the scoffers among them," where the punishment of mockery is spoken of as their being overtaken by what they mocked at. There are many instances of this in Arabic literature. AH quotes the following verse :

الَا لَا يَجْمَلُن أَحَد عَلَيْنَا .: فَنَحْضُوقُ جَهْلَ الْجَاهِلِينَ which would literally mean, now surely let no one act ignorantly against us, otherwise we too will act ignorantly, with an ignorance above that of the ignorant, where what is really implied is the punishment of the ignorant. Hence, Allah will pay them back their mockery is the correct translation.

28 The right direction was pointed out to them, but they left it for error, hence they are spoken of as buying error at the price of guidance, i.e. as exchanging the one for the other.

29 The kindler of the fire is the Holy Prophet, who kindled the torch of light. Thus a saying of the Holy Prophet is reported which begins thus : "My example is the example of a man who kindled a fire. . ." (Bkh). This interpretation of the parable is, moreover, in accordance with the next parable, where the rain is unanimously agreed upon as representing the Divine revelation.

30 The light of their eyes, which alone could make them take advantage of the light which was lit up by the Holy Prophet, was taken away. The act of taking away the light of their eyes is attributed to Allah, who is not the effective but the remote cause of the disappearance of their sight. See foot-notes 21 and 24.

31 The word zulmāt is plural of zulmat, i.e. darkness. The plural is used to denote the intensity of the darkness, as if there were layers of darkness, one above another. Hence I give utter darkness as the equivalent of the plural form.

18 Deaf, dumb, (and) "blind,"³² so they will not turn back.

19 Or like abundant rain (pouring forth) from the cloud³³ in which is utter darkness and thunder and lightning; they put their fingers into their ears because of the thunder-peal, for fear of death, and Allah encompasses the unbelievers.

Ar. eyes.

20 The lightning almost takes away their sight; whenever it shines on them they walk in it, and when it becomes dark to them they stand still; and if Allah had pleased He would certainly have taken away their hearing and their sight; surely Allah has power over all things.

SECTION 3

Divine Unity

21, 22. The Lord to be served alone. 23, 24. Challenge to doubters of revelation. 25. Fruits of faith. 26, 27. Parable of false deities and the objections thereto. 28. Testimony of human nature. 29. Everything is created for man's benefit.

21 O men! serve your Lord Who created you and those before you so that³⁴ you may guard (against evil),

يَا أَيُّهَا النَّاسُ اعْبُدُوا رَبَّكُمُ الَّذِي خَلَقَكُمْ
وَالَّذِينَ مِنْ قَبْلِكُمْ لَعَلَّكُمْ تَتَّقُونَ ۝

32 The description seems to apply to those spoken of in v. 5, and accordingly the first parable may apply to them instead of to the hypocrites; or it may apply to those Hypocrites who persisted in the wrong course and refused to take any advantage of the light and guidance brought by the Prophet.

33 Samā is literally the higher or the upper, or the highest or the uppermost part of anything, and it means the sky or the heaven, the clouds or a cloud (TA). It is a collective noun and is used both as singular and plural (LL). The rain in the parable represents the Divine revelation, and the darkness and thunder stand for the trials, distresses, and afflictions which were a necessary concomitant to the spread of truth, while the lightning represents the good that they occasionally met with even in the midst of those distresses and difficulties. It is to these trials and hardships that reference is made in the words, when it becomes dark to them they stand still. The same idea is expressed in 22:11 in the following words: "And among men is he who serves Allah standing on the verge, so that if good befalls him he is satisfied therewith, but if a trial afflicts him he turns back headlong." The difficulties and distresses which the Muslims experienced in the early days of Islam greatly obstructed its spread and held back many of the weak-hearted, who, under better circumstances, would have gladly joined its ranks.

34 La'alla in its original acceptation expresses hope, but in the word of God it often expresses certainty and may be rendered "verily" (LL). According to AH, la'alla signifies kai, meaning so that. The reason given is that when a great and generous man gives hope, he no doubt intends to fulfil it, and thus in his case it really stands for a promise.

22 Who made the earth a resting-place for you and the heaven a structure,³⁵ and (Who) sends down rain from the cloud then brings forth with it subsistence for you of the fruits; therefore do not set up rivals to Allah while you know.

23 And if you are in doubt as to that which We have revealed to Our servant, then produce a chapter like it³⁶ and call on your helpers besides Allah if you are truthful.³⁷

Or, cloud, a canopy.

Or, leaders.

الَّذِي جَعَلَ لَكُمُ الْأَرْضَ فِرَاشًا
وَالسَّمَاءَ بِنَاءً وَأَنْزَلَ مِنَ السَّمَاءِ مَاءً فَأَخْرَجَ
بِهِ مِنَ الشَّجَرِ رِزْقًا لَكُمْ فَلَا تَجْعَلُوا
لِلَّهِ أَدُلًا وَإِن كُنْتُمْ تَعْلَمُونَ
وَإِنْ كُنْتُمْ فِي رَيْبٍ مِّمَّا أَنْزَلْنَا عَلَى عَبْدِنَا
فَأْتُوا بِسُورَةٍ مِثْلِهِ وَادْعُوا شُهَدَاءَكُمْ
مِنْ دُونِ اللَّهِ إِنْ كُنْتُمْ صَادِقِينَ

35 The word samā, as shown in foot-note 33, signifies really the higher or the upper regions, and hence it may be rendered as heaven, i.e. the expanse of space surrounding the earth and appearing above and around as a great arch or vault in which the sun, the moon, and the stars seem to be set. The word binā signifies a structure (LL) in its widest sense, viz. any production or piece of work consisting of parts joined together in some definite manner. Thus, in a saying of Solomon the word binā is applied to the human body:

accursed, the meaning being من قتل نفسا بغير حق i.e. whoever kills a person unjustly (IAs). The heaven is here called a structure because it is the handiwork of Allah. The word binā is also used to signify the roof or the ceiling of a house, and as such it is used figuratively to indicate the vast blue overhead. It may be added, however, that the word samā is used in various other senses, its significance as cloud being of very frequent occurrence, and even here it may carry this significance, which is supported by the words that follow it.

36 A similar challenge is contained in 10:38, and in 11:13 the doubters are challenged to produce ten chapters like it, while in 17:88 the whole of mankind are declared to be unable to produce a book like the Qur-ān. Is it a question of mere style and diction? The Qur-ān itself does not say so, nor does any saying of the Holy Prophet. That the Qur-ān is a unique production of Arabic literature and has ever been regarded as the standard of the purity of that literature goes without saying, but the chief characteristic of the Holy Book, in which no other book can claim equality, is the wonderful transformation which it accomplished, and it is to this characteristic that it lays claim in the very commencement when it says: "This Book, there is no doubt in it, is a guide to those who guard against evil." That the transformation wrought by it is unparalleled in the history of the world is admitted on all hands, for if the Holy Prophet was the "most successful of all prophets and religious personalities" (En. Br. 11th ed., Art. Koran), this success was due to no other cause than the Qur-ān. Its injunctions swept off the most deep-rooted evils, like idolatry and drunkenness, so as to leave no trace of them in the Arabian peninsula, welded the warring elements of Arabian society into one nation, and made an ignorant people the foremost torchbearers of knowledge and science. Besides, every word of the Qur-ān gives expression to Divine majesty and glory in a manner which is not approached by any other sacred book; hence the challenge of the Holy Qur-ān remains unanswered to this day.

37 The word shuhadā, translated as helpers or leaders, is the plural of shahid, meaning one who gives information of what he has witnessed, or one who knows and declares what he knows, or one possessing much knowledge (LL). Shahid also means an imām or a leader (Rz), or it here signifies helpers (Bd).

24 But if you do (it) not—and never shall you do (it)—then be on your guard against the fire of which men and stones are the fuel;³⁸ it is prepared for the unbelievers.

25 And convey good news to those who believe and do good deeds, that they shall have gardens in which rivers flow;³⁹ whenever they shall be given a portion⁴⁰ of the fruit thereof, they shall say: This is what was given to us before; and they shall be given the like of it,⁴¹ and they shall have pure mates⁴² in them, and in them they shall abide.

فَإِنْ لَّمْ تَفْعَلُوا وَلَنْ تَفْعَلُوا فَاتَّقُوا
النَّارَ الَّتِي ذُكِّرْتُهَا لِلنَّاسِ فِي الْحَجَارَةِ
أَعِدَّتْ لِلْكَافِرِينَ
وَبَشِّرِ الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّالِحَاتِ أَنَّ
لَهُمْ جَنَّاتٍ تَجْرِي مِنْ تَحْتِهَا الْأَنْهَارُ
كُلَّامًا رِزْقًا مِنْ شَرِّهِ رِزْقًا
قَالُوا هَذَا الَّذِي رَزَقْنَا مِنْ قَبْلُ
وَأَنْتُمْ بِهَا مُتَشَابِهَةٌ وَهُمْ فِيهَا أَزْوَاجٌ
مُطَهَّرَةٌ وَهُمْ فِيهَا خَالِدُونَ

38 The word stones stands for al-hijarah, the plural of hajar, meaning stone, so called because it resists by reason of its hardness (the verb hajara signifies he prevented, hindered, forbade, etc.) (L.L.); and by stones are here generally understood the idols which the Arabs worshipped, even unhewn stones being sometimes the objects of worship among them. As nār, or fire, is a symbol of war among the Arabs, testimony to which is borne by the Qur-ān itself in the words: Whenever they kindle a fire for war, Allah puts it out (5: 64), the allusion here may be to both men and idols perishing in their wars against the Holy Prophet as a proof of the punishment awaiting them in the life after death. But the word hijarah may bear another significance. According to L.A. you say: "Such an one was assailed with the hajar of the earth" when his assailant is a formidable man. And when Mu'aviyah named 'Amar-ibn-'Aṣ as one of the two umpires to decide the quarrel between himself and 'Ali, Aḥnaf said to 'Ali: قد رميت نحر الارض Thou hast had a most exceedingly sagacious and crafty and politic man made to be an assailant against thee (L.L.). The reference in hijarah may therefore be to the leaders spoken of in the previous verse.

39 Gardens with rivers flowing beneath them is the ever-recurring description of a future life of the righteous that occurs in the Holy Qur-ān. Elsewhere the pure word of faith is compared to a tree which gives its fruit in all seasons (14: 24). Belief is thus like a seed cast into the ground, which grows into a tree and bears fruit when properly nurtured. The rivers represent the good deeds which are necessary to the growth of the seed. There is also a hint at the Muslims' conquests, for which see 2419.

40 Rizq also signifies hazz or a portion (L.L.). The fruits of the life after death are the consequences of the deeds done in this life.

41 The meaning seems to be that whenever the faithful shall be made to taste of a portion of the fruits of their good deeds, in the life to come, they shall find those fruits so much resembling the fruits which they tasted spiritually in this life that they shall think that the same fruits are given to them again, for the fruits of the next life shall be like the spiritual fruits of this life. Or هذا الذي رزقنا من قبل may signify:

This is what was promised to us before, and the like of it may signify that the fruits of their deeds will be similar to those deeds.

42 The pure mates may be the believing wives of the faithful, as elsewhere we have: "They and their wives shall be in shades reclining on raised couches" (36: 56). But more probably these are among the blessings of the heavenly life to which men and

26 Surely Allah is not ashamed to set forth any parable⁴³—(that of) a gnat or any thing above that; then as for those who believe, they know that it is the truth from their Lord, and as for those who disbelieve, they say: What is it that Allah means by this parable? He causes many to err by it and many He leads aright by it; but He does not cause to err by it (any) except the transgressors.⁴⁴

إِنَّ اللَّهَ لَا يَسْتَعِزُّ أَنْ يُفَرِّبَ مَثَلًا
مَا بَعُوضَةً فَمَا تَوَقَّهَاءَ فَمَا الَّذِينَ
آمَنُوا يَعْلَمُونَ أَنَّهُ الْحَقُّ مِنْ رَبِّهِمْ
وَأَمَّا الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا فَيَقُولُونَ مَاذَا
أَرَادَ اللَّهُ بِهَذَا مَثَلًا يُضِلُّ بِهِ
كَثِيرًا وَيَهْدِي بِهِ كَثِيرًا وَمَا يُضِلُّ بِهِ إِلَّا الْفَاسِقِينَ ۝

women are equally entitled. The true nature of these blessings is pointed out elsewhere under the word hūr in foot-note 2356, but it may be remarked here that all the blessings of heavenly life are, according to a saying of the Holy Prophet, "things which no eye has seen and no ear has heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man to conceive of them." The words in which these blessings are depicted in the Holy Qur-ān, therefore, should not be taken too literally.

43 The parables to which reference seems to have been made specially in these words are the parables speaking of the weakness of the false deities, as the parable of the spider in 29:41: "The parable of those who take guardians besides Allah is as the parable of the spider that makes for itself a house, and most surely the frailest of the houses is the spider's house"; and the parable of the fly in 22:73: "O people! a parable is set forth, therefore listen to it: Surely those whom you call upon besides Allah cannot create a fly though they should all gather for it, and should the fly carry aught from them, they could not take it back from it: weak are the invoker and the invoked."

Instead of the spider and the fly, however, the gnat is mentioned here because the ba'ūḍah, or the gnat, is among the Arabs a proverbially weak creature, so that to express the utmost degree of weakness they say: اضعف من بعوضة i.e. weaker than the gnat.

44 This verse affords a clear explanation as to how it is that Allah causes people to err. Allah does not lead them astray or show them a wrong path or compel them to walk in error, but it is when a man becomes a transgressor, that is, goes beyond the limits set forth, that Allah causes him to err, Allah's causing a man to err being really equivalent to His pronouncing the judgment of being in error against a man, because we have it plainly stated here that He does not cause any one to err unless he first becomes a transgressor. The word adalla is used in this sense in the Arabic language, as in the verse of

Tarfā وما زال شرى الراح حتى اضلنى صديقى وساعى نى بعض ذاك where اضلنى صديقى as the context clearly shows, signifies my friend pronounced me to be in error. In connection with this subject it should be further borne in mind, firstly, that as here it is stated that Allah does not cause to err any except the transgressors, so elsewhere it is the unjust (14:27), the extravagant (40:34), the unbelievers (40:74) who are spoken of as being caused to err by Allah, and secondly, that it is the devil who leads astray (28:15, etc.), or the ignorant leaders of the people who make people to walk in error (6:120, 41:29, etc.). Hence iqḍāl, or causing to err, cannot be ascribed to Allah in the sense of leading astray, because in that sense it is applied to the devil.

27 Who break the covenant of Allah after its confirmation and cut asunder what Allah has ordered to be joined, and make mischief in the land; these it is that are the losers.

28 How do you deny Allah and you were dead and He gave you life? Again He will cause you to die and again bring you to life, then you shall be brought back to Him.

29 He it is who created for you all that is in the earth, and⁴⁵ He directed Himself to the heaven, so He made them complete seven heavens,⁴⁶ and He knows all things.

45 Summa (rendered here as and) generally denotes then or afterwards, and is a particle denoting order and delay, but there are many examples of its use in Arabic in which it implies neither order nor delay. LL, while mentioning this, quotes 39:6, بَخْلَقْتُمْ مِنْ نَفْسٍ وَاحِدَةٍ ثُمَّ جَعَلْنَا مِنْهَا رُوحًا where it is clear that the creation of all men from a single soul was not prior in order to the creation of the mate. Another example quoted is the ordinary Arab saying i.e. what thou didst to-day excited my wonder, then (I tell thee) what thou didst yesterday was more wonderful. Summa is used here, though what was done yesterday was prior to what was done to-day (LL). The use of summa in this verse corresponds to its use in this saying, being simply a particle of junction without conveying any idea of order or delay, hence I render it as and, because that is the correct significance here. According to Akh and other authorities, summa has often the meaning of wav, i.e. and (LL). For the statement that the earth was made after the heavens, see 79:30.

46 It is impossible to deal with the subject of the Quranic cosmogony within the limits of a foot-note. But a few suggestions may be made here. In the first place it should be noted that the word sab'a, which signifies the number seven in the Arabic language, is also used in a vague manner, as meaning seven, or more, several or many, as Bq says in 9:80 (LL). According to LA, the Arabic equivalents of the numbers seven, seventy, and seven hundred are all used to indicate a large number by the Arabs: "The mention of seven and seventy and seven hundred is frequent in the Qur-án and the sayings of the Holy Prophet, and the Arabs use them to signify a large number and multiplicity." Similarly Az explains the word sab'ina, meaning seventy, as occurring in 9:80, as being "used to signify a large number and multiplicity, not indicating exactness in number," and thus, he says, the meaning of ان تستغفر لهم سبعين مرة is, if you pray frequently and ask forgiveness for the hypocrites (LA), giving frequently in place of seventy as conveying the true sense of the word sab'ina. Hence the seven heavens may signify a large number of heavens. Secondly, the significance of the word samad, which means only what we see above us, should not be lost sight of. Rgh makes the meaning very clear when he says: "Every samad, i.e. heaven, is a heaven in relation to what is beneath it and an earth in relation to what is above it." Thirdly, in 65:12 it is affirmed that as there are seven heavens, so there is a like number of earths, which corroborates the conclusion drawn above. Fourthly, the seven heavens are on one occasion called the seven ways

Man's vast Capabilities

30. Man's high place in creation. 31-33. His vast capabilities for knowledge. 34. The powers of goodness and the powers of evil. 35. He is forbidden to approach the tree. 36. Tempted by evil, he loses peace of mind and mutual enmity reigns on earth. 37. Repentance brings him back to Divine favour. 38, 39. Those who follow truth shall be in peace, but those who waste their opportunity shall be in torment.

Ar. thy. 30 And when your Lord said to the angels,⁴⁷ I am going to place in the *earth*⁴⁸ one who
Or land. shall rule⁴⁹ (in it), they said:
What! wilt Thou place in it such as shall make mischief in it and shed blood,⁵⁰ and we

Thy holiness?⁵¹ He said: Surely
I know what you do not know.

لَمَّا قَالَ رَبُّكَ لِلْمَلٰئِكَةِ اِنِّىْ جَاعِلٌ
فِى الْاَرْضِ خَلِيفَةً قَالُوا اَجْعَلْ فِيْهَا
مَنْ يُّفْسِدُ فِيْهَا وَيَسْفِكُ الدِّمَآءَ
وَنَحْنُ نُسَبِّحُ بِحَمْدِكَ وَنُقَدِّسُ لَكَ
قَالَ اِنِّىْ اَعْلَمُ مَا لَا تَعْلَمُوْنَ

(23: 17), and in this sense the orbit of a planet may be called its heaven. In fact, this interpretation makes the significance of 65: 12 very clear, for each of the seven earths will thus have a heaven for it. The seven earths, together with our earth, would thus make up the eight major primary planets of the solar system. Or the seven heavens may be taken to apply to the whole starry creation, and the reference may in this case be to the seven magnitudes of the stars which may be seen by the naked eye.

One point more may be noted here. The samad, or the heaven, is plainly called dukhān i.e. smoke or vapour, in 41: 11.

47 The Arabic word for angels is malā'ikah, which is the plural of malak. The word is said to be derived either from the same root as meaning power, because the angels are beings that execute the Divine will, being, as it were, in charge of the various powers working in the universe; or from alukah (the singular in this case being mal'ak, which would be an altered form of ma'lak), meaning risālat, i.e. bearing messages, because they are beings that act as intermediaries between Allah and man (IJ). Both root ideas thus contain a reference to the principal function ascribed to the angels. The existence of such intermediaries has been recognized by righteous men in all ages and all countries. Other points relating to their functions will be discussed in their proper place.

It will also be seen, from what has been said above as to the functions of the angelic beings, that Allah's saying to them is really the expression of an intention which is to be brought into execution. It is not a talk, or a conversation, or a consultation with the angels, but it is an expression of the Divine will to those intermediary beings who are entrusted by the Divine Being with the execution of it. It may also be added that by the angels here are meant the angels entrusted with this particular affair, and not all the angels of the universe (IJ).

48 Arḍ may mean the earth, or any one land or country in particular. In the latter sense the word is used elsewhere in the Holy Qur-ān, and here also some understand by it the Meccan territory (Rz).

49 This shows the high place that man was destined to hold in the whole of creation. The original word khālīfah (from khālafa, meaning he came after, or succeeded another that had perished or died), means primarily a successor, and hence the supreme or the greatest ruler who supplies the place of him who has been before him (TA-LI). The "Caliph" of English writers is the same word, and indicates a successor of the Holy Prophet. IMad and I'Ab explain khālīfah as meaning one who judges among, or rules, the 50, 51, see next page.

31 And He gave Adam⁵² knowledge of all the things,⁵³ then presented them to the angels; then He said: Tell Me the names of those if you are right.⁵⁴

32 They said: Glory be to Thee! we have no knowledge but that which Thou hast taught us; surely Thou art the Knowing, the Wise.

33 He said: O Adam! inform them of their names. Then when he had informed them of their names, He said: Did I not say to you that I surely know what is unseen in

وَعَلَّمَ آدَمَ الْأَسْمَاءَ كُلَّهَا ثُمَّ عَرَضَهُمْ

هَؤُلَاءِ إِنْ كُنْتُمْ صَادِقِينَ
قَالُوا سُبْحَانَكَ لَا عِلْمَ لَنَا إِلَّا بِمَا عَلَّمْتَنَا
إِنَّكَ أَنْتَ الْعَلِيمُ الْحَكِيمُ
قَالَ يٰ آدَمُ أَنْبِئْهُمْ بِأَسْمَاءِ هَؤُلَاءِ
فَلَمَّا أَنْبَأَهُمْ بِأَسْمَائِهِمْ قَالَ
أَلَمْ أَقُلْ لَكُمْ إِنِّي أَعْلَمُ غَيْبَ

creatures of Allah by His command (IJ). What is stated here is, so far as I can understand, an allegorical description of the preference of man above the whole of the creation on this earth, and then of the election of those righteous servants of Allah from among men themselves who lead others into the right path. One of the significances suggested by the commentators is that the word khalifah here refers to the children of Adam (Az), i.e. the whole of mankind. The correctness of this view is corroborated by the Qur-ān itself, which says, referring to the whole of mankind: "He it is who has made you rulers in the earth" (6: 166), the word used for rulers being khalāif, plural of khalifah. Hence the reference here seems to be to the whole of mankind. References to Adam are contained in 2: 30-39, and in 3: 58, 4: 11-25, 15: 28-44, 17: 61-65, 18: 50, 20: 115-124, and 38: 71-85. The foot-notes on these passages may be referred to for further explanations.

50 The reference in this question is apparently to the darker side of the picture of humanity. Man's desire to rule has always led him to make mischief in the land and shed the blood of fellow-men.

51 Tasbīḥ, or the glorification of the Divine Being, stands really for a declaration that He is free from every imperfection or impurity, or from everything derogatory to His glory (LL), and the angels' declaration of Divine glory signifies that such an imperfection cannot be ascribed to Him as that He should make those to be the rulers of the earth who do but shed blood, and in whom the evil therefore outweighs the good. On the other hand, the shedding of blood is sometimes necessary to remedy evil and to uproot tyranny.

52 Neither here nor anywhere else in the Holy Qur-ān is it affirmed that Adam was the first man, or that there was no creation by God before Adam, nor that Adam lived or man was created, or the earth made, only six thousand years ago.

53 Explaining asmā, which literally signifies names (being plural of ism, meaning a name). Rz says: "He taught him the attributes of things and their descriptions and their characteristics, for the attributes of a thing are indicative of its nature." Giving Adam the knowledge of things therefore signifies the vast capability of Adam and the superiority of his knowledge to that of the angels. Or, the reference may be to the faculty of speech, which is the real source of the excellence of man above the whole of creation. To this the Holy Qur-ān refers elsewhere too, see foot-note 2405 on 55: 3, 4, which says: "He created man, taught him the mode of expression."

54 Man might be a maker of mischief and a shedder of blood, but he possessed vast capability for knowledge, and hence the angels' estimate of man, which looked only to the darker side of the picture, was not a right estimate. Evil there might be in him, but the good was preponderant.

Note that ṣidq (lit., truth) sometimes signifies ṣawab, or that which is right, as kizb (lit., falsehood) sometimes signifies khafā, i.e. that which is wrong (Rz).

the heavens and the earth and (that) I know what you manifest and what you did hide?⁵⁵

Or, do homage (to Allah) on account of Adam.

34 And when We said to the angels, Make obeisance to Adam,⁵⁶ they did obeisance, but Iblis⁵⁷ (did it not)⁵⁸: he refused and he was proud, and he was one of the unbelievers.⁵⁹

السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ وَأَعْلَمُ مَا
تَبْدُونَ وَمَا كُنْتُمْ تَكْمُلُونَ
وَلَوْ كُنَّا لِلْإِسْلَامِ أَسْبَدَ وَإِلَادَمَ
فَسَجَدُوا إِلَّا إِبْلِيسَ ابْنِ وَاسْتَكْبَرَ
وَكَانَ مِنَ الْكَافِرِينَ

55 "What you did hide" refers to those great qualities in man which preponderate the evil in him, and which remain hidden until they are made manifest through the Divine gift of knowledge. The immense capability of man for progress remains hidden, while the evil of shedding blood is manifested in a very primary stage in his growth.

56 Sajada is really synonymous with khaja'a, i.e. he was lowly or submissive (TA-LL). In the Muslim prayer the sujūd is performed by placing one's forehead with both hands and knees on the ground. But in the Holy Qur-ān the word is frequently used to signify simple submission. And you also say سجد له meaning he saluted him or he paid respect or honour to him (Ham-LL). It is in the sense of paying respect or making submission that the word is used here.

But the lām following the verb sometimes means on account of. Thus in a saying of the Holy Prophet it is said, كان يذلل للطالع the significance being that when the arrow came in such a manner as to go beyond the butt, passing over it, he used to lower himself to it (LL), i.e. lower his head on account of the arrow. Similarly you say السفينة i.e. the ship bends or inclines by reason of the wind (TA).

Hence the alternative significance given in the margin.

What is the significance of the angels paying respect or making obeisance to Adam? No one would suppose that the angels of the universe were all brought before Adam and made to worship Adam by placing their foreheads on the ground. The angels, as already stated, are the intermediaries through whom the Divine will is executed. When man attains to perfection by reason of his knowledge of things Divine, i.e. when he is divinely inspired, the powers of goodness of which the angels are in charge are made submissive to him, but the powers of evil still continue to oppose him, until after some tribulations and trials he overcomes them. This is made clear on two occasions, in 15:29 and 38:72, in the Qur-ān itself, where it is said, speaking of Adam: "So when I have made him complete, and breathed into him of My inspiration, then fall down, making obeisance to him." Here, instead of mentioning the giving of the knowledge of things prior to the angels' making obeisance, it is stated that Divine inspiration was breathed into Adam, which shows that the two statements carry the same significance.

It may also be added that the Holy Qur-ān does not always use the word Adam in a particular sense. It is used in the general sense, meaning humanity, and obeisance of angels to Adam has also a general significance. As for instance 7:10-11 run: "And certainly We have established you (man) in the earth, and made in it means of livelihood for you; little it is that you give thanks. And certainly We created you, then We fashioned you, then We said to the angels, Make obeisance to Adam" (7:11). In another verse, on a similar occasion, the word bashar (man) itself has been used: "When your Lord said to the angels: I am going to create a mortal (basharan) from dust; so when I have made him complete and breathed into him of My inspiration, then fall down making obeisance to him" (38:71-72).

35 And We said : O Adam ! dwell you and your wife in the garden,⁶⁰ and eat from it a plenteous (food)⁶¹ wherever you wish, and do not approach this tree,⁶² for then you will be of the unjust.

36 But the devil made them both fall from it,⁶³ and caused them to depart from that (state)

وَقُلْنَا يَا آدَمُ اسْكُنْ أَنْتَ وَزَوْجُكَ
الْجَنَّةَ وَكُلَا مِنْهَا رَغَدًا حَيْثُ
شِئْتُمَا وَلَا تَقْرَبَا هَذِهِ الشَّجَرَةَ
فَتَكُونَا مِنَ الظَّالِمِينَ
فَأَزَلَّهُمَا الشَّيْطَانُ عَنْهَا فَأَخْرَجَهُمَا مِمَّا

57 Iblis was not one of the angels, as is shown by 18: 50, which says that he was "of the jinn, so he transgressed." Of the angels it is said in 66: 6 that "they do not disobey Allah in what He commands them, and do as they are commanded." Hence Iblis represents the powers of evil as distinguished from the powers of goodness. It should further be borne in mind that Iblis and Satan (Ar. shaitân) refer to one and the same being. The Qur-ân uses the word Iblis when the Evil one's evil is limited to himself, but Shaitân, or Satan, when his evil affects others besides himself, or Iblis is the proud one, and Satan the deceiver. Thus in the 36th verse he is spoken of by the name of Shaitân, because his evil in that case affects Adam. The word Iblis is derived from balasa, meaning he despaired, and shaitân from shatana, meaning he became distant or remote, or from shûta, meaning he perished.

58 The thing excepted by means of illâ (lit., except) is in some cases disunited in kind from that from which the exception is made, and the statement which follows illâ is therefore a new statement altogether cut off from the first. Therefore instead of adopting the ordinary rendering, with the exception of Iblis, I adopt but Iblis did it not.

59 He was not declared an unbeliever because of his having refused to make obeisance to Adam; but he refused to do obeisance because he was already an unbeliever, which further corroborates the statement that Iblis or Satan is a being that works evil.

60 It is clear from v. 30 that man was placed on earth, which he was intended to rule. The placing in the garden signifies leading a life of ease and comfort which is not attended with difficulties and troubles, as is shown by the words that follow: "Eat from it a plenteous food wherever you wish." And more clearly still the life in the garden is thus described in 20: 117-119: "Therefore let him not drive you both forth from the garden, so that you should be unhappy. Surely it is ordained for you that you shall not be hungry therein nor bare of clothing, and that you shall not be thirsty therein, nor shall you feel the heat of the sun." All this shows that life in the garden meant a life of comfort, ease, and happiness in which there was no difficulty or distress.

61 Raghadan here either qualifies an understood noun, and the construction is كُلَا رَغَدًا, i.e. a plenteous food, or it is indicative of the condition of Adam and Eve, for you say, قَوْمٌ رَغَدٌ, i.e. people in a state of life ample in its means, or people having abundance of the goods, conveniences, and comforts of life (L.L), and the words may thus be rendered: Eat from it wherever you wish, having abundance of all things.

62 The tree here may stand for evil, because it is evil which degenerates man, and it is from approaching evil that all the prophets of God have forbidden man. The Qur-ân itself again and again warns man not to approach evil. The figurative use of the word shajarah, or tree, is made manifest in 20: 120, where the devil deceives man by calling him to the tree of immortality and a kingdom which decays not, this description being no doubt just the contrary of what it really was, because the statement was made to deceive Adam. But note that the tree of immortality is the same as the kingdom which decays not, and this establishes the figurative use of the word shajarah.

63 The devil was instrumental in bringing about the change in their condition. From "it" means from the happy condition of life in which they were first placed.

in which they were; and We said: Get forth,⁶⁴ some of you being the enemies of others, and there is for you in the earth an abode and a provision for a time.⁶⁵

37 Then Adam received (some) words from His Lord, so He turned to him (mercifully);⁶⁶ surely He is Oft-returning (to mercy), the Merciful.

38 We said: Go forth from this (state) all; so surely there will come to you a guidance from Me, then whoever follows My guidance, no fear shall come upon them, nor shall they grieve.

39 And (as to) those who disbelieve in and reject Our communications,⁶⁷ they are the inmates of the fire, in it they shall abide.⁶⁸

64 Habṭ no doubt means going down a declivity, or descending from a high place to a low one, but its more frequent use in literature is simply in the sense of removing from one place to another, as in اهبطوا مصرا v. 61, meaning go to, or enter into, a city. It also signifies simply change in condition. According to LL habaṭa means he came forth from it and also he became lowered or degraded. And habṭ further signifies falling into evil; or becoming low or abject; or suffering loss or diminution.

65 The new condition in which man is placed is the condition of the mutual enmity of one to the other. As opposed to the happy state of life it is one in which man has to face distresses and difficulties. It is a state of life which the virtuous and the wicked must equally pass through. In fact, it is only trials and hardships of life that make perfection attainable. The first state of ease is not a state of perfection, as in the child, though it may be a state of ease and comfort, but as man must attain to a state of perfection he has to pass through the necessary trials. This is made clear in v. 38, where all men are told to follow Divine guidance if they would attain to a state of freedom from fear and grief, which in the Holy Qur-ān always represents the goal of life, or the final state of perfection so far as this life is concerned.

66 The Arabic word taubah (repentance) gives us in fact the philosophy of repentance. Tāba originally means he returned, and hence the primary meaning of tāba il-allāh-i is he returned to Allah, and in the religious terminology the word taubah comes to mean the returning to a state of obedience. Thus taubah implies a perfect change in the course of one's life, and this is repentance according to the Holy Qur-ān. The taubah does not imply the utterance of certain words, but an actual change for the better in one's life. The same word tāba is used to express the Divine act of the acceptance of repentance, with reference again to the original meaning of the word, because in this case the Divine Being deals with man mercifully.

67 The word āyat (plural āyāt), which occurs for the first time here, is of very frequent occurrence in the Holy Qur-ān and conveys a number of significances. The primary meaning of āyat is an apparent sign or mark (Rgh) by which a thing is known. Hence it

Fulfilment of Israelite Prophecies in the Holy Qur-án

40-44. The covenant with Israelites and its fulfilment in the appearance of the Prophet. 45, 46. Patience and prayer enjoined.

40 O children of Israel! call to mind My favour which I bestowed on you and be faithful to (your) covenant with Me, I will fulfil (My) covenant with you;⁶⁹ and of Me, Me alone, should you be afraid.

41 And believe in what I have revealed, verifying that which is with you,⁷⁰ and be not the first to deny it, neither take a mean price⁷¹ in exchange for My communications; and Me, Me alone should you fear.⁷²

يَسْمِعِي إِسْرَائِيلَ أَذْكَرُ الْغَافِقِينَ
أَنْعَمْتُ عَلَيْكُمْ وَأَوْفُوا بِعَهْدِي أَوْفٍ
بِعَهْدِكُمْ وَآيَاتِي فَأَرْهَبُونِ
وَآمِنُوا بِمَا أَنْزَلْتُ مُصَدِّقًا لِمَا
كُنْتُمْ تَكْفُرُونَ أَفَوَلَا كَافِرِيهِمْ
لَا تَشَارِقُونَ بَايِعْتِنَا قَبِيلًا

comes to signify a sign as meaning an indication or evidence or proof (TA-LI). In this sense it signifies what is called a mu'jizah or a miracle, instead of which the Holy Qur-án always uses the word áyat, thus showing that the miracles of which it speaks are not wonders, but actual evidence or proof of the truth of a prophet. But the most frequent use of the word áyat in the Holy Qur-án is to signify a message or a communication, and it is in this sense that the word is applied to verses of the Holy Qur-án, i.e. a collection of the words of the Qur-án continued to its breaking, or a portion of the Qur-án after which a suspension of the speech is approvable (TA, Msb-LI). But it generally retains the wider significance of a sign or a mark, or a Divine message or a Divine communication.

68 Khalada signifies originally he remained or abode, or remained or abode long, being synonymous with aqama or with اقام (A). Hence you say khwalid (plural of khulid), meaning the three stones upon which the cooking-pot is placed, so called because of their remaining for a long time after the standing relics of a house have become effaced (LA-LI). Therefore khulidun signifies simply abiding, and does not necessarily convey the idea of perpetuity.

69 Compare Deut. 26: 17-19: "Thou hast avouched the Lord this day to be thy God, and to walk in His ways, and to keep His statutes, and His commandments, and His judgment, and to hearken unto His voice. And the Lord hath avouched thee this day to be His peculiar people, as He hath promised thee, and that thou shouldst keep all His commandments; and to make thee high above all nations which He hath made, in praise, and in name, and in honour." The "hearkening unto the voice of the Lord" means the acceptance of the revelation to the promised prophet of Deut. 18: 18, as Deut. 18: 19 shows clearly: "And it shall come to pass that whosoever will not hearken unto My words which he shall speak in My name, I will require it of him."

70 The verification referred to here is clearly the fulfilment of the promise contained in Deut. 18: 15-18: "The Lord thy God will raise up unto thee a prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto me, unto him ye shall hearken. . . . I will raise them up a prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee, and will put My words in his mouth; and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him." It is nowhere but in the Holy Qur-án that the "word of God," as promised here, is "put into the Prophet's mouth," and no prophet ever claimed to have come in fulfilment of this prophecy except the Holy Prophet Muhammad. The whole of the Israelitish history after Moses is silent as to the appearance of the promised prophet of Deuteronomy. Even Jesus Christ never said that he came in fulfilment of that prophecy, and the apostles truly felt that difficulty when they thought that that prophecy would be fulfilled in the second coming of Christ. But one of the earliest messages of the Holy Prophet was that he was the like of the prophet sent to Pharaoh (73: 15), and the claim is often repeated in the Holy Qur-án.

71 They rejected the commandments of Allah, fearing to lose their high positions as temporal and spiritual leaders of the people, and sacrificed truth to the inducements of this life, and thus took "a mean price" for it, for, as it is said in 4: 77, "The provision of this world's life is short."

72 Where the verb ittaqi occurs with Allah, or with a personal pronoun referring to Him, as its object, as in اتَّقُوا اللَّهَ or اتَّقُونَ the meaning is that they should guard against the threatened punishment of Allah, or be careful of their duty to Allah.

73 "Mixing up the truth with the falsehood" signifies their mixing up the prophecy with their own false interpretations of it, and thus making obscure the prophecy itself, while "hiding of the truth" signifies their concealing the prophecy itself, for they often commanded their followers not to disclose to the Muslims those prophecies which were known to them. Compare v. 76.

74 Those who bow down are the Muslims, and thus they are told to follow the Muslims in their prayers.

75 They are told to wait patiently because the great distinctive sign of the promised prophet of Deut. 18: 18 was that he would utter prophecies which would prove true. "And if thou say in thine heart, How shall we know the word which the Lord hath not spoken? When a prophet speaketh in the name of the Lord, if the thing follow not nor come to pass, this is the thing which the Lord hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously: thou shalt not be afraid of him," Deut. 18: 21, 22. The Qur-án had, in the Prophet's utter helplessness at Mecca, and when the Quraish were day and night planning to take away his very life, uttered forcible predictions of the final triumph of the Prophet and Islam and of the vanquishment and utter destruction of his opponents. In accordance with the test of Deut. 18: 21, 22, the Israelites could have easily seen within a few years that he was the true prophet.

76 Zann signifies thought, opinion or conjecture, and also knowledge or certainty, which

Divine Favours on Israel and their Stubbornness

47, 48. A grievous day awaits the Israelites. 49, 50. Their deliverance from Pharaoh. 51-54. Calf-worship and its punishment. 55, 56. Elders stupefied. 57-59. Provision of manna and quails in wilderness, disobedience of the people, and havoc wrought by pestilence.

47 O children of Israel! call to mind My favour which I bestowed on you and that I made you excel the nations.⁷⁷

“is obtained by considering with endeavour to understand, not by ocular perception, or not such as relates to an object of sense” (LL).

77 By “the nations” are meant the people contemporaneous with the Israelites in their days of triumph, or large masses of people (AH). Numerous prophets were raised among them, and they were made to rule over other nations, and these are the favours of which Moses also reminds them (5 : 20).

78 The day here spoken of overtook the Israelites in this very life as a preliminary to the grievousness of what was to follow in the hereafter. The Jewish tribes living in Medina cast in their lot with the enemies of Islam, giving every kind of secret help to the Meccans and even urging the latter to attack the Muslims, and this notwithstanding a defensive alliance with them. The failure of the Meccans to crush the Muslims was therefore naturally followed by punishment of the traitorous Jews, and the hypocrites and the idolaters who had promised to help them did not come forward. These incidents are dealt with in the 59th chapter.

79 Shafāʿat (meaning intercession) is derived from the root shaf, which signifies the making a thing to be one of a pair (TA-LL) or the adjoining a thing to its like (Rgh-LL), and hence it comes to signify intercession. The doctrine of shafāʿat, or intercession, is a well-known doctrine, according to which the prophets and the righteous will intercede for the sinners on the day of judgment. This doctrine is based on certain passages of the Holy Qur-ān and some sayings of the Holy Prophet, which will be dealt with in the proper place. But intercession has another significance also, which is referred to in 4 : 85, viz. the institution of a way which another imitates, so that the latter, in fact, joins himself to his model, and this is really the primary significance of the doctrine. Thus shafāʿat has a twofold significance, viz. firstly it enables a man to walk in the ways of righteousness by imitating his model, and, secondly, it affords him a shelter from the evil consequences of certain weaknesses which he is unable to overcome by himself.

The statement made here, that intercession shall not be accepted on a certain day, is in reference to those who have not made themselves deserving of intercession by joining themselves with a righteous servant of God, so as to take him for their model. As they fail to realize the primary significance of intercession, its secondary significance cannot avail them. It may also be noted here that intercession is simply an act of grace, and cannot be claimed by the sinner; and this is what is stated here.

80' No details of the oppressions to which the Israelites were subjected are given in the Holy Qur-án. According to Exod. 1: 11, "They did set over them taskmasters to afflict them with their burdens," and Exod. 1: 14, "And they made their lives bitter with hard bondage, in mortar and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field: all their service wherein they made them serve was with rigour."

81 See Exod. 1: 15-18 and also 1: 22: "And Pharaoh charged all his people, saying, Every son that is born ye shall cast into the river, and every daughter ye shall save alive."

82 The Qur-án does not say how the Israelites were made to pass through the sea or in what manner the parting of the sea was brought about. The word bahr means a sea or a river. If it was a river, the explanation is simple. The bed may have been practically in a dry condition when the Israelites passed, but a tide may have swept off Pharaoh's army that pursued them. More probably, however, as the Bible says, it was the northern extremity of the Red Sea, and, according to the Bible, "the Lord caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night" (Exod. 14: 21), thus enabling the Israelites to get through. The Muslim rationalist explanation is simpler still. The Red Sea is shown on the basis of ancient geographies to have had a large number of islands, from which the conclusion is drawn that at that time it was not the deep sea that it now is. The crossing happened at the northern extremity of the left-hand branch, and the shallowness of the sea, combined with the ebb, enabled the Israelites to cross it safely, while the tide drowned the Egyptians (S. A.). See also 1593.

83 "And Moses went into the midst of the cloud, and got him up into the mount: and Moses was in the mount forty days and forty nights" (Exod. 24: 18).

84 Details are contained in 20: 86-97. The story of the making of the calf is contained in the Bible in the 32nd chapter of Exodus. The only important difference is that while the making of the calf is attributed to Aaron in the Bible, the Holy Qur-án declares that prophet to be innocent in the matter, and ascribes the leadership in the making of the calf and its worship to As-Sámirí. The idea of calf or bull worship seems to have been taken from the Egyptians. In the opinion of Renan, Maspero, and König "bull-worship may have been an imitation of the worship of Apis at Memphis or of Mendes at Heliopolis" (En. Bib. col. 631). The writer of the article on the golden calf is, however, of opinion that "adoption from Egypt is unlikely," and his chief reason is that "the Egyptians worshipped only living animals." But the Israelites, too, seem to have been addicted to the worship of living animals in the time of Moses, as the incident narrated in vv 67-71 shows, and the calf was only an image of a living animal, and at any rate your hundred years' contact with the Egyptians could not have been without its influence, bull-worship dating from a very remote antiquity in Egypt. It was for this reason that the Mosaic law laid great stress upon the slaughter of cows, and the commandment mentioned in v. 67 seems to have been given for the same reason. Notwithstanding all that Moses did to uproot this form of idolatry from among the Israelites, the worshipping of the bull appears to have continued up to the time of Hosea, who rails at it in very strong terms (Hos. 8 : 5, 10 : 5).

85 The original word is furqân, an infinitive noun from the root farg, which signifies the making of a distinction between two things, and furqân, according to LL, is anything that makes a separation or distinction between truth and falsity, and hence it signifies a proof or demonstration and also aid or victory. The furqân or distinction which is here spoken of as being given to Moses was Pharaoh's drowning in the sea and the deliverance of the Israelites. The battle of Badr afforded the furqân or distinction in the case of the Holy Prophet, and hence the battle of Badr is called Yaum-ul-furqân or the day of the distinction in 8 : 41.

86 By the people who were ordered to be killed are apparently meant the leaders in the calf-worship. According to the Bible, the children of Levi were commanded to slay the others, and three thousand men were killed on that day. The Holy Qur-ân does not say whether the order was actually carried out ; on the other hand we are told that the wrong was forgiven, though the forgiveness may have been granted after the sentence was executed. It is, however, strange that Aaron, who, according to the Bible, made the image and led the people to calf-worship, was not at all punished.

87 The only reference to this story contained in the Bible is in Exod. 19 : 16, 17, "And it came to pass on the third day in the morning, that there were thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount, and the voice of the trumpet exceeding loud ; so that all the people that was in the camp trembled. And Moses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet with God ; and they stood at the nether part of the mount." But the Talmud gives the details, and the statement in the Qur-ân is thus corroborated.

The ṣa'iqah, as mentioned here, and translated as punishment, is really a cause of death and not death itself (AH, Zj), and it originally signifies thunder or the sound of thunder, and hence any vehement cry (TA-LL) ; it also means any destructive punishment (LL). The same incident is referred to in 7 : 155 in the following words : "And Moses chose out of his people seventy men for Our appointment, and when the earthquake overtook them." Thus the ṣa'iqah of this verse is the same as the earthquake in 7 : 155, and thus it here signifies the rumbling noise which precedes an earthquake.

88 The word maut does not always mean cessation of life. It signifies loss of sensation, deprivation of intellectual faculties, experiencing great grief and sorrow, sleep, etc. (Rgh, LLJ). The maut mentioned in this verse refers to temporary loss of sensation, because on the same occasion Moses is spoken of as having fallen down "in swoon" (7 : 148), and the statement is followed by the words "when he recovered." A similar fate overtook his companions, and therefore the word here signifies only loss of sensation or a swoon or stupor.

89 According to Exod. 13 : 21 and other verses, when the Israelites departed out of Egypt, God gave them a pillar of cloud to direct them in their march. The cloud continued always from that time to attend the Israelites in the wilderness. It was clear and bright during the night, in order to give them light when it grew dark, and in the daytime it was thick and gloomy, the better to defend them from the excessive heat of the Arabian Desert, through which they performed their journey. The Qur-án does not speak of any such pillar of cloud giving light by night and shade by day, a very unnatural phenomenon to continue for forty years, but simply speaks of clouds having given them shade at some point in their journey in the wilderness, when probably a too excessive heat of the Arabian Desert might have become unbearable.

90 The mann and salwá are the manna and quails of Exodus, 16th chapter. Literally, mann is anything which comes to man without much effort (LL), from من عليه meaning he bestowed upon him a favour. In the saying of the Holy Prophet الكسفة من المني

the truffle is spoken of as being mann. LL has the following explanation under the word turanjabeen : "A kind of manna ; the manna of the thorny plants called by the Arabs the háj, and hence by European botanists Alhagi ; according to Dr. Royle it is a sweetish juice which exudes from the Alhagi maurorum, concretes into small granular masses, and is usually distinguished by the name of Persian manna ; a kind of dew that falls mostly in Khurasan and in Ma-wara-un-nahr and in our country, mostly upon the háj ; the best thereof is that which is fresh or moist and white (Ibn Seena), the mann or manna mentioned in the Qur-án." Some say it was honey. Salwá means "whatever renders one content in a case of privation." It is a certain bird resembling the quail (LL). The mann and the salwá formed the food of the Israelites in the wilderness. According to Zj it includes all that Allah bestowed on them as a gift in the wilderness and granted to them freely without much exertion on their part (AH).

91 The city is probably Shittim : "And they pitched by Jordan, from Beth-Jesimoth even unto Abol-Shittim in the plains of Moab," or Jericho, which was near by in the same plain (Num. 33 : 49, 50). Here it was that the worst features of the wickedness of Israel were displayed : "And Israel abode in Shittim, and the people began to commit whoredom with the daughters of Moab" (Num. 25 : 1).

Divine Favours on Israel and their Stubbornness

60. Moses prays for drinking water and finds twelve springs. 61. The Israelites get tired of their food in the wilderness and are told to settle in a city. A life of ease leads to transgression and ultimately to ruin.

60 And when Moses prayed for drink for his people, We said: Seek with your staff a way into the mountain.⁹⁶ So there flowed from it twelve springs; each tribe knew its drinking-place⁹⁷: Eat and drink of the provisions of Allah, and do not act corruptly in the land, making mischief.

92 Entering the gate while making obeisance does not signify that they were commanded to make their entry into the city while their foreheads were on the ground. The meaning is that they were told to remain submissive while abiding in a city where they would be able to enjoy all the comforts of life.

93 Hitta-tun (from hatta, meaning he put it down) is a prayer for the putting down of the heavy burden of sins from one. The Holy Prophet is reported to have said to his followers: "Say, We ask forgiveness of Allah and turn to Him penitently"; and then to have added: "This is, to be sure, the hitta-tun which the Israelites were commanded to say" (I, Hsh, ch. Hudaiyya). Therefore, though some of the commentators have interpreted it as meaning the confession of the unity of Allah or the affair of alighting and abiding in the town, the saying of the Holy Prophet makes it clear that it is only a petition for forgiveness.

94 They acted against the law and the revelation which had been given to them. Changing the Divine revelation signifies changing of the form as well as going against the spirit of the Book. According to the Bible, "The people began to commit whoredom with the daughters of Moab. And they called the people unto the sacrifices of their gods: and the people did eat and bowed down to their gods. And Israel joined himself unto Baal-peor, and the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel" (Num. 25: 1-3).

95 When a punishment overtakes a people as a consequence of their wicked deeds it is spoken of as having come from heaven, the significance probably being that it cannot be averted by ordinary measures. The pestilence spoken of here is referred to in the Bible in Num. 25: 8, 9, according to which 24,000 men died of the plague. The same incident is again referred to in 7: 161, 162.

96 اضرب بعصاك الحجر is ordinarily translated as meaning strike the rock with your staff or rod, but I have adopted a different significance, while another possible significance is: Strike a way into the mountain with your community. The three words forming the phrase require to be explained. First of all we have ḍarb, the primary significance of which is striking or smiting, but according to TA "Ḍarb is used to indicate all kinds of actions except a few." But ḍarb in the sense of going about or seeking a way is of frequent occurrence. ضرب في الارض and ضرب الارض both signify, he journeyed in the land or went forth or hastened in the land (TA-LI). The word is used in this sense in the well-known report of 'Ali, ضرب يعسوب الدين بذنبه i.e. the leader of the religion shall hasten to go away through the land. And you say ضربت الارض كلها which LA explains as meaning I sought him in the whole land. Then there is the word ʿaṣā, the ordinary meaning of which is staff or rod, but the primary significance is the state of combination (TA-LI), and the word is metaphorically used to speak of a community; نشق العصا means the contravening of the collective body or the community (of Al-Islam), and of the khawārij it is said, قد شقوا عصا المسلمين i.e. they made a schism in the state of combination and union, or in the community of the Muslims. Hence the saying اياك وتبيل العصا i.e. beware that you are a slayer or one being slain in making a schism in the community of the Muslims (LA). Similarly انشقت العصا signifies disagreement took place (LA). Hajr means a rock, and also a mountain to which there is no access, as explained by Sa'labī as occurring in a verse of Firazdaq. Hence the translation adopted, as well as the two alternative significations given, is correct so far as the words are concerned. The Bible, of course, does not contain any contemporaneous record of the events, and what it contains does not render much help. In Exod. 17:1-6 we are told that Moses went with the elders to the rock of Horeb, and on his smiting the rock with his rod water flowed out, but there is no mention of twelve springs there, and the flowing of water is stated to have been witnessed only by seventy elders. But as Marah (Exod. 15:23) is now known by the name of 'uyūn-i-Mūsā, i.e. the springs of Moses (Bib. Dict., Cambridge Press, Art. "Wilderness"), it is very doubtful whether the incident referred to in Exod. 17:1-6 is correctly recorded, the more so as there is a hopeless confusion about the other incidents related to have occurred at Rephidim, the scene of the smiting of the rock.

97 The number of springs is in accordance with the number of tribes. Hence it is very probable that the reference in this verse is to the twelve wells at Elim (Exod. 15:27), to which place the Israelites had gone from Marah. Moreover, the twelve tribes, comprising about six hundred thousand souls, could settle on twelve springs apart from each other only if the springs were situated at a distance from each other and did not flow from one source. Compare also the next verse, according to which the demand for a variety of foods is granted by pointing out the natural course of settling in a town and tilling the ground.

98 "We remember the fish which we did eat in Egypt freely; the cucumbers and the melons and the leeks and the onions and the garlic. But now our soul is dried away:

earth grows, of its herbs and its cucumbers and its garlic⁹⁹ and its lentils and its onions. He said: Will you exchange that which is better for that which is worse? Enter a city,¹⁰⁰ so you will have what you ask for. And abasement and humiliation were brought down upon them, and they became deserving of Allah's wrath;¹⁰¹ this was so because they disbelieved in the communications of Allah and killed the prophets unjustly;¹⁰² this was so because they disobeyed and exceeded the limits.

there is nothing at all beside this manna before our eyes. . . . Then Moses heard the people weep throughout their families, every man in the door of his tent" (Num. 11: 5-10).

99 The Arabic word is film, which means both garlic and wheat, but as a second reading has gaum, which is the word for garlic only, the word cannot be properly rendered as wheat.

100 Sale's translation, "Get ye down into Egypt," is wrong. The word misr is used here as a common noun, and means a city. Hazeroth (Num. 11:35) seems to have been the place referred to here, "a station in the desert journey, the second after leaving Sinai, probably to be identified with the modern 'Ain-ul-Hawrah, about forty miles N.E. of Jabal Musa" (Bib. Dict., Cam.).

101 The verse speaks of the ultimate condition to which the Israelites were reduced when they persisted in setting at naught the Divine commandments and indulged in immoral and depraved practices. The reference is more particularly to the later history of Israel. A comparison with 3:111 will show the truth of this remark, for that verse, which is almost identical with the one under discussion, clearly refers to the later history of Israel.

102 As shown above, the words refer to the later history of Israel, and there is no anachronism in the commentator's citing instances of the murder of John the Baptist and of Zacharias, son of Barachias, by the Jews. That prophets were murdered by the Jews is borne out by the testimony of Jesus, who holds them guilty for "all the righteous blood shed upon the earth, from the blood of righteous Abel unto the blood of Zacharias" (Matt. 23: 35), and condemns them for their hypocritical assertion that "if we had been in the days of our fathers, we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the prophets" (Matt. 23: 30). There is no doubt an allusion here to the Jewish plans against the life of the Holy Prophet Muhammad.

Israelites' Degeneration

62. Salvation is not the monopoly of one nation. 63, 64. Covenant with Israel and its violation 65, 66. Sabbath breakers reduced to abjectness. 67-71. Moses orders the slaughter of a cow as a remedy against cow-worship.

103 The Sabians are mentioned in the Holy Qur-ān on three occasions only, here and in 5:69 along with the Jews and the Christians, and in 22:17 with these and the Magians. According to En. Br., the Sabians were a semi-Christian sect of Babylonia, closely resembling the so-called "Christians of St. John the Baptist." The probable derivation of the name is traced to an Aramaic root, and the root meaning is said to be those who wash themselves, and this is said to be corroborated by Arab writers applying to them the name Al-mughtasilah. The idea that the Sabians were star-worshippers is rejected, the error, it is said, being due to the pseudo-Sabians of Harrian, who chose to be known by that name in the reign of Al-Mamoon, in 830 A.D., in order to be classed as the "followers of the Book." The commentators hold different opinions regarding them, most of them agreeing that they are representatives of a religion between Judaism and Christianity, based on the doctrine of unity, but also maintaining worship of angels. The majority do not include them in the Ahl-il-kitāb, i.e. the followers of the Book (AH).

104 This verse strikes at the root of the idea of a favoured nation whose members alone may be entitled to salvation. The subject is introduced here to show that even the Jews, notwithstanding those transgressions which had made them deserving of Divine wrath, were entitled to a goodly reward if they believed and did good deeds. It should be borne in mind that, as shown in foot-note 9, belief in Allah and the last day is equivalent to belief in Islam as the true religion. The statement made amounts to this, that salvation cannot be attained by mere lip-profession by the Muslims, nor by any other people unless they adhere to a true belief and good actions. As to those who stick to their own religions, we are told in 22:17 that "Allah will judge between them on the day of resurrection." The existence of good men in other religions is not denied by the Holy Qur-ān, but perfect peace, or the state of absolute contentment which is indicated by freedom from grief and fear, is obtainable only in Islam, because Islam alone is the religion of absolute submission to the Divine Being.

105 "They stood at the nether part of the mount" (Exod. 19:17). There is nothing in the words of the Qur-ān to support the baseless story that the mountain was suspended in mid-heaven over the heads of the Israelites to frighten them into submission (see foot-note 957). The use of the word rafa' is in accordance with the Arabic idiom, for it signifies 64 Then you turned back after that; so were it not for the grace of Allah and His mercy on you, you would certainly have been among the losers.

65 And certainly you have known those among you who exceeded the limits of the Sabbath,¹⁰⁶ so We said to them: Be (as) apes, despised and hated.¹⁰⁷

the rearing or uprearing of a building, or making it high or lofty (Rgh-LL). In this sense the word is used in v. 127.

106 The root-meaning of sabt (from which Sabt, meaning Sabbath, is derived) is cutting off (Rgh). This is also the opinion of Az, who denies that the word sabt conveys the significance of rest (LL). The Sabt or the Sabbath is so called because the Jews ceased thereon from work (TA). The Jews and the Christians observed a particular day for religious worship, and they were forbidden to do any work on that day. In this sense there is no Sabbath among the Muslims, because in Islam no particular day is set apart for Divine worship. On the other hand, the Muslim is required to pray in the very midst of his everyday work, and even the Juma' (Friday) prayers are no exception, for the Qur-ān expressly allows the doing of work both before and after the Juma' prayers (see foot-note 2505).

The commandments regarding the observance of the Sabbath by the Jews are manifold, but we find the Jews so persistently violating them that the later prophets openly reproved them for it (see foot-note 107).

107 Mjd explains this in the following words: They were not transformed or metamorphosed; it is only a parable which Allah has set forth for them, the like of what He has set forth in likening them to asses (62: 5), i.e. their hearts were transformed, not that they were metamorphosed into apes (IJ). The verse that follows lends support to this explanation, as a monkey could not afford a lesson to the generations that came after the metamorphosis had taken place, but the abject condition to which the Israelites were reduced could do so. Rgh observes in explaining this verse: It is said that He rather made them morally like apes. Compare also 5: 60: "(Worse is he) whom Allah has cursed, and brought His wrath upon him, and of whom He made apes and swine, and he who served the devil: these are worse in place and more erring from the straight path." This description of the same people clearly shows that it is men who imitate apes and swine that are meant. See also 4: 47: "Or (We shall) curse them as We cursed the violators of the Sabbath." Now, in the case of the Holy Prophet's opponents from among the Jews, who are referred to in the words We shall curse them, there was no metamorphosis, but here it is stated that the same curse must overtake them as overtook the violators of the Sabbath. A reference to Deuteronomy, 28th chapter, will show that the curses which Moses prophesied for them meant their being scattered among the nations of the earth, and this was the fate which overtook the Prophet's enemies from among the Jews. The etymology of the word qiradah supports the above view. The preterite form qarida signifies it (wool) fell off by degrees from the sheep, and also, he became abject, or became silent by reason of abjectness (LL). Qiradah is the plural of qird, meaning an ape, and among the Arabs the ape is a proverbially incontinent animal. Arabs say ازنى من قرد i.e. more incontinent than an ape (LL). Turning to the Bible, we find that the Israelites became apes in all the senses in which that word is used in the Arabic language by violating the Divine commandments: "Thou hast despised Mine holy things, and hast profaned My Sabbath. In thee are men that carry tales to shed blood: and in thee they eat upon the mountains; in the midst of thee they commit lewdness. In thee have they discovered their father's nakedness: in thee have they humbled her that was set apart for pollution. And one hath committed abomination with his neighbour's wife; and another hath lewdly defiled his daughter-in-law; and another in thee hath humbled his sister, his father's daughter. . . . And I will scatter thee among the heathen, and disperse thee in the countries" (Ezek. 22:8-15). Both the Bible and the Holy Qur-án call unholy men dogs, and, bearing this in mind, it is not difficult to see what is meant by apes when the words despised and hated are added to make the sense still clearer. All the stories relating the actual metamorphosis of men into apes on a certain morning are absurd and without basis. Moses' prophecy of the fate of the Jewish nation amply bears out their description as given in the Holy Qur-án, here and elsewhere: "And the Lord shall scatter thee among all people, from the one end of the earth even unto the other. . . . And among these nations shalt thou find no ease, neither shall the sole of thy foot have rest; but the Lord shall give thee there a trembling heart, and failing of eyes and sorrow of mind" (Deut. 28:64-65).

66 So We made them an example to those who witnessed it and those who came after it, and an admonition to those who guard (against evil).

108 The slaughter of the cow referred to in this verse has nothing in common with the slaying of a hoifer as an expiation of an uncertain murder in Deut. 21 : 1-9, or the slaughter of a red hoifer, the ashes of which purify one who has touched the dead body of any man (Num. 19 : 1-19), except the fact that as the Israelites held the cow in great honour, and even worshipped it, as is clear from their worship of the golden calf, they were ordered to slaughter such cows as were usually let abroad and worshipped as sacred objects—cows not wrought with, nor drawn in yoke, but let loose to wander abroad, and the cow mentioned in these verses is a typical cow answering this description. This type of cow is still an object of special reverence in India, and the slaughter of this particular type was especially enjoined upon the Jews, according to the Bible as well as the Holy Qur-án, the object being to root out cow-worship from among them. But whereas the Biblical injunction to slaughter a hoifer is a general injunction to be observed whenever an uncertain murder takes place or an unclean person is to be purified, the injunction, as contained in the Qur-án, notwithstanding the many absurd stories added to it by some commentators, points to the slaughter of one particular cow which was probably likely to become an object of worship. Indeed, there is a striking resemblance between the colour of the golden calf and the cow ordered to be slaughtered. The concluding words of the section show that, because of their reverence for that partioular cow, the Jews were very averse to slaughter it. As for the description of the red heifer, "It had a whole treatise to itself in the Mishna, where its qualifications were elaborated to such a point that at last R. Nisin said that no one since the days of Moses had been able to find one fit to be slain" (En. Bib. col. 816). This remark clearly suggests that in the time of Moses one fit to be slain and answering that description had been found. See foot-note 84 for the Israelites' worship of cows.

109 The concluding words of this verse, as well as those of the 69th, show that the cow which the Israelites were commanded to slaughter was one specially venerated by them: it was delightful in appearance, and the Israelites were averse to slaughter it. This shows that this particular cow was likely to become an object of worship among them, and hence Moses' precaution. The directions contained in Deut. 21: 1-9 and elsewhere in regard to the slaughter of this type of cow show further precautions against a similar tendency of the Israelite mind.

A few words may be added as regards the translation of the concluding words of the verse. Kāda is generally used to indicate the nearness of an action (Rgh), i.e. that an action was about to take place, and hence it is more frequently used in conjunction with some other verb, and كَادَ يَفْعَلُ signifies he was near to doing so; or he well-nigh or nearly or almost did so. Hence مَا كَادُوا يَفْعَلُونَ signifies they were not near to doing it. But Kāda is also synonymous with arāda, i.e. he desired (S-LL), and كَادَ يَفْعَلُ signifies he purposed or intended doing so (Ls-LL); hence the translation adopted, which gives a correct idea of the original.

كَذٰلِكَ يُخَيِّ اللّٰهُ الْمَوْتٰى

110 The story generally narrated by the commentators to explain this passage is not based on any saying of the Holy Prophet or of any of his companions, and is not even met with in the Bible. It is, moreover, in itself absurd and opposed to the text of the Holy Qur-án, for the guilt of murder is here attributed to the whole community and not to an individual, as in the story according to which a man had killed his uncle and the murderer's name was only discovered by the dead body being quickened when struck by the flesh of a slaughtered cow, which is supposed to be the cow spoken of in the last section. But there is nothing to show this connection between these two sections. Another explanation is that the incident refers to a Jew murdering a Muslim woman in the time of the Holy Prophet, an incident which is narrated in the Bkh. But the very indefiniteness of the incident is an indication that it refers to some well-known event in history, and as almost all incidents of the stubbornness of the Jewish nation prior to the time of Jesus have been mentioned, it becomes almost certain that this incident refers to Jesus himself, as it was with respect to his death that disagreement took place, and many doubted his death. This inference becomes stronger when we compare the incidents narrated here with the same incidents as narrated in the fourth chapter in vv. 153-157, where, after enumerating almost all the incidents narrated here in the three previous sections, the Qur-án goes on to accuse the Jews in the following words: "And their saying: Surely we have killed the Messiah, Jesus son of Mary, the apostle of Allah; and they did not kill him nor did they crucify him, but (the matter) was made dubious to them, and most surely those who differ therein are only in a doubt about it; they have no knowledge respecting it, but only follow a conjecture" (4:157). It will be seen that the incidents of the last three sections are repeated in 4:153-155 briefly, and then comes their sin against Jesus in 4:157. The part quoted answers exactly to verses 72 and 73, only that the name is omitted here. This comparison makes it clear that it is the apparent killing of Jesus that is referred to here. The words you killed (Ar. qataltum) are used because in the first place the Jews asserted that they had killed him, and secondly, because metaphorically a person may be said to have been killed when he is made to appear as if he were dead. Thus in the well-known saying اِذَا مَاتَ مَيْتٌ (lit., when a dead man dies) the word dead really signifies not the dead man, but one who is about to die. And 'Umar's saying, اَقْتُلُوْا سَعْدًا is explained by LA as meaning, make him like one who is slain. LA also allows the use of the word qatl for a severe punishment in cases in which the drunkard and the habitual thief are spoken of as deserving of qatl in certain sayings of early-day judges.

111 The Jews wanted to do away with Jesus, but Allah had decided that he should not die.

76 And when they meet those who believe they say, We believe, and when they are alone one with another they say: Do you talk to them of what Allah has disclosed to you that they may contend with you by this before your Lord? Do you not then understand?¹¹⁶

116 They remonstrate with their less careful coreligionists, who would talk of the prophecies of the advent of the Holy Prophet with the Muslims, telling them that the Muslims would benefit by these disclosures in the sight of their Lord. The absurdity of this argument is made clear in the next verse. Truth was truth in the sight of Allah, whether they revealed or concealed it.

117 The word translated here as illiterates is ummiyyūn, plural of ummi, which signifies one who neither writes nor reads a writing (Rgh). The word is therefore specially applied to the Arabs, who were generally unacquainted with reading and writing, exceptions being rare. It is, however, here applied to the illiterate Jews, and this is a conclusive proof that both Rodwell and Lane are wrong in holding ummi to signify a non-Jew. See foot-note 950 for full discussion.

118 According to Salo, "It is a received opinion among the Jews at present that no person, be he ever so wicked, or of whatever sect, shall remain in hell above eleven months, or at most a year, except Dathan and Abiram and atheists, who will be tormented there to all eternity."

119 In this verse the Holy Qur-ān states the law as to evil deeds being followed by evil consequences. The inmates of the fire are here stated to be those who earn evil, i.e. those who devote themselves wholly to the doing of evil, and thus find themselves beset on every side by their evil deeds. These are the men who give themselves up to evil, and who, therefore, ultimately find themselves in the power of evil, which even in this life, but more palpably in the life after death, assumes the form of a burning fire. It should be noted that the man who struggles against evil, however long that struggle may take, to overcome an evil inclination, is not the man who earns evil, because the earnest struggle in which the fighter against evil hates and detests evil, and seeks to overcome it, always ends in a victory for the good and noble qualities in man's nature. The Qur-ān makes this clear by using the words earns evil.

120 Allah's making a covenant with a people signifies His giving commandments to them. Compare Deut. 4:13: "And He declared unto you His covenant, which He commanded you to perform."

121 Compare Exod. 20:3: "Thou shalt have no other gods before Me," and 23:25: "And ye shall serve the Lord your God," and various other places.

122 Compare Exod. 20:12, and Deut. 5:16: "Honour thy father and thy mother."

123 Compare Deut. 15:11: "Thou shalt open thine hand wide unto thy brother, to thy poor, to thy needy, in thy land."

124 The speaking of a good word stands for kind dealing. •

125 Compare Deut. 14:29, 29: "At the end of three years thou shalt bring forth all the tithe of thine increase the same year, and shalt lay it up within thy gates. And the Levite (because he hath no part for inheritance with thee), and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, which are within thy gates, shall come, and shall eat and be satisfied; that the Lord thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hand which thou doest."

out of your cities; then you gave a promise while you witnessed.¹²⁶

85 Yet you it is who slay your people and turn a party from among you out of their homes, backing each other up against them unlawfully and exceeding the limits; and if they should come to you as captives you would ransom them—while their very turning out was unlawful for you.¹²⁷ Do you then believe in a part of the Book and disbelieve in the other? What then is the reward of such among you as do this but disgrace in the life of this world, and on the day of resurrection they shall be sent back to the most grievous chastisement, and Allah is not at all heedless of what you do.

126 "Thou shalt not kill" (Exod. 20 : 13) "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his man servant, nor his maid servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbour's" (Exod. 20 : 17). But the reference here is more probably to the important treaty of mutual obligation in writing which the Holy Prophet entered into with the Jews when he settled at Medina. By this treaty the Muslims and the Jews were bound not only not to turn their hands against each other, but also to defend one another against a common enemy. In fact, this treaty aimed at a perfect union among the discordant elements of the population of Medina. I quote a few clauses to give the reader an insight into the spirit of this treaty: "Whosoever is rebellious, or seeketh to spread enmity and sedition, the hand of every man shall be against him, even if he be a son. . . . Whosoever of the Jews followeth us shall have aid and succour; they shall not be injured, nor shall any enemy be aided against them. . . . The Jewish clans in alliance with the several tribes of Medina are one people with the believers. . . . The Jews will profess their religion, the Muslims theirs. As with the Jews, so with their adherents. No one shall go forth to war excepting with the permission of Muhammad, but this shall not hinder any from seeking lawful revenge. The Jews shall be responsible for their expenditure, the Muslims for theirs; but if attacked each shall come to the assistance of the other. Medina shall be sacred and inviolable for all that join this treaty. Controversies and disputes shall be referred for the decision of God and His Prophet. None shall join the men of Mecca or their allies, for verily the engaging parties are bound together against every one that shall threaten Medina. War and peace shall be made in common" (I'Isah-Muir).

127 It is related that the two Jewish tribes Quraiza and Na'leer, living side by side at Medina, made an alliance with Aus and Khazraj, the two rival tribes of Medina, respectively, and when the latter fought against each other, their allies took part in the fighting, and thus one Jewish tribe slaughtered and imprisoned the other and laid waste their habitations, but afterwards collected subscriptions for the release of the Jewish prisoners, giving reason for this that their law commanded them to redeem the prisoners, and they fought against their coreligionists for the honour of their allies. The reference is to this inconsistent action on their part (Rz). Sale makes a mistake in treating Aus and Khazraj as Jewish tribes, and it is due to this mistake that he translates ahlif wrongly as meaning chiefs, whereas it means allies. If, however, the reference in the previous verse be considered to be to the treaty made by the Holy Prophet with the Jews, the slaying and turning a party out of their homes would be a prophetic reference to the Jewish attitude towards the Muslims later on, when they joined with the enemies of the Muslims, and the punishment or disgrace which they are threatened with at the end of the verse was witnessed by all the three Jewish tribes of Medina, the Qainuqá', the Nadéer, and the Quraiza, on account of their violation of the treaty.

128 Sale has rightly pointed out the error of confounding the Holy Ghost of the Christian literature with the rûh-ul-qudus as that word is used in the Holy Qur-án. The word rûh, while signifying the vital principle of life, or the spirit, also signifies inspiration or Divine revelation (Zj, Q-LL) and also mercy, for which see foot-note 653. Hence rûh-ul-qudus may be translated either as the holy spirit or as the holy revelation, and both these significances are adopted by the commentators (Rz). By rûh-ul-qudus as signifying the holy spirit is generally understood the Angel Gabriel, the reason given being that Gabriel is the angel who communicates the Divine messages to His servants, messages which are a source of life to mankind, as spirit gives life to the body. And by rûh-ul-qudus as signifying the holy revelation is understood the Gospel, because it gave spiritual life to Jesus' followers (Rz). The latter significance is the one which is corroborated by the Qur-án itself, for Divine revelation is plainly called a rûh in 16:2 and 40:15, where Allah is spoken of as sending the angels with the rûh (the only possible meaning of rûh there being revelation), while in 42:52 the Qur-án itself is called a rûh, for there we have, "And thus did We reveal to you an inspired book by Our command," where instead of an inspired book we have rûh in the original. Nor is the holy spirit a special attendant of Jesus Christ, for according to 58:22 the faithful followers of the

Or, revolt-ing. 90 Evil is that for which they have sold their souls—that they should deny what Allah has revealed, out of envy that Allah should send down of His grace on whomsoever of His servants He pleases; so they have made themselves deserving of wrath upon wrath, and there is a disgraceful chastisement for the unbelievers.

Holy Prophet were all strengthened by the Divine spirit, which is the same as the holy spirit. Addressing Hassân bin Sâbit, a poet companion, the Holy Prophet is reported to have said, "And the holy spirit is with you."

129 The change of tense from the past to the proterite is in allusion to the attempts which were then being made on the life of the Holy Prophet. Rz thus explains this change: "For you seek by devices the murder of Muhammad, were it not that I had protected him from you."

130 Ghulf is plural of aghlaf, which means enclosed in a covering (LL). Hence, applied to the heart it means, covered from hearing and accepting what the prophet says. But ghulf is also one of the plurals of ghildf, which means a covering, a case, or a repository, and if taken in that sense the significance would be that their hearts were repositories of knowledge, and being themselves repositories, could not accept from others.

131 Curse, as implying an imprecation of evil, is not the exact equivalent of la'nat, which implies the banishing and estranging of one from good (LA), though it must necessarily be adopted as such for want of another simple equivalent. As to the meaning of the verse, the allegation of the Israelites was that, being descendants of prophets, their hearts were the repositories of knowledge, and being already, as it were, full of knowledge, they did not stand in need of more; and they were told that it was really their unbelief which became the cause of their estrangement from the good which the Holy Prophet had brought.

132 The Jews expected that when the prophet spoken of in Deut. 18: 18 came he would make them victorious over their disbelieving opponents. "And it shall come to pass, if thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the Lord thy God, to observe and to do all His commandments which I commanded thee this day, that the Lord thy God will set thee on high above all nations of the earth: and all these blessings shall come on thee, and overtake thee, if thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God" (Deut. 28: 1-2). Read it along with Deut. 18: 15-19, and the significance of "hearken-ing" becomes clear. As to the fact that the Jews were still waiting for his appearance,

91 And when it is said to them, Believe in what Allah has revealed, they say: We believe in that which was revealed to us;¹³³ and they deny what is besides that, while it is the truth verifying that which they have.* Say: Why then did you kill Allah's prophets before (this) if you were indeed believers?¹³⁴

92 And most certainly Moses came to you with clear arguments, then you took the calf^b (for a god) in his absence and you were unjust.

93 And when We made a covenant with you and raised the mountain above you^c: Take hold of what We have given you with firmness and be obedient.¹³⁵ They said: We hear and disobey.¹³⁶ And they were made to imbibe (the love of) the calf into their hearts on see John 1: 25, "Why baptizest thou then, if thou be not the Christ, nor Elias, neither that prophet"; that prophet, as in John 1: 23, referring to the promised prophet of Deut. 18: 15 and 18. This shows clearly that they waited for three different prophets. Acts 3: 21-23 also shows that the prophet spoken of in Deut. 18: 18 was still waited for after the death of Christ.

133 By saying that they believed in what was revealed to them, they asserted that they could not accept a revelation granted to another than an Israelite, the reply to which is given in the words that the revelation of the Holy Prophet is the truth verifying what is contained in their books, the reference being to the prophecies of the advent of the Holy Prophet contained in Deut. 18: 15-18 and other places.

* 134 They are shown guilty out of their own mouths. Their contention was that they would believe only in a revelation which was granted to an Israelite prophet. Yet they killed even Israelite prophets.

135 The original word is isma'u, meaning primarily hear or listen, but it may also mean obey (AH), a meaning given to it in the Qur-án itself in 36: 25, where تَسْمَعُونَ is interpreted as meaning, "Therefore do ye obey me" (TA). It may also mean accept, as in سَمِعَ اللَّهُ لَنْ حِدَةٍ (LL). The sense of the word as used here is made clear by the similar expression in v. 63, "And when We made a covenant with you and raised the mountain above you: Take hold of what We have given you with firmness and bear in mind what is in it." Instead of the last words we have here isma'u, hence the meaning is be obedient or accept.

136 They did not utter these words with their tongues, but it is an expression of their condition, for the word qaul is used to denote what is expressive of the condition of a thing though it may not have uttered the words. قَالَتِ الْعَيْنَانِ means the eyes showed (not spoke) (TA). Kf explains the words as meaning, We hear the words and we disobey the command.

137 The story that the Israelites were actually made to drink of water mixed with the ashes of the calf cannot be based upon these words, which only signify that they had imbibed the love of the calf or cow-worship. That the Holy Qur-an lends no support to the story is shown by 20: 97, for there it is plainly stated that the ashes of the calf were scattered by being thrown into the sea. The use of the word qulub in the expression ushribu fi qulubihim does not admit that the meaning of the word ushribu be taken literally. But according to Exod. 32:20 and Deut. 9:21 the Israelites were actually made to drink of the water on which the ashes of the calf were strewed.

138 According to I'Ab, فتنوا الموت signifies invoke death on the party that lies or is false in its assertion (IJ). A similar challenge, but in fuller words, is contained in 3: 60, "Whoever then disputes with you in this matter after what has come to you of knowledge, then say: Come! let us call our sons and your sons, and our women and your women, and our people and your people, then let us be earnest in prayer and pray for the curse of Allah on the liars." The challenge is given to the Christians, and the same challenge in fewer words is given here to the Jews. Or the meaning may be that they should pray that death should overtake the Prophet, for their prayer against an impostor, as they considered him to be, must no doubt be listened to. This last significance is favoured by Ma'alim, which renders al-maut here as meaning my death, referring to the Prophet.

139 By the polytheists are probably meant the Zoroastrians, who, when invoking a blessing on any one, prayed that he should live a thousand years. Or, the reference here may be to the Christians, because they also hold the polytheistic belief of the divinity of a man. As to their desire of living for a thousand years and its fulfilment, as indicated here, see 1602. It would thus mean the life of a people in prosperity and not the life of an individual.

Their Enmity towards the Prophet

97, 98. Their hatred of Gabriel. 99-101. Their transgressions. 102, 103. Their evil machinations against the Prophet, which they falsely attribute to prophets and angels, would end in their own ruin.

Ar. thy. 97 Say: Whoever is the enemy of Gabriel¹⁴⁰—for surely he revealed it to your heart by Allah's command,¹⁴¹ verifying that which is before it and a guidance and good news for the believers.

99 And certainly we have revealed to you clear communications and none disbelieve in them except the transgressors.

100 What! whenever they make a covenant, a party of them cast it aside? Nay, most of them do not believe.

101 And when there came to them an Apostle from Allah verifying that which they have,^{a 70.} a party of those who وَلَمَّا جَاءَهُمْ رَسُولٌ مِنْ

140 Michael was regarded by the Jews as a friend, "the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people" (Dan. 12:1). And they looked upon Gabriel as their enemy, because he was considered to be an avenging angel who brought down Divine punishment upon the guilty. But in the Bible, as in the Holy Qur-án, Gabriel is mentioned as delivering Divine messages to men, as in Dan. 8:16 and in Luke 1:19 and 26. According to Muqátab, the Jews considered Gabriel as their enemy because they thought he was charged to convey the gift of prophecy to the Israelites, and he conveyed it to another people, i.e. the Ishmaelites (Rz). Some commentators look upon both the words Jibril and Mikail as foreign words having no derivation in Arabic (AH), but others consider Jibril as a combination of jabr, meaning a servant, and il, meaning Allah, and Mikail as made up of Mik and il, the two words having the same significance as jabr and il respectively (IJ).

141 The word izn signifies permission, leave, or concession of liberty to do a thing; and sometimes command, likewise will; also knowledge (LL).

142 The enmity of man to Allah and Allah to man is thus explained: In reality there can be no enmity between Allah and man; as to man's enmity to Allah, it signifies opposition to His commandments, and as to Allah's enmity to man, it signifies the recompense for his opposition (AH). Note that Allah is here said to be the enemy of those unbelievers only who first make themselves the enemies of the apostles of Allah, and hence also of the angels and the Divine Being Himself. The same law of the punishment of an evil being spoken of in the terms of that evil really finds an expression here, as is referred to in foot-note 27.

102 And they follow what the devils¹⁴⁴ fabricated¹⁴⁵ against the prophethood of Solomon,¹⁴⁶ and Solomon did not disbelieve,¹⁴⁷ but the devils disbelieved, teaching men enchantment,¹⁴⁸ and it was not

نَبَذَ فَرِيقٌ مِنَ الَّذِينَ أُوتُوا الْكِتَابَ كِتَابَ

سَلِيمٍ ۖ وَمَا كَفَرَ سَلِيمٌ وَلَكِنَّ الشَّاطِرِينَ
كَفَرُوا يَعْلَمُونَ النَّاسُ لِلشَّيْطَانِ وَاعٍ

143 The covenant referred to in the previous verse as being cast aside, and the throwing of the Book behind their backs, both refer to the Israelites paying no heed to the prophecy of Deut. 18:18, which was verified by the advent of the Holy Prophet. So clearly did that prophecy point to the Holy Prophet that it is again and again referred to in this chapter as the most powerful argument against the inimical attitude of the Jews.

144 According to an interpretation accepted by all commentators, by the devils here are meant human devils, or devils in the form of men (AH, Rz).

145 يقول عليه and فلان يتلر على فلان mean such a one lies or says what is false against such a one (TA-LL). Rz says تلا عليه means he lied, and thus supports what is said above.

146 By the mulk of Solomon is here meant his prophethood and his law and what befell him or his time or kingdom (AH, Rz). The Jews attributed Solomon's glory to certain devilish crafts, and this is the lie which they are spoken of here as having forged against Solomon's prophethood (Rz).

147 In this respect the Holy Qur-án contradicts the Bible, which says that the wives of Solomon "turned away his heart after other gods" (1 Kings 11:4), and that "the Lord was angry with Solomon, because his heart was turned from the Lord God of Israel" (1 Kings 11:9). It is now established that the statement of the Bible is wrong in this respect. The Rev. T. K. Choyne shows conclusively in the Encyclopædia Biblica that Solomon was "not a polytheist," and, having shown how mistakes crept into the Bible statement, he concludes: "That Solomon had a number of wives, both Israelite and non-Israelite, is probable enough, but he did not make altars for all of them, nor did he himself combine the worship of his wives' gods with that of Yahwe" (En. Bib., col. 4689).

148 According to Jauhari every thing of which the origin is subtle is sihr. The primary significance is the turning a thing from its proper manner of being to another manner (TA-LL). And the same authority says: بِعَيْنِهَا i.e. the woman enchants or fascinates men by her eye (A); and سحره بكلامه i.e. he caused him to incline to him by his soft or elegant speech (Mgh). Hence it is applied to skilful eloquence, and hence also the saying of the Prophet: ان من البيان لسحرا i.e. verily there is a kind of eloquence that is enchantment. And also saḥara-hu means he deceived or beguiled him (S, Mgh, Q).

And سحرت الفضة signifies I gilded silver (Ham-LL). Sihr is also synonymous with fasād, as is indicated in the TA, thus signifying the act of corrupting, marring, spoiling, etc. It is also the producing of what is false in the form of truth, and embellishment by falsification and deceit. Hence the word sihr carries a very wide significance, and its use in Arabic is not equivalent to that of sorcery or enchantment in the English language, though I have been compelled to adopt the latter word in the translation.

revealed to the two angels Harut and Marut at Babel, nor did they teach (it to) any one, so that they should have said, We are only a trial, therefore do not disbelieve,¹⁴⁹ so they learn from these two (sources) that by which they make a distinction between a man and his wife; and they cannot hurt with it any one except with Allah's permission, and they learn what harms them and does not profit them,^{149a} and certainly they know that he who buys it shall have no share of good in the hereafter, and certainly evil is the price for which they have sold their souls: had they but known (this)!

149 According to Sale, the Persian Magi "mention two rebellious angels of the same names, now hung up by the feet with their heads downwards, in the territory of Babel," for which he refers to Hyde, de Rel. vet. Pers., chap. 12. And he adds: "The Jews have something like this of the Angel Shamhozai, who, having debauched himself with women repented, and by way of penance hung himself up between heaven and earth." Upon these two stories seem to be based the lengthy fables of some commentators, but the more learned reject them. Not only does the Qur-ân not contain a word of these stories, but it plainly discredits them by denying that sorcery was revealed to certain angels at Babel, or that angels taught sorcery to men, giving them at the same time the warning, as was the common belief: We are only a trial, therefore do not disbelieve. This statement was added to the story to save the character of the angels as penitent. The Arabic lexicons give the two words Hârût and Mârût under the roots hart and mart, and explain harata as meaning he rent a thing and marata as meaning he broke a thing.

149a The statement made in the Qur-ân amounts to this. The Jews, instead of following the word of God, followed certain evil crafts which they falsely attributed to Solomon and to two angels at Babel. Solomon is declared free of any such sinfulness attributed to him, and the story of the two angels is declared to be a fabrication. But the Jews are blamed for learning from these two sources, i.e. by their fabrications against Solomon and the story of the two angels, things by which they made a distinction between a man and his wife. The personal pronoun himma (meaning two) refers to the two fabrications, viz. their fabrication against Solomon and their fabrication of the story of the angels. The clue to what this was is probably contained in what follows: But they cannot hurt with it any one except with Allah's permission, showing that by this craft they intended to inflict some injury on the Holy Prophet. Similar words are met with in chapter 58, where, after denouncing the secret counsels of the enemies of Islam, it is said in v. 10: "Secret counsels are only the work of the devil that he may cause to grieve those who believe, and he cannot hurt them in the least except with Allah's permission." It is evident that the 58th chapter was revealed at Medina, where secret counsels of the nature of masonic societies were carried on against the Holy Prophet by the Jews, and these secret counsels are stated to be the work of the devil, the expression being closely parallel to what is stated in the verse under discussion, where the Jews are spoken of as following the devil while ascribing their evil doctrines to prophets and angels. In 58 : 10 we also see that the object of these secret counsels was to cause hurt to the Holy 104, 105. Jewish hatred to the Prophet. 106, 107. Abrogation of previous laws and their replacement by a better law. 108-110. The desire that Muslims should revert to polytheism. 111, 112. Only the religion of entire submission can bring salvation.

104 O you who believe! do not say ra'ind and say unzurud,¹⁵⁰ and listen, and for the unbelievers there is a painful chastisement.

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا لَا تَقُولُوا رَاعِنَا وَقُولُوا انظُرْنَا وَاسْمَعُوا وَلِلْكَافِرِينَ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٌ ۝

Prophet and to the Muslims, and the same is stated to be the object of the evil machinations of the Jews in the verse under discussion. These considerations point clearly to the fact that the secret counsels of the Jews mentioned in chapter 58 are referred to here. It is further clear that the words by which they make a distinction between a man and his wife refer to secret gatherings of the nature of masonic societies, for it is in freemasonry and in no other religious society of the world that women are totally excluded. Instead of mentioning freemasonry itself, therefore, its distinctive characteristic is mentioned. And however untrustworthy may be the old histories of freemasonry, there is no doubt that the institution is an ancient one, "having subsisted from time immemorial" (En. Br.). The statement made in the "Book of Constitutions" that Cyrus constituted Jerubbabel grand master in Judah (En. Br.) may not be without a substratum of truth.

150 Rā'ind is equivalent to give ear to, hearken, or listen to us, but with a slight change of accent it becomes ra'ina, which means he is foolish or stupid or unsound in intellect, the derivation in the first case being from ra'd, i.e. being mindful, and in the second case from ra'n, i.e. being foolish (I.I.). The Jews in derision changed the accent, "distorting the word," as stated in 4:46, and thus made it a term of reproach. The word unzurud, which means wait for us or grant us a little delay, is suggested instead, because it cannot be distorted like its equivalent ra'ind. The Muslims are here forbidden to use a certain form of expression, but the real object is to show how great was the hatred of the Jews towards the Holy Prophet, so that they did not observe even the ordinary rules of decency. Morally the injunction is one worthy of the highest regard, as it disapproves of the use of words bearing a sinister meaning.

151 Khair, lit., good, and rahmat, lit., mercy, both stand here for Divine revelation, for it was this good which the Jews would not like to be sent down to the Muslims, and it was this mercy for which the Muslims had been chosen (A.H.).

مَا نَنْسَخْ مِنْ آيَةٍ أَوْ نُنسِهَا نَأْتِ بِخَيْرٍ
مِّنْهَا أَوْ مِثْلَهَا أَلَمْ تَعْلَمْ أَنَّ اللَّهَ
عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ

152 These words are generally considered as forming the basis of what is known as the doctrine of abrogation in the Qur-án. The very disagreement of all authorities upholding it as to the actual verses abrogated is sufficient testimony against it, for while some accept no more than five verses to be abrogated, others carry the number to hundreds. If any verses that are to be met with in the Holy Qur-án were really abrogated, there ought to have been the same agreement regarding their abrogation as regarding their being part of the Divine revelation. But the hopeless disagreement on this point of the upholders of this doctrine shows clearly that the doctrine of abrogation in reference to the Qur-án is based on mere conjecture. What happened was really this, that somebody, being unable to reconcile one verse with another, pronounced one of them to have been abrogated by the other, while another was able to effect a reconciliation between them, and therefore dismissed the idea of abrogation. The right course would have been to produce the authority of the Holy Prophet. But there is not a single report tracing the abrogation of a single verse to the Holy Prophet, who could be the only authority whose pronouncement regarding the abrogation of a verse could be accepted as final. That is another reason which discredits the doctrine of the abrogation of the Quranic verses.

Reading the verse under discussion in the light of the context, it is clear that the Jews are addressed here. The two previous sections deal, more or less, with a particular Jewish objection to the revelation of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, viz., that they could not accept a new revelation which was not granted to an Israelite. This is plainly stated in vv. 90 and 91: "Evil is that for which they have sold their souls, that they should deny what Allah has revealed, out of envy that Allah should send down of His grace on whomsoever of His servants He pleases"; "They say: We believe in that which was revealed to us; and they deny what is besides that." The same subject is continued, the Jews being addressed throughout. Their objection was: why was another revelation sent down to Muhammad, and why was a law containing new commandments promulgated? That objection was to be answered. The answer is given partly in v. 105, and partly in the verse under discussion. In the former of these they are told that Allah chooses whom He pleases for His revelation. In the latter, that if one law (i.e. the Jewish law) was abrogated, one better than it was given through the Holy Prophet. The word ayat, which means a message or a communication, does not signify here an ayat of the Holy Qur-án, but the message or the law given to the Jews. In the verse that follows, attention is called to the laws of nature as prevailing in the universe. Is it not true that the old order in nature gives place to a new one, the inferior to the better? It was therefore quite natural that the Mosaic law, which was in the main given for a particular people in a particular age, and suited only their requirements, should give place to a new and a universal law, the law of Islam. The old law had been partly forgotten, and what remained was now abrogated to give place to one better, and in certain matters one like it. It will thus be seen that the reference here is to the abrogation of the Jewish law, the statement being really an answer to the objection of the Jews, and there is no mention of the abrogation of the Quranic verses. See also 16:101, which, being a Meccan revelation, makes it clear that similar words there could only refer to the abrogation of a previous law, for details of the Muslim law were revealed at Medina, and consequently there could possibly be no abrogation of the Quranic verses at Mecca; nor is any Meccan verse considered even by the upholders of the doctrine of abrogation to be among the verses which abrogate others. It may also be added that in the words like it the reference may be to the prophecy of Deut. 18:18.

153 The Jews are addressed here, because it is they who vexed Moses with different demands and different questions. The words whoever adopts unbelief instead of faith do not signify a change of unbelief for belief, but the adoption of the former instead of the latter, and therefore these words also apply to the Jews.

SECTION 14

Perfect Guidance is only in Islam

113. No religion is devoid of good. 114, 115. Vanquishment of those who ruin mosques. 116, 117. To attribute a son to Allah is to deny His perfection. 118, 119. Demand for direct revelation. 120, 121. Islam gives perfect guidance.

113 And the Jews say, The Christians do not follow anything (good), and the Christians say, The Jews do not follow anything (good),¹⁵⁷ while they recite the (same) Book. Even thus say those who have no knowledge, like to what they say; so Allah shall judge between them on the day of resurrection in what they differ.¹⁵⁸

114 And who is more unjust than he who prevents (men) from the mosques of Allah,

وَقَالَتِ الْيَهُودُ لَيْسَتْ النَّصْرَى عَلَى شَيْءٍ ۖ وَقَالَتِ النَّصْرَى لَيْسَتْ الْيَهُودُ عَلَى شَيْءٍ ۖ وَهُمْ يَتْلُونَ الْكِتَابَ ۚ كَذَلِكَ قَالَ الَّذِينَ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ مِثْلَ قَوْلِهِمْ ۚ فَاللَّهُ يَحْكُمُ بَيْنَهُمْ يَوْمَ الْقِيَمَةِ فِيمَا كَانُوا فِيهِ يَخْتَلِفُونَ ۝
وَمَنْ أَظْلَمُ مِمَّنْ مَنَعَ مَسِيحَ اللَّهِ

the Christians will be saved are groundless. It is entire submission to Allah and the doing of good to His creatures that is the true source of salvation, and that is what Islām means according to the Holy Qur-ān. In the expression اسلم وجهه لله as also in اسلمت وجهي the word waj-h does not stand for the face, but is used "for the whole, because it is the most noble part" (Jal-JL), or waj-hī signifies my person or myself (TA). Waj-h also means course, way, purpose, or object.

From aslama, meaning he submitted himself, is derived the name of the religion which the Holy Qur-ān preaches, i.e. Islām, signifying literally, submitting oneself or resigning oneself (M, Q-LJ), and Islam is therefore the religion of entire submission to Allah. See for full explanation foot-note 400 on the word Islām itself.

157 The original words are على شيء the word 'ala signifying in such cases conformity, as in the proverb الناس على دين ملوكهم which means the people are in conformity to, i.e. are followers of, the religion of their kings (LJ); while the word shai, which primarily means simply a thing, signifies in such cases a thing worth being regarded, or a thing of any account or value, or anything good, as in the proverb ليس بشئ (LJ).

158 The Jews and the Christians are here blamed for denying all good in each other like ignorant men, notwithstanding that they are both followers of one Book, i.e. the Old Testament. As against this, the Qur-ān accepts that there is partial truth in all religions. The declaration of this cosmopolitan principle by Islam as regards a substratum of truth underlying all religions is the more wonderful when it is borne in mind that Islam took its birth in a country which had no connection with the outside world, and the principle was proclaimed by a man who had not read the scriptures of any other religion, at a time when the two most closely allied religions declared each other to be devoid of all truth.

that His name should be remembered in them, and strives to ruin them? (As for) these, it was not proper for them that they should have entered them except in fear; they shall meet with disgrace in this world, and they shall have great chastisement in the hereafter.¹⁵⁹

115 And Allah's is the East and the West, therefore whither you turn, thither is Allah's purpose; surely Allah is Ample-giving, Knowing.¹⁶⁰

116 And they say: Allah has taken to Himself a son. Glory be to Him; rather, whatever is in the heavens and the earth is His; all are obedient to Him.¹⁶¹

أَنْ يَنْ كَرَفِيهَا اسْمُهُ وَسَخِي فِي خُرَابِهَا
أُولَئِكَ مَا كَانَ لَهُمْ أَنْ يَدْخُلُوهَا
الْآخِرِينَ هُ لَهُمْ فِي الدِّ النَّارُ
وَلَهُمْ فِي الْآخِرَةِ عَذَابٌ عَظِيمٌ
وَلِلَّهِ الْمَشْرِقُ وَالْمَغْرِبُ فَأَيْنَمَا تُولُوا
فَتَمَّ وَجْهُهُ اللَّهُ إِنَّ اللَّهَ وَاسِعٌ عَلِيمٌ
وَقَالُوا اتَّخَذَ اللَّهُ وَلَدًا سُبْحَنَهُ بَلْ
لَهُ مَا فِي السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ كُلُّ
لَهُ قَائِمٌ

159 The fate of those who prevented Muslims from worshipping Allah in the mosques is predicted here, and the fate of the opponents of Islam bears ample testimony to the truth of this prediction. The Jewish residents of Medina, who exerted themselves to their utmost to bring ruin to Islam, were either banished in disgrace or perished in their struggle to annihilate Islam. The idolaters, or the Quraish, who prevented Muslims from repairing to the sacred mosque at Mecca, were also finally subjugated and had to bow their heads before the very men whom they persecuted for no other fault than that they worshipped Allah.

The fulfilment of the first part of the prophecy, viz. they shall meet with disgrace in this world, is a conclusive proof of the truth of the second part, viz. they shall have great chastisement in the hereafter.

160 This verse has no connection with the turning of the face to one direction or another while saying prayers, which subject is discussed further on. The mistake arises from not reading the verse in the light of the context. The previous verse predicts disgrace for those who persecuted the Muslims; this one predicts the Muslim conquests by which the enemy was to be disgraced. The concluding words, Allah is Ample-giving, Knowing, also support this conclusion. The Muslims, who had been deprived of all they possessed and made utterly destitute, were promised ample gifts. The words whither you turn, thither is Allah's purpose point clearly to the Divine promise that all obstacles in the path of the Muslims shall be removed and victory shall follow their footsteps. Another interpretation is whichever way you turn fleeing, those who ruin the mosques being addressed (AH).

The word waj-h occurring here denotes countenance or face, as well as course, purpose, or object which one is pursuing, or a direction in which one is going or looking (TA-L.L.). According to Rgh it signifies attention or course.

161 The Christian doctrine that God has a son is refuted here, as also the pagan Arab idea that the angels were the daughters of God. Some Jews paid a like reverence to Ezra. The phrase subhāna-hū is always used to declare the freedom of the Divine Being from all imperfections such as are to be met with in the creatures, and is always mentioned in connection with the doctrine of sonship to show that to attribute a son to the Divine Being in a literal sense is to attribute an imperfection to Him which is met with in human beings. As regards the metaphorical use of the word, it gives rise to a misunderstanding, for really all that is in the heavens and the earth is His in that sense, all angels and human beings being alike His creation. As creatures they all equally proceed out of His hands. The doctrine of sonship is mentioned here as being opposed to the religion which requires entire submission from every man and thus dispenses with the necessity of a conciliator.

162 The original word is badi', which is applicable to the thing made as well as to the maker. A thing is badi' which is not after the similitude of any thing pre-existing, and badi' is also the person who makes or produces or brings into existence for the first time and not after the similitude of any thing pre-existing (LL).

163 كُنْ فَيَكُوْنُ is the oft-recurring phrase in which Allah's act of the creation and annihilation of things is spoken of in the Holy Qur-án. It is an answer to those who think, as the Arya Samajists do, that the creation of things by God is dependent on the previous existence of matter and soul and the adaptability of their attributes. But if God could not make things independently of matter, He could not even hear and see independently of it. Another argument given here is that man, who stands in need of matter to make things, also stands in need of a pattern after which to make them, but God stands in need of neither. The verse seems particularly to refer here, however, to the revolution that was to be brought about by the Holy Prophet. It seemed an impossibility to men, but Allah had decreed it. And, in fact, the revolution brought about in Arabia by the Holy Prophet was so wonderful that the old heaven and earth of the peninsula may be said to have been changed into new ones.

164 The unbelievers refused to accept the truth of Islam unless either Allah spoke to them, so that they should have a proof that He sends His messages to men, or that a sign should come to them. The sign which they often demanded was the threatened punishment, and as here disgrace in this world is predicted for them (v. 114), their demand is that as an evidence of the Prophet's truth that punishment should overtake them. The answer to both these demands is contained in v. 119, for as bearer of good news the Holy Prophet told them that if they purified themselves by walking in his footsteps Allah would speak to them, and as a warner he informed them of the coming wrath if they persisted in their evil ways.

165 The words convey a clear threat of the punishment awaiting the opponents of Islam.

166 The Muslims are meant, while the Book is the Qur-ān (AH). I'Ab interprets يتلونه حق تلاوته as meaning follow it as it ought to be followed (IJ). For talā, meaning he followed it, or did according to it, see LL, which quotes several authorities.

167 The meaning is that Abraham observed all Divine commandments faithfully, and was therefore rewarded by being made a leader of men. As a spiritual leader of three great nations of the world, that patriarch occupies a unique position among religious personalities. Having discussed at length that a prophet from among the Ishmaelites had come in accordance with the prophecies of the Israelite prophets, the Holy Qur-ān now proceeds to show that even the covenant with their great ancestor Abraham necessitated the appearance of a prophet in Arabia.

168 The Israelites' contention was that prophethood should always remain in the house of Israel, and that the promised prophet of Deut. 18:18 should be an Israelite. In this section they are told that the covenant was made, not with Israel but with Abraham and Ishmael, and that therefore the seed of Ishmael and Isaac were equally to be blessed.

125 And when We made the house a resort for men and a (place of) security, and: Appoint for yourselves a place of prayer on the standing-place ¹⁶⁹ of Abraham. And We

لِّلنَّاسِ وَاٰمَنًا وَاٰخِذُوْا
مِّنْ مَّقَامِ اِبْرٰهٖمَ مُصَلِّیْنَ

The Jewish and Christian contention that the covenant made with Ishmael was simply of a temporal nature is groundless; on the other hand, the following arguments show that the covenant included both Ishmael and Isaac. (1) The promise to bless Abraham and his seed was given long before either Ishmael or Isaac was born: "And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great, and thou shalt be a blessing. . . . And in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed" (Gen. 12:2, 3). (2) The promise given to Abraham regarding the multiplicity of his seed is the same as that given to Hagar regarding Ishmael when she conceived him: "And he brought him forth abroad, and said, Look now toward heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them: and he said unto him, So shall thy seed be" (Gen. 15:5). "And the angel of the Lord said unto her (i.e. Hagar), I will multiply thy seed exceedingly, that it shall not be numbered for multitude" (Gen. 16:10). (3) The covenant was made again with Abraham after Ishmael was born, while Abraham had no hope of another son, nor was there a Divine promise that a son should be born to him from Sarah, the promise contained in Gen. 15:4: "But he that shall come forth out of thine own bowels shall be thine heir" having been fulfilled in the birth of Ishmael. This promise is contained in Gen. 17:2-6: "And I will make my covenant between me and thee, and will multiply thee exceedingly. . . . And I will make thee exceeding fruitful, and I will make nations of thee, and kings shall come out of thee." (4) The covenant was renewed with Ishmael after Isaac was promised: "And as for Ishmael, I have heard thee; Behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly; twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make him a great nation" (Gen. 17:20). It should also be noted that God's hearing Abraham with regard to Ishmael refers to Abraham's prayer in Gen. 17:18: "O that Ishmael might live before thee," and shows that Ishmael was righteous in the sight of God. (5) The nature of the promise made to Ishmael does not differ materially from that made to Abraham: they are both to be blessed, both to be made fruitful, the seed of both is to be multiplied exceedingly, princes and kings are promised among the descendants of both of them, and both are promised to be made a great nation. Nothing is said regarding Abraham that is not said regarding Ishmael. (6) The covenant on the part of Abraham's seed was kept by the children of Isaac as well as of Ishmael. According to Gen. 17:10: "This is My covenant which ye shall keep between Me and you and thy seed after thee: Every man child among you shall be circumcised." Now, circumcision has been a characteristic of the Israelites as well as of the Ishmaelites. Hence God's covenant was with both these nations. (7) The fulfilment of the covenant on the part of God has also been true with regard to both nations. "And I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their God" (Gen. 17:8). Now, if the covenant was only with Isaac's children, the promise of an everlasting possession failed with the advent of Islam, so that even God could not keep His promise. But the fact is that the land of Canaan continues to remain as an everlasting possession in the hands of the seed of Abraham, for as soon as the Israelites or their representatives, the Christians, were deemed unfit to have the holy land in their possession because of their unrighteousness, that holy land was given to the Arabs, who were Ishmaelites, and to this day it remains in the hands of the Muslims, who are the true representatives of the house of Ishmael.

¹⁶⁹ The commentators have different opinions as to what the maqām-i-Ibrāhīm or the standing-place of Abraham is. Some say the pilgrimage is meant, others understand one of the places where the pilgrims assemble; still others regard it as the whole of the sancenjoined Abraham and Ishmael, saying*: Purify My House¹⁷⁰ for those who visit (it) and those who abide (in it) for devotion and those who bow down (and) those who prostrate themselves.

وَعَهْدَنَا إِلَىٰ إِبْرَاهِيمَ وَإِسْمَاعِيلَ
أَنْ طَهِّرَا بَيْتِيَ لِلطَّائِفِينَ وَ الْعَاكِفِينَ وَالرُّكَّعِ السُّجُودِ

tuary. Some say that it is the name of a place within the sacred mosque which was known by that name in the time of the Holy Prophet, and is still known by that name (AH, IJ). "It is a small building supported by six pillars about 8 ft. high, four of which are surrounded from top to bottom by a fine iron railing, while they leave the space between the two hind pillars open; within the railing is a frame about 5 ft. square, said to contain the sacred stone on which Abraham stood when he built the Ka'ba" (Rodwell-Burckhardt). By muḡallā, i.e. the place of prayer, is meant, according to Hasan, the qiblah, or the direction facing which prayer is to be said (Rz). The commandment given here thus relates to the Ka'ba being taken as the qiblah.

170 The injunction to Abraham and Ishmael to purify "My House" (Ar. Bait or Bait-Ullah and the Beth-el of the Bible) for those who visit it and those who abide in it shows that the Ka'ba or Bait-Ullah was there even before Abraham, and this view is supported by what is stated in 8:95 about the Ka'ba as the "First House" made on earth for the worship of Allah, and its appellation "Ancient House" stated in 22:29 and 33. Sir William Muir admits the very remote antiquity of the Ka'ba in the Introduction to his Life of Muhammad, and the following lengthy quotation from him is the testimony of an adverse critic to the truth of the view taken above. He says: "A very high antiquity must be assigned to the main features of the religion of Mecca. . . . Diodorus Siculus, writing about half a century before our era, says of Arabia washed by the Red Sea, 'There is in this country a temple greatly revered by the Arabs.' These words must refer to the Holy House of Mecca, for we know of no other which ever commanded such universal homage. . . . Tradition represents the Ka'ba as from time immemorial the scene of pilgrimage from all quarters of Arabia: from Yemen and Hadhramaut, from the shores of the Persian Gulf, the deserts of Syria, and the distant environs of Hira and Mesopotamia, men yearly flocked to Mecca. So extensive a homage must have had its beginnings in an extremely remote age."

Is this conclusion in any way inconsistent with the popular Arab tradition connecting the names of Abraham and Ishmael with the Ka'ba? True, according to it the Ka'ba existed before Abraham, but this does not imply that Abraham never visited it. The statement made in the Qur-ān shows that Abraham and Ishmael had purified the House of God of idol worship, and they also raised its foundations (v. 127). But this would imply no more than that they rebuilt the edifice, and the connection of their names with the Holy House is preserved to this day in a tangible form in the Maqām-i-Ibrāhīm. Moreover, if tradition can prove its antiquity, why not the connection of the names of Abraham and Ishmael with it? The one tradition is as authentic and ancient as the other. Sir William Muir admits that "this was no Muslim fiction, but the popular opinion of the Meccans long before the era of Muhammad, otherwise it could not have been referred to in the Qur-ān as an acknowledged fact, nor would the names of certain spots around the Ka'ba have been connected, as we know them to have been, with Abraham and Ishmael." Muir's difficulty is only this, that the existence of the Holy House is traced to a more remote antiquity than the age of Abraham and Ishmael, but, as I have stated above, the fact of a remoter antiquity does not disprove the connection of the names of the patriarchs with the Holy House. The connection of Ishmael's name with Arabia is an incontrovertible fact, for Kedar (son of Ishmael, Gen. 25:13) stands throughout the writings of the Old Testament for Arabia (Ps. 120:5, Isa. 42:11, 60:7, etc.).

Moreover, the story of Ishmael and Hagar's casting forth is substantially true, though the description of it given in Genesis, viz. Abraham's sending her forth with bread and 126 And when Abraham said, My Lord, make it a secure town and provide its people with fruits, such of them as believe in Allah and the last day, He said: And whoever disbelieves, I will grant him enjoyment for a short while, then I will drive him to the chastisement of the fire; and it is an evil destination.

127 And when Abraham and Ishmael¹⁷⁰ raised the foundations of the House: Our Lord! accept from us; surely Thou art the Hearing, the Knowing:

128 Our Lord! and make us both submissive to Thee, and (raise) from our offspring a nation submitting to Thee,* and show us our ways of devotion and turn to us (mercifully), surely Thou art the Oft-returning (to mercy), the Merciful:

a bottle of water, as if she were going to settle in the next village, cannot be accepted as true. Sarah could not be satisfied with such expulsion of her rival. The Arab tradition representing Abraham as coming with Hagar and Ishmael to the place where Mecca now is, is quite independent of the Bible statement, and the two taken together justify us in drawing the conclusion as to the truth of the Quranic statement. Moreover, the situation of Mecca on a well-recognized ancient route from Syria to Yemen and the visits from the deserts of Syria to that "Ancient House" corroborate this conclusion. Thus there is not the least reason to reject the popular tradition as a fable, and the facts recorded in the Qur-án are borne out by all considerations.

170a References to Ishmael are very frequent in the Holy Qur-án. For further references see 2: 133, 136, 140; 3: 83; 4: 163; 6: 87; 14: 39; 19: 54, 55; 21: 85; 37: 101-107 (where he is not mentioned by name); and 38: 48.

SECTION 16

The Religion of Abraham

130-134. Abraham and Jacob bequeath their religion to their descendants. 135. Abraham's religion is thus the basis. 136-138. Islamic baptism requires a belief in all prophets. 139. Worship of Allah common basis of all religions. 140, 141. Great ancestors of Israelites.

132 And the same did Abraham enjoin on his sons and (so did) Jacob: O my sons! surely Allah has chosen for you (this) faith, therefore die not unless you are Muslims.¹⁷³

133 Nay! were you witnesses when death visited Jacob, when he said to his sons: What will you serve after me? They said: We will serve your God and the God of your fathers, Abraham and Ishmael and Isaac,* one God only, and to Him do we submit.

171 The phrase سفه نفسه was originally سفهت نفسه i.e. he himself or his mind was unwise or destitute of wisdom, etc.; but when the reference in the verb was transferred from nafs (i.e. mind) to the person possessing it, what followed the verb was put in the accusative case, being its objective complement, for the phrase became identical in meaning with جهل نفسه i.e. he made himself unwise, etc. (I.L.). AH gives the meaning to be he was unwise in his mind; Zj, he was ignorant or unreflecting in his mind. According to I'Ab it means he lost himself or his own soul.

172 Istafainā-hu, according to AH, means We made him pure from all dross. According to TA, اصطفاه الله عباده sometimes means Allah's creating His servants pure, for it is sometimes by His bringing them into existence clear from the admixture that is found in others, and sometimes it is by His choice and judgment. And istafā also signifies the choosing of one thing above another (I.L.).

173 Compare Gen. 18: 19: "For I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord to do justice and judgment."

For further references to Jacob, see 2: 133, 136, 140; 3: 83, 92; 4: 163; 6: 85; 12th chapter; 21: 72, 73; 38: 45-47.

134 This is a people that have passed away; they shall have what they earned and you shall have what you earn, and you shall not be called upon to answer for what they did.

135 And they say: Be Jews or Christians, you will be on the right course. Say: Nay! (we follow) the religion of Abraham, the upright one, and he was not one of the polytheists.¹⁷⁴

136 Say: We believe in Allah and (in) that which has been revealed to us, and (in) that which was revealed to Abraham and Ishmael and Isaac and Jacob and the tribes, and (in) that which was given to Moses and Jesus, and (in) that which was given to the prophets from their Lord; we do not make any distinction between any of them, and to Him do we submit.¹⁷⁵

137 If then they believe as you believe in Him, they are indeed on the right course, and if they turn back, then they are only in great opposition,¹⁷⁶ so Allah will suffice you against them, and He is the Hearing, the Knowing.¹⁷⁷

Ar. thee.

174 Hanif is from the root hanf, meaning inclining or declining (I.L.). Hence hanif is one inclining to a right state or tendency (Rgh, TA-I.L.). The word is often mentioned in connection with the name of Abraham and the Holy Prophet, and his followers are also enjoined to be hanif. It seems to signify firmness in sticking to the right state, and has, no doubt, reference to the inclining to error on the part of both the Jews and the Christians. As opposed to both these professed followers of Abraham, the Muslims are enjoined to remain firm in the right state, and thus to be the true representatives of the Abrahamic faith in the world. It is for this reason that the word hanif is used here in opposition to the attitude of both the Jews and the Christians. The word was not used in this sense in Arabic before the advent of Islam.

175 This shows the cosmopolitan nature of a Muslim's belief. Not only is belief in the great prophets of Israel an article of faith with a Muslim, but the words that which was given to the prophets from their Lord make the Muslim conception of belief in prophets as wide as the world. And it should be noted that this broad conception was promulgated at a time when the Jews and the Christians were exerting themselves to the utmost against the new faith.

176 Shiqāq may mean rebellion and separation (IJ), or it may mean opposition (I'Ab) or enmity (Zaid). It has a reference to the opposition of the Jews to the faith of Islam, which recognized their prophets. The meaning is that their rejecting such broad principles of faith is due to their enmity.

تِلْكَ أُمَّةٌ قَدْ خَلَتْ لَهَا مَا كَسَبَتْ وَرِكْمًا
كَسَبَتْ وَلَا يَسْأَلُونَ عَمَّا كَانُوا يَعْمَلُونَ

177 The meaning of فيكم الله or Allah will suffice you against them, is that

Allah will guard you against their evil plans to annihilate you (AH). This shows that the Jews had become active opposers to the spread of Islam at this early stage, and formed plan to take the life of the Holy Prophet.

178 Ṣabgh means dyeing or colouring, and also dipping or immersing in water; hence ṣibghah indicates baptism, which the Christians effect by immersing in water. The word is used here as a hint to the Christians that the Divine baptism is not the baptism of water, the result of which is the rejection of all the prophets, but the baptism of the broad principle of faith, which accepts the prophets of all nations and all ages. It is through this baptism that the new birth is received, because it opens the mind for the reception of all truths, and inspires it with love and reverence for all good men. Divine baptism, therefore, indicates the religion of Allah or the nature according to which Allah has created man (AH). As the word is used as an objective complement, I have added the word receive to indicate the full sense.

179 A Muslim's conception of Allah is very broad. It includes all that is best in all other religions, but is free from the limitations they put. Therefore no one who is true to his own religion can dispute the Muslim conception of the Divine Being.

180 The interrogation indicated by the word am in the original simply expresses disapproval. For instance, we have in 7:195, "Have they feet with which to walk, or have they hands with which to assault, or have they eyes with which to see, or have they ears with which to hear?" This is said of the idols. Similarly, the interrogation here is simply to reprove the Jews and the Christians, when they affirmed respectively that none could be a follower of the right way who was not a Jew or who did not believe in the Christian scheme of salvation, for their ancestors who were prophets were followers of neither the one nor the other. Islam was, in fact, a reversion to the simple faith of sincerity, the faith of Abraham and his immediate followers and descendants.

Or, equitable

143 And thus We have made you an *exalted*¹⁸² nation that you may be the bearers of witness to the people and (that) the Apostle may be a bearer of

سَيَقُولُ السُّفَهَاءُ مِنَ النَّاسِ مَا وَلَدْتُمْ
عَنْ قِبَلَتِهِمُ الَّذِينَ كَانُوا عَلَيْهِمْ كُفْرًا

مَنْ يَشَاءُ إِلَى صِرَاطٍ مُسْتَقِيمٍ
وَكَذَلِكَ جَعَلْنَاكُمْ أُمَّةً وَسَطًا
لِتَكُونُوا شُهَدَاءَ عَلَى النَّاسِ يَكُونُ
الرَّسُولُ عَلَيْكُمْ شَهِيدًا

181 Qiblah means the direction or point towards which one turns his face as opposed to dibrah, which indicates the direction or point towards which one turns his back (LL). Literally it simply indicates a direction, not a place. In its religious usage it means the direction towards which one turns his face when saying his prayers. The change here referred to is the change which took place at Medina about sixteen months after the flight to that city (Bkh). It should be noted that while the Holy Prophet was at Mecca among the idolaters of Arabia, he used to pray with his face to the holy temple at Jerusalem, but when he came to Medina, where the Jewish element was strong and powerful, he was directed by Divine revelation to turn his face to the Ka'ba as his qiblah. The Jews are here spoken of in particular (T'Ab-Rz), and the subject is one in continuation of what is said in the last two sections, for if Abraham's seed was to be blessed in Ishmael's progeny, it was necessary that the new qiblah should be the House purified by Abraham and Ishmael, the temple at Jerusalem being only the qiblah for the Israelites. This change contained a clear prophecy that Mecca would be conquered by the Muslims, for an idolatrous temple could not be the qiblah in a religion of pure monotheism. To this conquest of Mecca there is also a reference in the words: the East and the West belong only to Allah, and Allah's guiding the Muslims to the right path also includes His directing them to a path of success and final triumph over their enemies.

182 The word in the original is wasaf, which signifies the middle part of any thing, and therefore, as being removed from either extreme, it signifies the best part of a thing according to LL, who translates امة وسطا as meaning a just, equitable or good nation, that is, one not inclining to either extreme. Or it means the best because the middle position can only be occupied by one, and therefore it has no second to it. The usual translation "intermediate nation" does not convey the right sense. The commentators explain wasaf as meaning equitable and exalted (Rz AH, Kf), and this sense fits in with the context. By making the Ka'ba their qiblah, Allah had made it known that they were the people, the Muslim nation, for whom Abraham had prayed (v. 128), and therefore they were the inheritors of all those Divine blessings which had been promised for the seed of Abraham.

witness to you;¹⁸³ and We did not make that which you would have to be the qiblah¹⁸⁴ but that We might *distinguish*¹⁸⁵ him who follows the Apostle from him who turns back upon his heels, and this was surely hard except for those whom Allah has guided aright; and Allah was not going to make your faith to be fruitless;¹⁸⁶ most surely Allah is Affectionate, Merciful to the people.

144 Indeed We see the turning of your face to heaven,¹⁸⁷ so We shall surely turn you to a qiblah which you shall like; turn then your face towards the sacred mosque, and wherever you are, turn your faces towards it, and those who have been given the Book most surely know that it

وَمَا جَعَلْنَا الْقِبْلَةَ الَّتِي كُنْتَ عَلَيْهَا

مَا كُنْتُمْ فَوَلُّوا وُجُوهَكُمْ شَطْرَهُ وَ
إِنَّ الَّذِينَ أُوْتُوا الْكِتَابَ لَيَعْلَمُونَ

183 One explanation of the word shahid or bearer of witness is given in the following words: So that you may carry to them what you have learned of the revelation and the faith as Allah's apostle has brought to you (AH, Rz). Therefore the bearers of witness are the persons who carry knowledge to others, bearing testimony to its truth in their own persons; hence some commentators explain the word as meaning a purifier (AH). But shahid also signifies one possessing much knowledge, hence Ash-shahid is also a name of the Divine Being (LL), and it means also an imām or a leader.

184 Rz explains the words كنت عليها as meaning on which you had firmly set your heart that it should be your qiblah. It thus appears that the Holy Prophet longed that the Ka'ba should be his qiblah, yet he did not take any step until he had received the Divine revelation. If his revelations had been the outcome of his own desires, he would not have waited for sixteen months for a revelation from on high to change the qiblah.

185 The ordinary meaning of na'lama would be we might know, but I have followed AH in translating it as meaning we might distinguish, leaving the ordinary significance for the margin, for 'ilm is not followed by min except when it is used in the sense of distinguishing one thing from another. The significance given in the margin implies the knowledge of the event when it has taken place.

186 By some the word imān, lit., faith, is explained as meaning prayer (T'Ab-Bkh). Adopting the ordinary significance, the words would mean that the faithful had no hesitation in accepting the change, and thus their faith bore fruit by keeping them in the right path.

187 The Prophet's turning the face to heaven signifies his looking up to Allah for guidance in the matter of the qiblah. The difficulty of the qiblah had arisen at Medina, for there it was that in turning his face to Jerusalem he had to turn his back to Mecca, Medina being situated between Mecca and Jerusalem. Hence, the Prophet waited for a revelation to guide him in the matter.

145 And even if you bring to those who have been given the Book every sign they would not follow your qiblah, nor can you be a follower of their qiblah, neither are they the followers of each other's qiblah;¹⁸⁹ and if you follow their desires after the knowledge that has come to you, then you shall most surely be among the unjust.

188 There is a report according to which the Holy Prophet speaks of himself as "the prayer of my father Abraham." The followers of the Book knew that not only had Abraham prayed for the appearance of a prophet from among the sons of Ishmael, but that God had also promised a blessing (foot-note 168). The Sacred House which Abraham had purified with his own hands in the place where he left Ishmael must therefore have been known to the Israelites to be the centre of the exertions and of the future conquests of the only prophet of Ishmael's seed.

189 Notwithstanding that the Jews and the Christians both looked to the temple at Jerusalem as their central temple, they were not agreed upon it as their qiblah, for the Christians turned towards the east (Muir). Moreover, there are differences among the Jews and the Samaritans, though both follow the law of Moses.

• 190 All the prophets of Abraham's seed had hitherto appeared among the children of Israel, and hence as they know their sons is equivalent to as they know the Israelite prophets, the significance of the whole passage being that the Israelites or the Jews recognized the Holy Prophet who appeared among the children of Ishmael as they recognized the prophets who appeared among the children of Israel. They knew this not only because blessing had equally been promised for both sons of Abraham, but also because of the clear prophecy of Moses that a prophet like him would be raised among the brethren of the Israelites, i.e. the Ishmaelites, and because no prophet answering that description had appeared among the Israelites.

SECTION 18

Grounds for making the Ka'ba the Muslim Centre

وَلِكُلِّ وُجْهَةٍ هُودٍ أَسْبَغُوهَا فَاَسْبِغُوا

جَمِيعًا اِنَّ اَللّٰهَ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ
وَمِنْ جَيْتٍ خَرَجْتَ قَوْلٍ وَجْهَكَ
شَطْرَ الْمَسْجِدِ الْحَرَامِ وَاِنَّهُ الْحَقُّ
مِنْ رَبِّكَ ؕ وَمَا اَللّٰهُ بِغَافِلٍ عَمَّا
تَعْمَلُونَ ٥

191 The meaning is that Allah intends to make all Muslims as one people, therefore He requires all to turn to one direction, to set one goal before them, and to have one centre to turn to wherever they may be. The unity of the qiblah among the Muslims really stands for their unity of purpose as being a nation which strives after one goal, and forms the basis on which rests the brotherhood of Islam; hence the saying of the Prophet: Do not call those who follow your qiblah unbelievers. But that noble lesson is now almost lost to the Muslims.

Thus the chief reason given for appointing one qiblah for all Muslims, wherever they may be, is that this should be an ostensible sign of their unity of purpose, the reason why that honour is given to the Ka'ba being given in v. 151 (see foot-note 193). It may be added that the Ka'ba has never been supposed by any Muslim to possess any Divine attribute, nor is any petition or prayer ever addressed to it, and hence the strange conclusion drawn by some Christian writers, that the honour thus given to the Ka'ba is a remnant of the pre-Islamite Arab polytheism or idolatry, is unworthy of serious attention. Even the idolatrous Arabs never worshipped the Ka'ba, though they had placed idols in it which they worshipped. It should also be borne in mind that the famous black stone was not one of the Arab idols, nor can the kissing of it in performing the pilgrimage be looked upon as a remnant of idolatry. That stone stands only as a monument: "The stone which the builders refused is become the head-stone of the corner" (Ps. 118:22). Ishmael was looked upon as rejected, and the covenant was considered to have been made with the children of Isaac or Israelites, yet it was that rejected stone, for which the black stone at Ka'ba, the place where Ishmael was cast, stands as a monument, that was to become "the head-stone of the corner." The black stone is unhewn, so it is the stone that was "cut out of the mountain without hands" (Dan. 2:45). Jesus Christ made this clear in the parable of the husbandmen, when he plainly told the Israelites that the vineyard (i.e. the kingdom of God) would be taken away from them and given to "other husbandmen," i.e. to a non-Israelite people, immediately giving indication of that people in the words. "Did ye never read in the Scripture, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner?" (Matt. 21:42), and again emphasized his object in the words: "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof" (Matt. 21:43), thus showing that he was referring to a rejected nation. Hence if the black stone is kissed, it is not kissed as an idol or as a god, but as a monument of the rejection of a nation which was to become the corner-stone in the Divine kingdom.

192 By completing of favour is meant the fulfilment of all those promises of blessings which were made regarding the descendants of Ishmael. Had the Prophet's qiblah been other than the Ka'ba, it would have been an argument against him, for in that case the prophecy would have remained unfulfilled in one part. But when the prophecy and the promises made to Abraham were fulfilled in their entirety, none but the unjust could now object.

193 The connection with the previous verse is clear: That I may complete My favour on you, even as We have sent among you an Apostle. The reference is to Abraham's prayer in v. 129, in fulfilment of which the Holy Prophet was raised; because it was to Abraham that the injunction was given that the Sacred House dedicated to Allah's worship at Mecca should be purified, so that it might be the centre to which all His true and faithful devotees should turn. Compare the words of v. 129 regarding the functions of the promised prophet, which are exactly the same as those mentioned here.

194 Man's remembrance of Allah is to walk humbly in His ways, and Allah's remembrance of man is to pour His blessings upon him (1J). But as the word zikr also means eminence (LL), the meaning may therefore be, therefore remember Me or glorify Me; I will make you eminent.

195 The Sacred Mosque at Mecca was in the possession of the idolaters, but by making

154 And do not speak of those who are slain in Allah's way¹⁹⁶ as dead; nay, (they are) alive, but you do not perceive.¹⁹⁷

156 Who, when a misfortune befalls them, say: Surely we are Allah's, and to Him we shall surely return.¹⁹⁸

157 Those are they on whom are blessings and mercy from their Lord, and those are the followers of the right course.

أُولَٰئِكَ عَلَيْهِمْ صَلَوَاتٌ مِنْ رَبِّهِمْ وَرَحْمَةٌ وَأُولَٰئِكَ هُمُ الْمُتَّقُونَ

it the qiblah of the Muslims, promise was no doubt given that it would soon be theirs, purified of idol worship. But to attain this great object they must seek Divine assistance, which would be granted them if they endured trials with manliness and prayed to Allah.

196 The sacrifice of life which must be undergone in the cause of truth is hinted at in this passage. The words سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ frequently occurring in the Holy Qur-ān signify literally in the way of Allah or in the cause of Allah. As opposed to this occur the words سَبِيلِ الطَّاغُوتِ i.e. in the way or cause of the devil, regarding the fighting of the enemies of Islam (4: 76). The two expressions therefore signify only in the cause of truth and in the cause of falsehood respectively. Whether the cause of the Muslims was really the cause of truth, right, and justice, and whether they were compelled to fight to defend the truth or had undertaken wars to compel the unbelievers to accept Islam, is quite a different question, which has been discussed in various places. Here I may only point out that the Qur-ān has over and over again asserted that the Muslims were compelled to take up the sword in the cause of truth and justice and in self-defence when they had no other alternative, and Sale's comment that the words fisabil-illah always "meant war undertaken against unbelievers for the propagation of the Muhammadan faith" is a prejudiced statement, opposed to the Qur-ān itself, which says that "there is no compulsion in religion" (v. 256).

197 That those who sacrifice their lives in the cause of truth never die is a truth which is generally recognized. As truth lives and falsehood must die, so those who make the triumph of truth the object of their lives do not die, even if they are slain in the cause of truth. It may be added, however, that the words maut and hayāt apply respectively to grief or sorrow and freedom from grief or sorrow (Rgh), and therefore those who have fulfilled the object of their lives shall never grieve, this being the oft-recurring description of the state of salvation as given in the Holy Qur-ān. Or, those who have sacrificed their lives in the cause of truth gain the life eternal, while the dead are really those who are dead in ignorance.

198 This is the true expression of a Muslim's resignation under trials: We come from Allah, and Allah is our goal. Therefore no trial or misfortune can disturb the course of our life, which has a much higher goal before it than mere comfort. These words are uttered by a Muslim when any misfortune befalls him. Come what may, the contentment of his mind is never disturbed.

Ar. of. 158 Surely the Šafá and the Marwah are among the signs appointed by Allah;¹⁹⁹ so whoever makes a pilgrimage to the House or pays a visit* (to it), there is no blame on him if he goes round them both; and whoever does good spontaneously, then surely Allah is Bountiful in rewarding, Knowing.²⁰⁰

فَأُولَئِكَ أَزُوبُ عَلَيْهِمْ وَأَنَا التَّوَّابُ الرَّحِيمُ

199 The Šafá and the Marwah are two mountains near Mecca. They were the scene of Hagar's running to and fro in quest of water when left alone with Ishmael in the wilderness. The two mountains being therefore the scene of her troubles, now serve as two monuments of the reward which patience brought, and it is as a memorial to Hagar's patience that they are now gone round by the pilgrims. This circumstance explains the connection of this verse with the previous verses.

200 On the Šafá was an idol called Usáf, and on the Marwah one called Náiilah, which the pilgrims respectfully touched in the days of ignorance, and hence the apprehensions of the Muslims in going round them (LJ). According to Bkh, however, the people of Medina were averse to going round the Šafá and the Marwah, though no reason for their aversion is given.

201 For the meaning of la'nat, or curse, see foot-note 131. By "those who curse" and the curse of "Allah and the angels and men" in v. 161 are meant the curses predicted for the Israelites by Moses: "But it shall come to pass, if thou wilt not hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God, to observe to do all His commandments and His statutes which I command thee this day, that all these curses shall come upon thee and overtake thee: cursed shalt thou be in the city and cursed shalt thou be in the field, cursed shall be thy basket and thy store. Cursed shall be the fruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy land, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep. Cursed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and cursed shalt thou be when thou goest out" (Deut. 28:15-19). After enumerating the curses of the Lord, His sending upon them "cursing, vexation, and rebuke," His making the pestilence "cleave" to them, His smiting them with "a consumption, and with a fever, and with an inflammation, and with an extreme burning, and with the sword, and with blasting . . . and the botch of Egypt . . . and madness and blindness," the curses of men are thus spoken of: "Thou shalt go out one way against them and flee seven ways before them," "thou shalt be only oppressed and spoiled evermore," "thou shalt betroth a wife and another man shall lie with her: thou shalt build an house and thou shalt not dwell therein," "thy sons and thy daughters shall be given unto another people . . . the fruit of thy land and all thy labours shall a nation which

Unity must prevail ultimately

164. Divine Unity manifested in nature. 165-187. Fate of those who set up equals with Allah.

164 Most surely in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day, and the ships that run in the sea with that which profits men, and the water that Allah sends down from the cloud, then gives life with it to the earth after its death and spreads in it all (kinds of) animals, and the changing of the winds and the clouds made subservient between the heaven and the earth, there are signs for a people who understand.²⁰³

165 And there are some among men who take for themselves objects of worship besides Allah,²⁰⁴ whom they love

إِنَّ فِي خَلْقِ السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ وَ اِخْتِلَافِ اللَّيْلِ وَالنَّهَارِ وَالْفُلِ

thou knowest not eat up; and thou shalt be only oppressed and crushed always" (Deut. 28: 20-68).

202 The introduction of the formula of Divine Unity in this, the concluding verse of the section, is to show that this was the grand object which was set before the Muslims, while its ultimate prevalence is more clearly set forth in the next section, and that it was for this object that the trials and privations spoken of in this section were to be undergone.

203 The Unity of Allah is declared by the whole of nature, and being such a clear doctrine, must no doubt at last prevail over idolatry and polytheism of every kind. Not only did Arabia witness the truth of this thirteen hundred years ago, but even to-day we see that as man is freed from the trammels of prejudice he realizes the truth of Divine Unity more and more. The uniformity that is clearly observed in the diversity in nature is constantly appealed to in the Qur-ān as a sign of the Unity of the Maker.

204 The objects of worship here referred to may include idols, but the reference is apparently to the leaders who lead their followers into evil. This is made plain by the verses that follow, where "those who were followed," i.e. the leaders, renounce those who followed them.

SECTION 21

Prohibited Foods

168-171. Injunction to use good and lawfully acquired things for food. 172, 173. Food prohibited for Muslims. 174-176. Warning against neglecting moral injunctions, which amounts to eating of fire.

168 O men! eat the lawful and good things out of what is in the earth, and do not follow the footsteps of the devil; surely he is your open enemy;²⁰⁷

يَا أَيُّهَا النَّاسُ كُلُوا مِمَّا فِي الْأَرْضِ
حَلَالًا طَيِّبًا وَلَا تَتَّبِعُوا خُطُوَاتِ
الشَّيْطَانِ إِنَّهُ لَكُمْ عَدُوٌّ مُبِينٌ ○

205 While Allah's love and affection for His creatures is the ever-recurring theme that finds expression in the Holy Qur-an, man's love for Allah, which is the real basis of Islam, or absolute submission to the Divine Being, is here declared to be stronger than all other ties of love and friendship, including that which unites a man to his idols or other false deities. The words give a direct lie to the allegation that love of God does not form the basis of the religion of Islam.

206 The mutual renouncement of the leaders and their followers takes place sometimes in this very life. The poorer Jews must surely have regretted their blindly following their leaders in their opposition to the Holy Prophet when the whole community was at last banished or otherwise punished on account of their casting their lot with the enemies of the Muslims.

It should also be noted that it is the intense regret for the evil deeds done which is here described as being the fire from which there is no escape.

207 The fundamental principle of faith, Divine Unity, having been discussed at full length, certain secondary rules and regulations are now considered, and among these the subject of prohibited foods is introduced first with a twofold object. In the first place it enjoins that only lawful and good things should be eaten. The lawful things are not only those which the law has not declared to be forbidden, but even unforbidden things 169 He only enjoins you evil and indecency, and that you may speak against Allah what you do not know.

170 And when it is said to them, Follow what Allah has revealed, they say: Nay! we follow what we found our fathers upon. What! and though their fathers had no sense at all, nor did they follow the right way.

171 And the parable of those who disbelieve is as the parable of one who calls out to that which hears no more than a call and a cry; deaf, dumb (and) blind, so they do not understand.²⁰⁸

172 O you who believe! eat of the good things that We have provided you with, and give thanks to Allah if Him it is that you serve.²⁰⁹

173 He has only forbidden you what dies of itself, and blood, and flesh of swine, and that over which any other (name) than (that of) Allah has become unlawful if they are acquired unlawfully, by theft, robbery, cheating, bribery, etc. The Israelites stood in special need of being reminded of this, for while they laid too much stress upon the ceremonial of religion, they were utterly indifferent to internal purity, and they would make a show of utter abhorrence to forbidden things but gladly devoured what was unlawfully acquired, a practice of which they are elsewhere condemned in plain words: "Why do not the learned men and the doctors of law prohibit them from their speaking of what is sinful and their eating of what is unlawfully acquired?" (5: 63).

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا كُلُوا مِن طَيِّبَاتِ مَا رَزَقْنَاكُمْ وَاشْكُرُوا لِلَّهِ إِن كُنتُمْ إِيَّاهُ تَعْبُدُونَ ○

Secondly, by adding the injunction do not follow the footsteps of the devil the real object of the prohibition is made plain. The Holy Qur-án recognizes some sort of relation between the physical and the spiritual conditions of man. There is not the least doubt that food plays an important part in the formation of character, and the heart and the brain powers are clearly affected by the quality of food. The same law is seen working in the whole of the animal kingdom. As the Holy Qur-án is meant for all stages of the development of human society, it contains rules and regulations for the betterment of the physical as well as the moral and the spiritual conditions of man.

208 The Prophet is likened to the crier who calls out, but the disbelievers are deaf to reason, and are like cattle which only hear the cry of the driver, but do not understand the meaning of what he says: this is in accordance with what is said in the previous verse. Some commentators are of opinion that the crier is the disbeliever, who cries for help or guidance to his false gods, but these do not know what he says. But the addition of the words deaf, dumb, and blind, which apply to the disbelievers, shows that the first explanation is the correct one.

209 The injunction to eat of the good things is directed against the use of things which are injurious to health, though they may not be forbidden by law, as well as against what is unlawfully acquired.

been invoked;²¹⁰ but whoever is driven to necessity, not desiring, nor exceeding the limit, no sin shall be upon him; surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.²¹¹

175 These are they who buy error for the right direction and chastisement for forgiveness; how bold they are to encounter fire!

210 The Jews objected to certain foods being allowed to Muslims which were forbidden by the Mosaic law; see 3 : 92 and foot-note 466. That which dies of itself and that which was torn by beasts was forbidden by the law of Moses also (Lev. 17 : 15), so was blood (Lev. 7 : 26), and the flesh of swine (Lev. 11 : 7). As for things specially prohibited to Jews and not prohibited to the Muslims, see 6 : 147 and foot-note 837. The Jews held the swine in great detestation, and the mention of the animal in the Gospels shows that Jesus Christ held it in equal abhorrence, which proves that he too regarded the animal as impure. Neither does he appear to have broken the Jewish law in this respect.

The same prohibition had already been revealed while the Holy Prophet was yet at Mecca in almost identical words in 16 : 115, whereas in 6 : 146 reasons are added for the prohibition; see foot-note 836. And 5 : 3, which was revealed later at Medina, adds several things by way of explaining what dies of itself, and that over which any other name than that of Allah has been invoked. It is there shown that this last description applies to animals which were offered to idols. The commentators also are of opinion that the reference in that over which any other name than that of Allah has been invoked is to the animals slaughtered by the worshippers of idols, which they used to slaughter as offerings to their idols (Rz), or to that over which the name of an idol is invoked at the time of its slaughter (Bd), for among the Arabs the practice was that animals were slaughtered in the name of an idol. But the statement made in the Holy Qur-án is general, and the invocation of any other name than that of Allah makes the animal slaughtered unlawful.

211 بَاغٍ signifies not desiring to cut it for the sake of enjoyment, and عَادٍ means not exceeding the bare limit of want.

212 The physical and the spiritual are beautifully welded together in the Holy Qur-án. The prohibition to eat certain impure or injurious foods is followed by a warning against the eating of fire, and thus the connection is established. Caution is always given lest too much stress should be laid upon the outward ceremonial of the law, and here we are told that even more dangerous than the prohibited foods is the eating of fire, which means the concealing of what is revealed in the Book. The concealment in this case means not acting upon the teaching of the Book, and though the Jews may serve as an example, the Muslims are equally warned of the danger of being strict in external acts of purity while neglecting internal purity.

176 This is because Allah has revealed the Book with the truth; and surely those who go against^{212a} the Book are in a great opposition.

Retaliation and Bequests

177. Righteousness consists not in formalities but in accepting broad principles of faith and sympathetic and equal treatment of fellow-beings. 178, 179. Retaliation. 180-182. Bequests.

212A الذين اختلفوا في الكتاب is generally rendered as meaning those who disagree about the Book, but this significance does not convey any clear idea as to what is meant. Rgh gives as one significance: they do with respect to it, or introduce into it, what is against the Divine revelation. Bq says ikhtilaf may in this case signify their believing a part and rejecting a part, while another significance given by him is, they fall short of the right way in its interpretation, instead of which we might say they fall short of the right way in acting upon it. Hence the best interpretation is going against the Book, and this is the significance that I have adopted.

213 This is one of the passages which have elicited words of praise even from the most hostile critics of the Qur-ān: "This is one of the noblest verses in the Qur-ān. It clearly distinguishes between a formal and a practical piety. Faith in God and benevolence towards man is clearly set forth as the essence of religion" (Wh).

While it is true that the uselessness of lifeless ceremonial, to which all nations, and none more than the Jews, adhered at the time, is pointed out, and this establishes the connection of this verse with what precedes and what follows, a comparison with v. 115 and a perusal of foot-note 160 will show that the verse conveys a deeper significance, which is hinted at in its concluding words. In the turning of the face to the East and the West there is an allusion to the Muslim conquests in the East and the West, and the Muslims are told that it is not the Divine purpose that they should be merely a conquering nation, but that their special characteristic as a nation should be that they propagate the true principles of religion in the world and do good to their fellow-beings. If they adhered to these principles, conquests would follow their footsteps, as is said in v. 115: "And Allah's is the East and the West; therefore whither you turn, thither is Allah's purpose."

The essence of the verse is therefore this, that the Muslims should be righteous first and conquerors afterwards, so that they may sow the seed of righteousness in all countries which they conquer.

214 A belief in angels, white hinted at in the opening verses of this chapter, is clearly spoken of here as one of the basic principles of Islam. The belief in angels may not be as universal as a belief in the Divine Being, but it is accepted generally in all monotheistic religions. As in the case of all other principles of faith, Islam has pointed out a certain significance underlying the belief in angels. Just as our physical faculties are not by themselves sufficient to enable us to attain any object in the physical world without the assistance of other agents—as, for instance, the eye cannot see unless there is and the book²¹⁵ and the prophets, and give away wealth out of love for Him²¹⁶ to the near of kin and the orphans and the needy and the wayfarer and the beggars and for (the emancipation of) the captives,²¹⁷ and keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate; and the performers of their promise when they make a promise,²¹⁸ and the patient in distress and affliction and in time of conflict²¹⁹—these are they who are true (to themselves), and these are they who guard (against evil).

light—so our spiritual powers cannot by themselves lead us to do good or evil deeds, but here too intermediaries which have an existence independent of our internal spiritual powers are necessary to enable us to do good or evil deeds. Now, there are two attractions placed in man—the attraction to good or to rise up to the higher spheres of virtue, and the attraction to evil or to stoop down to a kind of low, bestial life; but to bring these attractions into operation external agencies are needed, as they are needed in the case of the physical powers of man. The external agency which brings the attraction to good into work is called an angel, and that which assists in the working of the attraction to evil is called the devil. If we respond to the attraction for good we are following the Holy Spirit, and if we respond to the attraction for evil we are following Satan. Our belief in angels carries, therefore, the significance that whenever we feel a tendency for the doing of good we should at once obey that call and follow the inviter to good. That it does not simply mean that we should admit that there are angels is clear from the fact that not only are we not required to believe in devils, whose existence is as certain as that of the angels, but we are plainly told that we should disbelieve in the devils (v. 256). As a disbelief in the devil means that we should repel the attraction for evil, so a belief in angels means that we should follow the inviter to good.

215 While a belief in all the prophets is stated to be necessary, the Book is spoken of here in the singular, though clearly the books of all the prophets are included. The reason seems to be that elsewhere it is said that the Qur-án is a Book “wherein are all the right books” (98: 3), so that a belief in the Qur-án includes a belief in all these books, and therefore the Book here signifies the Qur-án.

216 The love of Allah is here, as in many other places in the Holy Qur-án, stated to be the true incentive to all deeds of righteousness.

217 Riqáb is the plural of raqabah, which literally signifies a neck, and then comes to signify by a synecdoche a slave or a captive (TA-LL). Hence فِي الرِّقَابِ here means the emancipation of captives (IJ). No religion in the world other than Islam has told us how love for the enemy may be shown in practice. What kind of a conquering nation does Islam require its followers to be? A nation of conquerors who must spend part of their wealth for setting free those enemies who have been captured in war! No nobler teaching, no practical ordinance on this point, is met with outside the pages of the Holy Book. However noble the teaching, “Love your enemies,” it did not pass beyond the domain of dream in Christianity; only a practical benefactor of humanity could say: For the love of Allah give away your wealth in freeing those enemies whom you have captured in war.

178 O you who believe! retaliation is prescribed for you in the matter of the slain: the free for the free, and the slave for the slave, and the female for the female,²²⁰ but if any remission is made to any one by his (aggrieved) brother,²²¹ then prosecution (for the blood-wit) should be made according to usage, and payment should be made to him in a good manner; this is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy; so whoever exceeds the limit after this, he shall have a painful chastisement,

179 And there is life for you in (the law of) retaliation, O men of understanding, that you may guard yourselves.²²²

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا كُتِبَ عَلَيْكُمُ الْقِصَاصُ

وَأَنَّ صِحَّةَ حِمَاةٍ يَأْوِلُونَ

218 That is another characteristic which should distinguish the Muslim conquerors. The performance of promises on the part of individuals as well as of nations is one of the first essentials of the welfare of humanity, and hence the stress laid upon it by the Holy Qur-ān. Faithlessness to treaties and pledges on the part of nations has wrought greater havoc on humanity than any other cause. Just as no society can prosper until its individual members are true to their mutual agreements and promises to each other, humanity at large will always remain in a degraded condition unless and until the different nations are true to their promises. And the sufferings which naturally must be the lot of a conquered nation could be reduced to their minimum if the conquerors should be true to their promises.

219 The concluding words of the verse, the patient . . . in time of conflict, are a clear indication of what the whole verse aims at, and the coming conflicts with the opponents of Islam, ultimately leading to the triumph of Islam over those who were bent upon extirpating it, are plainly hinted at.

220 The Jewish law of retaliation is greatly modified in Islam, being limited only to cases of murder, while among the Jews it extended to all cases of grievous hurt. But in Islam "retaliation is prescribed for you in the matter of the slain," which amounts to saying that the murderer shall be put to death. After promulgating that law in general terms, the Qur-ān proceeds to describe a particular case, viz. that if a free man is the murderer, he himself is to be slain; if a slave is the murderer, that slave is to be executed; if a woman murdered a man, it was she that was to be put to death. The pre-Islamic Arabs used in certain cases to insist, when the person killed was of noble descent, upon the execution of others besides the murderer; they were not content with the execution of the slave or the woman, if one of them happened to be the murderer. The Holy Qur-ān abolished this custom (AH, Rz).

221 There may be circumstances which alleviate the guilt: in that case the murderer may be made to pay a fine to the relatives of the murdered person. Such money is called diyyat or bloodwit. The reference to the alleviation of the guilt is plainly contained in the concluding words of the verse: This is an alleviation from your Lord. Alleviation from the Lord would no doubt be a natural consequence of alleviation in the guilt of the murderer. A comparison with 4:92 makes it clear that when homicide is not intentional, bloodwit may be paid.

180 Bequest is prescribed for you when death approaches one of you, if he leaves behind wealth for parents and near relatives, according to usage, a duty (incumbent) upon those who guard (against evil).²²³

181 Whoever then alters it after he has heard it—the sin of it then is only upon those who alter it; surely Allah is Hearing, Knowing.

222 Hitherto the Muslims had suffered in silence every excess against them. Many of them had been put to death cruelly. Now the opponents were contemplating an extermination by the sword of all the Muslims, and the latter are warned that their life now depended on making the law of retaliation work, while, generally speaking, too, life can not be safe unless those who are guilty of homicide are sentenced to capital punishment.

223 It is a mistake to think that the injunction contained in this verse does not hold good, and that the verse is abrogated. Some commentators hold the opinion that the direction to make a bequest, as contained in this verse, is abrogated by 4:11, which fixes the shares of the heirs of the deceased person, whereas a perusal of that verse shows clearly that it recognizes the validity of any bequest that may have been made. As a further evidence that the law of making a bequest was not abrogated by 4:11, see 5:106 (the revelation of which is decidedly later than 4:11), where the calling of witnesses at the time of making a bequest is enjoined. In practice, however, traced to the time of the Holy Prophet himself, the right to make a will as regards one's property has been subject to the condition that not more than a third of the property shall be bequeathed, and that those who take as heirs shall not be entitled to take under the bequest. But even this practice does not show that the verse is abrogated; on the other hand, it emphasizes the injunction to make a bequest, and shows, in fact, what bequests are spoken of here, by giving further directions as to what could make bequests injurious to the rights of the heirs.

All difficulties in connection with this verse are overcome if we read the words

meaning if he leaves behind wealth, instead of taking them, as referring to the bequest; so that the passage stands thus: Bequest is prescribed for you when death approaches one of you if he leaves behind wealth for parents and kindred. Thus the bequest is not to be made for the parents and the kindred, for their shares are fixed by 4:11, but it is to be made for charitable or other purposes. Thus read, the verse is quite in accordance with the other two verses, 4:11 and 5:106, and with the Holy Prophet's practice as recorded in reports, three of which may be noted here. The first of these, which is recorded by both Bkh and Muslim, is the statement of Sa'd bin Abi Waqqas: "I fell sick in the year of the conquest of Mecca with a sickness which almost made me sure of death. The Holy Prophet came to me, and I told him that I had a large property and had only a daughter to inherit it, and asked his permission to bequeath the whole of my property (evidently for charitable purposes), but I was permitted only to bequeath one-third." That is an abstract of Sa'd's statement. The mention of the year of the conquest of Mecca shows clearly that the incident relates to a time when both the verse under discussion and 4:11 had long been revealed. Hence the making of a bequest was not contrary to v. 180, and this verse really speaks of bequests made for charitable or other purposes, and not of bequests to heirs. Two other incidents are of a still later date. 'Ayesha says that a man intended to make a bequest. She asked him how much property he had, and being told that he had 4,000 Drs. and four heirs, told him not to make a bequest and to leave the amount to his heirs, and recited the words ان ترك خيرا occurring in this verse as signifying the leaving of a large property as a condition for a bequest (Bd). A similar incident is reported in connection with 'Ali, the fourth caliph. He had a freedman possessing 700 Drs., and 'Ali told him not to make a bequest, reciting the same words, ان ترك خيرا in support of his contention (Bd). Both these incidents, happening after the death of the Prophet, show conclusively (1) that v. 180 was not regarded as abrogated, because people still made bequests under it, and both 'Ayesha and 'Ali drew inferences from it; and (2) that the bequests spoken of in this verse were never meant for those who would inherit under 4:11, but for charitable purposes, or in certain cases for those relatives who could not inherit under 4:11.

224 Proper advice may be tendered to the testator not to show undue favour to any one or not to exceed the limits of the law to the detriment of the legal heirs.

225 Fasting is a religious institution almost as universal as prayer, and in Islam it is one of the four fundamental practical ordinances, the other three being prayer, poor-rate, and pilgrimage. The words of the Qur-ān show that fasting was enjoined on all nations by the prophets who passed before the Holy Prophet Muhammad. "Fasting has in all ages and among all nations been an exercise much in use in times of mourning, sorrow, and afflictions" (Cr. Bib. Con.). Fasting has also been in vogue among the Hindus. Even Christians, who think that they have no need of any religious exercise on account of Jesus' atonement, were commanded by that prophet to keep the fasts: "Moreover, when ye fast, be not as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance. . . . But thou, when thou fastest, anoint thine head and wash thy face" (Matt. 6:16, 17). Again, when the Pharisees objected to Jesus' disciples not keeping the fast as often as John's, his only answer was that when he will be taken away "then shall they fast in those days" (Luke 5:33-35).

But Islam has introduced quite a new meaning into the institution of fasting. Before Islam, fasting meant the suffering of some privation in times of mourning and sorrow; in Islam, it becomes an institution for the improvement of the moral and spiritual condition of man. This is plainly stated in the concluding words: So that you may guard against evil. The object is that man may learn how he can shun evil, and hence fasting in Islam does 184 For a certain number of days;^{225a} but whoever among you is sick or on a journey, then (he shall fast) a (like) number of other days; and those who are able to do it may effect a redemption by feeding a poor man;²²⁶ so whoever does good spontaneously it is better for him; and that you fast is better for you if you know.

185 The month of Ramaḍān²²⁷ is that in which the Qur-ān²²⁸ not mean simply abstaining from food, but from every kind of evil. In fact, abstention from food is only a step to make a man realize that if he can, in obedience to Divine injunctions, abstain from that which is otherwise lawful, how much more necessary it is that he should abstain from the evil ways which are forbidden by God. All the institutions of Islam are, in fact, practical steps leading to perfect purification of the soul. But along with moral elevation, which is aimed at in fasting, another object seems to be hinted at. In fact, the twofold object is that Muslims may be able to guard themselves, (a) morally and spiritually, against evil, for one who is able to renounce the lawful satisfaction of his desires in obedience to Divine commandments certainly acquires the power to renounce their unlawful gratification; and (b) physically against their opponents by habituating themselves to suffer tribulations which they must suffer in defence of Islam and Muslims.

225a The number of days is definitely stated in the next verse as being the twenty-nine or thirty days of the month of Ramaḍān. For details of fasting see Preface.

226 The word fidyah used in this verse is thus explained by Rgh: That by means of which a man saves himself, being the wealth which he spends on account of some devotion in which he has fallen short. The word also indicates the giving away of property by which freedom of any kind is purchased. By those who are able to do it are meant those who are able to feed a poor man. As regards those who cannot keep the fasts on account of constant or long illness, or who are too old or too weak (including in this class the woman who is with child or who gives suck), the practice has been to give away the measure of one man's food to a poor man every day during the whole month (Bkh, AD). Doing good to others is enjoined in addition to fasting in the month of Ramaḍān. We are told that the Holy Prophet, who was universally recognized for his abundant charity, was most charitable in the month of Ramaḍān (Bkh). In its mildest form the injunction is generally observed by giving away the measure of a poor man's feeding at the close of the month, which is called the sadaqat-ul-fiṭr, and which is obligatory on every male, female, and child, master and servant (Bkh).

227 The revelation of the Holy Qur-ān commenced in the month of Ramaḍān, which is the ninth month of the Arabian year (Rz), hence, the month of Ramaḍān is particularly spoken of as being the month in which the Holy Qur-ān was revealed. The root meaning of Ramaddn is excessiveness of heat; the month was so called because "when they changed the names of the months from the ancient language, they named them according to the seasons in which they fell, and this month agreed with the days of excessive heat" (LL, Bq). Some say that it is one of the names of Allah, for which, however, there is no reliable authority.

228 Al-Qur-ān is the name by which the Holy Book revealed to the Prophet Muhammad—peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him!—is known, and by this name the Holy Book is frequently mentioned in the Divine revelation. The word is an infinitive noun from the root qara-a, which signifies primarily he collected together the things (LA, TA-LL). The secondary significance of the root-word is reading or reciting a book, the word being applied to reading or recitation because in reading letters and words are joined to each other in a certain order (Rgh). The name Qur-án really refers to both the root-meanings, for on the one hand it signifies a book in which are gathered together all the Divine Books, a distinction to which the Qur-án itself lays claim in 98 : 3 and elsewhere (Rgh); on the other it means a book that is or should be read, the Holy Qur-án being the book "that has been truly described as the most widely read book in existence" (En. Br.). The commentators have pointed out thirty-one different names under which the Holy Qur-án is spoken of in the revelation itself, the most important of these being Al-Kítáb, or the Book, and Az-Zikr, or the Reminder.

229 There are three statements made here regarding the Holy Qur-án; firstly, that it is a guidance for all men, and that therefore it contains teachings which are suitable for the various classes and grades of men in different countries and ages; secondly, that it contains comprehensive arguments of the guidance, thus demonstrating the truth of what it asserts; and thirdly, that in addition to the arguments it affords a clear distinction, separating the truth from the falsehood by making the faithful taste the fruits of faith and the rejecters the evil consequences of their rejection of truth. The battle of Badr, which is called yaum-ul-furqán, or the day of distinction, in 8 : 41, also took place in the month of Ramaḍán.

230 The connection of this verse with the previous and the following verses consists in the fact that fasting, which includes shunning every sort of evil, brings a man nearer to the fountain-head of purity, and the more a man is brought near to the Holy One, the more do his supplications find acceptance with his Master. Hence, it is related that in the month of Ramaḍán the Holy Prophet exerted himself the greater in his prayers (Bkh), and induced his followers to do likewise (Muslim).

That the prayer of a devout suppliant is accepted is plainly stated here, but two points must be noted in connection with this subject. In the first place, there is an impression that the efficacy of prayer in some way interferes with resorting to practical means to attain an object, so that if this impression has produced a class of men who totally deny the efficacy of prayer, it has also led others to think that by resorting to prayer

187 It is made lawful to you to go in to your wives on the night of the fast; they are an apparel for you and you are an apparel for them;²³¹ Allah knew that you acted unfaithfully to yourselves,²³² so He has turned to you (mercifully) and removed from you (this burden); so now be in contact with them and seek what Allah has ordained for you, and eat and drink until the whiteness of the day becomes distinct from the blackness of the night at a man may dispense with all external means for the attainment of his object. Both these views are wrong, and opposed to the true doctrine of the efficacy of prayer as taught in Islam. The fact is that there is an indissoluble connection between practical means and prayer. Any one who sets before himself the attainment of an object first looks for the practical means to achieve it, and endeavours to his utmost to find out the agencies by which he can possibly attain that end. In this search for means he has to apply all his faculties to the object before him, and to give his whole attention to the finding of those means which will secure his object. This deep reflection or will-power may be called a prayer in a certain sense. For when we strive hard in search of what is hidden from us and unknown to us, we really seek for guidance from a Higher Power from whom nothing is hidden in a language which is expressed by our very condition. It cannot be doubted that when, in search of a thing, the soul stretches itself out in true zeal and ardour to the Giver of all gifts, and finding itself weak and unable to attain the end by itself, seeks for light from the Higher Source, it is plunged in a prayerful meditation, and its condition then is truly that of one who prays to God. The difference is only this, that the truly wise, the holy men of God, pray with due respect to Him whom they recognize to be the Source of all blessings, and their supplications are based upon a clear knowledge; while the prayer of those upon whose eyes a veil is cast is like wandering in darkness, and it takes the form of meditation and reflection. Thus those who neglect prayer in search of means and do not reflect well upon their course in a prayerful mood are as wrong as those who do not resort to practical means on account of their prayers.

Secondly, it should be borne in mind that the efficacy of prayer does not mean that every object for which a man prays to the Divine Being should be immediately attained. This is made clear by the Holy Qur-án itself: "Him you will call upon, so He clears away that for which you pray if He pleases" (6: 41); so that every object prayed for may not be attained. And again: "And We will most certainly try you with somewhat of fear and hunger and loss of property and lives and fruits" (v. 155); so that trials and hardships must be undergone even by the faithful, and they must be prepared to suffer every kind of loss. But just as the efficacy of a medicine cannot be denied because it does not prove efficacious in all cases, so the efficacy of prayer cannot be denied on this ground.

231 This description of the mutual relations of husband and wife, and the mutual comfort they find in and the protection they afford to each other, is unsurpassed in beauty.

232 All that the reports narrated in connection with this verse show is that the Muslims at first thought that it was illegal to go in to their wives, even at night-time, on the days during which they kept fasts, but this practice, which, according to AbM, was adopted from the Christians (Rz), was, at any rate, according to the unanimous opinion of all commentators, not based on any Qur'anic revelation, the only revelation on this point being the one given in this verse, which pointed out the error of the view and removed the rigour under which the Muslims had placed themselves.

233 Khait originally means thread, but is not limited to that use. The خيط الرقبة (lit., the thread of the neck) means the spinal cord of the neck (S, Q-LI). And خيط من الصبح is also said to signify a tint of the dawn (TA-LI). Hence you say,

تبين الخيط من الخيط The night became distinct from the day (TA-LI). Hence الخيط الابيض signifies the whiteness of the dawn and الخيط الاسود the blackness of the night (LI); so here the break of the dawn is meant, after which no food or drink should be taken till sunset.

An important question arises here regarding countries in which the days are sometimes very long, where it would be beyond the power of ordinary men to abstain from food from the breaking of the dawn to sunset. There is a report according to which the companions of the Holy Prophet are related to have asked him about their prayers in a day which extended to a year or a month, and the Prophet is related to have answered that they should measure according to the measure of their days (Muslim-Msh). From this it would follow that in countries where the days are too long the time of fasting may be measured, in accordance with the length of days in Medina, or the measure of a poor man's feeding may be given in charity for every fasting day. But postponing to days of shorter length, when that is possible, would be best.

234 By this is meant those who cut themselves off from all worldly connections during the last ten days of the month of Ramaḍān, passing day and night in mosques. This practice is known as ʿItikāf. But it is voluntary and not obligatory.

235 The injunction to abstain from illegally taking other men's property is a fitting sequel to the injunction relating to fasting, for by fasting a man abstains from using what he has a legal right to, simply in obedience to Divine commandments. Fasting, in fact, enables a man to control his passions, and once the passions are mastered, the greed for illegally acquiring what belongs to others will also vanish.

Say: They are times appointed for (the benefit of) men, and (for) the pilgrimage;²³⁶ and it is no righteousness that you should enter the houses at their backs,²³⁷ but righteousness is this that one should guard (against evil); and go into the houses by their doors and be careful (of your duty) to Allah, that you may be successful.

Ar. he who.

190 And fight in the way of Allah with those who fight with you, and do not exceed the limits; surely Allah does not love those who exceed the limits.²³⁸

236 The indefiniteness of the question is removed by the answer. There were certain months which were observed by the Arabs as sacred, in which the bitterest hostilities ceased and peace was established throughout the land, and thus trade was carried on peacefully and without molestation. It was also during these months that the pilgrimage to the sacred sanctuary at Mecca was performed. As this section deals with the injunctions relating to fighting, the question relating to the sacred months, which is made clearer in v. 217, is appropriately put here, and the answer recognizes the sacred character of those months, for their sacredness afforded to the people the material advantage of being able to carry on trade and the spiritual benefit of performing the pilgrimage.

237 The Arabs were a very superstitious people. When one of them set before himself an important object and was unable to attain it, he would not go into his house by the door, but entered it by the back and kept on doing so for a year (Hasan, Asamm-Rz). As the Muslims were now about to be charged with an onerous duty, viz., the establishing of religious freedom in that land of persecution, which confronted them with the greatest difficulties, they were told not to give way to the old superstitious Arab practices. They were told on the other hand that their remedy in great difficulties was sticking to righteousness.

Some commentators are, however, of opinion that entering by the back indicates turning aside from the right course, while entering by the doors signifies sticking to the right course (Rz). Or the reference may be to the practice prevalent in the days of ignorance of entering the houses by the back after performing the pilgrimage (Bkh).

238 Rabi' and Ibn-i-Zaid are of opinion, that this verse is the earliest revelation regarding the permission to fight (Rz), while according to others 22:39 is the earliest (Rz). Anyhow, it is one of the earliest revelations on the point. The subject is dealt with here in six verses, closing with v. 195, being again taken up in the following sections. A remarkable point about the injunction to fight in the way of Allah is that it is very often mentioned in connection with the subject of pilgrimage, as here and in the 3rd and 22nd chapters. From this circumstance may be concluded what is clearly stated

191 And kill them wherever you find them,²³⁹ and drive them

وَاتْلُوا لَهُمْ حَيْثُ تَقْبَلُوهُمْ وَانْزِلُوهُمْ

many times, viz., that fighting was permitted or ordained as a measure of self-defence and to put a stop to religious persecution; the pilgrimage to Mecca, which is one of the four fundamental principles of Islam, being impossible so long as the holy place was in the hands of unbelievers, who had driven the Muslims from Mecca by cruel persecutions.

The first restriction to which fighting in the way of Allah is made subject is that the Muslims should fight only against those "who are fighting with you." These words so clearly show that the Muslim wars were a measure of self-defence that they need no comment. It shows that the enemy had first taken up arms with the object of extirpating Islam, and this fact is borne out by history; it was after that that the Muslims were allowed to fight. This restriction further shows that women, children, and old men who could not take up arms against the Muslims were not to be molested (Rz.). A similar exception was also made in favour of monks and hermits. And under the new conditions the civil population of towns and villages would be treated similarly, for only those are to be fought against who actually take part in fighting. The second restriction is that the Muslims shall not exceed the limits of the necessity of war. This direction was the sore need of a community which had been subjected to the cruellest persecutions and the severest tortures at the hands of tyrants, who had neither a law nor any authority over them which should keep them within bounds. The Muslims would have been quite within their rights if in case of victory they had taken their revenge upon their persecutors. But they were warned beforehand that they should not exceed the limit of the bare necessity of the war.

These directions were faithfully followed by the Muslims. They were by no means the aggressors. In the very first important battle they were forced to fight against an army advancing upon Medina, which was only three days' journey from that city. And in all their fighting they only killed or captured the armed foes, and never harmed undefended women or children or old men, though their own women and children had been mercilessly put to death by their persecutors. If they had done so they would have gone beyond the necessity of war and exceeded the previously prescribed limits.

It should be noted that it is this defensive fighting which is called fighting in the way of Allah. Fighting for the propagation of faith is not once mentioned in the whole of the Qur-án, and is solely the product of the inventive brains of Christian missionaries. The hatred which Islam had for fighting is shown by the fact that the Muslims were not allowed to fight until the very existence of Islam was in danger. The excuses for which wars are undertaken in civilized countries had long existed in the case of the Muslims, but such excuses were deemed insufficient.

The injunctions relating to fighting are given in this chapter in order to show their lenity as contrasted with the Israelite law. The first point of contrast is that in the Israelite law fighting was ordained to turn a people out of a land of which they had been the rightful owners for centuries: it was not the enemy that had taken up the sword first; whereas in Islam the Muslims were forbidden to fight except against those who first took up the sword. The second point of contrast lies in the treatment of the enemy. The Muslims were forbidden to go beyond the bare necessity of the war, and thus not only women, children, and old men were always safe in their fighting, but even the enemy's habitations, their gardens and their tillage, and everything else, were equally safe. In the Jewish wars, however, men, women, and children were all put to death and cities were destroyed. In fact, the Jewish wars were wars of extermination, while the Muslim wars were undertaken as a defensive measure against extermination by the enemy.

The wars of some of the Christian nations of Europe are more of the nature of the Jewish than the Islamic wars, notwithstanding all their pretensions to civilization.

239 To kill the enemy wherever one finds him is nothing strange when a state of war exists, and yet the critics of Islam draw the most grotesque conclusions from these simple words. The verse, read together with the first, runs thus: And fight with those who out from whence they drove you²⁴⁰ out, and persecution²⁴¹ is severer than slaughter; and do not fight with them at the sacred mosque until they fight with you in it,²⁴² but if they do fight you, then slay them; such is the recompense of the unbelievers.

192 But if they desist, then surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.²⁴³

193 And fight with them until there is no persecution, and religion should be only for Allah;²⁴⁴ but if they desist, then there should be no hostility except against the oppressors.²⁴⁵

مِنْ حَيْثُ أَخْرَجَكُمُ وَالْفِتْنَةُ أَشَدُّ

الْمَسْجِدِ الْحَرَامِ حَتَّى يَقَاتِلُوكُمْ فِيهِ ۚ
فَإِنْ قَاتَلُوكُمْ فَاقْتُلُوهُمْ كَمَا كُنْتُمْ
يَقَاتِلُونَ الْكَافِرِينَ ۝
فَإِنْ أَنَّهُمْ هَؤُلَاءِ فَإِنَّ اللَّهَ عَفُورٌ رَحِيمٌ
وَقَاتِلُوهُمْ حَتَّى لَا تَكُونَ فِتْنَةٌ
وَيَكُونَ الدِّينُ لِلَّهِ فَإِنْ أَنَّهُمْ هَؤُلَاءِ فَلَا عُدْوَانَ إِلَّا عَلَى الظَّالِمِينَ ۝

are fighting with you, and kill them wherever you find them. Do the civilized nations fight with each other to spare their enemies? Rz says: "And the personal pronoun in the words kill them refers to those with whom fighting is enjoined in the previous verse." In fact, it cannot refer to anything else, nor to unbelievers generally, who are nowhere mentioned in the previous verses, not even in the previous section.

240 These words state the ultimate object of the Muslim wars: And drive them out from whence they drove you out. The persecutors had driven the Muslims out from their houses in Mecca and from the sacred mosque there, which was now the Muslim centre. Thus the Muslims were ordered to carry on war against their persecutors so long as they were not dispossessed of that which they had taken possession of by force. These words further show that the enemy was not to be exterminated, but only to be dispossessed of what he had unlawfully taken.

241 The word which I have rendered as persecution is fitnah, which originally means a burning with fire, and then affliction, distress, and hardship, slaughter, misleading or causing to err, and seduction from faith by any means (LL). The Qur-ān explains its use of the word fitnah in v. 217: "They ask you concerning the sacred month—about fighting in it. Say: Fighting in it is a grave matter; and hindering (men) from Allah's way and denying Him and (hindering men from) the sacred mosque and turning its people out of it is still graver with Allah, and persecution is graver than slaughter," where the fitnah is clearly synonymous with hindering men from Allah's way and the sacred mosque, and denying Allah and turning people out of the sacred mosque, thus clearly indicating the persecution of the Muslims. Ibn-i-'Umar explained the word fitnah when he said: And there were very few Muslims, so a man used to be persecuted on account of his religion: they either murdered him or subjected him to tortures until Islam became predominant, then there was no fitnah, i.e. persecution (Bkh). The object is to state that all those who persecuted the Muslims were to be treated as enemies, because persecution of the weaker party led to graver consequences than fighting.

242 The sacredness of the Meccan territory was not to be violated by the Muslims, notwithstanding the terrible afflictions that they had to suffer there, so long as the unbelievers were not the aggressors in this respect too and fought with the Muslims within the sacred territory.

243 Note the clemency of the Islamic fighting injunctions. The Muslims were to sheathe their swords if the enemy desisted from fighting. The unbelievers took advantage of such directions in practising deception on the Muslims: "Those with whom you make an agreement then they break their agreement every time" (8:56).

194 The sacred month for the sacred month and all sacred things are (under the law of) retaliation; whoever then acts aggressively against you, inflict injury on him according to the injury he has inflicted on you and be careful (of your duty) to Allah, and know that Allah

«الشَّهْرُ الْحَرَامُ بِالشَّهْرِ الْحَرَامِ وَالْحُرُمَتِ
قِصَاصٌ فَمَنِ اعْتَدَى عَلَيْكُمْ
فَاعْتَدُوا عَلَيْهِمْ مِّثْلَ مَا اعْتَدَى
عَلَيْكُمْ وَاتَّقُوا اللَّهَ وَاعْلَمُوا أَنَّ اللَّهَ

244 The meaning of the word fitnah has already been explained in foot-note 241. When persecution ceases, and men are not forced to accept or renounce a religion, but are at liberty to profess any religion of the truth of which they are convinced for the sake of Allah, then there should be no more fighting. The words that follow make the sense quite clear: "But if they desist" from causing distress to the converts to Islam by their cruel persecution, the Muslims are at once to stop fighting against them, and hostilities are not to be continued against any except those who continue to oppress.

A comparison with 22:40 will show that this is the correct explanation. There the object of the Muslim fights is plainly set forth in the following words: "And had there not been Allah's repelling some people by others, surely there would have been pulled down cloisters and churches and synagogues and mosques in which Allah's name is much remembered." This shows clearly that the Muslims fought not only in defence of mosques, but also in that of churches and synagogues, and even of the cloisters of monks. The same object is stated here in the words يَكُونُ الدِّينَ لِلَّهِ which only mean that religion should be only for Allah, so that there remains no compulsion in the matter of religion (v. 256), and every one is at liberty to hold any religion which he likes. The verse, in fact, lays down the broad principle of religious freedom for which one searches elsewhere in vain.

It should also be noted that if we give any other interpretation to the words which makes them signify that fighting is to be continued until the religion of Allah or Islam alone remains, all those verses in which agreements with the enemy and the enemy's desisting from fighting are spoken of as giving the Muslims cause for ceasing hostilities become meaningless. Such an interpretation not only openly contradicts other verses of the Holy Qur-án, but is belied by history itself, for many a time did the Prophet make peace with the unbelievers. A saying of Ibn-i-'Umar casts further light on this point. When he was asked to join one of the two Muslim parties then fighting with one another, he said: "You wish to fight until there is persecution and religion becomes for others than Allah" (Bkh). As the fighting forces were both Muslims, there was no danger of unbelief becoming predominant whichever party won, and therefore the meaning of religion becoming for others than Allah is nothing but the vanishing of religious freedom, and hence the words religion should be for Allah only signify the establishment of religious freedom in the country.

245 The word 'udwán here, and the word i'tidá used thrice in the following verse, generally indicate an exceeding of the proper limit, and hence it is applied to wrongful or unjust conduct, but the punishment by which an injury is inflicted on the offender for wrongful conduct is also called i'tidá, for "it is sometimes in the way of aggression and sometimes in the way of requital" (ILL). Rgh says i'tadú here means requite or punish him according to his wrongful conduct. To speak of the punishment of an evil in the terms of that evil is an idiom of frequent use in the Holy Qur-án and in Arabic literature. See further foot-note 27. The words except against the oppressors signify that hostilities can only be carried on against the oppressors, so that when they desist from oppressing, hostilities against them must be stopped.

is with those who guard (against evil).²⁴⁶

195 And spend in the way of Allah and cast not yourselves to perdition with your own hands, and do good (to others); surely Allah loves the doers of good.²⁴⁷

196 And accomplish the pilgrimage and the visit²⁴⁸ for Allah, but if you are prevented,²⁴⁹ (send) whatever offering is easy to obtain,²⁵⁰ and do

مَمَّ النَّبِيِّينَ
وَأَقْبُوا فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ وَلَا تُلْقُوا
بِأَيْدِيكُمْ إِلَى التَّهْلُكَةِ وَاحْسِنُوا
إِنَّ اللَّهَ يُحِبُّ الْمُحْسِنِينَ
وَاتِمُوا الْحَجَّ وَالْعُمْرَةَ لِلَّهِ فَإِنْ
أُحْصِرْتُمْ فَمَا اسْتَيْسَرَ مِنَ الْهَدْيِ

246 This is similar to what is said in v. 191. If the opponents violated the sacred months by attacking the Muslims first in those months, then they, too, were permitted to fight against them in the sacred months. And generally retaliation or requital within the limits of the original act of aggression is permitted in the case of all sacred objects, for silence in that case would be suicidal. This injunction was never abrogated nor ever violated by the Holy Prophet's order. See foot-note 278. The following four months were recognized as sacred: Rajab, Ziq'a'd, Zil-hajj, Muharram.

247 For if you withhold monetary aid to your own people when you are attacked, your very existence would be in danger, and thus by your slackness in helping the cause of the community you would be really casting yourselves to perdition with your own hands.

248 Hajj and 'umrah, the latter of which is generally translated as the minor pilgrimage, but which may more correctly be rendered as the visit, differ slightly. The 'umrah may be performed at any time, while the hajj or the pilgrimage proper can only be performed at a particular time. Of the ceremonies connected with pilgrimage proper, the staying in the plain of 'Arafât is dispensed with in the case of the 'umrah. Thus the principal requirements of the hajj are Al-ihram, making circuits round the Ka'ba, running between the Safâ and the Marwah, and staying in the 'Arafât, while that of the 'umrah are the first three, in both cases there being a difference of opinion as to the shaving of the head subsequently, which indicates only that the pilgrimage is over.

The pilgrimage is the fourth or the last of the fundamental ordinances of a practical nature in Islam, and it in fact represents the last stage in the progress of the spiritual pilgrim in this life. Of the principal requirements of the pilgrimage, the first, or ihram, represents the severance of all worldly connections. All those costly and fashionable dresses in which the inner self is so often mistaken for the outward appearance, are cast off, and the pilgrim has only two seamless wrappers to cover himself, and thus shows that in his love for his Master he is ready to cast off all lower connections. The other important requirement is making circuits round the Ka'ba, called tawâf, and running between the Safâ and the Marwah, called sa'y, and both these are external manifestations of that fire of Divine love which has been kindled within the heart, so that, like the true lover, he makes circuit round the house of his beloved one. He shows, in fact, that he has completely surrendered himself to his beloved Master, and sacrificed all his interests for His sake.

To call these movements of a true lover "puerile rites and ceremonies," as Christians do, is not only to show contempt for the Christ-like appearance of the pilgrim but to deny that love to Allah is anything but mere talk. That the kissing of the black stone is not inconsistent with true monotheism has already been shown in foot-note 191, and as proof of this I may add here 'Umar's words: "Verily I know that thou art a stone; thou dost no good or harm in the world, and if it was not that I saw the Prophet kiss thee, I would not kiss thee" (Msh).

249 Mecca was still in the hands of the opponents of Islam, who prevented the Muslims from performing the pilgrimage. According to I'Ab and many other authorities prevention here means prevention by the enemy and not by a disease, while according to others pre-not shave your heads until the offering reaches its destination; but whoever among you is sick or has an ailment of the head, he (should effect) a compensation by fasting or alms or sacrificing; then when you are secure,²⁵¹ whoever profits by combining the visit with the pilgrimage²⁵² (should take) whatever offering is easy to obtain; but he who cannot find (any offering) should fast for three days during the pilgrimage and for seven days when you return;²⁵³ these (make) ten (days) complete; this is for him whose family is not present in the sacred mosque,²⁵⁴ and be careful (of your duty) to Allah, and know that Allah is severe in requiting (evil).

SECTION 25

The Pilgrimage and the Mischief-makers

197-203. Further ordinances relating to pilgrimage. 204-206. Enemies who work mischief in the garb of friends. 207-209. Necessity of perfect submission. 210. Unbelievers would not cease persecuting until their power is completely broken down.

197 The pilgrimage is (performed in) the well-known months;²⁵⁵ so whoever determines the performance of the pilgrimage therein, there shall be then no foul speech nor abusing nor disputing in the pilgrimage;²⁵⁶ and whatever good you do, Allah knows it;

الْحَجَّ أَشْهُرٌ مَّعْلُومَاتٌ ۚ فَمَن
سَاءَ مَا يَحْكُمُونَ
وَلَا فُسُوقَ وَلَا جِدَالَ فِي الْحَجِّ
وَمَا تَفْعَلُوا مِنْ خَيْرٍ يَعْلَمْهُ اللَّهُ

vention of both sorts is included (Rz). I see no reason why the verse must be referred to the year of the Hudaibiyya truce.

250 That is in case of prevention, the offering should be sent to the sacred house, or if this is not possible, sacrificed where detained.

251 This is a prophecy that a time would come when the power of the enemy would be completely broken down, and the Muslims would make their pilgrimage to Mecca safe and secure, not having to fear detention by him.

252 A combination of the visit and the pilgrimage means that after the performance of the visit, the pilgrim does not remain in the state of ihrim.

253 That is, when returning home after the performance of the pilgrimage.

254 By this are understood those who do not live in Mecca.

255 The well-known months are Shawwāl, Ziq'ad, and the first nine days of Zil-hajj.

256 The pilgrimage represents the final stage of spiritual progress, and hence the pilgrim is enjoined not to speak words which should be a source of annoyance to anybody.

Or, best.

and make provision,²⁵⁷ for surely the benefit of provision is the guarding of oneself, and be careful (of your duty) to Me, O men of understanding.

198 There is no blame on you in seeking bounty from your Lord,²⁵⁸ so when you hasten on²⁵⁹ from 'Arafât, then remember Allah near the holy monument,²⁶⁰ and remember Him as He has guided you, though before that you were certainly of the erring ones.

199 Then hasten on from the place from which the people hasten on and ask the forgiveness of Allah; surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.²⁶¹

200 So when you have performed your devotions, then laud Allah as you lauded your fathers,²⁶² rather a greater lauding. But there are some people who say, Our Lord! give us in the world, and they shall have no portion in the hereafter.

Rafas means obscene or foul speech or vain words (Ab 'Uld-Rz). According to M, Msb, Mgh, it signifies foul, unseemly, immodest or obscene speech (LL). Fusûq, according to a saying of the Holy Prophet, signifies abusing (Rz). Jidd signifies contending in an altercation or disputing or litigating (TA-LL).

257 By provision is meant provision for the journey to Mecca. Some men used to start for a pilgrimage to Mecca without sufficient means, on the pretence that they had their trust in God for their sustenance (I'Ab-Rz). This is prohibited by Islam, and every one who undertakes to perform the pilgrimage is told that he must first provide himself with the necessary requisites, while in the next verse he is even permitted to increase his wealth by trading after he has performed the pilgrimage. But provision may also mean provision for the next life, and in that case taqwâ would have its technical meaning of guarding against evil, and the meaning would be that guarding against evil is the best provision for the next life.

258 T'aql here stands for trading (Rz). The word is elsewhere used in this sense in the Holy Qur-ân in several places, as in 73:20. What is meant is that there is no harm in seeking an increase of wealth by trading in Mecca in the pilgrimage season. Before the advent of Islam, fairs were held for trading purposes in the pilgrimage season, the most well-known of which are the 'Ukâz and Mi'innah and Zul-majâz. The Muslims thought it a sin to take a part in this, and they are told that trade was not forbidden to them even in these days (Bkh).

259 Ifâdah signifies the advancing or pressing on in journeying with multitude (Ham-LL).

260 The Mash'ar-ul-harâm, which literally signifies the holy monument, stands for the place known as Muzdalifa, or the ground bordering on it, where the pilgrims stop for the night after their return from 'Arafât on the evening of the ninth Zil-hajj.

261 The Quraish and the Kanana, who styled themselves the Hams, as indicating their strength and vehemence, used to stay at Muzdalifah, thinking it beneath their dignity to join other pilgrims in going forth to the plain of 'Arafât. As all distinctions were levelled by Islam, they were told to consider themselves on a par with others (Bkh, Rz).

262 In the days of ignorance they used to boast among themselves of the greatness of their fathers after they had performed the pilgrimage, when they used to assemble in 'Ukáz and other places. This shows what the Qur-án destroyed and what it constructed; what it swept off, and what it established in its place. They were forbidden to boast of the greatness of their fathers, and bidden to laud Allah instead, who would make them much greater than their forefathers. And the insignificant Arab nation was made a world-conquering one.

263 The Holy Prophet used to pray thus (Bkh), and this is the true Muslim's prayer. And as he is taught to pray for both the good of this life and that of the next, so he should exert himself to attain good in this life as well as in the hereafter. Islam points out to us the middle course between materialism and monkery.

264 The numbered days are the three days following the day of sacrifice, and are called the days of tashriq.

265 Ordinarily pilgrims leave on the afternoon of the last of the tashriq days, but they are allowed here to leave on the evening of the second day.

266 Various conjectures have been made as to the particular person meant, and the name of Akhnas bin Shuraiq is suggested, but the best authorities agree that no particular person is meant (Rz). The context also shows that the words relate to mischief-makers, who assured the Prophet of their sympathy with him, but who were really waiting for an opportunity to inflict any loss upon the Muslims.

205 And when he turns back, he runs along in the land that he may cause mischief in it and destroy the tilth and the stock, and Allah does not love mischief-making.

206 And when it is said to him, Guard against (the punishment of) Allah, pride carries him off to sin; therefore hell is sufficient for him; and certainly it is an evil resting-place.²⁶⁷

207 And among men is he who sells himself to seek the pleasure of Allah; and Allah is Affectionate to the servants.

Or, complete submission.

²⁶⁷ Mihād means a cradle, and also what a man has prepared for himself (LL). Both these significances illustrate the nature of hell. It is a thing which a man prepares for himself, and for spiritual growth it serves as a cradle for those who retarded that growth here by their engrossment in the world or by pursuing evil courses.

²⁶⁸ The coming of Allah stands for the execution of His command or the coming of the threatened punishment for the unbelievers (Rz). A verse in the 16th chapter, which was revealed earlier, explains this: "They do not wait aught, but that the angels should come to them, or that the commandment of your Lord should come to pass . . . so the evil consequences of what they do shall afflict them, and that which they mock shall encompass them" (16: 33, 34). The first part of this quotation is in almost identical words with the first part of the verse under discussion, and explains the meaning of the coming of Allah. The same phrase is used to indicate the execution of the Divine punishment in 59: 2, where the Jews, who were ultimately banished on account of their mischiefs, are spoken of: "They were certain that their fortresses would defend them against Allah, but Allah came to them whence they did not expect."

In like manner the coming of the angels stands for punishment. Thus: "On the day when they shall see the angels, there shall be no good news on that day for the guilty" (25: 22). Their desire to see the angels was fulfilled in the battle of Badr, and on that day the heaven was also made to "burst asunder with the clouds" (25: 25), which is a metaphorical expression for the coming down of Allah and the angels "in the shadows of clouds": "When you sought aid from your Lord so He answered you: Surely I will assist 269 By the favour of Allah is here meant the revelation of the Holy Prophet, and its change implies its rejection. Compare the buying of error for guidance in v. 16 and elsewhere. The clear signs which were given to the Israelites include the prophecies of the advent of the Holy Prophet, which were repeatedly made known to that people through their prophets, as well as the clear arguments of the truth of the Prophet's mission, which were clearly convincing when compared with what arguments they possessed of the truth of their own prophets.

270 These words give us an image of how the emigrants of Mecca, having left everything behind and being thus reduced to the last straits of poverty, were mocked by the wealthy Jews, whose trade of lending money at usurious rates everywhere brought to them the riches of other people. The mention of the Israelites in the previous verse, and reports showing the connection of this verse with the Jewish chiefs (see Rz), lead us to the same conclusion. The concluding words not only show that moral worth which raised a man above another did not depend on wealth, but also contain a prophetic reference to the time when those who were mocked at on account of their poverty would have abundance even of the provisions of this life.

271 The word Kifā does not necessarily refer to the past, but is often used in the Holy Qur-ān to convey the idea of a general truth, as in كَانَ الْإِنْسَانُ كَفَرًا which means man is ungrateful.

272 The significance of this verse has not been rightly understood. The first part of this verse, as distinguished from the second, which is dealt with in the next note, states the universal law according to which Allah raised prophets among all nations, because all nations are a single people, as is said in the opening words of the verse, and therefore it could not be that prophets should be raised in one nation and not in another. With every one of these prophets, we are then told, a book was revealed, so that it might point out the right way to the various contending parties that existed before the advent of that prophet. But, as time passed on, the very people to whom the Book was given so that they might follow it went against it. Thus, though a prophet had been raised in every nation, yet every nation had forsaken the right way, and acted against the very directions which had been given to it, so differences again arose, which necessitated the advent of another prophet. Hence it was necessary to raise a prophet who should show the right way to all nations, and this is what is stated in the second part of the verse.

273 Allah's guiding those who believe refers to the raising of the Holy Prophet, through whom the Muslims were guided to the right path, to the truth, regarding which differences had arisen among all people. If a prophet was needed by every nation to settle its own differences, one was surely now needed to settle the differences of the various nations, for the truth which had been shown to different nations by different prophets had again become obscured. Thus among the different national religions of the world Islam occupies the position of an international religion.

274 Entering the garden stands for success against the enemy in this life and salvation in the next. The concluding words of the verse, Allah's help is nigh, make the reference to the triumph of the cause of truth very clear.

216 Fighting is enjoined on you, and it is an object of dislike to you; and it may be that you dislike a thing while it is good for you, and it may be that you love a thing while it is evil for you, and Allah knows, while you do not know.²⁷⁷

وَعَسَى أَنْ تُحِبُّوا شَيْئًا وَهُوَ شَرٌّ لَكُمْ
وَاللَّهُ يَعْلَمُ وَأَنْتُمْ لَا تَعْلَمُونَ ٢١٦

275 This verse inculcates faith and perseverance under the hardest trials and is an indication of the Prophet's own unequalled endurance and faith. It refers not only to the great trials and hardships which the Muslims had already suffered at Mecca, and the privations which they had to undergo in their exile, but more particularly to the hardships which were yet in store for them, and which they could clearly see in the massing of all forces that could be used to annihilate them. As regards the trials and tribulations of the former prophets, the case of Jesus Christ crying "Eli, Eli, lama sabachitani" on the cross was the most recent in the history of prophets.

276 The meaning is that you should spend the wealth that you have for the benefit of such and such persons. As the fund for the defence of the Muslim society was also utilized for the help of the parents of some and relatives of others, and the fatherless children and the poor men who had not the means to quit their homes, who were still being oppressed at Mecca by the unbelievers, and for the wayfarer who had no security, the Muslims are told that what they spent on wars was really for the good of their own helpless relatives and brethren.

277 Let those who think that the Muslims fought for the booty ponder! They were too weak to carry on the struggle against the mighty forces that were bent upon their destruction, and disliked the war. Only a diseased brain could come to the conclusion that the Prophet "had now determined to resort to the sword to accomplish what his preaching had failed to do" (Wh). Where were the military forces with which the Prophet was going to convert the proud and warring Arabs who had not listened to his word? His first army at Badr, when the Quraish of Mecca were marching upon Medina with a thousand of their most experienced warriors, was 313, including boys of thirteen years of age. Could any sensible man say that the Prophet was now going to convert the hundreds of thousands of Arab warriors with his 313 unequipped and inexperienced followers? And do not the very words of the verse give the lie to this most irrational conclusion? A picture of the distresses and afflictions to which the few converts to Islam were subject is drawn in v. 214. They were few in numbers, poor, exiled, and distressed, yet it became inevitable that they should fight in self-defence or they would have been swept off. It was their utter weakness and the enormous disparity of numbers that made them dislike the fighting. And I may add that not a single instance is recorded in the whole of the Prophet's history showing the conversion of an unbeliever under the pressure of the sword, not a single case is met with of an expedition being undertaken to convert a people. If ever in the world's history a people were compelled to fight in the defence of a grand cause, no nobler instance of it could be given than that of the Prophet with his few faithful followers braving the whole of Arabia in the midst of enemies who had taken up the sword to annihilate them for no other reason than that they were upholders of the cause of Unity (see 22:40). If ever there was a just cause for war, there never was one more just than the cause of humanity at large, the combined cause of the Christian church, of the Jewish synagogue, of the Sabeian's house of worship, and of the Muslim mosque, which the early Muslims set before themselves (see 22:40). Compare the injunction given here with the permission contained in v. 190 and 22:39, and the conditions under which this injunction was given will become clear. It was an injunction to fight against those who took up the sword first and turned the Muslims out of their homes. It was an injunction to fight to end persecution and to establish religious freedom, and to save the houses of worship of every religion from being ruined.

278 The last verse contains the Divine injunction to the Muslims to fight with a very powerful enemy. This one gives the reason which necessitated the taking up of the sword. It first prohibits fighting in the sacred months (the reasons for which are given in v. 189) except by way of reprisal (see v. 194). It is an error to suppose that this verse legalizes fighting in the sacred months. The story of 'Abdulla bin Jahsh clearly shows that the injunction of v. 194 was never violated. The Holy Prophet's express commandments to him were to bring him news regarding a caravan of the Qaraish (Rz). Seeing three men at Nakhla, 'Abdulla killed one of them and imprisoned the other two. The question arose whether this occurred in a sacred month or not. 'Abdulla's explanation was that the man was killed on the last day of Jamádí before evening, and that the new moon of Rajab was seen afterwards when the sun went down.

After mentioning the exception relating to the sacred months, the unbelievers, who made much of this incident, are told that having done all those acts of violence against the lives and property of the helpless converts of Islam within the sacred territory, and never caring for the sacred months when persecuting the Muslims, they could not question the legality of what 'Abdulla had done. Why was fighting ordained? Because the opponents indulged in serious crimes against the Muslims and showed no respect either for the name of Allah or for the sacred mosque, and continued their persecution of the Muslims, which grew daily in intensity and was worse than slaughter. As there was no hope now that the enemy would cease persecution so long as there remained a single Muslim in Arabia—note the words they will not cease fighting with you until they turn you back from your religion, if they can—the Muslims were compelled to take up the sword in self-defence.

279 The persons spoken of in this passage are the apostates, or those who "turn back from their religion." A wrong impression exists among non-Muslims, and among some Muslims as well, that the Holy Qur-án requires those who apostatize from Islam to be put to death, but this is not true. Some Christian writers have gone so far as to misconstrue the word fa-yamut as meaning he shall be put to death—although it really means then he dies. As the plain words of the Qur-án show, what is stated here is that the opponents of Islam exerted themselves to their utmost to turn back the Muslims from their faith by their cruel persecutions, and therefore if a Muslim actually went back to unbelief he would be a loser in this life as well as in the next, because the desertion of Islam would not only deprive him of the spiritual advantages which he could obtain by remaining a Muslim, but also of the physical advantages which must accrue to the Muslims through the triumph of Islam. And neither here nor anywhere else in the Holy Qur-án is there even a hint at the infliction of capital or any other punishment on the apostate.

It should also be noted that though the word irtidád, which is the technical word for apostasy, is used only twice in the Holy Qur-án, here and in 5: 54, a return to unbelief after belief is mentioned several times, and on not a single occasion is death stated to be the punishment for return to unbelief. The only report which records a case of death being inflicted on apostasy is that of the party of 'Ukl, who, after professing Islam, feigned that the climate of Medina was insalubrious, and being told to go to the place where the herds of camels belonging to the state were grazed, murdered the keepers and drove the herds along with them. But it will be easily seen that capital punishment in this case was not inflicted on change of faith, but on account of the crime of murder and dacoity. This case is generally cited by the commentators under 5: 33, which speaks of the punishment of dacoits. There is no other case showing that the punishment of death was ever inflicted on apostasy from Islam.

It may, however, be added that after the first eighteen months of their residence at Medina the Muslims were in a state of constant warfare with the Quraish and the Arab tribes, and apostasy, under these circumstances, meant the desertion of the cause of the Muslims and joining their enemies, so it would have been quite justifiable for the Muslim Law to prescribe the punishment of death for those traitors. But the Holy Qur-án is silent.

280 "Khamr means wine or grape-wine. . . . It has a common application to intoxicating expressed juice of any thing (Q, TA) or any intoxicating thing that clouds or obscures (lit., covers) the intellect, as some say (Mgh, Msh) . . . and the general application is the more correct, because khamr was forbidden when there was not in El-Medinah any khamr of grapes" (LL). It will thus be seen that the word khamr, not only with reference to its root meaning of covering the intellect but also having regard to its usage, includes all intoxicating substances, and therefore I make a departure in translating it as intoxicants, and not as wine or intoxicating liquors. The prohibition of intoxicants in connection with the mention of war shows that Islam wanted to inspire true courage into its followers, and disliked the reckless daring which a man shows under the influence of intoxicating liquors and which has so often led to acts of butchery in wars. And the prohibition spoken of here as regards both intoxicating liquors and games of chance is made plainer in 5:90, 91. Those who think that the verse under discussion does not contain a prohibition only fail to understand the language of the Qur-án. When the harm of a thing is stated to be greater than its advantage, it is sufficient indication of its prohibition, for no sensible person would take a course which is sure to bring him to a much greater loss than any advantage.

The change which these simple words, "their sin is greater than their profit," brought about in Arabia will always remain a riddle to the social reformer. The constant fighting of Arab tribes, one against another, had made the habit of drink a second nature with the Arab, and wine was one of the very few objects which could furnish a topic to the mind of an Arab poet. Intoxicating liquors were the chief feature of their feasts, and the habit of drink was not looked upon as an evil, nor had there ever been a temperance movement among them, the Jews and the Christians being themselves addicted to this evil. Human experience with regard to the habit of drink is that of all evils it is the most difficult to be uprooted. Yet but one word of the Holy Qur-án was sufficient to blot out all traces of it from among a whole nation, and afterwards from the whole of the country as it came over to Islam. History cannot present another instance of a wonderful transformation of this magnitude brought about so easily yet so thoroughly. It may also be added here that Sale's remark that "the moderate use of wine is allowed," and that only drinking to excess is prohibited, according to some, is absolutely without a foundation. The companions of the Holy Prophet never made use of a drop of wine after the prohibition was made known, and the Holy Prophet is reported to have said: "A small quantity of any thing of which a large quantity is intoxicating is prohibited" (AI-Riz). Nor does Kí say what Sale attributes to him, for the words which give rise to Sale's misconception deal with, not wine, but another preparation regarding which there is a difference of opinion among the jurists.

281 The original word is maisir, derived from yasara, meaning he divided anything into parts or portions. Maisir was a game of hazard of the Arabs, and in the legal language of Islam includes all games of chance. Some derive it from yusr, meaning ease, because of the ease with which wealth could be attained by it. Wine and gambling are both declared in 5:91 as causing "enmity and hatred to spring in your midst," and a society the members of which are imbued with feelings of hatred and enmity towards each other must be a very unfortunate society, especially when it is in a state of war with external foes.

282 In consequence of the fighting which was necessitated by the persecutions of the opponents of Islam against the helpless Muslims, it was inevitable that many children would be left orphans, so an injunction regarding the care of orphans is added here. But it may be added that the earliest revelations of the Holy Qur-án always speak of the orphans, the needy, and the ~~slave~~ in the kindest words, and lay special stress on helping and feeding them. One quotation from one of the earliest revelations will suffice here: "But he would not attempt the uphill road, and what will make you comprehend what the uphill road is? It is the setting free of a slave, or the giving of food in a day of hunger to an orphan, having relationship, or to the poor man lying in the dust" (90: 11-16).

Injunctions like these give one a true insight into the character of the Holy Prophet as the greatest benefactor of humanity, with whom actual good to fellow-man was the primary duty which is always mentioned in conjunction with one's duty to God.

283 Copartnership with an orphan is expressly allowed here, because when strict injunctions were given regarding the safeguarding of orphans' property, some men thought it was a sin to have anything to do with it (Rz). It further shows that orphans must be treated as brethren.

284 The war with the idolaters, who really now stand not for a people differing in religious views but for enemies bent upon the destruction of the Muslims, had brought new conditions into existence. Intermarriages with those who were warring upon the Muslims would have led to serious troubles and numerous complications. A reference to 60:10 will show that even the marital relations already existing with these people had to be ended on account of the war. Hence the prohibition of such intermarriages. But as idolatry does not allow the intellect to develop, the prohibition, though introduced on a particular occasion, becomes permanent. It may, however, be added that all those people who have been given a scripture are treated differently (see 5:5), and hence by the idolaters here are meant particularly the Arabs, who possessed no scripture for their guidance. The Jewish law prohibited intermarriages with all other people (Deut. 7:3, 4), and even Paul, so liberal in his other views, strictly prohibited intermarriages with all unbelievers: "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness, and what communion hath light with darkness?" (2 Cor. 6:14) The Islamic law offers an improvement on both the Jewish and the Christian laws, for which see 667.

285 Reason is here given why marriage relations with an idolatrous people who are enemies of the Muslims are forbidden. The fire to which they invite stands for destruction in this life, as the garden stands for success. The Turks who married Greek, Austrian, and French ladies, although they knew that those people aimed at their destruction, have learned a good lesson as to what this fire is, for the foreign blood thus introduced among them has sapped the Turkish Empire from within.

286 The last section dealt with some of the questions arising out of a state of warfare in which the Muslims at this time found themselves. The last of these questions was about intermarriages with the enemy, and the subject of marriage having been introduced, the Qur-án naturally passes on to the question of marital obligations. There is another aspect, too, of the relation of this question to the subject of war. Just as war made many children orphans, it made many women widows, and the rights of the widows as well as the question of their remarriage is dealt with here; but as the rights of the divorced women and the question of their remarriage are closely related with similar questions relating to widows, the subject is introduced with matters relating to divorced women. The subject of the monthly courses is introduced as a preliminary to the subject of divorce, because any divorce pronounced at such a time is illegal and does not take effect (Bkh). In fact, divorce, being a separation, could not take place when the menstrual discharge had already brought about a kind of separation, sexual intercourse being forbidden during the time. For divorce to be effective according to Islam, it is necessary that there should exist between the parties a state making possible the loving communion of husband and wife, so that the smaller frictions of which the marriage relations are not always free may vanish into nothingness before the ecstasy of mutual love.

287 Asá signifies a slight evil, slighter than what is termed qarar (LL), or anything that causes a slight harm (Mgh-LL). The Jewish law contains a similar prohibition in Lev. 18: 19 and 20: 18, though Jewish practice rendered it necessary that the separation between husband and wife should be more complete, and should not be limited to the cessation of sexual intercourse.

288 Anná means either maí, i.e. when, or kaífa, i.e. how (AH). There is nothing disgusting in these simple words. The Qur-án contains directions for the physical as well as the moral and spiritual welfare of man, and it deals with the most delicate questions in language unapproached in its purity in any other law dealing with similar questions. It is a miracle of the Holy Qur-án that while it was produced in the language of a people whose poets took pride in describing the relations of the sexes in the most indecent words and phrases, the language of the Qur-án is unsurpassed in purity, and any one who doubts this statement need only compare the treatment of such subjects in the Qur-án and the Bible. Many of the phrases dealing with the delicate relations of the sexes were introduced by the Holy Qur-án itself, and its literature is therefore one which brings no shudder to the fair reader, unlike many of the descriptions contained in the Bible. The comparison of the woman to the tilth is simply to show that it is she who brings up the child and through whom is made the character of the man, and to show that the real object of conjugal relations is not the satisfaction of carnal desires. As it is the ground on which the growth of the plant depends, so it is the mother on whom depends the growth of the man and the building up of his character. This shows the importance of the woman in the marital relation and in society.

224 And make not Allah because of your swearing (by Him) an obstacle to your doing good and guarding (against evil) and making peace between men, and Allah is Hearing, Knowing.²⁸⁹

289 The meaning is that you should not every now and then swear by Allah that you will not do such and such a thing, so that you deprive yourselves of the occasions of doing good, and at the same time, since you swear by Allah, you allege Him to be an obstacle in the way of your doing good, whereas He bids you do good. 'Urđah is a thing that is set as an obstacle in the way of a thing, or that is set as a butt like the butt of archers. Or it signifies intervention with respect to good and evil, and the meaning is: "Do not intervene by swearing by Allah every little while, so as not to do good, etc., or, Make not Allah an object of your oaths by ordinary and frequent swearing by Him, or a butt for your oaths like the butt of archers, in order that, etc. (Bđ). Or, as some say: Make not the mention of Allah a means of strengthening your oaths" (LL). As the temporary separation of husband and wife with which the verse following the next verse deals rested on an oath on the part of the husband to refrain from going in to his wife, the Holy Qur-án discourages all oaths of this kind, i.e. oaths which would keep a man back from doing good of any kind, the fulfilment of marital obligations being thus shown to be a good thing. Hence the subject of oaths is only another preliminary to the question of divorce.

290 By vain oaths is meant unintentional swearing in ordinary conversation, and by what the hearts have earned is meant an oath intentionally taken (Rz).

227 And if they have resolved on a divorce,²⁹³ then Allah is surely Hearing, Knowing.

228 And the divorced women should keep themselves in waiting for three courses;²⁹⁴

وَأِنْ عَزَمُوا الطَّلَاقَ فَإِنَّ اللَّهَ سَمِيعٌ عَلِيمٌ ۝

وَالْمُطَلَّقَاتُ يَتَرَبَّصْنَ بِأَنْفُسِهِنَّ ثَلَاثَةَ قُرُوءٍ

291 Ilā signifies an oath that one shall not go in to one's wife. In the days of ignorance the Arabs used to take such oaths frequently, and as the period of suspension was not limited, the wife was compelled sometimes to pass her whole life in bondage, having neither the position of a wife nor that of a divorced woman free to marry elsewhere. The law of the Qur-ān declares that if the husband does not reassert conjugal relations within four months the wife shall be divorced (Rz).

292 By going back is meant the re-establishing of conjugal relations (Rz).

293 Talāq is an infinitive noun from ṭalaqat, said of a woman, meaning she was left free to go her way or became separated from her husband (TA-LL), and signifies the dissolving of the marriage tie (TA-JT). The subject of divorce, which is introduced here, is dealt with in this and the following two sections, and further on in the 4th and 65th chapters. It may be noted that the words in which the subject is introduced give a warning against resorting to this measure except under exceptional circumstances. At the conclusion of the previous verse we are told that if the husband reasserts conjugal relations after temporary separation he is forgiven, for Allah is Forgiving, Merciful. But if he is determined to divorce, then if he is guilty of an excess against the wife he will be punished, because the epithets Hearing and Knowing are only mentioned when the act is either disapproved or highly approved, i.e. when either punishment or a reward is to be given. As reward in such a case is quite out of the question, it is clear that the words contain a warning in case injustice should be done in divorcing.

Divorce is one of the institutions of Islam regarding which much misconception prevails, so much so that even the Islamic law, as administered in the British courts in India, is not free from these misconceptions. The chief features of the Islamic law of divorce, as dealt with in the Holy Qur-ān, will be noticed under the particular verses dealing with them. Here I may state that the Islamic law has many points of advantage as compared with both the Jewish and Christian laws as formulated in Deuteronomy and Matthew. The chief feature of improvement is that the wife can claim a divorce according to the Islamic law, neither Moses nor Christ conferring that right on the woman, though it is to be regretted that this very feature is the one that is not recognized in India. Another feature of the Islamic law of divorce is that it is elastic and does not strictly limit the causes of divorce. In fact, if the civilized nations of Europe and America, who own the same religion, are at the same stage of advancement, and have an affinity of feeling on most social and moral questions, cannot agree as to the causes of divorce, how could a universal religion like Islam, which was meant for all ages and all countries, for people in the lowest grade of civilization as well as those at the top, limit those causes, which must vary with the varying conditions of humanity and society.

It may also be added here that, though divorce is allowed by Islam if sufficient cause exists, yet the right is to be exercised under exceptional circumstances. The Qur-ān itself approves of the Holy Prophet insisting on Zaid not divorcing his wife, notwithstanding a dissension of a sufficiently long standing (33:37). And the Holy Prophet's memorable words, of all the things which have been permitted to men divorce is the most hated by Allah (AD), will always act as a strong check on any loose interpretation of the words of the Holy Qur-ān. There are cases on record in which he actually pronounced divorce to be illegal (Bkh).

294 The period of waiting, or 'iddat, forms the first condition in the Islamic law of divorce. But for cases in which marriage is not consummated no period of waiting is necessary (33-49).

and it is not lawful for them that they should conceal what Allah has created in their wombs, if they believe in Allah and the last day; and their husbands have a better right to take them back in the meanwhile if they wish for reconciliation;²⁹⁵ and they have rights similar to those against them in a just manner,²⁹⁶ and the men are a degree above them,²⁹⁷ and Allah is Mighty, Wise.

SECTION 29

Divorce

229. When divorce becomes irrevocable and wife's claim to it. 230. Effect of an irrevocable divorce. 231. Wife's right not to be retained for injury.

229 Divorce may be (pronounced) twice;²⁹⁸ then keep (them) in good fellowship or let (them) go with kindness;²⁹⁹ and it is not lawful for you to take any part of what you have given them,³⁰⁰ unless both fear that they cannot keep within

الطَّلَاقُ مَرَّتَيْنِ ۖ فَمَا سَكَتَ بَعْرُوفٍ
أَوْ تَسْرِي بِإِحْسَانٍ وَلَا يَجِلُّ لَكُمْ
أَنْ تَأْخُذُوا مِنْ مَّا شِئْتُمْ ۚ وَلَهُمْ
شَيْءٌ إِلَّا أَنْ يَخَافَا أَلَّا يُقِيمَا

295 The period of waiting is really a period of temporary separation, during which conjugal relations may be re-established. This period of temporary separation serves as a check upon divorce, and it is the second point mentioned by the Holy Qur-ān in connection with the law of divorce. If there is any love in the union its pangs would assert themselves during the period of temporary separation, bringing about a reconciliation, and the differences would sink into insignificance. This is the best safeguard against a misuse of divorce, for in this way only such unions would be ended by divorce as really deserve to be ended, being devoid of the faintest spark of love. A conjugal union without love is a body without a soul, and the sooner it is ended the better. Thus, while the Islamic law of divorce makes every possible provision for love to assert itself, it requires the dissolution of the marriage tie when it is proved that mutual love is not possible.

296 The rights of women against their husbands are here stated to be similar to those which the husbands have against their wives. The statement must, no doubt, have caused a stir in a society which never recognized any rights for the woman. The change in this respect was really a revolutionizing one, for the Arabs hitherto regarded women as mere chattels, and now the women were given a position equal in all respects to that of men, for they were declared to have rights similar to those which were exercised against them. This declaration brought about a revolution not only in Arabia but in the whole world, for the equality of the rights of women with those of men was never previously recognized by any nation or any reformer; nay, it is not to this day recognized among the most civilized nations. The woman could no longer be discarded at the will of her "lord," but she could either claim equality as a wife or demand divorce.

297 The statement that "men are a degree above them" does not nullify the rights asserted in the previous passage, but refers to quite a different aspect of the question, which is made clear in 4 : 34 (see 568).

the limits of Allah; then if you fear that they cannot keep within the limits of Allah, there is no blame on them for what she gives up to become free thereby.³⁰¹ These are the limits of Allah, so do not exceed them, and whoever exceeds the limits of Allah, these it is that are the unjust.

حُدُّوْا لِلّٰهِ فَاِنْ خِفْتُمْ اَلَا يُمْسِكُوْا
حُدُّوْا لِلّٰهِ فَاِنْ جَاٰكُمْ عَلَيْكُمْ اٰيَاتٌ
اٰتَيْنَاكُمْ بِهٖ مِنْكُمْ حُدُّوْا لِلّٰهِ
فَلَا تَعْتَدُوْهُنَّ وَمَنْ يَتَعَدَّ حُدُوْ اللّٰهِ فَاُولٰٓئِكَ هُمُ الظّٰلِمُوْنَ ۝

298 The third rule regarding divorce is that the revocable divorce of the previous verse can be pronounced only twice. In the days of ignorance a man used to divorce his wife and take her back within the prescribed time, even though he might do this a thousand times (Rz). Islam reformed this practice by allowing a revocable divorce twice, so that the period of waiting in each of these two cases might serve as a period of temporary separation during which conjugal relations could be re-established.

299 The fourth point is that the husband must make his choice after the second divorce either to retain her permanently or to bring about a final separation. The object of a true marriage union is indicated in the simple words keep them in good fellowship. Where the union is characterized by quarrels and dissensions instead of good fellowship, and two experiences of a temporary separation show that there is no real love in the union, and good fellowship is therefore entirely absent, the only remedy that remains is to let the woman go with kindness. An earnest endeavour has been made, and has shown that the illuminating spark of love is not there; therefore the marriage union must be looked upon as a failure, and it is both in the interests of the husband and the wife and in the interests of society itself that such a union should be brought to a termination, so that the parties may seek a fresh union. But even in taking this final step the woman must be treated kindly.

300 The full payment of the dowry to the woman is the fifth rule relating to the Islamic law of divorce, and it serves as a very strong check upon the husband in resorting to unnecessary divorce. The dowry is usually sufficiently large to make divorce a step which can only be adopted as a last measure.

301 This is the sixth rule with regard to divorce, and it gives the wife a right to claim a divorce. Among the religions of the world it is one of the distinguishing characteristics of Islam that it gives the wife the same right to claim a divorce as it gives the husband to pronounce one, if she is willing to forego the whole or part of her dowry. The case of Jameelah, wife of Sâbit bin Qais, is one that is reported in numerous reports of the highest authority. Here it was the wife who was dissatisfied with the marriage. There was not even a quarrel, as she plainly stated in her complaint to the Holy Prophet: "I do not find any fault with him on account of his morals (i.e. his treatment) or his religion." She only hated him. And the Holy Prophet had her divorced on condition that she returned to her husband the garden which he had made over to her as her dowry (Bkh). It is even said that the husband's love for the wife was as intense as her hatred for him (Rz). If, then, a woman could claim a divorce for no reason other than the unsuitableness of the match, she had certainly the right to claim one if there was ill-treatment on the part of the husband or any other satisfactory reason, and among the early Muslims it was an established right. Even now it is a right which is maintained in many Muslim countries. Technically such a divorce is called Khula'.

It will be noted that though this verse forms the basis of the law relating to Khula', the words indicate an unwillingness on the part of both spouses to continue the marriage relation: Unless both fear that they cannot keep within the limits of Allah, which is explained as meaning their inability to perform towards each other their marital obligations and to maintain good fellowship (Bkh). The reason for this, apparently, is 230 So if he divorces her³⁰² she shall not be lawful to him afterwards until she marries another husband; then if he divorces her there is no blame on them both if they return to each other (by marriage), if they think that they can keep within the limits of Allah;³⁰³ and these are the limits of Allah which He makes clear for a people who know.

231 And when you divorce women and they reach their prescribed time, then either retain them in good fellowship or set them free with liberality, and do not retain them for

فَإِنْ طَلَّقَهَا فَلَا تَحِلُّ لَهُ مِنْ بَدُو
حَتَّى تَنْكِحَ زَوْجًا غَيْرَهُ فَإِنْ طَلَّقَهَا
فَلَا جُنَاحَ عَلَيْهِمَا أَنْ يَتَرَاجَعَا إِنْ ظَنَّا
أَنْ يُقِيمَا حُدُودَ اللَّهِ وَتِلْكَ حُدُودُ
اللَّهِ يُبَيِّنُهَا لِقَوْمٍ يَعْلَمُونَ ○
وَإِذَا طَلَّقْتُمُ النِّسَاءَ فَبَلَغْنَ أَجَلَهُنَّ
فَامْسِكُوهُنَّ بِعُرْوَتِي أَوْسَرَّوهُنَّ
بِعُرْوَتٍ مَوْلا تَنْسِكُوهُنَّ

that the passage follows one requiring a permanence of relationship that can no more be broken when the husband has adopted this choice after a second divorce, so that the relation can only be broken if the wife finds it unbearable. Another reason seems to be that the woman is usually the last to be willing to break up the marriage relationship.

The words if you fear evidently refer to the properly constituted authorities (Rz), and this brings us to the seventh point with regard to the law of divorce, viz. that the authorities can interfere in the matter, and cases are actually on record in which a wrong done by an unjust divorce was mended by the authorities.

302 The words refer to the "putting off with kindness" of the previous verse, and hence by divorce here is meant the irrevocable divorce pronounced a third time, i.e. after there has been a divorce and a restitution of conjugal rights twice.

303 After the irrevocable divorce is pronounced the husband cannot remarry the divorced wife until she has been married elsewhere and divorced, and this is the eighth point with regard to the rules of divorce. The verse abolishes the immoral custom of halâlâh, or temporary marriage gone through with no other object than that of legalizing the divorced wife for the first husband, a custom prevalent in the days of ignorance, but abolished by the Holy Prophet, according to a report which speaks of his having cursed those who indulge in the evil practice (IMj-Msh). There must be a genuine marriage and a genuine divorce.

This restriction makes the third pronouncement of divorce very cautious, and, in fact, very rare, and thus acts as another check against frequent divorce. Muir's remarks as to the hardship which this rule involves not only for "the innocent wife" but also for the "innocent children," for "however desirous the husband may be of undoing the wrong, the decision cannot be recalled," are totally unjustified, for the irrevocable divorce cannot be pronounced until a temporary separation has taken place twice and the experiences of both have shown that the marriage relationship cannot be continued. It should also be noted that the irrevocable divorce cannot be pronounced all at once. The special checks on divorce have already been mentioned, and it may be added here that the third or the irrevocable divorce would be very rare if the rules relating to divorce as given in the Holy Qur-ân are observed. Cases are on record in which long years elapsed between the pronouncement of the first and the second divorce. For instance, the case of Rukâna may be noted, who first divorced his wife in the time of the Holy Prophet, then remarried her, then divorced her a second time in the time of 'Umar, the second Caliph, and finally in the time of 'Usmân, the third Caliph (AD, IMj, Tr, Dr-Msh).

Remarriage of Divorced Women and Widows

232. Divorced women not to be prevented from remarrying. 233. The giving of suck to children by the divorced wife. 234. The period of waiting for the widows. 235. Remarriage within the prescribed period of waiting is illegal.

232 And when you have divorced women and they have ended their term (of waiting), then do not prevent them from marrying their husbands when they agree among themselves in a lawful manner;³⁰⁶ with this is admonished he among you who believes in Allah and the last day: this is more profitable and purer for you; and Allah knows while you do not know.

وَإِذَا طَلَّقْتُمُ النِّسَاءَ فَلَمْ يَكُنْ لَكُمْ

304 Hence if the husband is proved to give injury to the wife, he cannot retain her, and she can claim a divorce. Injury to the wife may be of a general nature or one given with the object of compelling her to remit the whole or part of her dowry to obtain a divorce. This practice was resorted to by the pre-Islamite Arabs, and the words are meant to abolish the evil (Rz). It is for the judge to see that the husband is not taking undue advantage of his position. On the other hand, the husband is enjoined to show liberality to the divorced wife, and the judge would no doubt see that the injunctions of the Holy Book are observed.

305 These words show that divorce is a very serious matter, and the injunctions given in this respect are not to be treated lightly.

306 This is the ninth point in the rules of divorce. It has already been stated that the conjugal relations can be re-established within the period of waiting. Here it is stated that if the period of waiting has elapsed, even then the former husband can remarry the divorced wife, on the first two occasions when the divorce is pronounced. The case of the sister of Ma'qil bin Yasār is well known on this point. Being divorced by her husband, and the period of waiting having elapsed, the two were again willing to remarry, but Ma'qil objected, and the marriage was performed when the verse was revealed (Bkh).

233 And the mothers³⁰⁷ should suckle their children for two whole years for him who desires to make complete the time of suckling; and their maintenance and their clothing must be borne by the father according to usage; no soul shall have imposed upon it a duty but to the extent of its capacity; neither shall a mother be made to suffer harm on account of her child, nor a father on account of his child, and a similar duty (devolves) on the (father's) heir;³⁰⁸ but if both desire weaning by mutual consent and counsel, there is no blame on them, and if you wish to engage a wet-nurse for your children, there is no blame on you so long as you pay what you promised for according to usage; and be careful of (your duty to) Allah and know that Allah sees what you do.

The verse also legalizes the remarriage of divorced women in general, and the words their husbands would in this case signify their prospective husbands.

307 By mothers here are meant in particular, as the context shows, women who have been divorced having children to suckle (Rz).

308 In case the father dies before the child is weaned, the heir is bound to pay the expenses.

309 The period of waiting in the case of a widow is four months and ten days. But in case a divorced woman or a widow is with child, the period of waiting is extended to the time of delivery (see §5: 4).

310 The meaning is that the widow may look out for a husband and remarry.

Additional Provisions for Divorced Women and Widows

236, 237. Provision for women divorced before consummation of marriage. 238, 239. Prayers should be observed though facing the enemy. 240. Bequeathal in favour of widows for residence and maintenance for one year. 241, 242. Divorced women are also entitled to maintenance.

236 There is no blame on you if you divorce women when you have not touched them or appointed for them a portion, and make provision for them, the wealthy according to his means and the straitened in circumstances according to his means, a provision according to usage; (this is) a duty on the doers of good (to others).³¹²

237 And if you divorce them before you have touched them and you have appointed for them a portion, then (pay to them) half of what you have appointed, unless they relinquish or he should relinquish in whose hand is the marriage tie,³¹³ and it is nearer to righteousness that you should relinquish; and do not neglect the giving of free gifts between you;³¹⁴ surely Allah sees what you do.

311 The literal significance of the words is given in the margin. By the writing is meant the period of waiting written down for women (Bd), so that a marriage contracted during the period of waiting is illegal.

312 The faridāh or the portion is the dowry, so that even when no dowry has been agreed upon, and marriage has not been consummated, liberality must be shown to the divorced wife, and some provision should be made for her, even though the husband may be in straitened circumstances.

313 The husband is the person in whose hand is the marriage tie (Rz). His relinquishing his due is equivalent to not claiming the half of the dowry which he is entitled to by this verse. Note that relinquishing on the part of husbands is here stated to be the more commendable course: It is nearer to righteousness that you should relinquish.

314 By faḍl is meant here the doing of an act of grace or bounty, that which one is not in duty bound to do; and therefore what is implied is the giving of free gifts.

315 As-Salāt-ul-wusṭā means the best or the most excellent prayer, not the middle prayer, because wusṭā is a comparative degree, and middle does not admit of comparison, hence the other significance of wasaf, which is excellent, and which can admit of comparison, must be adopted. In fact, wusṭā could have meant most middle or most excellent, but as the former is meaningless, the latter significance is adopted. The later afternoon prayer is said to be meant here (Bkh), but in the face of seventeen different conjectures as to what it refers to, I am of opinion that it does not refer to any particular prayer, and that the injunction simply amounts to this, that we should attend to prayer in the most excellent form. The very use of the word wusṭā is an answer to the critics who think that prayer in Islam is simply the observance of the outward form. The Holy Qur-ān is full of injunctions showing that it is the spirit which Islam is after and not the form. The Holy Qur-ān even condemns those whose prayers have no inner meaning (107: 4-6). But if regularity and method had not been adopted, Islam, like other religions, would have passed into mere idealism. It is strange that those who are so strict about regularity with regard to the needs of the body should be so adverse to regularity concerning the needs of the soul. It is absurd on the part of a Christian to pretend that there is anything like a sincere praying emotion in the vast majority of Christians. They have neglected the very faculty of prayer, and so it is almost, if not wholly, dead in them. Islam requires that faculty to be constantly exercised by enjoining prayer to be regularly attended to, even though one should be facing the enemy. For introduction of an injunction relating to prayer into a subject to which it seems quite foreign, see next foot-note.

316 The reference to danger is the danger from the enemy, who might make an onslaught on the Muslims if they neglect their defence when attending to prayer. There is thus a reversion here to the subject of fighting, which was introduced with the question of the qiblah, and which is really dealt with throughout this chapter; and while the question of widowhood which is being dealt with here is closely associated with this subject, because fighting was to leave many widows, it is plainly reverted to in the next section.

317 There is nothing to show that this verse is abrogated by any other verse of the Holy Qur-ān. Neither v. 235 nor 4:12 contains anything contradicting this verse. The former of these states the period of waiting for a widow to be four months and ten days, but here we have nothing about the period of waiting; it simply speaks of a year's residence and maintenance, while the latter portion of the verse plainly says that if the widow of her own accord leaves the house . . . she is not entitled to any further concession, and there is no blame on the heirs of the deceased husband for what the widow does of lawful deeds, i.e. if she remarries after her waiting period of four months and ten days is over. As regards 4:12, the fourth or eighth part of the property of the deceased husband is hers in addition to what she obtains under this verse, and 4:12 plainly says that any thing which is to be paid under a will shall have precedence of the division of property into shares under that verse. Not being opposed to any other verse, there is nothing to justify us in considering this as an abrogated verse, neither is it true that the widow's share was limited only to one year's residence and maintenance at first; this was simply an additional benefit, and the verse that follows, requiring maintenance even for divorced women, makes it further clear, for they could not be imagined as claiming maintenance as heirs.

I may add here that, though Bkh has a report showing that 'Uṣmān and Ibn-i-Zubair considered the injunction as to the widow's maintenance for a year to be abrogated, yet that very report shows that even 'Uṣmān mentioned it as his own opinion; and when he was asked by Ibn-i-Zubair to leave the verse out he refused, saying that he could not make any alteration in what the Prophet had left (Bkh). This shows clearly that the Holy Prophet never said that the verse was abrogated, and 'Uṣmān was aware of this fact. Hence he did not dare to make any alteration. All that appears from that report is that 'Uṣmān thought that the year's maintenance was obligatory, and he could not reconcile this with v. 235. But not only was it not obligatory, as the translation shows, but even if it were considered obligatory, the injunction did not clash with that contained in v. 235, as Mujāhid's explanation, quoted along with what 'Uṣmān said by Bkh, clearly shows. Mujāhid says: "Allah gave her (i.e. the widow) the whole of a year, seven months and twenty days being optional under the bequest; if she desired she could stay according to the bequest (i.e. having maintenance and residence for a year), and if she desired she could leave the house (and remarry), as the Qur-ān says: then if they leave of their own accord there is no blame on you" (Bkh).

318 Note that this provision is in addition to the dowry which must be paid to them. This shows how lenient and just are the injunctions of the Holy Qur-ān towards women.

319 Uluf is plural either of alf, meaning a thousand, or alif (AlI, Bd, Rz), the meaning in this case being a congregation or in a state of union (Bd, Msb-LL). The congregation referred to in this verse is the congregation of the Israelites who left Egypt with Moses, the whole body of the Israelites being called a congregation in the Torah, and the clear mention of the children of Israel after Moses in v. 246 corroborates this. Here we have a people who left their homes for fear of death, and besides the Israelites' exodus from Egypt no incident in history answers to this description. In fact, the very word khuruj (going forth) contains a direct hint of the Exodus. And they were no doubt thousands, their number being over six hundred thousand according to Num. 1: 46. Then there is no doubt, too, that they left Egypt for fear of death, for death would surely have been the fate of that nation if they had not emigrated. Not only were orders given by Pharaoh for their male offspring to be killed, but they were also kept in a state of bondage which would soon have brought them to a state of intellectual and moral death (compare v. 49). The next incident in the history of that nation as referred to here is the Divine commandment to them, to "die." This is more fully stated in 5: 21-26. Moses told them to enter the holy land "which Allah has proscribed for you," but they refused and were made to wander about in the wilderness for forty years, so that that generation perished. This is also shown by their history as given in the Old Testament: "Your carcasses shall fall in this wilderness . . . doubtless ye shall not come into the land" (Num. 14: 29, 30). This was their death.

After that, we are told, Allah gave them life. This refers to the next generation, which was made to inherit the promised land: "But your little ones . . . they shall know the land which ye have despised" (Num. 14: 31). The whole is meant as a warning for the Muslims, who are told that if they follow the footsteps of those people death must be their fate, as it was the fate of a much greater nation. This warning is made clear in the next verse: And fight in the way of Allah.

320 A comparison with 2:190 will clearly show that fighting in the way of Allah is equivalent to fighting in defence of the faith and rights.

321 A misunderstanding as to the conception of these words has led to much carping at the Qur-ān. Aqrada-hu does not originally mean he made him a loan, but the real significance is, he cut off for him a portion to be requited or compensated for it (LL). The root word qard also means cutting originally. Hence the idea of making a loan is not a primary but only a secondary significance of the word. Commenting on this verse, LL says: "It means, according to Als, the grammarian, who is he who will offer unto God a good action or gift, or any thing for which a requital may be sought, or, as Akh, one of the most famous grammarians says, who will do a good action by following and obeying the command of God"; and he adds: "The Arabs say, ند اترضتنى قرضا حسنا which signifies thou hast done to me a good deed which I am bound to requite (TA-LL)." According to Zj, qard signifies any thing done on which a reward may be expected, and hence the Arabs say قرض حسن meaning a deed on which a good reward is expected, and قرض سيئ meaning a deed on which an evil reward is expected (Rz). And a verse of Umayyah bin Salt is an evidence of the truth of this significance:

كل امرئ سوف يجزى قرضه حسنا او سيئا و مدينا كالذى دانا

i.e. every man will have his deeds rewarded to him in a goodly manner or in an evil manner, and he will be rewarded as he did.

322 The meaning is either that Allah receives the gift that is offered to Him and then amplifies it, the significance being that any sacrifice made in the cause of truth is amply rewarded by Allah, or it is a general statement indicating that the tightening of the means of subsistence and their amplification are in the hands of Allah.

323 The prophet alluded to is Samuel: "Nevertheless the people refused to obey the voice of Samuel; and they said, Nay; but we will have a king over us . . . that our king may judge us, and go out before us, and fight our battles" (1 Sam. 8:19, 20). In the history which follows, the Qur-ān does not show any important difference with the Bible narrative, and to call the account given here "a garbled rendering of the Israelitish history" is due to ignorance. It is quite true, however, that the Bible itself is neither an absolutely trustworthy authority nor a full record of the Israelitish history, nor is proof wanting in many cases that where the Qur-án differs from the Bible it corrects some misstatement. See, for instance, foot-note 147.

248 And their prophet said to them: Surely the sign of his kingdom is that there shall come to you the *heart*³²⁸ in which there is tranquility from your Lord and the *best*³²⁹ of what the followers of Moses and the followers of Aaron have left, the angels bearing it:³³⁰ most surely there is a sign in this for you if you are believers.

324 1 Sam. 15: 33 shows that the Amalekites had killed the children of Israel, while 1 Sam. 17: 1 shows that they had taken lands which belonged to Judah.

325 Saul is here called Tālūt, which is of the measure of fā' lūt from ṭāla, meaning he or it was tall, and he is so called on account of the tallness of his stature. It appears from the Bible narrative that Saul was the tallest of men among his compatriots: "And when he stood among the people, he was higher than any of the people" (1 Sam. 10: 23). The proper names used in the Holy Qur-án, while differing slightly from the Hebrew originals, have a significance of their own, and the change of names is thus a significant circumstance.

326 The murmurings of the people on Saul's selection as king, as recorded in the Holy Qur-án, have something corresponding to them in the Bible, showing that, though the Bible does not record the fact, it is still a fact: "And Saul answered and said, Am not I a Benjamite, of the smallest of the tribes of Israel? and my family the least of all the families of the tribe of Benjamin?" (1 Sam. 9: 21). And again: "But the children of Belial said, How shall this man save us? And they despised him, and brought him no presents" (1 Sam. 10: 27). This shows that the fact recorded in the Holy Qur-án is essentially true, though omitted by the Bible.

327 Compare 1 Sam. 10: 24, "And Samuel said to all the people, See ye him whom the Lord hath chosen, that there is none like him among all the people."

328 The ṭābūt mentioned here has given rise to a number of stories, because of its two-fold significance. It means a chest or a box, and it also signifies the bosom or the heart (LL). Taking the first significance, the reference is said to be to the ark, to which-

Necessity of Fighting in the Cause of Truth: Illustration from Jewish History

however, it is objected that the ark was restored to the Israelites long before the time of Saul. But, as I have often shown, we cannot be so certain of the Bible narrative as to reject as untrue every thing differing from it. I prefer, however, the latter significance, and the use of the word in that sense is well known. LL quotes the proverb of knowledge that I have lost. Rgh also says that tabūt denotes qalb or the heart, and he quotes 'Umar as speaking of IMsd.: "A vessel filled up with knowledge," referring evidently to the heart. That the word is used in the Holy Qur-ān in this sense is abundantly clear from the description of it that follows. Tranquility from the Lord is not a thing which is placed in boxes, but the heart is its real repository. On five other occasions the coming down of sakinah, or tranquility, is mentioned in the Holy Qur-ān, and every time it is the heart of the Prophet or the faithful that is the recipient of it. For instance, in 48:4 it is plainly said: "He it is who sent down tranquility into the hearts of the believers that they may have more of faith." According to LA, sakinah means also mercy; and he quotes a saying of the Holy Prophet: "There came down upon them mercy (Ar. sakinah), the angels bearing it."

By the coming of "the heart in which there is tranquility" is meant the change which came over Saul when he was made king. That change which came over his heart is thus clearly spoken of in the Bible: "And it was so, that when he had turned his back to go from Samuel, God gave him another heart" (1 Sam. 10:9). This exactly corresponds with the statement made in the Qur-ān. And further it is said: "And the Spirit of God came upon him and he prophesied" (1 Sam. 10:10). This is no doubt the best of what the true followers of Moses and Aaron left.

329 The word bagiyyah means both a residue and excellence or the best of a thing (LL).

You say فلان من بقية القوم meaning such a one is of the best of the people (LL).

And اولو in the Holy Qur-ān (11:116) means persons possessed of excellence.

And بقية الله (11:86) signifies obedience, or the state of goodness that remains.

Hence bagiyyah in either sense signifies the blessings of the earlier days, i.e. prophecy. And thus it became a proverb among the Israelites: "Is Saul also among the prophets?" (1 Sam. 10:12).

330 The ark of 1 Samuel 4:4 was drawn by bullocks and not by angels, and since, according to the Holy Qur-ān, the bearers of the tabūt were angels, it is additional reason that by tabūt here is meant the heart. But see a saying of the Holy Prophet quoted in foot-note 328, from which it is clear that "it" in the verse may refer not to tabūt but to sakinah and bagiyyah, and the meaning would thus be that tranquility and inspiration were borne by the angels into the heart of Saul.

331 "The story of Saul is here confounded with that of Gideon"—such is the judgment of the Christian critic, and for this the Qur-án is called a "ridiculous jumble." Yet, strange to say, when the same critic reads the New Testament, his critical faculties are, as it were, quite benumbed, for when he finds Matthew stating that Mary's husband Joseph was the son of Jacob, who was son of Matthan, who was son of Eleazar, and so on, and reads on the other hand Luke stating that Joseph was the son of Heli, which was the son of Matthat, which was the son of Levi, and so on, he fails to see any ridiculous jumble, as if Joseph could be the son of two fathers.

Now I fail to see what confusion there exists in the case of the Quranic narrative. All that it states is that Saul tried his forces by a river, and the Bible does not say anything about it. On the other hand, the Bible speaks of a trial of a somewhat similar nature by Gideon (Judges 7 : 1-6), while the Qur-án does not speak of Gideon at all. We admit that the Qur-án does not undertake to give a full and detailed history of the Israelites, and no Christian does, I think, hold the belief that the Bible gives a full and detailed record of the whole history of the Israelite nation so that it could not have omitted a single incident. Nor is there anything strange if history repeated itself in any incident. Is it not a simple and natural explanation of the statements made in the Holy Qur-án and the Bible that Saul followed the example of Gideon? That these are two different incidents is made clear by the fact that while Gideon tried his forces by "the well of Harod" (Judges 7 : 1), Saul tried his forces by a river, as stated in the Qur-án. It further appears from the Bible that the river Jordan was there: "Some of the Hebrews went over Jordan to the land of Gad and Gilead" (1 Sam. 13 : 7).

332 The Arabic word is jálūt, of the same measure as Tālūt, being from the root جال (في الحرب) meaning he assailed or assaulted (in the battle) (I.L.), and thus instead of Goliath the Holy Qur-án has adopted a name which expresses his chief characteristic, viz. that his assaults in the battlefield could not be met by Saul and his army. It may be added here that, according to the Bible, too, Saul led his armies against the Philistines, and Goliath was one of their champions. Saul, of course, had to fight many battles, and the Holy Qur-án only speaks of one of them.

333 Compare 1 Sam. 14 : 6: "For there is no restraint to the Lord to save by many or by few." And on one occasion only six hundred men were left with him (1 Sam. 13 : 15).

251 So they put them to flight by Allah's permission. And David slew Goliath, and Allah gave him kingdom³³⁴ and wisdom, and taught him of what He pleased. And were it not for Allah's repelling some men with others, the earth would certainly be in a state of disorder;³³⁵ but Allah is Gracious to the creatures.

334 That David slew Goliath and afterwards was made a king is also stated in the Bible.

335 Thus the Muslims are told that they have to fight to restore order and establish peace in the country.

336 The principle is here recognized that some apostles excel the others, and it contains, apparently, a reference to the excellence of the Holy Prophet. The mention of David and Jesus in particular here is to show that, notwithstanding that these two prophets represented two different aspects of the advancement of the Israelite nation, David standing for their worldly eminence and Jesus for their spiritual eminence, they both sang praises of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, and both spoke of his advent as the advent of God Himself, thus indicating that, looked at from both standpoints, the excellence of the Holy Prophet over other prophets was so immeasurable as to have led two of the most eminent Israelite prophets to speak of him as the Lord.

Numerous verses of the Holy Qur-ān bear testimony to the greatness of the Holy Prophet. He is repeatedly spoken of as being endowed with all those qualities of greatness in the highest degree which to others were given only partially and in a less degree. It is for this reason that the Holy Prophet is declared to be a mercy to all the generations of men (21: 107), and his followers are called the best of the people (3: 109), which shows that he is the greatest of the prophets.

337 Allah spoke to all the apostles, but as there were some who were exalted above others by many degrees, this form is adopted. An instance of this is furnished by v. 87: "And some of them (the prophets) you called liars, while others you slay," whereas those that were slain were also called liars.

338 The carrying on of the struggle for existence against the numerous enemies of Islam required in the first place the raising of funds and other acts of self-sacrifice; hence the repeated exhortations to spend. The subject is dealt with at length in the two sections that follow the next.

339 The twofold significance of intercession has been explained in foot-note 79. The principle is here recognized that there may be intercession with Divine permission. It is true that Islam does not recognize the doctrine that man stands in need of any mediator to reconcile him with God, and therefore mediation or intercession in the 256 There is no compulsion in religion;³⁴² truly the right way has become clearly distinct from error; therefore, whoever disbelieves in the devil³⁴³ and believes in Allah, he indeed has laid hold on the firmest handle, which shall not break off, and Allah is Hearing, Knowing.

257 Allah is the guardian of those who believe: He brings them out of the darkness into the light;³⁴⁴ and (as to) those who disbelieve, their guardians are the devils who take them out of the light into the darkness; they are the inmates of the fire, in it they shall abide.

sense in which the Christian doctrine is held is unknown to Islam. But there is another aspect of it. The Prophet, to whom the Divine will is revealed, is the Model for his people. He is perfect, and by pointing out a way enables others to attain to perfection. In this sense he is called a shaft or an Intercessor. See foot-note 79, where this significance is referred to, and also foot-note 607. Those who take the Prophet for their model may thus attain to perfection, which is the real meaning of salvation in Islam. But as all men are not equally gifted, nor have all equal occasion to attain to a state of perfection, although they have exerted themselves to their utmost, Divine mercy will take them by the hand and amends will be made for such defects through the intercession of the Holy One who has served for a model to his followers. It is in this sense that Islam recognizes the doctrine of intercession in the life after death.

340 The true significance of kursi here is not throne or chair, but knowledge (Bkh, Rgh); see also foot-note on 7:54.

341 This is a very well-known verse which goes under the name of āyat-ul-kursi, or the verse of power or knowledge, because it deals with the all-comprehensive knowledge and power of Allah. It is an assurance to the Muslims that Allah, who knows the sacrifices they have made and the wrongs that their opponents are doing them, and has power to reward and punish, shall soon deal with each party as it deserves.

342 To all the nonsense which is being talked about the Prophet offering Islam and sword as alternatives to the pagan Arabs, this verse is a sufficient answer. Being assured of success, the Muslims are told that when they hold the power in their hand their guiding principle should be that there should be no compulsion in the matter of religion. The verse was no doubt revealed later than that which has already preceded with respect to fighting in the way of Allah with those who fight first. The presumption that this passage was directed to the early converts and that it was abrogated later on is utterly baseless. The words religion should be only for Allah in v. 193, and the words there is no compulsion in religion here, are really two different forms of expressing one and the same idea.

343 Tāghūt is derived from taḡā, meaning he was inordinate or exorbitant, and is variously explained as meaning "the exorbitant in pride or corruptness or disbelief of the people of the Scripture" (Q), or any head or leader of error (S, Q), or he who turns from the good (Rgh), or the idols or whatever is worshipped to the exclusion of God (Zj, Q, TA), or the devil" (LL). As the word devil carries most of the significances given to the word tāghūt, I have throughout the translation adopted it as its equivalent. But it is not a proper name, as it accepts the definite article al. It is used as plural here, though it has also a separate plural form, ṭawāghit.

344 Faith is here spoken of as light and unbelief as darkness. The contrast is brought out to the best advantage in 24: 35-40.

345 The words "because Allah had given him the kingdom" are taken by the majority of commentators to refer to Abraham's opponent, but the view of the minority that the personal pronoun him in the above quotation refers to Abraham (Rz) appears to be more correct, being corroborated by 4: 54: "We have given to Abraham's children the Book and the wisdom and We have given them a grand kingdom." By Abraham in the verse under discussion are also meant Abraham's children, because the promise was made to Abraham, and even in Genesis the promised land is spoken of as being given to Abraham: "I am the Lord that brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees, to give thee this land to inherit it" (Gen. 15: 7). Moreover, the word ātā sometimes signifies not that he actually gave the thing away, but that he promised to give it. Compare v. 233, where in when you pay what you promised for, the concluding words convey the true significance of ātātum according to all commentators.

This interpretation, moreover, makes the sense of the verse very clear. The Muslims are told that just as a promise is given to them that they will be raised to great eminence from the state of insignificance in which they were, which is equivalent to raising the dead to life, a similar promise was given to Abraham, that promise being in fact the basis of the present promise to the Holy Prophet, because the kingdom to be given to him was really in fulfilment of the promise of kingdom to Abraham. It further shows why the question of raising the dead to life came under discussion, for making a great nation out of one man was really giving life to the dead, and it was this which Abraham upheld, having perfect faith in the Divine promise (v. 260), and which his adversary denied.

346 Both statements relating to giving life and causing death are silent as to what it was to which the giving of life or bringing of death relates, but, by putting into the mouth of the disputant the same words as are attributed to the Divine Being, the Qur-ān makes itself clear, for quickening into life in the ordinary sense of the word could not be claimed by a mortal. Moreover, as the discussion arose out of the promise given to Abraham that he

- 259 Or the like of him who passed by a town, and it had fallen down upon its roofs; he said: When will Allah give it life after its death? So Allah caused him to remain in a state of death for a hundred years, then roused him. He said: How long have you tarried? He said: I have tarried a day, or a part of a day. Said He: Nay! you have tarried a hundred years; then look at your food and drink—years have not passed over it; and look at your ass; and that We may make you a sign to men, and look at the bones, how We set them together, then clothe them with flesh; so when it became clear to him, he said: I know that Allah has power over all things.³⁴⁸ should be the father of a great nation and possess the lands of a flourishing people, who must therefore be ruined, it is clear that it refers to the life and death of nations, to the population of desolate places and the desolation of populous places. It should be noted that the words hayât and mawt, literally life and death, are as well applicable to nations and places as to men, animals, and vegetation. Thus ماتت الارض signifies the land became destitute of vegetation and inhabitants (Msb-LI.). What is stated here is further illustrated in the verse that follows by the Divine promise as to the rebuilding of Jerusalem, where the desolation of the sacred city is spoken of as its death and its rebuilding is called its life. In fact, the very circumstance that the verse (259) relating to the rebuilding of Jerusalem is an illustration of this verse, is sufficient to show that it is the population and desolation of towns and the life and death of nations that are meant by hayât and mawt in this verse.

347 The disputant belonged to a race of sun-worshippers, and therefore when he claimed that he could give life and cause death, Abraham advanced an argument which quite confounded his adversary. If he could give life and cause death he could control even his deity, the sun, for to give life and cause death were the work of the deity and not of the devotee, and hence he could make it rise from the opposite direction. The adversary was confounded, because he saw that he had made an assertion which was opposed to his own avowed belief. The commentators are also of opinion that, in referring to the course of the sun, the continuity of the argument is not broken by Abraham, but they give a different explanation, although it is admitted that Abraham's opponent was a worshipper of the sun (AH). The explanation accepted as the correct one by Rz and AH is that, in referring to the course of the sun, Abraham suggested that his adversary's assertion that he could give life and cause death could not hold, because, admitting for the sake of argument that life and death were brought about in this world through intermediaries, these intermediaries were subject to the control of the Divine Being, and not to that of any human being, citing the sun as an instance of these intermediaries.

348 Between the two incidents relating to Abraham in verses 258 and 260, the insertion of the verse (259) relating to an incident in later Israelitish history may seem to be out of place to a superficial observer. But a careful consideration of the three verses will show that not only the subject matter of this section fits in with the context, but the three verses of the section itself are beautifully arranged. Verse 258 refers to the promise given to Abraham that a great nation should arise out of him, which would inherit the fertile lands of the powerful nations then living, and to a controversy on that subject held with the ruler of the land, who is told that Allah had power to give life to a dead nation. Verse 260 relates how Abraham was satisfied that a dead nation may be raised to life, while verse 259, citing an example of what is said in verse 258, affords in fact a proof of the assertion made in that verse, the Muslims being referred to a more recent historical incident so that the reference might carry a greater conviction to their hearts.

That the incident mentioned in this verse relates to later Israelitish history is clear from the following considerations:—

Firstly, from the interpretations given to this verse it appears that by "the town which had fallen down upon its roofs" is meant Jerusalem (Rz, Alf) as it was left after its desolation by Nebuchadnezzar in 599 B.C.

Secondly, the concluding words of this incident, "look at the bones, how We set them together, then clothe them with flesh," undoubtedly refer to Ezekiel's vision as related in Ezekiel, ch. 37. The concluding verses of the previous chapter of that book state exactly what is stated in verse 258: "I the Lord build the ruined places, and plant that that was desolate; I the Lord have spoken it, and I will do it" (Ezek. 36:36). The first part of ch. 37 relates how Ezekiel was taken (in a vision, as I will now show) "in the midst of the valley which was full of bones," and asked, "Son of man, can these bones live?" and, after a Divine assurance, Ezekiel is made to witness the scene which is also narrated in the Qur-án: "the bones came together, bone to his bone," and "the sinews and the flesh came upon them, and the skin covered them above," and then "the breath came into them, and they lived" (Ezek. 37:1-10).

The identity of this vision with that narrated in the Holy Qur-án is so clear that I need not dwell upon it any further. That what is narrated in Ezekiel, ch. 37, is a vision is clear from the introductory words of that chapter: "The hand of the Lord was upon me, and carried me out in the spirit of the Lord"—words always used to signify a state of vision. What follows the incident makes it still more clear, for verse 11 (Ezekiel, ch. 37) goes on to say: "Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel: behold, they say, Our bones are dried, and our hope is lost"; while verse 12 gives them the Divine promise, "Behold, O My people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you in to the land of Israel." This shows conclusively that the bones were only a symbol of the fallen condition of the whole house of Israel. I lay stress upon the word whole in Ezekiel 37:11, because the actual bones were only of the very few among them who were put to the sword, by far the greater number being in captivity or held in a slavish condition in subjugation to the Babylonians. The words of verses 11 and 12 are too clear to need any further comment.

It being thus established that the incident of the bones in Ezekiel, ch. 37, is a vision of the prophet Ezekiel, it is only too clear that the identical incident related in verse (259) now under discussion is also a vision. The Qur-án usually dispenses with words showing an incident to be a vision when either the context or the nature of the incident or a reference to earlier history makes it clear that it is a vision. Compare the words in which Joseph narrated his vision to his father in 12:4: "O of the birds, then train them to follow you, then place on every mountain a part of them, then call them, they will come to you flying; and know that Allah is Mighty, Wise.³⁴⁹

مِنَ الطَّيْرِ صُفِّرْهُنَّ إِلَيْكَ ثُمَّ
اجْعَلْ عَلَى كُلِّ جَبَلٍ مِنْهُنَّ جُزْءً
ثُمَّ ادْعُهُنَّ يَأْتِينَكَ سَعْيًا وَ اعْلَمْ أَنَّ اللَّهَ عَزِيزٌ حَكِيمٌ

my father! surely I saw eleven stars and the sun and the moon—I saw them making obeisance to me,” not making any mention at all that he had seen this in a vision. In the verse under discussion, however, it is not only its identity with Ezekiel 37: 1-10 that shows the incident to be a vision, but the insertion of a kāf, signifying likeness, before the whole is a further indication of the same; for otherwise the kāf would be redundant, as some commentators have supposed it to be (Rz). If the incident had been a real one, as in the previous verse, the verse should have commenced with the words or him instead of or the like of him, the insertion of the kāf giving the incident the colour of a parable or a vision. Sayed Ahmad Khan considers او كالذى مر على قرية as being equivalent to او الذى كانه مر على قرية meaning “or him who, as it were, passed by a town.”

Thirdly, the causing the prophet to remain in a state of death is thus also an incident of the vision which, though not narrated in the Bible, is corroborated by facts, standing symbolically for the death of the Jewish nation, a death of disgrace and sorrow, or the desolation of Jerusalem, which covered a period of almost a hundred years. Jerusalem was taken by Nebuchadnezzar in 599 B.C. (2 Kings 24:10); Cyrus gave permission to rebuild the temple in 537 B.C. (Ezra 1:2), the house being eventually finished in 515 B.C. (Ezra 6:15). The Bible does not give us the history of the period from 515 B.C., and even if we are not allowed to conjecture that another fifteen years may have been taken by the Israelites to settle back in Jerusalem and to rebuild the city itself for their own habitation, the period from 599 to 515 B.C. covers almost fully the whole of the sixth century B.C., and hence the hundred years of Ezekiel's death in the vision represent the hundred years of the death of the Israelite nation.

I may further add that the reference to the food and drink of the prophet, which did not show any influence of years, and to his ass, which was still standing by, only proves that the hundred years' death which the prophet underwent was only symbolic death. The mention of the bones has been taken by some commentators to refer to the ass, but this is an obvious error, for the two statements are separated by a sentence: “And that We may make you a sign to men”; and there is also a pause after the word ass, separating what follows from that which has preceded.

How was Ezekiel a sign to the people? Because the vision made him a symbol of the whole Jewish nation, and his symbolical death for a hundred years represented the sorrows and afflictions of Israel for a similar period, after which they were once more to be restored to life as the prophet was raised from death.

The only word to be explained in this verse is yatusannah, which is from سنت

عند meaning I abode with him a year, and one says, تسنت النخلة i.e. the palm-tree underwent the lapse of years (S, Msb-I.I.). The word applied to food and drink carries a similar significance, meaning it became altered (for the worse) by the lapse of years (La-I.I.). Rz explains the lapse of years to be the real meaning of the word, for his explanation is the years did not pass over it.

349 This verse is a natural sequel to v. 258, which speaks of the manifestation of Allah's power in the life and death of the nations. Verse 259, as already noted, has been interposed to afford to the companions of the Holy Prophet a proof of the assertion made in v. 258. In v. 260 it is made clear to Abraham, by means of a parable, how flourishing nations may be brought to naught and insignificant ones made to flourish, referring in particular to his own case. In Gen. 15:8 Abraham is made to say, after receiving a promise of the land of Canaan, "Lord God, whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it?" The Quranic parallel to this is: "My Lord, show me how Thou givest life to the dead." He believed in the Divine promise, and was so sure of it that he had even contended with and overcome an adversary on this point. But was it not strange that out of his seed should arise a nation that should supplant the powerful nations that ruled the land? The sign given to Abraham according to Gen. 15:9-11 is quite meaningless, not making it clear how Abraham's seed was to inherit the land. He is told to take "a heifer of three years old, a she goat of three years old, and a ram of three years old and a turtle dove, and a young pigeon"; he "divided them in the midst." "And when the fowls came down upon the carcasses, Abraham drove them away." How this was a sign of Abraham inheriting the land of Canaan is a mystery. It only shows that the text here has been tampered with.

The answer to Abraham's how as given in the Qur-án is a perfectly intelligible parable. If he should take four birds and tame them, they would obey his call and fly to him even from the distant mountains. If the birds, then, obey his call, he being neither their master nor the author of their existence, would not nations submit to the call of their Divine Master and the Author of their existence? Or if the birds, being only tamed for a short time by a man who had otherwise no control over them, become so obedient to their tamer, has not Allah the power to control all those causes which govern the life and death of nations? Whenever He wishes to destroy a people He brings together the causes of their decline and evil fortune overtakes them, and when He wishes to make a people prosperous He creates those causes that bring about the rise and progress of nations. That the word ṭáir (plural ṭáir as used here), which signifies a bird, also signifies the cause of good and evil, or misery or happiness (TA-LI), in which sense the word is used in 7:131 and elsewhere in the Holy Qur-án, is a further indication of the significance of the parable of the birds, through which Abraham is made to realize how the Almighty controls the fortunes of the nations. It is an error to suppose that Abraham actually took four birds and tamed them. The Qur-án does not say it. It only makes Abraham realize the wonderful manifestation of Divine power by a parable.

The commentators have been at great pains to explain the words صرهن إليك so as to make them signify cut them into pieces, as it is on this interpretation that they base the puerile story of Abraham having taken four birds and cut them into pieces, which being afterwards quickened to life, satisfied Abraham that Almighty God had the power to raise the dead to life. The words do not suggest any such story. Ṣíra-hū and aṣíra-hū, of which ṣír is an imperative form, signify he made it to incline (S, Msb, Q-LI), and it is in this sense only that the word is followed by ilá. Thus one says of a man ably with this, which is the only true significance of the word, the phrase signifies turn them toward you (Akh, S, M, LI), i.e. tame the birds. Even Rz accepts this to be the primary meaning, but even then, so fond are the commentators of the story of cutting the birds into pieces, he makes the words cut them into pieces to be understood. The other significance, dissect them or divide them into pieces, is accepted on the authority of l'Ab in the verse under discussion, but it seems to have been an error due to the fact that ṣáira (aorist, yaṣíru-u) has two contrary significations, viz. he separated or dispersed, and he collected (LI), quoting Fretag, who makes the statement on the authority of Kitáb-ul-'Adad, the latter significance being clearly related to the primary meaning of the word as stated above.

Spending Money in the Cause of Truth

350 The words in the way of Allah, as already noted, stand throughout the Holy Qur-ān for the cause of the Divine faith or the defence of Islam. As Rz says, the words apply exclusively to Jihād (i.e. a struggle in the cause of the faith) in the language of the Holy Qur-ān. This is specially made clear by 9: 60, which mentions the heads of expenditure of the legal alms, and in which fi sabil illāh (which cannot there signify anything but defence or advancement of the faith) is a particular head, in addition to helping the poor, the indigent, and the wayfarer, the setting free of slaves, etc. Hence the primary object of this and the following section in exhorting the faithful to spend money, and the inculcation of charity, is the advancement of the cause of Islam, though other objects of charity are also included. Some commentators think that the injunctions are particularly given only with regard to Jihād, while others hold that all charitable objects, including Jihād, are meant (Rz).

351 The comparison of money spent in the cause of truth to a grain yielding seven-hundredfold fruit is to show: firstly, that the progress of Islam depended on the sacrifices which the individual members of the community made; and secondly, that the expenditure of money must be accompanied with hard labour, as a seed cast on untilled ground unaccompanied by any labour would not even grow. It is noteworthy that while the Qur-ān represents the increase to be seven-hundredfold, or even double of it, Jesus, in a similar parable—the parable of the sower—promises thirty, sixty, or at the most a hundredfold increase (Matt. 13: 23; Mark 4: 8).

352 Mann is originally the conferring of a benefit or a favour upon one (LL), and is so used in the Holy Qur-ān frequently; it also has a secondary meaning, i.e. giving expression to the good done to anybody (Rz), or, reminding one of the favour done to one by way of reproach, and this is the meaning here. Azā signifies harm or annoyance, by speaking evilly of one or inflicting slight injury. Gifts, whether given in the cause of national or individual suffering, must not be accompanied by any interested motives, hence the donor is forbidden even to mention them afterwards, so as not to create the impression that he had laid anybody under an obligation by that deed or to cause annoyance or harm.

263 Kind speech and forgiveness is better than charity followed by injury; and Allah is Self-sufficient, Forbearing.

264 O you who believe! do not make your charity worthless by reproach and injury, like him who spends his property to be seen of men and does not believe in Allah and the last day,³⁵³ so his parable is as the parable of a smooth rock with earth upon it, then a heavy rain falls upon it, so it leaves it bare; they shall not be able to gain anything of what they have earned; and Allah does not guide the unbelieving people.³⁵⁴

265 And the parable of those who spend their property to seek the pleasure of Allah and for the certainty of their souls is as the parable of a garden on an elevated ground, upon which heavy rain falls so it brings forth its fruit twofold, but if heavy rain does not fall upon it, then light rain (is sufficient); and Allah sees what you do.³⁵⁵

353 The expression conveys a very strong disapproval of giving alms to be seen by men. It does not simply forbid the doing of alms "before men to be seen of them," as does Jesus Christ in his well-known Sermon on the Mount (Matt. 6:1), but speaks of this as being the work of those who do "not believe in Allah and the last day," thus making it utterly hateful in the sight of true believers.

354 The concluding words of the parable show that the Holy Qur-án is speaking of the efforts of the unbelievers to deal a death-blow to Islam. They were spending their money to retard the advancement of the cause of Islam, but their efforts, they are told, would be fruitless. Compare 8:36: "Surely those who disbelieve spend their wealth to hinder (people) from the way of Allah: so they shall spend it, then it shall be to them an intense regret, then they shall be overcome." The parable conveys exactly the same significance, and being followed by the statement they shall not be able to gain anything of what they have earned, leaves no doubt as to its purport.

355 This is the parable of the believers who will reap the fruits of the sacrifices they make. They are spoken of as spending to seek the pleasure of Allah, because all their efforts were for the upholding of truth, and for the certainty of their souls, every act of self-sacrifice being due to their certainty of the ultimate triumph of the truth, which in its turn made them more certain of it

356 This parable shows the evil effect which reproaching and annoyance may bring to a gift which would otherwise have yielded fruit. The gifts of those who give simply to be seen and praised by others are like seed cast upon hard stones, which takes no root (v. 264), but there may be gifts which would have yielded fruit were it not that the whirlwind of reproach or annoyance had blasted them just when about to ripen.

358 The manifesting of charity or giving alms openly is a thing quite different from giving them "to be seen of men," for which see verse 264. By the giving of alms openly is meant the giving of subscriptions for works of public utility or for national defence, or for the advancement of the national or public welfare. The teaching of the Gospels (Matt. 6: 1-4) is really defective, because it lays all the stress upon private acts of charity and makes no mention at all of subscriptions for works of public utility and for organized efforts for dealing with the poor, without which national growth is impossible. The Quranic teaching is perfect, as it takes into consideration the varying circumstances of human society and enjoins public as well as private acts of charity, mentioning public charity first, as that is of greater importance.

359 The reference in this verse seems to point to the occasions of public acts of charity. The opening words of the verse call attention to the special difficulties of Muslim society, which was required to repel its enemies in the interests of its existence. It shows that the Muslims did not fight to bring the unbelievers into the fold of Islam, for that, the Prophet is told in plain words, was not his business, but it was for the good of their people, the defence of the Muslim community, that the Muslims were required to raise subscriptions in order to be prepared to meet their enemies. And hence what they spent was for Allah's pleasure, because it was in the cause of truth. In the concluding words they are assured that for these deeds of sacrifice they will be fully rewarded. Thus public charity must be directed to the national welfare or the amelioration of mankind in general. Reports mentioned under this verse by the commentators show that Muslim charity was exercised not only for the welfare of their own co-religionists but also for that of the polytheists, and that Islam did not allow the difference of religion to be a hindrance to the bestowal of charity upon a deserving person.

SECTION 38

Usury Prohibited

274. Good consequences of pecuniary sacrifices. 275-277. Usury forbidden. 278-281. Interest on loans already made to be foregone and the capital to be recovered with lenity.

274 (As for) those who spend their property by night and by day, secretly and openly, they shall have their reward from their Lord and they shall have no fear, nor shall they grieve.³⁶³

275 Those who swallow down usury cannot arise except as one whom the devil has prostrated by (his) touch does rise.³⁶⁴ That is because they say, Trading is only like usury; and Allah has allowed

الَّذِينَ يَبْفِقُونَ أَمْوَالَهُمْ بِالْيَمِينِ وَالْأَمْرِ
سِرًّا وَعَلَانِيَةً فَلَهُمْ أَجْرُهُمْ عِنْدَ رَبِّهِمْ
وَلَا خَوْفٌ عَلَيْهِمْ وَلَا هُمْ يَحْزَنُونَ ○
الَّذِينَ يَأْكُلُونَ الرِّبَا لَا يَقْوَمُونَ

مِنَ الْمَسِّ ذَلِكَ بِأَنَّهُمْ قَالُوا إِنَّمَا
الْبَيْعُ مِثْلُ الرِّبَا وَأَحَلَّ اللَّهُ الْبَيْعَ

360 Verse 271 speaks of two kinds of charity, viz. public charity, the occasions for which are mentioned in the last verse, and private charity, which is for the poor. This verse shows who are the poor who deserve assistance by private acts of charity. Their first qualification is that they are confined in the way of Allah. Among these are included: (1) Those who had to fight in defence of Islam, but had no means of livelihood; (2) those who could not go forth to trade because of the insecurity of the roads and the constant raids of the enemy; (3) those who were wounded in the fighting (Rz).

361 In translating ضربا في الأرض as "knocking about in the land," Palmer has made a serious mistake. 'The unhappy similarity which he discovered between the colloquial English phrase "knock about," which means "to wander here and there in a rough, careless, and aimless way," and one of the significances of the Arabic word ḍarb, viz. beating, striking, or smiting, makes him draw the preposterous conclusion that the 'language of the Qur-án is really rude and rugged.' Now, to beat, is not the only significance of the word ḍarb; nor are beating and knocking about necessarily synonymous terms. On the other hand, the word ḍarb does convey a very large number of significances. Palmer would have been nearer the mark if he had said beating the land. But as a matter of fact the phrase here used by the Qur-án means he journeyed in the land, seeking sustenance and for the purpose of traffic (LL), and not wandering aimlessly, an idea quite foreign to the Arabic phrase.

362 Here we have another qualification of those who deserve to be assisted by private acts of charity; these are the men who abstain from begging. This would show that the Holy Qur-án does not countenance the practice of begging from door to door.

363 It is a prophetic assurance to the Muslims that if they made sacrifices for the national welfare, the fear of annihilation under which the Muslim community then lived would be dispelled, and they would not grieve for what they spent, as it would yield abundant fruit. This is, in fact, a prophecy of their final triumph over their enemies, for the party that is victorious in a struggle does not grieve for the sacrifices that it makes, while the vanquished party does.

364 Ribā (literally, an excess or addition) means an addition over and above the principal sum that is lent (Rgh, TA-LL), and includes usury as well as interest. The subject is introduced here very appropriately, for as charity is the broad basis of human trading and forbidden usury.³⁶⁵ To whomsoever then the admonition has come from his Lord, then he desists, he shall have what has already passed,³⁶⁶ and his affair is in the hands of Allah; and whoever returns (to it)—these are the inmates of the fire: they shall abide in it.

276 Allah does not bless usury, and He causes charitable deeds to prosper, and Allah does not love any ungrateful sinner.³⁶⁷

277 Surely they who believe and do good deeds and keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate—they shall have their reward from their Lord, and they shall have no fear, nor shall they grieve.

وَحَرَّمَ الرِّبَا فَمَنْ جَاءَهُ مَوْعِظَةٌ مِنْ رَبِّهِ فَانْتَهَى فَلَهُ مَا سَلَفَ وَأَمْرُهُ إِلَى اللَّهِ وَمَنْ عَادَ فَأُولَئِكَ أَصْحَابُ النَّارِ هُمْ فِيهَا خَالِدُونَ
يَنْهَى اللَّهُ الرِّبَا وَيُرِي الصَّدَقَاتِ وَاللَّهُ لَا يُحِبُّ كُلَّ كَفَّارٍ أَتْمِحِرُ
إِنَّ الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّالِحَاتِ وَآتَوْا الزَّكَاةَ لَهُمْ أَجْرُهُمْ عِنْدَ رَبِّهِمْ وَلَا خَوْفٌ عَلَيْهِمْ وَلَا هُمْ يَحْزَنُونَ

sympathy, usury annihilates all sympathetic affection and leads to the extreme of miserliness. Thus from one point of view the subject of usury stands in contrast with that of charity, while from another point of view the connection between these two subjects is, as pointed out in the two preceding sections and the verse with which this section opens, that while the Muslims were promised great wealth and prosperity, they were warned against an inordinate desire for amassing wealth, to which usury would certainly have led them. Hence, those who devour usury are compared to those prostrated by the touch of the devil, which in this case stands for Mammon. The prohibition of usury in Islam is a very wide subject, and cannot be discussed within the limits of a foot-note. But it may be noted in passing that Islam adopts the golden mean in all cases. It does not go to the extreme of the socialistic idea which aims at the annihilation of all distinctions of property rights, but it establishes institutions which give the poor a certain proportion of the riches of the wealthier members of society. Such is the institution of Zakât, according to which one-fortieth portion of the amassed wealth of every member of society is taken yearly to be distributed among the poor. In perfect accordance with that institution, Islam refuses to allow the rich to grow richer by reducing the poor to still greater poverty, which is the real aim of usury. Usury, moreover, promotes habits of idleness; but its worst effect is on morals, as it causes man to be obsessed by selfishness, and this is, in fact, what is meant by the devil prostrating a devourer of usury. Facilities for borrowing money on interest, moreover, make men prodigate, as similar facilities have made States and nations prodigate in these days.

365 The Qur-án draws a distinction between trading and usury. In trade the capitalist takes the risk of loss along with the hope of profit, but in lending money on usury the whole of the loss is suffered by the man who uses his labour, while the capitalist may count upon his profit even in the case of loss in the actual concern. Hence trading stands on quite a different footing from usury.

366 Here is a prohibition to receive any interest on money lent, but if any one had actually received any interest before the prohibition he was not required to pay it back, because such a procedure would have hopelessly upset business.

367 Maḥaga signifies, according to Rgh, he took away the blessing thereof or he diminished it. It also signifies the blotting out or annihilating of a thing. Usury is here condemned, while charitable deeds are commended as being the real source of the

278 O you who believe! be careful of (your duty to) Allah and relinquish what remains (due) from usury, if you are believers.³⁶⁸

279 But if you do (it) not, then be apprised of war from Allah and His Apostle;³⁶⁹ and if you repent, then you shall have your capital; neither shall you make (the debtor) suffer loss, nor shall you be made to suffer loss.³⁷⁰

280 And if (the debtor) is in straitness, then let there be postponement until (he is in) ease; and that you remit (it) as alms is better for you, if you knew.³⁷¹

281 And guard yourselves against a day in which you shall be returned to Allah; then every soul shall be paid back in full what it has earned, and they shall not be dealt with unjustly.

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا اتَّقُوا اللَّهَ وَذَرُوا مَا بَقِيَ مِنَ الرِّبَا إِن كُنْتُمْ مُؤْمِنِينَ
فَإِنْ لَّمْ تَفْعَلُوا فَأْذَنُوا بِحَرْبٍ مِنَ اللَّهِ وَرَسُولِهِ وَإِنْ تُبْتَلُوا فَلَكُمْ زُجُجٌ أَمْوَالِكُمْ لَا تَظْلِمُونَ وَلَا تُظْلَمُونَ

SECTION 39

Contracts and Evidence

282. Contracts to be put down in writing and witnesses procured. 283. Security may be taken when the debtor cannot be trusted.

282 O you who believe! when you deal with each other in contracting a debt for a fixed time, then write it prosperity of a nation or of humanity in general. There may also be observed a prophetic reference to the general tendency in the growth of civilization to lessening rates of interest, so much so that usurious dealings, in the proper sense of the word, are almost becoming extinct, while the tendency for public charity or personal sacrifice in the interests of a community, or even humanity in general, is daily gaining ground.

368 The balance of interest which may be due at the time when the prohibition was made known must be given up.

369 Going directly against the commandments of Allah is herein described as a war with Allah and His Apostle; and from this we may draw the conclusion that interest received on deposits in banks may be given away for the propagation of Islam, for this is really a war against the enemies of Islam.

370 The meaning is that the debtor shall not be made to pay more than the sum lent.

371 This indicates the kind of sympathy Islam demands a man shall show to other men. The poor man is not to be prosecuted and thrown into prison, but payment must be postponed till the debtor is able to pay, or, better still, the whole may be remitted.

down;³⁷² and let a scribe write it down between you with fairness; and the scribe should not refuse to write as Allah has taught him, so he should write; and let him who owes the debt dictate, and he should be careful of (his duty to) Allah, his Lord, and not diminish any thing from it; but if he who owes the debt is unsound in understanding, or weak, or (if) he is not able to dictate himself, let his guardian dictate with fairness,³⁷³ and call in to witness from among your men two witnesses; but if there are not two men, then one man and two women³⁷⁴ from among those whom you choose to be witnesses, so that if one of the two errs, the second of the two may remind the other;³⁷⁵ and the witnesses

372 The subject of usury, which is connected with the lending and borrowing of money and trading in general, brings us to the subject of contracts. If Islam enjoins charitableness and prohibits usury, it requires at the same time that the greatest precautions must be taken for safeguarding property rights. A noteworthy thing about this is that the Arabs were quite an ignorant people, among whom writing was very rare, so much so that they took a pride in being called ummi, or unlearned people. Yet these very Arabs are now required to put down all their transactions, great or small, in writing, except in hand-to-hand dealings. Strange to say, this injunction was given at a time when Muslim society was itself in danger of being swept away. This shows that the Qur-án was not the word of the Prophet, but of the Almighty Being who knew that the Muslims must soon become a great nation, and that therefore they would need all those instructions of which a well-developed civilized society stands in need.

373 These words form the basis of the guardian and ward law, as they point out when a guardian may be appointed for one who is not able to manage his own property. The word which I have translated as weak really signifies one too young (i.e. a minor) or too old (Bd) Thus a guardian may be appointed not only when the owner is a minor, but also when his understanding is not sound enough to be entrusted with the management of his property.

374 The home is the proper sphere of the woman; as, owing to her domestic responsibilities, she appears less in public, she should not be much dragged into courts of justice.

375 The personal pronoun humá may refer either to the testimony of the two witnesses or the two women.

The Holy Qur-án does not say that no case should be decided except on the testimony of two witnesses, but requires ordinarily the calling in of two witnesses at the time of the transaction, so that the deficiency of one may be rectified by the other. The same reason holds good for calling in two women in the place of a male witness, because ordinarily the sphere of the woman's transactions being the home, she takes very little part in the transaction of outside affairs, and is also more likely to lose her mental balance under the severe test of cross-examination than a man, hence, the deficiency in her evidence is required to be made up by the evidence of another woman.

should not refuse when they are summoned; and be not averse to writing it (whether it is) small or large, with the time of its falling due; this is more equitable in the sight of Allah and assures greater accuracy in testimony, and the nearest (way) that you may not entertain doubts (afterwards), except when it is ready merchandise which you give and take among yourselves from hand to hand, then there is no blame on you in not writing it down; and have witnesses when you barter with one another, and let no harm be done to the scribe or to the witness;³⁷⁶ and if you do (it), then surely it will be a transgression in you, and be careful of (your duty to) Allah, and Allah teaches you, and Allah knows all things.

283 And if you are upon a journey and you do not find a scribe, then (there may be) a security taken into possession;³⁷⁷ but if one of you trusts another, then he who is trusted should deliver his trust, and let him be careful (of his duty to) Allah, his Lord; and do not conceal testimony, and whoever conceals it, his heart is surely sinful; and Allah knows what you do.

376 They must not be made to suffer loss in their own business. In other words, their convenience must be kept in view, and they should be paid.

377 This does not mean that a security cannot be taken in any other case. On the other hand, the words that follow show that security may be taken when the lender does not trust the debtor.

It further shows that advantage can be derived by the lender from the movable or immovable property which has been given into his possession as a security for the debt. Thus land mortgaged for a debt may be cultivated, or house-property may be rented or used.

SECTION 40

The Muslims shall be made Victorious

284. Kingdom and sovereignty belongs to Allah. 285. The broadness of Muslim faith. 286. Prayer for Divine help.

284 Whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth is Allah's; and whether you manifest what is in your minds or hide it, Allah will call you to account according to it; then He will forgive whom He pleases and chastise whom He pleases, and Allah has power over all things.³⁷⁸

285 The apostle believes in what has been revealed to him from his Lord, and (so do) the believers; they all believe in Allah and His angels and His books and His apostles: We make no difference between any of His apostles;³⁷⁹ and they say: We hear and obey, our Lord! Thy forgiveness (do we crave), and to Thee is the eventual course.

286 Allah does not impose upon any soul a duty but to the extent of its ability; for it is (the benefit of) what it has earned, and upon it (the evil of) what it has wrought: Our

اَطَعْنَا غُفْرٰنَكَ رَبَّنَا اِلَيْكَ الْمَصِيْرُ
لَا يُكَلِّفُ اللّٰهُ نَفْسًا اِلَّا وُسْعَهَا
لَهَا مَا كَسَبَتْ وَعَلَيْهَا مَا اكْتَسَبَتْ ۗ

378 This verse has generally been misunderstood, insomuch that some commentators think it to have been abrogated by the opening words of v. 286, but this assertion is rejected by more learned commentators (Rz). يَحَاسِبُكُمْ بِهِ اللّٰهُ does not signify "Allah will call you to account for it," but that "He will call you to account according to it," so that he who hides (i.e. keeps under control) his evil inclinations and he who manifests (i.e. gives vent to them) shall not be dealt with in the same manner, but according to their deserts. Almost the same statement is contained in 3: 28, where it is said: "Say, whether you hide what is in your breasts or manifest it, Allah knows it." Evil thoughts are not unpunishable; but evil inclinations which a man keeps suppressed, and which therefore gradually disappear, cannot be included in the category of evil thoughts; it is these that are meant here.

It may be added that the Arabic phrase for he called him to account for it is حَاسِبُهُ عَلَيْهِ (TA), whereas the form adopted here is حَاسِبُهُ بِهِ.

The significance conveyed by the verse is that since kingdom or sovereignty belongs to Allah, He will grant it to a people whom He considers fit for the trust, and thus there is a prophetic allusion to the conquests of Islam.

Lord! do not punish us if we forget or make a mistake; our Lord! do not lay on us a burden as Thou didst lay on those before us; our Lord! do not impose upon us that which we have not the strength to bear; and pardon us and grant us protection* and have mercy on us, Thou art our Patron, so help us against the unbelieving people.³⁸⁰

379 The breadth of the Muslim faith, which has been dealt with in several portions of this chapter, is again mentioned in reference to the triumph of the Muslims, for even if the Muslims were triumphant their religion could not triumph over other religions unless established on very broad principles which should commend themselves to all reasonable persons. The triumph of the Muslim religion, it is hinted, would not be due to political supremacy, but to the excellence and breadth of its principles. Hence, even in these days of Muslim political decadence, Islam is making a rapid conquest among their very rulers. This is no doubt due to the breadth of its principles.

380 What a spirit of humility does the Holy Word breathe even in the hour of triumph! The aspiration of the soul to be led to the promised victory is still subjected to the holier yearnings.

The end of the chapter shows that the triumph of Islam is its real object, and this is plainly outlined in the opening and closing sections of the chapter.

CHAPTER III
THE FAMILY OF AMRAN

Title and subject-matter.

THE name of this chapter is taken from the mention of 'Imran's family in verse 32. The 'Imrân to whom reference is made is the same as Amran, the father of Moses and Aaron, and as this chapter deals with the departure of prophethood from the Mosaic dispensation, the title is most suitable.

The chapter opens with a statement relating to the Divine origin of the Holy Qur-ân as well as the Torah and the Gospel, thus affording an illustration of what is said in 2:4 of "that which was revealed before you." It then gives a rule of interpretation, neglect of which has led to numerous errors in religious beliefs. This rule of interpretation, which must be borne in mind in interpreting all Divine books, is that every allegorical statement must be interpreted in such a manner that it may not contradict any of the clear principles laid down by Divine revelation. As the Christian religion is based really on the wrong interpretation of certain allegorical statements, the rule is appropriately laid down as a preliminary to a discussion of the Christian religion.

The preliminary remarks of the first section are followed in the second by an assertion of the Unity of Allah, which is laid down as the clear basis of all religions, and its ultimate triumph is predicted. The third section refers to the departure of the spiritual kingdom from the house of Israel, and the last members of that chosen race are mentioned in the fourth. Among these is Jesus, various misconceptions regarding whom necessitate rather a lengthy discussion in the two sections that follow. The seventh section continues the controversy with the Jews and Christians, while the eighth deals with their machinations to discredit Islam. The ninth speaks of the testimony of previous books and prophets to the truth of Islam, while the tenth mentions the ever-living testimony afforded by the Ka'ba, the centre of Islam. This is followed by an exhortation in the following section to the Muslims to remain united if they would achieve triumph, and in view of the coming conflicts they are told in the next to have guarded relations with the Jews, who, while outwardly friendly, were inwardly hostile to the Muslims. The incidents of the battle of Uhud, the causes of the misfortune experienced in it, and how triumph can be obtained are the points discussed from the thirteenth section to the end, with only a reference in the last section but one to the Jewish carping.

Connection.

The importance of the connection of this with the preceding chapter may be judged from the fact that taken together they are termed zahrāwān (meaning the two bright and shining ones). The two, in fact, may be treated as a single chapter, as each supplements and explains the other. The 2nd chapter opens with a controversy with the Jews, while the latter portion deals with the necessity of, and general injunctions relating to, fighting in the cause of truth and justice and in self-defence. The 3rd chapter opens with a controversy with the Christians, while its latter portion deals with the incidents relating to the battle of Uhud. A more apparent connection in the conclusion of the one and the beginning of the other is, however, to be found in the fact that whereas the 2nd chapter ends with a statement as to the cosmopolitan nature of the religion of Islam, requiring belief in all the prophets, this one opens with a statement quoting the Torah and the Gospel as an instance of the truth of previous revelation.

As the previous chapter deals at length with the Jews and their contentions, referring only briefly to the Christians, this deals mainly with the Christians, referring only briefly to the Jews.

In the same light may be taken the fact that that chapter deals particularly with the necessity to fight against an enemy who was bent upon the extirpation of Islam, while this deals with the events of one of the battles which the enemy waged with a view to injure Islam and in which he was considered to have obtained a certain measure of success.

Date of revelation.

The whole of this chapter was revealed at Medina, and it is generally supposed to be the second or the third in order in the Median revelation (Itq). The latter portion, from sec. 13 almost to the end, distinctly relates the incidents of the battle of Uhud, and therefore the third year of Hejira may be fixed as very probably the date of its revelation. But the first portion, especially that dealing with the birth and ministry of Jesus, is said to have been revealed on the occasion of the visit of a deputation of the Najran Christians which took place in the tenth year of the Hejira. The commentators generally consider the first sixty-two or the first eighty-three verses to have been revealed on that occasion, but probably only verse 60, which speaks of the Mubāhilah, an incident specially relating to the Najran deputation, was revealed so late, and the arguments dealing with the Christian religion in general were revealed at an earlier date, very probably in the third year of the Hejira. A consideration of the subject-matter of the chapter leads to the same conclusion. It may further be added here that to ascribe verses 26 and 27 to the Meccan revelation, as some Christian critics have done, shows an entire lack of knowledge of Islamic history.

The Qur-án and the previous Revelation, and the Rule of Interpretation

وَاللَّهُ عَزِيزٌ ذُو نَقَمٍ ۝

381 In consonance with its character as controverting Christian doctrines, this controversy being carried on to the 83rd verse, the chapter fitly opens with two attributes of the Divine Being, the Ever-living and the Self-subsisting by whom all things subsist, which deal a death-blow to the doctrine of the divinity of Jesus Christ, because birth and death did not entitle him to claim these attributes. The statement (there is) no god but He contains an ideal expression of the religion of Islam in four words. Thus, while the doctrine of the Unity of the Divine Being is dealt with at great length in the previous chapter, that doctrine finds a clear expression here. The whole of the religion of Islam is really contained in these four words, lā ilāha ill Allāh.

382 For the sake of simplicity I render bil-haqq as meaning with truth, but haqq primarily signifies suitableness to the requirements of wisdom, justice, right, truth, or fact; or to the exigencies of the case (Rgh, TA-LI). Hence the true sense of the phrase is that the Qur-án was revealed suitably to the requirements of wisdom and justice, and to the exigencies of the case; in other words, it was revealed at a time when revelation was sorely needed by humanity. This argument of its truth is one which even the most hostile critic is unable to refute. To say nothing of earlier religions, Christianity, which was then the latest phase of monotheism, was corrupt to the core. "The Christianity of the seventh century," says Muir, "was itself decrepit and corrupt. It was disabled by contending schisms, and had substituted the puerilities of superstition for the pure expansive faith of early ages" ("Life of Muhammad," intr., p. lxxxiii).

The commentators explain bil-haqq as signifying the pointing out of the right way in the differences which existed before it, or as giving a correct account of the past histories of the prophets, or as being true with respect to the promises and threats relating to the future, and thus making believers stick to the right path (Rz). Some commentators explain it as meaning with arguments and proofs (AH).

Ar. noṭ.

4 Allah—surely nothing is hidden from Him in the earth or in the heaven.

5 He it is who shapes you in the wombs as He likes; there is no god but He, the Mighty, the Wise.

إِنَّ اللَّهَ لَا يَخْفَىٰ عَلَيْهِ شَيْءٌ فِي الْأَرْضِ وَلَا فِي السَّمَاءِ
هُوَ الَّذِي يَصَوِّرُكُمْ فِي الْأَرْحَامِ كَيْفَ يَشَاءُ ۚ لَآ إِلَهَ إِلَّا هُوَ الْعَزِيزُ الْحَكِيمُ

383 In the whole of the previous chapter the Taurât and the Injil, i.e. the Torah and the Gospel, are not mentioned by name, though frequently referred to, specially the former, as that which is with you. Taurât is the name given to the books of Moses, or the Pentateuch, and hence its correct rendering is the Hebrew word Torah. The Taurât does not signify the Old Testament, because the latter is the name of the whole collection of the books of the Israelite prophets, and includes the Taurât, the Zabûr, and other books. Torah in the Hebrew literature signifies the revealed will of God. Some commentators trace the word Taurât to the root wary, as in دری الزند meaning lighting, and thus consider its literal meaning to be light. The word kitâb conveys, however, a more general significance, and signifies sometimes the Old Testament and sometimes the Bible.

The word Injil does not signify, as supposed by Muir and others, the New Testament. According to the Holy Qur-ân no prophet to whom any book should have been revealed appeared among the Israelites (or among the followers of Christ) after the death of Jesus Christ, who, being the last of the Israelite prophets, was granted a revelation called the Injil, which stands for the Evangeli or the Gospel, and signifies literally good tidings. The reason why Jesus' revelation was called Gospel, or good tidings, is that it gave the glad news of the advent of the last of the prophets, which is variously described in Jesus' metaphorical language as the advent of the kingdom of God (Mark 1:15), the coming of the Lord (Matt. 21:40), the appearance of the Comforter (John 14:16), or the spirit of Truth (John 14:17), etc. Not only are the Acts, the Epistles, and the Book of Revelation not recognized by the Qur-ân as parts of Injil, or the Gospel, but it does not even recognize the Gospels according to Matthew, etc., as the Injil which was revealed to Jesus Christ, though the current Gospels might contain fragments of the original teaching. This view of the Gospel as taken by the Qur-ân is now admitted to be the correct one, as all criticism points to some original of the synoptics which is now entirely lost. The Qur-ân nowhere suggests that the original Injil, the revelation of Jesus Christ, existed at the time of the Holy Prophet.

384 The Torah and the Gospel, even as they now exist, contain numerous prophecies fulfilled in the advent of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, and therefore they are spoken of as being a guidance for men. But the whole sentence "And He revealed the Torah and the Gospel aforetime" may be parenthetical, and thus the words a guidance for the people may only qualify the Book revealed to the Holy Prophet.

385 For an explanation of the word furqân see foot-note 85. The Furqân is really a proof of the truth of the revelation, and the Jews and the Christians are warned that they should not be hasty in rejecting the truth. As the Furqân or Distinction in the case of the Holy Prophet was afforded by the battle of Badr, this event is referred to in verse 12 as a prelude to the actual controversy. Some commentators think that h'urqân is another name for the Holy Qur-ân, for the Holy Qur-ân is spoken of as having been revealed to distinguish truth from falsehood (Rz).

386 Intiqâm is derived from nîqmat, which, according to all authorities, means the retribution of one who is guilty (Rgh, TA). It conveys the idea of avenging but not of revenging, انتقمته منه signifying I inflicted penal retribution on him for that which he had done, or I punished him (LL). Rz interprets it similarly. Hence, ذو انتقام as an attribute of the Divine Being, signifies the inflicter of retribution.

Ar. thes.

6 He it is who has revealed the Book to you: some of its verses are decisive, they are the basis of the Book, and others are allegorical;³⁸⁷ then as for those in whose hearts there is perversity, they follow the part of it which is allegorical, seeking to mislead, and seeking to give it (their own) interpretation.³⁸⁸ but none knows its interpretation except Allah, and those who are firmly rooted in knowledge say: We believe in it, it is all from our Lord;³⁸⁹ and none do mind except those having understanding.

الْأَلْبَابِ

387 The verses of the Holy Book are here stated to be partly muhkam (decisive) and partly mutashābih (allegorical), whereas in 11 : 1 the Holy Qur-ān is spoken of as a Book whose verses are made decisive, and in 39 : 23 it is called kitāban mutashābihan. A little consideration will show that not only is there no discrepancy in the three statements, but they actually explain each other. Literally, muhkam (from hakama, meaning he prevented, whence ahkama, i.e. he made a thing firm or stable), is that of which the meaning is secured from change and alteration, and mutashābih (from shib-h, meaning likeness or resemblance) is that which is consimilar or conformable in its various parts, and mutashābihāt are therefore things like or resembling one another, hence susceptible of different interpretations (LL). Therefore when it is stated that the whole of the Book is muhkam, the meaning is that all its verses are decisive, and when the Qur-ān is called mutashābih (39 : 23), the meaning is that the whole of it is conformable in its various parts; while in the verse under discussion is laid down the important principle how verses susceptible of different interpretations may be interpreted so that a decisive significance may be attached to them. The Qur-ān, we are here told, establishes certain principles in clear words which are to be taken as the basis, while there are statements made in allegorical words or susceptible of different meanings, the interpretation of which must be in consonance with the other parts and the spirit of the Book. In fact, this is true of every writing. When a certain law is laid down in a book in unmistakable words, any statement carrying a doubtful significance or one which is apparently opposed to the law so laid down must be interpreted subject to the principle enunciated. The subject is very appropriately dealt with here as a prelude to a controversy with the Christians, who attribute divinity to Jesus and uphold the doctrine of atonement by blood on the basis of certain ambiguous words or allegorical statements, without heeding the fundamental principles established by the earlier prophets. This attitude, which seeks to give to ambiguous and allegorical words a significance opposed to the general principles of the book it is meant to interpret, is the chief reason of most of the erroneous beliefs prevailing in the world. The same error lies at the root of some miraculous feats attributed to Jesus Christ by the Muslims themselves.

388 The fitnah is the misleading of the people (TA-LL), or the sowing of dissension, or difference of opinion (Q-LL), by giving to one part an interpretation which is falsified by another. Ta'wil (from awl, meaning to return) is the final sequel or the end of a thing, or the interpretation of what is ambiguous or allegorical, such as the interpretation of dreams, etc. Kf explains ta'wila-hu here as meaning the interpretation which they desire, and this, according to AH, is the significance; hence the addition of their own within brackets;

The Unity of Allah as the Clear Basis of all Religions and its Ultimate Triumph

9-11. Prophecy of the vanquishment of the unbelievers. 12. A sign in the battle of Badr. 13-16. Unity is the great goal of life. 17. It is the grand basis of all religions. 18, 19. Hence Islam is the only true religion.

they do not care to seek the real interpretation, which can only be found by referring to the principles laid down elsewhere. But the words may also signify their giving an interpretation to an ambiguous verse alone, i.e. without considering it in conjunction with other consimilar verses or the principles laid down elsewhere.

389 These words afford a clue to the right mode of interpretation. The words it is all from our Lord signify that there is no disagreement between the various portions of the Holy Book, because the word of the all-knowing Lord cannot be self-contradictory. Hence, the rule of interpretation which they follow is that they refer passages which are susceptible of various interpretations to those whose meaning is obvious or to consimilar passages, and subject particular statements to general principles, and thus reading various passages in the light of each other, discover the true significance of ambiguous passages.

390 There seems to be a reference here to the gathering of the hostile forces in the battles and to Allah's promise to grant victory to the faithful. The verses that follow leave no doubt; see particularly verse 11.

391 Verses 9-11 contain a clear prophecy of the vanquishment of the opponents of the Holy Prophet. This prophecy is no doubt mentioned here to serve as a proof of the truth of the Holy Prophet. Though the Quraish had suffered a crushing defeat in the battle of Badr, they could yet muster heavy forces against the Muslims, who were yet small in numbers, and they had sworn to take their revenge upon them. It should be borne in mind that the Muslims were still too weak for an attack on their opponents, and

11 Say to those who disbelieve: You shall be vanquished, and driven together to hell; and evil is the resting-place.³⁹⁴

12 Indeed there was a sign for you in the two hosts (which) met together in encounter; one party fighting in the way of Allah and the other unbelieving, whom they saw twice as many as themselves with the sight of the eye,³⁹⁵ and Allah strengthens with His aid whom He pleases; most surely there is a lesson in this for those who have sight.

قُلْ لِلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا سَعْيُهُمْ وَ

كَافِرَةٌ يَرَوْنَهُمْ مِّثْلَ نَوْمِ الْعَيْنِ
وَاللَّهُ يُؤَيِّدُ بَصْرَهُ مَنْ يَشَاءُ إِنَّ فِي ذَلِكَ لَعِبْرَةً لِّأُولِي الْأَبْصَارِ

a clear prediction of the vanquishment of their opponents was therefore quite opposed to any inference that could be drawn from the comparative strength of the two parties.

392 Da'b signifies striving hard or labouring (from da'aba, meaning he strove or exerted himself) (T, S, LL). Zj and Asamm consider this to be the significance here (Rz) instead of manner or wont, which interpretation is adopted by other commentators. The former interpretation not only agrees with the original significance of the word, but also suits the context. The unbelievers are told that their striving against the Holy Prophet with their wealth and their men will end in their own destruction, as the striving of the people of Pharaoh against Moses brought about their destruction.

393 The word zamb is derived from zanaba, meaning he followed his tail. Rgh says: Zamb is originally the taking the tail of a thing, and it is applied to every act of which the consequence is disagreeable or unwholesome. According to LL, zamb means a sin, a crime, a fault, a transgression, or an act of disobedience. It is said to differ from izm in being either intentional or committed through inadvertence, whereas izm is particularly intentional (Kull-LL). It will thus be seen that zamb is a word which carries a wide significance, and is applicable to all shortcomings resulting from inattention, incapacity, or perversity, and even to defects or imperfections of which the result may be disagreeable. The use of this word in the Holy Qur-án, where it is applied to all shades of shortcomings, from the grossest transgressions of the wicked to those defects and imperfections of which even the most perfect mortal cannot be free, is quite in accordance with the lexicons. I have therefore adopted the word fault as its equivalent, for it somewhat approaches the word zamb in the breadth of its significance.

394 This is one of the passages in which the punishment of this life, which is vanquishment, is spoken of in the same breath with the punishment of the hereafter, which is hell. It is noteworthy that the vanquishment of the opponents of the Holy Prophet, though hinted at frequently in the foregoing chapter, was not mentioned in such clear and definite words as in this verse.

395 The reference here is to the battle of Badr. The meaning is that the Muslims saw the unbelievers to be twice as many as themselves. The statement does not contradict that made in 8: 44: "And when He showed them to you, when you met, as few in your eyes, and He made you to appear little in their eyes." The actual strength of the two parties was: unbelievers about 1,000, Muslims 313. The statement made in this verse is that the Muslims saw the unbelievers to be twice as many as themselves, i.e. about 600. Therefore they were still fewer in the eyes of the Muslims as compared with their actual strength, and this is what is alleged in 8: 44. As to why they were shown to the Muslims to be twice as many as themselves, 8: 66 helps us to understand: "If there are a hundred patient ones of you, they shall overcome two hundred, and if there are a thousand, they shall overcome two thousand." And as the Divine purpose was to bring about an encounter, the actual strength of the hostile force was not made known to the Muslims, lest the great disparity in numbers should make them lose heart. The part of the enemy not seen by the Muslims was behind a hillock. The battle of Badr was a sign of the truth of the Prophet, not only because of the prophecies of victory contained in the Qur-ān, which were fulfilled notwithstanding the great strength, efficiency, and equipment of the enemy as compared with the weakness, inexperience, and utter want of armour and equipment of the Muslims, but also because of the clear prophecy in Isaiah, where, after speaking of a future scene in the land of Arabia (Isa. 21 : 13), the prophet goes on to say: "The inhabitants of the land of Tema brought water to him that was thirsty, they prevented with their bread him that fled. For they fled from the swords, from the drawn sword and from the bent bow, and from the grievousness of war. For thus hath the Lord said unto me, Within a year, according to the years of an hireling, and all the glory of Kedar shall fail. And the residue of the number of archers, the mighty men of the children of Kedar, shall be diminished" (Isa. 21 : 14-17). Kedar was the son of Ishmael (Gen. 25 : 13), and the word is used freely in the Bible for the Arab tribe that sprang from him (Ps. 120 : 5; Song 1 : 5; Isa. 42 : 11, 60 : 7, etc.). There is only one person in history whose flight has become a memorable fact as the Era of Flight (the Hejira). It was Muhammad (on whom be peace), who, attended by but one faithful companion, fled from the drawn swords of the guard that surrounded his house, and it was after one year from his Flight that the glory of Kedar departed in the battle of Badr, which took place in the second year of Hejira. The Jews and the Christians are therefore particularly enjoined to witness this sight, which could help them in understanding the Prophet rightly because of the fulfilment of prophecies in the Qur-ān and the Bible. The second year after the Flight, from which counts the Muslim era, had not yet come to a close when the power of Kedar was broken at Badr. The battle of Badr was also a sign to the Jews and the Christians, because it indicated that their fate would be the same as that of the idolaters if they joined them, for "whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken, but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder" (Matt. 21 : 44).

396 The word desire here stands for the object of longing, as the original shahawāt stands for the things desired (تَشَوُّعٌ). These desired things are then enumerated.

397 This verse and the one that follows contrast the yearnings of the ungodly with those of the faithful. We are here told that though the enjoyments of this life have their attractions, yet the desire to be with Allah is the goal which the true believer sets before himself.

15 Those who say: Our Lord! surely we believe, therefore forgive us our faults and keep us from the chastisement of the fire;

16 The patient, and the truthful, and the obedient, and those who spend (benevolently) and those who ask forgiveness in the morning times.

17 Allah bears witness that there is no god but He, and (so do) the angels and those possessed of knowledge,³⁹⁸ being maintainer of justice;³⁹⁹ there is no god but He, the Mighty, the Wise.

18 Surely the (true) religion with Allah is Islam,⁴⁰⁰ and those to whom the Book had been given did not show opposition but after knowledge had come to them, out of envy among themselves; and whoever disbelieves in the communications of Allah—then surely Allah is quick in reckoning.

398 Nature, which is the handiwork of Allah, bears witness to His Unity, and the angels bear witness by the prophecies of which they are the bearers to the prophets, or by their working within man, whose nature bears testimony to Divine Unity; and those who have a true knowledge of the holy scriptures of any religion bear undoubted testimony to the great truth of the Unity of Allah. The Unity of Allah is, in fact, the common principle which is recognized by all religions. Thus the whole creation, the nature of man, and the broad and common principles of all religions are all at one in declaring the Divine Unity, whereas the Trinity of the Christian faith is but a solitary doctrine which does not find any support either in physical nature, the nature of man, or in the religion of humanity.

399 The words being maintainer of justice may qualify Allah as being the true maintainer of justice. But the other meaning of the Arabic phrase is maintaining justice, and considering what is said in the next verse as to the injustice of those to whom knowledge had been given, it is more likely that the words qualify only those possessed of knowledge, the meaning being that the possessors of knowledge, to whatever religion they may belong, bear witness to the grand truth of Divine Unity if they maintain justice in bearing witness. The truth of these words shines the more clearly when we find the advanced Christian thinkers of to-day bearing witness to the truth of Divine Unity.

400 Al-Islām (lit., submission), as the name of the religion preached by the Prophet, does not occur in the last chapter, although derivatives of it are frequently used, as in 2:112, etc.; an explanation of the word has, however, been already given in footnote 156. It should also be borne in mind that according to the Holy Qur-ān, Islām was the religion of all the prophets: it is particularly mentioned as the religion of Abraham several times, and on one occasion the Israelite prophets who followed Moses are spoken of as the prophets who were Muslims (lit., submitted). Not only is Islam the religion of every prophet, but, according to the Holy Qur-ān, it is also the natural religion of man, as in 19 But if they dispute with you, say: I have submitted myself entirely to Allah and (so) every one who follows me; and say to those who have been given the Book and the unlearned people: Do you submit yourselves?⁴⁰¹ So if they submit, then indeed they follow the right way; and if they turn back, then upon you is only the delivery of the message and Allah sees the servants.

The Kingdom of God must depart from the House of Israel

20-24. The opponents of Islam shall find themselves helpless. 25, 26. A dead nation shall be raised to life and granted honour and kingdom. 27. Muslims not to look for help from their enemies. 28, 29. Good and evil must be followed by their respective consequences.

20 Surely (as for) those who disbelieve in the communications of Allah and slay the prophets unjustly and slay those among men who enjoin justice, announce to them a painful chastisement.⁴⁰²

فَبَشِّرْهُمْ بِعَذَابٍ أَلِيمٍ ۝

30 : 30 it is described as being "the nature made by Allah in which He has made men." This is corroborated by a saying of the Holy Prophet: "Every child is born in Islam: it is his parents that make him a Jew or a Christian."

The word Islam does not only signify submission, it also signifies entering into peace, from aslama, meaning he entered into peace (Rz). In fact, the idea of peace is the dominant idea in Islam, and the goal to which Islam leads is called the abode of peace (10 : 25).

401 By unlearned people are meant the Arabs (see foot-note 117). The Arabs, as well as the Jews and the Christians, are specially addressed here, and invited to accept the religion of Islam, because it is shown to be based on the broad principles of Abraham's religion, and Abraham was accepted as a prophet as well by the Jews and the Christians as the Arabs. Hence the words aslamtum and aslamu are used here, being the very words used to signify the religion of Abraham. See 2 : 128, 131. Since all parties were agreed as to the righteousness of Abraham, the broad principles of his religion alone could serve as the basis of an understanding among the four parties, the Jews, the Christians, the idolatrous Arabs, and the followers of the Holy Prophet. Sec. 7 deals with this subject at length.

402 Bashshara-hu signifies originally he announced to him an event which produced a change in the complexion (Rz); consequently it is more often used to signify the announcement of good news, but, as here, it is used in its original sense several times in the Holy Qur-ān, in 9 : 34 and 84 : 24. The Jews are specially mentioned as a people who were guilty of slaying prophets (2 : 61), but this reference seems to point to their plans for killing the Holy Prophet, which were, however, all frustrated.

21 Those are they whose works shall become null in this world as well as the hereafter, and they shall have no helpers.⁴⁰³

Ar. Hast thou.

22 Have you not considered those who are given a portion of the Book?⁴⁰⁴ They are invited to the Book of Allah that it might decide between them, then a part of them turn back and they withdraw.⁴⁰⁵

* 118.

23 This is because they say: The fire shall not touch us but for a few days;* and what they have forged deceives them in the matter of their religion.

24 Then how will it be when We shall gather them together on a day about which there is no doubt, and every soul shall be fully paid what it has earned, and they shall not be dealt with unjustly?

25 Say: O Allah, Master of the kingdom! Thou givest the kingdom to whomsoever Thou pleassest and takest away the kingdom from whomsoever Thou pleassest, and Thou exaltest whom Thou pleassest and abasest whom Thou pleassest; in Thine hand is the good; surely, Thou hast power over all things.

تَشَاءُ ۚ مِثْلُ الْحَزِيرِ ۖ إِنَّكَ عَلَى
كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ

403 The meaning is that all their attempts against the Prophet shall be fruitless, and they themselves shall be reduced to a condition of helplessness. And thus it was.

404 The Jews are spoken of as being given only a portion of the Book, because much of it was lost long before this period; they then had but a portion with them.

405 Some commentators think that this decision was given in a case of adultery; but there is nothing in the Qur-án warranting such a limitation. It is, of course, remarkable, as Sale has noticed, that while the law of Moses as now preserved in Lev. 20 : 10 mentions simply putting to death as the punishment for adultery, John 8 : 5 gives us to understand that stoning to death was the real punishment, and the Holy Prophet is also said to have stated stoning to be the punishment prescribed for adultery by the Jewish law, though the rabbis refused to accept the judgment of their own law. It seems to be a clear instance of the corruption of the Book.

What is meant here has no reference to a particular criminal case, but to the broad principles of religion regarding which the Jews, or the Jews and the Christians, differed. The Book of Allah is the Holy Qur-án, which had given the true judgment, and the truth of which was even then manifest from the scattered prophecies met with in the pages of the Bible.

26 Thou makest the night to pass into the day and Thou makest the day to pass into the night, and Thou bringest forth the living from the dead and Thou bringest forth the dead from the living, and Thou givest sustenance to whom Thou pleasest without measure.⁴⁰⁶

27 Let not the believers take the unbelievers for friends rather than believers;⁴⁰⁷ and whoever does this, he shall have nothing of (the guardianship of) Allah, but you should guard yourselves against them, guarding carefully;⁴⁰⁸ and Allah makes you cautious of (retribution from) Himself^{408a}; and to Allah is the eventual coming.

نَفْسَهُ ۚ وَإِلَى اللَّهِ الْمَصِيرُ ۝

406 This and the previous verse apparently refer to the fact that kingdom and honour shall be given now to another nation, whose night shall be made to pass into a day of triumph. It is on account of having failed to grasp their real significance that Rodwell thinks that these verses are misplaced here, "interrupting as they do the connection of the preceding and subsequent verses." The connection is clear. The Jews had already been warned by Jesus that "the kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof" (Matt. 21: 43). A living nation of Muslims was brought forth from among the dead Arabs, and the living nation of Israelites was represented now by a people who were spiritually dead. Compare 4: 54, where the Holy Qur-ān says: "But surely We have given to Abraham's children the Book and the wisdom, and We have given them a grand kingdom." A reference to that very kingdom is contained in verse 25. The word mulk (kingdom) in Arabic is not limited to temporal rule (Rz).

407 The Muslims, being in a state of war with the unbelievers, were forbidden to look to their enemies to guard their interests or for help of any kind. The clear statement made in 60: 8, 9 settles the point beyond all doubt: "Allah does not forbid you respecting those who have not made war against you on account of your religion and have not driven you forth from your homes, that you show them kindness and deal with them justly. Allah only forbids you respecting those who made war upon you on account of your religion and drove you forth from your homes and backed up (others) in your expulsion, that you make friends with them." Auliya, which I translate as friends here, is the plural of wali, which is derived from a root meaning he held command or had charge of or superintended a thing, and it accordingly means the manager of a thing or of the affairs of another, and the guardian or maintainer of an orphan, and the guardian of a woman who gives her away in marriage. It also means the executor or heir of a deceased person (I.L.). According to Rgh, it indicates nearness in respect of place, relation, and religion, and in respect of friendship and help and belief, etc. The word therefore includes all relations of nearness. A man may also be said to be wali-Ullah, as meaning one near to Allah or a friend of Allah. The significance of the word therefore seems to be the close and intimate relationship in which one's interests are entrusted to another.

408 This is a new sentence. For this meaning of illā, when it is used as marking the beginning of a statement cut off from the first, see foot-note 58. It is as if it were said: Do not look to them for guarding your interests, rather guard yourselves against them.

408a TA explains nafs here as meaning 'uqūbah, i.e. retribution. In fact, retribution of evil is a requirement of Divine nature. Or the meaning is that Allah warns you against disobedience to Himself.

Ar. breasis.

28 Say: Whether you hide what is in your hearts or manifest it, Allah knows it, and He knows whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth, and Allah has power over all things.

29 On the day that every soul shall find present what it has done of good and what it has done of evil, it shall wish that between it and that (evil) there were a long duration of time; and Allah makes you to be cautious of (retribution from) Himself*; and Allah is Compassionate to the servants.

409 The love of Allah is the great goal of life to which Islam leads. Compare John 14: 15, 16: "If ye love me, keep my commandments. And I will pray the Father and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever"; and John 15: 10: "If you keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love." This Comforter appeared in the person of the Holy Prophet, whom the Jews and the Christians should therefore have followed. Elsewhere (5: 18) the Jews and the Christians are mentioned as calling themselves "the children of Allah and His beloved ones"; and so they are here told that they could only become the beloved ones of Allah by following the Holy Prophet.

410 The 'Imrān of the Holy Qur-ān is the same as the Amran of the Bible. The descendants of Amran are Moses and Aaron. Moses became the founder of the Israelite law and Aaron the head of the Israelite priesthood. The last of this race were John and Jesus, and their parents are first spoken of here, viz. Zacharias and Mary.

411 Noah was a descendant of Adam, Abraham a descendant of Noah, and Amran and 34 When a woman of Amran⁴¹² said: My Lord! surely I vow to Thee what is in my womb, to be devoted (to Thy service); accept therefore from me, surely Thou art the Hearing, the Knowing.

35 So when she brought it forth, she said: My Lord! surely I have brought it forth a female—and Allah knew best what she brought forth⁴¹³—and the male is not like the female, and I have named it Mary, and I commend her and her offspring into Thy protection from the accursed devil.⁴¹⁴ his descendants were the offspring of the descendants of Abraham, not a separate race. The reason for mentioning them separately is twofold: (1) the immediate descendants of Amran became the founders of a great law in Israel, and the Israelite nation had, in fact, received a new birth with them, and (2) it was with the descendants of Amran, viz. John and Jesus, that the Mosaic dispensation came to an end.

412 Imra'at means a woman and also a wife. I take امرأة عمران as meaning a woman of the family of Amran. It should be borne in mind that the name of a great ancestor is frequently used to indicate the nation which has sprung from him. Thus Kedar stands for the Ishmaelites and Israel for the Israelites. The interpretation of the words as a woman of the tribe of Amran is in perfect accord with what is said in the previous verse as to the election of the descendants of Amran. The general statement is followed by a particular instance relating to one of the descendants of Amran: the second instance of choice related here also relates to one of the descendants of Amran, viz. John the Baptist, who was also of "priestly descent through both parents" (Bib. Dic., Cambridge University Press). Though we know very little regarding the parentage of Mary, yet the fact that she was, according to the only tradition that we have about her, devoted to the Temple from three to twelve years of age, shows clearly that she belonged to the priestly class. It is for this reason that she is elsewhere called the sister of Aaron and not a sister of Moses, for priesthood was an exclusive prerogative of the descendants of Aaron. In the Semitic languages the words ab (father), umm (mother), akh (brother), and ukht (sister) are used broadly, and do not necessarily imply the very close relations of real mother, father, brother, and sister. Thus we have a saying of the Holy Prophet in which he speaks of himself as the prayer of my father Abraham. Jesus was also addressed as "son of David." There is further a very strong indication in the use of اخت هارون or the sister of Aaron, in 19:28, that the reference in both places is to the old ancestors. See further foot-note 1542. The only other possible conclusion for the use of ancestral names is that the Holy Qur-án is guilty of anachronism, that it considers Mary the sister of Moses to be the same woman as Mary the mother of Jesus, and therefore calls her the sister of Aaron, and calls her father Amran, a conclusion so absurd on the face of it that no one not blinded by prejudice could bring this charge against the Qur-án. A number of passages may be cited showing that the Holy Qur-án speaks of Moses and Jesus as two prophets who were separated from each other by many generations.

36 So her Lord accepted her with a good acceptance and made her grow up a good growing, and gave her into the charge of Zacharias; whenever Zacharias entered the sanctuary to (see) her, he found with her food. He said: O Mary! whence comes this to you? She said: It is from Allah; surely Allah gives to whom He pleases without measure.⁴¹⁵

37 There did Zacharias pray to his Lord; he said: My Lord! grant me from Thee good offspring; surely Thou art the Hearer of prayer.⁴¹⁶

38 Then the angels called to him as he stood praying in the sanctuary: That Allah gives you the good news of John,⁴¹⁷ verifying a word from Allah,⁴¹⁸ and honourable and chaste and a prophet from among the good ones.

مُصَدِّقًا لِكَلِمَةٍ مِنَ اللَّهِ وَسَيِّدًا
وَاحْصُورًا وَنَبِيًّا مِنَ الصَّالِحِينَ

413 The words and Allah knew best what she brought forth are parenthetical. She had vowed the child to be devoted to the service of the Temple, but a female could not do the priestly work.

414 Rajim is derived from the root rajm, meaning the throwing or casting of stones, and also reviling, cursing, driving away, expelling, cutting off from friendly intercourse. It therefore signifies accursed or driven away from the Divine presence. This is what is implied here, and this is apparent from 38:78, where Satan is thus accosted: "And surely My curse is on you till the day of judgment." The other significance of rajim, i.e. one pelted with stones, is not applicable here.

It is noteworthy that Mary's mother while praying for Mary prays also for her offspring, which shows that when she dedicated her daughter to the Temple she had never an idea that she would remain a virgin all her life. On the other hand, she entertained the hope that Mary would become a wife and a mother.

415 Mary's reply to Zacharias' question, as to whence she got the things which she had, has been made the basis of a legend which does not find the least support from the words of the Holy Qur-án or any authentic saying of the Holy Prophet. The reply that she got sustenance from Allah is the reply of every devout person who believes that Allah is the sustainer of all, and that therefore all provision or sustenance comes from Him. The Holy Qur-án itself says: "And there is not a thing but with Us are the treasures of it, and We do not send it down but in a known measure" (15:21), where not only is it affirmed that the treasures of all things are with Allah, the same word 'inda' being used here, but it is further asserted that those things are sent down by Allah. Hence there is nothing extraordinary in the statement. She being attached to the Temple, the worshippers would naturally bring gifts to her, and as it was through Divine grace that she received these gifts, she said that it was Allah who gave her these things. At least one commentator holds the same opinion (Rz).

39 He said: My Lord! when⁴¹⁹ shall there be a son (born) to me, and old age has already come upon me, and my wife is barren? He said: Even thus does Allah what He pleases.

قَالَ رَبِّ اُنِّ يَكُوْنُ لِىْ غُلَمٌۭ قَدْ
بَلَغَنِى الْكِبَرُ وَافْرَاْنِىْ عَاقِرٌۭ قَالَ
كَذٰلِكَ اللّٰهُ يَفْعَلُ مَا يَشَآءُ ۝

416 The devoutness of Mary, notwithstanding the tenderness of her age, raised in Zacharias a yearning for such virtuous offspring.

417 The Arabic word is Yahyá (being from the root hayát, meaning life), meaning he shall live. The Qur-án elsewhere states that Zacharias prayed to God, saying, I fear my cousins after me, the fear being no doubt due to their leading unrighteous lives. Hence the significance underlying the name Yahyá was that he would not die in sin like his other relations. Rgh gives the same explanation: He gave him this name (Yahyá), because sin was not to bring about his death.

418 The promise given to Zacharias was a word from Allah, and John was the verifier of that word, because his birth brought about the fulfilment of the prophecy. A word from Allah, therefore, stands for a Divine prophecy. Somewhat similar to this explanation is the one given by Abú 'Ubaida, who interprets كلمة من الله as meaning a book from Allah, because "one says انشد فلان كلمة (literally, such a one recited a word), when you mean a lengthy poem" (Rz). The Qur-án itself never uses the word kalimah in the very restricted sense in which the grammarians take it, viz. a word assigned to convey a simple significance. On the other hand, its use in the Qur-án as meaning a prophecy is of frequent occurrence, as "there is no changing the words of Allah" (10: 64), or in "there is none to change the words of Allah" (6: 34), or again "And the word of your Lord has been accomplished truly and justly; there is none who can change His words" (6: 116), in all of which places, as the context clearly shows, Divine prophecies are meant. Similar instances are contained in 18: 27 and elsewhere.

One other significance of the word kalimah as used in the Holy Qur-án is the creation of God. Thus in 18: 109 we have, "If the sea were ink for the words of my Lord, the sea would surely be consumed before the words of my Lord are exhausted, though We were to bring the like of that (sea) to add thereto." A similar statement is made in 31: 27, and in both places it is clear that the words of the Lord signify His creation.

However, a comparison with 66: 12 makes it quite clear that kalimah in this verse as well as in verse 44 and in 4: 171 signifies prophecy. for in 66: 12, speaking of Mary, the Holy Qur-án says: "And she accepted the truth of the words of her Lord and His books, and she was of the obedient ones." Just as John is the verifier of a word from Allah, Mary is the verifier of the words of her Lord. As "the words of her Lord" do not mean Christ in the latter case, neither in the former do they mean Christ, and the opinion of the commentators that they do so must be rejected in the face of the clear evidence from the Holy Qur-án itself. The only meaning that can be given to kalimát in 66: 12 is the prophetic words of her Lord, i.e. the Divine inspiration which Mary received relating to the birth of a Messiah.

Rgh gives prominence to two significances, viz. either kalimah here signifies the expression of Divine Unity or the Book of Allah, the latter agreeing with Abú 'Ubaida's explanation as given above.

419 There is no disbelief on the part of Zacharias; his question is simply an expression of wonder as to when a son shall be born to him, for he had already reached a very old age and had no offspring.

40 He said: My Lord! appoint a sign for me. Said He: Your sign is that you should not speak to men for three days except by signs;⁴²⁰ and remember your Lord much and glorify Him in the evening and the morning.

420 The Qur-án does not say that Zacharias became dumb. According to it he was only commanded not to talk with men for three days. But he was commanded to remember Allah much during those three days, which he could not do if he had been struck mute. Rz accepts this as the correct explanation of the Quranic words. The Bible makes Zacharias mute during the whole period, from the time of the announcement of the birth of a son to its actual delivery, and that only for a question which, if it implied unbelief at all, was much milder than that of Mary; compare Luke 1: 20 and 1: 34.

421 By the "unseen" is not meant the past history of the prophets, which cannot properly be called unseen. It is something which is yet to happen that is really "unseen," and the reference is to the election of the Holy Prophet above all others, which is undoubtedly hinted at in the story of the election of Mary.

422 The commentators think the reference here is to the priests, who, it is supposed, contended with each other regarding Mary's charge and at last cast lots, and Zacharias thus had the charge. But compare 38: 69: "I had no knowledge of the exalted chiefs when they contended together," where the angels are spoken of as having contended at the election of the Holy Prophet; also the mention of the election of Adam as narrated in 2: 30, where the angels are spoken of as contending on that occasion. Of course, it is an allegorical contention, but the two references clearly show that the contention spoken of in this verse at the birth of a prophet is of the same nature. It should be noted that both in the previous and the subsequent verses there is no mention at all of Zacharias or of the priests, but angels are spoken of in both verses as addressing Mary; therefore the personal pronoun in the middle verse may more probably refer to angels and not to the priests, who are nowhere mentioned. The pen is associated with the fate of men, because fate is represented as being written down. See a quotation in the TA: سَبَقَ الْقَضَاءُ وَجَفَتِ الْأَقْلَامُ i.e. the decree has already gone forth, and the pens have dried. The use of the word in the Qur-ān, says Ibn-i-Sayyidah, is peculiar and "I do not know the nature of it" (TA).

44 When the angels said:

you good news with a word

423 The phrase إِنَّ اللَّهَ يَبْشُرُكَ بِكَلِمَةٍ مِنْهُ might mean either that Allah gives you good news with a word from Him or that Allah gives you good news of a word from Him, but as kalimah means word or prophecy, and as the personal pronoun in ismu-hū stands for the masculine gender, while kalimah is in the feminine gender and requires the personal pronoun hā, the former meaning is adopted. The good news was given by means of a prophetic word from the Divine Being. Compare 15: 54, 55, where Abraham's question نَبِّئْ بَشَرُونَ i.e. "What is it of which you give me good news?" is answered thus: قَالُوا بَشَرْنَاكَ بِالْحَقِّ i.e. "They said, We give you good news with truth," where the object is understood, as in the words under discussion, the significance being we give you good news (of a son) with truth. The two statements are parallel, and if the latter does not admit of any significance other than we give you good news (of a son) with truth, the former may also signify Allah gives you good news (of a son) with a word from Him. For further explanation of what is meant by kalimah, see foot-notes 418 and 2525. One of the explanations given by Rz, although he takes it for granted that by kalimah is meant Jesus Christ, amounts substantially to what I have stated above, because it holds kalimah as an equivalent of bashīrat, i.e. good news. Commenting on verse 38, Rz observes: "The announcement (of Jesus' advent) had been made in the books of the prophets before him, so when he came it was said, This is that prophetic word, and so he was called a word, according to this explanation." In support of this he cites instances of such phrases as جَاءَ قَوْلِي and جَاءَ كَلَامِي i.e. "my word came" or "my speech came," which are spoken when an event foretold by a person happens, the real significance of the phrases being that which I said or that of which I spoke has come about. This explanation shows that kalimah really applies to the prophecy, a fulfilment of which has come about, and hence the word is rightly rendered here as meaning a prophetic word.

One of the explanations given by Rgh is that Jesus is here called a kalimah in the same sense as the Holy Prophet is called sikr (lit. a reminder) in 65: 10.

424 Three names are given for the child—Al-Masīh, ʿIsā, and Ibn-i-Maryam. The first of these is more a title than a name, being preceded by al. The literal significance of Masīh is either one who travels much or one wiped over with some such thing as oil (LL, Rgh, Rz, etc.). It is the same word as the Aramaic Messiah, which is said to mean the anointed. Jesus Christ is said to have been so called because he used to travel much (Rz, Rgh), or because he was anointed with a pure blessed ointment with which the prophets are anointed (Rz). Various other explanations are given. The former of these

45 And he shall speak to the people when in the cradle and when of old age, and (he shall be) one of the good ones.⁴²⁶

Or, how. 46 She said: My Lord! when shall there be a son (born) to me, and man has not touched me?⁴²⁷ He said: Even so, Allah creates what He pleases; when He has decreed a matter, He only says to it, Be, and it is.

وَيَكَلِّمُ النَّاسَ فِي الْمَهْدِ وَكَهْلًا
مِّنَ الصَّالِحِينَ
قَالَتْ رَبِّ أَنَّى يَكُونُ لِي وَلَدٌ
لَّمْ يَمَسَّ مِنِّي بَشَرٌ قَالَ كَذَلِكَ
إِلَّاهُ يَخْلُقُ مَا يَشَاءُ إِذَا أَقَضَىٰ أَمْرًا
فَأَنشَأ يَقُولُ لَهُ كُنْ فَيَكُونُ

explanations, however, cannot be true if Jesus' mission was limited to a few Syrian towns, but it is the explanation which finds the foremost acceptance with the commentators as well as the lexicologists, and lends support to the evidence recently discovered which shows that Jesus travelled in the East after his unfortunate experience at the hands of the Syrian Jews and preached to the lost ten tribes of the Israelites who had settled in the East, in Afghanistan and Cashmere. In giving the title Messiah there is a reference to the prophecies of the advent of a deliverer, which became definite at the close of the exile. Earlier prophecies, as those contained in Deut. 18 : 18, were never looked upon by the Jews as relating to the Messiah, and hence we have the plain admission that such prophecies "did not have so much effect on Jewish belief about the Messiah as we might expect" (Bib. Dic., Cam. Press, Art. "Messiah").

'Isā is the Arabic form of the Hebrew Yoshua, Jesus being the Greek form of the same name; and Ibn-i-Maryam, or son of Mary, is a surname, known in Arabic as kunyat. It is remarkable that the Qur-ān makes no mention at all of Mary's husband, and in this respect the circumstances bear a strong resemblance to those connected with Moses' birth, for there too no mention at all is made of Moses' father. The mere fact, therefore, that there is no mention of Jesus' father is not sufficient to show that Jesus had no father.

425 Those made near are not necessarily the angels, as some have thought. Compare 56 : 7-11, where people are divided into three classes, one of these being those drawn nigh, the same word (muqarrabin) being used in both cases. Hence Jesus is here placed among the foremost line of the righteous servants of the companions of the Holy Prophet.

426 It should be remembered that Jesus throughout the Holy Qur-ān is spoken of as "one of those made near," "one of the righteous," thus showing that he is regarded only as one of the prophets. As to speaking in the cradle and when of old age, neither of them can be considered a miracle. Every healthy child which is not dumb begins to talk when in the cradle, and speaking when of old age also shows that this speaking is the ordinary experience of every human being who is healthy and lives to an old age. The good news consists in the fact that the child announced will be a healthy child and shall not die in childhood. According to R2, the reason for mentioning Jesus speaking in childhood and old age is to show the change of condition of Jesus from childhood to old age, while change in the Divine Being is impossible.

Kahl is, according to Rgh, he in whose hair hoariness or greyness has become intermixed. LL has, on the authority of Msb, TA, and Mgh, that a man is kahl after he has attained the limit of being a shābb, which is variously fixed at 32, 40, and 51 years. The same authority gives the meaning of kahl as of middle age, or between that age and the period when his hair has become intermixed with hoariness. It would thus appear that, according to the Holy Qur-ān, Jesus did not die at thirty-three years of age, but lived to a sufficiently old age.

It is absurd to say that Jesus will attain to old age in his second advent, for this 427, see next page.

47 And He will teach him the Book and the wisdom and the Torah and the Gospel;

48 And (make him) an apostle to the children of Israel: That I have come to you with a sign from your Lord, that I determine for you out of dust like the form of a bird, then I breathe into it and it becomes a bird with Allah's permission,⁴²⁸ and is equivalent to saying that he will not undergo any change during several thousand years, as all mortals must.

427 The announcement of the birth of a son to any unmarried girl would draw from her the words which are here put into the mouth of Mary. But the words do not show that she would conceive out of the ordinary course of nature, for there is no doubt that Mary had other children, which no one supposes to have been conceived out of the ordinary course of nature. Nor do the words that follow prove anything beyond the simple fact that Mary must give birth to a son in accordance with the prophecy.

428 To understand the full significance of this passage it is necessary to bear in mind that the chief characteristic of Jesus' speeches is that he spoke in parables and preferred to clothe his ideas in allegorical language. If this is kept in mind, there is no difficulty in interpreting this passage. The first of the statements in this passage speaks of the making of birds and breathing into them. It is perfectly intelligible if taken as a parable, but quite incomprehensible as a statement of fact. If on the one hand a prophet's dignity is much above such actions as the making of toy birds, on the other the act of creation is not attributable to any but the Divine Being. To understand this parable, however, the several words used may be explained first. In the passage the four words required to be explained are khalq, ṭin, naṣṣḥ, and ṭair. The primary significance of khalq is measuring, proportioning, synonym taqḍir (LL); hence khalq comes to signify the mere act of the determining of a thing. Zuheir says,

أَنِّي أَخْلُقُ لَكُمْ مِنَ الطِّينِ كَهَيْئَةِ الطَّيْرِ فَأَنْفُخُ فِيهِ فَيَكُونُ طَيْرًا بِإِذْنِ اللَّهِ

i.e. And you cut (i.e. execute) what you have determined and some of the people determine, then do not cut. It is in this sense and not in the sense of creation that the word is used here (Bd, Kf, Rz, etc.), for the act of khalq in the sense of creation cannot be attributed to any being except Allah. The Qur-ān has laid the greatest stress upon this point. It again and again speaks of the Divine Being as the Creator of every thing, so that there is nothing of which any one else may be said to be a creator. And of those who are taken as gods by any people it says in particular that they do not create any thing, while they are themselves created (16 : 20 and 25 : 3). This is not affirmed only of idols, but also of men taken for gods, as the use of allāghina in 16 : 20 clearly shows. The attribute of Allah as being the sole Creator of all things is specially affirmed in connection with the doctrine of sonship in 6 : 102 : "How could He have a son when He has no consort and He Himself created every thing?" It is therefore certain that the "creation" of birds by Jesus is opposed to the principle laid down in clear words by the Holy Qur-ān.

Then there are the two words ṭin and naṣṣḥ. Man is spoken of as being created from ṭin or dust, which stands for his humble origin, but the naṣṣḥ or breathing into him makes him deserving of respect by the angels. This, while hinted at on various occasions, is clearly stated in 98 : 71, 72 : "When your Lord said to the angels, I am going to create a mortal from dust. And when I have made him complete and breathed into him of My inspiration, then fall down, making obeisance to him." Thus it is by the breathing of the Divine Spirit into man that he is made perfect.

I heal the blind⁴²⁰ and the leprous, and bring the dead to life⁴³⁰ with Allah's permission, and I inform you of what you should eat and what you should store in your houses;⁴³¹ most surely there is a sign in this for you, if you are believers.

أَنْزِلُ الْأَكْمَةَ وَالْأَبْرَصَ وَأُنْخِ الْمَوْتَى
بِإِذْنِ اللَّهِ وَأَنْبِئُكُمْ بِمَا تَأْكُلُونَ
وَمَا تَكْتُمُونَ فِي بُيُوتِكُمْ إِنَّ فِي
ذَلِكَ لَآيَةً لِّكُلِّ إِنَّ كُنْتُمْ مَوْمِنِينَ

The word fair or fâir means a bird, but just as the word asad (lit., a lion) is metaphorically used for a brave man, in a parable it is quite unobjectionable to take the word fair as signifying one who soars into the higher spiritual regions and is not bent down upon earth or earthly things. In 6 : 38 it is said : " And there is no animal that walks upon the earth nor a bird that flies with its two wings but (they are) genera like yourselves," the meaning apparently being that among men there are those who only walk upon the earth and do not rise above their earthly concerns, while others soar into the higher spiritual regions. Elsewhere (in 7 : 179 and 25 : 44) those who having hearts do not understand, and having ears do not hear, are likened to cattle. So what is meant here is that Jesus, by breathing a spirit into mortals, will make them rise above those who are bent low upon the earth, and the apostles of Jesus, who were all men of humble origin (which is referred to in the word dust in the parable), whose thoughts had never risen higher than their own humble cares, left every thing for the master's sake and went into the world by the command of the master preaching the truth. Here was, no doubt, mere dust having the form of a bird, which the messenger of God converted into high-soaring birds by breathing the truth into them. The fact that a story of Jesus making birds is related in a Gospel of Infancy is in no way a bar to this explanation, for it is very likely that a parable was misunderstood by the writer of that Gospel and the Qur-ân has only referred to it to cast light upon the truth.

429 The miracle of Jesus healing the sick has been rationally explained in the Enc. Bib. by the Rev. T. K. Cheyne, who has shown that all the stories of healing of the sick have arisen from the spiritual healing of the sick, as in Matt. 9 : 12 : " They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick "; and as in Jesus' message to John the Baptist : " The blind receive their sight and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the Gospel preached to them " (Matt. 11 : 5), the concluding words of which clearly show that the sick and the lame and the blind belong to the same category as the poor to whom the Gospel is preached, being the poor in heart. Compare also Matt. 13 : 15 : " For this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed ; lest at any time they should see with their eyes and hear with their ears and should understand with their hearts, and should be converted, and I should heal them." Here the healing cannot refer but to healing of the spiritual diseases. The Holy Qur-ân gives a similar explanation of the healing of the sick when, speaking of itself, it says that it is " a healing for what is in the breasts " (10 : 57), i.e. for the spiritual diseases, and it is called a guidance and a healing elsewhere (41 : 44). The healing by the prophet is a spiritual one, not a healing of the physical diseases. The Qur-ân speaks of the blind and the deaf frequently, but it never means those who had lost the senses of seeing and hearing.

430 Last come those who are dead. The Qur-ân says plainly that those who die are not sent back to this world : " Allah takes the souls at the time of their death, and those that die not during their sleep ; then He withholds those on whom He has passed the decree of death, and sends the others back till an appointed term " (39 : 42). And again, speaking of the dead : " And before them is a barrier until the day they are raised " (23 : 100). But the use of the word mawtâ, i.e. the dead, and of their raising to life, is frequent in the Holy Qur-ân in a spiritual sense : " Is he who was dead then We raised him to life . . . like him whose likeness is that of one in utter darkness " (6 : 123). And again: "O you who believe! answer the call of Allah and His Apostle when he calls you to that which gives you life" (8: 24). Similarly we have: "Neither are the living and the dead alike; surely Allah makes whom He pleases hear, and you cannot make those hear who are in the graves" (35: 22). The prophets are raised only for quickening to life those who are spiritually dead, and it is to this quickening through Jesus Christ that the Holy Qur-an refers here. It should be noted that three classes of men are spoken of as being regenerated, viz.: (1) those who were found in the natural state of dust, and who, like dust, humbly submitted themselves to the prophets' handling, and who were made to soar high into the spiritual regions, not caring for their worldly concerns: (2) those who were spiritually diseased, and they were healed and made whole, i.e. able to work; and (3) those who were quite dead and were spiritually quickened. Hence the three different descriptions.

431 Jesus' preaching laid special stress upon not having any care "for the morrow," and his advice to rich men when they came to him was to sell all that they had. He would have them lay up their treasures in heaven. It is to this aspect of his teaching that the verse refers, the plain meaning of the words being that he told them of what they had lawfully earned, and what they should store in their houses (meaning that they should not amass riches but should spend them in Allah's way, and thus lay up for themselves treasures in heaven). It is remarkable that there is not a single aspect of Jesus' teaching that his followers have not gone against directly.

432 The law given by Moses was upheld by all the Israelite prophets, but its deficiencies were removed and other changes introduced from time to time to make it suit the needs of new times. These changes are particularly marked out in Jesus' teaching, as any one who reads any of the Gospels, and especially the Sermon on the Mount, can easily see.

438 The Arabic word is plural of hawāri, which is thus explained by LL: "One who whitens clothes by washing and beating them (S, M, Msb, Q). Hence its plural, hawāriyyūn, is applied to the companions of Jesus, because their trade was to do washing (M, S, Msb)." That seems to be the best explanation, and it is traceable to Sa'id bin Jubair (Rz). Some commentators, however, suggest that they may have been so called because of the purity of their hearts (Rz).

434 Makr is explained by Rgh as the turning of another with ingenuity or skill from that which he aims at, and he considers makr as of two sorts, a good one and an evil one. Therefore the best interpretation of the word makara (including both sorts) is that adopted by TA, viz. he exercised craft, cunning, art, or skill in the management or ordering of affairs with excellent consideration or deliberation, and ability to manage according to his own free will (LL). The idea of the plan being contrived for an evil purpose or clandestinely, which is included in the significance of the word, has led many to take that idea as its exclusive significance, which is not the case. Makr-ullah may also signify Allah's recompensing or requiting for makr (Msb, TA-LL). According to some, its original significance is the gathering of an affair and its strengthening (Rz). All these explanations show that it is the equivalent of the word plan, the good or evil nature of the plan being dependent on the object or doer's intention. Allah is called here *Khair-ul-mākiri*n or the best of planners, the qualifying word khair being inapplicable to an evil object.

435 The Jews planned to put Jesus to death by crucifixion, and Allah made a plan to frustrate their plans; and Allah's plan was successful, i.e. he was saved from death on the cross, for which see 436 and 645.

is I will cause you to die. And تَوَفَّاهُ اللَّهُ does not convey any significance other than Allah took his soul or caused him to die. The Qur-ān itself makes this significance clear in 39: 42. LA says "You say تَوَفَّى فُلَانٌ وَلَوْ نَافَهُ اللَّهُ when you mean

تَبَضُّعَ نَفْسِهِ or, according to S, تَبَضُّعَ رُوحِهِ i.e. He (Allah) took his soul or caused him to die. And تَوَفَّاهُ اللَّهُ according to LL, signifies "God took his soul (S, Q) (either at death or in sleep, see the Qur-ān, 6: 60); or caused him to die (Msb)." No other significance can be attached to the words when thus used. Hence some commentators say that Jesus remained dead for three hours; others say for seven hours, and so on (Rz). But the word is used here really to show that the Jewish plans to cause Jesus' death on the cross would be frustrated and that he would afterwards die a natural death (see 645).

437 Raf signifies raising or elevating, and also exalting or making honourable (Rgh, TA-LL). But where the raf of a man to Allah is spoken of in the Holy Qur-ān, or in the religious literature of Islam, it is without a single exception in the latter sense, for raising a man in his body to Himself implies that the Divine Being is limited to a place. This is made plain by the prayer which every Muslim repeats several times daily, و ارفعني meaning "and exalt me, O Lord!" Of course no one supposes this prayer to be for the raising of the body to the heavens. Hence even those commentators who are predisposed, having, no doubt, been misled by Christian traditions, to accept Jesus Christ as having been raised alive to heaven, have been compelled to admit that the word raf is here used not for raising aloft but for exalting and honouring. And commenting on the words و جاعل الذين اتبعوك فوق الذين كفروا which follow this statement, Rz says This verse shows that raf here is the exalting in degree and in praise, not in place and direction. The exaltation of Jesus is mentioned here as a reply to the Jews, whose object was to make him die an accursed and ignominious death on the cross.

438 Clearing of those who disbelieve signifies clearing Jesus of the false charges relating to the alleged illegitimacy of his birth, and so on, charges of which Jesus was cleared by the Holy Qur-ān (see 644).

439 This verse contains four promises relating to Jesus' triumph over his enemies as against their plans, three of which have already been noticed, viz.: (1) his being saved from death on the cross and being made to die a natural death; (2) his being made honourable in the Divine presence, whereas the object of the Jews was to show that he was an accursed person; (3) his being cleared of all false charges. And the fourth promise is that those who follow Jesus shall be made dominant over his rejecters till the day of judgment. The truth of this fourth prophecy is witnessed to this day in the dominance of the Muslims and the Christians over the Jews. It is a sufficient proof of the incompleteness of the current Gospels that these promises are not mentioned in them.

440 The differences referred to are the differences that exist between those who accept Jesus—the broad differences of the Muslims and the Christians.

441 The condition of the Jews bears testimony to the fulfilment of this threat.

442 By the unjust are meant the Christians, because they have exceeded the limits of justice and deified Jesus.

443 Adam may stand for man generally, because all men are created from dust. Thus in 18 : 37 the believer says to his non-believing companion : " Do you disbelieve in Him who created you from dust? " And in 22 : 5, 30 : 20, and elsewhere, all men are spoken of as having been created from dust. All that is meant, therefore, is that Jesus is no more than a mortal, and that it is an error to take him for a god, as the Christians do.

If Adam be taken as a proper name, the chosen one of God mentioned in v. 32, the meaning would still be only this, that just as Adam was created from dust and then chosen or purified by Allah, so was Jesus created from dust, and his election was similar to the election of Adam, the command contained in kun in this case referring to the election of a righteous servant of Allah. In either case there is no reference to Jesus being brought into existence without the agency of a male parent. The controversy is here carried on with the Christians, and it is their false belief in the divinity of Jesus that is here condemned.

444 Ibtahala means he humbled or abased himself or addressed himself with earnest or energetic supplication (S, Msb, Q-LL). That is the real significance, but some explain it as meaning natabihil, in which case the meaning would be let us call down a curse upon such of us as is the liar.

445 This chapter starts with a discussion of the Christian doctrines in particular. The persons addressed in particular here are the members of the Christian deputation from Najran that came in 10 A.H. This deputation, consisting of sixty men, was headed by Abdul Masih, the chief of the Najran Christians (Rz, AH), and the members of the deputation were lodged in the mosque. Thus did the Holy Prophet set an example of freedom of religious thought which remains without a parallel to this day. The Holy Prophet related to them arguments showing that Jesus Christ was not God, but a man and a prophet. After having argued the question fully, and finding them still insisting in their false belief in the deity of Jesus, they were invited as a last resort to pray earnestly that the curse of Allah might overtake the party that insisted upon falsehood. They wanted respite for a day to consider the matter, and the next day Abdul Masih and two others came to the Holy Prophet and told him that they had decided not to pray against him as suggested. Thereupon they were given a pledge by which they were free to practise their religion : " their authority and rights shall not be interfered with, nor anything that is customary amongst them, so long as they conducted themselves peaceably and uprightly " (Muir).

It is strange to find Christian writers referring to this as " a strange mode of settling the dispute. " But evidently their Arabian co-religionists did not think so over 1,300 years ago. They believed in the efficacy of prayer, for such was the teaching of Jesus. They saw the righteousness of the Prophet, and they were convinced of their own false beliefs and dared not invoke curses upon themselves with their own tongues, while they knew that the Holy Prophet was too generous to curse them. Therefore they adopted the wise course of not calling with their own mouths for destruction to overtake them. Had they considered the Holy Prophet as an impostor and Antichrist, as their descendants do to-day, they would not have had the least fear in accepting the challenge.

As regards the reasonableness of the mode here suggested, a community that called, and still insists upon calling, the law of the Holy Prophet "a curse" to humanity cannot well dispute it. If indeed Jesus was God, and the most righteous of men is condemned so long as he does not believe in his atonement, and any and every law which aims at making men righteous, while rejecting the doctrine of atonement as utterly false, is, according to the teaching of the apostle Paul, a curse to humanity, why should a Christian hesitate to curse the founder of such a law? As regards the alleged love for enemies, enough of it is seen in the abuses that are heaped upon the Holy Prophet to this day.

446 It was exactly in these words that the Prophet wrote a letter to Heraclius in the year 6 A.H. (Bkh), discovery of a copy of which has furnished proof of the reliability of the reports relating to the Holy Prophet in general, for the manuscript letter contains the very words given by Bkh. This circumstance further shows that this part was not revealed so late as the year of the Najran deputation. In this verse the Jews and the Christians are called upon to accept the broad principles of the faith of Abraham, which were also the basic principles of the faith of Islam, but which the Jews had given up in practice for doctrines of later growth and the Christians for the doctrines of the divinity of a man and his atonement for sins. The reference in the sentence some of us shall not take others for lords is not only to the Christian doctrine of the divinity of Jesus Christ, but also to the doctrine of the Jews, who revered their priests with the reverence due to Allah, as is said elsewhere: "They have taken their doctors of law and their monks for lords besides Allah" (9: 31). The same charge holds good against the Muslims of to-day, who pay undue reverence to their pirs (spiritual guides), which is the real cause of their degeneration.

447 The Christians held a controversy with the Holy Prophet regarding Jesus Christ, of whom they had some knowledge, but about Abraham they had no detailed knowledge.

Machinations to discredit Islam

71-73. A show of false belief followed by relapse. 74-76. Their dishonest dealings with other people. 77. Their alteration of scriptures. 78, 79. Claim to divinity not attributable to any prophet.

71 And a party of the followers of the Book say: Avow belief in that which has been revealed to those who believe, in the first part of the day, and disbelieve at the end of it, perhaps they may go back.⁴⁴⁸

Or, the latter part.

72 And do not believe but in him who follows your religion.⁴⁴⁹ Say: Surely the (true) guidance is the guidance of Allah - that one may be given (by Him) the like of what you were given; or they would contend with you by an argument before your Lord.⁴⁵⁰ Say: Surely grace is in the hand of Allah, He gives it to whom He pleases; and Allah is Ample-giving, Knowing.⁴⁵¹

448 The words would bear two different significances according to what the personal pronoun in ākhirā-hu refers to, for it may either refer to that which has been revealed or to the day. The meaning in the first case is that the Jews planned to express a false belief in the earlier part of the revelation and to deny the latter portion, with the object of creating doubts in the minds of the believers as to the sincerity of the Prophet. They would say, for instance, that the earlier revelation was no doubt true, but that the Prophet aimed at personal aggrandizement in later revelation, a position which is to this day adopted by most of the Christian writers who make a show of being fair to the claims of Islam. Some understand by that which has been revealed in the first part of the day the Prophet's adherence to Jerusalem as his Qiblah and by the latter portion the change to the Ka'ba (Rz).

If we adopt the other significance, the meaning would be that they should avow a belief in the truth of Islam in the morning and deny it in the evening, and thus perturb the minds of those who had gone over to Islam, creating the impression that the religion of Islam was a false religion, otherwise the Jews, who possessed the scriptures, could not have apostatized after they had embraced Islam (Rz). The adoption of this plan is a clear proof that apostates were not put to death.

449 The meaning is that the Jews should not believe in any prophet who did not follow their law, i.e. the Mosaic law.

450 The contention of the Jews in the beginning of this verse is met with the reply that a revelation should be given to another prophet like the revelation that had been given to Moses, for the Divine promise to Moses was: "I will raise them up a prophet from among their brethren like unto thee, and will put My words in his mouth" (Deut., 18: 18). This promise must be fulfilled, and the Prophet who was thus raised, being "like unto" Moses, would be the real guide. This is the meaning of "one should be

451, see next page.

73 He specially chooses for His mercy whom He pleases; and Allah is the Lord of mighty grace.⁴⁵²

74 And among the followers of the Book there are some such that if you entrust one (of them) with a heap of wealth, he shall pay it back to you; and among them there are some such that if you entrust one (of them) with a dinar⁴⁵³ he shall not pay it back to you except so long as you remain firm in demanding it; this is because they say: There is not upon us in the matter of the unlearned people any way (to reproach); and they tell a lie against Allah while they know.⁴⁵⁴

75 Yea, whoever fulfils his promise and guards (against evil)—then surely Allah loves those who guard (against evil).

يَخْتَصُّ بِرَحْمَتِهِ مَن يَشَاءُ وَاللَّهُ ذُو الْفَضْلِ الْعَظِيمِ

وَمِنَ أَهْلِ الْكِتَابِ مَن إِن تَأْمَنَهُ

given by Him the like of what you were given." But if the argument of the Jews and the Christians were correct, that prophethood was to be confined to the line of Israel and no prophet was to be raised among the children of Ishmael, who were also the "seed" of Abraham, then that would give rise to a contention at the hands of the Ishmaelites as to the non-fulfilment of the promise given to Abraham. The significance thus is: or they (i.e. the Ishmaelites or Arabs) would contend with you (i.e. the Israelites) by an argument (relating to the non-fulfilment of the promise) with your Lord (i.e. their contention would then be right). For the fulfilment of the prophecy of Deut. 18: 18 in the person of the Holy Prophet compare 46: 10: "And a witness from among the children of Israel has borne witness of one like himself," and 73: 15: "Surely We have sent to you an apostle, a witness against you, as We sent an apostle to Pharaoh."

There can be another interpretation of the verse, as guhadjjukum means "they may be triumphant over you"; the significance of this interpretation is that it fully conveys the sense that Allah is so bountiful and powerful that He can in His grace not only give to others (the Ishmaelites) "the like" of what was given to the Israelites, but He can make those others even triumphant over them, as Islam has undoubtedly triumphed.

451 Grace here indicates prophethood. Compare the use of good in 2: 105 and footnote 151.

452 Allah's choosing for His mercy stands here for His choice of a prophet, as in 2: 105.

453 Dinār is an Arab gold coin of the value of about 10s.

454 They considered themselves free from all responsibility towards the unlearned Arabs, notwithstanding any engagement they might have made with them. Hence it was that instead of bearing true witness to the claims of Islam, prophecies of which were abundantly outlined in their books, they thought it lawful to play all sorts of tricks to discredit it. If this was true of the Jews in the time of the Holy Prophet, it is true of the Christians now, whose missionaries are ever ready to make use of every falsehood against Islam, and whose politicians do not generally regard Muslim kingdoms as entitled to the benefit of the international laws of Europe.

76 (As for) those who take a small price for the covenant of Allah and their own oaths—surely they shall have no portion in the hereafter, and Allah will not speak to them, nor will He look upon them on the day of resurrection, nor will He purify them, and they shall have a painful chastisement.

77 And most surely there is a party of them who lie about the Book,⁴⁵⁵ that you may consider it to be (a part) of the Book while it is not (a part) of the Book, and they say, It is from Allah, while it is not from Allah; and they tell a lie against Allah whilst they know.

إِنَّ الَّذِينَ يَشْتَرُونَ بِعَهْدِ اللَّهِ وَأَيْمَانِهِمْ ثَمَنًا قَلِيلًا أُولَٰئِكَ لَا خَلَاقَ لَهُمْ فِي الْآخِرَةِ وَلَا يُكَلِّمُهُمُ اللَّهُ وَلَا يَنْظُرُ إِلَيْهِمْ يَوْمَ الْقِيَامَةِ وَلَا يُزَكِّيهِمْ وَلَهُمْ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٌ ٥

وَأَنَّ مِنْهُمْ قَوْمًا يَقَاسِقُونَ أَلْسِنَتَهُمْ بِالْكِتَابِ لِخِسَابٍ مِنَ الْكِتَابِ وَمَا هُمْ مِنَ الْكِتَابِ يَقُولُونَ هُوَ مِنْ عِنْدِ اللَّهِ وَمَا هُوَ مِنْ عِنْدِ اللَّهِ ۚ وَ يَقُولُونَ عَلَى اللَّهِ الْكَذِبَ وَهُمْ يَعْلَمُونَ ٥

455 There has been much misconception as to the true significance of يَلُونِ السُّتْهُمْ

بَاكْتَبَ because primarily one says لَوَيْتُ الْحَبْلَ i.e. I twisted the rope, and much learning has been spent in explaining the meaning of twisting their tongues with the Book, which significance is adopted from the analogy of the rope. Rgh makes the point clear in very few words when he says, لَوِي لِسَانَهُ بِكَذَا i.e. the twisting of the tongue with such a thing implies the lying about and forging of a narration. He cites as instances of this use of the word the phrase occurring in this verse as cited above and يَا بِالسُّتْهُمْ occurring in 4:46. Both the LA and the TA give a variety of uses of the word which makes the point further clear. Thus both agree that laww and layy mean the falsehood and haww and hayy mean the truth, and cite the proverb فَلَان لَا يَعْرِفُ الْحَوَّ

i.e. such a one does not recognize truth from falsehood. Again, both explain الْوِي بِالْكَلَامِ as meaning he turned it (i.e. a speech or saying) away from its drift or altered or changed it altogether. And again لَوَيْتُ عَنْهُ الْخَبْرَ is, according to LA, equivalent to I informed him of it otherwise than it was, and لَوِي فَلَان خَبْرَهُ means he concealed the information, according to the same authority. Rz quotes the following comment on the words of this verse from I'Ab: What is implied is the reading of the false book. And he says that in Arabic you use different words for an action according as the good or evil of it is to be expressed, and then cites 2:79, which shows that the book which they read is not the book revealed by Allah, but one which they had written with their own hands. The concluding words of this verse also point to the same conclusion: "They tell a lie against Allah." This shows clearly that the Qur-ān considered the Bible to have been already altered.

78 It is not meet for a mortal that Allah should give him the Book and the judgment and prophethood, then he should say to men: Be my servants rather than Allah's; but rather (he would say): Be worshippers of the Lord because of your teaching the Book and your reading (it).⁴⁵⁶

79 And neither would he enjoin you that you should take the angels and the prophets for lords; what! would he enjoin you with unbelief after you are Muslims? ⁴⁵⁷

456 Rabbānī, which is the same as ribbī (from rabb, or Lord), means one who possesses a knowledge of the Lord, or one who is a worshipper of the Lord. According to a saying of the Holy Prophet, a ribbī is a learned man, a teacher of others, who nourishes people with the small matters of knowledge before the great (LL).

457 This and the previous verse show that according to the Holy Qur-ān no prophet—Jesus included—ever taught his followers to take him for a god; in other words, any one who actually taught so could not be a prophet of Allah. The angels are mentioned because the pagan Arabs worshipped the angels.

458 Several explanations have been given of the words ميثاق النبيين which literally signify the covenant of the prophets, and may therefore mean either the covenant of the prophets with Allah or the covenant of the prophets with their people. As the words that follow are plainly addressed to the people, the Jews and the Christians being particularly addressed in the last two verses, I adopt the latter interpretation, and therefore translate the words as meaning a covenant through the prophets. It is very like 81 Whoever therefore turns back after this, these it is that are the transgressors.

82 Is it then other than Allah's religion that they seek (to follow), and to Him submits whoever is in the heavens and the earth, willingly or unwillingly, and to Him shall they be returned.⁴⁵⁹

83 Say : We believe in Allah and what has been revealed to us, and what was revealed to Abraham and Ishmael and Isaac and Jacob and the tribes, and what was given to Moses and Jesus and to the prophets from their Lord; we do not make any distinction between any of them, and to Him do we submit.^a what Kf accepts: When Allah made the covenant which the prophets confirmed with their peoples. As the Jews and the Christians are specially addressed here as well as in the foregoing verses, it is sufficient to note that both Moses and Jesus specially laid an obligation on their people to accept the prophet about whom they prophesied. Thus, through Moses, Almighty God had warned the Israelites, after promising them "a prophet from among their brethren like unto thee," that "whosoever will not hearken unto My words which he shall speak in My name, I will require it of him" (Deut. 18 : 19). And Jesus was equally emphatic when, prophesying the advent of the Comforter, he added. "He will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself, but whatsoever he shall hear that shall he speak" (John 16 : 13). The prophet, however, of whom Moses speaks in Deut. 18 : 15-19, and which description cannot apply to any prophet except the Holy Prophet Muhammad, had his advent foretold by all the prophets, and we read in Acts 3 : 21-22: "Whom the heaven must receive until the time of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began. For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me: him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you." The covenant referred to was made through each prophet separately as he appeared in the world. And just as all the prophets foretold the advent of the Holy Prophet and laid an obligation upon their people to accept him, so the Holy Prophet also taught his followers to believe in all the prophets that had appeared among different people in different ages, and this is plainly taught in what follows. See v. 83.

459 It is very amusing to find a Christian annotator of the Qur-ān seeing in these words "a threat against unbelieving Arabs." This curious suggestion is too absurd to need any comment. Compare 13 : 15, 22 : 18, etc., where it is said that all those who are in the heavens and the earth make obeisance to Allah. The verse, in fact, shows that 460, see next page.

85 How shall Allah guide a people who disbelieved after their believing and (after) they had borne witness that the Apostle was true and clear arguments had come to them; and Allah does not guide the unjust people.⁴⁶¹

88 Except those who repent after that and amend, then surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

89 Surely, those who disbelieve after their believing, then increase in unbelief, their repentance shall not be accepted, and these are they that go astray.⁴⁶³

90 Surely, those who disbelieve and die while they are unbelievers, the earth full of gold shall not be accepted from one of them, though he should offer to ransom himself with it; these it is who shall have a painful chastisement, and they shall have no helpers.

Islam, or the rule of submission to law, is a law which is seen working throughout nature, and this is an argument of the truth of the religion of Islam.

460 The cosmopolitan nature of the religion of Islam having been clearly set out in the previous verse, it is now stated that any one who refused to accept such a religion would unfaillingly lose in the end.

461 The persons meant are those who believed in the former prophets and disbelieved in the Holy Prophet Muhammad. Having clear signs of the Prophet's truth with them, and professing a belief in the prophets who had foretold the advent of the last of the prophets, they still disbelieved in the Holy Prophet. How should Allah guide a people who thus rejected guidance?

462 Instead of hell here it is the curse in which the guilty shall abide, and thus a light is thrown upon the nature of hell.

463 Their repentance consisted in their accepting the Holy Prophet, as indicated by v. 88, but when they turned away again to disbelief, increasing in that disbelief, their previous repentance became quite useless, because it bore no fruit, and hence it was not accepted by the Divine Being (I'Ab-Rz).

SECTION 10

An Ever-living Testimony to the Truth of Islam

91. Necessity of sacrifice. 92-94. Islam possesses main features of Abraham's religion. 95, 96. Mecca and its security. 97-100. Exhortation and warning.

PART IV

91 By no means shall you attain to righteousness until you spend (benevolently) out of what you love; and whatever thing you spend, Allah surely knows it.⁴⁶⁴

92 All food was lawful to the children of Israel⁴⁶⁵ except that which Israel had forbidden to himself before the Torah was revealed. Say: Bring then the Torah and read it, if you are truthful.⁴⁶⁶

93 Then whoever fabricates a lie against Allah after this, these it is that are the unjust.

94 Say: Allah has spoken the truth, therefore follow the religion of Abraham, the upright one; and he was not one of the polytheists.

95 Most surely the first house appointed for men is the one at Bekka,⁴⁶⁷ blessed and a guidance for the nations.⁴⁶⁸

إِنَّ أَوَّلَ بَيْتٍ وُضِعَ لِلنَّاسِ لَلَّذِي

بِبَكَّةَ مُبْرَكًا ۖ وَهُدًى لِّلْعٰلَمِينَ ۝

464 The connection with the last verse is clear. No wealth will buy redemption for a man if he has wasted his opportunity here, and to make the best of that opportunity a man must spend here what he loves most. Attention is thus called to the sacrifices which it was necessary for the Muslims to make.

465 The Jews objected to the Muslims making use of certain foods which the law of Moses did not allow. An answer is given here that such foods were lawful for Abraham and his descendants, and Islam agreed in principle with the religion of Abraham. By all food is thus meant all food which is lawful for the Muslims.

466 What was that which Israel had forbidden to himself before the revelation of the Torah? The commentators say it was camel's flesh. Camel's flesh was, no doubt, forbidden to the Israelites, as were several other things which were lawful for the Muslims, and the objection of the Jews was, as shown in the last note, to this departure from the Israelite law. This has been stated earlier in 6:147, where, after mentioning the foods prohibited to the Israelites in particular, it is added: "This was a punishment We gave them on account of their rebellion." These words explain what is stated here: that which Israel had forbidden to himself was, in fact, what was made unlawful for the Israelite nation on account of their rebellious attitude towards the Divine laws. Israel thus stands here for the Israelite nation.

467 Bekka is the same as Mecca, from tabák, meaning the crowding together of men (Rz). Others say it is from a root meaning the breaking of the neck, and the name is given to it

468, see next page.

96 In it are clear signs : the standing-place of Abraham, and whoever enters it shall be secure, and pilgrimage to the House is incumbent upon men for the sake of Allah,⁴⁶⁹ (upon) every one who is able to undertake the journey to it; and whoever disbelieves, then surely Allah is Self-sufficient, above any need of the worlds..

97 Say: O followers of the Book! why do you disbelieve in the communications of Allah, and Allah is a witness of what you do.

98 Say: O followers of the Book! why do you hinder him who believes from the way of Allah? you seek (to make) it crooked, while you are witnesses, and Allah is not heedless of what you do.

فِيهِ آيَاتٌ يَبَيِّنُ مَقَامَ إِبْرَاهِيمَ ۚ وَمَنْ دَخَلَهُ كَانَ آمِنًا ۚ وَلِلَّهِ عَلَى النَّاسِ حُجُّ الْبَيْتِ مَنِ اسْتَطَاعَ إِلَيْهِ سَبِيلًا ۚ وَمَنْ كَفَرَ فَإِنَّ اللَّهَ غَنِيٌّ عَنِ الْعَالَمِينَ ۝
قُلْ يَا أَهْلَ الْكِتَابِ لِمَ تَكْفُرُونَ بِآيَاتِ اللَّهِ وَاللَّهُ شَهِيدٌ عَلَى مَا تَعْمَلُونَ ۝
قُلْ يَا أَهْلَ الْكِتَابِ لِمَ تَصُدُّونَ عَنْ سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ مَنْ آمَنَ تَبْغُونَهَا عِوَجًا ۚ وَأَنْتُمْ شُهَدَاءُ ۚ وَمَا اللَّهُ بِغَافِلٍ عَمَّا تَعْمَلُونَ ۝

because whenever a tyrant has forced his way to it, his neck has been broken (Rz). Some think that Bekka is the name of the mosque or the House itself that is in Mecca. This is also an answer to the Jews, who objected to the Muslims making the Ka'ba and not the Temple at Jerusalem their Qiblah. They are told that the Temple at Jerusalem was erected long after Abraham, while the Holy House at Mecca was there even before Abraham, and was, in fact, the first House on earth for the worship of the Divine Being. The subject has been fully discussed in foot-note 170.

468 If, on the one hand, Mecca is declared to be the first House raised on earth for the worship of the Divine Being, it is, on the other, announced to be mubārak, which word, though ordinarily rendered as blessed, signifies the continuance for ever of the blessings which a thing possesses (Rz), and thus it is the first as well as the last House in which the nations of the world have found and will find their true inspiration and guidance.

469 The clear signs in Mecca, as enumerated here, are three, and those, in fact, are three prophecies with regard to the future of Mecca. The first sign is that it is the standing-place of Abraham, which has already been declared to be the Muslim centre (see 169). Hence the first prophecy is that the doctrine of the Unity of the Divine Being shall be proclaimed to the whole world from this centre. The second sign is that Mecca shall always be secure, i.e. it shall not fall into the hands of an enemy who should destroy it, because, we are told, it affords security to those who enter it, which it could not do if it were not itself secure. There is a saying of the Holy Prophet to the effect that the Antichrist (and the plague) shall never have access to Mecca. Thus its security is assured both physically and spiritually. And the third prophecy is that a pilgrimage to the Sacred House shall continue to be made for ever, and no power in the world shall ever be able to put a stop to it. The most striking fact about these prophecies is that they were all announced at a time when the Holy Prophet and his followers had apparently been driven away for ever from the sacred place, when that place was in the exclusive possession of an enemy who did not allow the Muslims to visit the place even during the sacred months, and when the small Muslim community was in danger of being utterly destroyed by the powerful enemy at any moment. To make such grand and majestic announcements about the place under such circumstances was undoubtedly a thing quite beyond the scope of human knowledge.

Ar. your

99 O you who believe! if you obey a party from among those who have been given the Book, they will turn you back as unbelievers after you have believed.⁴⁷⁰

100 But how can you disbelieve while it is you to whom the communications of Allah are recited, and among you is His Apostle? And whoever holds fast to Allah, he indeed is guided to the right path.

Muslims are exhorted to remain united 101, 102. The believers should be firm in union. 103. The necessity of a missionary propaganda. 104-108. Evil consequences of divisions and disagreements.

101 O you who believe! be careful of (your duty to) Allah with the care which is due to Him, and do not die unless you are Muslims.

102 And hold fast by the covenant of Allah⁴⁷¹ all together and be not disunited, and remember the favour of Allah on you when you were enemies, then He united your hearts so by His favour you became brethren; and you were on the brink of a pit of fire,⁴⁷² then He saved you from it; thus does Allah make clear to you His communications that you may follow the right way.

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا اتَّقُوا اللَّهَ حَقَّ تَقَاتِهِ

It may be added here that the pilgrimage to the Sacred House is not an unconditional obligation; it is incumbent only on those who are able to do it.

470 By obeying is here meant accepting what the followers of the Book said, or walking in the way in which they walked.

471 The original word is habl, which means primarily a rope or a cord, and hence a bond, a cause of union, a bond of love or friendship, a covenant or a compact by which one becomes responsible for the safety of a person or a thing. One says كانت بينهم

حبال i.e. they were covenants between them and they broke them (TA-LI).

By habl-illāh, or the covenant of Allah, is meant the Qur-ān, a significance supported by two sayings of the Holy Prophet, according to one of which he is reported to have said that the Book of Allah is the covenant (or rope) of Allah, and according to the other that the Qur-ān is the firm covenant (or rope) of Allah (AH). The other explanations all tend to support this.

472 Before the advent of the Holy Prophet the Arabs were in a state of continual and mutual warfare which threatened to devastate the whole country. It should be noted that in Arabic literature and in the Qur-ān, nār, or fire, is often a symbol of war. The Arabs used to kindle a fire as a sign that war was contemplated, so that the tribes should assemble. Hence the use of the word as implying war. In the Qur-ān itself we read, "Whenever they kindle a fire for war Allah puts it out" (5: 64).

473 The heated imagination of a Christian annotator sees a flash of "the sword" in these words. Compare 9: 122: "And it does not beseem the believers that they should go forth all together; why should not then a company from every party from among them go forth, that they may apply themselves to obtain understanding in religion and that they may warn their people when they come back to them that they may be cautious?" Both verses, in fact, direct the Muslims to have always among them a missionary party, whose only object should be the propagation of Islam and rightly directing their own people.

474 By the faces turning white is meant their being expressive of joy, and by their turning black, their being expressive of sorrow (Rgh-LL). As says you say a man is abyaḍ (white) when you mean that he is free from dross and defects (TA).

SECTION 12

Relations of the Jews with the Muslims

109. The Muslims raised for the welfare of others. 110, 111. They should not fear any harm from the Jews. 112-114. The good among them are an exception. 115, 116. Their strength against the Muslims shall be a failure. 117-119. Muslims not to take them for intimate friends.

109 You are the best of the nations raised up for (the benefit of) men: you enjoin what is right and forbid the wrong and believe in Allah;⁴⁷⁵ and if the followers of the Book had believed it would have been better for them; of them (some) are believers and most of them are transgressors.

110 They shall by no means harm you but with a slight evil; and if they fight with you they shall turn (their) backs to you, then shall they not be helped.⁴⁷⁶

111 Abasement is made to cleave to them wherever they are found, except under a covenant with Allah and a covenant with men, and they have become deserving of wrath from Allah, and humiliation is made to cleave to them; this is because they disbelieved in the communications of Allah and slew the prophets unjustly; this is because they disobeyed and exceeded the limits.⁴⁷⁷

475 Not only are the Muslims the chosen people of God, who are now called upon to be the standard-bearers of truth in the world, but they are at the same time declared to be the best of the people that had ever been chosen for this purpose. This was no doubt due to the excellence of that Great Teacher who thoroughly purified them of the worst vices of humanity and made perfect the light within them. No prophet ever found a people in a worse condition, and none ever raised his people to such pre-eminence.

476 The Jews in Arabia sided with the enemies of Islam in their endeavour to extirpate the new religion, and this notwithstanding their agreement with the Muslims, but they were not successful in inflicting any serious harm upon the Muslims, and whenever they openly faced the Muslims they fled. The polytheists, who gave them secret promises of help, never came to their aid when they were in distress.

477 Almost the same words (excluding the exception) occur in 2: 61. The Jews had already been subjected to the greatest humiliation and disgrace before the appearance of the Holy Prophet. But with the advent of Islam they could better their condition either by accepting the covenant of Allah, by which is meant the acceptance of Islam, or by making a compact of security with such men as could give them protection, thus showing that they would no more be rulers in the world, but would remain subject to others.

112 They are not all alike ; of the followers of the Book there is an upright party : they recite Allah's communications in the night-time and they adore (Him) :

113 They believe in Allah and the last day, and they enjoin what is right and forbid the wrong, and they strive with one another in hastening to good deeds, and those are among the good.

114 And whatever good they do, they shall not be denied it, and Allah knows those who guard (against evil).⁴⁷⁸

115 (As for) those who disbelieve, surely neither their wealth nor their children shall avail them in the least against Allah ; and these are the inmates of the fire ; therein they shall abide.

116 The likeness of what they spend in the life of this world is as the likeness of wind in which is intense cold (that) smites the seed-produce of a people who have done injustice to their souls and destroys it ; and Allah is not unjust to them, but they are unjust to themselves.⁴⁷⁹

لَيْسُوا سَوَاءً مِنْ أَهْلِ الْكِتَابِ أُمَّةٌ قَائِمَةٌ يَتْلُونَ آيَاتِ اللَّهِ أَنْاءً لَيْلٍ وَهُمْ لَا يَتَّبِعُونَ

يُؤْمِنُونَ بِاللَّهِ وَالْيَوْمِ الْآخِرِ وَيَأْمُرُونَ بِالْمَعْرُوفِ وَيَنْهَوْنَ عَنِ الْمُنْكَرِ وَيُسَارِعُونَ فِي الْخَيْرَاتِ وَأُولَئِكَ مِنَ الصَّالِحِينَ وَمَا يَفْعَلُوا مِنْ خَيْرٍ فَلَنْ يُكْفَرُوا بِهِ وَاللَّهُ عَلِيمٌ بِالْمُتَّقِينَ

478 The opinion has been held, very plausibly indeed, that from v. 112 to this point the Holy Qur-án speaks of the good among the Jews and the Christians, and not of those who had become converts to Islam, because the Muslims could not be said to be a party of the followers of the Book. It is a fact that the Qur-án does not deny that there is good in others, its own eminence over others lying in the fact that it makes man attain the highest degree of perfection in goodness. It is for this reason that the description of the upright party among the followers of the Book concludes with the words, And whatever good they do, they shall not be denied it. If on the one hand there were very few who could be said to be upright among the followers of the Book, as compared with the vast majority who were transgressors (v. 109), they could not, on the other, attain perfect uprightness.

It is noteworthy that this praise of the good among the Jews belongs to a period when the Jews had secretly joined the enemies of the Muslims, openly venting their feelings of animosity. This shows how fair was Islam even to its greatest enemies. Generally, however, the commentators are of opinion that the description given here refers to those Jews and Christians who became converts to Islam (Rz).

479 The failure which is throughout the Holy Qur-án prophesied for the enemies of Islam is referred to here. The parable is similar to the one given in 68 : 17-33.

117 O you who believe! do not take for intimate friends from among others than your own people:⁴⁸⁰ they do not fall short of inflicting loss upon you; they love what distresses you; vehement hatred has already appeared from out of their mouths, and what their breasts conceal is greater still; indeed, We have made the communications clear to you, if you will understand.

118 Lo! you are they who will love them while they do not love you,⁴⁸¹ and you believe in the Book, (in) the whole of it; and when they meet you they say, We believe, and when they are alone, they bite the ends of their fingers in rage against you. Say: Die in your rage; surely Allah knows what is in the breasts.

119 If good befalls you, it grieves them, and if an evil afflicts you, they rejoice at it; and if you are patient and guard yourselves, their struggle^a will not injure you in any way; surely Allah comprehends what they do.

Or, scheme.

480 This injunction against contracting intimate friendship with others than Muslims should be read along with what is said in 60 : 8, 9 : " Allah does not forbid you respecting those who have not made war against you on account of your religion and have not driven you forth from your homes, that you show them kindness and deal with them justly: surely Allah loves the doers of justice. Allah only forbids you respecting those who made war upon you on account of your religion and drove you forth from your homes and backed others in your expulsion, that you make friends with them." These two verses lay down a principle which explains the relations that may exist between Muslims and non-Muslims. As the preceding verses have shown and as what follows shows, the Jews assisted the enemies of Islam to make war upon the Muslims, so the Muslims were warned against close and intimate relations with them.

481 This verse clearly indicates the difficulties which the Muslims had in establishing friendly and loving relations with non-Muslims. The Muslims would fain proffer friendship, but the other party was always on the look-out for some opportunity to inflict loss on them, and the candour of the Muslims was repaid with insincerity and treachery.

482 It is to the events of the battle of Uhud that this and the following sections are devoted. In the third year of the Hejira, Abu Sufyan marched against Medina at the head of an army of three thousand and encamped at Uhud, a mountain about four miles from Medina. The Prophet at first intended to stay within the town, but afterwards marched into the open field with a thousand men, one-third of whom, under the leadership of Abdulla bin Ubayy, the great hypocrite leader, left him and returned to Medina. The enemy were first completely routed, but fifty Muslim archers, who were placed in a strong position to cut off the retreat of the enemy, made a mistake, and in order to join in the pursuit left their position. The enemy fell back upon the Muslims, who were now in disorder and had lost their naturally fortified position, and after inflicting some loss upon them, left the field secure from the pursuit of the Muslim force. It was neither a victory for the Quraish, who thought it safe to go back when they found the Muslims involved in their own troubles, nor for the Muslims, who were unable to continue their pursuit, though it was resumed next day when it was too late. Had the Quraish been victorious, they would have at least taken some prisoners from among the Muslims, but they had not a single prisoner of war, nor had they the courage to attack Medina, their real object in this expedition, and for which they gathered a strong force of ten thousand men exactly two years later.

483 The two tribes of Banu Salmá and Banu Hāriza are meant (Bkh).

484 This shows that they did not actually show cowardice. The desertion of the Muslim force by Abdulla bin Ubayy with his three hundred men made some of the Muslims also entertain the idea of deserting the army on account of superior enemy forces, but they did not after all desert it, as the words of the Qur-án clearly show.

485 The enemy numbered only one thousand where one thousand angels are stated to have been sent (8 : 9). The fulfilment of this promise is referred to in v. 151. What was

124 Yea! if you remain patient and are on your guard, and they come upon you in a headlong manner, your Lord will assist you with five thousand of the havoc-making angels.⁴⁸⁶

the object of the coming of the angels? The matter is fully explained in the 8th chapter in connection with the promise of the coming of angels in the battle of Badr. As here, it is first stated there that the promise was given only "as a good news, and that your hearts might be at ease thereby, and victory is only from Allah" (8:10), and then the verse that follows makes the object clearer: "When He caused calm to fall on you as a security from Him, and sent down upon you water from the clouds that He might thereby purify you and take away from you the uncleanness of the devil, and that He might fortify your hearts and steady your footsteps thereby." Hence the object was to strengthen the Muslims by improving their position in the field of battle and by strengthening their hearts, and this is given expression to still more clearly further on: "When your Lord revealed to the angels: I am with you, therefore make firm those who believe; I will cast terror into the hearts of those who disbelieve" (8:12), and the believers being thus strengthened while terror was cast into the enemy's heart, the object of sending the angels was achieved, and the small Muslim force was able to "strike off" the necks and "strike off every finger-tip" (8:12) of a powerful enemy that outnumbered them by three to one.

486 The word used in the original is musawwim and not musswam, and it is from سوم سوم على الفوم meaning he urged his horse against the people and made havoc among them. Hence musawwim is one who makes havoc. The assistance of the angels stated in this verse refers to a third occasion, when the enemy came "in a headlong manner," all the tribes uniting with the Quraish to crush the Muslims. This happened in the battle of Ahzab, or the Confederates, when ten thousand men suddenly attacked Medina, and the dispersal of such a large army when the Muslims were only about a thousand strong was no doubt due to Divine intervention.

487 Notwithstanding that the object of the unbelievers in their war on the Muslims was their extirpation, the Muslims are here told that the Divine object in punishing the unbelievers by war was not to extirpate them, but to cut off a part of them, or their ring-leaders and chiefs. The word taraf signifies a part or a portion of a thing (Rgh), and hence it is applied to a company of men, and also the leading men. LL translates طراف

الارض as meaning the exalted or the noble and the learned men of the earth. When the leaders of mischief were cut off, the rest would be disappointed of attaining the object of extirpating Islam, and the persecution would cease. The verses that follow corroborate this conclusion. The enemy's description as having returned disappointed of attaining what they desired in this battle shows clearly that they were not successful or victorious in the battle. Their great general Khalid became a convert to Islam on his way back to Mecca.

Ar. thou hast.

127 You have no concern in the affair whether He turns to them (mercifully) or chastises them, for surely they are unjust.⁴⁸⁸

SECTION 14

How Success can be achieved

129-138. Refraining from usurious bargains, obedience to the Apostle, spending liberally in the cause of religion and mutual forbearance, seeking Divine protection, studying the causes of the rise and fall of nations, must ultimately lead to triumph. 139. Loss already inflicted on the enemy. 140-142. Misfortune at Uhud brought about a distinction.

Or, doubling and re-doubling.

129 O you who believe! do not devour usury, making additions again and again,⁴⁹⁰ and be careful of (your duty to) Allah, that you may be successful.

130 And guard yourselves against the fire which has been prepared for the unbelievers.

بَايِعُوا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا لَا تَأْكُلُوا أَمْوَالَكُمْ
أَضْعَافًا مُّضَاعَفَةً وَاتَّقُوا اللَّهَ
لَعَلَّكُمْ تُفْلِحُونَ ٥
وَاتَّقُوا النَّارَ الَّتِي أُعِدَّتْ لِلْكَافِرِينَ ٦

488 Note how mercy has the upper hand throughout the Holy Qur-án. As a mortal the Holy Prophet might have sometimes entertained the idea that the serious crimes of his enemies would bring upon them a severe punishment which might extirpate them; but he is told in plain and simple words that he had no concern in the affair, for Allah might as well forgive them, for surely they are unjust. The reason given for showing mercy is really one which calls for punishment, yet so great is the Divine love and mercy for man that no reason for not showing mercy is too great for Divine mercy to overcome it. The all-comprehensiveness of the Divine mercy expressed in this verse is unapproached in sacred literature.

489 Allah's attribute of mercy is brought in to indicate that though their crimes were many and serious, deserving punishment, yet Allah was Merciful, and He would forgive them.

490 The original words are أَضْعَافًا مُّضَاعَفَةً which, if rendered literally, would mean likes or doubles multiplied or doubled. The idea underlying ta'rif is adding to a thing until it becomes twofold or manyfold (LL). A'd'af, being a plural of paucity, is followed by mu'da'afah to make the idea more intensive (AF). The Arab practice was that of compounding the interest, i.e. the interest was, at the end of the term for which the loan was given, added to the capital, and thus within a few years the original sum became several-fold. It may be added here that borrowing money on interest is as much against the tenets of Islam as lending it on interest; and perhaps the Muslim kingdoms would not have been ruined if they had not borrowed money on interest from other peoples, which gave foreigners the first opportunity to interfere in their affairs. This would to some extent

131 And obey Allah and the Apostle, that you may be shown mercy.⁴⁹¹

* 2454A. 132 And hasten to forgiveness from your Lord and a Garden, the extensiveness of which is (as) the heavens and the earth^a; it is prepared for those who guard (against evil):

Ar while they know. 134 And those who when they commit an indecency or do injustice to their souls remember Allah and ask forgiveness for their faults and who forgives the faults but Allah? and (who) do not knowingly persist in what they have done.

135 (As for) these—their reward is forgiveness from their Lord, and gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide in them, and excellent is the reward of the labourers.

show the relation of the subject of usury to that of wars. But there is also another reason for mentioning it in connection with wars, which is that, notwithstanding the strained relations between the Muslims and the non-Muslims, the former still entered into usurious bargains with the latter, which, in addition to being a large drain upon the finances of the Muslim society, created difficulties in the political relations in the state of warfare on which the two communities had now entered, the great money-lending race of the Jews being also among the opponents of Islam. Moreover, as the chapter deals in particular with the Jews, the Muslims are warned against all those evils, of which usury was one, which had dealt a deathblow to the noble qualities of the Jewish race.

491 The loss suffered at Uhud was due to disobedience in relation to a certain position, which having been forsaken against the orders of the Prophet, the retreating Meccan army turned upon the pursuers, among whom disorder had ensued, and several Muslims were slain, the Prophet himself being wounded.

492 Restraining of anger, pardoning, and doing good to each other strengthen the bond of union which is so necessary for success. The verse has on many occasions inspired the noblest thoughts of toleration and charitableness. Hasan's servant having on one occasion thrown a boiling hot dish on his master, obtained his liberty along with monetary help by reciting this verse. Thinking that he would be punished for his fault, he repeated the words: "Those who restrain their anger." Hasan said he was not angry: "And pardon men," added the servant. Hasan said: "I pardon you." "And Allah loves the doers of good," concluded the offending slave. "I give you liberty and four hundred pieces of silver," was the response. "A noble instance of moderation and generosity," is Sale's comment upon this incident.

Or, ways.

136 Indeed there have been *examples*⁴⁹³ before you; therefore travel in the earth and see what was the end of the rejecters.

137 This is a clear statement for men, and a guidance and an admonition to those who guard (against evil).

138 And be not infirm, and be not grieving, and you shall have the upper hand if you are believers.

493 Sunan is plural of sunnat, meaning a way or manner of acting or conduct or life or the like (JL). Hence the significance here is ways or examples of Allah's dealing with the righteous and the wicked (Bd).

494 That Allah knows all that is seen or unseen and all that is manifest or concealed is asserted in numerous places in the Holy Qur-ān. The knowing here and the not knowing in v. 141 refer to a knowledge of the event. Allah knew who would prove themselves true believers, who would strive hard in His way, and who would be patient under trials; but who did prove themselves true believers, who did strive hard, and who were patient in suffering could only be said to be known when these things had happened.

495 This refers to the desire of those who insisted that they should meet the enemy in the open field, while the Holy Prophet's own desire was that the Muslims should defend themselves within Medina. Their desire for fighting the enemy or for being slain in the cause of truth is called a desire for death, because it was a cause of death.

SECTION 15

Sufferings should be met with Perseverance

143, 144. The Prophet's death could not make the Muslims turn back to evil and idolatry. 145-147. Companions of prophets did not give way before sufferings.

143 And Muhammad is no more than an apostle; the apostles have already passed away before him;⁴⁹⁶ if then he dies or is killed, will you turn back upon your heels? And whoever turns back upon his heels, he will by no means do harm to Allah in the least; and Allah will reward the grateful;⁴⁹⁷

144 And a soul will not die but with the permission of Allah; the term is fixed;⁴⁹⁸ and whoever desires the reward of this world, We will give him of it, and whoever desires the reward of the hereafter, We will give him of it; and We will reward the grateful.

145 And how many a prophet has fought with whom were many worshippers of the Lord;⁴⁹⁹ so they did not become weak-hearted on account of what befell them in Allah's way, nor did they weaken, nor did they abase themselves; and Allah loves the patient.

496 The Holy Prophet received severe wounds in the battle of Uhud, insomuch that it was thought that he was killed. It is to this that the verse refers. Even if the Prophet were killed, Islam was so far superior to all forms of faith that the Muslims could not go back to their former religions. Truth was truth, though its advocate might be killed in a battle, and truth was not to be forsaken; nor could falsehood and superstition be accepted, though their advocates might prevail for a time.

While this verse lays stress on the essential truth of Islam, it served another important purpose at the death of the Holy Prophet. Some of the companions thought that the Prophet was not dead. Abu Bakr went in, and seeing that life had departed, ascended the pulpit and read this verse, which had a magical effect upon his hearers, all of them being convinced that the Holy Prophet had passed away, as all prophets had passed away before him. The prophets were but mortals, and their span of mortal life must no doubt terminate like that of other mortals. This verse affords a conclusive proof that Jesus Christ was also dead, otherwise Abu Bakr's arguments could not have silenced the doubters of the Holy Prophet's death.

497 The doing of harm to Allah stands for the doing of harm to the Divine cause, i.e. the truth as represented by Islam.

Causes of the Misfortune in the Battle of Uhud

148-150. Dread will be cast into the hearts of the opponents. 151. Delinquency of a part of Muslim troops after victory in fulfilment of Divine promise. 152. The enemy took advantage of disorder. 153. Tranquility after the loss and murmurings of a certain class. 154. Delinquents pardoned.

498 These words seem to refer to the death of the Holy Prophet, giving an assurance to the Muslims that the time of his death had not yet come. They also point to the special Divine protection of the Holy Prophet, for were it not for Divine protection he could not have escaped from death under such critical circumstances (Rz).

499 For the meaning of ribbi see foot-note 456. It is a curious coincidence that Sale, Rodwell, and Palmer have all given a wrong translation of this verse: "How many prophets have encountered those who had many myriads of troops." This is Sale's rendering, and the others are similar. I find no commentator lending any support to this significance, nor can the words bear this interpretation.

500 The war was carried on only with the object of making the Muslims renounce their religion, and hence they could not think of accepting the unbelievers as their rulers, for obedience on their part was sure to lead to persecution, which the enemy would not have stopped until they had made the Muslims renounce their faith.

501 Notwithstanding the great preponderance of their numbers, the Muslims being less than one-fourth of their opponents, and not so well equipped as their foes, and in spite of the disorder into which the Muslim forces had fallen, the enemy had to flee, leaving the Muslims in the field, not even making a show of attacking Medina, which was quite 151 And certainly Allah made good to you His promise,⁵⁰² when you slew them by His permission, until when you became weak-hearted and disputed about the affair and disobeyed after He had shown you that which you loved;⁵⁰³ of you were some who desired this world, and of you were some who desired the hereafter;⁵⁰⁴ then He turned you away from them that He might try you;⁵⁰⁵ and He has certainly pardoned you, and Allah is Gracious to the believers.

152 When you ran off precipitately, and did not wait for any one, and the Apostle was calling you from your rear, so He gave you another sorrow instead of (your) sorrow, so that you might not grieve at what had escaped you, nor (at) what befell you; and Allah is aware of what you do.⁵⁰⁶

153 Then after sorrow He sent down security upon you, defenceless. This clearly shows that they were terror-stricken even after they had inflicted some loss upon the Muslims, considering it safer to retreat to Mecca while the Muslims were yet occupied with their own troubles and were unable to pursue them.

502 The promise is contained in v. 123.

503 It clearly shows that the Muslims had obtained a victory at Uhud, later incidents depriving them of the fruits of that victory.

504 Two parties are here spoken of, those who desired this world and those who desired the hereafter. It should be remembered that these were the two parties of the body of archers (fifty in number) who were placed in an important position to cut off the enemy's retreat. When the enemy was apparently routed, some of these archers were led by the love of plunder to leave their position, while their chief, Abdulla bin Jubair, and only some ten men stuck to their post (Riz). Thus the words refer to the two parties of the small body of archers.

505 The enemy, who was being pursued, turned against the pursuers on seeing the important position of the archers vacated.

506 It refers to the Prophet's call, at whom the Muslims now saw the attack of the enemy was directed. So they did not grieve for losing an opportunity of pursuing the enemy, but for the dangerous position in which they saw their Prophet. This is, in fact, plainly stated in what follows: "So that you might not grieve at what had escaped you," i.e. the booty which they would have had by pursuing the flying enemy, "nor at what befell you," i.e. the slight loss which they themselves suffered. Aḡāba-hu ordinarily means he recompensed him, but sometimes it conveys the idea of giving one thing instead of another, as in هَبْنَهُ مِنْ هِبَتِهِ which means he gave him a substitute, something instead or in exchange or a compensation for his gift (LL).

Or, sleep.

507 Nu'as, according to Rgh, means slight sleep, but after giving this significance he adds: It is said that nu'as here implies calm and quiet. I adopt this significance, because the idea is more in consonance with the field of battle. But if we adopt the first significance, it must have happened when the enemy departed. The slumber was a sign of security, for no army could have gone to rest while yet in the field of battle if it had the least anxiety as to its security. Whichever significance may be adopted, it shows clearly that the enemy had not inflicted a defeat upon the Muslims, for if the Muslims had been defeated an army of three thousand ought to have succeeded in utterly destroying a small force of seven hundred which was now quite disordered. What happened was really this: seeing the Muslims pursuing them in disorder, and finding the archers' position vacated, a party of the enemy directed a severe attack against the Holy Prophet to cover the retreat of the rest, and when the Muslims became aware of the danger and rallied round the Prophet, the enemy retreated secure from pursuit.

508 The persons spoken of here are the disaffected who had taken no part in the fighting, but some of them might have remained with the Muslims. They now gave vent to their hidden rancour against the Muslims. The evil thoughts which they entertained about Allah, were, that Allah had not helped them as the Prophet had said.

ظَنِّ الْجَاهِلِيَّةِ means either thoughts of the party of ignorance or of the days of ignorance.

509 Their murmurings were due to the fact that their counsel as to remaining in Medina and defending themselves within the town was not accepted, for the opinion of the majority was in favour of meeting the enemy in the open field.

510 Their contention was that the disaster would not have befallen the Muslims if their advice as to remaining within the town had been accepted.

511 By those for whom slaughter was ordained are meant the Muslims, slaughter here meaning the slaughter of, or fighting with, the enemy. The weak-hearted who murmured are told that even if they had not marched forth to meet the enemy the true believers would surely have come out, and the desertion of the weak-hearted would not have deterred the true believers (Rz). Or, the meaning may be that the disaster was the result of disobedience, and even if they had remained within Medina, disobedience would have brought about a similar result.

was in your hearts; and Allah knows what is in the breasts.⁵¹²

154 (As for) those of you who turned back on the day when the two armies met, only the devil sought to cause them to make a slip on account of some deeds they had done, and certainly Allah has pardoned them; surely Allah is Forgiving, Forbearing.

The Battle of Uhud distinguished the Faithful from the Hypocrites

155-157. Cause of the trouble. 158, 159. Necessity of consultation. 160-163. The Prophet would not have deprived the archers of their share, for he was not only pure but a purifier of others. 164-167. The hypocrites separated. 168-170. The martyrs.

155 O you who believe! be not like those who disbelieve and say of their brethren when they travel in the earth or engage in fighting: Had they been with us, they would not have died and they would not have been slain;⁵¹³ so Allah makes this to be an intense regret in their hearts; and Allah gives life and causes death; and Allah sees what you do.

156 And if you are slain in the way of Allah or you die, certainly forgiveness from Allah and mercy is better than what they amass.

157 And if indeed you die or you are slain, certainly to Allah shall you be gathered together.

158 Thus it is due to mercy from Allah that you deal with them gently, and had you been rough, hard-hearted, they 512 This explains what is meant by Allah's testing what is in the hearts. He knows it, and His testing it means making it manifest to others.

513 By "their brethren" are meant their relatives who had accepted Islam, and who were not therefore now safe when they travelled in the land, or who had to lay down their lives in defence of their faith. Yet ultimately they themselves had to regret not having accepted Islam.

514 It is remarkable that the Holy Qur-án calls attention to the Prophet's gentle dealing with those around him when speaking of his experience in the field of battle as a general leading his men against overwhelming forces, a capacity which required him to be very strict in punishing any delinquency, especially when disobedience to express orders had brought about such a heavy disaster. But no, he was not a mere general. His ability in leading his men, in occupying positions of advantage in the field of battle, and in directing a handful of men to face three, four, and sometimes ten times their own number, marks him out as the ablest general the world has ever seen, yet his gentle manners and his practical forbearance in dealing with his friends as well as foes stand in remarkable contrast with his capacity as a commander in the field of battle. It is related that after the Uhud trouble the Prophet did not speak even a harsh word to those who were guilty of disobeying his orders (Rz).

The Qur-án is full of references to the Holy Prophet's gentleness and kind dealing with his fellow-men. The following verse gives us an insight into this trait of his character: "Certainly an apostle has come to you from among yourselves; grievous to him is your falling into distress, excessively solicitous respecting you, to the believers he is compassionate, merciful" (9 : 128).

515 The Prophet had gone out to meet the enemy as the result of a council, and against his own inclination, for he sided with the minority in the opinion that they should not meet the enemy in the open field. Apparently that council had brought about the present trouble, yet so firm was he in adhering to sound principles that at such a critical time he did not waver for a minute from the course of taking counsel in important matters, and just at this juncture we find Divine revelation clearly laying down the principle of adhering to counsel.

516 It should be noted that trusting in Allah, in the language of the Qur-án, does not imply inaction. Everything necessary is to be done, a course of action must be deter-

162 There are (varying) grades with Allah, and Allah sees what they do.

163 Certainly Allah conferred a benefit upon the believers when He raised among them an Apostle from among themselves, reciting to them His communications and purifying them, and teaching them the Book and the wisdom, although before that they were surely in manifest error.

164 What! when a misfortune befell you, and you had certainly afflicted (the unbelievers) with twice as much, you began to say: Whence is this? Say: It is from yourselves; surely Allah has power over all things.⁵¹⁸ mined in the proper manner, and then in pursuing that course trust must be placed in Allah, which clearly implies that a man should do his utmost and then leave the consequences in Allah's hand; that is, he must be resigned to what follows, taking the consequences with a cool mind.

517 The disaster at Uhud was due to the fact that some of the archers thought they would be deprived of their share in the booty. They are told that an ordinary commander might have been guilty of such unfaithfulness towards his men, but not a prophet, who was raised for the purification of others (see v. 163).

518 The unbelievers had already suffered twice at the hands of the Muslims, once in the field of Badr and again in the early stages of the battle of Uhud.

519 If they could not realize what was meant by fighting in Allah's way they could easily see that they stood in need of defending themselves. In fact, the alternative phrase is introduced to explain the necessity of fighting to such as were unable to grasp the real significance of fighting in Allah's way, or in the cause of truth, for self-defence required the community to fight for its life.

520 Or the meaning may be, if we knew that it was a fight, it being implied that the Muslims were going, not to fight, but to sure destruction with such a disparity in numbers.

521 The Meccan army was pursued the next day to a place known as Hamra-ul-asad, under which name the expedition is known; but they dare not encounter the Muslims, notwithstanding their superior numbers. The verses that follow (172-174) refer to the expedition known as Badr-us-Sughra (the smaller Badr) undertaken next year because Abu Sufyan, commander of the Meccan army, announced, when leaving the field of Uhud, that he would meet the Muslims the following year at Badr, but notwithstanding its threats the Meccan army never marched forth.

Ar. thee. 175 And let not those grieve you who fall into unbelief hastily; surely they can do no harm to Allah at all; Allah intends that He should not give them any portion in the hereafter, and they shall have a grievous chastisement.

176 Surely those who have bought unbelief at the price of faith shall do no harm at all to Allah, and they shall have a painful chastisement.

Ar. the 177 And let not those who disbelieve think that our granting them respite is better for their souls: We grant them respite only that they may add to their sins; and they shall have a disgraceful chastisement.

178 On no account will Allah leave the believers in the condition which you are in until He separates the evil from the good; nor is Allah going to make you acquainted with the unseen, but Allah chooses of His apostles whom He pleases; therefore believe in Allah and His apostles; and if you believe and guard (against evil), then you shall have a great reward.

SECTION 19

Carpings of the Followers of the Book

180. Jewish carpings at the Prophet's calling for subscriptions. 181-184. Their refusal to accept any prophet who did not follow the Mosaic law. 185. Muslims will have to suffer loss of property and life and also to bear with abusive language. 186-188. Covenant to keep the Book intact and its violation.

180 Allah has certainly heard the saying of those who said: Surely Allah is poor and we are rich. We will record what they say, and their killing the prophets unjustly, and We will say: Taste the chastisement of burning.⁵²⁴

181 This is for what your own hands have sent before and because Allah is not in the least unjust to the servants.

182 (Those are they) who said: Surely Allah has enjoined us that we should not believe in any apostle until he brings us an offering which the fire consumes.⁵²⁵ Say: Indeed,

لَقَدْ سَمِعَ اللَّهُ قَوْلَ الَّذِينَ قَالُوا
إِنَّ اللَّهَ فَقِيرٌ وَنَحْنُ أَغْنِيَاءُ سَنَكْتُبُ
مَا قَالُوا وَتَنَالُهُمُ الْعَذَابُ يُغَارِظُونَ
وَقَوْلُ دُفُّوا عَذَابَ الْحَرِيقِ

522 An emissary hired by the Meccans to spread terror among the Muslims, said to be Nu'aim, is the devil spoken of here (Rz). At any rate it was the devil in human form.

523 The same idea, though in more general terms, as to the effect of deeds being bound to the neck, is expressed in 17: 13: "And We have made every man's actions to cling to his neck; and We will bring forth to him on the resurrection day a book which he will find wide open." Thus every man carries the effect of his deeds with him in this life, but on the day of resurrection that effect will become clearly visible. Thus is the effect of niggardliness made to cling to the necks of the niggardly. The verse no doubt gives us a picture of the holy mind, which hated niggardliness, of one of whom it is said in trustworthy reports that he never rejected a petitioner and that he was the most charitable of men.

524 These were certain Jews who ridiculed the poverty of the Muslims and their borrowings from the Jewish money-lenders. They also ridiculed the raising of funds for the defence of the faith by subscriptions. See 716 and 5: 64.

525 The reference is to the burnt-offerings of the Mosaic law, for which see Lev. 1: 9: "And the priest shall burn all on the altar, to be a burnt-sacrifice, an offering made by 184 Every soul shall taste of death, and you shall only be paid fully your reward on the resurrection day; then whoever is removed far away from the fire and is made to enter the garden, he indeed has attained the object; and the life of this world is nothing but a provision of vanities.

185 You shall certainly be tried respecting your wealth and your souls, and you shall certainly hear from those who have been given the Book before you and from those who are polytheists much annoying talk; ⁵²⁸ and if you are patient fire," and Deut. 33 : 10 where, blessing Israel, Moses says : "They shall put incense before thee, and whole burnt-sacrifice upon thine altar." Compare also Lev. 8 : 18. The demand of the Jews that the Holy Prophet should bring to them an offering which the fire should consume is only a demand for the burnt-offering of the Israelite law, so that what they persisted in was that the promised prophet should be an Israelite and should revive the Israelite law, forgetting the promise of Deut. 18 : 18, which only promised a prophet from among their brethren, i.e. the Ishmaelites, and a prophet like Moses, who could not therefore be a follower of the Mosaic law.

526 The carpenters are here told that they even killed those prophets who followed the Mosaic law, who came "with that which you demand," hence their rejection was due to the stubbornness of their hearts and not to want of proof.

527 The prophets are said to have come with three things—with arguments and with the subur and the illuminating book, and I have translated subur as meaning the scriptures. Zubur is the plural of subrah, which means a big piece of iron, and of zabūr, which signifies a written thing. According to Rgh every book which is hard in writing is called a sabūr. According to LL sabūr signifies a divine book which it is difficult to become acquainted with. Zj says every book full of wisdom is a sabūr (Rz). The commentators generally understand by the subur the sacred scriptures of the prophets and by the illuminating book the book containing the Mosaic law, though some would add in the latter category the Psalms of David and the Gospel of Jesus (Rz). I am of opinion that by the subur are here meant the prophecies or the merely prophetic writings, and by the illuminating book the book containing the guidance which every prophet brought to his people, so that they should follow those directions.

528 This was never so true as at the present time. During the past century Muslims have constantly been turned out of their homes, and Muslim States have been swept out of and guard (against evil), surely this is one of the affairs (which should be) determined upon.

186 And when Allah made a covenant with those who were given the Book: You shall certainly make it known to men and you shall not hide it; but they cast it behind their backs and took a small price for it; so evil is that which they buy.

187 Do not think those who rejoice for what they have done and love that they should be praised for what they have not done—so do by no means think them to be safe from the chastisement, and they shall have a painful chastisement.

188 And Allah's is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth, and Allah has power over all things.

Ultimate Triumph of the Faithful

189-193. Prayer of the faithful for fulfilment of the Divine promise of triumph. 194-198. Acceptance of prayer and triumph predicted. 199. But they must remain firm and always ready to meet trouble

189 Most surely in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day there are signs for men of understanding.

190 Those who remember Allah standing and sitting and lying on their sides and reflect on the creation of the heavens and the earth: Our Lord! Thou hast not created this in vain! glory be to Thee! save us then from the chastisement of the fire;

191 Our Lord! surely whomsoever Thou makest enter the fire, him Thou hast indeed brought to disgrace, and there shall be no helpers for the unjust:

existence and hundreds of thousands of Muslims have been killed for no other offence than that they were Muslims. And the abusive language of the Christian political as well as missionary Press, and of their imitators in the Hindoo Press, has outstepped all limits.

192 Our Lord! surely we have heard a preacher calling to the faith, saying: Believe in your Lord; so we did believe; Our Lord! forgive us therefore our faults, and cover our evil deeds and make us die with the righteous.

193 Our Lord! and grant us what Thou hast promised us by Thy apostles and disgrace us not on the day of resurrection; surely Thou dost not fail to perform the promise.

As for them.

194 So their Lord accepted their prayer: That I will not waste the work of a worker among you, whether male or female, the one of you being from the other; they, therefore, who fled and were turned out of their homes and persecuted in My way and who fought and were slain, I will most certainly cover their evil deeds, and I will most certainly make them enter gardens beneath which rivers flow: a reward from Allah, and with Allah is yet better reward.⁵²⁹

195 Let it not deceive you that those who disbelieve act in the cities as they please.⁵³⁰

196 A brief enjoyment! then their abode is hell: and evil is the resting-place.

197 But as to those who are careful of (their duty to) their Lord, they shall have gardens beneath which rivers flow, abiding in them; an entertainment from their Lord, and that which is with Allah is best for the righteous.

198 And most surely of the followers of the Book there are those who believe in Allah 529 This is a promise which includes all those companions of the Holy Prophet who fled from their homes, and those who were persecuted, and those who fought in his company. The concluding words of the verse show that the promise to make them enter gardens relates to this life, and its fulfilment was brought about in the conquest of Mesopotamia. The reward of the hereafter is spoken of in the words, with Allah is yet better reward.

530 تقلب في البلاد is translated as meaning coming in and going out of the cities in English translations, but its correct meaning is acting as one pleases (LL, TA). The idea is that their apparent mastery will soon be brought to an end.

CHAPTER IV

THE WOMEN

(An-Nisā)

REVEALED AT MEDINA
(24 sections and 177 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Duties of guardians towards their orphan wards.

- Sec. 20. Equitable dealings with all men and condemnation of Jewish hypocrisy.
- Sec. 21. End of the Jewish hypocrites.
- Sec. 22. Transgressions of the Jews.
- Sec. 23. Previous revelation bears out the truth of the Qur-ān.
- Sec. 24. Prophethood of Jesus and a reversion to the law of inheritance.

Title and connection.

THIS chapter is named the women because it deals chiefly with the rights of women.

Though the concluding words of the last chapter and the opening words of this are almost identical, yet the real connection of the two lies in the fact that the latter portion of the third chapter deals with the battle of Unud, while this opens with a discussion of the circumstances to which that battle had given rise. For the decimation of the Muslim force had left a large number of orphans and widows to be looked after, and it is with duties towards these two classes that the chapter opens.

Subject-matter.

As already stated, this chapter deals chiefly with the circumstances arising out of the battle of Uhud, and this fact must be borne in mind in considering the question of the continuity and uniformity of its subject-matter. The chief features of the battle of Uhud were the large number of the Muslims killed and the desertion of the hypocrites; while following it were circumstances which brought about a final rupture with the Jews. The first of these circumstances necessitated a discussion of the rights of orphans and women, and the first six sections are accordingly taken up with that subject. The opening section lays down injunctions relating to the duties of guardians towards their orphan wards. The second section brings woman to a status of equality with man, and lays down a new law of inheritance, for among the Arabs a woman had no right to inherit the property of a deceased relative. The third section deals with the treatment of women in general and denounces the practice of claiming women as a part of inheritance. The fourth section discusses what women may not be taken in marriage, and the fifth gives them the right of disposing of their earnings as they please; while the sixth first points out the remedy when there is a disagreement between the husband and the wife and then inculcates the principle of charity in general, introducing the subject of hypocrisy towards its close.

After having laid stress, in the seventh and the eighth sections, upon external as well as internal purity, showing how the Jews had neglected the latter of these and how, for no other reason than envy of the Muslims, they had sided with the polytheists, and after having enjoined upon the Muslims to be strictly firm in justice, we are led on in the ninth section to the dealings of the hypocrites who had refused to accept the Prophet's judgment in going out to meet the enemy, and then told in the tenth that the question of war was a question of life and death for the Muslims. The eleventh section deals with the attitude of the hypocrites, and the twelfth shows how waverers are to be dealt with. The thirteenth states when and to what extent a murderer of a Muslim is excusable, because it was very often by treachery or hypocrisy that the Muslims were killed; while the fourteenth shows that those Muslims who were compelled to remain with the enemy against their own wishes were excusable. The fifteenth warns the Muslims against being surprised in battle when saying their prayers. The sixteenth and the seventeenth refer to the secret counsels of the hypocrites. The eighteenth condemns idolatry, because it is the idolatrous hypocrites that are spoken of throughout the previous sections, and the subject is thus brought to a close.

Previous to the introduction of the third chief subject of this chapter there is a reversion in the nineteenth section to equitable dealings with orphans and women, and the subject is generalized in the twentieth; while in the same section the hypocrites from among the Jews are dealt with. The next predicts their end, at the same time showing that belief in previous prophets could do them no good if they rejected the Holy Prophet. The twenty-second speaks of their transgressions and of their false allegations regarding the death of Jesus on the cross. The twenty-third section tells them that the whole of the previous prophecy pointed to the appearance of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, while the last one, after referring briefly to Christian error in deifying Jesus, closes with a reversion to the subject of inheritance, hinting at the passing of the inheritance of prophethood from the house of Israel to the house of Ishmael.

Date of revelation.

As this chapter treats of many of the questions arising out of the battle of Uhud, there seems to be little doubt that it was revealed immediately after that battle. And thus, as in arrangement so in the order of revelation, it follows the last chapter. The main portion of it thus belongs to the fourth year of Hejira, while there is no reason to deny that some portions may have been revealed towards the close of the third or the beginning of the fifth year. Noeldke's suggestion, however, that vv. 115-125 and 130-132 belong to Meccan revelation, based as it is on the mere fact that the Jews are there "referred to in a friendly spirit," is quite wrong, because, as shown in 478 and elsewhere, the Holy Prophet was fair to the Jews even when they were most inimical to him, and the verses referred to may therefore belong to the fourth or the fifth year of the Hejira.

Duties of Guardians towards their Orphan Wards

1. Respect for ties of relationship. 2. Property of orphans not to be wasted. 3, 4. Polygamous marriages permitted for the care of orphans. 5, 6. Guardianship of orphans. 7. Inheritance to devolve on males as well as females. 8, 9. Distant but poor relatives to be treated charitably. 10. Warning against embezzlement of property of orphans.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 O people! be careful of (your duty to) your Lord, who created you from a single being and created its mate of the same (kind)⁵³¹ and spread from these two many men and women;⁵³² and be careful of (your duty to) Allah, by whom you demand one of another (your rights), and (to) the ties of relationship.⁵³³ surely Allah ever watches over you.

Ar. wombs.

2 And give to the orphans their property, and do not substitute worthless (things) for 531 The word nafs has two significances. Abu Ishaq says: "The word nafs is used in the language of the Arabs in two ways, one of which is your saying خرجت نفسه where by nafs is implied ruh or soul, and according to the other use the significance of nafs is the whole of a thing, and its essence" (TA). It is in this latter sense that the creation of mates is spoken of in the Holy Qur-ān, and hence the correct rendering of nafs on such occasions is kind, which implies the essence. This is made clear in 16: 72: "And Allah has made wives for you from among yourselves," i.e. of the same kind and essence as you are. The original words which are rendered in the verse quoted above as meaning from among yourselves are min anfusi-kum, which may mean either from your souls or from your kind, and it will be seen that the latter significance is the only one that can be accepted. Some commentators have taken this to be the significance here, among them Ibn-i-Bahr and Abu Muslim, who give the significance as being خلق من جنسها زوجها i.e. He created its mate of the same kind (AH, Rz). Hasan also explains the words as meaning من جنسها i.e. of the same kind (AH on 7: 189).

Thus the words declare the unity of the human race and the equality of the male and the female.

532 "Many men and women" spring from married pairs. I do not think that the verse necessarily refers to any parent pair of the whole of mankind. The underlying significance seems to be to remind men of the strength of the ties of relationship, an idea finding clear expression in what follows.

533 The original word is arḥām, plural of raḥim, which means womb or the place of origin of the young; hence relationship (by some restricted to relationship by the female side only) or ties of relationship (TA-LL). Hence وصل الرحم indicates kindness to kindred, and قطع الرحم unkind behaviour to kindred.

534 The care of the orphan was one of the very first injunctions which Islam laid down, and the Holy Prophet had always shown a deep anxiety for the welfare of the poor and the orphans, whom he required to be treated in no way beneath other members of society. See 282 and 283, and also 90: 15, 16, which describe the care of "the orphan and the poor man lying in dust" as an up-hill task, but one which must be accomplished. The subject is here introduced in detail on account of the number of orphans having been greatly increased by the war.

535 This passage permits polygamy under certain circumstances: it does not enjoin it nor even permit it unconditionally. It may be noted here that the explanation of this passage as generally understood is based on a report contained in the Muslim, according to which 'Ayesha understood this verse as meaning that if the guardians of orphan girls feared that by marrying them they would not be able to do justice to them, they should marry other women. This explanation, even if the report be taken to be authentic, requires the insertion into the passage of a number of words which the original does not contain, and as the meaning is much more clear, and more in consonance with the context, without the addition of these words, the interpretation given below is preferable. It is admitted that this chapter was revealed to guide the Muslims under the conditions which followed the battle of Uhud, and the last portion of the last chapter deals with that battle. Now in that battle 70 men out of 700 Muslims had been slain, and this decimation had largely decreased the number of males, who, being the breadwinners, were the natural guardians and supporters of the females. The number was likely to suffer a still greater diminution in the battles which had yet to be fought, while the number of women would be increased by the addition of prisoners of war. Thus many orphans would be left in the charge of widows, who would find it difficult to procure the necessary means of support. Hence in the first verse of this chapter the Muslims are enjoined to respect the ties of relationship, and as they all came from a single ancestor, a breadth is introduced into the idea of relationship, inasmuch as they are told that they are all in fact related to each other. In the second verse the care of orphans is particularly enjoined. In the third verse we are told that if they could not do justice to the orphans, they might marry the widows, whose children would thus become their own children, and as the number of women was now much greater than the number of men, they were permitted to marry even two or three or four women. It would thus be clear that the permission to have more than one wife was given under the peculiar circumstances of the Muslim society then existing, and the Prophet's action in marrying widows, as well as the example of many of his companions, corroborates this statement. Marriage with orphan girls is also sanctioned in this passage, for there were the same difficulties in the case of orphan girls as in the case of widows, and the words are general. See also 631.

It may be added here that polygamy in Islam is both in theory and in practice an exception, not a rule, and as an exception it is a remedy for many of the evils especially prevalent in European society. It is not only the preponderance of females over males that necessitates polygamy in certain cases, but there is a variety of other circumstances which require polygamy to be adopted under exceptional circumstances, not only for the moral but also for the physical welfare of society. Prostitution, the great evil of civilization, which is a real canker, with its concomitant increase of bastardy, is practically unknown to countries where polygamy is allowed as a remedial measure.

536 By what your right hands possess are meant the females who were taken prisoners in war. The Qur-án sanctions marriage with them in this verse. As for the conditions of that marriage, see 561. I do not find any verse in the Holy Qur-án, or any instance in the Prophet's life, sanctioning so-called concubinage.

537 It is necessary that a "dowry" should be given to every woman taken in marriage, whether she is a free woman, an orphan girl, or a prisoner of war. So every woman begins her married life as the owner of some property, and thus marriage is the means of raising her status, in many respects elevating her to a plane of equality with her husband.

538 By your property is meant the property of the orphans which is under your control as guardians. The verse lays down the principle of the Court of Wards. It requires guardianship in the case of all who are weak of understanding, whether minors or others.

539 Qiyám is an infinitive noun, and means a sustenance or that which maintains or supports. As property is the means of support or sustenance, it is called a support or sustenance. While on the one hand the Qur-án lays stress on the transitoriness of this life, on the other it teaches that wealth is not a thing to be despised or wasted, because it is the chief means of support.

540 According to AH the meaning of فيها و ارزقوهم فيها is: "Make it a means of sustaining them so that you trade with it and make it profitable, and so that you may be able to defray their expenses from the profit and not from the capital." Rz gives a similar explanation. There is also a saying of the Holy Prophet in this connection: "Trading should be resorted to with respect to the property of the orphans so that the poor-rate may not consume it" (AH).

541 According to Abú Hanífaḥ puberty is attained at eighteen years, which is therefore the limit of minority, but if at that age maturity of intellect is not attained, the limit may be extended (Bd, Rz).

542 The meaning is: do not hasten to spend the property of minors with a view to wasting it before they attain their majority.

543 These words allow payment of reasonable wages to the manager of a ward's estate out of a ward's property if the manager is not a rich man. The amount charged must be reasonable, taking into consideration the value of the property and the work of management.

544 Among the Arabs women and children had no share in inheritance, for they used to say: "None shall inherit but he who smites with the spear" (Rz). The reason is to be found in the fact that the normal condition in Arabia before Islam was a continual state of war, and only those who could go out to fight were taken into account. This great reform, by which the status of women was raised from the lowest condition to that of equality with man, clearly indicated that peace would be established in the peninsula.

The principle laid down in this verse is the basis of the Muslim law of inheritance. Children and near relatives, or failing these, distant relatives, whether males or females, are the lawful heirs, and the whole of the property does not go to the eldest son. Whatever objection there may be to this principle on the ground of division of property into parcels, there is not the least doubt that the rule is in accordance with the broad principle of the brotherhood of man which Islam seeks to establish.

545 By these are meant those distant relatives who for any reason are not entitled to inherit (Rz).

546 By females are here meant the female children. When the daughters are the sole heirs they are entitled to a share of two-thirds. The share of two-thirds to which "more than two" daughters are entitled remains the same even when the daughters are two only; and so in practice they have always been judged to be entitled to two-thirds of the property. This is further evident from the analogy of two sisters, who are entitled to two-thirds of the property when they are the sole heirs (see v. 177). As to those different cases in which there are others who inherit along with them, they are also considered in this verse and in that which follows.

547 This is the second case, and it deals with the question of inheritance when the deceased is survived by parents. In this case the parents first take their respective shares, and the residue goes to the children, if there are any, failing which, the share of the parents is increased. But in case the deceased has brothers the mother receives the same share as she would have received if the deceased had children.

It may be noted that in all cases the payment of bequests and debts take precedence of the shares of the heirs.

548 This is the third case, and it deals with the question when the deceased leaves a husband or a wife with or without children. The husband or the wife takes his or her share first, as in the case of parents, and the residue goes to the children.

If there are parents as well as husband or wife and children, the first two would take their shares first, and the residue would go to the children, whether males alone or females alone or males and females mixed. The two-thirds share for two or more daughters can only be given when there are neither parents, nor husband or wife; otherwise they take the residue, as in the case of sons or sons and daughters.

I know that practice is against this, and it is due to this that what is technically known as 'aul is rendered necessary. The 'aul, as reports show, was first legalized by 'Ali, the fourth Caliph, who, being questioned about the share of a wife, the other heirs being the two parents and two daughters, gave the answer "without premeditation" that the wife's one-eighth had become one-ninth, for the two parents should take one-third, the two daughters two-thirds, and the wife one-eighth, which being added up would give nine-eighths, and hence 'Ali decided that each of the heirs should take less than was due, so that the proportion might remain the same (TA). The difficulty would not have arisen if there had been sons instead of daughters or sons along with daughters. If 'Ali had decided to give the residue to the two daughters after taking away the wife's one-eighth and the parents' one-third, as he would have done in the case of two sons or a son and a daughter, the question of 'aul would not have arisen in this case. Later jurists have only followed 'Ali.

549 By a brother or a sister is meant a brother or a sister on the mother's side (Bd). A similar case when the deceased has neither parents nor offspring, and has brothers or sisters or both (where real brothers and sisters, or brothers and sisters on the father's side are meant), is dealt with in the concluding verse of this chapter.

550 Both these cases deal with the question of inheritance when the deceased is a kaldilah, i.e. he leaves neither parents nor children. The brothers and the sisters take the place of children in such a case. As in the case of those who have no children there is much likelihood of their burdening the estate with unnecessary debts, or even admitting debts that have not really been contracted, and of making bequests that would leave nothing for legal heirs, the words without harming others are added to make it clear that debts and bequests in such a case shall not prejudice the rights of the legal heirs.

551 Al-fāḥishah signifies anything exceeding the bounds of rectitude (gross, immodest, lewd, obscene) (Mgh-I.L.); and fāḥishah, or exceeding the bounds of rectitude, in women may mean their going out without permission (Msb, Mgh-I.L.) or their using foul language (Ashshafā'i-I.L.). Though the word is no doubt used sometimes as meaning fornication, the context shows that here it is used to signify any immoral conduct short of fornication, for the punishment of fornication is given elsewhere, and the words of the verse that follows, referring as they do to the same immoral act as is mentioned here, with the indefinite nature of punishment, which in the case of an act short of fornication could not be made definite and ought to be varied with the nature of the crime, strengthens this position. The punishment in the case of women is the curtailing of their liberty, so that they should not be free to go out of their houses. If they then mend their ways, a way is opened for them by Allah, and they regain their liberty ; if they do not, the curtailment should be extended till they die. There is no proof for Palmer's assertion that "women taken in adultery or fornication were, at the beginning of Islam, literally immured." See also 556.

552 The crime spoken of in this verse is the same as that in the previous verse. The committers are two, and though the masculine gender is used, it does not imply that they are both necessarily males. In fact, it may imply a male and a female, and reading it along with the previous verse, it is clear that a male and a female are implied. The punishment is indicated in ázú, which means annoying, and might indicate slight punishment or only reproving with the tongue, according to Qatada and others (AH). That the punishment for woman is contained in the previous verse does not prevent this verse from referring to her. The previous verse deals with the case in which woman alone is guilty; this one deals with the case in which the husband as well as the wife may be guilty.

553 The reference to repentance in connection with the mention of fāhishah in vv. 15 and 16 is further proof that fāhishah does not here mean fornication, but some immorality short of that, for fornication is punishable criminally, and penitence on the part of those guilty of it cannot avert the punishment.

Verses 17 and 18 show that repentance, according to the Holy Qur-án, implies an actual change in the course of one's life, not the mere utterance of words. In fact, the law stated here shows how repentance does away with sins. When the very course of a man's life is changed in respect of a particular sin, the tendency to that sin is uprooted. But those who continue their evil courses until death overtakes them cannot obtain the benefit of repentance, because there is no time left for them to improve themselves.

554 Among the pre-Islamite Arabs, when a man died his elder son or other relations had a right to possess his widow or widows, marrying them themselves if they pleased without settling a dowry upon them, or marrying them to others, or prohibiting them from marriage altogether (Bkh, Rz). The best authorities agree that the verse remedies this evil. But some commentators adopt the alternative meaning given in the margin, according to which they were prohibited from restraining such women from marrying so that they might become heirs to the property which they possessed (Rz), for in the case of marriage the new husband would become the heir.

you have given them,⁵⁵⁵ unless they are guilty of manifest indecency,⁵⁵⁶ and treat them kindly; then if you hate them, it may be that you dislike a thing while Allah has placed abundant good in it.

21 And how can you take it when one of you has already gone in to the other and they have made with you a firm covenant?

22 And marry not women whom your fathers married, except what has already passed; this surely is indecent and hateful, and it is an evil way.⁵⁵⁸

إِلَّا مَا قَدْ سَلَفَ إِنَّهُ كَانَ فَاحِشَةً
وَمَقْتًا وَسَاءَ سَبِيلًا ۝

555 This passage remedies another evil. Those husbands who were dissatisfied with their wives were wont to give them trouble in order that they should be forced to claim a divorce and remit the dowry (Rz). This is disallowed. So that if the judge finds that the fault lies actually with the husband, he will not allow the dowry to be remitted in favour of the husband.

556 The exception is in reference to taking part of the dowry, the meaning being that part of the dowry can only be taken back if the woman is guilty of indecency.

The best received opinion is that فَاحِشَةٍ مُبَيِّنَةٍ or the manifest indecency spoken of here, is hatred and desertion of the husband, refractoriness, and doing harm to the husband and his family (Rz). In such cases, as the fault is on the part of the woman, she may be required to return her dowry wholly or in part. This meaning of fāhishah, where the significance is intensified by the addition of the qualifying word mubayyinah (i.e. manifest), corroborates the meaning of fāhishah adopted in v. 15.

557 Another evil of the time of ignorance is thus described by Rz: "It is narrated that when a (married) man among them had a desire to marry another wife in place of the first, he used to accuse the latter of adultery or other gross immorality, thus compelling her to obtain a divorce by paying a large sum of money." The evil is remedied by this verse. As the previous verse mentions a case in which the divorce may be claimed when the wife is dissatisfied with the husband, this mentions a case in which the husband is dissatisfied and desires a divorce. Having one wife in place of another simply signifies the divorcing of the first wife and marrying another.

558 As already pointed out, when a man died his widows were the property of the eldest son, and he could marry any of them that he liked. This immoral practice was abolished by this verse.

559 For prohibited marriage relations in the Mosaic law see Lev. 18 : 6-18.

560 Al-Muḥṣanāt signifies both free women and married women, and as the previous verse speaks of women whom it is unlawful to take in marriage, the second significance is the one generally adopted here, though, according to 'Umar, free women is the correct rendering (Rz). According to the rendering adopted generally, the meaning is tho, even as it is unlawful for a man to marry a woman within certain degrees of relationship, it is also unlawful for him to take in marriage one who is already married to another person. An exception is made, however, regarding those whom your right hands possess, by which expression are generally meant in the Holy Qur-ān those who are taken prisoners in a war. In the Islamic law prisoners of war were generally set free either on payment of ransom or simply as an act of kindness, as plainly stated in 47 : 4 : "So when you meet in battle those who disbelieve, then smite the necks until you have overcome them, then make them prisoners, and afterwards either set them free as a favour or let them ransom themselves."

But it sometimes happened that those taken prisoners became converts to Islam and 25 And whoever among you has not within his power ampleness of means to marry free believing women, then (he may marry) of those whom your right hands possess from among your believing maidens; and Allah knows best your faith; you are (sprung) the one from the other; so marry them with the permission of their masters, and give them their dowries justly, they being chaste, not fornicating, nor receiving paramours; and when they are taken in marriage, then if they are guilty of indecency, they shall suffer half the punishment which is (inflicted) upon free women. This is for him among you who fears falling into evil; and that you abstain is better for you, and Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.⁵⁶¹ therefore they could not be sent back. Such women it was lawful to take in marriage, even though they might not have been divorced formally by their former husbands. That their conversion to Islam was a necessary condition is clear from the fact that wars of this nature were only carried on with polytheists, and Muslims were not allowed to take a polytheistic woman in marriage, for which see 2: 221. As for the conditions under which such women could be taken in marriage, see the verse that follows.

The words mā malakat aimān-u-kum may, however, bear a different significance. Aimān is plural of yamin, which bears a number of different significances, viz. the right hand, a good position, power and strength, and a covenant confirmed by an oath. The phrase mā malakat aimān-u-kum is taken generally as signifying prisoners of war, because they are taken by superior power. But it is used in a saying of the Holy Prophet as indicating property earned by lawful means, out of which poor-rate must be paid. Such is the explanation given by L.A. of the well-known saying of the Holy Prophet, الصلوة وما ملكت أيمانكم Hence mā malakat aimān-u-kum may also mean those whom you have lawfully taken in marriage, because lawful possession is clearly implied in the word aimān, which signifies covenant, marriage also being a covenant. The meaning of the passage may therefore be that all free women are prohibited to you except those whom you have lawfully married, and the sense is in this case clear. Adopting this significance,

SECTION '5

Women's Rights over their Earnings

26-31. Respect for rights of property and life. 32. Woman has as much right to her earnings as man. 33. Similar rights in the case of inheritance.

26 Allah desires to explain to you, and to guide you into the ways of those before you, and to turn to you (mercifully), and Allah is Knowing, Wise.

27 And Allah desires that He should turn to you (mercifully), and those who follow (their) lusts desire that you should deviate (with) a great deviation.

28 Allah desires that He should make light your burdens,⁵⁶² and man is created weak.⁵⁶³

وَاللَّهُ يُرِيدُ أَنْ يَتَوَقَّعَ عَلَيْكُمْ وَيُرِيدَ الَّذِينَ
يَتَّبِعُونَ الشَّهْوَاتِ أَنْ تَمِيلُوا مَيْلًا عَظِيمًا
يُرِيدُ اللَّهُ أَنْ يُخَفِّفَ عَنْكُمْ وَخُلُقُوا الْإِنْسَانَ ضَعِيفًا

the three verses of this section speak of three classes of women, viz. v. 23 of blood and foster relations, v. 24 of free women in general, v. 25 of prisoners of war. In fact, while v. 23 deals with prohibited degrees, vv. 24 and 25 state respectively how free women and slave girls are made lawful. Or, the meaning is, all married women are prohibited to you except those whom you yourselves have lawfully married.

561 This verse lays down the conditions under which those taken prisoners in war may be taken in marriage. I do not find any verse in the Holy Qur-ān sanctioning what is called concubinage. On more occasions than one, when the establishment of conjugal relations with slave girls is mentioned, their taking in marriage is clearly indicated, as in v. 3, v. 24, and this verse. Here marriage with those taken prisoners in war is allowed under certain circumstances, the first of these being that they should be believing women or Muslims. Even then it is when a person is unable to find a wife from among free women, and fears to fall into evil, that he is allowed to take a slave girl in marriage. If, then, even marriage with her is allowed under exceptional circumstances, it is quite unreasonable to suppose that her master is allowed to have conjugal relations with her without taking her for a wife. She was no doubt placed on a lower level in Arab society than a free woman, but that is all. Perhaps the strictness of the rules regarding marriage with a female slave is due to the consideration that he who seeks her in marriage may first have her freed from slavery.

But it may be said that this verse speaks of others than the masters of the slave girls, because it requires the permission of the masters. I do not think that limitation can reasonably be placed upon the meanings of the verse, the opening words clearly showing that it is meant for all. The only right the master can reasonably claim is that he does not require the permission of anybody else, and probably also that he need not pay the dowry, but he must still take her as a wife. He cannot, of course, cohabit with her without taking her lawfully as a wife, as otherwise it would be fornication, which is denounced in this very verse.

562 Not only is the rigour of the Jewish and other previous laws greatly modified in Islam, but all principles of right action are stated with such completeness, devoid of unnecessary details, that the real burden of man is actually much more lightened in Islam than in any other religion. It, moreover, points out the right way for man's freedom from the bondage of sin, and thus reduces his burden, not by false assurances, but by actually saving him from falling into evil ways.

فَأَوْفُوا بعهودهم فِيمَا هُمْ بِهَا عَاهِدُونَ
لِللَّهِ كَانَ عَلَىٰ كُلِّ شَيْءٍ شَهِيدًا

563 It is preposterous to take this sentence, and man is created weak, as excusing man's immorality, as some Christian critics have done. The context clearly shows what is meant. These verses speak of Allah's great mercy in having shown man the way to truth and guidance, for man, being created weak, could not chalk out a way for himself which was free from error. That is all that man's weakness here signifies. If he had prepared a way for himself, surely he would have laid himself under a heavy burden, but Allah, who knows the nature of man because He is the Maker, by pointing out the right way, has lightened the burden.

564 The meaning of this verse is that all illegal methods are forbidden, but the seeking of gain one from another by trading, which implies mutual consent, is allowed, being a legal method. Tijarah signifies the seeking of gain by selling and buying (Rz-LL). Though the words are general, the passage is particularly directed to guard women's right to property, because it was women's property that was generally devoured aggressively and unjustly, and aggression and injustice are particularly referred to in the next verse as necessary to be guarded against.

565 Neither this passage nor any other in the Holy Qur-án supports the classification of sin into kabirah and saghirah. The actual commission of any sin is a great evil. There is in man an inclination for evil, as there is an inclination for good, and when a man begins to shun evil, that inclination gradually dies away. Sayyiah or sú' signifies an evil deed as well as an evil affection (LL). The context requires the latter significance to be

SECTION 6

Disagreement between Husband and Wife

34. The wife's desertion. 35. Reconcilement, how effected. 36. Faithfulness to one's duty to Allah and duty to men inculcated. 37-42. Niggardliness and hypocrisy condemned.

34 Men are the maintainers⁵⁶⁸ of women, because Allah has made some of them to excel others and because they spend out of their property; the good women are therefore obedient,⁵⁶⁹ guarding the unseen⁵⁷⁰ as Allah has guarded;⁵⁷¹ and (as to) those on whose part you fear desertion, admonish them, and leave them alone in the sleeping-places and beat them; then if they obey you,

الرِّجَالُ قَوَّامُونَ عَلَى النِّسَاءِ بِمَا فَضَّلَ
اللَّهُ بَعْضَهُمْ عَلَى بَعْضٍ يَمَّا اتَّفَقُوا مِنْ
أَمْوَالِهِمْ وَالصَّالِحَاتُ قَانِتَاتٌ حَظَّتْ
لِلْغَيْبِ بِمَا حَفِظَ اللَّهُ وَالَّذِينَ يَخَافُونَ
نُشُوزَ أَهْلِهِمْ فَأَنْصَرُوا لَهُمْ فِي
الْمَصَاحِرِ وَأَصْرًا يَوْمَهُمْ إِنْ أَطَعْتُمْ

adopted here. All that is meant is that if a man begins to avoid the commission of sins, the evil inclinations within him begin to die.

566 Mawālī is plural of maulā, which conveys a number of significances, such as lord or chief, a cousin, a freed man, a slave, an heir. The last of these significances is adopted here by the best authorities (AH), and only this suits the context.

567 In the pre-Islamic days, people were accustomed to enter into covenants one with another, by which they undertook to defend each other and to inherit one another; and when one of them died, the other was considered entitled to one-sixth of the property of the deceased (AH). When the Muslims fled to Medina the Holy Prophet made every Meccan emigrant enter into a close relationship of brotherhood with one of the Medina citizens, so that (under the old custom) one of them would have become an heir to the other on his decease (Bkh). But any such share was not allowed by the Holy Qur-ān. This verse, however, recommends that something be given. The words give them their portion are taken as meaning the rendering of assistance in general, doing acts of kindness and the giving of good advice, while something may be settled by testament (Bkh).

568 The significance of qawwām is thus explained by TA : قام الرجل المرأة و قام عليها means he maintained her and managed her affair, having charge of her affair; hence he is said to be her qawwām, i.e. maintainer. Similarly, LI has, on the authority of Msb: القائم باليتيم i.e. he maintained the orphan or the child. Hence by the men being qawwāmūn is only meant that they are the maintainers of women, and the reason given is that Allah has made some to excel others, i.e. the man excels the woman in constitution and physique, while the woman excels the man in beauty and delicacy of structure.

569 Obedience here signifies obedience to Allah. This significance of the word is made clear by a comparison with 33: 31, 33: 35, and 66: 5.

570 The guarding the unseen is a euphemism for guarding the husband's rights. The two qualifications of a good wife as given here are her piety or obedience to Allah and chastity, i.e. she must be careful of her duty to Allah and to her husband (Rz).

571 The meaning is that their guarding the husband's rights is in reality a favour from Allah, as it is Allah that really guards them (Rz). Or the meaning may be, because Allah has enjoined it to be guarded.

do not seek a way against them; surely Allah is High, Great.⁵⁷²

35 And if you fear a breach between the two, then appoint a judge from his people and a judge from her people; if they both desire agreement, Allah will effect harmony between them; surely Allah is Knowing, Aware.⁵⁷³

36 And serve Allah and do not associate any thing with Him, and be good to the parents and to the near of kin and the orphans and the needy and the neighbour of (your) kin and the alien neighbour,⁵⁷⁴ and the companion in a journey and the wayfarer and those whom your right hands possess;⁵⁷⁵ surely Allah does not love him who is proud, boastful :

فَلَا تَبْغُوا عَلَيْهِمْ سَبِيلًا إِنَّ اللَّهَ
كَانَ عَلِيمًا كَبِيرًا ۝

وَإِنْ خِفْتُمْ شِقَاقَ بَيْنِهِمَا فَابْعَثُوا حَكَمًا
مِّنْ أَهْلِهِ وَحَكَمًا مِّنْ أَهْلِهَا إِنْ يُرِيدَا
إِصْلَاحًا تُوَفَّقِ اللَّهُ بَيْنَهُمَا إِنَّ اللَّهَ
كَانَ عَلِيمًا جَلِيلًا ۝

وَاعْبُدُوا اللَّهَ وَلَا تُشْرِكُوا بِهِ شَيْئًا
وَبِالْوَالِدَيْنِ إِحْسَانًا وَبِالْأَقْرَبِينَ
وَالْمَسْكِينِ وَابْنِ الْوَحْدَى وَالْجَارِ
الْجُنْبِ وَالصَّاحِبِ بِالْجَنبِ وَابْنِ
السَّبِيلِ وَمَا مَلَكَتْ أَيْمَانُكُمْ إِنَّ اللَّهَ لَا
يُحِبُّ مَن كَانَ مُخْتَالًا فَخُورًا ۝

572 After having spoken of the husband's obligation to maintain the wife, the holy Word states the wife's obligation not to desert her husband. The word nushûz, which I have translated as desertion, primarily means rising, and as spoken of a woman in connection with her husband it means her rising against her husband. This is explained in a number of ways; according to one of these explanations it means her leaving the husband's place and taking up an abode which he does not like (AH). And LL quotes various authorities explaining the phrase نشزت المرأة على زوجها which means the wife resisted her husband and hated him (S, Q) and deserted him (TA).

The remedy pointed out when the wife's desertion is feared is threefold. At first she is only to be admonished. If she desists, the evil is mended, but if she persists in the wrong course her bed is to be separated. If she still persists, chastisement is permitted as a last resort (Rz). Regarding this last remedy two things must, however, be borne in mind. Firstly, it is a mere permission, and sayings of the Holy Prophet make it clear that, though allowed, it was discouraged in practice. Thus the Prophet is reported to have said, on the complaint of certain women as to ill-treatment by their husbands : " You will not find these men as the best among you " (Rz). According to Shafai' it is preferable not to resort to chastisement of the wife (Rz). In fact, as the injunctions of the Qur-ân are wide in their scope, the example of the Holy Prophet and his constant exhortations for kind treatment towards women, so much so that he made a man's good treatment of his wife the gauge of his goodness in general—the best of you is he who is best to his wife—show clearly that this permission is meant only for that type of men and women who belong to a low grade of society. Secondly, even this permission cannot be adopted indiscriminately, for sayings of the Holy Prophet make it quite evident that chastisement, when resorted to in extreme cases, must be very slight. I'Ab says it may be with a tooth-brush or something like it (AI).

573 There is much food for reflection in this for those who think that Islam allows divorce on the slightest pretext. When a breach occurs the Qazi's first duty is to appoint judges on both sides with the object of effecting a reconciliation; it is only when judges fail to bring about a reconciliation that a divorce is allowed. The wife can obtain a divorce through the Qazi or the judge who is legally entitled to pronounce a divorce.

37 Those who are niggardly and bid people to be niggardly and hide what Allah has given them out of His grace; and We have prepared for the unbelievers a disgraceful chastisement:

38 And those who spend their property (in alms) to be seen of the people and do not believe in Allah nor in the last day; and as for him whose associate is the devil, an evil associate is he!

39 And what (harm) would it have done them if they had believed in Allah and the last day and spent (benevolently) of what Allah had given them? and Allah knows them.

40 Surely Allah does not do injustice to the weight of an atom, and if it is a good deed He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward.⁵⁷⁶

Ar. thee.
41 How will it be, then, when We bring from every people a witness and bring you as a witness against these?^{576a}

42 On that day will those who disbelieve and disobey the Apostle desire that the earth were levelled with them, and they shall not hide any word from Allah.

Cases were decided in accordance with the directions contained in this verse in the early days of Islam. See an instance quoted by Rz regarding Ali's decision in a case of breach. The husband was told in plain words that he must abide by the judgment of the judges appointed under this verse.

574 By الجار ذى القرى some understand a neighbour who is a relative and others a Muslim neighbour, and similarly by الجار الجنب a neighbour not related or a neighbour of an alien religion (AH). The latter phrase (the qualifying word being derived from janb, meaning a side) signifies, according to lexicologists, the person who is one's neighbour but who belongs to another people (LL). Thus the charity of Islam is not limited to one's own people or one's own co-religionists, but is extended to aliens also.

575 By those whom your right hands possess are meant all those with whose care a man is entrusted, so that it includes even animals over which a man has control (AH, Rz).

576 Such is the ever-recurring description of the preponderance of mercy in Divine nature: good is always multiplied and evil nullified. The constant multiplication of good shows no doubt that good must ultimately preponderate in the universe, and thus the Divine laws working in nature point to the fact that the universe is moving towards the goal of absolute good.

SECTION 7

External and Internal Purity

43. Necessity of purification as a preliminary to prayer. 44. Jews exhorted to obey. 48-50. Gravity of the sin of polytheism.

43 O you who believe! do not go near prayer when you are intoxicated until you know (well) what you say,⁵⁷⁷ nor when you are under an obligation to perform a total ablution⁵⁷⁸—unless (you are) travelling on the road⁵⁷⁹—until you have washed yourselves; and if you are sick, or on a journey, or one of you come from the privy, or you have touched the women,⁵⁸⁰ and you cannot find water, betake yourselves to pure earth,⁵⁸¹ then wipe your faces and your hands; surely Allah is Pardon-ing, Forgiving.

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا لَا تَقْرَبُوا الصَّلَاةَ
وَأَنْتُمْ سُكَارَى حَتَّى تَكُونُوا تَعْلَمُونَ
وَلَا جُنُبًا إِلَّا عَابِرِي سَبِيلٍ حَتَّى تَغْتَسِلُوا
وَلَنْ كُنْتُمْ رَضَىٰ وَعَلَىٰ سَفَرٍ أَوْ جَاءَ
أَوَّلًا بِمَاءٍ
فَلَمْ تَجِدُوا مَاءً فَتَمِطُوا بِأَيْدِيكُمْ
نَاسِئًا بِأَيْدِيكُمْ وَأَيْدِيكُمْ إِنَّ اللَّهَ
كَانَ عَفْوًا عَظِيمًا

(Ar. shahid) against them, because, if they reject the truth which he brings to them, he bears testimony to their rejection before Allah.

577 There is some difference of opinion as to what is meant by sukarā here. Literally the singular sakarān signifies one intoxicated, but while some consider the meaning here to be intoxicated with drink, others think it to be intoxicated with sleep (TA-LI, Dk-Rz). And sakr, no doubt, may be applied in the latter sense, for its literal significance is stopping up (LI, Rz). Hence we have in the Holy Qur-ān سَكَرَتْ أَبْصَارُنَا meaning our eyes have been covered over or prevented from seeing (15:15). The word is also applied to confusion of judgment (LI).

If the verse be supposed to be a later revelation than the prohibition of drink, Dk's rendering would undoubtedly be the correct one; if not, the injunction would be the first step towards the total prohibition of drink, for the necessity of going to prayer five times a day would afford little opportunity for indulgence in drink.

578 The word which I render by this lengthy phrase is junub (from janb, meaning a side). To render it as meaning impure or polluted is incorrect, and no lexicologist supports it. It is a purely technical term, and means one who is under an obligation to perform a total ablution or bathing (LI). The connection with the root-meaning is that the person under such obligation is on a side or remote from prayer (Rgh). The idea of impurity in one who is under such obligation is not met with in the Holy Qur-ān or any saying of the Holy Prophet. The necessity to perform a total ablution arises in case of sexual intercourse.

579 Or going near prayer in this case may signify going into mosques (I'Ab-Rz), and the meaning of إِلَّا عَابِرِي سَبِيلٍ in that case would be unless you pass (through the mosques) as by a way.

580 The touching of women is a euphemism for sexual intercourse. Many of the fine phrases used in the Holy Qur-ān to express this delicate relation were unknown to the Arabs before the revelation of the Holy Qur-ān, and while human necessities rendered reference to such relations necessary, words and forms were adopted which would not shock the most delicate ears.

46 Of those who are Jews (there are those who) alter words from their places⁵⁸² and say: We have heard and we disobey;* and: Hear, may you not be made to hear! and: Ra'ind,^b distorting (the word) with their tongues and taunting about religion; and if they had said (instead): We have heard and we obey, and hearken, and unzurnd,^c it would have been better for them and more upright; but Allah has cursed them on account of their unbelief, so they do not believe but a little.

47 O you who have been given the Book! believe that which we have revealed, verifying what you have,^d before We alter faces then turn them on their backs, or curse them as We cursed the violators of the Sabbath, and the command of Allah shall be executed.⁵⁸³

581 Ṣa'id (from ṣa'ad-a, i.e. he ascended or went up) means high or elevated ground, hence generally land or ground or surface of the earth, whether it be dust or earth or otherwise (Zj-LL). Tayammum, which has now become a technical term (from amma, meaning he repaired), meant originally only betaking oneself to a thing, and technically it now means striking both hands on pure earth, or any thing containing pure dust, and then passing the hands over the face and the backs of the hands. When water is not found, or is likely to do harm, tayammum suffices instead of wuḥū, or ablution before prayer.

582 The corruption of the previous books is constantly referred to in the Holy Qur-ān, and, as the words clearly show, it implies a corruption of the text as well as a false rendering of it. It is unreasonable on the part of the apologists of the Bible to deny such corruption when clear instances of it have been pointed out. The subject of the perversion of "holy writ" is specially dealt with in the Holy Qur-ān in 2:75-79, 5:13, 41, and here. The verification referred to here in v. 47 and elsewhere implies only a verification of the general principles and particularly of the prophecies contained in those books and bearing witness to the truth of the previous revelation, and does not in any way negative the corruption and alteration of the text, which is only too apparent to be seriously contested.

583 Two kinds of punishment are here described as awaiting the Jews. The first of these is expressed in the words نطس وجوها which literally signify we obliterate or alter

48 Surely Allah does not forgive that any thing should be associated with Him, and forgives what is besides that to whomsoever He pleases ; and whoever associates any thing with Allah, he devises indeed a great sin.⁵⁸⁴

Every Leaning to Injustice and Evil to be shunned

51-53. Jews prefer idolaters to Muslims. 54. It is Abraham's seed that has been blessed. 55-57. Recompense of unbelief and faith. 58. Judges and judgment. 59. Obedience to the Apostle and other authority.

faces. But the phrase is evidently a metaphorical one, and the alteration of faces signifies depriving them of greatness and prosperity and bringing on them disgrace and adversity (Bd).

The same idea is intensified in turn them on their backs. The reference here is supposed to be to their ultimate banishment from Arabia. But the words may carry the significance given in the margin, for wujūh sometimes signifies the chiefs and the leaders (Rgh, art. šams; Rz, Bd).

The second form of punishment is their being overtaken by the curse which overtook the Sabbath-breakers, for which see 107.

584 The reference to polytheism, or the setting up of gods with Allah, which is called shirk in the language of the Holy Qur-ān, as the gravest sin of which man can be guilty, is made more than once in the Holy Qur-ān. And this is not because shirk in any way diminishes the grandeur of the Divine Being, but because it lowers the dignity of human nature. Man is made to rule nature itself and all creatures, but when he lowers himself before mortals like himself, or before creatures lower than himself whom he was really made to rule, he sets at naught the very purpose of his creation. It should be noted, however, that this only means that the polytheist, having degraded himself, cannot rise without suffering the consequences; not that his punishment would be everlasting.

585 The original word is šibt, which means an idol or idols (LL), or any thing worshipped to the exclusion of Allah, or enchanter, or diviner (Rgh), or enchantment (S'alabi-LL). Some consider it to be the same word as jib, which means a worthless thing (Rz) or a thing in which there is no good. It is related that in making a compact with the Quraish the Jews

Ar. thou

52 Those are they whom Allah has cursed, and whom-ever Allah curses, you shall not find any helper for him.

53 Or have they a share in the kingdom? But then they would not give to people even the speck in the date-stone.⁵⁸⁶

54 Or do they envy the people for what Allah has given them of His grace? But indeed We have given to Abraham's children the Book and the wisdom, and We have given them a grand kingdom.⁵⁸⁷

55 So of them⁵⁸⁸ is he who believes in him, and of them is he who turns away from him,⁵⁸⁹ and hell is sufficient to burn.

56 (As for) those who dis-believe in Our communications, We shall make them enter fire; so oft as their skins are thoroughly burned We will change them for other skins,⁵⁹⁰ that they may taste the chastisement; surely Allah is Mighty, Wise.

57 And (as for) those who believe and do good deeds, We will make them enter gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide in them for ever; they shall have therein pure mates,* worshipped their idols (Rz), but the words seem to refer to the general debasement of the Jews, who believed in all kinds of enchantment, divination, and sorcery, and had long bidden farewell to the pure monotheism of Moses.

586 The meaning is that they have no share in granting a kingdom; if they had any such share they would not give even the most trifling thing in it to any one else. The reference is apparently to the temporal and spiritual kingdom which was promised to Abraham's seed, as clearly spoken of in the next verse, and which, the Jews alleged, could not be granted to any but their own people.

587 The kingdom of heaven, which is the grand kingdom, was still in Abraham's seed, but was now transferred from the descendants of Israel to those of Ishmael, in accordance with the covenant made with Abraham (see 168).

588 The children of Abraham, among whom were the Jews, are meant.

589 The personal pronoun is either for Abraham or for the Holy Prophet Muhammad. In the first case, it should be noted that turning away from the Holy Prophet was equivalent to turning away from Abraham, because he was the true exponent of Abraham's religion.

590 The form used signifies the continuance of the torment (Rz), in accordance with the metaphor of fire.

فَإِنَّ ذَلِكَ خَيْرٌ وَأَحْسَنُ تَأْوِيلًا

592 If the incident that after the conquest of Mecca the Holy Prophet gave back the key of the Ka'aba to Othman, its first holder, has any connection with the verse, then it should afford an illustration of the real significance of the verse. It not only includes the payment of the trusts of money to their owners, but also the entrusting of the affairs of government to those who are worthy of handling them properly. The words that follow, requiring judges to be just, corroborate this significance, the whole verse stating the reciprocal duties of the governed to the governors and of the governors to the governed. Even taking the more apparent significance, the words show the breadth of the Islamic doctrine, which requires its followers to be true to their trusts, irrespective of the religion or nationality of those on whose account they are held.

593 The passage lays down a most important rule for the guidance of Muslims. Above all authorities with a true Muslim is the authority of Allah and His Apostle, but those who are in authority are also to be obeyed. Among those in authority are included the rulers of a land, though they may belong to an alien religion, as the Holy Prophet's example in his relations with the Christian kingdom of Abyssinia shows. The words ulul-amr, or those in authority, have a wide significance, so that in different matters relating to the life of man different persons would be in authority. The term also includes the Muslim religious leaders, but, as the words if you quarrel about any thing, refer it to Allah and the Apostle show, if a religious leader goes against the teachings of the Holy Qur-án he should not be obeyed. A reference to Allah and the Apostle in case of a quarrel or dispute means a reference to the directions of the Holy Qur-án and the sayings and practice of the Holy Prophet.

594 Ta'wil (from ála, i.e. he returned) is the infinitive noun of أوله إليه i.e. he returned it to him, hence its extensive use to signify interpretation, because the words are returned to that sense. But from the same original sense of returning follows its use in the sense of marja', i.e. fin il sequel, and 'áqibat, i.e. issue, end, result (Rz, Bd-LL), and this is the significance which suits the context here.

595 The reference here is said to be to Ka'b, son of Ashraf, a Jew; others think it is to Abu Barda, a diviner; others consider the fajhūt here to be a particular idol or idols generally to whom disputes were taken to be decided by divination (Itz). Really all these cases are included in the original words. The hypocrites in heart inclined to idols, or their diviners, who, being their leaders in devil-worship, are called devils.

596 A person is said to be baligh (from balagh-a, meaning he attained the utmost point to which he directed his course) who is chaste in speech or effective or penetrating in tongue. Applied to a saying, it also signifies an effectual speech or a speech producing an effect (Mṣb, Bd-LI). قولا موثرا (1) may bear a threefold significance here:

قولا موثرا (1) may bear a threefold significance here: (1) قولا موثرا i.e. concerning themselves; (2) قولا موثرا i.e. when alone with them (Itz). Baligh also means severe, distressful (LI), and severe words to the hypocrites would no doubt be more effective than mild words.

64 And We did not send any apostle but that he should be obeyed by Allah's permission; and had they, when they were unjust to themselves, come to you and asked forgiveness of Allah and the Apostle had (also) asked forgiveness for them, they would have found Allah Oft-returning (to mercy), Merciful.

66 And if We had prescribed for them: Lay down your lives⁵⁹⁷ or go forth from your homes, they would not have done it except a few of them; and if they had done what they were admonished, it would have certainly been better for them and best in strengthening (them);

67 And then We would certainly have given them from Ourselves a great reward, 68 And We would certainly have guided them in the right path.

69 And whoever obeys Allah and the Apostle, these are with those upon whom Allah has bestowed favours from among the prophets and the truthful and the faithful and the good, and a goodly company are they!⁵⁹⁸

597 The companions of the Prophet had to lay down their lives in defence of their faith, and had to leave their homes for the sake of their religion. But the hypocrites at Medina were too weak of heart to undergo such hardships.

598 These upon whom Allah has bestowed favours are spoken of as belonging to four grades: (1) The prophets (2) The truthful; the original word ṣiddiq literally means one who is always truthful, and in the religious language one who is true in his saying and his belief,

SECTION 10

The Believers must defend Themselves

71. Believers must remain on their guard. 72, 73. Those who hold back. 74-76. The cause of Allah and the cause of the devil.

71 O you who believe! take your precaution, then go forth in detachments or go forth in a body.

72 And surely among you is he who would certainly hang back! If then a misfortune befalls you he says: Surely Allah conferred a benefit on me that I was not present with them.

73 And if grace from Allah come to you, he would certainly cry out, as if there had not been any friendship between you and him: Would that I had been with them, then I should have attained a mighty good fortune.

74 Therefore let those fight in the way of Allah who sell this world's life for the hereafter; and whoever fights in the way of Allah, then be he slain or be he victorious, We shall grant him a mighty reward.

75 And what reason have you that you should not fight in the way of Allah and of the weak among the men and the women and the children, (of) those who say: Our Lord!

and who confirms his truth by his deed or acting (TA-LL). (3) The faithful, the original word shahid not meaning necessarily a martyr or one who is slain in fighting for his religion, but one who bears witness to the truth of the religion of Allah (Rz) both by his words and deeds, and one slain in defence of his religion is included because he too gives evidence of the truth of religion by laying down his life. (4) The good. Those who follow the Holy Prophet therefore receive the favours which were granted to the prophets, the truthful, the faithful, and the good before them, the highest favour among these being Divine inspiration. Hence the righteous among the followers of the Holy Prophet are the recipients of Divine revelation. It should, however, be borne in mind that no prophet will be raised after the Holy Prophet Muhammad, according to the plainest teaching of the Holy Qur-án, for perfect guidance is contained in the Holy Qur-án, and therefore no prophet is needed. The revelation granted to the righteous is called mubashsharát, according to a saying of the Holy Prophet, who is reported to have said: "There remains nothing of prophethood except the mubashsharát" (Bkb). The mubashsharát (lit., good news) are the prophecies granted to the faithful, corroborating the truth of the religion of Islam.

The Attitude of the Hypocrites towards the Believers

77-80. Hypocrites' refusal to fight. 81, 82. Their secret counsels. 83. They spread false reports. 84. Prophet commanded to fight even alone. 85-87. Joining in a good cause recommended.

*Ar. hast

77 Have you not considered those to whom it was said: Withhold your hands, and keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate; but when fighting is prescribed for them, lo! a party of them fear men as they ought to have feared Allah, or (even) with a greater fear, and say: Our Lord! why hast Thou ordained fighting for us? Wherefore didst Thou not grant us a delay to a near end?⁶⁰¹ Say: The provision of this world is short, and the hereafter is better for him who guards (against evil); and you shall not be wronged the husk of a date-stone.

Or, a whit.

رَبِّكَ إِلَى الَّذِينَ قِيلَ لَهُمْ كُفُّوا أَيْدِيَكُمْ

خَيْرٌ لِمَنِ اتَّقَى وَلَا يُظْلَمُونَ شَيْئًا

599 This verse explains what is meant by fighting in the way of Allah. While most of the believers who had the means had escaped from Mecca, which is here spoken of as the city whose people are oppressors, there remained those who were weak and unable to undertake a journey. These were still persecuted and oppressed by the Meccans, as is clearly shown by the words of the verse, and not only men, but even women and young children, were persecuted; fighting to deliver them from the persecution of the oppressors was really fighting in the way of Allah. The next verse shows that these very oppressors are spoken of as fighting in the way of the devil.

600 This is a prophecy that those who are siding with the devil and are fighting against the Holy Prophet shall be ultimately vanquished.

601 This verse also affords a clear proof that the injunction to fight was distasteful, and more particularly so to those who were weak in faith. Had there been any hope of plunder to animate the ranks of Muslims, those who loved this world most (who are here called the hypocrites) would have been foremost in fighting; but as they knew that they were fighting against odds, they considered the execution of this order as equivalent to courting death, and requested to be granted a respite so that they might meet death naturally.

78 Wherever you are, death will overtake you, though you are in towers, raised high. And if a benefit comes to them, they say: This is from Allah; and if a misfortune befalls them, they say: This is from you. Say: All is from Allah; but what is the matter with these people that they do not make approach to understanding what is told (them)?

602 Good and evil, or benefits and misfortunes, proceed from Allah; but while He sends benefits from Himself, i.e. out of His beneficence, no evil or misfortune afflicts a man unless his own hands have called for it. There is no discrepancy in the two statements, the one made at the end of the last verse—say, All is from Allah—and the other made here. The previous verse states that the hypocrites attributed their misfortunes to the Holy Prophet; they are told that misfortunes were sent by Allah. This verse tells them that though sent by Allah, yet the immediate cause of these misfortunes was to be found in their own doings.

603 The reference here is to the secret counsels of the hypocrites, who were always plotting against the Holy Prophet while they kept an appearance of obedience to him.

604 The Qur-án was not written out and given on one occasion, but it continued to be delivered in small portions during twenty-three years under the most varying circumstances. From the solitary recluse of the cave of Hira, the Prophet had to pass through such a variety of circumstances to be the sole monarch and legislator of the whole of Arabia, that the life of

84 Fight then in Allah's way: this is not imposed on you except in relation to yourself, and rouse the believers to ardour; maybe Allah will restrain the fighting of those who disbelieve, and Allah is strongest in prowess and strongest to give an exemplary punishment.⁶⁰⁶

85 Whoever joins himself (to another) in a good cause shall have a share of it, and whoever joins himself (to another) in an evil cause shall have the responsibility of it; and Allah controls all things.⁶⁰⁷

no other individual human being affords us such a varying study. It is an error to think that the Meccan and the Medinite suras show any difference, except such as must necessarily have resulted from dealing with the varying circumstances. It is quite true that the earlier revelation deals mostly with such problems as Divine Unity and Majesty and the responsibility of human actions in general, while the later revelation had to deal with a large number of questions relating to the social and moral well-being of society; but what strikes one throughout the entire revelation is that it keeps up one and the same strain—absolute submission to Allah, entire trust in Him, perfect confidence of future success, a liberal view of humanity, an attitude of charity towards all nations and religions, and goodness to all alike. The spirit of the revelations to the solitary, persecuted, and rejected preacher of Mecca does not differ in these and a hundred other particulars from the spirit of the revelations to the sole temporal and spiritual monarch of Arabia. There are no discrepancies even in the details of narratives—such, for instance, as are met with in the Gospels—and this is specially true of the numerous prophecies which were uttered by him when an absolutely helpless man. Had they not proceeded from the Omniscient Being, who knows the future as He knows the past, they could certainly not have been free from numerous discrepancies.

605 Divine grace and mercy were manifested by Allah raising a prophet who delivered them from the bondage of sin and from the slavery of the devil.

606 These words show how great was the confidence of the Holy Prophet in the ultimate triumph of the noble cause with which he was entrusted. The primary duty to defend Islam lay on him alone, as against all the hosts of Arabia; and this shows that he never put any trust in the prowess of his followers, but his confidence was based solely on Divine help; and with no material resources worthy the name, he was sure not only that he would be able to

How to deal with the Hypocrites

88-91. Hypocrites to be treated as enemies unless they cease fighting.

88 What is the matter with you, then, that you have become two parties about the hypocrites, while Allah has made them return (to unbelief) for what they have earned? Do you wish to guide him whom Allah has caused to err? and whomsoever Allah causes to err, you shall by no means find a way for him.⁶⁰⁹ restrain the fighting of his powerful opponents, but also that they would meet with condign punishment at his hands.

607 Rgh thus explains this passage: The meaning is that he who joins himself to another and assists him, and becomes to him as one of a pair or an intercessor in doing good or evil, and thus aids him and strengthens him, partakes with him the benefit or the harm of it. It is also held by some that shafī'ah here implies "that a certain man should institute for another a way of good or a way of evil, which the other imitates, and thus becomes to him as if he were one of a pair" (TA-LI). The connection is clear: the Prophet made himself an example of good for others to imitate or to aid him. For the meaning of shafī'ah see 79.

608 The words are general, but they may also contain a reference to the greeting from the opponents for the sake of peace, in which case the Muslims must make a peace, as in 8: 61, "If they incline to peace, then incline to it"; or to a greeting from an unknown person, who, notwithstanding doubts as to his belonging to the enemy, is to be treated as a friend if he offers a greeting, as in v. 94, "And do not say to him who offers you peace, You are not a believer."

609 Clearly those waverers are implied here who went back to unbelief after they accepted Islam, and thus again joined the unbelievers. As to their identity, there are six different conjectures, and I need not puzzle the reader with these. The statement made in the concluding words of the verse must be read in conjunction with 2: 28, "He does not cause to err by it any except the transgressors." Hence the words whom Allah has caused to err are really the equivalent of the transgressors, and thus the statement, "Do you wish to guide him whom Allah has caused to err?" is really the equivalent of, Do you wish to guide the transgressors? Those who continue to transgress the Divine commandments cannot be guided; when they cease to transgress, they find the way.

89 They desire that you should disbelieve as they have disbelieved, so that you might be (all) alike; therefore take not from among them friends until they fly (their homes) in Allah's way; but if they turn back, then seize them and kill them wherever you find them, and take not from among them a friend or a helper,

90 Except those who reach a people between whom and you there is an alliance, or who come to you, their hearts shrinking from fighting you or fighting their own people; and if Allah had pleased, He would have given them power over you, so that they should have certainly fought you; therefore if they withdraw from you and do not fight you and offer you peace, then Allah has not given you a way against them.⁶¹⁰

91 You will find others who desire that they should be safe from you and secure from their own people; as often as they are sent back to the mischief they get thrown into it headlong;⁶¹¹ therefore if they do not withdraw from you, and (do not) offer you peace and restrain their hands, then seize them and kill them wherever you find them; and against these We have given you a clear authority.

610 This verse explains the previous one, showing clearly that even waverers were not to be killed or fought against if they refrained from fighting, though they may have gone over to unbelief after accepting Islam. The logic of deducing the punishment of death for apostates from this verse is as absurd as that which seeks to draw a similar conclusion from 2:217; see 279. The commentators agree that the persons referred to in this verse were unbelievers and not Muslims, and they are generally supposed to have been the Bani Mudlaj (Bd). Note also that we have here the clear injunction that if any people offered peace they were not to be fought against, and the revelation of this verse is clearly later than the revelation of the words occurring in 2:193, "And fight with them until there is no persecution and the religion should be only for Allah," thus showing that by religion being only for Allah was only meant the establishment of religious freedom and the ceasing of persecution, and not that the whole world should confess the religion of Islam.

611 By mischief, or fitnah, is meant war with the Muslims (Rz). Certain tribes, said to be Asad and Ghatfân, came to the Muslims and showed an inclination to remain at peace; but when they went back and their people invited them to join them in fighting with the Muslims, they hastily responded to the call (Rz). Such people could not be trusted. The importance of these directions in time of war, when the Muslims were hemmed in on all sides by enemies, can hardly be overestimated.

612 This verse and the one following it show that the man who killed a believer unintentionally could not be a believer. In the state of warfare which then existed in Arabia, unbelievers often made use of ruses, professing a firm belief in Islam and thus tempting the Muslims to go over to them as religious teachers, and afterwards murdering them.

613 A person belonging to a tribe with whom the Muslims are on terms of peace is to be treated as if he were a Muslim.

614 The commentators are agreed that this verse speaks of an unbeliever who murders a believer (Rz). In fact, the word intentionally stands here for murdering a man because he is a believer, as this was what the unbelievers did so often.

95 The holders back from among the believers, not having any injury, and those who strive hard in Allah's way with their property and their persons, are not equal; Allah has made the strivers with their property and their persons to excel the holders back a (high) degree, and to each (class) Allah has promised good; and Allah shall grant to the strivers above the holders back a mighty reward:

SECTION 14

The Case of Muslims who remained with the Enemy

97-99. Those who were too weak to fly. 100. Those who can fly (their homes) should not fear straitness.

97 Surely (as for) those whom the angels cause to die while they are unjust to their souls, they shall say: In what state were you? They shall say: We were weak in the earth. They shall say:

إِنَّ الَّذِينَ تَوَفَّيْنَاهُمُ الْفٰكِرَ ظَالِمًا
أَنفُسِهِمْ قَالُوا فِيمَ كُنْتُمْ قَالُوا
كُنَّا مُسْتَضْعَفِينَ فِي الْأَرْضِ قَالُوا

615 This shows clearly that the Muslims were forbidden to kill a man merely because he was an unbeliever. It required the Muslims, who were surrounded by enemies on all sides, not to take a man for an enemy on mere suspicion. The concluding words of the verse are very clear: You too were such aforetime, then Allah conferred a benefit on you. Now the Muslims were unbelievers aforetime and Allah conferred a benefit on them by making them Muslims. Compare 49:17: "Rather Allah lays you under an obligation by guiding you to the faith." Hence the meaning is clear: Kill no one because he is an unbeliever, as you too were unbelievers a short time ago; but make investigation that the man is really your enemy. Salām and salam (the latter being the reading here according to some) mean peace or safety. The meaning is clear in this case and corroborates what is said above. But salām also means a salutation, and in that case the meaning would be that any one who offered a salutation must be dealt with as a friend and not as an enemy, though doubts may be entertained as to the sincerity of his profession. This would be quite a different case from that of the unbelievers who are not to be taken as enemies. But according to

Was not Allah's earth spacious, so that you should have migrated therein? So these it is whose abode is hell, and it is an evil resort.⁶¹⁶

98 Except the weak from among the men and the women and the children who have not in their power the means nor can they find a way (to escape);

99 So those, it may be, Allah will pardon them, and Allah is Pardoning, Forgiving.

100 And whoever flies in Allah's way, he will find in the earth many a place of refuge⁶¹⁷ and abundant resources; and whoever goes forth from his house flying to Allah and His Apostle, and then death overtakes him, his reward is indeed with Allah, and Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

SECTION 15

Prayer when fighting

101. Shortening of prayer when trouble is feared. 102, 103. Prayer when actually fighting. 101. Continued activity to be observed.

101 And when you journey in the earth, there is no blame on you if you shorten the prayer, if you fear that those who disbelieve will cause you distress; surely the unbelievers are your open enemies.

Ar. enemy.

وَإِذَا صَرَبْتُمْ فِي الْأَرْضِ فَلَيْسَ عَلَيْكُمْ جُنَاحٌ أَنْ تَقْصُرُوا مِنَ الصَّلَاةِ إِنْ خِفْتُمْ أَنْ يَفْتِنَكُمُ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا إِنَّ الْكَافِرِينَ كَانُوا أَعْدَاءً مُبِينِينَ ۝

Rz salām has another meaning. He says that the meaning may be, do not say to him who withdraws from you and does not fight with you: You are not a believer, and this is from saldmat (meaning security), for one who withdraws seeks security. Instead of Mu'min, which means a believer, Kt reads Mu'man, which means secure, and this further corroborates the first significance of salām.

616 By those who were unjust to their souls are meant either such persons as were convinced of the truth of Islam and avowed a belief in it, but chose to remain among the unbelievers, who did not allow them to give expression to their beliefs, notwithstanding that they had the means to join the Muslims and avow Islam openly, or the hypocrites who professed faith in Islam when they came to the Muslims and denied it when they returned to their own tribes (Rz).

The question "In what state were you?" signifies What was your state with respect to your religion?

617 Murāgham is derived from رَغِمَ أَنْفُهُ meaning his nose clove to the earth, i.e. he was humbled, and is used to signify a road or a place of refuge to which resort

Ar. thou art.

102 And when you are among them and keep up the prayer for them, let a party of them stand up with you, and let them take their arms; then when they have prostrated themselves let them go to your rear, and let another party who have not prayed come forward and pray with you, and let them take their precautions and their arms; (for) those who disbelieve desire that you may be careless of your arms and your luggage, so that they may then turn upon you with a sudden united attack; and there is no blame on you, if you are annoyed with rain or if you are sick, that you lay down your arms, and take your precautions; surely Allah has prepared a disgraceful chastisement for the unbelievers.⁶¹⁸

103 Then when you have finished the prayer, remember Allah standing and sitting and reclining; but when you are secure (from danger) keep up prayer; surely prayer is a timed ordinance for the believers.⁶¹⁹ may be had (Rgh), either because one does so when one is abused or because the enemy, who does not wish that one should depart and find a refuge, is abused thereby.

618 This verse and the previous one show the importance of prayer in Islam, which could not be neglected even when facing the enemy. The soldiers of Islam were not men with whom fighting was a primary occupation; the chief object of their lives, as these verses show, was to hold communion with the Divine Being, forgetting even their imminent danger when the time of holding such communion arrived.

619 By kitāban mauqūṭā, or a timed ordinance, is meant an ordinance regulated as to time, or ordained to be performed at fixed times.

Dishonesty of the Hypocrites

105-109. The cause of the dishonest not to be taken up. 110-112. They accuse innocent persons.

الْقِيَامَةِ أَمْ مَنْ يَكُونُ عَلَيْهِمْ وَكِيلًا ۝

620 With a little difference in details, the commentators agree that the occasion of the revelation of these verses was a dispute between some men who professed Islam and the Jews, in which the judgment was given against the Muslims. Ta'ma bin Ubairaq had stolen a coat of mail, and having hidden it at a Jew's, afterwards accused the Jew of the theft, while his tribe supported him. The Holy Prophet, notwithstanding the open enmity of the Jews, cleared the Jew of the charge. Thus these verses lay down the broad principle that dishonesty must be punished, notwithstanding that one guilty of it may profess the religion of Islam and the party injured may be a non-Muslim or even an enemy of the Muslims. Every case must be decided on its merits, and the balance of justice must be held equal between Muslims and non-Muslims and between friends and foes. A slightly less scrupulous person would have been led away from the strict requirements of justice by the exigencies of the case, for it was a time when every Muslim hand was sorely needed for the defence of Islam, and a verdict against a man supported by his whole tribe meant the entire loss of that tribe.

621 The injunction in this as well as the previous verse is meant for every Muslim who is called upon to act as a judge. The asking for forgiveness here enjoined is apparently for the party who, being a Muslim, has been guilty of dishonesty. The verse that follows lends support to this interpretation. As for the Prophet's asking forgiveness for himself, see 2194.

622 Those who supported the guilty man are spoken of here, and all such persons are condemned as hypocrites. The same subject is continued in the verses that follow.

110 And whoever does evil or acts unjustly to his soul, then asks forgiveness of Allah, he shall find Allah Forgiving, Merciful.

111 And whoever commits a sin, he only commits it against his own soul; and Allah is Knowing, Wise.

112 And whoever commits a fault or a sin, then accuses of it one innocent, he indeed takes upon himself the burden of a calumny and a manifest sin.⁶²³

Secret Counsels of the Hypocrites

113. Efforts to destroy the Muslims. 114. Secret counsels of the enemy.
115. Opposition to the Prophet doomed to failure.

Ar. thee 113 And were it not for Allah's grace upon you and His mercy, a party of them had certainly designed to bring you to perdition, and they do not bring (ought) to perdition but their own souls,⁶²⁴ and they shall not harm you in any way.

114 There is no good in most of their secret counsels except (in his) who enjoins charity or goodness or reconciliation between people; and whoever does this, seeking Allah's pleasure, We will give him a mighty reward.

115 And whoever acts hostilely to the Apostle after that guidance has become manifest to him, and follows

وَلَوْ لَا فَضْلُ اللَّهِ عَلَيْكَ وَرَحْمَةُ رَحْمَةٍ

623 The innocent person thus falsely accused may be a non-Muslim, even an enemy of Islam, yet a false accusation, by whomsoever made, and against whomsoever made, is a "calumny and a manifest sin." No other religion lays down such unbiased rules for regulating and administering justice.

624 Aqalla-hu is the equivalent of ahlaka-hu, and thus means that he destroyed him or brought him to perdition (LL), and this is the meaning here.

وَلَا ضَلَّتْهُمْ وَلَا مَنِّعَتْهُمْ
وَلَا مَرَّتْهُمْ فَلْيَئْتِكُنَّ آدَانُ

624a This verse clearly speaks of the unbelievers and the hypocrites, who followed a way other than the way of the believers, and it is said to relate to Ta'ma's apostasy (Rz), for which see 620. Only a laboured distortion of the word could make it signify that it was a sin to differ from the majority of the Muslims on any question of religion. No sensible Muslim has ever held that opinion.

625 Indā has two significances, either of which may be adopted. (1) It signifies inanimate things, as trees and stones and wood. (2) It also means idols, because they named the idols as females, for instance Lāt, 'Uzza, Manāt (LL). Hasan says every one of the Arabian tribes had an idol, which they called the ungā (lit. female) of such a tribe (Rz). Hence the word may also be translated as feminine divinities.

626 Marid and márid have both the same significance, viz. one devoid of all good, as you say شجر امرد i.e. a tree which has no leaves on it, and رملة مرداء i.e. sand that produces no plants (Rgh). According to LL the significance of marid is insolent or rebellious.

cattle,⁶²⁷ and most certainly I will bid them so that they shall alter Allah's creation;⁶²⁸ and whoever takes the devil for a guardian rather than Allah, he indeed shall suffer a manifest loss.

120 He gives them promises and excites vain desires in them; and the devil does not promise them but to deceive.

121 These are they whose abode is hell, and they shall not find any refuge from it.

122 And (as for) those who believe and do good, We will make them enter into gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide therein for ever; (it is) a promise of Allah, true (indeed); and who is truer of word than Allah?

123 (This) shall not be in accordance with your vain desires⁶²⁹ nor in accordance with the vain desires of the followers of the Book; whoever does evil, he shall be requited with it, and besides Allah he will find for himself neither a guardian nor a helper.

627 The slitting of the ear was performed on the baḥirah, i.e. a she-camel that had brought forth five young ones, the last of which was a male, in which case her ear was slit, and she was exempted from being ridden, from carrying burden, and from being slaughtered. The word was also applied to a ewe or she-goat, one that, having brought forth five young ones, had her ear slit (TA-LI). Some think that the reference is to the practice of cutting off the ears of cattle as an act of devotion to idols (Rz). The practice of slitting or cutting off the ear of certain animals was a prevalent form of polytheism in Arabia, for such an animal was looked upon as devoted to certain idols. See further 742.

628 A comparison with 30:30 will show clearly that by Allah's creation is here meant the religion of Allah, because the true religion is the natural religion of man. In 30:30 we have: "Then set your face upright for religion in the right state: the nature made by Allah in which He has made men; there is no altering of Allah's creation, that is the right religion, but most people do not know." By the devil's changing the creation of Allah is therefore meant the changing of the natural religion of man, which requires obedience to Allah and His laws. Some commentators understand by changing the creation of Allah the using of His created things for an object other than that for which they were created, for instance, worshipping objects such as the sun, etc., which were really created to be subservient to man (Rz). Thus the misuse of any faculty which is created in man is equivalent to a changing of the creation of Allah.

629 The vain desires of the idolaters, who are addressed in the words not according to your vain desires (Rz), were that they should not be raised after death: "And they say, There is nothing but our life in this world, and we shall not be raised" (6:29). And as regards the followers of the Book: "And the Jews and the Christians say, We are the sons of Allah and 126 And whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth is Allah's; and Allah encompasses all things.

Equitable Dealings with Orphans and Women

127. Justice to be done to orphans when their mothers are taken in marriage. 128. Reconciliation between husband and wife. 129. Justice among wives. 130. Separation of husband and wife. 131–134. Carefulness as regards one's duty enjoined.

Ar. these.

Say: Allah makes known to you His decision concerning them, and that which is recited to you in the Book⁶³⁰ concerning orphans of the women⁶³¹ whom you do not give what is appointed for them while you desire to marry them, and concerning the weak among children, and that you should deal towards orphans with equity; and whatever good you do, Allah surely knows it.

His beloved ones" (5: 18). The true law—the law of nature—is described in what follows, that evil and good shall each have its own reward.

630 The reference is to the commencement of this chapter (see v. 3 and 535). There is almost a consensus of opinion on this point, the construction being that a decision has already been given there.

631 يتامى النساء means orphans of women, and the significance orphan women, or female orphans, is altogether inadmissible according to Basra grammarians, though others think that it is permissible (Rz). The meaning is clear, for there is an injunction here to do good to orphans whose mothers have been taken in marriage, and the same is the subject dealt with in v. 3. According to I'Ab, what is appointed for them means the share of inheri-

129 And you have it not in your power to do justice between wives,^b even though you may covet (it), but be not disinclined (from one) with total disinclination, so that you leave her as it were in suspense; and if you effect a reconciliation and guard (against evil), then surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

130 And if they separate, Allah will render them both free from want out of His ampleness, and Allah is Ample-giving, Wise.

131 And whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth is Allah's, and certainly We enjoined those who were given the Book before you and (We enjoin) you too that you should be careful of (your duty to) Allah; and if you disbelieve, then surely whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth is Allah's, and Allah is Self-sufficient, Praise-worthy.

tance to property, which was not allowed by pagan Arabs (Rz). But others think dowry is meant. The giving of the dowry to such women was all the more necessary as it was needed for the maintenance of orphans. It is also stated that the verse was revealed in connection with the incident of Unm-i-Kuhāt, who had orphan children (Rz). As against this, however, Bkh reports a saying of 'Ayesha, according to which the orphan girls are meant who were taken in marriage by their guardians without settling a dowry on them.

632 There are two words, nushūz and irḍāq, used here. The former literally means rising.

You say نَشَزَتِ الْمَرْأَةُ meaning the wife was or became disobedient to her husband, and exalted herself against him, and resisted him and hated him and deserted him. And you say نَشَزَ بَعْلُهَا عَلَيْهَا meaning her husband treated her unjustly and was unkind to her,

132 And whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth is Allah's, and Allah is sufficient as a Protector.

133 If He please, He can make you pass away, O people! and bring others; and Allah has the power to do this.

Equitable Dealings with all Men, and Condemnation of Jewish Hypocrisy

135. Firmness in justice and truth. 136. Firmness in faith enjoined. 137-141. The weak in faith forsake truth for the sake of worldly honour.

135 O you who believe! be maintainers of justice, bearers of witness for Allah's sake, though it may be against your own selves or (your) parents or near relatives; if he be rich or poor, Allah is most competent (to deal) with them both;⁶³³ therefore do not follow (your) low desires, lest you deviate; and if you swerve or turn aside, then surely Allah is aware of what you do.

136 O you who believe! believe in Allah and His Apostle and the Book which He has revealed to His Apostle and the Book which He revealed before; and whoever disbelieves in Allah and His angels and His apostles and the last day, he indeed strays off into a remote error.

or estranged himself from her, or disliked or hated her (Q, Msh, TA-LI). Prāḍ is literally turning away, avoiding, shunning or leaving a thing. Hence I render the first word as ill-usage and the second as desertion, as order is generally indicative of the comparative strength of the significance in the absence of other considerations.

633 The meaning is that you should not be partial to the rich man on account of some favour that you may expect from him or some harm that you fear from him, nor should you state other than the truth when the person against whom you bear witness is a poor man, on account of compassion for him. Thus, neither ties of kinship and love nor considerations of fear, favour, or compassion should make one swerve a hair's-breadth from the truth.

137 Surely (as for) those who believe then disbelieve, again believe and again disbelieve, then increase in disbelief,⁶³⁴ Allah will not forgive them nor guide them in the (right) path.⁶³⁵

138 Announce to the hypocrites that they shall have a painful chastisement,⁶³⁶

139 Those who take the unbelievers for guardians rather than believers. Do they seek honour from them? Then surely all honour is for Allah.

140 And indeed He has revealed to you in the Book that when you hear Allah's communications disbelieved in and mocked at, do not sit with them until they enter into some other discourse; surely then you would be like them; surely Allah will gather together the hypocrites and the unbelievers all in hell.⁶³⁷

141 Those who wait for (some misfortune to befall) you; then if you have a victory from Allah they say: Were we not with you? And if there is a chance for the unbelievers, they say: Did we not acquire the mastery over you and defend you from the believers? So Allah shall judge between you on the day of resurrection; and Allah will by no means give the unbelievers a way against the believers.

634 The persons spoken of in this verse are the waverers who again and again went over to unbelief (Rz). Some, however, are of opinion that the reference is to the Jews in particular, who believed in one revelation and denied the other (Rz). The reference to the Book "which He revealed before," in v. 136, shows clearly that the Jews are meant, among whom there were, no doubt, many hypocrites.

635 Allah's not guiding them is the consequence of their own actions. They wavered first, but in the end became firm in disbelief.

636 Tahshir (related to bushrah, i.e. complexion) originally denotes the announcing of an event which produces a change in the complexion. In common acceptation it is used with regard to the news which rejoice a man, but is sometimes used for the announcement of an event which grieves a man (Rz-LL).

637 In the sixth chapter of the Holy Qur-án, which was revealed at Mecca, we find this injunction in v. 68. The Muslims are told to leave the assembly where truth is mocked at, for if they do not, they will grow accustomed to such mockery: Surely then you would be like

End of the Hypocrites

142, 143. Their deceitfulness. 144 Injunction against friendly relations with foes. 145-147. Their ultimate fate. 148, 149. Abuse prohibited. 150-152. Rejection of apostles amounts to unbelief.

142 Surely the hypocrites strive to deceive Allah, and He shall requite their deceit to them,⁶³⁸ and when they stand up to prayer, they stand up sluggishly; they do it only to be seen of men and do not remember Allah save a little, them. A Christian annotator draws from these words the strange conclusion that the Muslims are prohibited from hearing any criticism of their religion. It does not require more than common sense to understand that mockery and criticism are not the same thing.

638 For the meaning of khada'a and khada'a see 23. It may be added that khadi'uhum means here the requiter to them of their deceit (TA-LI). In fact, a comparison of this passage with the similar passage occurring in 2:9 makes the meaning perfectly clear. There we have: "They desire to deceive Allah and those who believe and they deceive only themselves." In both cases they are warned of punishment for their striving to deceive the believers.

639 Muzabgab, lit., much driven away, has the same significance as muzabsib, i.e. wavering or vacillating between two things or affairs (T, S, M, Q-LI). The reference in that is to the believers and unbelievers spoken of in the concluding words of v. 141.

640 Insincerity in religion is the worst of all, and hence the hypocrites, or the insincere men whose actions are not in accordance with their avowed beliefs, are spoken of as being in the worst condition.

148 Allah does not love the public utterance of hurtful speech, unless (it be) by one to whom injustice has been done; and Allah is Hearing, Knowing.⁶⁴²

149 If you do good openly or do it in secret or pardon an evil, then surely Allah is Pardoning, Powerful.

150 Surely those who disbelieve in Allah and His apostles and (those who) desire to make a distinction between Allah and His apostles and say: We believe in some and disbelieve in others; and desire to take a course between (this and) that,

151 These it is that are truly unbelievers, and We have prepared for the unbelievers a disgraceful chastisement.⁶⁴³

152 And those who believe in Allah and His apostles and do not make a distinction between any of them—Allah will grant them their rewards; and Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

641 The word shākir when used as an attribute of the Divine Being signifies who gives large reward for small works or in whose estimation small works performed by His servants increase, and who multiplies His rewards to them (TA-LI), and so you say: شَكَرَ اللَّهُ سَعِيهِ meaning may God reward his labour (LI).

642 The use of defamatory speech of every kind regarding others is strictly forbidden, but justification for it may exist in case a person has in some way been injured.

643 To make distinction between Allah and His apostles means to believe in one and not in the other. Islam requires also the acceptance of all prophets who were raised for the regeneration of men, and hence a denial of any one of the prophets named in the Holy Qur-ān takes a man out of the category of believers and places him among the unbelievers.

SECTION 22

Transgressions of the Jews

153-155. Jews violate the covenant. 156-159. Their accusations against Jesus and Mary, and the truth relating to the crucifixion of Jesus. 160, 161. Their punishment. 162. Some believe.

Ar. thes. 153 The followers of the Book ask you to bring down to them a book from heaven; so indeed they demanded of Moses a greater thing than that, for they said: Show us Allah manifestly; so the rumbling overtook them on account of their injustice.*

a 87. Then they took the calf (for a god),^b after clear signs had come to them, but We pardoned this; and We gave to Moses clear authority.

c 105 154 And We raised the mountain above them^c at their covenant, and We said to them: Enter the door making obeisance;^d and We said to them: Do not exceed the limits of the Sabbath;^e and We made with them a firm covenant.

f 102. 155 Therefore for their breaking their covenant and their disbelief in the communications of Allah and their killing the prophets wrongfully^f and their saying: Our hearts are covered;^g nay! Allah set a seal upon them owing to their unbelief,^h so they have no faith but a little:

156 And for their unbelief and for their having uttered against Mary a grievous calumny;⁶⁴⁴

157 And their saying: Surely we have killed the Messiah, Jesus son of Mary, the apostle of Allah; and they did not kill him nor did they crucify⁶⁴⁵ him, but (the matter) is plainly stated in 5 : 117 : " And I was a witness of them so long as I was among them, but when Thou didst cause me to die, Thou wert the watcher over them." See 752. The Gospels contain clear testimony showing that Jesus Christ escaped death on the cross. The following points may be noted : (1) Jesus remained on the cross for a few hours only, but death by crucifixion was always tardy. (2) The two men crucified with Jesus were still alive when taken down from the cross, therefore Jesus also might have been alive. (3) The breaking of legs was resorted to in the case of the two criminals, but dispensed with in the case of Jesus. (4) The side of Jesus being pierced, blood rushed out, and this was a certain sign of life. (5) Even Pilate did not believe that Jesus actually died in so short a time (Mark 15 : 44). (6) Jesus was not buried like the two criminals, but was given into the charge of a wealthy discip'le of his, who lavished care upon him and put him in a spacious room hewn in the side of a rock. (7) When the tomb was seen on the third day the stone was found to have been removed from its mouth, which would not have been the case if there had been a supernatural rising. (8) Mary, when she saw him, took him for the gardener (John 20 : 15), which shows that Jesus had disguised himself as a gardener. (9) Such disguise would not have been needed if Jesus had risen from the dead. (10) It was in the same body of flesh that the disciples saw Jesus, and the wounds were still there deep enough for a man to thrust his hand in. (11) He still felt hunger and ate as his disciples ate (Luke 24 : 39-43). (12) Jesus Christ undertook a journey to Galilee with two of his disciples walking side by side with him, which shows that he was flying for refuge, for if his object had been to rise to heaven he would not have undertaken a journey to Galilee. (13) In all post-crucifixion appearances Jesus is found concealing and hiding himself as if he feared being discovered. (14) Jesus Christ prayed the whole night before his arrest to be saved from the accursed death on the cross, and he also asked his disciples to pray for him, and it is the Divine law that the prayers of a righteous man in distress and affliction are always accepted. He seems to have even received a promise from his Master to be saved, and it was to this promise that he referred when he cried out on the cross : " My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me ? " —Heb 5 : 7 making the matter still more clear, for there it is plainly stated that the prayer of Jesus was accepted : " When he had offered up prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears unto Him who was able to save him from death, and was heard in that he feared." All these testimonies show conclusively that Jesus could not have died on the cross, and therefore the statement in the Qur-án is perfectly true.

646 The words شبه لهم may bear two interpretations. You say شبهه

أي i.e. he made it to be like it or to resemble it (MA, KL, LL). And also شبهه عليه

i.e. he rendered it confused to him, and he rendered it ambiguous, dubious or obscure to him (MA-LL). As the first significance is only admissible when an object is mentioned which the thing is made to resemble, the latter remains the only possible meaning. The Ruh-ul-Ma'ánt adopts this as one of the possible significances, and says the meaning may be التبس عليهم الامر i.e. the matter became dubious to them. The story that some one else was made to resemble Jesus is not borne out by the words of the Qur-án, which could only mean, if an object were mentioned, that Jesus was made to resemble (something). And even if we may supply the object that is omitted, that which he was made to resemble must be spoken of in the same passage, and while the resemblance to one crucified is implied

158 Nay! Allah exalted him in His presence; and Allah is Mighty, Wise.⁶⁴⁹

159 And there is not one of the followers of the Book but most certainly believes in this before his death, and on the day of resurrection he shall be a witness against them.⁶⁵⁰

160 Wherefore for the iniquity of those who are Jews did We disallow to them the good things which had been made lawful for them, and for their hindering many (people) from Allah's way, 161 And their taking usury—though indeed they were forbidden it—and their devouring the property of people falsely; and We have prepared for the unbelievers from among them a painful chastisement.

162 But the firm in knowledge among them and the believers believe in what has been revealed to you and what was revealed before you, and those who keep up prayers and those who give the poor-rate and the believers in Allah and the last day, these it is to whom We will give a mighty reward.

in the statement that they did not crucify him, there is no mention here or elsewhere of any person who may have been made to resemble him, or more properly whom he may have been made to resemble.

647 The circumstances relating to the crucifixion, far from showing that Jesus died on the cross, clearly prove that he was taken down alive.

648 ما تلووه يقينا means, according to Rgh, they did not know with a certain knowledge his having been put to death on the cross.

649 For the significance of raf' see 437. The form here adopted—they did not kill him for sure on the cross, but Allah exalted him—shows that being exalted in the Divine presence was opposed to being killed on the cross. Deut. 21: 23 explains this, for there we have, he that is hanged is accursed of God, and as the accursed one cannot be called honourable in the Divine presence, hence the negation of Jesus being killed on the cross and the affirmation that he was exalted before the Divine presence—i.e. he was not accursed.

650 Both the Jews and the Christians necessarily believe in the death of Jesus on the cross, while according to the Holy Qur-ān they have really no sure knowledge of it. The Jews reject his claim to Messiahship—without rejecting which they cannot, of course, remain Jews—on the basis of Deut. 21: 23: "He that is hanged is accursed of God"; and their belief is that since Jesus died on the cross he was accursed, and no one who is accursed of God can be a prophet. Upon quite a different line of argument, the death of Jesus upon the cross is the most essential principle of a Christian's faith. He admits the truth of Deut 21 : 23, but he says that unless Jesus were accused he could not take away the sins of those that believe in him. As in Gal. 3 : 13 : " Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us; for it is written, Cursed is every one that hangeth on the tree." Hence the fundamental principle of the belief of both Jews and Christians is that Jesus died on the cross, and the meaning of the verse is clear, viz. every Jew and Christian, notwithstanding that he has no sure knowledge at all, must believe before his death that Jesus died on the cross. Or the personal pronoun his may refer to Jesus, the meaning in that case being that both the Jews and the Christians base their faith on Jesus' death before it actually occurred

651 The prophets spoken of here all belong to the Israelite race. Abraham and his immediate descendants are mentioned first; then follow the three prophets of Israel who suffered great tribulations, viz. Jesus, Job, and Jonah. The next group is that of the four who were both rulers and prophets, viz. Moses, Aaron, David, and Solomon. But as David and Moses stand in a special relation to the Holy Prophet, the former singing his praises throughout his Psalms and the latter being his like, they are spoken of separately at the end. The good news which they brought relates as much to the peace and happiness which is granted to the righteous as to the advent of one who, coming at the end, should unite the qualifications of all the prophets in his own person, and accordingly make the nations of the earth as one nation. It is for this reason that the Qur-án is spoken of as " pure pages wherein are all the right books " (98 : 2). That all the prophets had spoken of the advent of the Holy Prophet is clear from Acts 3 : 21-22 : " Whom the heaven must receive until the time of restitution of all things which God had spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began. For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me."

Ar. thee. 166 But Allah bears witness by what He has revealed to you that He has revealed it with His knowledge, and the angels bear witness (also); and Allah is sufficient as a witness.

Or, turn away. 167 Surely (as for) those who disbelieve and hinder (men) from Allah's way, they indeed have strayed off into a remote error.

168 Surely (as for) those who disbelieve and act unjustly, Allah will not forgive them nor guide them to a path, a 1201. 169 Except the path of hell, to abide in it for a long time,* and this is easy to Allah.

170 O people! surely the Apostle has come to you with the truth from your Lord, wherefore believe, (it shall be) good for you; and if you disbelieve, then surely whatever is in the heavens and the earth is Allah's; and Allah is Knowing, Wise.

171 O followers of the Book! do not exceed the limits in your religion, and do not speak (lies) against Allah, but (speak) the truth; the Messiah, Jesus son of Mary, is only an apostle of Allah and His word⁶⁵² which He communicated to Mary and an inspiration from Him;⁶⁵³

652 Kalimah, or word, is here equivalent to prophecy, in which sense the word is frequently used in the Holy Qur-án. Jesus is called a prophecy because he was born in accordance with a prophecy from Allah, just as in a saying the Holy Prophet speaks of himself as "the prayer of my father Abraham," the significance being that he appeared in fulfilment of Abraham's prayer. For a fuller explanation see 423. And the significance of ilqá varies according to its object. When its object is a tangible thing, it implies the act of throwing or casting. But you say القيت اليه خيرا i.e. I did good to him and القيت

revealed to me his secret (TA in art. sirr); and القيت اليه القول which corresponds to what is said here, the object of the verb being kalimah instead of qaul, both having the same meaning, must be rendered I communicated to him the saying (Msb-LL). The physical act of throwing or casting a thing is farthest off from the true meaning of 653, see next page.

believe therefore in Allah and His apostles, and say not, Three.⁶⁵⁴ Desist, it is better for you; Allah is only one God: far be it from His glory that He should have a son; whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth is His; and Allah is sufficient for a Protector.

Prophethood of Jesus, and a Reversion to the Law of Inheritance 172-174. Jesus a servant of Allah. 175, 176. The Qur-án is true light. 177. Law of inheritance supplemented.

172 The Messiah does by no means disdain that he should be a servant of Allah, nor do the angels who are near to Him; and whoever disdains His service and is proud, He will gather them all together to Himself.

173 Then as for those who believe and do good, He will pay them fully their rewards and give them more out of His grace; and as for those who disdain and are proud, He will chastise them with a painful chastisement.

لَنْ يَسْتَنكِفَ الْمَسِيحُ أَنْ يَكُونَ عَبْدًا
لِلَّهِ وَلَا الْمَلَائِكَةُ الْمُقَرَّبُونَ وَمَنْ
يَسْتَنكِفْ عَنْ عِبَادَتِهِ وَيَسْتَكِبْ
فَسَيَحْشُرْهُمْ إِلَيْهِ جَمِيعًا
فَأَمَّا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّالِحَاتِ

the word as used here. Sale's and Rodwell's conveying into Mary and Palmer's casting into Mary, as if the object were a tangible one, are equally foreign to the real sense of the word.

653 The word ruh may convey any one of the following three significances. Rauh and ruh both mean mercy of Allah, according to Az (LL under rauh), this being the proper significance of the word in the passage under discussion. Ruh also signifies inspiration or Divine revelation (Zj, TA, Q-LL), and the adoption of this meaning explains what is said in كلمته القها الى مريم i.e. His prophecy which He communicated to Mary, the meaning of the whole sentence being that the advent of Jesus was in accordance with a prophecy and an inspiration from the Divine Being. Even if we take spirit to be the meaning of the word ruh, it does in no way carry Jesus a step beyond the limits of mortality, for of Adam also it has been said نُفِثَ فِيهِ مِنْ رُوحِي i.e. I breathed My spirit into him. But more than that, we have the saying referred to by LL under rauh: احيا الناس بروحه where the correct reading is ruh and not rauh, meaning, He (God) has quickened all men with His spirit. Therefore روح منه which could only mean a spirit from Him, is further evidence that even in this sense the word is not exclusively applicable to Jesus, for he is not the word of God and the spirit from Him, but only a word and a spirit, and as all men are declared to be quickened by the spirit of Allah in the proverb quoted above, all men, and in fact all creatures, are declared to be the words of Allah in 18: 109:

بِكُلِّ شَيْءٍ عَلِيمٌ

"Say, If the sea were ink for the words of my Lord, the sea would surely be consumed before the words of my Lord are exhausted."

654 The doctrine of Trinity is plainly rejected here. There are not three persons in Godhead, but only one: Allah is only one God. The Holy Qur-án nowhere says that the Christian Trinity is formed of Jesus, Mary, and God, though it no doubt refers to the Roman Catholic doctrine of the worship of Mary in 5:116, for which see 751.

655 The rule given here supplements the law of inheritance as given at the commencement of this chapter, and is said to have been revealed very late. The sisters and brothers spoken of here are the real sisters and brothers or half-sisters and half-brothers on the father's side, those on the mother's side having already been spoken of in v. 12. Reversion to the law of inheritance just after speaking of Jesus Christ indicates a deeper meaning. It is a fact that no prophet appeared among the Israelites after Jesus Christ, and therefore his death really left Israel without a spiritual head who should rise to the eminence of prophethood. Hence, according to this law, the spiritual inheritance must have gone to the brother tribe of Ishmael, who received it in the person of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him. This would also explain the words addressed to Moses: "God will raise up unto thee a prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto me" (Deut. 18:15), where the spiritual inheritance is clearly made to devolve on the brethren of the Israelites, i.e. the Ishmaelites, and thus from the midst of thee is clearly explained as meaning from the midst of thy brethren, as Moses saw that the Israelites would lose their title to the inheritance of the spiritual kingdom before the advent of the prophet who was to be his like.

- Sec. 16. False doctrines introduced after Jesus' death.

Title and connection.

THE name of this chapter is taken from the mention of a demand for food on the part of the followers of Jesus Christ, to which reference is made towards the end of this chapter; and as it deals with the Christians in particular, that incident is unquestionably one of its chief features, although the chapter deals with Christians in general. Ordinarily māidah, which is the Arabic word, is rendered as meaning a table, but even taking that meaning to be correct, it signifies a table for food only. The adoption of this name for this chapter might be with a view to express the Christian love of the dainties of this life.

This chapter stands in almost the same relation to the last as the 3rd to the 2nd. Thus, while the 4th chapter deals chiefly with the hypocrites, the 5th deals with those who had assumed open enmity to Islam, being interspersed here and there with directions for the Muslims. While the 4th chapter deals with the question of Jewish disobedience, this gives prominence to the Christian transgressions due to their inordinate worldly love, this distinction being made plain in the concluding portions of the two chapters. There is also a plain connection between the end of the 4th and the commencement of the 5th chapter, for while the former ends with the Christian doctrine of the divinity of Jesus, the necessary result of which is disregard of the religious law, the latter in its opening verses lays particular stress upon one's duty to be true to religious laws and covenants.

Subject-matter.

The contents of this chapter are chiefly concerned with the Jewish and Christian violation of their covenants, with an exhortation to the Muslims to remain true to their own. Attention to the latter point is drawn in the very opening verse of the chapter: "O you who believe! fulfil your obligations." This injunction is followed by certain details relating to the performance of the pilgrimage, to foods, and to social relations with other people. The second section, which calls attention to the duty of uprightness, is as it were a caution against laying too much stress upon details of the law to the utter neglect of the inner qualities which make the real man. The third section speaks of the covenants made with the Jews and the Christians, and after hinting at the violation of the covenant by the Christians in assigning a Divine dignity to a mere mortal, takes up the Jewish violation of the covenant in the fourth section, at the very outset of their national life, and points out the evil consequences of their disobedience. The fifth section, opening with a lesson to the Jews in Cain's aggression, plainly points towards the end to the punishment of the Jews who were now engaged in making war upon the Prophet, and the subject of the punishment of similar offences is continued in the sixth section. The seventh speaks of the relation of the Quranic revelation to previous revelations, and points out that this final revelation is really the fulfilment and perfection of all those revelations. The eighth section, however, warns the Muslims of the hostile attitude of the Jews and the Christians and those who apostatize, the subject being continued in the ninth, which tells of their mockery of the Muslim religion. The tenth introduces the subject of Christian deviation from the truth, while the eleventh proves that the Qur-án is not unjust to them on account of their enmity towards Islam, valuing the meekness of monks and priests among them, and recognizing their nearness to Islam in contrast to the Jews and the polytheists. The three sections that follow are specially addressed to the believers, while hinting at Christian disregard of the middle course and of their aggressions against the Muslims. Thus the twelfth section, while warning the Muslims on the one hand of such practices as monkery, which required a man to deprive himself even of lawful things, cautions them on the other against the use of impure drugs, such as intoxicating liquors, and the acquisition of property by illegal means, such as in gambling, the two besetting sins of Christian nations, and requires obedience and regard of duty to be made the main principles of action. The thirteenth section, opening with an injunction requiring the Muslims not even to hunt wild animals and birds during the pilgrimage, lays stress on the security of the Ka'ba, containing probably an allusion to the attempts of a Christian nation to demolish it (see ch. 105), and a prophetic allusion as well perhaps to future designs of more powerful nations. The fourteenth section, containing further directions for the Muslims, lays special stress on the gravity of the sin of polytheism, which had led the Christians farthest away from the truth, notwithstanding their proximity to Islam. The two concluding sections of the chapter deal with the Christian religion more plainly, attention being drawn in the fifteenth to the Christian love of this life, the immediate disciples of Jesus demanding an abundance of worldly provisions, which finds an echo, perhaps, in the Lord's prayer asking for daily bread; while the sixteenth, which is the last section, contains a plain condemnation of the doctrine of the divinity of Jesus out of the mouth of that prophet himself.

Date of revelation.

A consideration of the topics dealt with in this chapter, as well as the opinions of different authorities, lead us to the almost certain conclusion that this chapter follows in the order of revelation, as it does in arrangement, the last chapter, and the main portion of it was revealed within the years five to seven Hejira. It is only in very rare cases that the exact date of the revelation of a verse can be fixed with certainty, and the various dates assigned to the different verses of a particular chapter are in most cases mere conjectures, devoid of accuracy. The tendency of Christian critics, for instance, to ascribe verses condemning certain Jewish or Christian doctrines to a period when political relations with these people became strained is to be deprecated, for, as a matter of fact, the Qur-án did not deny the good in these religions at any time, nor did it ever approve of their errors. For instance, it is in an early Meccan revelation that we find the Christian doctrine of the sonship of Jesus condemned in the severest terms (19:88-92), while it is in a late Medina revelation that we find the Christians praised on account of their meekness, while the enmity of both Jews and Christians to Islam had already been clearly recognized in v. 51, where both are spoken of in the same breath as people with whom the Muslims can no more be friendly.

General Obligations

There is, however, one verse in this chapter which belongs to a much later period than the main portion of the chapter, the date of the revelation of which can be fixed with the utmost certainty. It is the third verse, and it speaks of the perfection of the faith of Islam. Of its revelation in the Holy Prophet's last pilgrimage to Mecca in the year 10 A.H. there is not the least doubt, and, further, there is the clearest testimony that it was revealed on the 9th Zil Haj in that year, when the Holy Prophet was in the plain of 'Arafât. The importance of its subject, which, speaking of the perfection of the faith of Islam, foretold the approaching end of the Prophet, gave it a fame which was preserved to the days of the Caliphate of 'Umar (Bkh). It need not be denied that other verses may have also been revealed later than the 7th year of Hejira, but as the task of assigning particular dates to particular verses rests on nothing but conjecture, I had better refrain from this fruitless labour.

656 The respect for all covenants, contracts, agreements, leagues, treaties, and engagements, all of which are included in the significance of the word 'Uqud (LL), and also of all Divine ordinances given for the welfare of the individual and society, is the very first necessity of social relations. According to Zj the word includes the covenants imposed by God as well as the mutual agreements made by men (LL).

657 The prohibition of game during pilgrimage is mentioned in connection with the security of the Ka'ba in section 13, so that even wild animals are secure during the time; see 735.

658 Sha'âir is plural of sha'îrah, which means here mash'îrah, i.e. a place where a thing is known to be, or a place for the performance of a religious service (TA-LL). But sha'îrah and shi'ârah and shi'îr are also explained as meaning a sign or a religious performance (LL). The sha'âir-ul-haj are therefore the religious performances that must be gone through in the pilgrimage; and sha'âir-ullah is variously explained as meaning all the religious services appointed as signs by Allah, or, according to Hasan, the religion of Allah (Ra); according to others it denotes the religious performances in connection with the pilgrimage, as the halting at 'Arafât and running between Safâ and Marwah and the sacrificing of victims (Zj, TA-LL); or the rites and ceremonies of the pilgrimage and the places where these rites and ceremonies are performed (Bd-LL). I adopt any thing appointed as a sign by Allah as the true meaning, which not only conveys the root-significance of sign, but also includes the various explanations given by commentators. In the Holy Qur-ân the two mountains Safâ and Marwah (2:15+) and the offerings (22:36) are said to be shu'air-ullah. Here the places connected with the performance of the pilgrimage seem to be intended, as the offerings are separately mentioned.

659 The two words had-y and Qalâid both indicate animals meant for sacrifice during the pilgrimage. The former is plural of hadyah, and means what is driven (to Mecca), and the latter is plural of qilâdah, meaning a necklace, or what is put upon the neck of an animal that is brought as an offering to Mecca for sacrifice (LA-LL), and hence also the animal which is made to wear a garland (Rz). The word qalâid as a description of such animals is used to intensify respect for them, because they bear a clear mark showing that they are meant to be sacrificed. It should be noted that only camels are made to wear garlands, while had-y includes all kinds of animals brought as offering.

660 The principle laid down here as to uprightness of conduct in dealing even with those whom we hate is one which is not met with anywhere but in Islam, and the international law of modern Europe stands sorely in need of such a principle of uprightness. Hence, Islam alone can serve as an international law, requiring equal treatment for all nations.

661 The exception may apply to all the five classes. The infinitive noun tazkiyah means causing the natural heat to pass forth. Technically, it indicates a particular mode of slaughtering (Rgh, TA-LL); and the meaning is that if an animal partly eaten by wild beasts is found while yet alive, and is slaughtered in the proper manner, its flesh is allowed.

Or, divine.

Say: The good things are allowed to you, and what you have taught the beasts and birds of prey, training them to hunt—you teach them of what Allah has taught you—so eat of that which they catch for you and mention the name of Allah over it; and be careful of (your duty to) Allah; surely Allah is swift in reckoning.⁶⁶⁵

662 According to Ibn-i-Jurajj these were certain stones which were set up around the Ka'ba over or near which it was customary to kill animals as offerings to certain idols, their blood being sprinkled and flesh laid on the stones (Itz). Naṣab also means any stone that is set up and worshipped (Msh-LL).

663 Istaqsamtu-hā means, according to Rgh, I asked him to divide, and he adds: "Then it is used to signify dividing." If this significance be adopted, the azlām (lit. arrows without a head and without a feather) would mean the headless arrows of the game of hazard. The Arabs played with such arrows for division of the flesh of a slaughtered camel bought on credit (LL). This significance is favoured by the context, for it prohibits dividing flesh of slaughtered animals by means of certain arrows with which was played the game of chance called maisir. A comparison with 6:146, where slaying in other than Allah's name is called a transgression, as here dividing by arrows is called a transgression, also shows this to be the correct significance. Probably animals devoted to idols were divided by arrows when slain. According to others, however, istaqsama means he sought to know what was allotted to him by means of the azlām. When any one of them desired to make a journey, or to get married, or to perform some other great affair, he drew out arrows, on one of which was written "My Lord has commanded me," on a second, "My Lord has forbidden me," while a third arrow was blank. He did or refrained from doing the desired thing according to the arrow which came forth, repeating the operation if a blank arrow came out (Rz). This significance is given in the margin.

664 External testimony as to the late revelation of this verse has already been quoted in the introductory note to this chapter. The very subject-matter of the verse shows that it must have been revealed towards the close of the Holy Prophet's life, and hence it is held by all authorities that no precept was revealed after this. The Prophet died eighty-one or eighty-two days after its revelation (Rz). This verse is a clear testimony to the perfection of religion in Islam, no such claim being made by any other book or religion. Hence it was that Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him, was the last of the prophets, because religion being perfected no prophet was needed after him.

665 Game killed by means of beasts and birds of prey taught to hunt is allowed. When, however, the beast or the bird is sent after the prey, the name of Allah should be mentioned. Game killed by an arrow or by a shot is allowed, subject to the same condition. In either case, if the game is not killed before it falls into the hand of the hunter, it should be slaughtered; if it is already killed, it is lawful in that condition. There is, however, a difference of opinion when the beast tears up the game and eats part of it. Some think that in such a case it is not lawful to eat it (Rz).

666 The question arises here whether the food of those who have been given the Book is lawful even when that food includes what is expressly declared to be unlawful elsewhere, as, for instance, in v. 3, etc. The answer to this question must be given in the negative. A thing which is clearly prohibited cannot become lawful because it is offered by a Jew or a Christian. But there are no two opinions regarding animals slaughtered by the Jews or the Christians, except in the case when a Christian slaughters an animal in the name of Jesus, for Jesus is other than Allah, and according to the three famous imams, Abú Hanifah, Málík, and Sháfi'í, such an animal is prohibited, while 'Ata, Makhúl, Hasan, Shi'bi, and Sa'id allow it as being the food of the followers of the Book (Rz).

667 Both the Jewish and the Christian laws do not compare well with the Islamic law in this respect. In Islam intermarriages with idol-worshippers are totally prohibited (2:221), but in the case of a people whose religion is based on a revealed book, intermarriages are allowed to the extent that women belonging to an alien religion may be taken in marriage. The giving away of Muslim women in marriage to followers of other religions is not, however, allowed. Indeed, while women belonging to other religions would be happy in a Muslim household, because of the status and rights which Islam confers on woman, Muslim women in an alien household would be in a condition of distress, because they would lose the rights which they enjoy in Muslim society. It may be added that the law here given is not limited to the Jews and the Christians, but includes the followers of all religions based on revelation. Hence the law was extended to the Persians by the companions of the Holy Prophet.

As for the Jewish law, which makes no exception, see Deut. 7:3: "Neither shalt thou make marriages with them; thy daughter thou shalt not give unto his son, nor his daughter shalt thou take unto thy son," Paul follows the Jewish law: "Be ye not unequally yoked

Duty of Uprightness

6. Prayer and its preliminaries. 7-10. Justice to be adhered to.
11. Wrongful conduct of the Jews.

7 And remember the favour of Allah on you and His covenant with which He bound you firmly, when you said: We have heard and we obey; and be careful of (your duty to) Allah, surely Allah knows what is in the breasts.⁶⁶⁹ together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? And what communion hath light with darkness?" (2 Cor. 6: 14).

8 O you who believe! be upright for Allah, bearers of witness with justice,^c and let not hatred of a people incite you not to act equitably; act equitably, that is nearer to piety, and be careful of (your duty to) Allah; surely Allah is Aware of what you do.

668 The denial of faith is variously explained. Some think it means denial of Allah; others, denial of the unity of Allah; while others still think that faith stands for the revelation of the Qur-ān. The meaning in this last case is said to be the laying of stress upon the injunction relating to intermarriages with those who have any scriptures.

669 The reference is generally supposed to be to the oath of fidelity taken by the Medinites at 'Aqabah, but it is more likely to be to the swearing of allegiance to Hudaibiyyah, a more recent event, to which the Holy Qur-ān also refers in 48: 10 and 18.

9 Allah has promised to those who believe and do good deeds (that) they shall have forgiveness and a mighty reward.

10 And (as for) those who disbelieve and reject our communications, these are the companions of the flame.

670 The occasions on which the enemies of Islam endeavoured to take away the life of the Prophet or to exterminate the Muslims are too numerous to mention here. This is an obvious reference to those Quraish and their allies who left no stone unturned to destroy the Muslim community. The commentators, however, think that there is special reference to the attempt made by the Bani Naḍir on the life of the Holy Prophet (Rz).

671 It is strange to find Rodwell adding a note here that the Prophet "invented these twelve leaders of tribes," whereas they are clearly mentioned by name in Num. 1:5-15, and in the 16th verse they are called princes of the tribes of their fathers; while in the 44th verse we have: "And the princes of Israel, being twelve men." And further, in Num. 13:3-15 we again read of twelve heads of the children of Israel having been sent to search the land of Canaan.

672 The following description of that land was given by Joshua and Caleb to the Israelites: "It the Lord delight in us, then He will bring us into this land, and give it us; a land which floweth with milk and honey" (Num. 14: 8).

673 "I have yet many things to say to you, but ye cannot hear them now. Howbeit when he, the spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth; for he shall not speak of himself, but whatsoever he shall hear that shall he speak: and he will show you things to come" (John 16: 12, 13). The kingdom of God so often spoken of in the Gospels is no other than the spiritual kingdom established by the Holy Prophet, the Gospel being in fact only the good news of his advent.

674 The prophecy that there shall always be hatred and enmity between the various Christian peoples has proved true in all ages, and never more clearly than in the great European war of our own day. They will find peace and concord only when they accept Islam.

675 There were many truths which the Jews and the Christians had lost, their scriptures not having remained free from corruption. Some of these which were of permanent value were revealed in the Holy Qur-án, but others which had been given to them to suit only the requirements of the time when they were given were not now needed. Or the reference may be to the prophecies of the advent of the Holy Prophet, for the Qur-án refers to only very few of them.

676 The Prophet is here called light because he leads men into light out of darkness, as stated in the next verse. The word may also have a reference to Jesus' description of him: he will guide you into all truth.

Or, safety.

16 With it Allah guides him who will follow His pleasure into the ways of peace and brings them out of utter darkness into light by His will and guides them to the right path.

17 Certainly they disbelieve who say: Surely, Allah—He is the Messiah, son of Mary. Say: Who then could control anything as against Allah when He wished to destroy the Messiah son of Mary and his mother and all those on the earth?⁶⁷⁷ and Allah's is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and what is between them; He creates what He pleases; and Allah has power over all things.

18 And the Jews and the Christians say: We are the sons of Allah and His beloved ones. Say: Why does He then chastise you for your faults?⁶⁷⁸ Nay, you are mortals from among those whom He has created; He forgives whom He pleases and chastises whom He pleases;⁶⁷⁹ and Allah's is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and what is between them, and to Him is the eventual coming.

677 The meaning is that Jesus Christ and his mother Mary, and all those who were on the earth, tasted equally of death; hence Jesus Christ was an ordinary human being and not God, for if he had been God he would not have died. In sometimes signifies if or when (Mgh-LL).

678 The Divine law of evil being followed with evil consequences in this world had not ceased to work at the advent of either Moses or Jesus, hence there was no reason that it should cease to work in the life after death. Yet if the Jews and the Christians were indeed the beloved ones of God, their sins should not have met with punishment as they did in this very life, not to say in the life after death, in which they asserted they would not be punished. The words contain a clear refutation of the doctrine of atonement. In spite of the Christian's belief in atonement, when the Divine law of the punishment of evil in this life was not dispensed with for them, how could it have been dispensed with in the life after death?

679 It is in accordance with Divine laws that forgiveness and punishment are exercised, and the alleged atonement of Christ had brought about no change in that law.

680 Several centuries had elapsed since the appearance of any prophet in any country when the great Arabian Prophet made his appearance. No nation in the world claims the appearance of any apostle in it between the advent of Jesus Christ and that of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him. The world was as it were preparing itself for the advent of the greatest of all prophets, who was to be an apostle to all the nations of the world. Hence the cessation of prophecy among all people. And moreover the scriptures of all nations had undergone alterations, so that the advent of the Apostle Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him, was preceded by an entire cessation of the mission of the apostles.

681 There is no anachronism here. The Israelites are here told that two favours had been bestowed upon them: (1) prophets were raised among them; (2) they were made kings. The reference need not be to the earlier history of the Israelites, but to their history as dating from the time of Moses, for the advent of Moses had brought about an entire change both in their spiritual and political status. Not only had two prophets, Moses and Aaron, already appeared among them, but with the Mosaic law was laid down the basis of a dispensation which gave them promise of numerous prophets appearing among them. And politically they had no doubt already emerged as an independent nation, being masters of themselves and no more slaves of their Egyptian masters. They had acquired kingship, and so the words no doubt contained a clear prophetic reference to their future career as a ruling nation. Spiritual dominance combined with political supremacy was manifestly a favour which was not bestowed upon any of the other contemporary nations.

682 "All the people that we saw in it are men of a great stature" (Num. 13: 32). For the murmurings of the Israelites and their refusal to go against the enemy, see Num. 14: 1-4.

23 Two men of those who feared, upon both of whom Allah had bestowed a favour, said: Enter upon them by the gate, for when you have entered it you shall surely be victorious, and on Allah should you rely if you are believers.⁶⁸³

Only rebel not ye against the Lord, neither fear ye the people of the land . . . their defence is departed from them, and the Lord is with us, fear them not" (Num. 14: 6-9).

684 Some commentators think that by your lord is here meant Aaron, because he was Moses' elder brother (Rz).

685 "Surely they shall not see the land which I swore unto their fathers, neither shall any of them that provoked Me see it" (Num. 14: 23). The forty years spoken of here represent the life of that generation.

فَكَأَنَّمَا أَحْيَا النَّاسَ جَمِيعًا وَلَقَدْ

686 The reference is apparently to the story of Cain and Abel. Compare Gen. 4: 3-12. Hasan and Dk are, however, of opinion that the reference is to two men from among the Israelites, because every man may be spoken of as a son of Adam (Rz). But the whole story may be taken allegorically to refer to the Jewish plots against the Holy Prophet, where the Israelites may be taken for the aggressive and sinful brother and the Ishmaelites, as represented by the Holy Prophet, for the righteous one. It may be noted that in v. 11 we have a reference to the Jewish plots against the Holy Prophet's life, and the two sections that follow are, as it were, parenthetical, reminding the Jews and the Christians of their covenants and their violation of them, and the subject of v. 11 is continued in this and the following section.

687 Izmi here means not my sin, but the sin committed against me, i.e. the sin of murder; while by izmika is meant your sin, i.e. his previous sin on account of which his offering was not accepted.

688 The Bible is silent on this point; but there is nothing improbable in primitive man having learnt some things from other creatures.

689 The reference is generally understood to mean the gravity of the crime of murder, and the reason for its becoming a capital crime requiring the execution of the criminal. But by the slaying of a soul may as well be meant the slaying of the prophets who come to

Our apostles came to them with clear arguments, but even after that many of them certainly act extravagantly in the land.

33 The punishment of those who wage war against Allah and His apostle and strive to make mischief in the land⁶⁹⁰ is only this, that they should be murdered or crucified or their hands and their feet should be cut off on opposite sides or they should be imprisoned;⁶⁹¹ this shall be as a disgrace for them in this world, and in the hereafter they shall have a grievous chastisement, establish righteousness, because the slaying of one of them is indeed equivalent to the slaying of all men and assisting in the saving of their lives is surely the same as saving the lives of all men. The reference is to the Jewish plots against the life of the Holy Prophet, and that is the reason for mentioning here the Israelites in particular.

34 Except those who repent before you have them in your power;⁶⁹² so know that Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

690 The words used here seem to imply originally all those opponents of Islam, including the Jews, who waged war on the Muslims and made mischief in the land by persecuting or slaying innocent Muslims who fell into their hands. But it has generally been accepted that dacoits and murderers who cause disorder in a settled state of society may be dealt with according to this verse. The punishment described is of four kinds, which clearly shows that the punishment to be inflicted in any particular case would depend upon the circumstances of the case as well as the time and place where the crime is committed. If murder has been committed in the course of dacoity, the punishment must include the execution of the culprit, which may take the form of crucifixion if the offence is so heinous or the culprit has caused such terror in the land that the leaving of his body on the cross is necessary as a deterrent. In other cases the punishment may be imprisonment, where severer punishment is deemed unnecessary.

691 يُنْفَوْا مِنَ الْأَرْضِ literally means they should be banished from the earth, but according to Abū Hanīfa the meaning here is imprisonment (al-habs), and most lexicologists accept this (Rz). LA also accepts the interpretation that they should be kept in the prison. The reason is apparent. No one can be banished from the whole of the earth unless he is kept in prison. Or al-arḍ may signify a particular country, and in that case the words would imply deportation.

692 The martial law of Islam, as well as its ordinary criminal law, is subject to this exception. Past crimes must be forgiven if there is sincere repentance.

693 The crime of theft, like that of fornication, is one which Islam has dealt with severely, and the punishment, which requires the cutting off of the hand of the thief, must no doubt have a deterrent effect. But as imprisonment has already been mentioned in connection with certain cases of dacoity, the ordinary crime of theft may be punished similarly, while the cutting off of a hand may be reserved as a punishment for serious cases by habitual offenders upon whom imprisonment has no deterrent effect. The considerations which entitle us to make this distinction are as follows: (a) The punishment is called exemplary, and exemplary punishment could only be inflicted where the crime is very serious or the offender is an habitual criminal. (b) The punishment is not to be inflicted if the offender repents and turns from his evil course. The next verse shows that the punishment of cutting off the hand is only for a criminal who does not reform, i.e. for the habitual offender. Moreover, what is required is repentance and reform, but no one can affirm that when an offender repents he will also reform. To give him a chance to reform it is necessary that he should be given freedom of action before the more serious punishment is inflicted. (c) The punishment of the cutting off of hands has been mentioned in connection with the more serious crimes spoken of in v. 33, while even those serious crimes may be punished only with imprisonment, and therefore mere stealing, which is by no means a serious offence unless it becomes habitual, need not be punished with such extreme severity. (d) Various incidents are related in the early history of Islam in which theft was not punished by the cutting off of hands (S.A. Commentary of the Holy Qur-ān). (e) Even the jurists who deduced such condign punishment from this verse for theft have been compelled to introduce many limitations, without which the verse could have no practical application; the limitation which seeks to restrict the punishment to the habitual offender is at least as reasonable as any other.

At the most, the cutting off of the hand as stated in this verse, and imprisonment as stated in v. 33 (see 691), may be taken as alternative forms of punishment for theft. In the early history of Islam, on a representation made to Hishám, that monarch decided to try imprisonment and cutting off of hands as a punishment for theft in two alternate years, but as the former punishment increased the offence, the cutting off of hands remained in force; had there been no increase, the alternative punishment of imprisonment for thieves would have been adopted. This shows at least that if the circumstances of society permit, imprisonment may be introduced as a punishment in ordinary cases of theft, while the more exemplary punishment may be inflicted in those of a more serious character.

694 The meaning is that they listen, but their object is only to invent lies and to spread false reports of your statements to their elders, who are the people who have not come to you. The words can equally bear the interpretation that they listen only to the lies uttered by their Rabbis, who have not come to you.

42 (They are) listeners of a lie, devourers of what is forbidden; therefore if they come to you, judge between them or turn aside from them, and if you turn aside from them, they shall not harm you in any way; and if you judge, judge between them with equity; surely Allah loves those who judge equitably.⁶⁹⁵

43 And how do they make you a judge and they have the Torah wherein is Allah's judgment? yet they turn back after that, and these are not the believers.⁶⁹⁶

The Qur-án in its Relation to Previous Scriptures

44, 45. The Torah and its evidence. 46, 47. The Gospel and its evidence. 48-50. The Qur-án fulfils their promises, and therefore it must now be followed.

44 Surely We revealed the Torah, in which was guidance and light,⁶⁹⁷ with it the prophets who submitted themselves (to Allah) judged (matters) for those who were Jews, and the masters of Divine knowledge and the doctors, because they were required to guard (part) of 695 By the agreement drawn up between the various nationalities of Medina on the advent of the Holy Prophet there (see 126), all disputes were to be referred to the Holy Prophet, but the Jews had by this time become so inimical to the Holy Prophet that he is allowed to refuse to judge between them. In case he judged between them, he is still told to judge with equity. To be equitable notwithstanding the severest enmity and notwithstanding the knowledge that the Jews were always plotting with the enemies of Islam for its extirpation, is that trait in the character of the Holy Prophet which marks him out as having reached the highest point of moral rectitude to which man can attain.

696 The Divine judgment in Torah referred to here may either imply the Divine injunctions in the Torah which the Jews refused to follow, or the prophecies of the advent of the Holy Prophet which they refused to accept.

697 Verses 44-47 are supposed by Christian critics to be evidence of the purity of the Torah and the Gospel. How they arrive at that conclusion I am unable to see. There are several statements made with regard to these two books in these verses, and before we consider them it were as well to bear in mind that their true value and the relation in which they stand to the Holy Qur-án is spoken of in v. 48, and therefore 703 should be read along with these verses. The first statement made here is that the Torah was a Divine revelation containing light and guidance. This is a statement which no Muslim has ever denied. What is denied is that that light and guidance were kept intact throughout the ages. It is Allah revealed,^a those are they that are the unjust.

46 And We sent after them in their footsteps Jesus son of Mary, verifying what was before him of the Torah, and We gave him the Gospel, in which was guidance and light, and verifying what was before it of the Torah, and a guidance and an admonition for those who guard (against evil).⁷⁰²

47 And the followers of the Gospel should have judged by what Allah revealed in it; and whoever did not judge by what Allah revealed, those are they that are the transgressors.^a 700 Compare Exod. 21: 23-25, Lev. 24: 19-21.

701 If a man foregoes his right to an act of reprisal against his brother, this shall be an expiation for any wrong he may have done.

702 The description of the Gospel as containing light and guidance conveys the same significance as the similar statement regarding the Torah, for which see 697. In addition it is stated that the Gospel verified the Torah. The Christian critics who are so fond of showing the existence of differences between the Torah and the Holy Qur-án, in order to disprove the statement that the latter is a verifier of the former, should note that the Gospel is also called a verifier of the Torah, notwithstanding the fact that it introduces many new doctrines in place of those given in the Mosaic law, as in the case of divorce, the law of reprisal, etc. This description of the Gospel clearly shows that by verification is meant only corroboration of the general principles and broad doctrines of the faith, such as the unity of God and equitable dealing with men, or the declaration by one prophet of the truth of a previous prophet, as the declaration of the truth of Moses by Jesus and of both by the Holy Prophet.

703 The Qur-án is called muhaimin or a guardian over all previous revelation, thus showing that whatever was of permanent value in the previous scriptures has been preserved in the Qur-án, and secured from the corruption which it was undergoing in them. The previous books contained a light and guidance for the people for whom they were meant, and they were commanded to judge by those books, but the Qur-án is now made the Book which judges all truth, wherever it may have been, and therefore is the only Book which should be followed.

704 The appointment of a law and a way for every one refers to the giving of different laws to different nations in accordance with their requirements (Bd.) before the revelation and if Allah had pleased He would have made you (all) a single people, but that He might try you in what He gave you,⁷⁰⁵ therefore strive with one another to hasten to virtuous deeds; to Allah is your return, of all (of you), so He will let you know that in which you differed;

of the Holy Qur-án, which fulfilled the requirements of all nations and all ages. Thus the Qur-án here recognizes the principle to which it refers frequently, that prophets were raised among every people, for which see particularly 10: 47, 13: 7, and 35: 24.

705 Man is placed above the whole of creation in that he has been granted discretionary powers so that he can choose to follow one path or another, as against the rest of creation, which must necessarily follow the laws to which it is subject. Hence, led by that discretion, men follow different ways, adopting different sects, whereas if man's very nature had been so made as to make him unable to use his discretionary powers, his better qualities, which give him preference over the rest of creation, would not have been manifested.

706 All non-believers, whatever their own differences, had made common cause against Islam; therefore the Muslims are warned that they should not expect help or friendship from

53 And those who believe will say: Are these they who swore by Allah with the most forcible of their oaths that they were most surely with you? Their deeds shall go for nothing, so they shall become losers.⁷⁰⁹

54 O you who believe! whoever from among you turns back from his religion, then Allah will bring a people, He shall love them and they shall love Him, lowly before the believers, mighty against the unbelievers, they shall strive hard in Allah's way and shall not fear the censure of any censurer; this is Allah's grace, He gives it to whom He pleases, and Allah is Ample-giving, Knowing.⁷¹⁰ any party of them, whether Jews, Christians, or idolaters (Rz). It would have been weakness of faith in the ultimate triumph of Islam if, from fear of a powerful enemy, they had sought help and friendship here and there among a hostile people, as the next verse shows. And though the civilized nations go to-day a step further than the Qur-án, yet they must find fault with the Qur-án for having taught this common-sense principle. When two nations are at war, an individual of one nation having friendly relations with the enemy nation is treated as an enemy; that is exactly what the Qur-án requires when it says: "And whoever amongst you takes them for a friend, then surely he is one of them."

707 By hastening towards them is meant hastening to make friendship with them or seeking their help. The hypocrites did this, fearing a Muslim reverse.

708 By victory is meant a victory for the Muslims, and by punishment a punishment for their enemies. The word amr, as meaning punishment or threatened punishment, is used in the Holy Qur-án several times in the phrase amr-ullah, as in 10: 24, 11: 40, 16: 1, in all of which cases the commentators and lexicologists take it as meaning the threatened punishment ordained by Allah (Zj, TA-LI). The word is clearly used here in the same sense. The weak in faith fear the enemy who is indeed powerful, the Jews within and the idolaters without. They are told that Allah will soon grant a victory to the Holy Prophet or bring down a punishment upon his opponents. But we may as well take amr as conveying its ordinary significance of commandment, in which case there is a reference here to the government of Islam, which it was prophesied would soon be established.

709 This was a prophecy that what the hypocrites were doing in opposition to the Prophet would prove of no effect, and they would not be able to achieve the end which they had in view.

55 Only Allah is your guardian and His apostle and those who believe, those who keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate, and they bow down.⁷¹¹

The Mockers

57-60. The mockers and their fault-finding. 61-64. Hypocritical Jews and their mischiefs. 65, 66. They are enjoined to act up to their own scriptures.

57 O you who believe! do not take for guardians those who take your religion for a mockery and a joke, from among those who were given the Book before you and the unbelievers; and be careful of (your duty to) Allah if you are believers.⁷¹²

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا لَا تَتَّخِذُوا الَّذِينَ
اتَّخَذُوا دِينَكُمْ هُزْوَاً وَلُجْباً مِّنَ
الَّذِينَ آتَوْا الْكِتَابَ مِن قَبْلِكُمْ وَالْكَافِرَ
أُولَئِكَ وَاتَّقُوا اللَّهَ إِنَّ كُنتُمْ مَوْعِنِينَ

710 This was said to give comfort to the Prophet against the machinations of the Jews, who made plots of every sort to make the Muslims apostatize (see 448). Who were the particular men or tribes that apostatized, and who were those who came in their place, is a matter which lies within the sphere of history. The Prophet's life at Medina, however, affords clear proof that apostasy never thinned the ranks of Islam, and if one man apostatized, a number of people joined the ranks of Islam and fought in its defence. Three tribes are said to have apostatized towards the close of the Prophet's life, but as these were dealt with in the time of Abu Bakr, the prophetic reference in these words is clearly to Abu Bakr's caliphate, which witnessed a fulfilment of this prophecy when the companions of the Holy Prophet, immediately after his death, had to suppress a very great rising, which would ultimately have led to the apostasy of whole tribes. Thus Abu Bakr and his helpers and advisers are the people who are here spoken of as loving Allah and being His beloved ones.

711 The description given here is a general one. The story that 'Alī gave away his ring to a poor man while bowing down in prayer does not explain the verse. The Zakat, or the poor-rate, was paid into the treasury, the bait-ul-māl, and was then appropriated to several heads. The meaning is clear. The believers are told that they should not take the Jews and the Christians for their guardians or friends, but their guardians are Allah and His Apostle and the faithful followers of the Prophet. The next verse makes it clear that the whole body of the believers is meant here, for they are called the party of Allah who shall be triumphant, and evidently it was the Muslim community as a whole that was triumphant, and not 'Alī alone. The persons addressed seem to be those whose faith in the ultimate triumph of Islam was not so strong as that of the general body of the true believers.

712 It is clear from this that the Muslims were prohibited from having friendly relations with those who mocked their religion and their Prophet.

58 And when you call to prayer they make it a mockery and a joke; this is because they are a people who do not understand.

59 Say: O followers of the Book! do you find fault⁷¹³ with us (for aught) except that we believe in Allah and in what has been revealed to us and what was revealed before, and that most of you are transgressors?

60 Say: Shall I inform you of (him who is) worse than this in retribution from Allah? (worse is he) whom Allah has cursed and brought His wrath upon, and of whom He made apes and swine, and he who served the devil: these are worse in place and more erring from the straight path.⁷¹⁴

61 And when they come to you, they say: We believe; and indeed they come in with unbelief and indeed they go forth with it; and Allah knows best what they concealed.

713 Nagama is synonymous with ankara, i.e. he found fault with, disapproved of, or hated him (Rgh, Rz).

714 It is clear that those who are here spoken of as having been made apes and swine are the Jews. Compare 107 and 2:65 as explaining the significance of these words. It is remarkable that though the people spoken of are in both places the same, they are on one occasion called simply apes and on the other apes and swine. In addition, the same people are here spoken of as serving the devil; and the concluding words that the people who were thus made apes and swine and the servants of the devil are "worse in place and more erring from the straight path," remove all doubts, establishing the fact that they were still men, because apes and swine could not be said to be erring from the straight path. Thus this verse lends additional support to the conclusion arrived at in 107. The next verse makes this plainer, for these very apes and swine are there described as coming to the Apostle with unbelief and going away with unbelief.

715 Suht signifies any property that is forbidden, not lawful to be gained (Msb, TA-LL).

eating of what is unlawfully acquired? Certainly evil is that which they work.

64 And the Jews say: The hand of Allah is tied up! Their hands shall be shackled and they shall be cursed for what they say. Nay, both His hands are spread out,⁷¹⁶ He expends as He pleases; and what has been revealed to you from your Lord will certainly make many of them increase in inordinacy and unbelief; and We have put enmity and hatred among them till the day of resurrection; whenever they kindle a fire for war Allah puts it out, and they strive to make mischief in the land; and Allah does not love the mischief-makers.

65 And if the followers of the Book had believed and guarded (against evil) We would certainly have covered their evil deeds and We would certainly have made them enter gardens of bliss,

66 And if they had kept up the Torah and the Gospel and that which was revealed to them from their Lord, they would certainly have eaten from above them and from beneath their feet; there is a party of them keeping to the moderate course, and (as for) most of them, evil is that which they do.⁷¹⁷

It is also applied to a bribe (Rgh). Hence the reference is here to any unlawful act of acquiring property.

716 This reference was levelled at an objection against the raising of subscriptions for the defence of the Muslim community; the absurd idea of the taunting Jews being that a cause which was represented as Divine, or the cause of truth, should not stand in need of funds raised by the ordinary methods of subscription. Compare 3: 180: "Allah is poor and we are rich," and 524. Or the meaning may be that the hand of Allah is withheld from assisting the Muslims because the prophecies of the final triumph of the Muslims over their opponents had not yet been fulfilled. The answer is a prophecy that they shall find their own hands withheld from assisting the enemies of the Muslims, and further that they shall be cursed, i.e. banished from all good and brought on evil days. The past tense is often used in the Holy Qur-án to indicate certainty as to the future.

717 By the iqānat or keeping up of the Torah and the Gospel is meant their preserving these books in the right state and acting up to them. The eating from above is in reference to spiritual food, or receiving of the Divine revelation, and eating from beneath their feet signifies the earthly provisions; i.e. they would have abundance of both. But as they failed, the door to Divine revelation was closed on them. The attitude of liberality adopted by Islam towards even the worst forms of religion is unparalleled. Consider, for instance, the direction given to Muslims: "Do not abuse those whom they call upon besides Allah" (6:109), according to which even idols should not be mentioned contemptuously, and compare it with any direction that may be contained in any other sacred book concerning the attitude to be adopted towards other religions. Thus here, notwithstanding their strong enmity to Islam, a party of the Jews and the Christians is described as keeping to the moderate course. The first part of this verse shows that Divine revelation had been tampered with by the Jews and the Christians.

718 In Mecca the Prophet's only enemies were the Quraish. His flight to Medina increased the difficulties tenfold. The Jews were a powerful nation, and a little plain speaking had made them the most dreadful enemies. The other tribes of Arabia had also by this time been successfully excited by the Quraish to side with them. The Qur-án now not only condemned idolatry, but also the Jewish transgressions and Christian errors. Hence we find the Divine revelation promising that the Prophet shall remain under Divine protection as against the innumerable dangers that threatened from all quarters and the numerous plots against his life.

719 This is a very severe condemnation of the contention of the Jews and the Christians. They had not even preserved the Torah and the Gospel in their purity, and whatever remained of the original teachings of the prophets they did not act upon. Hence their position in a discussion against the Holy Prophet was nothing. If they had held their books intact and had acted according to the instructions of the Divine revelations as contained therein, they could not have denied the revelation of the Qur-án, which fulfilled not only the prophecies of the previous books but also all the tests of Divine revelation. As they did not possess the Divine revelation in its purity, they had not the least excuse to reject the Qur-án.

720 Although they had been repeatedly warned of the afflictions which would befall them, they still thought that, being a favoured nation, they would not suffer punishment for their evil deeds. The word fitnah is not limited either to punishment in this world or to that in the next, but includes both. They were also sorely afflicted in this life. They had been subjected to great sufferings at the hands of Nebuchudnazzar and the Babylonian rulers who followed him, large numbers having been slain and the rest taken prisoners.

721 The reference is said to be to the rising of John the Baptist and Jesus the Christ among them (Rz). Thus Allah's turning mercifully to them signifies the advent of Jesus, and their becoming blind and deaf a second time refers to the Christian error in deifying Jesus, a fact clearly indicated in the next verse.

722 "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and Him only shalt thou serve" (Matt. 4:10). Compare this severe condemnation of the Christian doctrine of the Divinity of Jesus with the plain admission of their better qualities in v. 82. The Qur-án knows of no such enmity to a particular nation as to condemn even the good that is met with in it, nor of friendship to a people so as not to condemn its errors.

723 The Christian doctrine of the Trinity is here plainly referred to. It should be noted that the name of Mary is not mentioned in connection with the doctrine of the Trinity. But as the Christians, especially the Roman Catholics, invested Mary with the Divine character and there is no god but the one God, and if they desist not from what they say, a painful chastisement shall befall those among them who disbelieve.

74 Will they not then turn to Allah and ask His forgiveness? and Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

of being the mother of God, the Qur-án often mentions her along with Jesus as being an ordinary mortal.

724 Feeling hungry and partaking of food shows that both Jesus and his mother were ordinary mortals. If Jesus had been above mortals he would also have been above the needs of mortals, the most essential of which is partaking of food, without which no human being can live, but of which the Supreme Being has no need.

724a The ghuluww or undue immoderation spoken of here refers to the Christian doctrine raising a mortal to the dignity of godhead. The Christians are here told that in making this doctrine the basis of their religion they have only followed an erroneous doctrine preached by a people before them. Recent criticism has shown that the Christians have only followed previous idolatrous nations in deifying a man.

725 After Moses, David and Jesus, who represent the highest achievement of Israelite prophethood in temporal and spiritual glory, spoke of the advent of the Holy Prophet in unmistakable terms. The curse is used here in its original sense. Both prophets had warned the Jews that their transgressions called for Divine punishment which should soon overtake them if they did not mend their ways. The time of both was followed by a great affliction overtaking the Jews, in the respective depredations of the Babylonian kings and the destruction wrought by Titus.

726 By the prophet here is meant Moses, who clearly foretold the advent of the Holy Prophet Muhammad; therefore the Jews, if they believed in Moses, could not have joined the opponents of the Holy Prophet in opposition to him.

727 The verse shows the better side of the Christian religion, and it affords a convincing proof of the cosmopolitan nature of the religion of Islam which did not deprecate goodness even though manifested in a people who had adopted open enmity towards it.

اللّٰهَ لَا يُحِبُّ الْمُعْتَدِيْنَ

728 This refers to the Christians who believed. An important personage belonging to this class was the Negus of Abyssinia, in whose dominions the Muslims found shelter in the early days of the Prophet's mission, when compelled to fly from Mecca on account of the severe persecutions of the Quraish. Even there they were followed by a deputation of the persecutors, who, in order to excite the religious hatred of the Christian monarch against the homeless Muslims, represented to the Negus that the fugitives not only denounced the idols of the Meccans but also spoke disparagingly of Jesus Christ. Whereupon, the Muslims being called upon to answer the charge, their leader read out the portion of the chapter "Mary" dealing with Jesus Christ, and the words so impressed the Negus that he wept, and said that Jesus Christ was not one whit more than what the Qur-an described him to be. That he subsequently became a true convert to Islam is clearly shown by a funeral service having been held for him by the Holy Prophet when news of his death reached Medina.

729 These words not only denounce such self-denying practices as those adopted by the Christian monks, spoken of in the last section, but also the act of depriving oneself of Divine blessings by falling into evil and slothful habits. Thus, while the Muslims are told on the one hand not to follow the self-imposed restrictions of the Christians, they are at the same time warned that they can enjoy Divine blessings only so long as they strive arduously for them.

88 And eat of the lawful and good (things) that Allah has given you, and be careful of (your duty to) Allah, in whom you believe.

730 It is wrong to suppose that this verse sanctions the expiation of all kinds of oaths. Reading it along with the previous verses shows that the oaths referred to are in relation to vows, etc., by which one forbids oneself what is otherwise lawful. A comparison with 2: 226 shows that that verse is also to be read along with the previous verse (i.e. 2: 225), which forbids the taking of oaths that prevent one doing some good. And the injunction at the end of this verse, guard your oaths, also shows that oaths cannot be violated generally, and therefore expiation is only allowed in the case of oaths by which a man deprives himself of some lawful thing or of an occasion of virtue. It is further evident that the Book which lays stress upon the faithful performance of all kinds of engagements could not allow the violating of agreements which had been confirmed with oaths.

731 Guard your oaths, i.e. do not take oaths unless the necessity is urgent (etc). The words can also bear the interpretation keep your oaths, i.e. be true to oaths when you have taken them.

732 This verse totally prohibits all intoxicants and games of chance; and besides, by classing them with sacrifices to stones set up for idols and dividing by arrows, subjects them to the prohibition of v. 3. It is related that when this verse was revealed, a crier proclaimed in the streets of Medina that wine was prohibited, and in response to this every jar of wine in a Muslim house was emptied, so that wine flowed in the streets (Bkh). Never in the history of the world was such a deep-rooted evil as drink so suddenly yet so completely eradicated.

733 Only one very clear reason is here given why intoxicants and games of chance are forbidden.

734 The verse speaks of those who died before the prohibition came. But even if it be taken to refer to all believers, it would not justify our doing what is unlawful, because one who believes, does good deeds, and is careful of his duty will not approach any prohibited thing. In thrice mentioning belief and carefulness of one's duty, the reference is to the threefold duty of man, viz. to Allah, to himself, and to others.

735 The prohibition to kill game when on pilgrimage is a token of respect for the security of the Ka'ba, in addition to being a measure necessary for the safety of life in such a large gathering, where liberty to hunt would most probably lead to dangerous accidents to human life and limb.

* 659.

736 Bahr is used here in an extensive sense, and by the game of the sea is meant all water game, whether sea, river, pond, or lake (Rz).

737 The ṭa'ām (lit. food) of the sea is here distinguished from its game, and means, according to the first successor of the Holy Prophet, what is found, the sea or river having thrown it (on dry land), or what is left by the water having receded from it, for the catching of which no struggle is needed (Rz).

738 Ka'bah, from Ka'aba, meaning it swelled or became prominent, is so called because of its prominence (Rz), or it is a prophetic name showing that it shall forever have eminence in the world. It is also called bait-ul-harām, or the Sacred House, and among the Arabs it was known as the bait-ullāh, or the house of Allah. The building proper is 55 feet by 50 feet, but the whole courtyard in which it stands measures 530 feet by 500 feet.

739 This is a prophetic announcement that the Ka'ba shall forever remain a support or stay for men, where pilgrims shall forever flock and shall take animals for sacrifice. The reference to this prophecy is elucidated in the concluding words: "This is that you may know that Allah knows whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth"; that is, the fulfilment of this prophecy in all future ages shall be a sign of the great knowledge of Allah, who pronounced it at a time when the Ka'ba was hardly known beyond the environs of Arabia ('see 469).

98 Know that Allah is severe in requiting (evil), and that Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

99 Nothing is (incumbent) on the apostle but to deliver (the message), and Allah knows what you do openly and what you hide.

100 Say: The bad and the good are not equal, though the abundance of the bad may please you; so be careful of (your duty to) Allah, O men of understanding, that you may be successful.

740 As Islam discouraged rigorous practices, such as monastic life, it also prohibited questions relating to details on many points which would require this or that practice to be made obligatory, and much was left to individual will or the circumstances of the time and place.

741 It does not refer to a particular people. The history of previous nations shows that the statement is generally true.

742 The liberation of certain animals in honour of idols was a practice among the Arabs, and as Islam uprooted every vestige of idolatry, this practice is condemned here. Bahirah (from bahara, meaning he cut or slit) means a she-camel having her ear slit. young ones, the last of these, if a male, was slaughtered, but if a female, her ear was slit. According to others it was the mother; she being also exempted from slaughter and from carrying burdens (LI).

Sābihah (from sāba, which means it ran of itself) signifies any beast left to pasture without attention. According to some, it was the mother of a baḥīrah, or a she-camel which, having brought forth females at ten successive births, was set at liberty to pasture where she would, and was not ridden nor was her milk taken (LI).

Waṣīlah (from waṣala, i.e. he connected or joined) means a she-goat which brought forth twins, a male and a female; when the male was brought forth alone it was slaughtered to the idols, the female alone being kept; but in the case of the male and the female being born twins, the male was considered to be joined to the female, and was not therefore sacrificed to the gods (Rz).

Hāmī (from ḥama-hu, i.e. he prohibited or interdicted it or protected or guarded it) means a stallion-camel that has prohibited or interdicted his back (to be used for bearing a rider or any burden); that is left at liberty and not made any use of; whose offspring in the second degree of descent has been fertile (LI, Rz).

743 The following story is related in connection with this verse. Two brothers, both Christians, Tawfīq Dāri and 'Adī, were entrusted by their dying Muslim companion Budail, in Syria, with certain property to be made over to his relatives on their return to Medina. The two brothers, however, stole a cup of silver, making over the remaining property; the relatives found a complete list disclosing the existence of the stolen cup of silver as being part of the original property, and thus the evidence of the Christian brothers was shown to be false.

This story abundantly proves that so late as the revelation of this chapter, which was revealed towards the close of the Holy Prophet's life, Muslim and Christian relations, notwithstanding differences of religion, were still friendly. It further demonstrates that the evidence of the followers of an alien religion is admissible according to the Holy Qur-ān.

108 This is more proper in order that they should give testimony truly⁷⁴⁵ or fear that other oaths be given after their oaths; and be careful of (your duty to) Allah, and hear; and Allah does not guide the transgressing people.

745 You say: ليس لكلامك وجهه i.e. there is no truth or correctness in thy saying (TA-LL), and also قص الحديث على وجهه meaning he related the story in its proper manner (LL in art. qas). Waj-h also signifies drift, mode or course or bearing.

746 The question is, Did those to whom you were sent accept your message and remain true to it, or was it otherwise? The answer of the prophets is that only Allah knew how their message was received, because they could not say how far its rejecters were guilty, nor how far the accepters of the message remained true to it after their death.

748 Māidah is from māda, which has two meanings: (1) it became in a state of motion, and (2) he conferred a benefit or favour on him. According to Rgh māda-ni means he gave me food, and مائدة من السماء is either food or knowledge, because knowledge is the nutriment for hearts, as food is the nutriment for bodies (Rgh). Māidah is also the table with the food upon it, but a table without food is not so called (Al-Fārisi-LL). أَنْ أَقُولَ مَا لَيْسَ لِي بِحَقٍّ إِن كُنْتُ قُلْتُهُ from the root-meaning and from the use of the word it is clear that mā'idah is food, and this significance is given by LL on the authority of many lexicologists. Rz gives ma'fiyah or what is given as a benefit or a favour to be the meaning.

749 According to Bq, 'Id means an ever-recurring happiness or source of enjoyment.

750 This passage seems to refer to the well-known prayer for daily bread, which Jesus appears to have included in the famous Lord's prayer on account of the earthly inclinations of his disciples. The food of earth has no doubt been granted in abundance to the Christians, but this has deprived them of the heavenly food. Compare the Muslim's prayer in the opening chapter, which craves not for bread but for the right path. The form of the prayer, that it should be an ever-recurring happiness, shows clearly that the prayer was not for a table laden with provisions, as is generally supposed. As to its being sent down from heaven, it should be borne in mind that—in the language of the Holy Qur-ān—every thing is with God and is sent down to men. Compare 15. 21: "And there is not a thing but with Us are the treasures of it, and We do not send it down but in a known measure."

751 From this description of Mary being taken for a god by the Christians, some Christian critics of the Qur-ān conclude that the doctrine of the Trinity according to the Qur-ān consists of three persons—God, Jesus, and Mary. But this is an absolutely unwarranted conclusion. Mary is no doubt spoken of as being taken for an object of worship by the Christians; but the doctrine of the Trinity is not mentioned here, while the Divinity of Mary is not mentioned where the Trinity is spoken of. Had Mary not been worshipped by the Christians as the "Mother of God," the conclusion would have been safe that the Qur-ān mistook Mary for the third person of the Trinity. But the doctrine and practice of Mariolatry, as it is called by Protestant controversialists, is too well known. In the catechism of the Roman Church the following doctrines are to be found: "That she is truly the mother of God, and the second Eve, by whose means we have received blessing and life; that she is the mother of Pity and very specially our advocate; that her images are of the utmost utility" (Ency. Br. 11th ed., vol. 17, p. 813). It is also stated that her intercessions are directly appealed to in the Litany. And further, that there were certain women in Thrace, Scythia, and Arabia who were in the habit of worshipping the virgin as a goddess, the offer of a cake being one of the features of their worship. "From the time of the council of Ephesus (held in 431 Christian era)," says the same writer, "to exhibit figures of the virgin and child became the approved expression of orthodoxy. . . . Of the growth of the Marian cultus, alike in the east and in the west, after the decision at Ephesus it would be impossible to trace the history. . . . Justinian in one of his laws bespeaks her advocacy for the Empire, and he inscribes the high altar in the new church of St. Sophia with her name. Narses looks to her directions on the field of battle. The Emperor Heraclius bears her image on his banner. John of Damascus speaks of her as the Sovereign lady to whom the whole creation has been made subject by her son. Peter Damian recognizes her as the most exalted of all creatures and apostrophizes her as deified and endowed with all power in heaven and in earth, yet not forgetful of our race." The Christian world had in fact felt "the need for a mediator to deal with the very mediator," and thus Mary was raised to the throne of Divinity along with Jesus.

118 If Thou shouldst chastise them, then surely they are Thy servants; and if Thou shouldst forgive them, then surely Thou art the Mighty, the Wise.

751a By what is in my mind, the things known to me are meant, and by what is in Thy mind, the things known to Thee.

752 This verse is a conclusive proof that Jesus died a natural death, and is not now alive in heaven, according to the theoretic belief of the Christians and the supposition of many Muslims; because here Jesus says that so long as he was among his followers he was a witness of their condition, and he did not find them holding the belief in his Divinity. The logical conclusion of this statement is that the false doctrine of his Divinity was introduced into the Christian faith after his death, after "Thou didst cause me to die" (see further 436).

A saying of the Holy Prophet is recorded in Bkh, in which the Holy Prophet speaks concerning himself in the very words which are here put into the mouth of Jesus. He said 119 Allah will say : This is the day when their truth shall benefit the truthful ones ; they shall have gardens beneath which rivers flow to abide in them for ever ; Allah is well pleased with them and they are well pleased with Allah ; this is the mighty achievement.

120 Allah's is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and what is in them ; and He has power over all things.

قَالَ اللَّهُ هَذَا يَوْمُ يَنْفَعُ الصَّادِقِينَ صِدْقُهُمْ
لَهُمْ جَنَّاتٌ تَجْرِي مِنْ تَحْتِهَا الْأَنْهَارُ خَالِدِينَ that he would be shown on the day of resurrection some men who had gone against his teachings, and "I would say what the righteous servant said : I was a witness of them so long as I was among them, but when Thou didst cause me to die, Thou wert the watcher over them."

This saying shows clearly that it was after the death of both Jesus and the Holy Prophet that their followers perverted their teachings.

Compare John 17 : 3, "And this is life eternal, that they might know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom Thou hast sent"; and John 17 : 12, "While I was with them in the world, I kept them in Thy name."

- Sec. 20. The goal for the faithful.

Title and connection.

THE name of this chapter is taken from the mention of cattle in connection with certain superstitions and idolatrous practices of the Arabs, the abolition of which was needed to establish the doctrine of Divine Unity in all its purity. The object of Islam was not simply to preach Unity, but to make it the basis of a Muslim's practical life, and so to uproot all idolatrous practices.

The last chapter deals towards its close with the Christian doctrine of the deification of Jesus, and hence this chapter is introduced to deal at length with the doctrine of Divine Unity and its ultimate triumph, not only over idolatry, but over all kinds of polytheism. It may be added that though Divine Unity, the establishment of which is the chief object of the Qur-ân, is frequently discussed in the previous chapters, its discussion at length is only taken up here after the details of the Law have been considered.

SECTION 1

Ultimate Triumph of Divine Unity

Subject-matter.

A perusal of the abstract of the various sections of this chapter will show that its one continuous theme is the Divine Unity. The Prophet had preached this noble doctrine for twelve whole years, both night and day, in the Metropolis of Arabia without apparently causing any great change in the national idol-worship of the people. Among the thousands that had listened to his noble message, less than a hundred had responded to his call, and those few converts had either fled to Abyssinia or were now preparing to leave for Medina. To an outward observer, therefore, the cause of the Prophet seemed an utter failure, yet so marvellous was his faith in the ultimate triumph of Divine Unity that no obstacle, no apparent failure, had shaken it in the least, and the words with which this chapter opens were uttered with unshakeable confidence in the ultimate triumph of his cause, as if he had never received the least check in his onward course, and as though the goal was not only within sight, but close at hand.

The connection of the various sections, or the internal arrangement of the chapter, is too clear to need much discussion. Opening with a forcible declaration of the ultimate triumph of Divine Unity, and referring to the greatness of His mercy in the second section, the doctrine of Unity being always combined with the doctrine of the unique mercy of the Divine Being, it refers in the third to the polytheists' own evidence against their polytheism, which they no doubt often produce in this very life. The rejection of this great truth of Divine Unity and its consequences are then stated in the fourth and the fifth sections, mentioning incidentally the reward of believers in the sixth section. In the two succeeding sections the Divine judgment is declared to be imminent. The ninth, while calling attention to the necessity of submission to the Divine Being—the pith of Abraham's religion—mentions the arguments with which Abraham, that great Patriarch, who may be said to be the father of monotheism, and who is undoubtedly the father of two of the biggest monotheistic peoples in the world, convinced his countrymen of the futility of the worship of any object other than Allah. The tenth section mentions the names of seventeen other prophets who preached the Unity of the Divine Being, and the Holy Prophet is enjoined to follow in their footsteps.

The eleventh section draws attention to the truth of the Divine revelation of the Qur-án, which was now the bearer of that noble message of Divine Unity to mankind, and the next speaks of the ultimate triumph of that message. The thirteenth section states that this triumph would be brought about by a gradual progress, and the fourteenth refers to the polytheists' opposition. The plans adopted by the chief opponents are then hinted at in the fifteenth, and their failure prophesied in the sixteenth section. The next two refer to the polytheists' self-imposed but superstitious restrictions against the use of the flesh of certain animals, and their vain excuses for not abjuring their idolatrous practices. The guiding rules of life are then briefly stated in the nineteenth section, while the chapter is closed by drawing attention to the great goal before the faithful; because, undoubtedly, the adoption of the doctrine of Unity raised the ideal of human life to a very high standard.

Date of revelation.

The whole of this chapter is said to have been revealed in one portion (I'Ab-Riz). Its revelation belongs to the Meccan period, and it is generally considered to belong to the last year of the Holy Prophet's life at Mecca.

753 The words that Allah is the Maker of the darkness and the light are directed against the dualistic doctrine of the Magian religion, which holds light and darkness to be two co-eternal principles. The religion of Islam is the purest monotheism, and thus it holds that the ultimate cause of all things is the Great Maker of the heavens and the earth. Pure monotheism holds out before man the bright hope that, as goodness is inherent in the Divine Being, it is also the goal to which the creation moves on; while dualism considers the prevalence of evil to be necessary.

754 The first term is that of life and the second the resurrection. Or both refer to the term of life.

All men are here said to be created from clay, and this shows what creation from clay or dust signifies. The same significance must be attached to the creation of Adam from clay.

755 There is a clear reference here to the ultimate triumph of the doctrine of Unity.

SECTION 2

Greatness of Divine Mercy

11. Fate of former people. 12-18. Divine goodness towards creatures. 19, 20. Appeal to human nature.

11 Say : Travel in the land, then see what was the end of the rejecters.

12 Say : To whom belongs what is in the heavens and the earth? Say : To Allah ; He has ordained mercy on Himself ;⁷⁶⁰ most certainly He will gather you on the resurrection day—there is no doubt about it. (As for) those who have lost their souls, they will not believe.

756 Compare 4 : 153 : "The followers of the Book ask you to bring down to them a book from heaven."

757 The coming of the angels is always spoken of in the Qur-ān as being synonymous with the infliction of the punishment with which the opponents were threatened. Compare 2 : 210 : "They do not wait aught but that Allah should come to them in the shadows of the clouds along with the angels, and the matter has already been decided," and v. 159 : "They do not wait aught but that the angels should come to them, or that your Lord should come, or that some of the signs of your Lord should come."

758 The meaning is that if an angel were made an apostle to mankind he would doubtless appear in the form of man, inasmuch as the human eye cannot see angels and because only a human being could serve as a model for men ; moreover, mankind would have fallen into the same confusion into which it has now cast itself concerning the mission of the Prophet.

759 They mocked at the promises of success for the Prophet and the believers, and at the eventual triumph of the doctrine of Unity over idol-worship, so that the final triumph of Islam was a good answer to their mockery, and the mockers themselves were put in a position to be ridiculed.

760 This passage bears evidence to the all-encompassing mercy of the Divine Being.

13 And to Him belongs whatever dwells in the night and the day; and He is the Hearing, the Knowing.

14 Say: Shall I take a guardian besides Allah, the Originator of the heavens and the earth, and He feeds (others) and is not (Himself) fed. Say: I am commanded to be the first who submits himself, and you should not be of the polytheists.

Ar. thou shouldst.

15 Say: Surely I fear, if I disobey my Lord, the chastisement of a grievous day.

16 He from whom it is averted on that day, Allah indeed has shown mercy to him; and this is a manifest achievement.

Ar. thee.

17 And if Allah touch you with affliction, there is none to take it off but He; and if He visit you with good, then He has power over all things.⁷⁶¹

Ar. touch thee.

18 And He is the Supreme, above His servants; and He is the Wise, the Aware.

19 Say: What thing is the weightiest in testimony? Say: Allah is witness between you and me; and this Qur-án has been revealed to me that with it I may warn you and whomsoever it reaches.⁷⁶² Do you really bear witness that there are other gods with Allah? Say: I do not bear witness. Say: He is only one God, and surely I am clear of that which you set up (with Him).

Ar. between me.

20 Those whom We have given the Book recognize him as they recognize their sons; (as for) those who have lost their souls, they will not believe.⁷⁶³

يَتُوبُونَ آبَاءَهُمْ مِنَ الَّذِينَ خَسِرُوا
أَنْفُسَهُمْ فَهُمْ لَا يُؤْمِنُونَ

The words He has ordained mercy on Himself imply that mercy is in fact His very nature. The evidence of Divine mercy is manifest in the physical world: He has created all things for the benefit of man. Would He not deal equally mercifully with man in his spiritual needs and send a revelation to guide him?

761 The form adopted expresses the idea that Allah, being All-powerful, will bring good to you.

SECTION 3

Polytheists Witness against Themselves

21. Greatness of the guilt. 22-26. They shall deny polytheism, to which they now stick. 27-30. Their desire to be sent back.

21 And who is more unjust than he who forges a lie against Allah or (he who) gives the lie to His communications; surely the unjust will not be successful.

22 And on the day when We shall gather them all together, then shall We say to those who associated others (with Allah): Where are your associates whom you asserted?

23 Then their excuse⁷⁶⁴ would be nothing but that they would say: By Allah, our Lord, we were not polytheists.

24 See how they lie against their own souls, and that which they forged has passed away from them.

Ar. thee.

25 And of them is he who hearkens to you, and We have cast veils over their hearts lest they understand it and a heaviness into their ears; and even if they see every sign they will not believe in it;⁷⁶⁵ so much so that when they come to you they only dispute with you; those who disbelieve say: This is naught but the stories of the ancients.

Ar. thee.

Ar. thee

وَمَنْ أَظْلَمُ مِمَّنْ افْتَرَى عَلَى اللَّهِ كَذِبًا
أَوَكَذَّبَ بآيَاتِهِ إِنَّهُ لَا يُفْقِرُ الظَّالِمُونَ
وَيَوْمَ نَحْشُرُهُمْ جَمِيعًا ثُمَّ نَقُولُ لِلَّذِينَ
أَشْرَكُوا آيَاتِنَ شَرُّ مَا كَانُوا الَّذِينَ نَسَبُوا
كُنْتُمْ تَرْجُمُونَ
ثُمَّ لَمْ تَكُنْ فِتْنَتُهُمْ إِلَّا أَنْ قَالُوا
اللَّهُ رَسَامَا لَنَا مَتَمَرِينَ
أَنْظُرْ كَيْفَ كَذَّبُوا عَلَى أَنْفُسِهِمْ وَضَلَّ
عَنَّهُمْ مَا كَانُوا يَفْتَرُونَ
وَمِنْهُمْ مَنْ نَسَبَ لِمِصْرَ الْبَيْتَ وَجَعَلْنَا
عَلَى قُلُوبِهِمْ كِتَابَةً أَنْ يَفْقَهُوهُ وَفِي
أَذَانِهِمْ وَقَدْ رَأَوْا كُلَّ آيَةٍ لَا
يُؤْمِنُوا بِهَا حَتَّى إِذَا جَاءَهُمْ لَنْبَادُ لَنَا
يَقُولُ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا إِنْ هَذَا إِلَّا
أَسَاطِيرُ الْأَوَّلِينَ

762 This shows clearly that the Holy Prophet did not consider himself as only a prophet for those who could listen to his message, i.e. the Arabs only, but for all people whom the Qur-án may reach, i.e. for the whole world.

763 As the revelation of this chapter really belongs to the last year of the Holy Prophet's life at Mecca, there may be a reference here to the respectful attitude of the Jews to the Prophet's claim when Islam was first proclaimed at Medina. As to the meaning of the words as they recognize their sons, see 190.

764 Fitanah, according to IJ, means here either answer or excuse, the answer or the excuse being so called because of its being a lie. According to Bd, it means their kufr or unbelief, which they would see, on the day of reckoning, had no basis. Or the meaning may be: Then their unbelief would not remain, but they would say . . .

765 This and what follows shows that veils were cast over their hearts because they would not believe even if they saw all the signs; they visited the Prophet, not for the purpose of listening to and pondering over what he said, but to dispute with him. The casting of the veils is ascribed to God exactly in the same sense as the adding to their disease in 2:10, for which see 24.

26 And they prohibit (others) from it and go far away from it, and they only bring destruction upon their own souls while they do not perceive.

Ar. couldst thou.

27 And could you see when they are made to stand before the fire, then they shall say: Would that we were sent back, and we would not reject the communications of our Lord and we would be of the believers.

28 Nay, what they concealed before shall become manifest to them; and if they were sent back, they would certainly go back to that which they are forbidden, and most surely they are liars.⁷⁶⁶

29 And they say: There is nothing but our life of this world, and we shall not be raised.

Ar. couldst thou

30 And could you see when they are made to stand before their Lord. He will say: Is not this the truth? They will say: Yea! by our Lord. He will say: Taste then the chastisement because you disbelieved.

وَهُمْ يَنْهَوْنَ عَنْهُ وَيَنْهَوْنَ عَنْهُ
وَإِنْ يُهْلِكُونَ إِلَّا أَنْفُسَهُمْ وَمَا
يَشْعُرُونَ

وَلَوْ تَرَى إِذْ وَقَفُوا عَلَى النَّارِ
قَالُوا بَلَّيْنَا لِلَّيْتِنَا زُودًا وَلَا مَلَكًا يَأْتِي
رَبَّنَا وَتَكُونُ مِنَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ

بَلْ يَدْعُهُمْ مَا كَانُوا يَحْفُونَ
مِنْ قَبْلِ وَلَوْ رُدُّوا لَعَادُوا لِمَا هُمْ
عَنْهُ وَهُمْ كَذِبُونَ

وَقَالُوا لَآ إِلَهَ إِلَّا الْحَيَاتَانِ اللَّيْتَانِ
وَمَا نَحْنُ بِمَبْعُوثِينَ

وَلَوْ تَرَى إِذْ وَقَفُوا عَلَى رَبِّهِمْ
قَالَ الْبَئْسَ هَذَا لِلْحَقِّ قَالُوا لَبَلَّ
وَرَبَّنَا قَالَ قَدْ وَقَفُوا عَلَى الْعَذَابِ
بِمَا كُنْتُمْ تَكْفُرُونَ

SECTION 4

Rejection of the Truth

31-34. Rejection of truth is a sure loss. 35-39. They are dead to all reasoning. 40, 41. Yet Allah removes their sufferings.

31 They are losers indeed who reject the meeting of Allah; until when the hour⁷⁶⁷ comes upon them all of a sudden they shall say: O our grief for our neglecting it!⁷⁶⁸ and they shall bear their burdens on their backs; now surely evil is that which they bear.

قَدْ خَسِرَ الَّذِينَ كَذَبُوا بِلِقَاءِ اللَّهِ
حَتَّى إِذَا جَاءَهُمْ السَّاعَةُ بَغْتَةً
قَالُوا لِمَ جِئْنَا عَلَى مَا فَكَّرْنَا فِيهَا
هُمْ يَحْمِلُونَ أَوْزَارَهُمْ عَلَى ظُهُورِهِمْ
إِلَّا سَاءَ مَا يَزِيدُونَ

766 The evil consequences of their deeds were hidden in this life, but they will become manifest in the life after death. And since, if they were sent back, the evil consequences of evil deeds would again be hidden from the physical eye, they would revert to evil deeds.

767 By the hour is meant their doom, as well as the hour of final judgment.

32 And this world's life is naught but a play and an idle sport; and certainly the abode of the hereafter is better for those who guard (against evil); do you not then understand?

33 We know indeed that what they say certainly grieves you, but surely they do not call you a liar, but the unjust deny the communications of Allah.⁷⁶⁹

34 And certainly apostles before you were rejected, but they were patient on being rejected and persecuted until Our help came to them; and there is none to change the words of Allah;⁷⁷⁰ and certainly there has come to you some information about the messengers.

35 And if their turning away is hard on you, then if you can seek an opening (to go down) into the earth or a ladder (to ascend up) to heaven so that you should bring them a sign⁷⁷¹—and if Allah had pleased He would certainly have gathered them all on guidance, therefore be not of the ignorant.

36 Only those accept who listen; and (as to) the dead, Allah will raise them, then to Him they shall be returned.⁷⁷²

768 فَرَا نِيَه means he neglected it, or failed to do what he ought with respect to it

(TA-LL) "It" refers to the hour.

769 The Prophet was known among them as Al-Amin, i.e. the faithful or the truthful one; and he was so highly reputed for his truth because he was never guilty of having uttered a lie in his life. It was after he received the Divine revelation that he was called a liar, and hence it was really a denial of the Divine revelation of which they were guilty and not any denial as to the truthfulness of the Prophet himself.

770 The context shows clearly that by the words of Allah here are meant the prophecies promising assistance to His apostles. As help came to the apostles before the Holy Prophet, so would help come to him, and this was a prophecy which none could change.

771 By the bringing of a sign is meant a sign that should bring all to guidance, as is clearly indicated by what follows. Their doom was pronounced, and that word must be fulfilled, as affirmed in the previous verse; but the demand of the people to be overruled into an immediate submission to the Prophet by a sign was not in accordance with the Divine Law.

772 Even the spiritually dead, upon whom warnings and admonitions are wasted, and who do not listen to the voice of the Apostle, will be raised to life by the powerful hand of Allah. Those addressed by the Prophet are divided into two classes: (1) those who listen: these accept the Prophet and become believers; (2) those who are spiritually dead and are careless of warnings; even these are not to be despaired of, for Allah will raise them to life, i.e. they, too, will accept the Prophet after some time. That the spiritual raising in this life is herein

37 And they say: Why has not a sign been sent down to him from his Lord? Say: Surely Allah is able to send down a sign, but most of them do not know.⁷⁷³

38 And there is no animal that walks upon the earth nor a bird that flies with its two wings but (they are) genera like yourselves; We have not neglected anything in the Book, then to their Lord shall they be gathered.⁷⁷⁴

39 And they who reject Our communications are deaf and dumb, in utter darkness; whom Allah pleases He causes to err,* and whom He pleases He puts on the right way.

40 Say: Tell me if the chastisement of Allah should overtake you or the hour should come upon you, will you call (on others) besides Allah, if you are truthful?

41 Nay, Him you call upon, so He clears away that for which you pray if He pleases and you forget what you set up (with Him).⁷⁷⁵ meant may be established by the fact that their being returned to Allah, which stands for their death, is spoken of as taking place after they were raised to life.

وَقَالُوا لَوْلَا نُزِّلَ عَلَيْهِ آيَةٌ مِنْ رَبِّهِ

773 The sign spoken of here is the same as adverted to in v. 35. And Allah did send the very sign demanded, as we find the Arabs submitting to the Holy Prophet almost in a body after the conquest of Mecca, a reference to which is contained in 110: 2 (see 2812): "And you see men entering the religion of Allah in companies."

774 Other creatures are all provided for by Allah as men are, so far as physical needs are concerned. And they obey the laws of nature; therefore, man must also obey the Divine laws. But man's nature aspires after something higher, and it is to satisfy that spiritual craving that prophets are sent. This verse, moreover, points as it were to two classes of men—those who, like beasts, are wholly bound to the earth and cannot rise, and those who rise like birds, soaring upward to the higher spiritual regions.

775 In dire distress and affliction even the polytheist finds nobody to call upon but God. This shows that a belief in the Divine existence and Unity of God is inherent in human nature.

SECTION 5

Consequences of Rejection

42-45. How former people were dealt with. 46, 47. Approach of punishment. 48-50. Warning given.

Ar. thes.

42 And certainly We sent (apostles) to nations before you, then We seized them with distress and affliction in order that they might humble themselves.

43 Yet why did they not, when Our punishment came to them, humble themselves? But their hearts hardened and the devil made what they did fair-seeming to them.

44 But when they neglected that with which they had been admonished, We opened for them the doors of all things, until when they rejoiced in what they were given We seized them suddenly; then lo! they were in utter despair.⁷⁷⁶

45 So the roots of the people who were unjust were cut off; and all praise is due to Allah, the Lord of the worlds.^{776a}

Ar. communications.

46 Say: Have you considered that if Allah takes away your hearing and your sight and sets a seal on your hearts, who is the god besides Allah that can bring it to you? See how We repeat the arguments, yet they turn away.⁷⁷⁷

47 Say: Have you considered if the chastisement of Allah should overtake you suddenly or openly, will any be destroyed but the unjust people?

776 By opening the doors of all things is meant that all the comforts of life were made accessible.

776a By cutting off the roots is meant the destruction of the ringleaders in particular. Dābir, according to Rz, is the last man left to look after affairs.

777 Taḥrīf ul Ayāt, according to LL, signifies the varying or diversifying of the verses of the Qur-ān by repeating them in different forms, or, the making of the verses of the Qur-ān distinct in their meanings by repeating and varying them. For the meaning of āyat see 67.

48 And We send not messengers but as announcers of good news and givers of warning; then whoever believes and acts aright, they shall have no fear, nor shall they grieve.

49 And (as for) those who reject Our communications, chastisement shall afflict them because they transgressed.

50 Say: I do not say to you, I have with me the treasures of Allah, nor do I know the unseen, nor do I say to you that I am an angel; I do not follow aught save that which is revealed to me. Say: Are the blind and the seeing one alike? Do you not then reflect?⁷⁷⁸

778 Never did a prophet talk in plainer language and with a greater modesty to his people. Those whom Muhammad—may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him!—addressed had for centuries been superstitious idol-worshippers. Had the Prophet so wished, he could have claimed any supernatural powers for himself, and the people would willingly have accepted him. But he was above all free from every kind of selfishness, and whatever he said proceeded direct from a heart devoid of all affectation and personal considerations. He plainly said, as he is here commanded, that he was but a man; he had no treasures, nor did he lay claim for himself as a man to know the secrets of the future, nor did he profess to be any more than a mortal. For all the good he did, for all the prophecies he uttered, he did not like to take the credit to himself. All glory was due to Allah, he proclaimed. What distinguished him from the rest of mankind was that Allah revealed His will to him, and he faithfully followed and translated into practice everything that he received from on High. And as he himself was, so he wanted others to be. It was not his object to make his followers possessors of treasures or wonder-workers or fortune-tellers, but men first and last—men true to themselves and true followers of the high principles of life which had been revealed to him. He plainly told the people what was wanted of them, and it is for his plain speaking that he is frequently called in the Holy Qur-án a plain warner.

But even his sublime and selfless sentiments and motives, the best that pure human nature could possess or desire, encounter nothing but carping criticism at the hands of many Christian writers. "Here he declares himself unacquainted with the secrets of God" is the remark which the noble words of the above verse draw from a Christian annotator, and the grotesque conclusion is immediately deduced that "he confesses he does not possess the gift of prophecy." But any reasonable man can see that by this verse the gift of revelation and prophecy has not been denied, but claimed in the clearest words. What is meant by the verse is that as a man Muhammad was like other men, i.e. he did not know the unseen, etc., but as a prophet he knew and followed everything revealed to him by Allah. The unique greatness and nobleness of the Prophet lie in the fact that he never tried to put himself before people as superhuman. Many were the prophecies of the Qur-án fulfilled in his own lifetime, yet he continued to say, "Nor do I know the unseen." Islam triumphed, yet he never said, "I have the treasures of Allah." Every prophecy fulfilled, every success made, he attributed to the all-powerful, all-knowing Allah.

Reward of Believers

51-53. Those who benefit by the warning. 54, 55. Peace and mercy for believers.

53 And thus do We try some of them by others so that they say: Are these they upon whom Allah has conferred benefit from among us?⁷⁸⁰ Does not Allah best know the grateful?

Ar. thee.

54 And when those who believe in Our communications come to you, say: Peace be on you, your Lord has ordained mercy on Himself, (so) that if any one of you does evil in ignorance, then turns after that and acts aright, then He is Forgiving, Merciful.

779 The commentators agree that this verse was revealed when some leading Quraish expressed their willingness to accept the Prophet if the poorer Muslims were not allowed to remain in his company at the time (Rz). The poor and the rich are here brought to the same level; they are all men, they have equal claims to learn and practise the truth. Nay, those who had accepted the truth had a prior claim on the Prophet's attention. Truth is equally accessible to all; to the religion—I do not say the world—of Islam, no aristocracy is known. Before the Great Master the differences of rank, wealth, and colour sink into insignificance. And as the poorest man could hold communion with his Great Master, so the true servant of that Master could not drive away the poor from his presence because the rich objected to their company. Before Allah's Apostle, as before Allah Himself, they must all stand upon one level. Every one is answerable for what he does is the golden principle preached by Islam.

780 The simple and decisive answer given above no doubt wounded the pride of the wealthy Quraish, who were required to sit along with the poor slaves whom they never treated as human beings, and thus were they tried 55 And thus do We make distinct the communications and so that the way of the guilty may become clear.

Divine Judgment

56-58. Judgment shall be pronounced. 59, 60. Allah's all-comprehensive knowledge.

56 Say: I am forbidden to serve those whom you call upon besides Allah. Say: I do not follow your low desires, for then indeed I should have gone astray and I should not be of those who go aright.

57 Say: Surely I have manifest proof from my Lord and you call it a lie; I have not with me that which you would hasten; the judgment is only Allah's; He relates the truth and He is the best of deciders.

Divine Judgment

61-64 Allah's merciful dealing with men. 65-67. Judgment must come.
68-70 Mockers to be avoided.

61 And He is the Supreme, above His servants, and He sends keepers over you; until when death comes to one of you, Our messengers cause him to die, and they are not remiss.⁷⁸³

62 Then are they sent back to Allah, their Master, the True one; now surely His is the judgment and He is swiftest in taking account.

63 Say: Who is it that delivers you from the dangers⁷⁸⁴ of the land and the sea (when) you call upon Him (openly) humiliating yourselves, and in secret: If He delivers us from this, we should certainly be of the grateful ones.

64 Say: Allah delivers you from them and from every distress, but again you set up others (with Him).

65 Say: He has the power that He should send on you a chastisement from above you or from beneath your feet, or that He should throw you into confusion, (making you) of different parties, and make some of you taste the fighting of others. See how We repeat the communications that they may understand.⁷⁸⁵ nourishment has been stopped, and here signifies the termination of the power of the Quraish. The grain in the darkness of the earth stands for the mission of the Prophet, for that grain was destined to sprout forth, growing into a tree of exceptional proportions. The "green" indicates those people that prosper and the "dry" those that must fall off.

783 The allusion seems to be to the ultimate sweeping away of all opposition. The next verse makes it clear. The hafazah are the guardian angels, for which see 1269.

784 Zulumât (plural of zulmat, lit. darkness) here signifies dangers (Bq, AH, Rz).. According to LL, on the authority of M, it means the troubles, afflictions, calamities or hardships (of the sea). Also a day of much evil (Q, TA-LL), or a day in which one finds hardship or difficulty (M-LL).

of entrenched Muslims, took to flight merely on account of a great storm; a punishment from beneath your feet, such as a drought which brought great affliction upon the people of Mecca for seven years—referred to in reports as years of drought like the years of drought of Joseph; and throwing into confusion as well as making some taste the fighting of others clearly signifies the battles which brought about the final disruption of the power of the Quraish. By the two first-named forms some understand a punishment at the hands of the leaders and a punishment at the hands of the servants (I'Ab-Rz), or it may indicate a punishment making havoc among the wealthy and a punishment making havoc among the poor.

786 The concluding phrase may also be translated as I am not a disposer of your affairs, the significance in both cases being that the threatened punishment is not in the hands of the Prophet—it is Allah who requites men.

787 The meaning adopted here is the one given by LL in explaining the meaning of mustaqarr, which means the place or time beyond which a thing does not pass, hence its term.

Necessity of Submission to Allah and Abraham's Reasoning

71-74. Submission to Allah brings peace. 75-83. Abraham's arguments for Divine Unity.

71 Say: Shall we call on that besides Allah, which does not benefit us nor harm us, and shall we be turned back on our heels after Allah has guided us, like him whom the devils have made to fall down perplexed in the earth?⁷⁸⁸ he has companions who call him to the right way, (saying), Come to us. Naba'a means information, and hence prophecy, which gives information concerning the future. According to Righ it means an announcement of great utility.

The prophecy of the vanquishment of the powerful opponents of Islam is declared with even greater emphasis than in the earlier stage of the Prophet's mission, notwithstanding the apparent triumph of opposition to his cause which had succeeded in scattering the few men who had been converted to Islam.

788 Istahwat-hu is from the root hawā, which means falling down from a high to a low place, and hence the word means he made him to fall down (Rz). If the faithful go back to idolatry it would be like the falling of one who had attained to a great height into the depths of error and superstition. Others consider the word to be derived from the same root with a different meaning, viz. love or desire, and hence take the significance to be, he infatuated him.

789 Ṣūr is said by some to be the plural of ṣūrah, meaning a form (S, M, Q-LL), but though the use is rare, the alternative reading of ṣuwar, which is necessarily a plural of ṣūrah, lends support to it. The meaning is either that forms will become realities by being breathed into, or, as LL has it on the authority of S, L, and TA, when the souls shall be blown into the forms of the dead, but I prefer the former as being the simpler explanation, for the day of 77 So when the night overshadowed him, he saw a star; said he: Is this my Lord?⁷⁹² So when it set, he said: I do not love the setting ones.

78 Then when he saw the moon rising, he said: Is this my Lord? So when it set, he said: If my Lord had not guided me I should certainly be of the erring people.

وَلَمَّا قَالَ ابْرَاهِيمُ لَأَبِيهِ أَسْمَدُ resurrection is the day on which the realities underlying all things will be made manifest. Another meaning of zūr is the horn or the trumpet, and the blowing of the trumpet also stands for the day of resurrection, the metaphor being taken from the blowing of the trumpet for the purpose of a great gathering.

790 Whether Āzar was the father of Abraham, or his grandfather or uncle, is a much disputed point. The word ab means a father as well as an ancestor (M, LL), and in 2 : 133 it is also applied to an uncle (because there Ishmael is spoken of as an ab of Jacob). The difficulty arises from two points. In the first place Zj says that the nassabs agree that Abraham's father's name was Turakh, which is the same as Terah, the name given to Abraham's father in Genesis, and Zurqani also gives Turakh as Abraham's father's name. But this difficulty is easily overcome by the fact that the same name is given as Terah in the Talmud and Athar by Eusebius (and the Ar. Āzar quite corresponds with the latter), there being many examples in which a name transported into another language assumes quite a different form. The second difficulty is that Abraham's father (Ar. walid) is spoken of in 14 : 41 as a believer, while the sire (Ar. ab) is elsewhere spoken of as having stuck to idolatry till his death. This point throws much light on what the Qur-ān means by the ab of Abraham, and hence I prefer sire as the significance of the word. Some commentators consider Āzar as being the name of an idol, while others still think that it is not a proper name at all, and means mukhfi, i.e. erring (Rz).

791 Showing Abraham the kingdom of the heavens and the earth signifies granting him an insight into the Divine laws of nature working in the kingdom of the heavens and the earth; an insight into which had convinced him that Allah was the real controller of the Universe and Supreme above all, while the sun, the moon, the stars and other heavenly bodies which the Sabeans worshipped were only His creation and subject to His laws.

792 The words hūgī rabbi, literally this is my Lord, do not contain Abraham's conviction, which is opposed to this statement, as shown in the previous verse, because he was a believer in the Unity. The words are either uttered by way of surprise, as referring to his people's belief, who are then made to realize their error by showing that what they call a god disappears at times, and therefore does not deserve to be worshipped—these people were not only idolaters, but also worshippers of the heavenly bodies; or the phrase may be interrogatory, alif, the letter of interrogation, being omitted, and interrogation expresses disapproval (Rz). I prefer the second interpretation.

79 Then when he saw the sun rising, he said: Is this my Lord? Is this the greatest? So when it set, he said: O my people! surely I am clear of what you set up (with Allah).

80 Surely I have turned myself, being upright, wholly to Him who originated the heavens and the earth, and I am not of the polytheists.

81 And his people disputed with him. He said: Do you dispute with me respecting Allah? and He has guided me indeed; and I do not fear in any way those that you set up with Him, unless my Lord pleases; my Lord comprehends all things in His knowledge; will you not then mind?

82 And how should I fear what you have set up (with Him), while you do not fear that you have set up with Allah that for which He has not sent down to you any authority; which then of the two parties is surer of security, if you know?

83 Those who believe and do not mix up their faith with iniquity, those are they who shall have the security and they are those who go aright.

nephew and not an actual descendant of Abraham, but as in 2:133 an uncle is called a father, a nephew might be included among descendants.

Eighteen prophets are named here; that they are not mentioned in chronological order is not a matter for objection, because the Qur-án is not a book of history, neither does it profess to mention these prophets in chronological order. See the next chapter, where the histories of several great prophets are mentioned in exact chronological order. There are some peculiar aspects of life regarding which the prophets referred to here are mentioned in different groups, and this is the reason why the concluding words of each of the three verses speaking of the three groups individually differ.

794 Had they practised polytheism their deeds would have borne no fruit, and thus their mission would have been unsuccessful. This shows that no prophet was a polytheist at any time in his life.

795 To each prophet was given a book with which to guide mankind, with capability to judge, so that he might decide disputes by his own authority, and the gift of prophecy.

796 The Prophet is told to follow the guidance of all the earlier prophets; thus his message was to all the nations to whom previous prophets had separately come. Hence the Holy Qur-án is called a reminder in the concluding words, showing that it was meant for all the nations, to whom it was in fact a reminder of what they had received before.

797 The word qadr has a variety of meanings. I'Ab interprets the words وما قدروا الله as meaning they do not honour Allah with the honour due to Him; Abul 'Áliya as they do not assign to Allah the attributes due to Him; and Akhfash as they do not know Him as they ought to have known Him (Rz). A denial of God's power to send revelation is a denial of the most important of His attributes. The reference here seems to be to the Jews, who, while believing a revelation to Moses, denied that to the Holy Prophet.

798 Qarā'is is plural of qirfās, which means a paper. What is implied is that it is written down on scattered papers, some parts being shown, while others are concealed. The book was not kept intact, hence its description as scattered writings.

799 By the metropolis is meant the people of the metropolis. Umm-ul-Qurá is the title by which Mecca is known. Rz says there is a consensus of opinion that the Umm-ul-qurá is Mecca. Those, therefore, who suppose that this and the previous verse were revealed at Medina are mistaken. With such a clear reference to Mecca in this verse, the mere fact that the Jews and Moses are spoken of in the previous connecting verse cannot give rise to the conclusion that these verses were revealed at Medina. And to explain Umm-ul-qurá as meaning Medina is a blunder. The reason why Mecca is called Umm-ul-qurá, or the metropolis (lit. the mother of the towns), is not only that it was both the political and the spiritual centre of Arabia, but also because it was destined to be the universal spiritual centre—the real mother of the whole world.

800 There is nothing in the words of this verse to show that it refers to Musailma and other false prophets, who set up claims towards the close of the Holy Prophet's career, and that it was therefore revealed late at Medina. The verse expresses only in another form the truth expressed in this chapter in vv. 21, 145, 158 and in 39:32. It is to declare the Prophet free of having forged a lie against Allah; the words "or say: It has been revealed to me, while nothing has been revealed to him," only explain those that precede, viz. "Who forges a lie against Allah," while the words "I can reveal the like of what Allah has revealed," are the words of those who refuse to believe in the truth of Divine revelation, or "reject" the Divine revelation, as is elsewhere said.

appearance it is lost in the earth, soon springs forth into a large tree. The bringing forth of the living from the dead is the bringing forth of a living people from the spiritually dead Arabs, and the bringing forth of the dead from the living alludes to the spiritual death of those who had been previously granted spiritual life through Divine revelation.

803 The darkness prevailing in the earth would soon be dispelled, and would give place to light, even as with the break of the morning darkness gives place to light.

The Prophet is likened to the sun, and those who receive light from him and transmit it to others are likened to the stars. Thus in a saying of the Holy Prophet we have: "My companions are as stars; whomsoever of them you follow, you follow the right course." The analogy is that he who makes light to guide you physically could not have neglected your spiritual guidance.

others die; or the resting-place is the final abode of bliss and the depository the temporary residence in this world. Or it is an infinitive noun meaning there is abiding, and entrustment, the abiding being in this life, and the entrustment the return to the Divine Master (AH, Rz).

806 The reference is either to the dualistic doctrine of the Magi, who thought that while Allah was the creator of good, the devil was the creator of evil, or to the Arab belief that the jinn had a hand in the transaction of their affairs, or in bringing them good fortune or ill luck (Rz). Thus the word jinn stands here either for the devil or for the genii. For other uses of the word jinn, which occurs only in Meccan revelations, see 822.

806a This verse and those that follow describe the transcendental unity of the Divine Being. To attribute a son to Him is to acknowledge that He had a consort; otherwise the word son will have to be taken simply as a metaphor. See 161.

807 The physical vision of man, working as it does only within narrow limits and being able only to see bodies, cannot comprehend the Infinite One. He is the spirit and can be seen only with the spiritual eye.

106 And thus do We repeat the communications and that they may say: You have read; and that We may make it clear to a people who know.

109 And do not abuse those whom they call upon besides Allah, lest exceeding the limits they should abuse Allah out of ignorance. Thus have We made fair-seeming to every people their deeds; then to their Lord shall be their return, so He will inform them of what they did.⁸⁰⁹

110 And they swear by Allah with the strongest of their oaths, that if a sign came to them they would most certainly believe in it. Say: Signs are only with Allah; and what should make you know that when it comes they will not believe.⁸¹⁰

808 The words are supposed by some to be a commandment to leave Mecca.

809 No other religion comes up to the religion of Islam in its tolerance of other religions. Here the Muslims are forbidden to abuse even the idols of other people, though their worship is condemned in the strongest terms. It may be added that the clearing of the Ka'ba of idols when Mecca fell into the hands of the Holy Prophet does not in any way contradict this verse, for to abolish the worship of idols and to abuse them are not the same.

The deeds which are described as having been made fair-seeming to men are the good deeds which are shown by conscience and reason to be fair, not such deeds as appear only under some delusion to be fair while they are not really so. See v. 43 and v. 138.

810 Christian annotators have been at great pains to prove, from the words used in this verse, that the Holy Prophet could not show a sign. The attempt is rather awkward in the face of the words with which the verse ends: And what should make you know that when it (i.e. the sign which they demand) comes they will not believe? It is a misconception of the words signs are only with Allah which has led to the distortion of the plain words of the Holy Qur-án. The words do indeed mean that it does not rest with the Prophet himself to show signs, but they do not mean that signs cannot be shown or will not be shown. Signs being with Allah signifies, on the other hand, that Allah will show what signs He pleases and when He pleases. And the words when it comes, moreover, show that the unbelievers' demand was for a particular sign.

111 And We will turn their hearts and their sights, even as they did not believe in it the first time, and We will leave them in their inordinacy, blindly wandering on.⁸¹¹

SECTION 14

Polytheists' Opposition

112-114. Every prophet had enemies. 115-122. Polytheism is opposed to Islam externally as well as internally.

112 And even if We had sent down to them the angels and the dead had spoken to them and We had brought together all things before them, they would not believe unless Allah pleases, but most of them are ignorant.⁸¹²

وَلَوْ أَنزَلْنَا إِلَيْهِمُ الْمَلَائِكَةَ وَكَلَّمَهُمُ

اللَّهُ وَلَئِنْ أَكْثَرُهُمْ يَعْتَهُونَ ۝

113 And thus did We make for every prophet an enemy, the devils from among men and jinn,⁸¹³ some of them suggesting to others varnished falsehood to deceive (them), and had your Lord pleased they would not have done it, therefore leave them and that which they forge;

وَكَذَلِكَ جَعَلْنَا لِكُلِّ نَبِيٍّ عَدُوًّا شَاطِئِينَ

811 The turning of their hearts and sights is Allah's leaving them in their inordinacy, as explained by the verse itself. And even this is due to their own action in rejecting the truth when it first came to them. When the truth is not accepted and an attitude of enmity is assumed towards it, the heart becomes estranged, and this growing estrangement is termed the turning away of the heart from it. They wander on in their inordinacy, they refuse to believe in the signs; this amounts to Allah's turning their hearts and sights.

812 The subject of v. 111 is continued here. There are always some men who assume such an attitude of hostility towards truth that they turn a deaf ear to every argument. The sending down of angels is mentioned in various senses in the Holy Qur-án; for instance, to bear the word of Allah to His prophets, to punish the wicked, to carry out the commandments of Allah, to inspire good ideas into the hearts of men; and the words may here be taken in any of these senses. But reading them along with v. 159 further on, "They do not wait aught but that the angels should come to them . . ." shows the meaning to be the coming of the angels to execute the decree of their punishment. The speaking of the dead refers either to the rising of the spiritually dead to life, for which compare what is said a few verses further on: "Is he who was dead, then We raised him to life . . ." (v. 123), or to the evidence of those who had passed away before the Holy Prophet, being given through their writings. And lastly, by the bringing together of all things is meant the bringing together of things relating to their punishment. The meaning is that some of the opponents are so blind that the clearest of signs or proofs would not convince them.

813 By the men and the jinn here are apparently meant the ordinary men and the leaders, 114 And that the hearts of those who do not believe in the hereafter may incline to it and that they may be well pleased with it and that they may earn what they are going to earn (of evil).

115 Shall I then seek a judge other than Allah? and He it is who has revealed to you the Book (which is) made plain; and those whom We have given the Book know that it is revealed by your Lord with truth, therefore you should not be of the disputers.

because the words which follow show it to be these who suggest to each other varnished tales of falsehood. The word jinn, like the word shaitān, is repeatedly used in speaking of men in the Holy Qur-ān.

814 The word signifies the prophetic word, because it is spoken of as being accomplished, and accomplishment or fulfilment can only be spoken of with regard to prophecies. See further 770.

815 The injunction to eat of that on which Allah's name is mentioned is really an injunction not to eat of that on which the name of an idol is mentioned, a subject always introduced in connection with the abolition of idol-worship. A perusal of v. 122 makes this clear.

Ar. thy.

The Chief Opponents

123, 124. Plans of the leaders of opposition. 125, 126 They shall meet with disgrace and not achieve the end. 127, 128. Peace for believers. 129, 130. Leaders and their followers.

123 Is he who was dead, then We raised him to life and made for him a light by which he walks among the people, like him whose likeness is that of one in utter darkness whence he cannot come forth?⁸¹⁷ Thus what they did was made fair-seeming to the unbelievers.

124 And thus have We made in every town the great ones to be its guilty ones, that they may plan therein; and they do not plan but against their own souls, and they do not perceive.⁸¹⁸

أَوْ مَن كَانَ مَيِّتًا فَأَحْيَيْنَاهُ وَجَعَلْنَا

إِلَّا بِأَنْفُسِهِمْ وَمَا يَشْعُرُونَ ۝

816 It is a very low view of morals which considers only sins against society to be hateful. The Muslim is here commanded to consider open and secret sins to be equally hateful. This gives us a further picture of the Prophet's holy mind, who detested open and secret sins alike.

817 These words throw a flood of light on many of the verses which speak of the raising of the dead to life through the prophets and the apostles.

818 That is, as the chief men of Mecca planned against the Prophet's life, so the chief men in every town have been guilty of making plans against their prophets. Powerful men are given a chance to exert themselves to the utmost to do harm to the prophets, so that the triumph of the truth, notwithstanding their opposition, may ultimately show that the Divine hand worked to support it.

125 And when a communication comes to them they say: We will not believe till we are given the like of what Allah's apostles are given. Allah best knows where He places His message.⁸¹⁹ There shall befall those who are guilty humiliation from Allah and severe chastisement because of what they planned.⁸²⁰

126 Therefore (for) whomsoever Allah intends that He should guide him aright, He expands his breast for Islam, and (for) whomsoever He intends that He should cause him to err, He makes his breast strait and narrow as though he were ascending upwards; thus does Allah lay uncleanness on those who do not believe.⁸²¹

Ar. thy. 127 And this is the path of your Lord, (a) right (path); indeed We have made the communications clear for a people who mind.

128 They shall have the abode of peace with their Lord, and He is their guardian because of what they did.

وَإِذَا جَاءَ تُهْمًا يَبَيِّنُ قَالُوا لَنْ نُؤْمِنَ

لَهُمْ دَارُ السَّلَامِ عِنْدَ رَبِّهِمْ وَهُمْ وَلَدُونَ
يَمَّا كَانُوا يَعْمَلُونَ

819 Finding themselves unable to answer the convincing arguments of the Holy Qur-án, the unbelievers would ask, if Allah really meant to reveal His message, why was it not revealed directly to every one of them? The answer is that every one is not fit to communicate with the Divine Being, and Allah is the best knower of him whom He has chosen.

820 The words contain a prophecy regarding the fate of the powerful opponents who were planning to destroy Islam and the Muslims.

821 The words that occur in this verse, "And whomsoever He intends that he should cause him to err . . ." are misconstrued as meaning that "the infidels are lost because God has rendered them as incapable of believing as they are of ascending up to heaven"; while in reality they convey no such impression. الصعود في السماء signifies ascending upwards. As when a man ascends a height, his breast heaves so that he pants for breath, thus does the unbeliever find it difficult to assimilate truth. He does not disbelieve because his breast is straitened, but his breast is straitened because he disbelieves, and the concluding words of the verse, "thus does Allah lay uncleanness on those who do not believe," make this clear. They disbelieve first and reject the truth, and the "uncleanness which straitens their breasts" follows as a result of their disbelief. Allah's causing a man to err has been fully explained in 44, and 2:26 is a conclusive proof of what it means: "He causes many to err by it and many He leads aright by it, but He does not cause to err by it any except the transgressors."

129 And on the day when He shall gather them all together: O assembly of jinn!⁸²² you took away a great part of mankind. And their friends from among the men shall say: Our Lord! some of us profited by others and we have reached our appointed term which Thou didst appoint for us. He shall say: The fire is your abode, to abide in it, except as Allah is pleased; surely your Lord is Wise, Knowing.⁸²³

Ar. thy.

130 And thus do We make some of the iniquitous to befriend others on account of what they earned.

وَيَوْمَ يُنْشَرُّهُمْ جَمِيعًا يَنْعَشِرُ الْجِنُّ

وَكُنْ لَكَ تَوَلَّى بَعْضُ الظَّالِمِينَ بَعْضًا
بِمَا كَانُوا يَكْسِبُونَ ۝

Ibn Jábír نما نفرت جنى ولا فل مبردى is thus explained by LL on the authority of Tabrezi on Ham: "And my companions, who were like the jinn, did not flee when I came to them and informed them, nor was my tongue, which is like the file, deprived of its sharp edge," where the word jinn is translated as meaning companions who were like the jinn. And Tabrezi says further that the Arabs liken a man who is sharp and clever in affairs to a jinni and a shaiṭán, and hence they said نفرت جنه (literally, his jinn fled away), meaning he became weak and abject. Therefore a man's companion, without whose help he would be weak and abject, was called a jinn, or at least the word could be metaphorically used in Arabic literature to indicate such a helper. It may also be added that jinn, when qualifying the word youth, signifies the prime or first part or the sprightliness of youth, as one says كان ذلك في جن شبابه meaning that was in the prime of his youth. For another important significance of the word see 2580.

Now we have to see what is meant by the assembly of jinn here, and by jinn in v. 131. This is made clear if we read this verse with those following. In this verse jinn are spoken of as friends of men, and v. 130, opening with the word kazálíka (which means likewise or thus), says that it is only some of the iniquitous who befriend others, so the two verses read together clearly show that the friends in both verses are the same, they being called jinn in one case and ẓálimín (iniquitous) in the other. Again, in v. 132 those very jinn are spoken of as being no others than dwellers of the cities which are destroyed on account of their sins,

Certainty of the threatened Punishment

131-134. The warning. 135, 136. Threatened punishment cannot be avoided. 137-141. Their superstitions and infanticide.

131 O assembly of jinn and men! did there not come to you apostles from among you, relating to you My communications and warning you of the meeting of this day of yours?⁸²⁴ They shall say: We bear witness against ourselves; and this world's life deceived them, and they shall bear witness against their own souls that they were unbelievers.

Ar. thy. 132 This is because your Lord would not destroy towns unjustly while their people were negligent.⁸²⁵

133 And all have degrees according to what they do; and your Lord is not heedless of what they do.

Ar. thy. 134 And your Lord is the Self-sufficient one, the Lord of mercy; if He pleases, He may take you off, and make whom He pleases successors after you, even as He raised you up from the seed of another people.

and we know that the jinn who dwell in cities are only men. Further light is thrown on this subject by 14:21: "And the weak shall say to those who were proud, Surely we were your followers," where the weak followers and the proud leaders stand exactly in the position respectively of men and jinn in this verse, and by 33:67: "And they shall say: O Lord! surely we obeyed our leaders and our great men, and they led us astray from the path," where the leaders and the chiefs undoubtedly occupy the position of jinn in the two verses we are considering, and by similar other verses abounding in the Holy Qur-ān, in which the weak followers and the proud leaders stand in the same relation to each other as do men and jinn in these verses. It is quite easy to understand that as the word shayāṭīn, meaning devils, is used to signify the mischievous leaders in 2:14 (see 26), so the word jinn is used to convey a similar significance. See further 824.

823 The words except as Allah is pleased indicate that those in hell shall after all be delivered from it. For a full discussion on this point see 1201.

824 Here the jinn and the men are told that apostles had come to them from among them, but as the only apostles known to us in the Qur-ān and other reliable histories of prophets are those who belong to mankind, it follows that the jinn spoken of here must also belong to mankind, and not to any other class of creation.

825 That is, while the reminder and the warning had not yet come to them.

135 Surely what you are threatened with must come to pass and you cannot escape (it).^{825a}

136 Say: O my people! act according to your ability; I too am acting; so you will soon come to know, for whom (of us) will be the (good) end of the abode; surely the unjust shall not be successful.

137 And they set apart a portion for Allah out of what He has created of tilth and cattle, and say: This is for Allah—so they assert—and this for our associates; then what is for their associates, it reaches not to Allah, and whatever is (set apart) for Allah, it reaches to their associates; evil is that which they judge.⁸²⁶

Ar. according to their assertion.

138 And thus their associates⁸²⁷ have made fair-seeming to most of the polytheists the killing of their children,⁸²⁸ that they may cause them to perish and obscure for them their religion;⁸²⁹ and if Allah had pleased, they would not have done it, therefore leave them and that which they forge.

139 And they say: These are cattle and tilth prohibited; none shall eat them except 825a Mark again the certainty with which the idolatrous Quraish are told—and through them all the proud opponents of truth—in this verse and the one preceding, that their authority in their country would cease to exist and another people would be raised in their stead. These were the Muslims.

826 It was a custom among the Arab idolaters to set apart certain portions of the produce of their fields and their cattle, one portion for Allah and another portion for the idols. The portion for idols was always applied to their use, but the portion set apart for Allah, though ordinarily spent to feed the poor and the needy, was in certain cases, for instance, when the portion of the idols was somehow or other destroyed, diverted to the use of the idols (I'ab Itz), the portion for the idols being handed over to the priests.

827 By their associates are here meant those whom they took for gods besides Allah, or the priests or the devils whom they obeyed.

828 This refers to the practice of slaying or burying alive the female children (Ra), and also to the human sacrifices to idols, as they sometimes vowed that if they had a number of sons they would sacrifice one of them to an idol (Kf).

829 By introducing these superstitious and evil customs they were making confused and obscure the true religion—the religion of the service of the One God which was preached by Ishmael (Ra).

141 They are lost indeed who kill their children foolishly without knowledge, and forbid what Allah has given to them, forging a lie against Allah; they have indeed gone astray, and they are not the followers of the right course.

Idolaters' Self-imposed Prohibitions

830 Only devotees of idols and males could eat them, and not females.

831 Such animals are meant as the baḥirah, the sāibah, etc. See 742.

832 That is, such as were sacrificed in the name of idols. All these along with what is said in the next two verses are denounced as being idolatrous practices, and it was necessary not only to accept the doctrine of Unity in theory, but also to bring it into practice, giving up all those ancient institutions which were based on idolatry.

833 The word ukul here, as well as in 2: 265 and 18: 85. is equivalent to gamar (TA), and means fruit.

143 And of cattle (He created) beasts of burden and those which are fit for slaughter only;⁸³⁴ eat of what Allah has given you and do not follow the footsteps of the devil; surely he is your open enemy.

Prohibited Foods and Idolaters' Vain Excuses

146. Forbidden foods. 147. What was forbidden to Jews. 148–151. Vain excuses of unbelievers.

146 Say: I do not find in that which has been revealed to me anything forbidden for an eater to eat of except that it be what has died of itself, or blood poured forth, or flesh of swine—for that surely is

قُلْ لَا أَجِدُ فِي مَا أُوْحِيَ إِلَيَّ مُحَرَّمًا

أَوْ دَانًا ۚ أَوْ لَحْمُ خِنْزِيرٍ فَإِنَّهُ

834 Farsh (from farasha, i.e. he spread or expanded it) means in the first place what is spread of household furniture, or a wide tract of land. But here, according to lexicologists as well as commentators, it signifies animals fit for slaughter, because they are thrown down for slaughter (Rz, TA, LL), or because a bed is made of their hair or wool. Some, however, think that by the hamalah are meant the larger animals, and by the farsh the young ones, such as the young of camels, calves, etc., because the latter are, on account of their want of stature, as it were, spread on the ground (Rz).

835 The Arabs considered those animals which were otherwise lawful for them to be unlawful in particular cases. These practices, which were all superstitious, resulting from idol-worship, are here condemned, and the inconsistency of these practices, making lawful in some cases the very things which were considered unlawful in others, is shown to be a reason for their denunciation.

سَيَقُولُ الَّذِينَ أَنْشَرَكُمَا

لَوْ شَاءَ اللَّهُ مَا أَشْرَكْنَا

836 This verse is generally thought to be of Medinite origin, on account of the law relating to forbidden foods which it contains. But the evidence of 16 : 115, which is a Meccan revelation, combined with the fact that there is a general agreement among authorities that the whole of this chapter was revealed in one portion, shows conclusively that this verse cannot be Medinite. The reference in "I do not find in that which has been revealed to me" seems to be to 16 : 115, which is an earlier revelation. It also deserves to be noticed that for the prohibition made known here reasons are also given, the reason for the prohibition of what dies of itself and blood and swine's flesh being that these things are unclean, while the reason for the prohibition of animals on which other than Allah's name is invoked is different, viz. fiṣq, or a transgression of the Divine commandment, which requires all things to be avoided which are in any way associated with idolatry. The uncleanness in the case of the first three consists in their pernicious effect upon the intellectual, the physical, and the moral systems respectively, while the transgression in the case of the last affects the spiritual conditions.

837 According to I'Ab it means only the camel, or the camel and the ostrich (Rz). Rz is of opinion that by zufr here is meant talons and claws. According to Mjd and Qtd the ḡt-zufr means every beast and bird that has not divided toes, as the camel, ostrich, goose, and duck (TA-LL). The prohibition of using the camel for food, though a punishment for the rebellion of the Jews, as stated further on, was a blessing to them. On account of their disobedience to Moses they had to remain in the wilderness for a long time, where the camel was of great service to them in their journeys from place to place.

838 "You shall eat no manner of fat, of ox, or of sheep, or of goat" (Lev. 7 : 23).

839 The all-encompassing mercy of Allah is mentioned even in speaking of those who rejected the Holy Prophet. It was because of the mercy of Allah that the unbelieving nations were not destroyed immediately; but as punishing the "guilty" is in itself a mercy towards the weak and the oppressed, Allah warns them that they will not always escape punishment.

nor our fathers, nor would we have forbidden (to ourselves) anything; even so did those before them reject until they tasted Our punishment. Say: Have you any knowledge with you so you should bring it forth to us? You only follow a conjecture and you only tell lies.

151 Say: Bring your witnesses who should bear witness that Allah has forbidden this, then if they bear witness, do not bear witness with them; and follow not the low desires of those who reject Our communications and of those who do not believe in the hereafter, and they make (others) equal to their Lord.

Guiding Rules of Life

152-154. Duties to God, kindred, self, and all. 155. Similar rules in Moses' book.

152 Say: Come! I will recite what your Lord has forbidden to you—(remember) that you do not associate anything with Him and show kindness to your parents, and do not slay your children for (fear of) poverty—We provide for you

أَوْلَادَكُمْ مِنْ إِمْلَاقٍ وَخُنْزُورُكُمْ

840 The previous verse records the statement of the unbelievers: "If Allah had pleased we would not have associated aught with Him." The reply is that Allah reveals His will through His chosen messengers, so bring forth any Divine revelation that you possess sanctioning idolatry. On the other hand, they are told that they only tell lies and follow conjectures, and have no certain knowledge with them. The argument is here carried on further. Allah does not mislead men, but on the other hand sends His prophets to guide them into the right path. His pleasure is therefore that all men should walk in the right path and serve only one Master. Is not that a conclusive argument against the false assertion of the idolaters? And the Arabs were all guided to the right course, idolatry being swept off for ever from their midst, and monotheism established so firmly as no more to be supplanted.

The guidance of Allah is, however, brought through prophets, and men are never compelled to accept the right way; much less could they be compelled to follow the wrong course, as the idolaters thought. Man was created with a will free within certain limits to act as and for them—and do not draw nigh to indecencies, those of them which are apparent and those which are concealed, and do not kill the soul which Allah has forbidden except for the requirements of justice; this He has enjoined you with that you may understand.

153 And do not approach the property of the orphan except in the best manner⁸⁴¹ until he attains his maturity; and give full measure and weight with justice—We do not impose on any soul a duty except to the extent of its ability; and when you speak, then be just⁸⁴² though it be (against) a relative, and fulfil Allah's covenant; this He has enjoined you with that you may be mindful;

154 And (know) that this is My path, the right one, therefore follow it, and follow not (other) ways, for they will lead you away from His way; this He has enjoined you with that you may guard (against evil).

155 Again,* We gave the Book to Moses to complete (Our blessings) on him who would do good (to others), and making plain all things and a guidance and a mercy, so that they should believe in the meeting of their Lord.⁸⁴³

842 This is not limited to the giving of evidence or pronouncing of judgment, but to every thing spoken, even including the invitation to men to the religion of Islam (Rz). Islam requires a man to be so upright as not to be led away by the ties of relationship (or, zaqurbā may signify the Prophet's relatives) where truth should be manifested. Truth is man's chief interest, which should never suffer, however great may be the loss entailed by any other interest.

843 By all things are meant all those things needed for the guidance of the Israelites, including the prophecies relating to the advent of the Holy Prophet.

SECTION 20

The Goal for the Faithful

156-160. The Qur-án revealed for guidance. 161. Law of requital of good and evil. 162-165. The great goal. 166. The believers shall be rulers in the land.

156 And this is a Book We have revealed, blessed; therefore follow it and guard (against evil) that mercy may be shown to you.⁸⁴⁴

157 Lest you say that the Book was only revealed to two parties before us and We were truly unaware of what they read;⁸⁴⁵

158 Or (lest) you should say: If the Book had been revealed to us, we would certainly have been better guided than they; so indeed there has come to you clear proof from your Lord, and guidance and mercy. Who then is more unjust than he who rejects Allah's communications and turns away from them? We will reward those who turn away from Our communications with an evil chastisement because they turned away.

159 They do not wait aught but that the angels should come to them, or that your Lord should come,⁸⁴⁶ or that some of the signs⁸⁴⁷ of your Lord should come. On the day when some of the signs of your Lord shall come, its faith shall not profit a soul which did not believe before, or earn good through its faith. Say: Wait; we too are waiting.

844 It should be noted that as the Qur-án is mentioned along with the previous revelations, the word mubárak is added as signifying the continuance for ever of the blessings which a thing possesses (Rz). The object is to show that whereas the blessings of other books come to an end after a time, the Qur-án shall for ever remain a source of blessings to its followers.

845 Because in Arabia there lived only the Jews and the Christians besides the idolaters, hence only two parties are spoken of.

846 For a similar expression see 2: 210 and 268. Bd understands by the coming of the angels, the coming of the angels of death, or the coming of angels to execute the decree of the doom of the opposers (compare 812), and by the coming of the Lord, the coming of the final judgment.

848 This refers primarily to the Jews and the Christians, but includes sectarians of all religions who divide their religion into parts, accepting one part and rejecting the other.

849 No other sacred book gives such prominence to the preponderance of the quality of mercy in the Divine Being. While evil must have its evil consequence, it is only its like, but virtue brings a tenfold reward. According to a saying of the Holy Prophet, evil is pardoned or recompensed with its like, while good brings from a tenfold to a seven-hundredfold reward (Bkh). Thus the verse mentions only the maximum punishment of evil and the minimum reward of good.

850 The idea of entire submission to the Divine Being conveyed in the word Islam finds its perfect manifestation in the Holy Prophet, who is the first of the Muslims (v. 164). There are different motives, love of one's self, of one's wife and children, of one's friends and relatives, love of one's country or love of humanity at large, which prompt a man to action; and there is no doubt that the grander, the purer, and the more selfless the object, the nobler is the deed done, but above even the noblest object that a man can set for himself stands the love of the Divine Being. The deed done may be for the welfare of one's self, or of those dearest to one, or of one's country or of humanity in general, but the mainspring of that action must be the love of the Divine Being, for then only is it that perfect disinterestedness combined with absolute justice to all creatures can be achieved. It is the highest goal of human life, and it was amply illustrated in the Holy Prophet's life. His very prayers and sacrifices, nay, his very life and death, were for the Lord of the worlds.

851 "No bearer of burden shall bear the burden of another" are the words in which the Christian doctrine of atonement is rejected by the Holy Qur-án. The Christian is unable to realize the true significance of these words. The Holy Qur-án explains itself elsewhere: "That no bearer of burden shall bear the burden of another, and that man shall have nothing but what he strives for" (53:38, 39). Every man that is born is called a bearer of burden, not because he is a sinner, but because he starts life with certain responsibilities of his own, and having his own responsibilities, cannot bear the responsibilities of another. It is groundless to assert that Jesus Christ entered into life without any responsibilities of his own. The study of his life shows him as feeling his own responsibilities and as caring for them. The burden mentioned in the Holy Qur-án is thus the burden of a man's responsibilities.

852 Each nation in turn is made a successor to another nation. The idolatrous Meccans were the successors of previous people, while in their turn they must now give place to the Muslims.

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. The Prophet's revelation and the doom of his opponents.
- Sec. 2. The devil's opposition to Adam.
- Sec. 3. Warning against the devil's insinuations.
- Sec. 4. The coming of apostles and their rejection.
- Sec. 5. Those who accept the message.
- Sec. 6. Helplessness of the wicked.
- Sec. 7. The righteous shall prosper.
- Sec. 8-11. Illustrations from the histories of Noah, Húd, Sálîh, Lot, and Shu'aib.
- Sec. 12. Meccans warned of punishment.
- Sec. 13-21. The history of Moses.
- Sec. 22. Man's nature bears evidence to the truth of what revelation upholds.
- Sec. 23. The coming of the doom.
- Sec. 24. The final word.

Title.

THE title of this chapter is taken from the mention of Al-a'raf or the elevated places on which stand those righteous servants of Allah who walk perfectly in the ways of truth and goodness.

Subject-matter.

The prominent theme of this chapter is the truth of Divine revelation, there being occasional references to the doctrine of Divine Unity, because it is that doctrine which the Divine revelation aims at establishing, as illustrations from the histories of previous prophets clearly indicate.

The chapter opens with a statement of the truth of the Divine revelation as granted to the Holy Prophet in the Book called the Holy Qur-án, and its truth is emphasized by a prophetic reference to the doom of those who oppose the propagation of the truth contained therein. The second section shows that opposition to the Prophet is similar to the devil's opposition to the righteous servants of God, whose prototype is Adam; and is followed in the third section by a warning to all men against the insinuations of the devil. The next four sections are devoted to general statements regarding the advent of prophets, the fate of those who reject and illtreat them, and the ultimate triumph of the righteous. These are followed by four other sections containing illustrations of these general statements as drawn from the histories of five prophets, whose names, and the prominent incidents of whose lives, were known to the Arabs, viz. Noah, Húd, Sálîh, Lot, and Shu'aib—all these prophets, though belonging to different nations and different countries, being mentioned in the chronological order of their appearance. These histories are followed in the twelfth section by a warning to the opponents of the Holy Prophet that if they did not mend their ways they would meet with the same fate as overtook the former opponents of the truth.

The remaining half of the chapter, with the exception of the last three sections, is taken up entirely with the history of Moses, importance being attached to that history on account of the close resemblance of the Holy Prophet of Arabia to the great Israelite prophet, and on account of the clear prophecies of Moses regarding the appearance of a prophet from among the brethren of the Israelites, i.e. the Ismaelites, or the Arab nation. This is the reason that towards the end of that history mention is specially made of the prophecies contained in the Torah and the Gospel. The Holy Prophet is, in reference to the prophecy of Moses, called an Ummi prophet and a prophet from among the Arabs; facts closely related to the subject-matter of the chapter, yet, strangely enough, supposed by Christian critics to be entirely out of place.

The last three sections are again of a general nature, referring first to the impress of Divine Unity upon man's nature, thus adducing evidence of the truth of revelation, which also preaches Unity; then to the coming of the doom, closing with a final word, containing as it were the essence of the two chapters, enjoining at the conclusion prayer and humility to the Supreme Being.

Connection with the preceding chapter.

The connection of this chapter with the last becomes clear when the subject-matter of the chapters is jointly considered. The last chapter deals chiefly with the doctrine of Divine Unity, while this deals with the truth of revelation, and as the two doctrines are closely inter-related, this chapter complements the last one. Even as the closing section of that chapter deals with the revelation of the Qur-án, this fittingly opens with an assertion relating to the Divine source of the revelation contained in the Holy Book.

Date of revelation.

Internal as well as external evidence shows this chapter to have been revealed at about the same time as the last chapter. Hence the date of its revelation may be placed at a period just prior to the Flight. The best opinion among the earliest commentators holds the whole of it to have been revealed at Mecca (I'Ab, Hs, Mjd, etc., AH). A small minority, however, hold certain passages to have been revealed at Medina; but there being no reliable evidence, these assertions may be regarded as purely conjectural. Importance is, however, attached by Christian critics to the following reasons regarding the revelation of vv. 157-159 at Medina, viz. first, the occurrence in those verses of the word Ummi and the words Torah and Gospel, which it is stated never occur in other than Medinite revelation, and the occurrence of the words and assist him, which are supposed to refer to the helpers or Anşar of Medina; and secondly, that this passage breaks the thread of the narrative, which is otherwise continuous. I take the last reason first. A perusal of vv. 156 and 157 will show the two verses to be so closely connected that their revelation cannot be referred to two distinct occasions. V. 156 begins with a prayer by Moses for mercy to be shown to his people and ends with a Divine promise to show mercy to those of his followers who keep the Divine Commandments and who believe in the Divine communications. This is supplemented by v. 157, which opens with the words, those who follow the Apostle . . . being evidently a part of what is said in the previous verse. Hence, there is no break whatever, but the closest connection between the two verses, rendering it absolutely impossible to refer them to two different periods. The first argument, based on the occurrence of the words "and assist him," is simply whimsical, the word and its derivatives occurring frequently in Meccan revelation in connection with the help afforded to the religion of Islam by the Muslims at Mecca. As regards the occurrence of the words Torah and Gospel and the word Ummi, the evidence carries little weight, for the prophecies uttered by Moses and Jesus are referred to frequently in Meccan revelation, and there is nothing remarkable in the mention of the books of those prophets by name in a Meccan revelation. The entire chapter is one of the later Meccan revelations.

نَمَا كَانَتْ دَعْوَاهُمْ إِذْ جَاءَهُمْ بَأْسُنَا
الْآنَ قَالُوا إِنَّا كُنَّا ظَالِمِينَ

853 Of the four letters Alif, lām, mīm, and ṣād, the first three are the same as at the commencement of ch. 2, for which see 11; while ṣād stands for ṣādiq, meaning truthful, i.e. the Knowing Allah, whose prophecies would not fail (Tabrezi-AH), or for aṣṣal, i.e. the best Decider (I'Ab-AH), or for ṣabūr, meaning the patient or long-suffering Allah who gives a respite to the wicked and makes His righteous servants to suffer persecution and hardships at their hands for a time.

854 Sale's translation of the word ḥaraj as meaning doubt, and Arnold's remark based on that translation, that "the author of the Qur-án betrays precisely the disquietude and suspicion which invariably indicate fraud," are both wrong. Ḥaraj signifies straitness, and the parenthetical passage, so let there be no straitness in your breast on account of it, is introduced to console the Prophet, who at this time encountered the greatest opposition and was surrounded on all sides by difficulties, and whose mission so far had made very little progress. The Qur-án is full of statements showing that the Holy Prophet never entertained the least doubt either as to the truth of the Divine revelation or as to its ultimate triumph, but it was natural that he should be anxious for the spiritual well-being of the rejecters.

855 The Qur-án is very often called zīkr or gīkrá, i.e. a reminder, because, being in consonance with human nature, it is a reminder of what is imprinted on human nature; or gīkrá has here the meaning of zīkr, i.e. an honour or eminence, as in 43: 44: "Surely it is an honour to you and to your people" (TA-LL), and in 38: 1: "By the Qur-án possessed of eminence" (S-LI.).

856 It was in these very words that the opponents of the Holy Prophet confessed their faults on the conquest of Mecca. This shows that the punishment spoken of in the Holy Qur-án does not always exclusively apply to the chastisement after death, but more often includes the punishment in this life, which is really an indication of what the wicked must suffer hereafter.

The Devil's Opposition to Adam

857 Those to whom apostles were sent shall be questioned as to how they treated the apostles, and the latter as to how they were received.

858 Allah, being the Knower of all things, will declare to them what they had done; in other words, the consequences of their actions will become manifest.

859 According to Rgh, wazn means the knowing of the measure of a thing. And he adds that in the saying in the Qur-án والوزن يومئذ الحق the allusion is to justice in the reckoning of men. Mjd used to say wazn here means quḍā, or judging (IJ). The explanation of wazn as meaning justice and judgment, as given by Mjd, Dk, A'mash, and others, has largely been followed by later commentators (Rz, AH).

860 Zulm, when made transitive by means of bā, has the meaning of kufṛ. Thus, explaining ظلموا بها in v. 103, LL says: "It is also made transitive by means of bā, as in the phrase in the Qur-án (7: 103 and 17: 59), because the meaning is kafarū, i.e. and they disbelieved in them, referring to the signs (M, TA), the verb having this meaning tropically or by implication, or being thus made transitive because implying the meaning of takṣīb."

861 That what is stated here of Adam is true of all men is made clear by the words of this verse. Men are created first, then fashioned, then the order is given to angels to make obeisance to Adam, who in this sense typifies man, the verse speaking of men generally in the opening words, "We created you, then We fashioned you." It would appear from this statement that Adam is introduced in the nature of an allegorical description. It is not, of course, meant that Adam did not exist.

862 The creation of man from dust is frequently referred to in the Holy Qur-án. Not only is Adam created from dust, but all men are spoken of as being similarly created (see 443). As a contrast to man's creation from dust, the devil claims to have been created from fire. The meaning may be that the preponderating element in the creation of man is earth, while in that of the devil it is fire. There may be a reference here to the nature of the temperaments of the two classes, men and devils. The Holy Qur-án says elsewhere: "Man is created of haste: now will I show to you My signs; therefore do not ask Me to hasten them on" (21: 37). These words explain themselves. Man's creation of haste means that he is hasty. In like manner the devil's creation of fire may mean that he is made of a fiery temperament, while the perfect man is humble and meek, being created of dust, which stands for humility and meekness. Thus the description given here may stand for the prominent characteristics of the temperaments of the two classes of beings; and the significance in this case may only be that it is only fiery temperaments that refuse to follow the perfect man or a righteous prophet.

863 It has always been the punishment of those who oppose the prophets of God, Who abases those who consider themselves mighty.

864 The devil's grip continues only so long as man is not spiritually raised to life. The raising up here stands for the spiritual resurrection of man.

865 Aghwā-hu (from ghawā, i.e. he erred) ordinarily signifies he caused him to err, but sometimes also indicates punishing for error; thus ان كان الله يريد ان يعزبك is said to mean if Allah desire to punish you for erring (TA-LL), or, according to TA, يحكم عليكم بغيركم i.e. that He should judge against you on account of your error (which

19 And (We said): O Adam! dwell you and your wife in the garden;* so eat from where you desire, but do not go near this tree, for then you will be of the unjust.

20 But the devil made an evil suggestion to them that he might make manifest to them what had been hidden from them of their evil inclinations,⁸⁶⁶ and he said: Your Lord has not forbidden you this tree except that you may not both become two angels or that you may (not) become of the immortals.

21 And he swore to them both: Most surely I am a sincere adviser to you.

22 Then he caused them to fall by deceit; so when they tasted of the tree, their evil inclinations became manifest to them, and they both began to cover themselves with the leaves of the garden;⁸⁶⁷ and their Lord called out to them: Did I not forbid you both from that tree and say to you that the devil is your open enemy?

Warning against the Devil's Insinuations

26, 27. Man is warned. 28-31. Goodness and moderation are enjoined.

26 O children of Adam! we have indeed sent down to you clothing to cover your shame, and (clothing) for beauty⁸⁶⁹; and clothing that guards (against evil), that is the best.⁸⁷⁰ This is of the communications of Allah that they may be mindful.

27 O children of Adam! let not the devil cause you to fall into affliction as he expelled your parents from the garden, make up by human effort any fault that may have been committed. The clothing that guards against evil, which is spoken of in v. 26 as being the best clothing, explains the meaning of covering here. Divine revelation points out to man the true way, enabling him to cover himself or guard himself against evil. And, further, the statement in v. 27, pulling off from them both their clothing that he might show them their evil inclinations, shows that covering with the leaves of the garden is an allegorical statement (see 871). Though the Qur-án does not neglect to give directions regarding the physical requirements of man, yet there is even in these an underlying idea of the spiritual elevation of man.

868 This verse proves conclusively that every man must live and die upon this earth. The story of Jesus having been transplanted to the heavens to pass his life there is opposed to this verse, and must be rejected.

869 Rish means originally feathers or plumage, constituting the clothing and ornament of birds (TA-LL), and is then applied to clothing worn for embellishment (Rz), or superb or excellent clothing (LL), or ornament and beauty (A, TA-LL).

870 Clothing at first simply served to cover shame; with further progress men sought to embellish their persons; but there is yet a third kind of clothing, says the Qur-án, which is the best, and that is libás at-taqwa, or the clothing of piety, literally the clothing that guards one against evil. It indicates a further step in the progress of man, for virtue is an embellishment of the mind, and when man has seen the good of embellishing his person, he will soon be aware of the necessity of embellishing the mind.

pulling off from them both their clothing⁸⁷¹ that he might show them their evil inclinations, he surely sees you, he as well as his host, from whence you cannot see them; surely we have made the devils to be the guardians of those who do not believe.⁸⁷²

28 And when they commit an indecency they say: We found our fathers doing this, and Allah has enjoined it on us. Say: Surely Allah does not enjoin indecency; do you say against Allah what you do not know?⁸⁷³

29 Say: My Lord has enjoined justice,⁸⁷⁴ and set upright your faces at every time of prayer and call on Him, being sincere to Him in obedience; as He brought you forth in the beginning, so shall you also return.⁸⁷⁵

30 A part has He guided aright, and (as for another) part, perdition is justly their due;⁸⁷⁶ surely they took the devils for guardians beside Allah, and they think that they are followers of the right way.

Or, place.

Or, error.

871 That the clothing for the body is not meant here is clear from the fact that all men are warned against a similar attack of the devil. As to the clothing of which Adam was divested, there remains no doubt when it is seen that the devil tries to divest every child of Adam of the same clothing. Some say that this clothing was light, and others piety, the latter being the significance adopted by Mjd (IJ). AH has

قال المجاهد هو لباس التقوى وسواهما ما يسوءهما من العصية

i.e. Mujāhid says: it is the clothing that guards against evil, and by their sau'at is meant the evil that afflicted them on account of their disobedience.

872 It is because they do not believe in the truth that the devils are made their guardians; those who sever their connection with the source of purity must fall into impurity.

873 Some commentators are of opinion that the indecency here referred to is their going round the Ka'ba naked (Mjd-IJ). But the statement is general, and need not be limited.

874 The word qist is variously explained as meaning Divine Unity; what is good and right; truth (Rz, AH). All these are really included in the literal meaning of the word qist, which signifies justice in its broadest sense.

875 The meaning is either that you will find life after you have been spiritually dead or that you will return to Allah in the life after death. Or the meaning is explained in the verse that follows, i.e. those who do good will return to a good life and those who work evil, to an evil life.

876 حق عليه كذا means wajaba or gabata (TA), and, according to LL, the signifi-

The Apostles and their Rejection

32-35. Apostles come to reform. 36-39. Fate of those who reject their message.

32 Say : Who has prohibited the embellishment of Allah⁸⁷⁸ which He has brought forth for His servants and the good provisions? Say: These are for the believers in the life of this world, purely (theirs) on the resurrection day; thus do We make the communications clear for a people who know.⁸⁷⁹

33 Say: My Lord has only prohibited indecencies, those of them that are apparent as well as those that are concealed, and sin and rebellion without justice, and that you associate with Allah that for which He has not cance in such cases is that a certain thing has become necessary as suited to the requirements of justice in his case. And qalilah sometimes signifies عقوبة الضلالة i.e. the punishment for going astray (Rgh), or a state of perdition (S, O-I-L). Hence one significance of حق عليهم الضلالة is, perdition is justly their due; while if we take the ordinary significance of the word qalilah, the meaning would be that going astray or remaining in error is suitable to the requirements of justice in their case, consequent upon what they themselves have done. In fact, the words explain themselves: Error is justly their due because they have taken the devils for their guardians, and he who continues to follow the devil must surely remain in error.

877 Zinat or embellishment is here generally understood to mean apparel, with reference to the practice of going naked round the Ka'ba, but the word itself has a wider significance. Rgh says: Real embellishment is that which does not disgrace or render unseemly a man in any one of his conditions either in the present life or in that which is to come; he also says it is of three kinds, i.e. spiritual, such as knowledge and good beliefs; bodily, such as strength and tallness of stature; extrinsic, such as wealth and dignity. Hence we may regard both the spiritual and extrinsic embellishment to be meant here, the former indicating virtue and the latter clothing.

878 By the embellishment of Allah is meant the embellishment which Allah has made lawful for men to avail themselves of (Rz).

879 The meaning is that in the life of this world the believer and the unbeliever equally profit by the good things, but in the life after death all good shall be exclusively for those who have accepted and acted on the right principles.

sent down any authority, and that you say against Allah what you do not know.

34 And for every nation there is a doom,⁸⁸⁰ so when their doom is come they shall not remain behind the least while,⁸⁸¹ nor shall they go before.⁸⁸²

35 O children of Adam! if there come to you apostles from among you relating to you My communications, then whoever shall guard (against evil) and act aright—they shall have no fear, nor shall they grieve.

36 And (as for) those who reject Our communications and turn away from them haughtily—these are the inmates of the fire, they shall abide in it.

37 Who is then more unjust than he who forges a lie against Allah or rejects His communications? (As for) those, their portion of the Book⁸⁸³ shall reach them, until when Our messengers come to them causing them to die, they shall say: Where is that which you used to call upon besides Allah? They would say: They are gone away from us; and they shall bear witness against themselves that they were unbelievers.

38 He will say: Enter into fire among the nations that have passed away before you from among jinn and men; whenever a nation shall enter, it shall curse its sister,⁸⁸⁴ until when they have all come up with one another into it, 880 The doom of a nation is the time when it is destroyed or punished for its evil deeds. The verse really speaks in general terms of the doom awaiting the Meccans.

881 Sa'at means an hour, "but used absolutely by the Arabs means a time; a while; an indefinite (short) time; a little while (Msb); and a little portion of the night and the day" (LL).

882 That is, they shall not go until the appointed time of their punishment arrives.

883 That is, the punishment promised in the book shall overtake them; this is supported by the conclusion of the verse.

884 By the sister nation is meant the nation which resembles it in its faith.

41 They shall have a bed of the hell-fire and from above them coverings (of it); and thus do We reward the unjust.

42 And (as for) those who believe and do good—We do not impose on any soul a duty except to the extent of its ability—they are the dwellers of the garden; in it they shall abide.

885 By the last and the foremost are meant here the common people and the leaders, because though the words would bear both interpretations, i.e. the last and the foremost in time or the last and the foremost in position (Rz), the latter significance is corroborated by similar expressions in several other places, such as 2: 166, 14: 21, 34: 31-33, 40: 47, etc.

886 The common people would desire that the leaders should suffer a double torment, for their own sins as well as for having misled others. They are told that if the leaders were guilty of misleading them, they themselves deserved a double chastisement for having blindly followed the leaders.

44 And the dwellers of the garden will call out to the inmates of the fire: Surely we have found what our Lord promised us to be true; have you too found what your Lord promised to be true? They will say: Yes. Then a crier will cry out among them that the curse of Allah is on the unjust, 888 By seeking to make Allah's way crooked is meant that they suggest doubts regarding the truth (Rz).

889 The veil which here separates the wicked from the righteous and on account of which the former fail to see the bliss which the latter enjoy will assume a perceptible form in the next life.

890 A'râf is plural of 'arf, meaning literally an elevated place, and hence Al-a'râf means the elevated places. There has been much discussion as to what A'râf is. The majority of commentators say that it is the hijâb or veil spoken of in the previous verse, or the sûr or wall spoken of in 57:13; while others, among whom are Hasan and Zj, hold that على الاعراف is only equivalent to على معرفة اهل الجنة والنار i.e. knowing the inmates of paradise and the inmates of hell (Rz).

I have already explained the nature of the veil mentioned in v. 46. And the wall in 57:13 is mentioned in connection with the bringing about of a separation between the sincere believers and the hypocrites. The latter desire to be guided by the light which guides the believers, but it would then be too late, and a separation would thus be finally brought about between them. This separation also exists spiritually in this life between those who sincerely adhere to the principles which they profess and those who make only a lip-profession of virtue, although their lives are really led in the darkness of evil. The same separation would assume a palpable form in the life to come. Hence the two verses lend no support to the idea that A'râf is a particular place midway between heaven and hell; it only carries its literal significance of elevated places, and the men spoken of here are the same righteous servants of Allah who are distinctly mentioned in 56:10, 11: "And the foremost are the foremost: these are they who are drawn nigh to Allah," being the dominion.

894 By final sequel is meant the ultimate state of the perfect manifestation of truth by the fulfilment of the prophecies, the end or the ultimate consequence. See 594.

895 The phrase استوى على العرش is used in the Holy Qur-án here and on six other occasions, viz. in 10: 3, 13: 2, 20: 5, 25: 59, 32: 4, and 57: 4. A reference to these six places will show that it is invariably used after mentioning the creation of the heavens and the earth and in relation to the Divine control of His creation, and the law and the order to which the universe is made to submit by its great Author. The Holy Qur-án has, in fact, explained itself here as elsewhere. For instance, here we have first a statement describing Allah's creation of the heaven and the earth, and then this phrase, while the verse ends with a similar statement, surely His is the creation and the command. Hence it must convey the same idea as the word command. Similarly in 10: 3 we have العرش على العرش

55 Call on your Lord humbly and secretly; surely He does not love those who exceed the limits.

56 And do not make mischief in the earth after its reformation, and call on Him fearing and hoping; surely the mercy of Allah is nigh to those who do good (to others).⁸⁹⁶

57 And He it is who sends forth the winds bearing good news before His mercy,⁸⁹⁷ until, when they bring up a laden cloud, We drive it to a dead land, then We send down water on it,⁸⁹⁸ then bring forth with it of fruits of all kinds; thus shall We bring forth the dead that you may be mindful.⁸⁹⁹

58 And as for the good land, its vegetation springs forth

استوى على يدبر الامر where يدبر الامر or regulating the affair, clearly explains

العرش A reference to the other occasions where the phrase occurs will make this more clear. Turning to the lexicons, we find that 'arsh literally means a thing constructed for shade (J.L.) or anything roofed (Rgh). According to the latter authority the court or sitting place of the sultan is called 'arsh on account of its eminence. And he adds: ركنى به عن العز

والمملكة i.e. and it is used to indicate might or power, and authority and dominion. J.L. accepts the interpretation of Rgh, who says that "the 'arsh of God is one of the things which mankind know not in reality but only by name, and it is not as the imaginations of the vulgar hold it to be." In fact, both the words 'arsh and kursi have been misunderstood as meaning resting-places for Allah. Bkh has explained the latter to mean knowledge, and the true significance of the former is power or control of the creation. Regarding istawā, it signifies, when followed by 'alā, he had the mastery or control of a thing or ascendancy over it, being synonymous with istawlā (M, K-L.L.), or he was or became firm (Msb-L.L.). Summa, as already shown, does not necessarily indicate delay or order. The meaning of the verse is simply this: He created the heavens and the earth, then He it is who holds sway over His dominion, and He is firm in the exercise of His power and knows no weakness.

896 The feeling which should be entertained towards Allah should be a combination of fear and hope, of awe as well as love, because the fear of His displeasure ennoble the mind no less than the hope of His mercy.

897 His mercy represents the rain in the physical world, even as Divine revelation represents bringing the dead to life in the spiritual world.

898 That is, We send down water on the dead land, or send down water by or from the clouds, because the personal pronoun may refer to either.

899 The bringing forth of the spiritually dead to life through the revelation of the Qur-ān is always likened to the bringing of the dead earth to life by rain. The wind bearing the good news was the movement towards Islam, which was daily becoming more and more powerful.

History of Noah

59. Noah preaches Unity. 60-64. He is rejected and his people are drowned.

59 Certainly We sent Noah to his people, so he said: O my people! serve Allah, you have no god other than Him; surely I fear for you the chastisement of a grievous day.⁹⁰¹

Ar. thee.

60 The chiefs of his people said: Most surely we see you in clear error.

لَقَدْ أَرْسَلْنَا نُوحًا إِلَىٰ قَوْمِهِ فَقَالَ
يَقَوْمِ اعْبُدُوا اللَّهَ مَا لَكُمْ مِنْ إِلَهٍ غَيْرُهُ
إِنِّي أَخَافُ عَلَيْكُمْ عَذَابَ يَوْمٍ عَظِيمٍ ۝
قَالَ الْمَلَأُ مِنَ قَوْمِهِ إِنَّا لَنَرَاكَ
فِي ضَلَالٍ مُّبِينٍ ۝

900 Revelation is here likened to the rain and the good or bad nature of man to good or inferior land. If some men do not profit by the revelation it is the fault of the evil in their nature and not that of the revelation, just as if some lands do not profit by rain it is not the fault of the rain.

901 Having warned the Quraish of the evil consequences of their opposition to the Holy Prophet, several illustrations are now given from ancient sacred history showing how those people were dealt with who refused to listen to the voice of the warners. It should be borne in mind in reading the histories of the prophets as given in the Holy Qur-án that the object of the Qur-án is not to narrate history as such, but to bring out certain characteristics of the histories of different nations, to mention incidents which contained prophetic allusion to the Holy Prophet's life, illustrating the general warnings made regarding the ultimate consequences attendant upon the rejection of truth. The Qur-án does not concern itself with the details of what messages a prophet delivered to his people and of how he was received; it simply contents itself with the broad facts that every prophet preached Divine Unity, every prophet laid stress on piety, every prophet was received with severe opposition, and that each of these messengers ultimately succeeded in establishing the truth. This, with slight variations, is the sum and substance of the histories of the prophets that are recorded in the Holy Qur-án. It is not, as stated by a Christian critic, "the experience of Muhammad" that is recorded in the histories of prophets, but it is the experience of the prophets containing a prophetic allusion to the experience of the Holy Prophet. This is clear from the fact that the histories of the prophets relating the destruction of their opponents are contained chiefly in Meccan revelations, whereas at Mecca the opponents of the Holy Prophet were at the zenith of their power and the cause of the Prophet was to all appearance hopeless, while during the Medinite revelations the enemy was vanquished, so there was not much need to mention the history of earlier prophets and their opposers.

References to Noah and his history are contained in the following places in the Holy Qur-án:—3: 32, 6: 85, 7: 59-64, 10: 71-73, 11: 25-48, 14: 9, 17: 3, 21: 76, 77; 23: 23-29, 25: 37, 26: 105-122, 29: 14, 15; 37: 75-82, 51: 46, 53: 52, 54: 9-16, 57: 26, 66: 10, 69: 11-12, 71: 1-28.

61 He said: O my people! there is no error in me, but I am an apostle from the Lord of the worlds:

62 I deliver to you the messages of my Lord, and I offer you good advice, and I know from Allah what you do not know:

63 What! do you wonder that a reminder has come to you from your Lord through a man from among you, that he might warn you and that you might guard (against evil), and so that mercy may be shown to you?

64 But they called him a liar, so We delivered him and those with him in the ark, and We drowned those who rejected Our communications; surely they were a blind people.⁹⁰²

The History of Hūd

65. Hūd preaches Unity. 66-72. He is rejected and punishment follows.

65 And to 'Ād⁹⁰³ (We sent) their brother⁹⁰⁴ Hūd.⁹⁰⁵ He said: O my people! serve Allah, you have no god other than Him; will you not then guard (against evil)?

وَالِى عَادٍ أَخَاهُمْ هُودٌ قَالَ يَقَوْمِ
اعْبُدُوا اللَّهَ مَا لَكُمْ مِن إِلَهٍ غَيْرُهُ
لَا تَتَّقُونَ

902 Fuller references to the deluge and the making of the ark are contained in 11: 37-48 and 23: 27-29. It may be noted here, however, that the Holy Qur-ān does not support the theory of a world deluge, for it plainly states here that Noah was sent only to his people, i.e. not to all the nations. The Holy Qur-ān says that only the people to whom Noah delivered his message called him a liar, and that only those were drowned who rejected Our communications, i.e. the message of Allah delivered through Noah. Hence the deluge only affected the territory of Noah's people, not the whole world, as the Bible would have us believe. This is one of the many important points in which the Holy Qur-ān differs from the Bible, and the truth is once more on the side of the Holy Qur-ān.

903 The tribe of 'Ād, with their prophet Hūd, are mentioned in the Holy Qur-ān in the following places:—7: 65-72, 11: 50-60, 14: 9, 25: 38, 26: 123-140, 29: 38, 41: 13-16, 46: 21-26, 51: 41-42, 53: 50, 54: 18-21, 69: 4, 69: 6-8, 89: 6-8.

'Ād was the grandson of Aram (mentioned in 89: 7), who was a grandson of Noah, and the tribe of 'Ād here spoken of is called the first 'Ād (53: 50), as distinguished from the tribe of Samood, which is called the second 'Ād. This tribe lived in the desert of Al-Ahqāf (46: 21), which is marked on the maps of Arabia and extends from Oman to Hadramaut (Rz). Rodwell's view that "the two tribes of 'Ād and Samood—the latter of whom is mentioned by Diod. Sic. and Ptolemy—lay to the north of Mecca" is wrong in respect of the tribe of 'Ad, though it is tolerably true so far as the tribe of Samood is concerned. Sale has the following account of this tribe in his Pr. Dis.: "'Ad was an ancient and potent tribe of Arabs and zealous idolaters. They chiefly worshipped four deities, Sáqia, Háfizah, Rázizah, and Sálimah, the first, as they imagined, supplying them with rain, the second preserving them from all dangers abroad, the third providing food for their sustenance, and the fourth restoring them to health when afflicted with sickness."

904 The male member of a tribe is generally spoken of as their brother: "Thus يا ابا بكر means, O thou of the tribe of Bekr" (Ham-LL).

905 The prophet Húd is the Eber of the Bible, because Húd is said to be the grandson of Arphaxad, the grandson of Noah (Rz). Compare Gen. 10: 24 for Eber's genealogy. His son Joktan is said to have established a kingdom in Yúnán.

906 By making the Arabs khulafá or successors is meant that they were made a ruling nation and possessors of a vast kingdom.

907 Some commentators have related unfounded legends as to the incredible tallness of their stature. The words used in the Qur-án signify only that they were a strong and powerful people.

908 Sticking to their idols and refusing to believe in Allah is here spoken of as uncleanness and wrath having fallen or lighted upon them from the Lord. Compare 22: 30, which says: "Avoid the uncleanness of the idols." There is also a secondary significance of the word rjjs, i.e. punishment, and in that case the past tense would indicate the certainty of the event, because the punishment is so sure to come that it may be spoken of as having lighted upon them.

909 The reference here is to their deities, for which see 908.

910 They were destroyed by a storm blowing on them continuously for eight days (69: 7). Living in a sandy desert, as the name Al-Ahqáf denotes, the storm had a devastating effect.

911 I have already mentioned that Samood, known as the second 'Ád, is often mentioned in the Holy Qur-án conjointly with the first 'Ád. It is spoken of in the following places:—7: 73-79, 11: 61-68, 14: 9, 15: 80-84, 25: 38, 26: 141-159, 27: 45-53, 29: 38, 41: 13-14, 41: 17-18, 51: 43-45, 53: 51, 54: 23-31, 69: 4-5, 89: 9, 91: 11-15.

'Ad and Samood, though two nearly related tribes, were separated both as regards time and place. The tribe of Samood is known after a grandson of Aram, the grandson of Noah. Historical traces of it are met with in Ptolemy. The tribe flourished more than two hundred years after 'Ád, and occupied the territory known as Al-Hijr or Al-Hajar (15: 80) and the plain known by the name of Wádi-ul-Qurá, which forms the southern boundary of Syria and the northern one of Arabia (Essays on the Life of Muhammad, by S.S.A.).

912 Sâlih was a descendant in the sixth generation after Samood, the great ancestor of the tribe, after whom the tribe is known.

913 Neither the Qur-án nor any reliable saying of the Holy Prophet lends any support to the numerous legends regarding the miraculous appearance and prodigious size of the she-camel.

* 906.

74 And remember when He made you successors after 'Ad^a and settled you in the land—you make mansions on its plains and hew out houses in the mountains⁹¹⁴—remember therefore Allah's benefits and do not act corruptly in the land, making mischief.

75 The chiefs of those who behaved proudly among his people said to those who were considered weak, to those who believed from among them: Do you know that Sáliḥ is sent by his Lord? They said: Surely we are believers in what he has been sent with.

76 Those who were haughty said: Surely we are deniers of what you believe in.

77 So they slew the she-camel and revolted against their Lord's commandment, and they said: O Sáliḥ! bring us what you threatened us with, if you are one of the apostles.

78 Then the earthquake overtook them, so they became motionless bodies in their abode.⁹¹⁵

It was an ordinary she-camel which was given as a sign to a people. Their slaying of it was a sign that they would neither accept the truth nor cease persecuting Sáliḥ and his followers.

It may be noted here that there is nothing strange that a camel should be given as a sign, when even now we can see that a roughly constructed house known as the Ka'ba is given as a sign to the whole world, so that whoever tries to destroy it perishes himself. This ordinary house built of rough stones is a much greater sign than Sáliḥ's living she-camel.

914 In his Essays on the Life of Muhammad, Sir Syed Ahmad Khan says: "They excavated various rocks, and after having hewn and carved them, took up their abode therein. These rocks are up to this very day known by the name of Aḡalīb. Almost every Arab, as well as several foreigners who have travelled in Arabia, can bear testimony to the existence of these rock habitations, which stand there at once to satisfy curiosity and to afford information respecting the nations who made them. These habitations likewise corroborate and bear testimony to the truth of that portion of the history of the Samood tribe which is mentioned in the Holy Qur-ān."

915 The punishment which overtook Samood is described under different names. Here it is called rajfah, which means the earthquake. The description of their abodes in 27: 52 as being fallen down also shows that they were destroyed by an earthquake. In 54: 31 the same punishment is referred to as ṣaiḥah. i.e. a single cry, and it evidently refers to the rumbling noise which precedes an earthquake. In 51: 44 and elsewhere it is spoken of as ṣā'iqah, which means any destructive punishment (O, Q-LL), carrying sometimes the same significance as ṣaiḥah. In 69: 5 Samood are said to have been destroyed by means of ṭāḡhiyah, which means an excessively severe punishment. Both of these descriptions apply to an earthquake.

79 Then he turned away from them and said: O my people! I did certainly deliver to you the message of my Lord, and I gave you good advice, but you do not love those who give good advice.⁹¹⁶

80 And (We sent) Lot when he said to his people: What! do you commit an indecency which any one in the world has not done before you?⁹¹⁷

81 Most surely you come to males in lust besides females: nay, you are an extravagant people.

82 And the answer of his people was no other than that they said: Turn them out of your town, surely they are a people who seek to purify (themselves).

يَبْتَغُونَ

916 This evidently refers to the survivors from the great disaster.

917 In the chronological order which this chapter keeps in view, Abraham should have been mentioned next, but his name is here omitted for two reasons; firstly, because only those prophets are mentioned whose enemies were destroyed before their eyes; and, secondly, because Abraham's history has already been dealt with in the last chapter, to which this forms, as it were, a supplement. Hence, we come to Lot, Abraham's nephew. For other references to Lot in the Holy Qur-án, see 6: 87, 11: 77-83, 15: 61-74, 21: 74-75, 26: 160-173, 27: 54-58, 29: 32-35, 37: 133-136, 51: 32-37, 53: 53-54, 54: 34-38, 66: 10. Lot is one of those prophets who have been maligned not only in Rabbinical literature but also in the Bible. It is clear that Lot is considered a righteous servant by Abraham (Gen. 18: 23), and by saving Lot, God has shown that He, too, regarded Lot as a righteous man; but a little further on we are told that Lot was guilty of incestuous intercourse with his daughters, a fact so inconsistent with righteousness that it must be condemned as a manifest lie.

The question whether Lot was a prophet is answered in the affirmative by Sale, but Wherry denies it. We have seen that the Jews represented Lot in a very unfavourable light, and their ideas were transported into the Bible.

If Gen. 19: 30-38 is a faithful record, Lot cannot take his place even among the righteous; whereas, his being saved in the destruction of Sodom is clear proof of his righteousness, when read along with Gen. 18: 23. Sale has, however, produced the additional testimony of the apostle Peter, who says: "And delivered just Lot, vexed with the filthy conversation of the wicked (for that righteous man dwelling among them, in seeing and hearing, vexed his righteous soul from day to day with their unlawful deeds)" (2 Pet. 2: 7, 8). Here Lot is not only spoken of as being just and righteous, which he could not have been if Gen. 19: 30-38 is to be believed, but he is also spoken of as vexing his soul with the wickedness of the people of Sodom, which can only be true if he was a preacher of righteousness among those people; for why should an indifferent settler in the land have vexed himself with the wickedness of the Sodomites? And again, why should Lot have gone, being a just man, to settle among a wicked people had he not been charged with the duty of reforming them? Nor is it reasonable to hold that God destroyed a people without even giving them a warning, and that warning, if ever given, was given through Lot.

83 So We delivered him and his followers,^{917a} except his wife: she was of those who remained behind.

84 And We rained upon them a rain;⁹¹⁸ consider then what was the end of the guilty.

The History of Shu'aib

85-87. Shu'aib preaches Unity. 88-93. His rejection and the coming of punishment.

85 And to Midian (We sent) their brother Shu'aib. He said: O my people! serve Allah, you have no god other than Him; clear proof indeed has come to you from your Lord, therefore give full measure and weight and do not diminish to men their things, and do not make mischief in the land after its reform; this is better for you if you are believers.⁹¹⁹

917a The word ahl is here interpreted as meaning those who believed in him (Bq). It means in the first place a man's family or near relatives, being, in fact, the equivalent of al, but with reference to root-meaning both have a wider significance, including all those who bear a relation to man, as members to a head (from the root ala, meaning he returned or bore a relation to a man) by religion or persuasion or kindred. There is, however, this difference between al and ahl, that the former is used only in relation to eminent men while the latter may refer to men in general (Rgh).

918 Maṭr (lit. ruining) is also used in the sense of doing good or evil, according to the object by which it is followed, but امطرهم الله (which is the form used here) is only used in relation to punishment (Q, TA). The punishment which overtook the people of Lot is frequently called maṭr or rain, while in 11: 82 and 15: 74 stones are said to have been rained down upon them, and in 54: 34 it is called a ḥaṣīb, which primarily signifies a thrower or pelter of stones, but means any punishment. Its description as ṣaiḥah in 15: 73, combined with the above facts, shows that it was a volcanic eruption combined with an earthquake, because ṣaiḥah signifies a great noise such as precedes an earthquake, and is used to denote an earthquake (see 915).

919 References to Shu'aib are contained in the Holy Qur-ān here and in 11: 84-95, 15: 78-79, 26: 176-191, and 29: 36-37. Shu'aib was a descendant of Abraham in the fifth generation. Madian or Midian was the name of Abraham's son by Keturah (Gen. 25: 2), and a city of the same name grew up on the Red Sea, south-east of Mount Sinai, where his descendants settled, and is mentioned by Ptolemy as Modiana. Shu'aib is generally supposed to be another name for Jethro.

The injunction do not diminish to men their things stands for not depriving or defrauding men of their rights (Bq), or not acting wrongfully towards men in respect of their things or dues.

86 And do not lie in wait in every path, threatening and turning away from Allah's way him who believes in Him and seeking to make it crooked: and remember when you were few, then He multiplied you, and consider what was the end of the mischief-makers:

87 And if there is a party of you who believe in that with which I am sent, and another party who do not believe, then wait patiently until Allah judges between us; and He is the best of the judges.

88 The chiefs, those who were proud from among his people, said: We will most certainly turn you out, O Shu'aib, and (also) those who believe with you, from our town, or you shall come back to our faith. He said: What! though we dislike (it)?

89 Indeed we shall have forged a lie against Allah if we go back to your religion after Allah has delivered us from it, and it befits us not that we should go back to it, except if Allah our Lord please: our Lord comprehends all things in His knowledge; in Allah do we trust: our Lord! decide between us and our people with truth; and Thou art the best of deciders.

90 And the chiefs of those who disbelieved from among his people said: If you follow Shu'aib, you shall then most surely be losers.

95 Then We gave them good in the place of evil⁹²³ until they became many and said: Distress and happiness did indeed befall our fathers. Then We took them by surprise while they did not perceive.

96 And if the people of the towns had believed and guarded (against evil) We would certainly have opened up for them blessings from the heaven and the earth, but they rejected, so We overtook them for what they had earned.

97 What! do the people of the towns then feel secure from Our punishment coming to them by night while they sleep?

921 Notwithstanding a much severer opposition, the Holy Prophet's attitude towards his opponents is thus described: Perhaps you will kill yourself with grief because they would not believe (26: 3). But the words, even in Shu'aib's mouth, mean only this, that he had fully warned his people, and it was their own fault that they did not benefit by his good advice.

922 That the histories of the nations are meant as a warning to the Quraish is evident. It is also plain that even afflictions and distress, when sent on a people, are meant for their spiritual improvement, that they might humble themselves. The words may indicate the great famine which is more clearly referred to in 44: 10, 11.

923 By good and evil are meant here ease and distress respectively (Rz).

98 What! do the people of the towns feel secure from Our punishment coming to them in the morning while they play ⁹²⁴

99 What! do they then feel secure from Allah's plan? But none feels secure from Allah's plan except the people who shall perish.

100-102. Fate of previous people affords a warning. 103-105. Moses delivers his message to Pharaoh. 106-108. Signs are demanded and shown.

100 Is it not clear to those who inherit the earth after its (former) residents that if We please We would afflict them on account of their faults and set a seal on their hearts so they would not hear. ⁹²⁵

Ar. three.

101 These towns—We relate to you some of their stories, and certainly their apostles came to them with clear arguments, but they would not believe in what they rejected at first; thus does Allah set a seal over the hearts of the unbelievers.

102 And We did not find in most of them any (faithfulness to) covenant, and We found most of them to be certainly transgressors.

103 Then We raised after them Moses with Our communications to Pharaoh and 924 Duḥá, which is here translated as morning, begins after sunrise, according to some when the sun is yet low, and according to others when it is somewhat high (TA-LL). It is derived from ḍahá, meaning it appeared or became apparent, and is thus applied to the time from when the sun shines brightly to the time when the day is advanced. The playing may be taken either literally or it may indicate the worldly engagements in which they were occupied to the utter neglect of higher aspirations.

925 This shows why and when Allah sets a seal on the hearts. It is the commission of sins on the part of men which calls for an affliction from Allah, and the consequence is the setting of a seal on such hearts so that "hearing they do not hear." This obtains further clarity from the next verse. Allah would have men believe, sending clear arguments which they reject, adhering to their unbelief. Allah's seal is therefore only a mark of their determination not to believe, whatever might happen.

107 So he threw his rod, then lo! it was a clear serpent,

108 And he drew forth his hand, and lo! it was white to the beholders.⁹²⁶

وَرِعْدًا فَإِذَا هِيَ بَيْضٌ لِلْخَاطِرِ

925A The history of Moses has already been briefly referred to in connection with the stubbornness of the Israelites, but here it is taken up in greater detail, and is continued from here to the end of the 21st section. The reason for this enlargement is to be found in the fact that the Holy Prophet had more in common with Moses than with any other prophet, inasmuch as they are compared to each other in the Mosaic prophecies. References to Moses' history are contained in the following places in the Holy Qur-án: 2: 49-71, 4: 153, 5: 20-26, 7: 103-156, 10: 75-92, 11: 96-99, 17: 101-104, 18: 60-82, 19: 51-52, 20: 9-98, 23: 45-49, 26: 10-68, 27: 7-14, 28: 3-44, 37: 114-122, 40: 23-55, 43: 46-56, 44: 17-33, 51: 38-40, 61: 5, and 79: 15-26.

926 Here again we have an instance of the correctness of the Quranic statement where it differs with the Bible, showing the incompleteness of the Bible narrative. In the fourth chapter of Exodus it is clearly stated that two signs were given to Moses—that of his rod turning into a serpent and that of his hand becoming white when put into his bosom; and Exod. 4: 8 clearly states that Moses was commanded to show both these signs to Pharaoh. But when we read ch. 7, where the performance of those miracles before Pharaoh is recorded, we find mention only of the miracle of the rod, which was rejected. It is, however, obvious that Moses must have shown the second sign on the rejection of the first; for he could not have disobeyed the Divine commandment, nor was the second miracle given to him in vain.

Another question worth considering here is as to the nature of these miracles. As is stated elsewhere in the Holy Qur-án, Moses' rod was an ordinary staff: "I recline on it, and I beat the leaves with it to make them fall upon my sheep, and I have other uses for it" (20: 18). It is nowhere stated in the Holy Qur-án that whenever he threw it down his rod turned into a serpent. Even when the Israelites were in the greatest danger, Moses made no use of it. Only on two occasions the rod is stated to have turned into a serpent, viz. (1) when Moses held communion with God before going to Pharaoh; (2) when he first came before Pharaoh; and on these two occasions only did the hand turn white.

Now on the first of these occasions it is certain that the rod was seen turning into a serpent by Moses alone, when he was in a state of communion with the Divine Being; and therefore it was undoubtedly a state of vision—a state in which a person is temporarily transported to a spiritual sphere. This is the state in which the prophets and other righteous men receive Divine revelation; and while it is certainly not a state of sleep, it is equally certain that it is a state in which the mind rises above the limitations of physical environment, beholding things

The History of Moses

109-119. Pharaoh's enchanter in opposition to Moses. 120-126. Enchanters believe in Moses.

109 The chiefs of Pharaoh's people said: Most surely this is an enchanter possessed of knowledge:

110 He intends to turn you out of your land. What counsel do you then give?⁹²⁷

111 They said: Put him off and his brother, and send collectors into the cities:

Ar. there. 112 That they may bring to you every enchanter possessed of knowledge.

113 And the enchanter came to Pharaoh (and) said: We must surely have a reward if we are the prevailing ones.⁹²⁸

114 He said: Yes, and you shall certainly be of those who are near (to me)

Ar. will thou. 115 They said: O Moses! Will you cast, or shall we be the first to cast?

116 He said: Cast. So when they cast, they deceived the people's eyes and frightened them, and they produced a mighty enchantment.

which are invisible to the physical eye, and hearing things which the physical ear cannot otherwise hear. It is therefore certain that on the first occasion Moses observed the change whilst in the same state of temporary transportation in which he received revelation.

The second occasion is, however, different, because others besides Moses witnessed the change. It is a recognized fact that the effect of inspired vision is sometimes so strong that others besides the seer partake in it. And since the rod of Moses did not always acquire the quality of turning into a serpent whenever thrown down, and this change was witnessed only on two occasions, the conclusion is incontrovertible that the change was wrought under the peculiar conditions attendant upon receptive revelation.

Yet, what was shown was not mere play. The great truth underlying the 'asā or the rod turning into a serpent was that the followers of Moses, as represented by his rod, would prevail over their enemies; and the significance underlying the whitening of Moses' hand was that his arguments would shine forth with clearness.

For these interpretations of the two occurrences see 1581 and 1582.

927 Amr here carries the significance of advising or counselling. One says mur-ni, meaning counsel me, advise me (A-LL). The words are apparently put into Pharaoh's mouth.

928 Compare Exod. 7:11: "Then Pharaoh also called the wise men and the sorcerers."

Ar. thy.

117 And We revealed to Moses, saying: Cast your rod; then lo! it devoured the lies they told.⁹²⁹

118 So the truth was established, and what they did became null.

119 Thus they were vanquished there, and they went back abased.

120 And the enchanters were thrown down, prostrating (themselves).

121 They said: We believe in the Lord of the worlds,

122 The Lord of Moses and Aaron.⁹³⁰

123 Pharaoh said: Do you believe in Him before I have given you permission? surely this is a plot which you have secretly devised in this city, that you may turn out of it its people, but you shall know:

124 I will certainly cut off your hands and your feet on opposite sides, then will I crucify you all together.

125 They said: Surely to our Lord shall we go back:

Ar. thou dost.

126 And you do not take revenge on us except because we have believed in the communications of our Lord when they came to us: Our Lord! pour out upon us patience and cause us to die in submission.

929 Compare Exod. 7:12: "For they cast every man his rod and they became serpents: but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods." The description of what the enchanters showed as the lies they told indicates the real nature of their enchantment. It was all a lie and a falsehood. See further 1591.

930 The Bible does not speak of the magicians as believers in the Divine mission of Moses and in the Lord of the Worlds Whom he represented; but we have mention of this in Rabbinical literature, according to which some Egyptians accompanied Moses when he departed from Egypt, which is corroborated by the Bible narrative: "And a mixed multitude also went up with them" (Exod. 12:38). "For the Egyptians, when the time fixed for Moses' descent from the mountain had expired, came in a body, forty thousand of them, accompanied by two Egyptian magicians, Yanos and Yambros, the same who imitated Moses in producing the signs and the plagues in Egypt" (Jewish Ency.). These two magicians are also mentioned in 2 Tim. 3:8, which is a further corroboration of the truth of the statement made in the Qur-ān and of the incompleteness of the Bible narrative.

933 The Jews are reported to have attributed certain of their misfortunes to the advent of the Holy Prophet, saying, "The prices have risen high and the rains have lessened" (Rz). Probably this referred to the great famine. The Egyptians, too, suffered from a famine and attributed their misfortune to Moses. They are, however, told that the misfortunes which they were made to suffer were due to their own evil deeds. The use of the word ṭáir, literally, a bird, to indicate ill-luck is significant, and refers to an Arab superstition. It is stated that the Arabs used to augur evil from the croaking of the crow and from the birds going to the left (LL).

934 Ṭūfán, according to Rgh, is originally every accident that besets men on all sides, and hence it is also applied to flood or deluge. According to TA, ṭūfán means death, or quick and widespread death; or death prevailing generally (LL). Hence it might mean either plague causing excessive death or flood. Bkh also gives الموت الكثير i.e. widespread death, as the true interpretation of ṭūfán.

935 The Bible mentions the following signs: (1) turning of the water into blood; (2) frogs; (3) lice; (4) flies; (5) plague upon beasts and men; (6) hail; (7) locusts; (8) darkness; (9) plague on the first-born. Of these the Qur-án mentions the first, second, third, and seventh in clear words; the fourth is included in the third; the fifth and the ninth are mentioned together as ṭūfín or the widespread death; the hail is not mentioned, but the destruction of fruits which was brought about by it is mentioned in v. 130; while instead of the darkness we have the drought in that verse, which seems to have been the actual affliction, and of which darkness may have been a result either metaphorically or actually, because of hurricanes and storms darkening the land, as is usually the case in time of drought. The two signs of v. 130, with the five mentioned here, are the seven signs which, with the two signs of the rod and the white hand, make up the nine signs of 17: 101 and 27: 12.

936 The reference is to the plague mentioned in the previous verse.

937 A reference to Exodus, ch. 8-11, will show that Pharaoh again and again broke his promise to let the children of Israel go—promises which he made on condition that a certain affliction should be removed.

136 Therefore We inflicted retribution on them and drowned them in the sea^a because they rejected Our signs and were heedless of them.

137 And We made the people who were deemed weak to inherit the eastern lands and the western ones which We had blessed; and the good word of your Lord was fulfilled in the children of Israel because they bore up (sufferings) patiently; and We utterly destroyed what Pharaoh and his people had wrought and what they built.⁹³⁸

138 And We made the children of Israel to pass the sea,^b then they came upon a people who kept to the worship of their idols. They said: O Moses! make for us a god as they have (their) gods. He said: Surely you are a people acting ignorantly.⁹³⁹

139 (As to) these, surely that about which they are shall be brought to naught and that which they do is vain.

140 He said: What! shall I seek for you a god other than Allah while He has made you excel (all) created things?⁹⁴⁰

141 And when We delivered you from Pharaoh's people who subjected you to severe torment,^c killing your sons and sparing your women,^d and in this there was a great trial from your Lord.

938 The land that was blessed is none other than the Holy Land, for which a Divine promise was given to Abraham. The words that follow show that there is a reference here to some promise given already: And the good word of your Lord was fulfilled in the children of Israel. It is the good word contained in Gen. 17:8. The eastern and the western lands might signify the eastern and the western tracts of the Holy Land, or the lands on the eastern and western sides of the Jordan.

939 That the Israelites came across idolatrous nations in their wanderings in Syria is too clear to need any proof. That they themselves had idolatrous leanings is shown by Exod. 32:1, "The people gathered themselves together unto Aaron and said unto him, Up, make us gods which shall go before us." Many other anecdotes show a similar tendency to idol-worship.

940 Moses' argument against idolatry is the one to which the Holy Qur-ān repeatedly calls attention, viz. that man, being as it were the lord of creation under God, and excelling the whole of creation, should not take objects lower than himself as his gods.

⁹⁴¹ The highest bliss of paradise is said to be the sight of the Divine Being. The words addressed to Moses, you cannot see Me, do not negative the sight of the Divine Being in the life after death. All that they do negative is the seeing of the Divine Being with the physical eye. Moses' request seems to have been based on the elders' demand spoken of in 2:55. The crumbling of the mountain is the same as the rumbling or earthquake of 2:55. I venture, however, another explanation. What Moses wanted to see was the great manifestation of Divine glory which was reserved for the Holy Prophet Muhammad (may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him). But he could not bear the sight which was at last vouchsafed to the Holy Prophet, for which see 53:13, 14 and 2381. In fact, both Moses and Jesus were not equal to the task which was reserved for the Holy Prophet Muhammad: hence it is that Jesus also said that he could not teach his followers all things, but that when the Comforter made his appearance he would guide them into all truth. That Moses was unequal to the Holy Prophet's task was clearly demonstrated by his falling down in a swoon when he beheld the Great Manifestation. The crumbling of the mountain signified that the Mosaic law would not stand for ever, and this significance is corroborated by the contrast between 942 Kataba means He (God) prescribed, appointed or ordained (TA-LL) and made obligatory (Msb-LL). There is nothing here or elsewhere in the Holy Qur-ān to show that Moses had received written tablets. On the other hand, it appears that Moses was spoken to by Allah, and therefore he received His commandments by revelation like other prophets. The words admonition of every kind and explanation of all things cannot be taken generally, but are limited by the requirements of the Israelitish people, for whom they were meant (Rz).

943 The meaning is that a time will come over the Israelites when they will become transgressors, i.e. they will not keep the commandments which are enjoined on them. This is also stated plainly in the books of Moses.

944 The word jasad means a body, as well as red or intensely yellow. The former meaning is the one generally adopted by the commentators, the significance being that the calf made was a mere body without a soul. Yet it was so made that it uttered a voice like the voice of a calf. The other meaning also affords a true description of the calf made, for being made of gold ornaments it was of a red or an intensely yellow colour.

945 سقط في أيديهم is a phrase which, by the consensus of opinion obtaining among lexicologists and commentators, means they repented or repented greatly; because, it is said, he who repents bites his hands in sorrow so that his hand is fallen upon by his teeth as the quarry is seized by a bird of prey (sabaqa meaning it fell down) (Zj, Q, etc.—LL). The phrase is said not to have been known before the Qur-ān (LT). Or nadm may be understood and the meaning may be, when regret was brought before them (Zj, -Rz). The Israelites' repentance, though mentioned first, was subsequent to Moses' return (2: 54). In fact, the order here is not historical, but one connecting the repentance with the sin, mentioning the events which brought about that repentance afterwards.

946 According to Kf عجلتم امرئكم is here equivalent to عجلتم عن امرئكم and he explains عجل عن الامر as meaning he left it (i.e. the affair) incomplete. But the meaning given to عجل منه by TA is he turned aside from him or it, and this is the meaning I adopt. It may be added, however, that 'ajila is also used as a transitive in the sense of sabaqa, and the meaning in that case would be, did you hasten (or hasten with regard to) the bidding of your Lord? The amr, or bidding, has in the latter case been explained variously as meaning the appointed time (I'Ab), or promise (Hasan), or wrath ('Ata); while Kalbi gives a long explanation, i.e. did you hasten with the worship of the calf before the bidding of your Lord should come to you? (Rz, AH).

947 Aaron's excuse and Moses' acceptance of it show clearly that Aaron was quite innocent, having had a share neither in making the calf nor in worshipping it. The Bible account which makes a righteous prophet of Allah guilty of the most heinous crime must be rejected as untrue. That forgiveness was not sought for any fault in connection with calf-worship is clear from the fact that Moses joins himself with Aaron in the prayer given in this verse. Forgiveness here, as frequently elsewhere in the Holy Qur-án, is equivalent to the Divine protection which every man should seek against the frailties and shortcomings of human nature. See 2194 for a full explanation of the word ghufr.

948 According to Exod. 32: 19 Moses "brake them beneath the mountain" in his anger, and Exod. ch. 34 describes how the tablets were renewed. The Qur-án differs from this narrative. It does not state that the tablets were broken up or renewed, but mentions their being taken up by Moses after his anger had calmed and while the writing was still on them. It appears strange, indeed, that a prophet like Moses should have been so overpowered by wrath as to have broken the tablets upon which were written down Divine communications, therefore the Bible narrative must be rejected. Its absurdity is to be found in the fact that tablets of stone "written with the finger of God," by merely being cast out of his hand, as the Bible says, could not have been so broken as to make the writing illegible; therefore, the Quranic statement, which contradicts the Bible, is the correct one.

949 Exod. 24: 1 speaks of Moses having taken up seventy elders of Israel along with him, though they were forbidden to "come near the Lord," and on this occasion Moses was in the mountain forty days and forty nights (Exod. 24: 18). Although he is also spoken of in the Bible as having gone into the mountain after the incident of the calf-worship and to have remained there for forty days and forty nights (Exod. 34: 28), the allusion in the Qur-án is to the first incident; Moses' second visit is not mentioned at all in the Qur-án.

949A No attribute of the Divine Being receives such prominence in the Holy Qur-ān as the attribute of mercy. Evil there is in the world, and the evil-doers must receive their due, but mark the contrast: And My mercy encompasses all things. The truth is that even chastisement is a phase of Divine mercy, because it seeks not to punish, but to correct the evil-doer. Divine mercy is great indeed, but it is specially ordained for those who guard against evil and who believe in the Divine communications, the followers of the Holy Prophet in particular, as the concluding words of this verse read in conjunction with the next verse show.

950 For ummi, meaning one who neither writes nor reads a writing, see 117. Hence the Arabs are called an ummi people, and the ummi prophet is either the prophet of the ummi people (i.e. the Arabs) because he was like them (i.e. did not know reading and writing) or he was so called because he himself did not know reading and writing (lgh). But according to some the Prophet is called ummi because he came from the umm-ul-Qurā, i.e. Mecca, which is the Metropolis of Arabia (MB, Rz under 3: 74). Thus the ummi prophet conveys any one of the following three significances, viz. (1) one who knows not reading or writing; (2) one from among the Arabs; and (3) one coming from Mecca.

The suggestion of Rodwell that the word ummi means gentile in the sense of a non-Jewish or heathen people is not supported by any recognized authority. See 2: 78, where the Jews are called Ummi: "And there are among them illiterates (Ar. ummi) who know not the book." LL, it is true, gives gentile as the signification of ummi, but a reference to the authorities he quotes clearly shows that if the word gentile expresses the meaning of ummi, it does so in the general sense of one belonging to a gens or clan; therefore Lane's conclusion that in a tropical and secondary sense ummi means heathen is entirely without foundation. Bq states in 3: 19 that by ummi are meant a people not having a kitāb, but even if kitāb there means a Book or scripture and not writing, one not having a Book or a revealed scripture would mean an Arab, because all the people with whom the Arabs came in contact had their scriptures. Similarly, the contrast implied in Lane's statement that the Holy Prophet Muhammad is called an ummi, meaning a gentile, as distinguished from an Israelite, is that he was an Arab or an Ishmaelite as distinguished from an Israelite, and the reference in the adoption of this title is, no doubt, to "thy brethren" of Deut. 18: 18. As for the fact that the Holy Prophet was unable to read or write before revelation came to him, there can be no two opinions. On this point the Qur-án is conclusive: "And you did not recite before it any book, nor did you transcribe one with your right hand" (29: 48). There is a difference of opinion, however, as to whether he could read or write after revelation. Without entering into the details of this controversy I may remark that, while there is ground for believing that he could read, he still had his letters written by others. It should be remembered that this description of the Prophet occurs in a chapter which is undoubtedly entirely Meccan, and hence the suggestion that the word ummi relating to the Prophet does not occur in any Meccan Sura carries no weight, and there is no reason to believe that this verse was added at Medina.

951 There are many prophecies regarding the advent of the Holy Prophet both in the Old and the New Testaments. The Torah and the Gospel are specially mentioned here because Moses and Jesus were respectively the first and the last of the Israelite prophets. Deut. 18: 15-18 speaks very clearly of the raising of a prophet (who shall be the like of Moses) from among the brethren of the Israelites, i.e. the Ishmaelites or the Arabs, while Deut. 33: 2 speaks of the shining forth of the manifestation of the Lord, i.e. his coming in full glory "from Mount Paran." The Gospel is full of the prophecies of the advent of the Holy Prophet; Matt. 13: 31, Matt. 21: 33-44, Mark 12: 1-11, Luke 20: 9-18, where the Lord of the vineyard comes after the son (i.e. Jesus) is maltreated, John 1: 22, John 14: 16 John 14: 26 all contain such prophecies.

952 Noldeke's supposition that there is a reference to the Anṣār, i.e. the helpers of Medina, here, and Rodwell's conclusion that hence the verse must have been added at Medina, are not entitled to serious consideration. See introduction to this chapter.

953 We are told here that the Divine kingdom, which is really one, shall have but one law, so that all men should again be one. The universality of the Holy Prophet's mission really dates from the first message he received, because in the opening chapter, which is undoubtedly one of the earliest revelations, Allah is spoken of, not as the Lord of Arabs, but as the Lord of the whole world and of all nations. In vain would any one search the pages of any other sacred book to discover a message of this nature by any other prophet in the world. In fact, every prophet was sent to one people, his mission being limited to the reformation and unification of one nation; but Muhammad (may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him) came to unite all nations into one and to blot out all limitations of nationality and colour. That he was successful in this mission the history of Islam amply testifies. As soon as a man enters the fold of Islam his particular nationality sinks into insignificance before the vaster conception of humanity for which Islam opens the mind. It may be said, in fact, that a Muslim's nationality is universal, and Islam is the religion of all Humanity—not the religion of a particular nation. The unlearned Arab mind could not entertain so vast a conception of religion; it was the word of God which caused a revolution in the history of religion, for no prophet before him had ever entertained the idea of a religion for all Humanity. Even Christ said to a non-Israelite woman that he was "not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Matt. 15 : 24); and being pressed again, only answered that "It is not meet to take the children's bread and to cast it to dogs" (26). It is Muhammad's message alone that speaks of all men alike as the children of the heavenly father, the Lord of the worlds. The invidious distinction of children and dogs is not known to the religion of Islam.

162 But those who were unjust among them changed it for a saying other than that which had been spoken to them,* so We sent upon them a pestilence from heaven because they were unjust.^b

164 And when a party of them said: Why do you admonish a people whom Allah would destroy or whom He would chastise with a severe chastisement? they said: To be free from blame before your Lord, and that haply they may guard (against evil).

955 Lexicologists recognize a difference between khalf and khalaf, the former being applied to evil and the latter to good, whether a son or a generation (Q, TA-LL). Sometimes the two words are interchangeable.

956 First they commit a crime for the frail good of this life, saying that they will be forgiven, then persist in their evil course, and when a similar occasion arises, they again return to the old crimes.

957 The stories built upon these simple words by some commentators must be rejected. The words simply relate the experience of the elders of Israel when they stood at the foot of the mountain which rose above them. There was a severe earthquake, which is referred to in v. 155, causing them to think that the mountain would fall down upon them. According to L.A., the primary significance of natq is za'sa', which means the moving, agitating, shaking, or putting a thing into a state of commotion; or any vehement moving, agitating, or shaking (LL). Hence you say زعزعت الریح الشجرة meaning that the wind shook the tree (TA-LI). Thus the use of nataqná instead of rafa'ná clearly explains that the mountain was shaken violently by an earthquake while the elders of Israel stood at its foot. IJ also notes this significance of the word, for he gives harraka (meaning he shook violently) as the equivalent of nataqa, in the saying nataqa-ni. You also say ما ننتق برجله meaning he does not shake his foot (IJ). Natq has also another meaning, viz. taking up from the roots. Even if that signification be accepted, the use of the word in reference to the mountain does not show that the whole of the mountain was taken up from the roots. You say امرأة ناتق i.e. a woman giving birth to many children, or throwing out child after child, and the use of the word natq in reference to the mountain seems to carry a similar significance, i.e. a volcanic eruption causing it to throw out stones and fiery matter, along with which there was an earthquake.

958 There is a report to the effect that the promise referred to was taken from all the descendants of Adam when he was first created (Rz). But a very large number of commentators have discredited this, because the verse does not mention the bringing forth of descendants from Adam, but from the children of Adam, and this seems clearly to refer to every human being as he comes into existence. The evidence is, therefore, that which human nature itself affords (Rz). It is, in fact, the same evidence which is elsewhere spoken of as being afforded by human nature as in "the nature made by Allah in which He has made men" (30 : 80).

176 And if We had pleased, We would certainly have exalted him thereby; but he clung to the earth⁹⁶¹ and followed his low desire, so his parable is as the parable of the dog: if you attack him he lolls out his tongue, and if you leave him alone he lolls out his tongue; this is the parable of the people who reject Our communications; therefore relate the narrative that they may reflect.

177 Evil is the likeness of the people who reject Our communications and are unjust to their own souls.

959 Atba'ahu (from tabi'a, meaning he followed, or went behind) signifies here he overtook him (TA-LI).

960 Balaam, Umayya bin Abi Salt, Abû 'Âmir, and all the hypocrites, have been respectively indicated as the persons to whom reference is made, but the best explanation is supplied by Qatada, who says: It speaks generally of every one to whom guidance is brought but he turns aside from it (Rz). This view is corroborated by what is stated at the conclusion of the parable in v. 176, this is the parable of the people who reject Our communications. Therefore the statement made in v. 175 and in the opening words of v. 176 is a general statement, and does not refer to any particular person.

961 Earth here stands for all that is earthly and mean.

962 The concluding words explain what goes before. Many men and jinn are created for hell, but they are none other than the heedless ones who do not care for what is said. They have been given hearts, but they do not use them to understand the truth; they have been given eyes, but they do not employ them to see the truth; they have been given ears, but they turn a deaf ear to truth. This has been stated to show that Allah has not created them differently from others, but they themselves do not use the faculties which Allah has granted them. It is the misuse of their faculties which brings them to hell.

963 By الاسماء الحسنی are meant names expressing the most excellent attributes of the Divine Being (Rz). These attributes are mentioned in the Holy Qur-ān. By calling on Him thereby is not meant that these names are to be repeated on a rosary; this practice was never adopted by the Holy Prophet. All that is meant is that man should always keep the Divine attributes before his mind, endeavouring to possess those attributes.

964 Yulhidūn is from alḥada, meaning he deviated from the right course with respect to a thing; hence الحد في الحرم means, he desecrated the ḥaram and violated its sanctity (LL). This meaning also suits يلحدون في اسمائه as in this verse. According to Rgh, الحد في اسماء الله means a deviation from the right course with respect to the names of Allah, or violation of the sanctity of His names, and it is of two kinds: firstly, giving Him an improper or inaccurate attribute; and secondly, to interpret His attributes in a manner which does not befit Him. Rz mentions three kinds: (1) giving the holy names of Allah to other beings; (2) giving Allah names which do not befit Him; (3) calling on Allah by names of which the meaning is unknown. Polytheism of every kind is, therefore, a violation of the sanctity of the Divine names.

965 The significance of the word kaid (translated here as scheme) is much misunderstood, like that of makr. According to Lā, kaid indicates the exercising of art, ingenuity, cunning or skill in the management or ordering of affairs, with excellent consideration or deliberation, and ability to manage with subtlety according to his own free will (LL). Thus it is used in a good as well as in a bad sense. But the good signification of the word is made further clear. Thus LL has kāda (infinitive noun kaid), meaning he contrived, devised or plotted a thing, whether good or bad (Lā). And again kāda (arist yakidu) means he worked or laboured at or upon any thing; he laboured, took pains, exerted himself, strove or struggled to do, executed or accomplished any thing; he laboured, strove or struggled with any thing to prevail or overcome or to effect an object (S, Lā-LL). The following verse of AL-Ajjaj, quoted by JL, under the word amr, throws a flood of light on the true meaning of kaid: فارتدت : أزرد ها بکیده : ازرد

إلى أمار و أمار مدتي which is thus translated: When He (meaning God) brings it (namely my soul) by His skilful ordering and His power and it is thus brought . . . to a set time and to the time of the end of my appointed period. Here the word kaid is, and must be rendered, not by stratagem or deceit, but by skilful ordering. The word is also used to signify harb or fight, as in a report لم يلق كيدا which means, he did not meet with any fighting.

966 That is, the hour with which they are threatened as being the hour of their doom. The word sā'at or the hour is used in the Holy Qur-ān to indicate both the doom of the guilty in this life and the time when a perfect manifestation of rewards and punishments will take place in the hereafter.

967 The simplicity and nobility of this statement as indicating the mission of a prophet is unsurpassed. He gives glad news of triumph to those who believe, warns the evil-doers of the evil consequences of their acts in this life as well as in the next, but he denies himself the possession of the Divine powers. The Arabs were a superstitious people, and if the Holy Prophet had so desired, as I have already pointed out, he could have claimed the possession of great supernatural powers. But truth stated in the simplest words is the essence of his message. Many anecdotes are related wherein people would ascribe to him Divine powers, but he destroyed all such vain suggestions by a plain denial. It is stated that on the day of the death of his son Ibrâhîm a total eclipse of the sun was witnessed. Some people began to whisper that the darkening of the sun was due to the death of the Prophet's son; but he was too sincere to allow men to remain under such a delusion, although it was calculated to enhance his dignity in the eyes of his followers. He ascended the pulpit and thus addressed the people: "Surely the sun and the moon are two signs of Allah; they do not get eclipsed in consequence of the death of anybody nor on account of any one's life, so when you see this then call on Allah, and magnify Him and pray to Him and give alms" (Bkh).

968 Sakn originally signifies being still, motionless, or quiet, but سكن إليه means he trusted to or relied upon it so as to be easy or quiet in mind (S, Q-I-L) or he inclined to it, or he became familiar with it (Msb-L-L). Kf and Bq also concur in this meaning.

969 The story that this verse refers to Adam and Eve and their naming their son as Abdul Hâris, hâris being a name of the devil, has been rejected by all reliable commentators (Rz). The strangest thing of all is that hâris is a name which is said to be most true, according to a saying of the Holy Prophet in Abû Dâûd (Mishkat, Ch. Asâmi), and therefore it cannot be a name of the devil. The words of the verse are too general to be transported into the story of Adam and Eve. It describes the condition of man in general and refers to the evidence of his nature, for when in distress he always turns to Allah, but when in ease he goes after other gods or the low desires of his own soul. The verse clearly blames the idolatrous Arabs for associating others with Allah, as is shown by the use of the plural number in v. 190 and the verses that follow.

970 Compare this with 2:6 and the conclusion is evident that both verses speak of the hard-hearted ones who are benefited neither by warning nor by admonition.

971 'Ibād is the plural of 'abd, which means a servant or a slave, and applies to the human being as being a bondman to his Creator. But as servants is not a designation properly applicable to idols, I render it as being in a state of subjugation.

972 There is a clear prophecy here that not only will the power of the opponents be frustrated in the coming struggles when they shall find no help from their gods, but those very gods, i.e. the idols, shall not be able to save themselves and will be annihilated.

973 The primary significance of nazaghahû is he censured him and charged him with a vice and spoke evil of him (TA). It also signifies the sowing of dissensions, and it is used in this sense in 12:100. According to Rgh the word signifies entering upon an affair with the object of corrupting it. It is also said to mean disquieting, disturbing or agitating (Rz). I prefer the first signification, taking nazgh as equivalent to false imputation, the devil in this case, as frequently in the Holy Qur-ân, standing for the devilish enemies who spread all kinds of false reports concerning the Holy Prophet, against which he is told to seek refuge in Allah.

This significance is quite in consonance with what is said in the previous verse, where the Prophet is enjoined to take to forgiveness and turn aside from the ignorant. Or, if agitation is taken to be the meaning, it may mean the agitation which upsets the mind when a man is in anger (Rz).

It should be added here that a saying of the Holy Prophet clearly speaks of the devil, who insinuates evil into the mind, as having submitted himself (Ar. aslama) in his case (Rz). Hence to interpret nazh here as meaning the suggestion or the stirring of the devil is incorrect.

974 Târif means a visitation (TA-LI), originally going round. The visitation of the devil means the happening of any grievous incident or the coming of an affliction from the hands of the devil, or the wicked man acting in opposition to the righteous. Or the devil's visitation may signify anger which blinds a man, for târif signifies unsoundness of mind, anger or insinuation (Rz).

975 Being endowed with insight, they see their way out of the affliction, or the meaning is that anger does not blind them.

976 That is, the brethren of the devils, or the devil's human associates.

977 It is an error to suppose that the mention of the words morning and evening shows that the five times of prayer were not yet fixed. The times of prayer had long been settled. The direction is here given in general terms to continue to glorify the Lord at all times.

978 The recital of this verse is followed by an actual prostration, so that the physical state of the body may be in perfect agreement with the spiritual condition of the mind.

Abstract:

- Sec. 1, 2. The battle of Badr.
- Sec. 3. The way to success.
- Sec. 4. Muslims shall be made guardians of the sacred Mosque.
- Sec. 5. The battle of Badr as a sign of the Prophet's truth.
- Sec. 6. Success did not depend on numbers.
- Sec. 7. Enemy's strength weakened.
- Sec. 8. Peace to be secured by strength.
- Sec. 9. Muslims should be prepared to meet overwhelming numbers.
- Sec. 10. Relations between Muslims and non-Muslims.

Title and subject-matter.

As this chapter chiefly confines itself to the first battle of the Muslims, the question of what is acquired from the enemy in war is settled here, and hence this chapter goes under the name of Al-Anfāl, which is improperly translated as meaning Spoils, but which really signifies accessions or additions; therefore I have adopted a different title from that which is in general use in English translations.

The chapter opens with certain statements necessary to a preparation for the battle, while the second section deals with the battle itself—i.e. the battle of Badr. The third section points out the way to success, the essence of which is obedience and faithfulness to the Holy Prophet, which the companions unwaveringly exhibited in this battle, under the most trying circumstances. The fourth section refers to the successful issue of the war. After pointing out the plans of the opponents against the Prophet, it states that the Muslims shall be made the guardians of the Sacred Mosque at Mecca, i.e. the Ka'ba, and that unbelievers shall no more have any access to it. The fifth refers to the great value of the success in the battle of Badr as a sign of the Prophet's truth; for, although the Muslims were only a third of the number of their opponents, they actually marched forth to victory without being armed, and the efficiency of their small force, which consisted mostly of old men and raw and inexperienced youths, was nothing as compared with the strong and sturdy Meccan warriors. The sixth indicates that success did not depend on numbers and weapons; while the seventh proceeds to show that the battle had completely undermined the enemy's strength, referring in conclusion to the treaties of peace which the Arab tribes now sought to establish with the Muslims, but which later on they frequently violated. The eighth section directs the Muslims to be ready to deal a blow and to be well equipped, because they could only hope to secure peace by strength and readiness. The ninth informs them that they will have to fight against even ten times their number, and thus really gives them to understand that they must be prepared to meet overwhelming numbers. The last section explains how far those Muslims Connection and date of revelation.

The battle of Badr, which forms the chief topic of this chapter, is frequently referred to as the furqân or the Distinction in the Holy Qur-ân, and has already been referred to as such in the third chapter. In the historical order of events this chapter should have taken its place after the second chapter; but owing to its peculiar nature as affording proof of the truth of the Prophet's mission, it finds its proper place after a full discussion of prophethood in the last chapter, and thus affords an illustration in the Prophet's own life of that discomfiture which overtakes the opponents of prophets which is illustrated by reference to the histories of earlier prophets in the last chapter. It will thus be seen that in any rational arrangement of the Holy Qur-ân there is no other place for this chapter, the major portion of which was undoubtedly revealed either immediately before or immediately after the battle of Badr, i.e. in the second year of Hejira; but the concluding verses of the seventh section and the eighth section, containing as they do clear references to the repeated violation of agreements by the unbelievers, must have been revealed during the period preceding the conquest of Mecca, or possibly in that immediately following, as these violations ultimately led to the declaration of immunity which finds expression in the chapter that follows. Verses 30-35, which are supposed by some to have been revealed at Mecca, are really references to past history, to which attention is called to encourage the Muslims under the new difficulties; moreover, there is no evidence that they were not revealed at Medina.

979 Anfâl is the plural of nafl, which means an addition or accession to what is due (AH). According to Zuhri, nafl and nâfilah indicate what accedes to or exceeds the original (Rz). TA gives the same significance. Hence it means a voluntary gift by way of alms or as a good work or a gift, or a deed beyond what is incumbent or obligatory (LL). There is much difference of opinion among the commentators as to what is meant by accessions (anfâl) here. The most generally received opinion is that it means property acquired during the war, being in this sense synonymous with ghantmat (I'Ab, Mjd, 'Ik, Qt, Dk-AH). Some say that nafl is what is given to the warrior in addition to his share (IL), but even better than that is another explanation also traced to I'Ab, who says that by anfâl is meant any thing that becomes separated from the polytheists (i.e. those who fought against the Muslims), falling into the hands of the Muslims without fighting, such as an animal, or a slave, or any property (Rz). This differs from fai, because, though fai is obtained without war, the condition there is that

2 Those only are believers whose hearts become full of fear when Allah is mentioned, and when His communications are recited to them they increase them in faith, and in their Lord do they trust,

3 Those who keep up prayer and spend (benevolently) out of what We have given them.

4 These are the believers in truth; they shall have from their Lord exalted grades and forgiveness and an honourable sustenance.

it must have been obtained after there has been preparation for fighting and the enemy has laid down his arms.

Now, the question is as to what is meant by accessions being for Allah and for the Apostle. According to Bq, the meaning is that the Apostle shall distribute them as Allah commands him. If therefore anfāl is taken as synonymous with ghanimat, the command of Allah regarding its distribution is contained in v. 41. And if anfāl is taken as meaning the additional share of a warrior, or property acquired in war without any fighting or even any preparation for fighting, the distribution of it would be effected by the Prophet as Allah directs him under the particular circumstances. And even if the words be taken to mean that such property was the property of Allah and His Apostle, the meaning would be that it was to be considered as public property, which could be used in the advancement of the public cause. Such property did not become the personal property of the Holy Prophet.

980 The particle kamā, meaning as, at the beginning of the verse has been explained variously by the commentators, one explanation being that it has reference to what is said in the opening words of the previous verse (Rz). But a reference to the concluding words of that verse makes the explanation simpler still. Exalted grades and honourable provision are promised there to believers, and here we are told that it was to bring about a fulfilment of that promise that the Prophet was made to go forth to battle.

The circumstances of the battle of Badr have been misunderstood, even by some Muslims. Christian opinion on the point is summed up in Palmer's note: "The occasion alluded to was one when Muhammad had made preparations for attacking an unarmed caravan on its way from Syria to Mecca, when Abū Sufian, who was in charge of it, sent to Mecca and obtained an escort of nearly a thousand men; many of Muhammad's followers wished to attack the caravan only, but the Prophet and his immediate followers were for throwing themselves on the escort."

While the several incidents mentioned here are separately true, there is a misconception as to their relation to each other. It is true that a caravan was returning from Syria, and an army had marched forth from Mecca; it is also true that some of the Muslims wished that they should encounter the caravan and not face the Meccan force. Had the Holy Prophet desired to plunder the caravan, he would have done it long before Abu Sufian could obtain succour from Mecca. Medina was situated at a distance of thirteen days' journey from Mecca, so that if the Holy Prophet had actually an idea of plundering the caravan when it approached Medina, succour could not have reached Abu Sufian in less than a month, even if he had been apprised of the Holy Prophet's intentions and had sent for aid from Mecca. And why should the Prophet have waited all this while and not plundered the caravan before the help reached Abu Sufian?

Badr, where the encounter took place, lies at a distance of three days' journey from Medina. Here, marching towards each other, the two armies met. This shows that the Meccan army had long been on its way to Medina, while the Muslims were as yet quite unprepared. The enemy had marched forth for ten days and the Muslims only for three days when the two forces encountered each other, which shows clearly that the Muslims had turned out to take the defensive against an invading force. The Prophet had never any design of plundering the caravan, for if he had any such design he could have carried it out long before the Meccan force had approached Medina, and his hands would thus have been strengthened to meet a powerful enemy. It is quite clear that the Holy Prophet only marched forth when the enemy had already travelled over three-fourths of the way to Medina, and the caravan had left Medina far behind. It is also known that a party of the believers were averse to fighting. They could not have been averse if they had had to encounter only an unarmed caravan. What is said in the next verso makes it clearer still, they went forth as if they were being driven to death, because they knew that they were going to meet an enemy not only treble in numbers, but also much more powerful and efficient.

981 The two parties referred to were the unarmed caravan of the Quraish going to Meccan and the armed force of the Quraish that had started from Mecca. Naturally, some of the Muslims desired that their encounter should take place with the unarmed Quraish caravan, which was now a long way from Medina, and not with the powerful army which was advancing against Medina.

982 By His words is meant here the fulfilment of His words, because the Prophet had 983, see next page.

declared at Mecca, long before the fight actually took place, that an encounter would take place between the Muslims and the Quraish, in which the former would be victorious. These prophecies had hitherto been laughed at by the Meccans, because they could never imagine that their power could be broken by such an insignificant community. Of the many prophecies which will be noted in their proper place, I may refer here to one which the Holy Prophet himself repeated aloud in the field. J'Ab says that the Holy Prophet prayed on the day of Badr, saying: "O Allah! I beseech Thee to fulfill Thy promise and Thy compact! O Allah! If Thou pleasest (to destroy this body) Thou shalt not be worshipped (on earth)!" On this Abu Bakr held his hand and said: "This is sufficient." Then the Holy Prophet came forth and he cried: "Soon shall the hosts be routed and they shall turn their backs" (Bkh). Now these concluding words occur in 54:45, which is one of the earliest Meccan revelations, and the incident shows that the importance of the battle of Badr lay in the many prophecies which by their fulfilment bore witness to the truth of the Holy Prophet.

A prophecy regarding this occurs also in Ismaih. Under the heading, The burden upon Arabia, in Isa. 21:13, we read: "The inhabitants of the land of Tema brought water to him that was thirsty; they prevented with their bread him that fled. For they fled from the swords, from the drawn sword, and from the bent bow and from the grievousness of war. For thus hath the Lord said unto me, Within a year, according to the years of an hireling, and all the glory of Kedar shall fail: and the residue of the number of archers, the mighty men of the children of Kedar, shall be diminished" (Isa. 21:14-17). The one that fled, and whose flight has become the most notable event in history, being the basis of an era, is no other than the Holy Prophet, and the battle of Badr, fought after the first year of Hejira, no doubt dealt a blow to the power of the Quraish and diminished the number of their archers. In the Holy Qur-án we have, instead of this, cutting off the root of the unbelievers; for here were slain the seven great leaders of the Quraish.

983 Compare 3:123, where the coming down of angels in the battle of Uhud is mentioned. Also see 485, which explains the object of the coming of the angels. It is nowhere stated in the Holy Qur-án that the angels actually fought, but here, as in 3:125, we are plainly told that the angels were sent down to bear good news of victory and to ease the hearts of the Muslims. Here, however, we are further told (v. 11) that, as a result of the coming of the angels, calm fell upon the Muslims, their hearts being strengthened and their footsteps being steadied, and (v. 12) that while the believers were thus made firm, terror was cast into the hearts of the unbelievers. Hence it is that the number of angels corresponds with the strength of the enemy force in each case, their number being one thousand in Badr, where the enemy had a like force. For the other two occasions see 485.

984 Compare 25:25, which is a prophecy about the events of this remarkable battle: "On the day when the heaven shall burst asunder with the clouds and the angels shall be sent down a sending." The rainfall brought many advantages to the Muslims, for which see next foot-note.

985 Before the rain fell the Muslim position was very weak. The enemy had the command of the water and the Muslims were in a low sandy place. Therefore there were some who had misgivings, which, as is said here, were due to the devil's uncleanness. The enemy having taken possession of the drinking-water, the Muslims feared being troubled by thirst, which is called the devil of the desert—Q. شيطان الفلا العطش The rain strengthened the position of the Muslims and consequently comforted their hearts. This was a purification, for after the rainfall they all became certain of the Divine help and so of their triumph over the enemy.

986 The last sentence is apparently addressed to the fighting believers. فَوْقَ الْأَعْنَاق means above the necks, and striking above the necks is either the same as striking the necks, or it signifies the striking of the heads, because what is above the neck is the head. And the striking of the finger-tips indicates the striking of the hands which held weapons to kill the Muslims (Rz). The two phrases respectively signify the killing of the enemy and disabling him so as to render him unfit for taking further part in fighting.

987 That is, taste this torment in this life as an indication of the chastisement of fire in the next life.

988 Zahafa originally means he walked or marched little by little, and applies to the crawling along of a child when unable to walk. Then zahf came to mean an army or military force marching little by little towards the enemy, or heavily by reason of their multitude and force (TA-LI). It came to be applied generally to war, as in a report فر من

الفر quoted by TA, which means he fled from war (LL).

18 This,⁹⁹¹ and that Allah is the weakener of the struggle of the unbelievers.

989 Ram-y carries a number of significances, throwing, flinging, casting, assailing, smiting, shooting, going forth, etc. (I.L.). It is used in connection with fighting, and therefore I adopt smiting as its equivalent, which, like its original, makes the meaning clear without seeking an understood object. The first part of the verse refers to the Muslims generally—You did not slay them, but it was Allah who slew, the address being in the plural; and the second part being in the singular is understood as referring to the Holy Prophet. Otherwise there is no difference between the two passages. The Muslims slew the enemy, but it is affirmed that really they did not slay, but it was Allah who slew them; the meaning apparently being that Allah's hand was working in the battle, which is also clear from the fact that three hundred, mostly raw, young men, equipped with neither horses nor arms, prevailed against a thousand of the most renowned warriors. The same meaning must be attached to the other passage relating to the smiting of the enemy. Whether the Prophet actually cast a handful of pebbles at the enemy, which discomfited the latter, is a different question. It is sufficient to learn that a powerful enemy was discomfited by about a third of its number, while from the point of view of efficiency and equipment even ten men from among the Muslims were not equal to one of the enemy. It was Allah's hand that slew them, and it was His hand that smote them and ultimately put them to rout. That the Prophet actually cast a handful of dust at the enemy is in no way inconsistent with this explanation.

990 Iblá, though ordinarily meaning trying, and proving, like balá and ibtalá (two other verbs from the same root), means here, by the unanimous opinion of all commentators, the conferring of a favour (Rz). The lexicons also give it the same significance. Thus I.L.

: إبْلَاءٌ (TA), or بَلَاءٌ حَسَنًا (S), means God did to him a good deed (TA). And hence it is said in the Qur-án (8:17) وليلِيَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ مِنْهُ بَلَاءٌ حَسَنًا (TA), i.e. and that He might confer upon the believers a great benefit, or favour or blessing (Bd), or a good gift from Him. The good gift or the benefit spoken of here is a victory which strengthened the foundations of Islam and dealt a death-blow to the evil designs of those who were determined to exterminate it, as is plainly said in the next verse.

991 This here stands for a sentence, viz. this was the Divine purpose in bringing about this encounter.

992 It is related that when the Quraish left Mecca to attack the Muslims, they held to the curtains of the Ka'ba and prayed thus: "O Allah! assist the best of the two forces and the most rightly directed of the two parties and the most honoured of the two groups and the most excellent of the two religions." Others say that Abu Jahl prayed in the field of battle, saying: "O Allah! whoever of us is most actuated to cut the ties of relationship and most wicked, destroy him to-morrow morning" (Rz). Palmer's remark in this connection, that the Quraish prayed in the above-given words "when they were threatened with an attack from Muhammad," is opposed to historical facts. Indeed, it is utterly absurd to speak of Muhammad threatening the Quraish, when the Muslims did not constitute even a hundredth part of the whole population of Arabia, which was now up against them, and the Quraish were doing everything to deal a death-blow to the cause of Islam.

993 Dábbah means literally any thing that walks (or creeps or crawls) upon the earth (S-LL); hence any animal, or a beast, or any living thing. Note that the deaf and the dumb signify those who are spiritually deaf and dumb—those who do not understand.

994 Faith or submission to Allah is life and unbelief is death (Sudi-Rz). By the expression that which gives you life some understand the Qur-án is meant, others take it to mean jihád, or exertion in the cause of truth (Rz). All these explanations really signify one and the same thing.

995 By heart is meant the desires of the heart. The Divine intervention is the cutting off of those desires (Rz). The faithful are enjoined to be quick in responding to the call of the Prophet, and not to indulge in worldly desires, for these may soon be cut off. Or the meaning is that they must respond to the call of the Prophet lest, having deprived themselves of one occasion of doing good, the heart should be hardened, and as a punishment for the first rejection, Allah may so turn it that it may not turn to good at all, but take pleasure in wickedness.

25 And fear an affliction which may not smite those of you in particular who are unjust;⁹⁹⁶ and know that Allah is severe in requiting (evil).

26 And remember when you were few, deemed weak in the land, fearing lest people might carry you off by force,⁹⁹⁷ but He sheltered you and strengthened you with His aid and gave you of the good things that you may give thanks.

emigrated to Medina, the Prophet was left alone at Mecca. Various plans were suggested at a great meeting of the Quraish chiefs in their town hall; the plan ultimately adopted was that the Prophet should be slain, a number of youths belonging to different tribes thrusting their swords into his body at one and the same time, so that one man or tribe should not have the charge laid against him or it. It was with this object that the Prophet's house was surrounded, but he got away unnoticed (Ib Hsh). The Divine plan was that the unbelievers should see the downfall of their power at the hands of the Prophet.

999 That this was an empty boast is confirmed by the fact that, although the Holy Qur-ān repeatedly challenged them to produce anything like it, they could not produce even the like of its shortest chapter.

1000 The punishment was to overtake them when the Holy Prophet was no more among them, i.e. after his flight from Mecca. But even then the punishment might be averted if they asked for forgiveness.

1001 The unbelievers are here declared not to be the true guardians of the Sacred Mosque, because while that Mosque was an emblem of the pure unity of the Divine Being, its name having been clearly associated with monotheism since the time of Abraham, the unbelievers who now posed as its guardians were idolaters. So they are told that they are unfit to hold its guardianship, which would henceforth be made over to a people who guard against evil, i.e. the Muslims. The words contain a prophecy not only as to the deprivation of the unbelieving Quraish of the guardianship of the Ka'ba, but also as to the passing of the guardianship into the hands of the Muslims.

SECTION 5

The Battle of Badr as a Sign of the Prophet's Truth

38-40. Fighting necessary to establish freedom of religion. 41. One-fifth of what is acquired to be devoted to charitable purposes. 42-44. How the encounter served as a sign.

38 Say to those who disbelieve if they desist, that which is past shall be forgiven to them; and if they return,¹⁰⁰³ then what happened to the ancients has already passed.¹⁰⁰⁴

39 And fight with them until there is no more persecution and religion should be only for Allah; but if they desist, then surely Allah sees what they do.¹⁰⁰⁵

قُلْ لِلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا إِن يَنْتَهُوا يُغْفَرْ
لَهُمْ مَا قَدْ سَلَفَ وَإِنْ يَعُودُوا فَقَدْ
مَصَّتْ سُنَّتُ الْأَوَّلِينَ
وَقَاتِلُوهُمْ حَتَّى لَا تَكُونَ فِتْنَةٌ
لِلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا فَإِنْ انتَهُوا فَاتَّ
اللَّهُ بِمَا يَعْمَلُونَ بَصِيرٌ

1002 The meaning is either that the good men might be separated from the wicked, and then the wicked should all be cast into hell, or that the good property might be separated from the worthless property of the unbelievers and the latter should all be wasted in opposition to the Muslims without bringing any gain to its possessors (Rz, AH).

1003 Desisting and returning both relate to fighting against the Muslims, not to unbelief, because the unbelievers could not be said to return to unbelief. They had gone away from Badr quite discomfited, and they were told that if they desisted from fighting they would be forgiven, but if they returned to fighting they would meet with the doom of former peoples. Notwithstanding all that the Muslims had suffered, the Prophet was still told to forgive his enemies if they only desisted from fighting against his followers. This is the one and only condition of forgiveness.

1004 The meaning is that they could read their own doom in the doom of those with whom Allah had dealt previously in similar circumstances. Bq interprets سنة الأولين as being equivalent to سنتنا في الأولين Compare 18 : 55, which states that the unbelievers only wait "that what happened to the ancients should overtake them."

1005 That is, if they desist from fighting, the Muslims must do the same, such being the significance of Allah sees what they do; for Allah rewards men according to their deeds.

40 And if they turn back, then know that Allah is your Patron; most excellent is the Patron and most excellent the Helper.¹⁰⁰⁶

وَإِنْ تَوَلَّوْا فَاعْلَمُوا أَنَّ اللَّهَ مَوْلَكُمْ
نِعْمَ الْمَوْلَىٰ وَنِعْمَ النَّصِيرُ

PART X

41 And know that whatever thing you acquire in war, a fifth of it is for Allah and for the Apostle and for the near of kin and the orphans and the needy and the wayfarer, if you believe in Allah and in that which We revealed to Our servant, on the day of distinction, the day on which the two parties met; and Allah has power over all things;¹⁰⁰⁷

وَاعْلَمُوا أَنَّكُمْ عَمَلُكُمْ مِنْ شَيْءٍ فَإِنَّ
اللَّهَ خُمُسُهُ وَلِلرَّسُولِ وَلِذِي الْقُرْبَىٰ
وَالْيَتَامَىٰ وَالْمَسْكِينِ وَابْنِ السَّبِيلِ
إِنْ كُنْتُمْ آمَنْتُمْ بِاللَّهِ وَمَا أُنْزِلْنَا عَلَىٰ
عَبْدِنَا يَوْمَ الْفُرْقَانِ يَوْمَ التَّلَاقِ جَمْعُ
وَاللَّهُ عَلَىٰ كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ

1006 If they return to fight, then Allah will protect the Muslim community, helping them against their enemy, as He is their Patron and Helper. Vv. 39 and 40 explain what is said in v. 38.

1007 الغنم الفوز بالشئ i.e. ghunn means acquisition of a thing (Rz, AH). The latter quotes two verses in support of this as the true meaning:—

وقد طوت في الافاق حتى رضيت من الغنيمة بالاياب

and

ر مطعم الغنم يوم الغنم مطعمه انى توجه والمحرور محروم

in both of which ghanimat and ghunn signify achievement, the meaning of the first verse being: "And I went about on all sides until the only achievement with which I was satisfied was coming back," and that of the second: "And the eating of what is acquired is on the day of achievement his food whither he goes, and he who is deprived is deprived." LL explains ghanama as meaning he acquired a thing without difficulty, and the same authority thus explains the verse اذا هبت رياحك فاغتمها i.e. when thy turn of good fortune comes, avail thyself of it (in art. rih). Hence the original meaning of the word ghanimat is simply acquisition or achievement, and the word is then applied to what is acquired in war after fighting with the enemy and vanquishing him, and ghanimat is now a technical term for such property.

The division of what is thus acquired in the war is plainly given in the verse, but there has been a discussion as to what is meant by for Allah. The most generally accepted opinion is that one-fifth of the whole property acquired is to be divided again into five parts, the Prophet, the near of kin, the orphans, the poor, and the wayfarer being equal sharers. Thus the twenty-fifth part fell to the Prophet's share, an equal share was given over to the Prophet's near of kin, all individuals belonging to the tribes of Banī-Hāshim and Banī-Abdul Muṭṭalib being sharers therein, and three twenty-fifths were given to the orphans, the poor, the needy, and the wayfarers, while four-fifths were divided among those who were considered as having taken part in the fight. As to the Prophet's twenty-fifth, it appears from certain anecdotes that it was also used for the benefit of the Muslims. Thus, Rz, having raised the question of the distribution of the fifth after the Prophet's death, gives the following answer from Shāfi's

42 When you were on the nearer side (of the valley) and they were on the farthest side, while the caravan was in a lower place than you;¹⁰⁰⁸ and if you had mutually made an appointment, you would certainly have broken away from the appointment,¹⁰⁰⁹ but¹⁰¹⁰ — in order that Allah might bring about a matter which was to be done,¹⁰¹¹ that he who would perish might perish by clear proof, and he who would live might live by clear proof;¹⁰¹² and most surely Allah is Hearing, Knowing:

43 When Allah showed them to you in your dream as few; and if He had shown them to you as many you would certainly have become weak-hearted and you would

Ar. thee.
Ar. thy.

Ar. thee.

إِذْ أَنتُمْ بِالْعُدْوَةِ الدُّنْيَا

عَلِيمٌ ۝

إِذْ يُرِيكُمْ اللَّهُ فِي مَنَامِكُمْ قِلَّةً
وَلَوْ أَنَّكُمْ كُنْتُمْ كَافِرِينَ فَتَقَاتَلْتُمْ

point of view: "It should be divided into five parts, one portion (the same twenty-fifth as in his lifetime) being for the Apostle of Allah, to be spent as he used to spend it, for the benefit of the Muslims, as the providing of the warriors with horses and weapons." Rz also relates a saying of the Holy Prophet on the occasion of the distribution of what was gained at Khaibar: مالى الا الخمس والى الخمس مردود فيكم i.e. Out of what Allah has given to you nothing is mine but a fifth, and that fifth is given back to you. These two facts, combined with the fact of the utmost simplicity of the Prophet's domestic life, which is admitted on all hands, show clearly that the Holy Prophet spent even his own share for the good of the community.

1008 The position of the three parties, i.e. the party of the Muslims and two parties of the Quraish, is here made clear. The Muslims were on the nearer side, i.e. the side nearer to Medina, the main army of the Quraish was on the farthest side, i.e. the side which was nearer to Mecca and farthest from Medina, while the caravan was in a lower place, i.e. towards the sea-coast and farther away from Medina on its way to Mecca (Rz).

1009 The الميعاد here means the failure to keep the appointment on the part of the Muslims on seeing the strength of the enemy and their own weakness (Rz, AH).

1010 The commentators say there is an ellipsis here, the meaning being, but an encounter was brought about without there being an appointment.

1011 The amr or affair is said to be already done, because Allah had decided to do it. The use of the past tense when the occurrence is certain is frequent in Arabic. The matter referred to is the vanquishment of the opponents of Islam, about which prophecies had been announced at the very commencement of the career of the Holy Prophet.

1012 The affair at Badr afforded a clear proof of the truth of the Holy Prophet's mission, because the unbelievers had been repeatedly told that as a proof of the truth which the Prophet brought to them a discomfiture of their power at the hands of the Holy Prophet would be brought about in this very life, and their forces and wealth would not then be of any use to them. As an instance of these prophecies see two of the earlier chapters: "And most certainly We will make them taste of the nearer chastisement before the greater chastisement, that haply they may turn" (32: 21); "Such is the chastisement, and certainly the chastisement of the hereafter is greater, if they but know" (68: 43).

have disputed about the matter, but Allah saved (you); surely He is the Knower of what is in the breasts.

44 And when He showed them to you, when you met, as few in your eyes and He made you to appear little in their eyes, in order that Allah might bring about a matter which was to be done, and to Allah are all affairs returned.¹⁰¹³

Success did not depend on Numbers

45, 46. Firmness and union enjoined. 47, 48. Enemies made a show of their strength.

45 O you who believe! when you meet a party, then be firm, and remember Allah much, that you may be successful.

46 And obey Allah and His Apostle and do not quarrel, for then you will be weak in hearts and your power will depart, and be patient; surely Allah is with the patient.

47 And be not like those who came forth from their homes in great exultation and to be seen of men, and (who) turn away from the way of Allah,¹⁰¹⁴ and Allah comprehends what they do.

48 And when the devil¹⁰¹⁵ made their works fairseeming to them, and said: No one can overcome you this day, and surely I am your protector; but when the two parties came in sight of each other he turned upon his heels, and said: Surely I am clear of you, surely I see you do not see, surely I fear Allah; and Allah is severe in requiting (evil).

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا إِذَا لَقِيتُمْ فِئَةً
فَاتَّبِعُوا وَادْكُرُوا اللَّهَ كَثِيرًا
لَّعَلَّكُمْ تُفْلِحُونَ
وَاطِيعُوا اللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُ وَلَا تَنَازَعُوا
فَقَفَّيْكُمْ أَوْتَدَّ هَبْ رِيحَكُمْ
أَضِلُّوا وَلَئِنْ لَمْ تَرْضَوْا اللَّهَ
وَلَا تَرْضَوْا كَالَّذِينَ خَرَجُوا مِنْ
دِيَارِهِمْ بَطْرًا وَرَاءَ النَّاسِ
يَصُدُّونَ عَنْ سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ وَاللَّهُ
بِمَا يَعْمَلُونَ عَظِيمٌ
وَإِذْ زَيَّنَّ لَهُمُ الشَّيْطَانُ أَعْمَالَهُمْ
وَقَالَ لَا غَالِبَ لَكُمْ الْيَوْمَ مِنَ النَّاسِ
إِنِّي جَارٌ لَكُمْ فَلَمَّا تَرَاءَتِ الْفِئَتَانِ
كَصَّ عَلَى عُنُوقِهِمْ وَقَالَ إِنِّي رَأَيْتُكُمْ
إِنِّي أَرَى مَا تَكْتُمُونَ إِنِّي أَخَافُ اللَّهَ
وَاللَّهُ شَدِيدُ الْعِقَابِ

1013 In the previous verse it is stated that the enemy were shown to the Prophet in a dream to be few, and here we are told that they were also shown to be few to the Muslims when the two armies met. The second point has been fully explained in 395. As regards the Prophet's seeing them few in a vision, it must no doubt be interpreted as signifying their moral weakness, notwithstanding their great number.

1014 The reference is clearly to the army of the Quraish, which had marched forth in great exultation to destroy Medina.

1015, see next page.

SECTION 7

Enemy's Strength weakened

49-51. Enemy's trust in their strength and its failure. 52-54. Comparison with destruction of Pharaoh's people. 55-58. Repeated violations of treaties.

Or, deceived them
49 When the hypocrites and those in whose hearts was disease said: Their religion has exposed them to perdition; and whoever trusts in Allah, then surely Allah is Mighty, Wise.

Ar. hadst thou.
50 And had you seen when the angels will cause to die those who disbelieve, smiting their faces and their backs, and (saying): Taste the punishment of burning.

51 This is for what your own hands have sent on before, and because Allah is not in the least unjust to the servants;

Or, overtook.
52 In the manner of the people of Pharaoh and those before them: they disbelieved in Allah's communications, therefore Allah destroyed them on account of their faults; surely Allah is strong, severe in requiting (evil).¹⁰¹⁵

53 This is because Allah has never changed a favour which He has conferred upon a people until they change their own condition; and because Allah is Hearing, Knowing;

54 In the manner of the people of Pharaoh and those before them; they rejected the communications of their Lord, therefore We destroyed them on account of their faults and We drowned Pharaoh's people, and they were all unjust.

55 Surely the vilest of animals in Allah's sight are those who disbelieve, then they would not believe.

إِذْ يَقُولُ الْمُنَافِقُونَ وَالَّذِينَ فِي قُلُوبِهِمْ

كَذَّبَ آلُ فِرْعَوْنَ وَالَّذِينَ مِنْ قَبْلِهِمْ
كَذَّبُوا بِآيَاتِ رَبِّهِمْ فَأَهْلَكْنَاهُمْ

1015 The devil in this case was no other than Surāqa bin Malik, son of Ja'sham, who was of the tribe of Bani Bakr bin Kanāna (Rz). He assured the Quraish of his help.

1016 The mention of the people of Pharaoh here serves to show the Prophet's likeness to Moses and foretells the absolute discomfiture of the enemy ultimately.

Ar. thou

56 Those with whom you make an agreement, then they break their agreement every time and they do not guard¹⁰¹⁷ (against punishment).

Ar. thou.

57 Therefore if you overtake them in fighting, then scatter by (making an example of) them those who are in their rear, that they may be mindful.¹⁰¹⁸

Ar. thou.

58 And if you fear treachery on the part of a people, then throw back to them on terms of equality; surely Allah does not love the treacherous.¹⁰¹⁹

الَّذِينَ كَانُوا يَكْفُرُونَ

SECTION 8

Peace to be secured by Strength

59, 60. Muslims should be ready to meet all eventualities. 61, 62. Peace to be preferred. 63, 64. Union as a Divine gift.

59 And let not those who disbelieve think that they shall come in first; surely they will not escape.

60 And prepare against them what force you can and horses tied at the frontier, to frighten thereby the enemy of Allah and your enemy and others besides them, whom you do not know (but) Allah knows them; and whatever thing you will spend in Allah's way, it will be paid back to you fully and you shall not be dealt with unjustly.¹⁰²⁰

وَلَا يَحْسَبَنَّ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا
سَبْقُوا ۚ أَيُّهُمْ لَا يَخْزُونَ
وَإِذْ وَاللَّهُ مَا اسْتَطَعْتُمْ مِنْ قُوَّةٍ وَمَا رَزَقُوا رِيبَاطُ الْحَيْلِ
فَرُهِبُوا لِلَّهِ
وَعَدُوَّهُمْ وَالْخَيْرِينَ
مِنْ دُونِهِمْ
لَا تَعْلَمُوهُمْ ۚ اللَّهُ يَعْلَمُهُمْ
وَمَا تَنْفَعُكُمْ فِي شَيْءٍ
فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ قُوَّةُ
إِيْنِكُمْ وَأَنْتُمْ لَا تَنْظُرُونَ

1017 It shows how the opponents of Islam disregarded their responsibility and violated their agreements. The use of the words every time with regard to these violations shows clearly that the Muslims never hesitated in making a new agreement when one was violated, but the unbelievers did not even then respect their engagements; hence, as a last resort, the Muslims are allowed to repudiate unrespected agreements (v. 58).

1018 That is, an exemplary punishment should be inflicted on them, so that a stop might be put to further fighting and bloodshed.

1019 If the other party does not remain faithful to the agreement of peace, the Muslims may also repudiate it. The use of the word fear does not indicate that a mere apprehension, unattended with any action on the part of the other party, is sufficient for repudiation. Read it along with v. 62 and 1021, and the meaning is clear. As Rz remarks under that verse, "the fear of treachery is to be entertained when this fear is strengthened by signs showing treachery."

1020 Force (Ar. quwwat), according to Rz, means all those things which shall be a source of strength, including all kinds of implements of war and other defensive and offensive operations. The Muslims had won a victory at Badr, though they were not even well 61 And if they incline to peace, then incline to it and trust in Allah; surely He is the Hearing, the Knowing.

62 And if they intend to deceive you—then surely Allah is sufficient for you; He it is who strengthened you with His help and with the believers,¹⁰²¹

63 And united their hearts; had you spent all that is in the earth, you could not have united their hearts, but Allah united them; surely He is Mighty, Wise.

64 O Prophet! Allah is sufficient for you and (for) such of the believers as follow you.

وَإِنْ جَحَضُوا لِلْحِلْمِ فَاجْمَازْهَا وَتَوَكَّلْ

اتَّبَعَكَ مِنَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ

SECTION 9

Muslims should be prepared to meet Overwhelming Numbers

65, 66. Muslims should not hesitate in meeting double or tenfold numbers.
67-69. Warning against committing depredations.

65 O Prophet! urge the believers to war;¹⁰²² if there are twenty patient ones of you they shall overcome two hundred, and if there are a hundred of you they shall overcome a thousand of those who disbelieve, because they are a people who do not understand.^{1022a} equipped and had made no preparation for the war. But they are told that they must in future keep themselves well prepared and avail themselves of all sources of strength, so that the enemy should by their very preparations assume a peaceful attitude, for it was evident that the weakness of the Muslims was a temptation for their opponents to attack them. Peace was to be secured by preparing for war.

قَوْمٌ لَا يَفْقَهُونَ

1021 The deceit is in relation to what has been said in the previous verse, the meaning being that if they intend to deceive you under cloak of peace, even in such a case peace is to be accepted, and the Muslims are not to reject peace simply for fear of being deceived, for surely Allah is sufficient.

1022 It should be noted that the war to which the Muslims were to be urged was the defensive war which the Muslims had to fight to save themselves and to protect the religion of Islam. The sword had been taken up against them and they were required to defend Islam. This is made clear elsewhere: "And fight in the way of Allah with those who fight with you and do not exceed the limits" (2: 190). See 238, where this point is fully discussed.

1022a The Muslims were very few as compared to their enemies, and there was not even one Muslim to ten unbelievers. Thus there is a clear prophecy here that notwithstanding their fewer numbers the Muslims shall be victorious.

66 For the present Allah has made light your burden, and He knows that there is weakness in you; so if there are a hundred patient ones of you they shall overcome two hundred, and if there are a thousand they shall overcome two thousand by Allah's permission; and Allah is with the patient.¹⁰²³

67 It is not fit for a prophet that he should take captives unless he has fought and triumphed in the land; you desire the frail goods of this world, while Allah desires (for you) the hereafter; and Allah is Mighty, Wise.¹⁰²⁴

1023 This verse is supposed by some to abrogate the previous verse, where it is stated that twenty patient Muslims shall overcome two hundred unbelievers. This cannot be a correct view. Firstly, because only an injunction could be said to be abrogated, and not a statement; secondly, because the two statements relate to two different states of the Muslims. The time of the battle of Badr was one when the armies of the Muslims did not deserve to be called armies. There was no Muslim army in existence. Every man available, young or old, sick or healthy, had to fight so as to save the very life of the community. This is referred to in the words: He knows that there is weakness in you. So the Muslim forces as then constituted could at most be a match for double their numbers. But a time did come when they were a match for ten times their numbers. So both the statements in the Qur-ān proved true in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet. In the field of Badr the Muslims overcame thrice their numbers; in the battle of the Confederates about a thousand Muslims put to rout ten thousand of the enemy. But even if the words may be taken as an injunction to the Muslims to overcome twice and afterwards ten times their numbers, there is no question of abrogation. There are two commandments, one in accordance with the circumstances of the Muslim society as it was then, another in accordance with a future state when great warriors like Khálid were to become Muslims. The great feats of Khálid and other Muslim warriors in the wars with Persia and the Roman Empire amply justified the statement. I may also add here that the two verses only require Muslims to overcome the superiority of the numbers of their foes by efficiency; exact numbers are not meant. For instance, in Badr, one Muslim soldier proved a match for more than three soldiers of the enemy, though he was required to overcome only two.

1024 On the authority of certain reports the commentators are of opinion that this verse and the next refer to releasing the prisoners of war taken at Badr after taking ransom from them, which act, it is said, is here disapproved. But various considerations show that these verses refer to some other incidents. Firstly, the condition laid down here for taking prisoners is that the Prophet should have fought against the enemy, and that had actually been done at Badr. In this connection it must be stated that Iq-khán does not signify a general slaughter of the enemy; it simply means struggling hard against the enemy, or the making of a vehement fight, or overcoming the enemy after fighting has actually taken place. LL says: "Aq-khán in its primary sense means he or it rendered it thick," and hence he or it (i.e. a man, a wound, or a disease) rendered him heavy or weakened him. Rz quotes Wahidí, who says: "Iq-khán, in anything, signifies its getting strong and severe; you say

ثخنه المرض, when the grip of the disease has grown severe on a man. and therefore

68 Were it not for an ordinance from Allah that had already gone forth,¹⁰²⁵ surely there would have befallen you a great chastisement for what you had taken to.¹⁰²⁶

69 Eat then of the lawful and good (things) which you have acquired in war, and be careful of (your duty to) Allah; surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

لَوْلَا كِتَابٌ مِّنَ اللَّهِ سَبَقَ
لَنُكَلِّمُنَا أَعْدَاءَكُمْ حَذَابًا
عَظِيمًا
فَكُلُوا مِمَّا عَمِلْتُمْ حَلَالًا
طَيِّبًا وَاتَّقُوا اللَّهَ إِنَّ اللَّهَ
خَفِيفٌ رَّحِيمٌ

يشخن في الارض means he becomes strong and strengthened and overcomes"; and then adds that many commentators have taken the word to mean the making of a severe slaughter, on the ground that kingdom and rule become strong and strengthened with slaughter (Rz). Therefore, to attach the meaning of general or severe slaughter to the word is a mere conjecture. The use of this word on the only other occasion in the Qur-an also leads to the same conclusion; see 47: 4, "Until when you have overcome them."

Secondly, the taking of prisoners and their release on this very occasion is justified in clear words only two verses farther on, "O Prophet! say to those of the captives who are in your hands: If Allah knows anything good in your hearts He will give to you better than that which has been taken away from you" (v. 70). This shows that these verses were revealed when the prisoners were still in the hands of the Muslims, and that which has been taken is clearly the ransom, which must have taken many days to reach Medina. If the verse had conveyed a Divine commandment to slay the prisoners and not to release them, that step could still have been taken. But the very fact that no such step was taken shows clearly that the verse conveyed no such Divine commandment.

The legality of the Holy Prophet's procedure on this occasion is clearly borne out by an earlier revelation: "So when you meet in battle those who disbelieve, then smite the necks until you have overcome them, then make them prisoners, and afterwards either set them free as a favour or let them ransom themselves" (47: 4). And as the Holy Prophet did not slay those who were taken prisoners after fighting in a single war, it is clear that his action at Badr was never disapproved by Divine revelation.

The question is, what is then hinted at in this verse and in the one that follows? To me it seems quite clear that the reference is to the desire (mark the word desire used in the verse)—not to an action already completed—of a party of the Muslims referred to in v. 7, and you loved that the one not armed should be yours. They desired to attack and capture the unarmed caravan, but depredations like those, though committed by unbelievers upon the Muslims, were not fit for a prophet. He must fight a hard fight in his defence first, and then if he overcomes the enemy he may take prisoners. Thus this injunction also declares slavery to be illegal, and allows only the retaining of those who are taken prisoners in war. The frail goods of this life appropriately refer to the caravan and its merchandise, while the addition of the concluding words in v. 69, eat then of the lawful and good things which you have acquired in war, shows that the ransom received on account of the prisoners is among the lawful and good things.

¹⁰²⁵ That ordinance from Allah is referred to in several places in this chapter; it was to bring about an encounter with the main army of the Quraish at Badr: "And when Allah promised you one of the two parties that it shall be yours . . . and Allah desired to manifest the truth of what was true" (v. 7); and again: "In order that Allah might bring about a matter which was to be done" (v. 42).

¹⁰²⁶ You say خذ في كذا meaning he took to a thing, or set about or commenced doing it (LA-LL).

وَفَسَادٌ كَبِيرٌ

1027 The guardianship alluded to in this verse has been a matter of much discussion among the commentators. The meaning seems to be clear. Those who believed, and having been persecuted fled from their homes, formed a community at Medina along with those who gave shelter and helped them, i.e. the Anṣār of Medina. But there were those who chose to remain in their homes. The Muslim community at Medina could not undertake to guard the interests of such persons, and this is what is meant by saying not yours is their guardianship. But if they sought help in the matter of religion, it was incumbent on the Muslim community to give them help, unless there existed a treaty of alliance with the people against whom such help was sought. This injunction prevents Muslims rebelling against their rulers, to whatever religion such rulers belong, because there exists an implied agreement of obedience with the rulers of a country.

74 And (as for) those who believed and fled and struggled hard in Allah's way, and those who gave shelter and helped, these are the believers truly; they shall have forgiveness and honourable provision.

75 And (as for) those who believed afterwards and fled and struggled hard along with you, they are of you; and the possessors of relationships are nearer to each other in the ordinance of Allah; surely Allah knows all things.¹⁰²⁹

1028 If you do not help your brethren in the matter of religion, the unbelievers will become more daring in their persecutions, in causing mischief and disorder in the land.

1029 There is no such difficulty about the significance of this verse as some commentators have supposed. When even strangers who have accepted Islam and fled from their homes become "of you," those who have in addition ties of relationship, possess every title to have their interests guarded by the Muslim community.

CHAPTER IX
THE IMMUNITY
(Al-Bard'at)
REVEALED AT MEDINA
(16 sections and 129 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1, 2. Declaration of immunity and its reasons.
- Sec. 3. Idolaters' pretensions to service of the Sacred House.
- Sec. 4. The cause of Islam shall be made triumphant.
- Sec. 5. Jews and Christians fall off from the truth.
- Sec. 6. The Tabúk expedition.
- Sec. 7-13. The Hypocrites.
- Sec. 14, 15. The faithful and what they should do.
- Sec. 16. The object effected by revelation.

The Title.

THE title of this chapter is taken from the opening statement, which contains a declaration of immunity from obligations with such of the idolatrous tribes as had repeatedly broken their engagements. This declaration is one of the most important events in the history of Islam, for hitherto the Muslims had constantly suffered from the hostility of the unscrupulous idolatrous tribes who had no regard for their treaties, dealing a blow at the Muslims whenever they had an opportunity of doing so. As the Muslims had, in the first instance, to suffer persecutions for a long time before they were allowed to take up the sword in their defence, so a second time they remained true to their agreements, notwithstanding the enemy's constant repudiation of their treaties, and immunity was given to them from their obligations only after the repeated violation of treaties by their foes had produced quite an impossible condition of things. The chapter is known under various other names, Repentance being the best known.

Connection with the preceding chapter.

This is not really a new chapter, and this accounts for Bismillah being omitted from the opening. It is admittedly a part of the last chapter, while a distinct name has been assigned to it by reason of the importance of the declaration of immunity from which it takes its name. A reference to the seventh and the eighth sections of the last chapter will show that the idolaters repeatedly broke the agreements which bound them to remain on peaceful terms with the Muslims. This frequent violation ultimately led to the declaration of immunity, because it was impossible that the Muslims should be bound for ever by the terms of those agreements, while their enemies could repudiate them with impunity. Such repudiations had frequently taken place, especially when the unbelievers considered the Muslim power at Medina to have been temporarily weakened as on the occasion of the great expedition to Tabúk.

Subject-matter and its arrangement.

The internal arrangement of the verses is too clear to need any lengthy comment. A declaration of immunity necessitated by the repeated treaty violations of the idolaters is made in the first section, with two clear exceptions, however; one in the case of those tribes who had remained true to their obligations, and a second in the case of idolaters who sought protection from the Muslims. These latter were to be conducted safely to their tribes, and were not to be molested in any way. These two exceptions are a sufficient condemnation of the hypothetical picture drawn of the Holy Prophet by Christian missionaries, in which he is accused of inviting people to Islam with the Qur-án in the one hand and the sword in the other. The second section gives the chief reason for freeing the Muslims from the liabilities of certain agreements, again stating expressly that the Muslims were to stand firm by their agreements so long as the other party adhered to their terms. In the third section the idolaters are told that their pretensions relating to the entertainment of the pilgrims and the repairing or building of the Sacred House could not now save them from the consequences of their own deeds, while the conclusion of that section calls attention to the sacrifices which the Muslims would now be required to make in the cause of truth. The next section naturally asserts the ultimate triumph of Islam, not only against the idolatrous tribes of Arabia, but also against the powerful Christian nation which had now stirred itself to humiliate the growing Muslim power. A reference to the Christians renders it necessary to deal in the next section with the falling off of both the Jews and the Christians from the pure monotheism of their great prophets, the section being closed with a reference to the evil influence which the Jews had exercised on the Arabs by making them violate the sanctity of the recognized sacred months. Thenceforward to the end, with the exception of the last three sections, are contained references to the Tabúk expedition, and particularly to those who had been intentionally guilty of a default in joining this expedition—thus the hypocrites are condemned, and spiritual and temporal connections with them are cut off. The hypocrites had made their presence clearly felt among the Muslims from the time of the battle of Uhud, in the third year of the Hejira, and they had been given a chance up to the close of the ninth year to mend their ways or to openly side with this or that party, and the final word with regard to them was now urgently needed.

The three concluding sections are a natural sequel to the subject of hypocrisy. What are the marks of the truly faithful, and what is expected of them, is stated respectively in the fourteenth and the fifteenth sections. Wars were not the aim and object of Islam, but had really been forced on it, and the faithful are told, at the end of a chapter which almost entirely deals with treaty obligations, ultimatums and wars, that they must make arrangements for the propagation of Islam, and that every Muslim community must contribute men for the noble object of spreading the truth, which was the real object of Islam. The last section shows what effect the revelation of the Qur-án had upon the Muslims and the great anxiety of the Prophet for their welfare.

Date of Revelation.

Almost a consensus of opinion exists on the point that the whole of this chapter was revealed at Medina, toward the close of the Holy Prophet's life. A careful consideration of the various verses shows that the whole of this chapter was revealed in the ninth year of the Hejira, the opening verses belonging to the close, and the major portion to about the middle of that year. The opening verses were revealed after the pilgrims had started for Mecca in the pilgrimage season of the ninth year, and as they contained an announcement which was to be made known to the pilgrims assembled at Mecca from the various quarters of Arabia, 'Ali was dispatched with this message after Abu Bakr, who headed the pilgrims. It would serve no useful purpose to endeavour to settle the exact dates of the various verses, as the attempt is often misleading; all that can be said about the main portion of the chapter is that vv. 29 to the end were revealed immediately before, during, or after the expedition to Tabúk, which occurred in the Rajab of the ninth year of the Hejira. It is asserted that the two concluding verses were revealed at Mecca, but the probability is that this happened in the last pilgrimage to Mecca. At any rate, there is insufficient evidence to warrant these two verses being disconnected from the rest of the chapter.

SECTION 1

Declaration of Immunity

1-4. Muslims freed from liability towards enemy idolaters, except those true to their engagements. 5. Those accepting Islam to be pardoned. 6. Idolaters to be given shelter.

1 (This is a declaration of) immunity by Allah and His Apostle towards those of the idolaters with whom you made an agreement.¹⁰³⁰

2 So go about in the land for four months and know that you cannot weaken Allah and that Allah will bring disgrace to the unbelievers.

3 And an announcement from Allah and His Apostle to the people on the day of the greater pilgrimage¹⁰³¹ that Allah and His Apostle are free from liability to the idolaters; therefore if you repent, it will be better for you, and if you turn back, then know that you will not weaken Allah; and announce painful chastisement to those who disbelieve—

4 Except those of the idolaters with whom you made an agreement, then they have not failed you in anything and have not backed up any one against you, so fulfil their agreement to the end of their term: surely

بَرَاءَةٌ مِنَ اللَّهِ وَرَسُولِهِ إِلَى الَّذِينَ

وَاعْلَمُوا أَنَّكُمْ عَزِيزٌ مُجْبِىءٌ لِلَّهِ
وَأَنَّ اللَّهَ مُخْزِي الْكَافِرِينَ ۝
وَإِذْ أَنْزَلْنَا إِلَيْنَا الْكِتَابَ
يَوْمَ النَّجْدِ الْأَكْبَرِ أَنَّ اللَّهَ بَرِيءٌ مِنَ
الْمُشْرِكِينَ ۚ وَرَسُولُهُ إِنَّا فَتَنَّا
بِهِ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا فَلَمْ يَكُونُوا لَهُمْ
أَعْيُنٌ عَذِيبٌ مُخْزِيَةٌ ۚ وَبَشِّرِ الَّذِينَ
كَفَرُوا بِعَذَابِ الْبُيُوتِ

عَلَيْكُمْ أَحَدًا فَأَتَتْهُمُ الْيَهُفُ
فَعَصَوْا عَنْ مَدِينَتِهِمْ ۚ إِنَّ

1030 This verse is to be read along with that which follows. The fourth verse makes it clear that the people meant are those with whom the Muslims made an agreement but they broke it, because those who did not fail in their agreements are clearly excepted in the fourth verse. It is a fact that the idolatrous tribes of Arabia broke their agreements with the Muslims again and again (8 : 56), yet the Muslims were enjoined to accept peace if the unbelievers consented to it, even after repeated violations (8 : 61). But this state of things could not long continue, for it was soon found that it was impossible to trust such neighbours. This repudiation of agreements especially took place when the Muslims were absent on the Tabūk expedition (Rz, AH). The first thirteen verses of this chapter were publicly proclaimed by 'Ali, on the occasion of the pilgrimage in the ninth year of Hejira, and the following announcements made as the result: (1) that no idolater shall approach the Sacred House after this year; (2) that no one shall go naked round the Ka'ba; and (3) that all agreements shall be fulfilled. The first and the last of these announcements are plainly contained in these verses. The attitude of the tribes to whom this ultimatum was given through 'Ali is well indicated in their reply: "O 'Ali! deliver this message to your cousin (i.e. the Prophet), that we have thrown the agreements behind our backs, and there is no agreement between him and us except smiting with spears and striking with swords" (Rz).

1031 By the day of the greater pilgrimage is meant either the ninth or the tenth of Zulhaj, being the day of the great assemblage of the pilgrimage in the plains of 'Arafāt and Mina (Rz).

Allah loves those who are careful (of their duty).¹⁰³³

5 So when the sacred months have passed away, then slay the idolaters¹⁰³³ wherever you find them, and take them captives and besiege them and lie in wait for them in every ambush, then if they repent and keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate, leave their way free to them; surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.¹⁰³⁴

Ar. thee.

6 And if one of the idolaters seek protection from you, grant him protection till he hears the word of Allah, then make 1032 Only two tribes, the Banu Damra and the Banu Kanana, are related to have adhered to their treaties (AH, R₂). One wonders why honest criticism of Islam is so rare among Christian authors. The exception given here makes it as clear as anything could be that the Muslims were not fighting with the idolaters on account of their religion, but on account of their having been untrue to their engagements. Yet the comment of a Christian critic on these verses is that "they are to be converted to Islam or destroyed by the sword" (Wh). If the Muslims had been fighting with the idolaters on account of their religion, why should there be an exception in favour of those idolaters who had been true to their engagements? The cause of the renewed fighting was political, i.e. the violation of treaties, and hence only those tribes were fought against who had broken their engagements. If idolatry had been the cause, all idolaters would have been fought against.

1033 The clear exception of the last verse shows that by the idolaters here are meant, not all idolaters or polytheists wherever they may be found in the world, nor even all idolaters of Arabia, but only those idolatrous tribes of Arabia assembled at the pilgrimage who had first made agreements with the Muslims and then violated them.

1034 The exception here has given rise to much misconception, and it has been made the basis of an attack upon Islam, it being supposed that it offers to the unbelievers the alternative of the sword or the Qur-ān. Nothing is farther from the truth. The injunction contained in the first part of the verse establishes the fact that the whole verse relates to certain idolatrous Arab tribes who had broken their engagements with the Muslims and who had now been apprised of a similar repudiation by the Muslims. The essential fact to be borne in mind is that all the polytheists of the world, even all the idolaters of Arabia, are not spoken of in the verse. The persons spoken of are those who had repeatedly violated their agreements and inflicted severe losses upon the Muslims. They, therefore, deserved to be killed or besieged or taken prisoners. This punishment was a direct consequence of their previous actions. They had so often broken their word that they could no more be trusted and must now receive their punishment. Yet, if they joined the brotherhood of Islam there was an absolute change in their condition, and hence the punishment which they otherwise deserved could be remitted. It was a case of forgiving a criminal who had entirely repented and regenerated, hence it is that the verse concludes with the words: "Allah is Forgiving, Merciful." It should also be noted that a mere confession of the faith is not required, because such a confession may be made to deceive, as were their treaties. What is required is an absolute change, so that the old criminal no longer remains, but an entirely changed man. Therefore, along with the confession of the faith, it is required that they should keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate. The subject is further clarified in the next verse and the following section.

him attain his place of safety; this is because they are a people who do not know.¹⁰³⁵

SECTION 2

Reasons for the Immunity

7-11. Idolaters break treaties. 12-16. Frequent violation necessitated punishment.

7 How can there be an agreement for the idolaters with Allah and with His Apostle, except those with whom you made an agreement at the sacred Mosque? so as long as they are true to you, be true to them; surely Allah loves those who are careful (of their duty).¹⁰³⁶

لَا يَرْقُبُونَ فِي مُؤْمِنٍ إِلَّا وَلاَ ذِمَّةً
وَإُولَئِكَ هُمُ الْمُخْتَدُونَ

1035 This verse leaves no doubt that the idolaters and the non-Muslims were not to be slain on account of their religion. Even Sale explains the meaning of this to be, "You shall give him a safe conduct that he may return home again securely in case he shall not think fit to embrace Muhammadanism." It is stated on the authority of I'Ab that after the proclamation by 'Ali an idolater asked him whether they would be killed if they went to the Prophet to get information about the religion of Islam or on some other business, and the reply was in the negative, in support of which 'Ali quoted this verse (Rz).

1036 Reason is given here why the Muslims were compelled to repudiate their treaty obligations. This reason, which is here only alluded to by drawing attention to the exception, is made plainer in the next verse, for when it is pointed out that the Muslims must remain true to their agreements as regards tribes that remained true to their compact, it is made obvious that treaty obligations were repudiated only in the case of tribes that had not remained true. The verses that follow throw full light on the subject.

1037 Note the repeated assertions of the 'Qur-án that the unbelievers who are to be fought against are those who, in the case of a believer on whom they can lay hands, pay no regard either to ties of relationship or to treaty obligations. No remedy was left for the covert mischief of these people, except that the agreements should be overtly repudiated and a period put to all their mischief.

11 But if they repent and keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate, they are your brethren in faith; and We make the communications clear for a people who know.

12 And if they break their oaths after their agreement and (openly) revile your religion, then fight the leaders of unbelief—surely their oaths are nothing—so that they may desist.¹⁰³⁸

13 What! will you not fight a people who broke their oaths and aimed at the expulsion of the Apostle, and they attacked you first; do you fear them? but Allah is most deserving that you should fear Him, if you are believers.

14 Fight them; Allah will chastise them by your hands and bring them to disgrace, and assist you against them and relieve the hearts of a believing people,

15 And remove the rage of their hearts;¹⁰³⁹ and Allah turns (mercifully) to whom He pleases, and Allah is Knowing, Wise.

16 What! do you think that you will be left alone while Allah has not yet known* those of you who have struggled hard and have not taken any one as an adherent besides Allah and His Apostle and the believers; and Allah is aware of what you do.

1038 Note, again, that those leaders of unbelief are to be fought against who break their oaths after their agreement, and further than that, openly revile the religion of Islam; even among these, it is the leaders who are to be particularly punished in fighting. The subject has been made so clear that one doubts whether lack of honesty or lack of brains is the real defect of those who seem to think that the Qur-ān is here offering the sword or Islam as alternatives.

1039 It is said to refer to the Khuzá'ah, who, having become Muslims, suffered severely at the hands of Baní Bakr, assisted by the Quraish; but the reference may as well be to the Muslims in general, who had suffered the severest persecutions at the hands of the unbelievers.. The rage was no doubt due to persecutions, and the ultimate punishment of the persecutors would no doubt relieve their hearts.

19 What! do you make (one who undertakes) the giving of drink to the pilgrims and the guarding of the Sacred Mosque¹⁰⁴¹ like him who believes in Allah and the latter day and strives hard in Allah's way? They are not equal with Allah; and Allah does not guide the unjust people.

20 Those who believed and fled (their homes), and strove hard in Allah's way with their property and their souls, are much higher in rank with Allah; and those are they who are the achievers (of their objects).

1040 By the mosques of Allah is meant particularly the Sacred Mosque at Mecca, as being the centre of all the mosques of the world. This is made clear by the use of the words Sacred Mosque in v. 19 in the place of the mosques of Allah. It had long remained in the hands of the idolaters, who abode therein, visiting and repairing it, having placed a large number of idols within it. With the conquest of Mecca the Sacred Mosque was denuded of all idols, and was now as pure an emblem of monotheism as in the time of Abraham; there remained not a single vestige of idol-worship. Hence the idol-worshippers had nothing to do with it now, because the help which they sought from their idols could no longer be obtained there. Idol-worship having been abolished, the connection of idol-worshippers with it was entirely cut off so long as they bore witness to unbelief against themselves, i.e. remained idolaters.

1041 It is generally supposed to refer to 'Abbās, the Prophet's uncle, whose charge was giving drink to pilgrims and guarding the Sacred Mosque; but really a comparison is drawn between all such minor acts of charity and public utility and the great responsibility of every individual to exert himself to his utmost to establish the truth.

26 Then Allah sent down His tranquility upon His Apostle and upon the believers, and sent down hosts which you did not see, and chastised those who disbelieved, and that is the reward of the unbelievers.¹⁰⁴⁴ breasts of the Muslims on account of the idolatrous tribes, who were now likely to join hands against the believers, hence they are given an assurance of Divine assistance, amply justified by their previous experience.

The battle of Hunain, fought in the eighth year of Hejira in the valley of Hunain, at about three miles from Mecca, differed from the other battles inasmuch as the Muslims here outnumbered the enemy, the tribes of Hawazin and Saqef being about 4,000 strong, while the Muslims are said to have been as many as ten or even twelve thousand. Their excess in number led them to vanity, with the result that they at first took to flight; the archers of the enemy being very good shooters, the Muslims could not at first face them. The Prophet, however, led the assault, at first alone, in face of the archers, but was soon joined by others and a victory was obtained, as the next verse shows.

1044 By the hosts which you did not see are meant the angels (Rz). This corroborates what has been said in the 3rd and the 8th chapters, as to the angels being sent to strengthen the hearts of the Muslims and to cast terror into the hearts of the enemy. Hence they are described as hosts which you did not see, because they made themselves felt in the hearts and were not visible to the eyes.

1045 The reference may be to the prisoners of the Hawazin, who numbered thousands, and who were all set free as an act of favour by the Holy Prophet.

1046 Because they indulged in evil practices and went naked round the Ka'ba. Compare 5: 90, where idols are declared to be unclean.

1048 The importance of Mecca as a commercial centre lay in the fact that the whole of Arabia repaired to it in the season of the pilgrimage, and there carried out important commercial transactions. The prohibition referred to in the first part of the verse could have been easily foreseen as affecting the commerce and consequently the prosperity of Mecca, but worldly or business considerations never interfered with the carrying out of the moral reforms of Islam. The consideration of the diminution of the prosperity of Mecca, which was now wholly Muslim, was not to trouble the Muslims, for "Allah will enrich them out of His grace."

Jews and Christians fall off from the Truth

30, 31. Polytheistic beliefs of Jews and Christians. 32, 33. Their efforts against Islam doomed to failure. 34, 35. Worldliness of monks and priests. 36, 37. The change in sacred months (due to Jewish influence) declared illegal.

30 And the Jews say: Ezra is the son of Allah; and the Christians say: The Messiah is the son of Allah; these are the words of their mouths;

وَقَالَتِ الْيَهُودُ عُزَيْرٌ ابْنُ اللَّهِ
وَقَالَتِ النَّصَارَى الْمَسِيحُ ابْنُ اللَّهِ
وَلَهُمْ رِيقٌ أَهْنَهُمْ

1049 The last word on the wars with the idolaters of Arabia having been said, this verse introduces the subject of fighting with the followers of the Book. Though the Jews had for a long time assisted the idolatrous Arabians in their struggle to uproot Islam, the great Christian power of the Roman Empire had only just mobilized its forces for the subjection of the new religion, and the Tabúk expedition followed, which constitutes the subject-matter of a large portion of what follows in this chapter. As the object of this Christian power was simply the subjection of the Muslims, the words in which their final vanquishment by the Muslims is spoken of, are different from those dealing with the final vanquishment of the idolatrous Arabians. The Qur-án neither required the idolaters to be compelled to accept Islam, nor was it in any way its object to bring the Christians into subjection. They, on the other hand, had determined to compel the Muslims to give up Islam and to bring them under subjection. The fate of each was therefore according to what it proposed to do to the Muslims. The word jizyah is derived from jazá, meaning he gave satisfaction, and means, according to LL, the tax that is taken from the free non-Muslim subjects of the Muslim Government whereby they ratify the compact that ensures them protection; or, according to Sudi (AH), because it is a compensation for the protection which is guaranteed them, the non-Muslim subjects being free from military service. The phrase عَنْ يَدٍ has been explained variously. The word yad (literally hand) stands for power or superiority, the use of the hand being the real source of the superiority of man to all other animals, and the apparent meaning of the phrase is in acknowledgment of your superiority in protecting their lives, etc. Other explanations are: for favour received in ready money, obediently, etc. (AH). The followers of the Book are described here as not believing in Allah and the latter day so long as they do not follow the religion of truth, i.e. Islam, because they do not ascribe to Allah the perfect attributes which belong to Him, and do not understand the real nature of the life after death. It may also be added that the permission to fight, as given to the Muslims, is subject to the condition that the enemy should first take up the sword, Fight in the way of Allah with those who fight with you (2:190); the Holy Prophet never overstepped this limit. He fought against the Arabs when they took up the sword to destroy the Muslims, and he led an expedition against the Christians when the Roman Empire first mobilized its forces with the object of subjugating the Muslims. And so scrupulous was he, that when he found that the enemy had not yet taken the initiative he did not attack the Roman Empire, but returned without fighting.

يَا خَوَاهِهِمْ وَيَسَابِقِ اللَّهِ إِلَا أَن يُثَبِّتَ
نُورَهُ وَلَوْ كَرِهَ الْكَافِرُونَ

1050 That there was a sect among the Jews who raised Ezra to the dignity of godhead, or son of God, is shown by Muslim historians. Qastalani says, in the Kitāb-un-Nikāh, that there was a party of Jews who held this belief. Nor did the Jews deny this allegation. The Qur-ān, too, mentions it only here in connection with the Christian doctrine, never blaming the Jews directly in the many controversies with them in the earlier chapters, and this shows that the Jewish nation as a whole was not guilty of entertaining this belief.

Another explanation of the statement made here is the free use of the word son. Elsewhere the Qur-ān says of the Jews and the Christians that they call themselves the sons of Allah and His beloved ones (5 : 18), the meaning only being that they considered themselves special favourites of the Divine Being. Hence the belief regarding Ezra may be interpreted in the same light, for there is clear evidence that the Talmudists used very exaggerated language concerning him. Among the prophets of Israel, Ezra was specially honoured. In Rabbinical literature Ezra was considered "worthy of being the vehicle of the law, had it not been already given through Moses." "He is regarded and quoted as the type of person most competent and learned in the law. The Rabbis associate his name with several important institutions" (Jewish Encyclopædia).

1051 The words قَاتَلَهُمُ اللَّهُ are understood by some to mean لَعَنَهُمُ اللَّهُ being an imprecation meaning may Allah curse them. But Righ favours قَاتَلَهُمُ اللَّهُ as being the true interpretation, the meaning being Allah has slain or destroyed them, for he says that though the word qatala is one of the measure of fā'ala, yet, as it refers to the Divine Being, it signifies qatala. The statement may thus either refer to the fate of previous people who were destroyed or it may be a prophetic statement.

1052 Most of the commentators agree that it does not mean that they took them actually for gods; the meaning is that they obeyed them in what they enjoined and what they forbade (Rz), and therefore they are described as having taken them for lords, on account of attaching to them a dignity which ought to have been attached only to Allah. Muslims who accord a similar position to their pirs or saints are guilty of the same error.

1053 This is a prophecy of the ultimate triumph of the principles of Islam in face of severe opposition from the Jews and Christians. Though the Jewish opposition died long ago, the Christian opposition has been growing stronger day by day. The gradual acceptance by the world of the principles of Islam is, however, a clear indication of the fulfilment of the prophecy.

33 He it is who sent His Apostle with guidance and the religion of truth, that He might cause it to prevail over all religions, though the polytheists may be averse.¹⁰⁵⁴

34 O you who believe! most surely many of the doctors of law and the monks eat away the property of men falsely, and turn (them) from Allah's way; and (as for) those who hoard up gold and silver and do not spend it in Allah's way, announce to them a painful chastisement,¹⁰⁵⁵

35 On the day when it shall be heated in the fire of hell, then their foreheads and their sides and their backs shall be branded with it: This is what you hoarded up for yourselves, therefore taste what you hoarded.¹⁰⁵⁶

36 Surely the number of months with Allah is twelve months in Allah's ordinance since the day when He created the heavens and the earth, of these four being sacred;* that is the right reckoning; therefore be not unjust to yourselves regarding them,¹⁰⁵⁷ and fight the 1054 Temporary political triumph of the followers of one religion over those of another does not mean the triumph of that religion; yet it is from the political predominance of Christian nations that some Christians argue the superiority of their religion. It is the gradual acceptance of the principles of Islam by the world at large that is bringing about the fulfilment of this prophecy. The advent of the Messiah and the Mahdi is specially regarded as the time of the prevalence of the Islamic principles (Rz), and the adoption of these principles by the most advanced Christian nations of the day, notwithstanding their strong prejudice against Islam itself, no doubt shows the inauguration of that happy era. The doctrine of atonement, and that of the Divinity of Jesus Christ, are dying a natural death, and monotheism is daily gaining ground, while other principles of Islam are equally advancing day by day.

1055 The acquisition of wealth is not disallowed, but the hoarding of it so as not to spend it in the cause of truth and for the welfare of humanity is denounced. Nations which have hoarded wealth, instead of spending it for the welfare of humanity, have never risen to a dignified position.

1056 The punishment of an evil is spoken of throughout the Holy Qur-án as similar to the evil. Even in this world, a man feels a torment similar to the nature of the evil in which he indulges. Being branded with the hoarded wealth is thus a fit description of the chastisement of the hoarders.

1057 The allusion here is to the Arab practice of postponing the pilgrimage to a month other than that in which it fell, for which see the next verse (Rz). Whether the object was intercalation, in order to make the solar and lunar year tally, or whether a continuous cessation of war for a fourth part of the year was too long, is a disputed point; but such postponement was undoubtedly a great hardship for a majority of the people. The word din here does not mean religion, but reckoning. For this significance of the word, see TA.

1058 Fighting is prohibited in the sacred months, but otherwise the Muslims were told to fight with the idolaters as the idolaters fought with them; i.e. since all idolaters united in fighting with the Muslims, the latter, too, must deal with them all as belligerents.

1059 According to most of the commentators, nasi means postponement, and refers to the practice of postponing observance of the sacred months, thus allowing an ordinary month to be observed as sacred and a sacred month to be treated as ordinary (Rz). This practice interfered with the security of life which was guaranteed in the sacred months, and is, therefore, denounced. According to others, nasi means addition (of a month), and refers to the practice of the intercalation of a month every fourth year. AH prefers the first, and says that the three successive months of Zilqad, Zilhaj, and Muharram seemed too long to them to refrain from their depredations and bloodshed, and therefore they violated the last of these, keeping sacred instead the next, i.e. Safar.

1060 The reference in what follows is to the expedition of Tabúk, which was undertaken in the middle of the ninth year of Hejira owing to the threatening attitude of the Roman Emperor. There were many hindrances for the raising of an army sufficient to meet the strong forces of the Roman Empire. The chief of these enumerated by Rz are: (1) a great drought; (2) the length of the journey to the confines of Syria; (3) the ripening of the fruits,

39 If you do not go forth, He will chastise you with a painful chastisement and bring in your place a people other than you, and you will do Him no harm; and Allah has power over all things.¹⁰⁶¹

40 If you will not aid him, Allah certainly aided him when those who disbelieved expelled him, he being the second of the two, when they were both in the cave, when he said to his companion: Grieve not, surely Allah is with us.¹⁰⁶² So Allah sent down His tranquility upon him and strengthened him with hosts which you did not see, and made lowest the word of those who disbelieved; and the word of Allah, that is the highest; and Allah is Mighty, Wise.

41 Go forth light and heavy,¹⁰⁶³ and strive hard in Allah's way with your property which were now ready to be gathered; (4) the intensity of the heat and (5) the organization and power of the Roman army. These difficulties hindered the hypocrites from joining the army, but the Muslims cared for none of them, and 30,000 men gathered round the Prophet's banner.

1061 The reference in this and the following verses is to certain men who, while professing belief, hesitated in accepting the Prophet's call to prepare themselves for the expedition.

Abū Bakr's devotion to the Holy Prophet was so great that he chose him to be his "sole companion," the second of the two, as he is called in the Qur-ān, in that most critical hour of his life. The following account from Muir will explain the reference: "He himself went straightway to the house of Abū Bakr, and after a short consultation, ventured the plan for immediate flight. Abū Bakr shed tears of joy; the hour for emigration had at last arrived, and he was to be the companion of the Prophet's journey. . . . They crept in the shade of the evening through a back window, and escaped unobserved from the southern suburb. Pursuing their way south, and clambering in the dark up the bare and rugged ascent, they reached at last the lofty peak of Mount Saur, distant about an hour and a half from the city, and took refuge in a cavern near its summit. . . . The sole companion, or in Arabic phraseology the second of the two, became one of Abū Bakr's most honoured titles. . . . Muhammad and his companion felt it no doubt to be a time of jeopardy. Glancing upwards through a crevice through which the morning light began to break, Abū Bakr whispered: 'What if one were to look through the chink and see us underneath his very foot!' 'Think not thus, Abū Bakr!' said the Prophet. 'We are two, but God is in the midst a third.'"

1063 That is, whether it is easy or difficult for you to proceed, or whether you are unarmed or armed (Rz).

1064 Tabúk, for which the expedition was meant, was midway between Medina and Damascus. The Arabs were accustomed to fighting near home; hence, the distance was one of the chief considerations which held back those who were insincere in their professions of the faith of Islam.

1065 A misunderstanding of the Arabic idiom عفا الله عنك translated here as Allah pardon you, has led to some adverse criticism as to the sinlessness of the Prophet. Nothing of this kind is intended. There was no violation of any Divine commandment, and in all the previous battles, whenever the hypocrites refrained from joining the Muslim army, the Prophet passed over this attitude of theirs with forgiveness, and he was never reproved. The phrase is used here to show greater honour and respect to the person addressed (Rz): فلا يكون غرضه من هذا الكلام إلا مزيد التبجيل والتعظيم Thus actual forgiveness of sins is not at all meant in the use of this phrase.

46 And if they had intended to go forth, they would certainly have provided equipment for it, but Allah did not like their going forth, so He withheld them, and it was said (to them): Hold back with those who hold back.

47 Had they gone forth with you, they would not have added to you aught save corruption, and they would certainly have hurried about among you seeking (to sow) dissension among you, and among you there are those who hearken for their sake; and Allah knows the unjust.¹⁰⁶⁶

Ar. thee.

48 Certainly they sought (to sow) dissension before, and they meditated plots against you until the truth came, and Allah's commandment prevailed although they were averse (from it).

1066 These verses were revealed during the journey to Tabúk, where most of the hypocrites themselves were not present. But a few had accompanied the expedition to inform others of their party of the happenings on the way.

1067 The two most excellent things are, the laying down of life in the cause of truth, or being sharer in the ultimate triumph of truth. The Muslims never thought that they could be defeated. They would either die defending the cause of truth or live and conquer.

53 Say : Spend willingly or unwillingly, it shall not be accepted from you ; surely you are a transgressing people.

The only punishment that the hypocrites received from the hands of the Muslims was, they were named and turned out of the mosque, and were henceforward known as being hypocrites. Otherwise their liberty was not interfered with. There is mention of one of them living in Medina to the time of Usman, the third Caliph, in full enjoyment of his rights as a citizen ; the only distinctive treatment mentioned of him is that the poor-rate was not accepted from him by the Holy Prophet, or by his three immediate successors (Rz. v. 75).

1068 The hypocrites experienced earthly torture about their property and children for two reasons : (1) because, avowing their belief in Islam, they had to take some share in its defensive expeditions and thus spend part of their property, unwillingly though it was, in the cause of Islam ; (2) the children of many of them were true believers, and they knew that after their death their property and their children were to become a source of strength to the very religion which they tried to extirpate

Allah will soon give us (more) out of His grace and His Apostle too: surely to Allah do we make our petition.

61 And there are some of them who molest the Prophet and say, He is one who believes every thing that he hears;¹⁰⁷⁰ say: A hearer of good for you (who) believes in Allah and believes the faithful, and a mercy for those of you who believe; and (as for) those who molest the Apostle of Allah, they shall have a painful chastisement.

1069 That by alms is here meant the obligatory alms, called the poor-rate, and not voluntary alms, is shown by the concluding words of the verse, which calls it an ordinance from Allah. The verse defines the objects for which the poor-rate may be spent. Altogether eight heads of expenditure are recognized. The recognition of paying the wages of collectors and other servants employed in connection with the poor-rate from that fund shows that the institution was meant for raising a public fund, whose management should entirely be in the hands of a public body. It is sad to note that, as the Qur-án would have it, the institution of Zakát is entirely neglected by the Muslims.

المؤلفة قلوبهم lit. means those whose hearts are made to incline or conciliated.

With respect to the preaching of a religion there is always a class which is ready to listen. Expenses in connection with the arrangements to convey the truth to them are recognized here as a part of the necessary expenditure of the poor-rate. I'Ab's suggestion that some Arab chiefs are meant is rejected by Rz. The incident he relates does not at all refer to the expenditure of the poor-rate, but to the distribution of what was acquired in the battle of Hunain.

Some limit the significance of فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ to warriors (fighting in the defence of faith and the community), or those who are engaged in propagating the Islamic doctrines, while others think that the words are general and include every charitable purpose (Rz).

1070 The word ugun, lit. an ear, is applied to one who hears and believes everything that is said to him, "as though by reason of the excess of his listening he were altogether the organ of hearing, like as a spy is termed 'ain' (lit. eye) (LL). The hypocrites made various derogatory remarks concerning the Prophet, saying among other things that he was a man who believed everything that he heard, and they were therefore sure that they would make him believe their hypocritical professions; or they called him an ear for the reason that he was careful about what was said, as if a prophet should not care about what others said and did. Rodwell is wrong when he says in his note on this word that uzun means injure. Palmer has also made a mistake here. The error is due to the confusion of the word usun with asá, the latter, with a tanwin, sounding as agan.

1071 Though Allah and His Apostle are both mentioned together, yet the duty of the faithful is here said to be to please Him, i.e. Allah, alone. This shows the sublimity of the idea of Divine Unity in Islam.

1072 History shows that most of the hypocrites ultimately repented and sincerely joined the ranks of the faithful.

The Hypocrites

73, 74. They fail to attain what they desire. 75-78. They fail to perform their promises. 79, 80. Their mockery and unbelief.

73 O Prophet! strive hard against the unbelievers and the hypocrites and be unyielding to them; and their abode is hell, and evil is the destination.¹⁰⁷³

يَا أَيُّهَا النَّبِيُّ جَاهِدِ الْكُفَّارَ
الْمُنَافِقِينَ وَاغْلُظْ عَلَيْهِمْ
مَّا وَهُمْ يَجَاهِدُونَ

1073 Jahada signifies he strove or exerted himself, and jihād is the using one's utmost power in contending with an object of disapprobation (Rgh, TA-LL). It is in a secondary sense that the word signifies fighting, but it is repeatedly used in the Holy Qur-ān in its primary significance, and this is one of the occasions which establishes the truth of this beyond all doubt, because those who professed Islam were never fought against, even though their professions may have manifestly been insincere—as on this occasion and on the occasion of the battle of Uhud. Rz's comment on this verse is similar: "The correct rendering is that jihād signifies striving, or exerting oneself, and there is nothing in the word to indicate that this striving is to be effected by the sword or by the tongue or by any other method."

It shows an utter ignorance of the Arabic language to take the word jāhid here as meaning fight with sword. See a similar statement in the 25th chapter, which was revealed long before fighting was permitted to Muslims: "And strive against them a mighty striving with it" (25: 52), where it stands for the Qur-ān. Hence there is no change of attitude towards the opponents, no intolerance; all that is meant is that the Prophet must continue to preach forcibly both against the unbelievers and the hypocrites. It is a fact, as is shown in 1075 and 1076, that none of the hypocrites were punished with death, or indeed with any other punishment, except that their connections with the Muslims, both temporal and spiritual, were entirely cut off. Some of the known hypocrites lived in Medina as late as the reign of Usman.

غَلْظَ عَلَيْهِمْ properly means be firm or hard or invincible against them, from غَلْظَ

الزَّرْعِ i.e. the seed-produce became thick or strong (LL). Thus in the interpretation of

74 They swear by Allah that they did not speak, and certainly they did speak, the word of unbelief, and disbelieved after their Islam, and they had determined upon what they have not been able to effect,¹⁰⁷⁴ and they did not find fault except because Allah and His Apostle enriched them out of His grace;¹⁰⁷⁵ therefore if they repent, it will be good for them; and if they turn back, Allah will chastise them with a painful chastisement in this world and the hereafter, and they shall not have in the land any guardian or a helper.

75 And there are those of them who made a covenant with Allah: If He give us out of His grace, we will certainly give alms and we will certainly be of the good.

76 But when He gave them out of His grace, they became niggardly of it and they turned back, and they withdrew.

77 So He made hypocrisy to follow as a consequence into their hearts till the day when they shall meet Him because they failed to perform towards Allah what they had promised with Him and because they told lies.

78 Do they not know that Allah knows their hidden thoughts and their secret counsels, and that Allah is the great Knower of the unseen things?

79 Those who taunt the free givers of alms among the believers and them who cannot find but to the extent of their power, so they scoff at them; Allah will pay them back their scoffing, and they shall have a painful chastisement.¹⁰⁷⁶

1074 This is the slaying of the Prophet and the extirpation of Islam. In fact, the hypocrites failed in every object they set out to accomplish.

1076 When subscriptions were solicited for the expedition to Tabūk, the wealthier members of the Muslim community gave large donations, while the poorer ones also paid their mite. The hypocrites taunted both, the former as making a show of their wealth, the latter as bringing in their small subscriptions only to be counted among the subscribers (Rz. AH). The word sakhira, in this verse, carries exactly the same significance as the word yastahzi'u in 2: 15. See 27.

1077 The spiritual relations with the hypocrites are henceforth cut off. The mention of seventy may not indicate the specific number here. For this use of the word sab'a and sab'in, see 46. Bkh, however, records the report of an incident here which shows that the Holy Prophet took it literally at the burial service of 'Abdulla bin Ubayy, the recognized leader of the hypocrites. This report, which comes through Nāfi' bin 'Umar, and through 'Umar himself, filtering through various channels, and must therefore be accepted as true, is to the following effect: "When 'Abdulla bin Ubayy died, his son came to the Holy Prophet and requested him to grant him his shirt, so that he might use it as a wrapping-cloth for the dead body of his father. The Prophet granted his request. Then he asked him to conduct the burial ceremony. The Holy Prophet got up, but 'Umar took hold of his garment and objected on the ground that 'Abdulla was a hypocrite and that Allah had forbidden the Holy Prophet to offer prayer for him. The Holy Prophet replied that Allah had given him a choice (referring to the words of this verse: ask forgiveness for them or do not ask forgiveness for them), and that he would ask forgiveness for him for over seventy times, if only by his doing so forgiveness could be extended to the dead man. Then he offered prayers for him. Verse 84 is said to have been revealed to stop the offering of prayers for those who were known to be hypocrites.

The incident shows how kind and forgiving the Holy Prophet was to his severest enemies. 'Abdulla bin Ubayy was the man who had led the hypocritical movement against him the whole of his life, and thus was not only one of his worst enemies, but at the same time a most dangerous one, because he was aware of all the movements of the Muslims and deceived them at the most critical moments. Yet the Holy Prophet would have forgiven him entirely.

1078 لْيَضْحَكُوا and لْيَبْكُوا would literally mean let them laugh and let them weep, but, as the context shows, these words describe the condition to which they were to be reduced.

1079 Thus temporal connections with the hypocrites were cut off. It should be noted that this is the only punishment given to the hypocrites, viz. that they were not allowed to take part in future expeditions against the enemies of the Muslims. It is also related that from one of them, Sa'ib, whose story is referred to by the commentators under v. 75, the Holy Prophet and the three Caliphs who followed him refused to accept the poor-rate until the man died in Usman's caliphate. V. 103 leads us to the same conclusion. See 1092. These were the only disadvantages, if it is right to call them so, which the hypocrites suffered. They were not looked upon as members of the Muslim community, but as citizens they enjoyed all the rights of other citizens.

1080 The commentators generally relate here the story of 'Abdulla bin Ubayy, who was the chief of the Medina hypocrites. There are some reports to the effect that when he lay on his death-bed he requested the Holy Prophet to send him his shirt, so that he might be buried in it, and to conduct his burial service. The Prophet accepted the first of these requests and sent him his shirt, but refused the other as being opposed to this Divine injunction (Rz). But see 1077, which shows that the Holy Prophet conducted his burial ceremony and that the revelation of this verse was later. Some who shut their eyes to all historical facts would find fault with the Holy Prophet for his refusal, if he actually refused: but reliable testimony is opposed to this. On the other hand, the sending of the shirt to one who had led a secret movement against the Holy Prophet all his life, and had left no stone unturned to bring the Muslim community to discomfiture and disgrace, was an act of magnanimity unparalleled in the life of any great man. As for the injunction not to offer prayers for hypocrites, the reason is given along with the injunction in the verse: Surely they disbelieve in Allah and His Apostle. Thus the Holy Prophet had been informed that they were unbelievers in heart, and therefore should not be treated as Muslims; the burial service of Islam was only for Muslims and not for unbelievers. It is, further, clear from the words of this verse that those who were known to be hypocrites were not punished with death or 88 But the Apostle and those who believe with him strive hard with their property and their persons; and these it is who shall have the good things and these it is who shall be successful.

89 Allah has prepared for them gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide in them; that is the great achievement.

killed in fighting, but lived to die a natural death. The case of 'Abdulla bin Ubayy, who died in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, and that of Sa'iba, who died in the reign of Usman, are sufficient to prove this, while there is not a single case on record of any one of them having been put to death.

Standing by the grave refers to the Prophet's practice of praying for the deceased standing by his grave after the burial (Zj-Rz).

The words, therefore, do not prohibit mere standing on the grave, but praying is here really forbidden.

1081 The tribes of Asad and Ghatfan, according to some, and the family of Amr-ibn-ut-Tufail, according to others, are meant here. The word mu'azzir is either the noun form of 'azzara, meaning he was remiss, wanting, deficient in an affair, setting up an excuse for it, or is a variation of mu'tazir, from i'tazara, meaning he excused himself or had an excuse. In the former case the excuse would be necessarily false, and in the latter it may be either true or false (Rz, Kf).

1082 Al-A'rāb is a collective general noun (said by Az to be plural of a'rābi, LL) signifying the dwellers of the desert (of Arabia), who move from place to place in search of herbage and water, whether of Arabs or their freemen, as distinguished from 'Arab, which signifies those whose descent can be traced to Arabs (Az-LA). And the same authority adds: "It is not permissible to call the Muhajirs (those companions of the Prophet who fled from Mecca on account of persecution) and the Ansār (those companions who helped the Prophet at Medina) A'rāb: they are Arabs because they made their homes in the Arabian towns and settled in cities.

1083 Apparently, what they wanted to join the expedition, and what the Prophet could not find for them, were beasts to ride upon and to carry their provisions and necessaries (AH). But some commentators suggest that they asked for provisions, while others say that they wanted "patched boots and soled shoes" for the long journey (AH).

1084 Evidently these verses were revealed when the Prophet was away from Medina, and the statements made in them are therefore prophetic, being exactly fulfilled on his return to Medina.

1085 Muqātil says that 'Abdulla, son of Ubayy, and the son of Abi Sarh swore that they would not remain behind in any future expedition (AH).

Their object in begging the Muslims to turn aside from them was that they should not reprove them for their misconduct (Rz, AH), and the Muslims are enjoined to turn aside from them in the sense of severing their connection with them (I'Ab-Rz). It is related that on his return from Tabūk the Holy Prophet forbade the Muslims to have any intercourse with the hypocrites. This injunction was in obedience to the revelation which he had received during the journey, as is clearly shown in vv. 83, 84.

1086 Maghram and gharm (a thing that must be paid, LL) mean, according to Rgh, damage or loss that befalls a man in his property, but not for any injurious action of his. The hypocrites had to contribute something for the sake of appearance, though they considered such contributions to be no more than a loss. According to some, spending here refers to the payment of the poor-rate. The tribes of Asad, Ghatfan, and Tameem used to give contributions and pay the poor-rate (AH).

Dā'irah means primarily the circuit, and a calamity is so called because it encompasses a man on all sides, or it signifies a turn of fortune, from dara, meaning it turned. Dā'irat us sau is the calamity which befalls and destroys (Msb-LL). It is a prophetic announcement.

99 And of the dwellers of the desert are those who believe in Allah and the latter day and take what they spend to be (means of) the nearness of Allah and the Apostle's prayers; surely it shall be means of nearness for them; Allah will make them enter into His mercy; surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

The Hypocrites

1087 Muhájirín is plural of muhájir, meaning literally one who flies from or forsakes his home, and ansár is plural of násir, meaning one who helps. In the history of Islam, the former word came to signify all those companions of the Holy Prophet who, having embraced Islam at Mecca, had to fly from their homes either to Abyssinia or to Medina; the latter flight, including about all the Meccan Muslims, is known as the Flight, and the Muslim era dates from it; the latter word signifies the Medina Muslims who, having accepted Islam before the Flight, gave shelter to those who fled from Mecca. But there is a slight difference of opinion; Abú Músá and several others say the description given here includes all those who prayed towards the two Qiblahs (i.e. those who became Muslims before the change of Qiblah took place, which happened sixteen months after the Flight). 'Atá makes it include all those who witnessed the battle of Badr, which took place about the same time as the change of Qiblah, while Shi'bí considers that all those who took part in the Bai'at-ir-Ridwán, the pledge taken at Hudiabiyya in the sixth year of the Flight, are meant (AH, Rz). The opinion generally favoured is that all the companions of the Holy Prophet are meant, while by "those who followed them in goodness" are meant the Muslims who came after the companions and followed their good deeds (Rz).

1089 The insincerity of the heart could not be known to a mortal, but the secrets of the heart are known to Allah. Events had, however, come to pass which ultimately separated the hypocrites from the Muslims after they had been mingled with them for a long time.

1090 The hypocrites were punished twice in this life. They had to take part in all contributions for the defence of the Muslim community and more or less in the defence itself, and had to pay the poor-rate, all this against their conviction and unwillingly, and this was, no doubt, a source of great torment to them. After having suffered all this torment for the sake of being reckoned Muslims, they were ultimately separated from the Muslims, for it is reported that the Holy Prophet named them while addressing a congregation in the Juma' prayers, and they had to leave the assembly in the sight of the whole congregation, and this exposure to public shame was no doubt a great punishment for them (IJ).

1091 According to different reports, the number of these men varied from three to ten. They were sincere and confessed their fault.

1092 Because they showed sincerity in confessing their faults they are dealt with leniently. Their alms are not to be rejected, and the Prophet is commanded to take a part of their property for charitable purposes. The Prophet's acceptance of alms from them is here spoken of as purifying them of evil, while his prayer for them is described as bringing peace and quiet to them, and this is an example of the effectiveness of the Holy Prophet's intercession for his followers. It also shows that poor-rate was not accepted from the hypocrites, as has already been stated.

106 And others are made to await Allah's command, whether He chastise them or whether He turn to them (mercifully); and Allah is Knowing, Wise.¹⁰⁹³

107 And those who built a mosque to cause harm and for unbelief and to cause disunion among the believers and an ambush to him who made war against Allah and His Apostle before; and they will certainly swear: We did not desire aught but good; and Allah bears witness that they are most surely liars.¹⁰⁹⁴

108 Never stand in it; certainly a mosque founded on piety from the very first day is more deserving that you should stand in it; in it are men who love that they should be purified; and Allah loves those who purify themselves.¹⁰⁹⁵

109 Is he, therefore, better who lays his foundation on fear of Allah and (His) good pleasure, or he who lays his foundation on the edge of a cracking hollowed bank, so it broke down with him into the 1093 On the authority of I'Ab, and several others, this is generally supposed to refer to three of the believers who held back from the expedition, viz. Ka'b-bin-Málik, Halál-bin-Umayya, and Marárah-bin-Rabí'. But some think that it refers to the hypocrites generally; others consider the reference to be to the hypocrites who built the mosque spoken of in the next verse, or to a tribe of the hypocrites regarding whom no orders were given at the time (AH).

1094 According to I'Ab and other commentators, twelve men from among the hypocrites (Rz) of the tribe of Bani Ghanam built a mosque at the instigation of Abú 'Ámir in the neighbourhood of the mosque of Quba, with the object of causing harm to that mosque. Abú 'Ámir, who, after fighting against the Holy Prophet for a long time, had fled to Syria after the battle of Hunain, had written to his friends at Medina that he was coming with a formidable army to crush the Prophet, and that they should build a mosque for him. But Abú 'Ámir died in Syria, and the founders desired the Holy Prophet to give it a blessing by his presence, which he was forbidden to do by Divine revelation, and the mosque was demolished (AH, Rz, Kf). By him who made war against Allah and His Apostle is meant not only Abú 'Ámir, but all those who answered this description, for it was built with the object of promoting opposition against Islam.

1095 Some commentators understand by this the mosque at Quba, while the greater number regard the Prophet's mosque at Medina as meant here, while others still consider that both mosques may be meant (Rz). But the words are so general that every mosque raised for the service of Allah may be included in this description.

fire of hell; and Allah does not guide the unjust people.

110 The building which they have built will ever continue to be a source of disquiet in their hearts, except that their hearts get cut into pieces; and Allah is Knowing, Wise.¹⁰⁹⁶

1096 Their hearts could be cut into pieces either by severe regret or by sincere repentance (Rz).

1097 The Christian critics declare this to be untrue. Wherry quotes Brinkman's Notes on Islam, declaring this verse "the greatest untruth in the whole of the Qur-án," and himself adds in his comment on the verse that it has not only "no foundation in truth," but the teaching is diametrically opposed to all the doctrines of the Bible. What particular doctrine the reverend gentleman was thinking of when he made this comment is difficult to say. The promise which is said to be binding on Allah, as laid down in the Qur-án, as well as in the previous books, is this, that Allah will grant the believers His blessings if they exert themselves with their persons as well as their property in His way: Allah has bought of the believers their persons and their property for this, that they shall have the garden. Is not the same principle, in different words, no doubt, laid down in the Torah and the Gospel, and still found there, notwithstanding the alterations they have undergone? "If thou wilt be perfect," said Jesus to a wealthy man, "go and sell that thou hast and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow me" (Matt. 19:21). And when Peter said: "Behold, we have forsaken all and followed thee; what shall we have therefore?" Jesus gave them the promise that they should sit upon "twelve thrones," and added, "Every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or land, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold and shall inherit everlasting life." Moses' teaching contains similar promises. For instance, the promise of God, "that ye may increase mightily in land that floweth with milk and honey," is made conditional on "thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and all thy soul and with all thy might" (Deut. 6:3 and 5), which is the same as exerting oneself to one's utmost power in the way of them off long before. Under this verse, prayers would not be offered for those who die in unbelief.

1099 If the idolaters had chosen a wrong course and gone to such extremes against the Muslims that the latter were now compelled to cut off even their spiritual relations with them, their error was not ascribable to Allah, for He had not only sent His guidance, but even pointed out what they should guard against. The verse establishes in clear words that Allah never leads a people astray; and how should He lead astray, says the Holy Qur-án, when He goes to the extent of making clear to them what evil they should guard against?

1100 Ibn-i-'Atiyya thus explains the meaning of tába in this verse: "Taubah on the part of Allah means His turning to His servant from one state to another which is higher than it." Therefore, Allah's turning mercifully does not indicate that there has been any disobedience. The context, in fact, throws clear light upon this meaning of taubah, for whereas only a small part of the Ansár (Helpers) are stated to have, not actually swerved, but to have only thought of swerving, Allah's turning mercifully is in relation to the Prophet and those sincere believers who are plainly stated to have followed the Prophet in the hour of straitness, thus showing that it was in relation to those who were obedient under the severest difficulties, and not to those who were disobedient; the latter being dealt with in the next verse. The known as the غزوة العسرة or the expedition of straitness, because of the excessive heat, and scarcity of food and water, so that sometimes only a single date had to be divided between two men, and men being parched with thirst slaughtered camels to quench it; there was also a scarcity of animals, so that ten men had but a single camel (AH); but really, the whole period of about twenty-one years from the preaching of the Prophet had been one of the severest difficulties for the Muslims.

What the Faithful should do

119-121. The faithful should remain true to the Prophet. 122. A certain part from each class should study religion and instruct others.

119 O you who believe! be careful of (your duty to) Allah and be with the true ones.

120 It did not beseem the people of Medina and those round about them of the dwellers of the desert to remain behind the Apostle of Allah, nor should they desire (any thing) for themselves in preference to him;¹¹⁰² this is because there afflicts them not thirst or fatigue or hunger in Allah's way, nor do they tread a path which enrages the unbelievers, nor do they attain from the enemy what they 1101 The three men were from among the Anṣār, whose names have already been given in 1093. The words were left behind are explained as meaning either left behind at the time of the expedition or left behind with respect to the commandment of Allah concerning them, being, it is said, the persons referred to in v. 106, "And others are made to await Allah's command, whether He chastise them or whether He turn to them (mercifully)." The latter explanation was given by Ka'b himself, one of the three men (AH). They remained cut off from all intercourse with Muslims, including their wives, for fifty days. Ka'b was a man of importance, and when he received a letter from the king of Ghassan offering him a position under him if he deserted the Holy Prophet, he burned the letter, showing his contempt for the offer, and gave no reply (Ibn-i-Hisham).

1102 The meaning is that they should neither desire rest for themselves, comfort, nor protection, in preference to the Prophet; in other words, they should accompany him in difficulty and distress. The ordinary rendering of this phrase—nor should they prefer their lives to his life—does not carry the true sense of the original. When the Holy Prophet set out on the expedition to Tabūk, various considerations withheld some men from joining him, but the true believers among these soon saw their error, and joined the expedition on its way to Tabūk. Among the last of these was Abū Khaismah, who, sitting in his garden in the shade, thus argued within himself: A cool shade, and ripe dates, and cool drink, and a beautiful wife—and the Apostle of Allah exposed to heat and air; this is not good; and he at once joined the Holy Prophet.

attain, but a good work is written down to them on account of it; surely Allah does not waste the reward of the doers of good;¹¹⁰³

121 Nor do they spend any thing that may be spent, small or great, nor do they traverse a valley, but it is written down to their credit, that Allah may reward them with the best of what they have done.

122 And it does not beseem the believers that they should go forth all together; why should not then a company from every party from among them go forth that they may apply themselves to obtain understanding in religion,¹¹⁰⁴ and that they may warn their people when they come back to them that they may be cautious?

The Object effected by Revelation

123-125. Revelation strengthens the faithful and weakens the hypocrites. 126, 127. The trials. 128, 129. The Prophet's zeal and reliance on Allah.

123 O you who believe! fight those of the unbelievers who are near to you¹¹⁰⁵ and let them find in you hardness;¹¹⁰⁶ and know that Allah is with those who guard (against evil).

 غِلظَةً وَاعْلَمُوا أَنَّ اللَّهَ مَعَ الْمُتَّقِينَ

1103 Slaying, imprisoning, or defeating the enemy is meant by attaining from the enemy what they attain (Rz, Bq). نال منه means he harmed him, and so نال من عدوه means he attained the object of his desire from the enemy (Msb-LL).

1104 The introduction here of this subject of the study of religion shows the aim which the Qur-án has in view. In the midst of the ordinances relating to fighting, it introduces the subject of the preparation of a missionary force, thus showing that this was the greatest necessity of Islam. It was only by means of a missionary propaganda that truth could be spread, and the ultimate object was not to be lost sight of, even when the community was engaged in a life-and-death struggle against overwhelming forces of the enemy. This is the reason why the subject is introduced here.

1105 Here there is a plain injunction to fight only against those unbelievers who are near to you, because it was they who persecuted the Muslims. The commandment is not general, and gives us a rule of guidance in interpreting other commandments relating to fighting, for one part of the Qur-án explains another.

124 And whenever a chapter is revealed, there are some of them who say: Which of you has it strengthened in faith? Then as for those who believe, it strengthens them in faith and they rejoice.

126 Do they not see that they are tried once or twice in every year, yet they do not turn (to Allah) nor do they mind.¹¹⁰⁸

127 And whenever a chapter is revealed, they cast glances at one another: Does any one see you? Then they turn away: Allah has turned away their hearts because they are a people who do not understand.

128 Certainly an Apostle has come to you from among yourselves, grievous to him is your falling into distress, excessively solicitous respecting you, to the believers (he is) compassionate, merciful.^{1108a}

129 But if they turn back, say: Allah is sufficient for me, there is no god but He; on Him do I rely, and He is the Lord of mighty power.^b

وَلَا أَمَّا أُنزِلَتْ سُورَةٌ نَّظَرَ بَعْضُهُمْ إِلَى
بَعْضٍ هَلْ يَرِيكُمْ مِنْ أَحَدٍ ثُمَّ انْصَرَفُوا
صَرَحَ اللَّهُ قُلُوبَهُمْ بِأَنَّهُمْ قَوْمٌ لَا يَفْقَهُونَ
لَقَدْ جَاءَكُمْ رَسُولٌ مِنْ أَنْفُسِكُمْ عَزِيزٌ
عَلَيْهِ مَا عَنِتُّمْ حَرِيصٌ عَلَيْكُمْ بِالْمُؤْمِنِينَ
رَءُوفٌ رَحِيمٌ
فَإِنْ قُلُوا أَفَلَا حَسِبَى اللَّهِ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا هُوَ
عَلَيْهِ تَوَكَّلْتُ وَهُوَ رَبُّ الْعَرْشِ الْعَظِيمِ

1106 So that you do not yield to them or regard them as your well-wishers, which they would persuade you to do.

1107 The uncleanness of their hearts increased with new revelation, because it increased them in stubbornness, and their hearts were more and more hardened against truth. The new revelation became the occasion of their increased infidelity, and was not the effective cause; see 24.

1108 The various misfortunes which befell them or their vanquishment may be meant if unbelievers are taken as addressed here. If the hypocrites are addressed, the trials would then mean the incidents which distinguished the sincere believers from the hypocrites in the Prophet's lifetime.

1108a This is the true picture of the heart which grieved, not for his followers alone, not for one tribe or country, but for all humanity. He grieves for the burdens of all, and he is solicitous for the welfare of all, but there is a special relation he bears to those who follow him; to them he is, in addition, compassionate and merciful.

CHAPTER X

JONAH

(Yûnus)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(11 sections and 109 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1, 2. Truth of the Revelation.
- Sec. 3. Merciful dealing.
- Sec. 4. Uniqueness of Divine gifts.
- Sec. 5. The reprobate and their punishment.
- Sec. 6. Mercy takes precedence of punishment.
- Sec. 7. Believers and unbelievers.
- Sec. 8, 9. A reference to sacred history.
- Sec. 10. Those who heed warning will benefit.
- Sec. 11. All good is controlled by Allah.

The Title.

ALL that is said in this chapter of Jonah, after whom it is named, is an incidental reference to his people having benefited by the warning: "And wherefore was there not a town which should believe so that their belief should have profited them but the people of Jonah? When they believed, We removed from them the chastisement of disgrace in this world's life and We gave them provision till a time" (v. 98). There are more detailed references to Noah and Moses, but as the subject-matter of the chapter deals chiefly with the precedence of mercy over punishment, it is more in accord with Jonah's history; the name, therefore, of that prophet has been fitly chosen as a title.

Subject-matter.

The chief feature of this chapter is that while it asserts the truth of revelation, it also lays stress on the merciful dealing of the Divine Being with men. It opens with a statement of the truth of Divine revelation in the Holy Qur-ân, proceeding to a disquisition on its truth in the first two sections. The second section closes with a demand for a sign on the part of unbelievers, and they are told that judgment is deferred for a while; the reason being given in the third section, where it is shown that Divine dealing with men is characterized by mercy, and therefore He does not hasten punishment, but first shows mercy. The fourth section tells us that evidence of His mercy exists in nature, for He grants gifts which it is not in the power of any one else to grant, and as material gifts from Him are characterized by uniqueness, so is His gift of revelation, and the like of it cannot be produced by any one else. The fifth section states that the reprobate must ultimately meet with their punishment, while the sixth again calls attention to the preponderance of the quality of mercy in the Divine Being, while the seventh contrasts the believers with the unbelievers. The eighth and ninth sections refer briefly to the histories of Noah and Moses. The tenth states, by a brief allusion to Jonah, that those who heed the warning will benefit, and the last section shows that all good is controlled by the Divine Being, hence man must turn to Him.

SECTION 1

Truth of Revelation

1-6. Revelation and arguments of its truth. 7-10. Reward and punishment and their nature.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 I am Allah the Seeing.¹¹⁰⁹ These are the verses of the wise Book.¹¹¹⁰

2 What! is it a wonder to the people that We revealed to a man from among themselves, saying: Warn the people and give good news to those who believe that theirs is a footing of firmness with their Lord. The unbelievers say: This is most surely a manifest enchanter.

Or, high dignity.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ
الرَّسُولُ يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا
إِن كَانِ لِلنَّاسِ عِجَابٌ لِّمَا
رَجَلِي مِنْهُمْ أَنِ أَنْذِرِ النَّاسَ وَبَشِّرِ
الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا أَنَّ لَهُمْ قَدْ مَصِدي
عِنْدَ رَبِّهِمْ قَالِ الْكَافِرُونَ إِنَّ هَذَا
لَنَجْوَائِمٍ بَيْنِ يَدَيْهِ

Connection with the preceding Chapter.

The last chapter deals chiefly with the punishment of the guilty, and thus reveals the sterner side of Islam. But the circumstances which necessitated such punishment were brought about by the enemies themselves. While there is no inherent severity in the doctrines of Islam, there is, on the other hand, the Divine attribute to which the Holy Qur-án gives the greatest prominence—the attribute of mercy and compassion in the Divine Being. Hence a chapter dealing with the punishment of the guilty is immediately followed by one having for its theme the quality of mercy in the Divine Being, which takes precedence of all other attributes. Moreover, while the last section of the last chapter deals with the effect of revelation upon the faithful, this opens with the truth of that revelation.

Date of Revelation.

The weight of testimony is on the side of the chapter Jonah being entirely a Meccan revelation. Suggestions, however, have been made on the basis of internal testimony that vv. 94-97 belong to Medina (I'Ab-AH), because these refer to the Jews. But one authority rejects this opinion and holds v. 40 only to have been revealed at Medina, as, in his opinion, that verse speaks of the Jews (Kalbi-AH). Another suggestion is that from v. 40 to the end was revealed at Medina (AH). All these are, however, mere conjectures. It would be absurd to deny that references to the Jews and Jewish history are contained in the Meccan revelation, and as the entire chapter deals with one subject, the whole is undoubtedly of Meccan origin and belongs to the last Meccan period.

1109 Alif, lám, and rá are the three letters which stand at the head of this chapter and four other chapters, viz. 11th, 12th, 14th, and 15th, while the 13th chapter has alif, lám, mim, rá. The abbreviation is of the same form as alif, lám, mim, except that rá stands for Ríee, i.e. the seeing, or ard, i.e. I see, as the mim stands for a'lam, i.e. the best knower (see 11), which also explains the abbreviation at the commencement of the 13th chapter.

1110 The kitáb, or the Qur-án, is called hakim (wise) here either because it possesses wisdom, i.e. the quality which discriminates between truth and falsehood and right and wrong, or because it is muḥkam, i.e. free from all incongruity or unsoundness, or because it possesses both these qualities (Rgh).

3 Surely your Lord is Allah, Who created the heavens and the earth in six periods,^a and^b He is firm in power,^c regulating the affair; there is no intercessor except after His permission;^d this is Allah, your Lord, therefore serve Him; will you not then mind?

^a 8.
^b 45.
^c 595.

^d 79, 339, 607.

4 To Him is your return, of all (of you); the promise of Allah (made) in truth; surely He begins the creation in the first instance, then He reproduces it, that He may with justice recompense those who believe and do good; and (as for) those who disbelieve, they shall have a drink of hot water and painful chastisement because they disbelieved.

5 He it is Who made the sun a shining brightness and the moon a light,¹¹¹¹ and ordained for it mansions that you might know the computation of years and the reckoning. Allah did not create it but with truth; He makes the signs manifest for a people who know.¹¹¹²

6 Most surely in the variation of the night and the day, and what Allah has created in the heavens and the earth, there are signs for a people who guard (against evil).

7 Surely those who do not hope in Our meeting and are pleased with this world's life and are content with it, and those who are heedless of Our communications:

8 (As for) those, their abode is the fire because of what they earned.

إِنَّ رَبَّكُمْ اللَّهُ الَّذِي خَلَقَ السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضَ فِي سِتَّةِ أَيَّامٍ ثُمَّ اسْتَوَى عَلَى الْعَرْشِ يُبْذِرُ الْأَمْوَانَ وَيُغَيِّرُهَا وَيُعِيدُهَا إِنَّ رَبَّكُمْ لَعَلَّامُ الْغُيُوبِ
إِلَهُكُمْ رَبُّكُمْ فَاعْبُدُوهُ أَفَلَا تَذَكَّرُونَ
إِنَّهُ يَبْدَأُ الْخَلْقَ ثُمَّ يُعِيدُهُ إِنَّهُ يَرْجِعُ إِلَى الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّالِحَاتِ يَالْقُسُطُ وَالَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا لَهُمْ شُرَكَاءُ مِنْ حَوْمِهِمْ وَعَدَابُ اللَّهِ يَمَّا كَانُوا يَكْفُرُونَ

هُوَ الَّذِي جَعَلَ الشَّمْسُ ضِيَاءً وَالْقَمَرَ نُورًا وَقَدَرَهُ مَنَازِلَ لِتَعْلَمُوا عَدَدَ السِّنِينَ وَالْحِسَابَ مَا خَلَقَ اللَّهُ ذَلِكَ إِلَّا بِالْحَقِّ يُفَصِّلُ الْآيَاتِ لِقَوْمٍ يَعْلَمُونَ
إِنَّ فِي تَخْلُقِ الْيَلِّ وَالنَّهَارِ وَالْهَارِ وَالْخَلْقِ اللَّهُ فِي السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ لَا يَتَّخِذُ لِقَوْمٍ تَقْوُونَ

إِنَّ الَّذِينَ لَا يَرْجُونَ لِقَاءَنَا وَرَضُوا بِالْحَيَاةِ الدُّنْيَا وَالْمَالِ أَتْرَابَهَا وَالَّذِينَ هُمْ عَنْ آيَاتِنَا غَافِلُونَ
أُولَئِكَ مَأْوَاهُمُ النَّارُ بِمَا كَانُوا يَكْسِبُونَ

1111 Dau, or qid, is often considered synonymous with nur, but according to some authorities it has a more intensive significance than light (LL); while others maintain that dau, or qid, signifies that light which subsists by itself, and nur, that which subsists through some other thing (Mf. TA-ML). It is in this last sense that the moon is called a light, because its light is borrowed, as contrasted with the sun, which is called a qid.

1112 The whole of creation is, notwithstanding its variety, subject to one law, and clearly bears witness to the unity of its Maker. And just as the visible universe is subject to a law, there is also a law working in the spiritual and moral worlds.

b 844.

9 Surely (as for) those who believe and do good, their Lord will guide them by their faith; there shall flow from beneath them rivers in gardens of bliss.¹¹¹³

10 Their cry in it shall be: Glory to Thee, O Allah! and their greeting in it shall be: Peace; and the last of their cry shall be: Praise be to Allah, the Lord of the worlds.¹¹¹⁴

لَآ الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّالِحَاتِ يُهْدَىٰ
رَبُّهُمْ يَأْتِيهِمْ فِيهَا نَهْرٌ مِنْ تَحْتِهِمْ
أَلَّا تَهْمُرُنِي جَنَّتِ النَّبِيِّينَ
دَعْوُهُمْ فِيهَا سُبْحَانَكَ اللَّهُمَّ وَتَحِيَّاتُهُمْ
فِيهَا سَلَامٌ وَأَخِرَ دَعْوُهُمْ أَنْ الْحَمْدُ
لِلَّهِ رَبِّ الْعَالَمِينَ ۝

SECTION 2

Truth of the Revelation

11, 12. Mercy is shown and evil removed. 13, 14. A lesson. 15-17. Truth of revelation impressed. 18-20. Judgment deferred.

11 And if Allah should hasten the evil to men as they desire the hastening on of good, their doom should certainly have been decreed for them; but We leave those alone who hope not for Our meeting in their inordinacy, blindly wandering on.¹¹¹⁵

12 And when affliction touches a man, he calls on Us, whether lying on his side or sitting or standing; but when We remove his affliction from him, he passes on as though he had never called on Us on account of an affliction that touched him; thus that which they do is made fairseeming to the extravagant.^b

وَلَوْ يَعْجَلُ اللَّهُ لِلنَّاسِ الشَّرَّ اسْتَعْجَلَهُمْ
يَنْزِلُ لِقَاؤُنَا إِلَيْهِمْ أَجَلُهُمْ فَمَنْ
الَّذِينَ لَا يَرْجُونَ لِقَاءَنَا فِي طُغْيَانِهِمْ
يَعْمَهُونَ ۝
وَإِذَا مَسَّ الْإِنْسَانَ الضُّرُّ دَعَاَنَا
جُنُودَهُ أَوْ قَاعِدًا أَوْ قَائِمًا فَلَمَّا
كُفِّرْنَا عَنْهُ مُضْرَرَّهُ فَرَكَانَ لَمْ يَدْعُنَا
إِلَى ضُرِّهِ مَسَّةً وَلَا كَذًّا لَكَ رُسُلَنَا الْمُسْمِرِينَ فَمَا كَانُوا يَعْمَلُونَ ۝

b 809.

1113 The light of faith, which is even here a guiding principle of man's actions, will assume a more palpable form in the life after death. Compare 57: 12, where it is called the light running before them.

1114 Their first cry is the glorification of the Divine Being and their last His praise, and their talk with one another is nothing but "peace"; as is elsewhere said: "They shall not hear therein vain or sinful discourse, except the word Peace, peace" (56: 25, 26). This is the Muslim paradise, and this description is sufficient to put those to shame who say that the picture of the Muslim paradise drawn in Meccan revelation is characterized by sensuality.

1115 People desire and pray for good things to be hastened on to them, and Allah does hasten on to them those things in His mercy; but the opponents of the Holy Prophet were foolish enough to pray for the hastening on to them of evil, because they said: "O Allah! if this is the truth from Thee, then rain upon us stones from heaven, or inflict on us a painful chastisement" (8: 32); which, because of His great mercy, He did not hasten on to them, for if He had done so He would have at once destroyed them all.

13 And certainly We did destroy generations before you when they were unjust, and their apostles had come to them with clear arguments, and they would not believe; thus do We recompense the guilty people.

14 Then We made you (their) successors in the land after them so that We may see how you act.

15 And when Our clear communications are recited to them, those who hope not for Our meeting say: Bring a Qur-án other than this or change it.¹¹¹⁶ Say: It does not beseem me that I should change it of myself; I follow naught but what is revealed to me: surely I fear, if I disobey my Lord, the chastisement of a mighty day.¹¹¹⁷

16 Say: If Allah had desired (otherwise) I would not have recited it to you, nor would He have taught it to you: indeed I have lived a lifetime among you before it: do you not then understand?¹¹¹⁸

وَلَقَدْ أَهْلَكْنَا الْقُرُونَ مِنْ قَبْلِكُمْ لَمَّا ظَلَمُوا وَجَاءَهُمْ رَسُولُهُمْ بِالنَّبِيِّينَ وَمَا كَانُوا يَلْوُونَ أَلْئَامَهُمْ إِنَّكَ بِخَرَى الْقَوْمِ الْعَجِيزِينَ

ثُمَّ جَعَلْنَاكَ خَلِيفَ فِي الْأَرْضِ مِنْ بَعْدِهِمْ لَنَنْظُرَ كَيْفَ تَعْمَلُونَ

وَلَا تَأْتِنِ عَلَيْهِمْ يَا تَائِبِينَ قَالَ الَّذِينَ لَا يَرْجُونَ لِقَاءَنَا أَشْتَرُ بِعُرَائِنَا غَيْرُهُمْ أَوْ بَدَّلْ لَهُ قُلُوبًا يَكُونُ لِي أَنْ أَبَدِّلَهُ مِنْ تِلْقَائِي بِخَلْقٍ آخَرَ إِنْ أَنْتُمْ إِلَّا مَا يُوعَى إِلَيَّ إِنِّي أَخَافُ إِنْ عَصَيْتَ رَبِّي عَذَابٌ يَوْمٌ عَظِيمٌ

قُلْ لَوْ شَاءَ اللَّهُ مَا تَكُونُ عَنْكُمْ وَلَا أَدْرِكُكُمْ بِهِ فَقَدْ لَبِثْتُ فِيكُمْ عُمُرًا مِنْ قَبْلِهِ أَفَلَا تَتَفَكَّرُونَ

1116 They desire a revelation which should not condemn their evil ways and their idol-worship, nor contain any threats of their coming doom.

1117 When I fear the befalling of punishment to me if I should disobey my Lord, why should I not warn you who have rebelled against your Lord? The words do not imply that the Prophet meant to say that he did not change the Qur-án for fear of punishment. They show how true he himself was to revelation, translating every one of its precepts into practice.

1118 The Prophet's truthfulness and honesty before he received the Divine revelation were undisputed, and he had earned such renown for these qualities that he was known in the land as Al-Amin, i.e. the faithful one. The argument is that if, as they admitted, he had never told a lie in his lifetime, even for the sake of a personal advantage, how could he, now that he had passed the age of youth and passions, speak falsely, and that to his own detriment? Because he was not the gainer, but a sufferer thereby, on account of the persecutions which his preaching had brought about for him. It is related that, standing upon the mount Safá, he summoned one family after another of his people and asked them, when they had all assembled, if they had ever known him to have spoken a lie; and the answer being in the negative, he told them that if they did not mend their ways their doom would soon overtake them, at which Abú Lahab uttered a curse and they all went away; moreover, a man who had so long refrained from showing any interest in their lives and their modes of worship, and had all lived the silent life of a recluse among them, could not, of his own accord, be imagined to have suddenly changed the course of his life.

17 Who is then more unjust than he who forges a lie against Allah or (who) gives the lie to His communications? surely the guilty shall not be successful.

18 And they serve besides Allah what can neither harm them nor profit them, and they say: These are our intercessors with Allah. Say: Do you (presume to) inform Allah of what He knows not in the heavens and the earth? Glory be to Him, and supremely exalted is He above what they set up (with Him).

19 And people are naught but a single nation,* so they disagree,¹¹¹⁹ and had not a word already gone forth from your Lord, the matter would have certainly been decided between them in respect of that concerning which they disagree.¹¹²⁰

20 And they say: Why is not a sign sent to him from his Lord? Say: The unseen is only for Allah, therefore wait; surely I too with you am of those who wait.¹¹²¹

فَمَنْ أَظْلَمُ مِمَّنْ افْتَرَىٰ عَلَى اللَّهِ كَذِبًا
وَيَعْبُدُونَ مِن دُونِ اللَّهِ مَا لَكُمْ
بِهِمْ وَلَا يَنْفَعُهُمْ وَيَقُولُونَ هَؤُلَاءِ
شُفَعَاؤُنَا عِنْدَ اللَّهِ قُلْ أُنَبِّئُكُمْ
اللَّهُ يَمْلِكُ مَا لَا بَلَّ لَكُم فِي السَّمَوَاتِ
وَالْأَرْضِ سُبْحَانَهُ وَتَعَالَىٰ
عَمَّا يُشْرِكُونَ
وَمَا كَانَ النَّاسُ إِلَّا أُمَّةً وَاحِدَةً
فَاخْتَلَفُوا ۚ وَلَوْلَا كَلِمَةٌ سَبَقَتْ
مِّن رَّبِّكَ لَفُتِحَ بِهِمُ الْبَابُ
فِي هَؤُلَاءِ يَخْتَلِفُونَ
وَيَقُولُونَ لَوْلَا أُنزِلَ عَلَيْهِ آيَةٌ
مِّن رَّبِّهِ فَقُلْ إِنَّمَا الْغَيْبُ لِلَّهِ
فَانْتَظِرُوا إِنِّي مَعَكُمْ مِنَ الْمُنْتَظِرِينَ

1119 The opponents of the Holy Prophet also disagreed with him or refused to accept him, just as previous people had rejected their prophets, for all people are but a single nation.

1120 The word that had gone forth is referred to in many places. I may refer the reader to the following: "And they say, When will this threat come to pass, if you are truthful? Say: Maybe there may have drawn near to you somewhat of that which you seek to hasten on" (27: 71, 72). And again: "Say: You have the appointment of a day from which you cannot hold back any while, nor can you bring it on (before its time)" (34: 30) (see 2037).

1121 It is clear from the context that their demand is for the punishment with which they are threatened, because they would recognize no other sign; and the reply is that they must look forward to it, for even the particular sign which they demanded must come. The superficial reader may think there is a refusal here to show a sign, but the concluding words are too clear to warrant such a conclusion; they are told to wait for the sign to come.

SECTION 3

Merciful Dealing

21-24. Divine mercy follows afflictions. 25, 26. The righteous shall remain in peace. 27-30. The wicked must be punished.

21 And when We make people taste of mercy after an affliction touches them,¹¹²² lo! they devise plans against Our communications. Say: Allah is quicker to plan; surely Our messengers write down what you plan.

22 He it is who makes you travel by land and sea; until when you are in the ships, and they sail on with them in a pleasant breeze, and they rejoice at it, a violent wind overtakes them and the billows surge in on them from all sides, and they become certain that they are encompassed about, they pray to Allah, being sincere to Him in obedience: If Thou dost deliver us from this, we will most certainly be of the grateful ones.

23 But when He delivers them, lo! they are unjustly rebellious in the earth. O men! your rebellion is against your own souls—a provision (only) of this world's life—then to Us shall be your return, so We will inform you of what you did.

24 The likeness of this world's life is only as water which We send down from the cloud, then the herbage of the earth of which men and cattle eat grows luxuriantly thereby; until when the earth puts on its golden raiment and it becomes garnished, and its people think that they have power over it, Our command comes to it, by night or by day, so We render it as reaped seed-produce, as though it had not been in existence yesterday; thus do We make clear the communications for a people who reflect.

اِنَّمَا اَمْرُنَا لَيْلًا اَوْ نَهَارًا

1122 Some think that there is a reference here to the famine which prevailed for seven years at Mecca (Rz). For the famine itself see 2269. The statement here may only be a general description of ordinary afflictions which befall man, an instance of which is given in the next verse.

25 And Allah invites to the abode of peace and guides whom He pleases into the right path.¹¹²³

27 And (as for) those who have earned evil, the punishment of an evil is the like of it, and abasement shall come upon them—they shall have none to protect them from Allah—as if their faces had been covered with slices of the dense darkness of night; these are the inmates of the fire, in it they shall abide.

28 And on the day when We will gather them all together, then We will say to those who associated others (with Allah): Keep where you are, you and your associates; then We shall separate them widely one from another and their associates would say: It was not us that you served:

1123 This is another description of the Muslim paradise, which is called the dārussalām, or the abode of peace, as opposed to the place of the wicked, which is fire. The word salām is from the same root as Islām. Islām, in fact, makes even this world an abode of peace for a true Muslim. Even in this life he makes his peace with his Lord, and he lives at peace with his fellow-men. So prominent is this idea of perfect peace in Islam that the Holy Prophet gave the following definition of a true Muslim: "The Muslim is he whose tongue or hand does not injure any Muslim." The peace of the next life, which is again and again called a garden or paradise, is, in fact, a continuation of the peace of mind which a Muslim finds in this very life.

1124 Throughout the Holy Qur-ān the reward of virtue is spoken of as being much more than actual recompense, while evil is either spoken of as being forgiven or as being punished only with a like punishment. Thus in 42:25 and 26: "And He it is who accepts repentance from His servants and pardons the evil deeds, and He knows what you do. And He answers those who believe and do good, and gives them more out of His grace." And in 6:161: "Whoever brings a good deed he shall have ten like it, and whoever brings an evil deed he shall be recompensed only with the like of it" (see 849).

Ar. between

29 Therefore Allah is sufficient as a witness between us and you that we were quite unaware of your serving (us).

30 There shall every soul become acquainted with what it sent before, and they shall be brought back to Allah, their true Patron, and what they devised shall escape from them.

Uniqueness of Divine Gifts

31-34. Uniqueness of Divine gifts in physical nature. 35, 36. Guidance is given by Allah. 37-40. Uniqueness of revelation.

31 Say: Who gives you sustenance from the heaven and the earth? or who controls the hearing and the sight? and who brings forth the living from the dead, and brings forth the dead from the living? And who regulates the affair? Then they will say: Allah. Say then: Will you not then guard (against evil)?

32 This then is Allah, your true Lord; and what is there after the truth but error: how are you then turned back?

33 Thus does the word of your Lord prove true against those who transgress that they do not believe.¹¹²⁵

34 Say: Is there any one among your associates who can bring into existence the creation in the first instance, then reproduce it? Say: Allah brings the creation into existence in the first instance, then He reproduces it: how are you then turned away?

35 Say: Is there any of your associates who guides to the truth? Say: Allah guides to the truth. Is He then Who guides to the truth more worthy to be followed, or he 1125 "The word of the Lord" refers either to the sentence of punishment which must come to pass because they do not believe, or to the fact of their not believing as a result of their transgression.

1126 The Qur-án explains in clear words many of the most important principles of religion which are left ambiguous or obscure in the previous books. For instance, the Bible is obscure on the important principle of resurrection or life after death; Jesus himself when questioned by the Sadducees had to resort to an argument instead of quoting chapter and verse (Matt. 22:23, etc.). Similarly, the attributes of the Divine Being are not explained in clear words, and the result is the doctrine of the Divinity of Jesus Christ. The Qur-án fully explains all such points and finally settles all these questions.

1127 For the two significances of ta'wil see 594. By the final sequel here is meant the consequence of the rejection of the truth. This is clear from what is said in 7:53: "Do they wait for aught but its final sequel? on the day when its final sequel comes about, those who neglected it before will say . . . Are there for us then any intercessors so that they should intercede on our behalf?"

The Reprobate and their Punishment

43 And there are those of them who look at you, but can you show the way to the blind though they will not see?¹¹²⁸

44 Surely Allah does not do any injustice to men, but men are unjust to themselves.

45 And on the day when He will gather them as though they had not stayed but an hour of the day, they will know each other.¹¹²⁹ They will perish indeed who called the meeting with Allah to be a lie, and they are not followers of the right direction.

1128 Compare 7: 179: "They have hearts with which they do not understand, and they have eyes with which they do not see, and they have ears with which they do not hear." See 962.

1129 They will either recognize each other as they were in the world, or some of them will recognize the others who remained in unbelief and error (Rz).

1130 The significance of the words "to Us is their return" is that those who are warned shall be dealt with by Allah as they deserve, and the warning shall prove true. In the first part of the verse they are told that it is no concern of theirs whether the Prophet lives to punish them with his own hands or that punishment is executed by Allah in some other way. The verse, therefore, only lays stress on their approaching doom, and warns them that they must suffer for their evil ways. That a part of the punishment must come about in the lifetime of the Prophet is made clear by the next verse.

47 And every nation had an apostle;¹¹³¹ so when their apostle came, the matter was decided between them with justice and they shall not be dealt with unjustly.¹¹³²

48 And they say: When will this threat come about, if you are truthful?

Ar. nor.

49 Say: I do not control for myself any harm, or any benefit except what Allah pleases;¹¹³³ every nation has a term; when their term comes, they shall not then remain behind for an hour, nor can they go before (their time).¹¹³⁴

50 Say: Tell me if His chastisement overtakes you by night or by day! what then is there of it that the guilty would hasten on?¹¹³⁵

51 And when it comes to pass, will you believe in it? What! now (you believe)! and already you wished to have it hastened on.

52 Then it shall be said to those who were unjust: Taste abiding chastisement;

وَيَكُلُّ أُمَّةٌ رَّسُولًا ۚ فَإِذَا جَاءَ
رَسُولُهُمْ فَأُفِيَّ بِهِمْ بِالْقِسْطِ ۚ وَهُمْ لَا
يُظْلَمُونَ ۝

وَيَقُولُونَ مَتَى هَذَا الْوَعْدُ إِن كُنْتُمْ صَادِقِينَ
قُلْ لَا أَمْرٌ لِّكَ لِتَقْضَىٰ صُرَّاءُ وَلَا نَفْعٌ
لِّأَ مَا شَاءَ اللَّهُ لِكُلِّ أُمَّةٍ أَجَلٌ
إِذَا جَاءَ أَجَلُهُمْ فَلَا يَسْتَأْذِنُونَ سَاءَ
وَلَا يَسْتَفِيدُونَ ۝

قُلْ أَرَأَيْتُمْ إِن كُنتُمْ عَدَايَا بَيْنَنَا وَ
نَهَارًا مَاذَا يَسْتَعْجِلُ مِنْهُ الْجَاهِلُونَ ۝
أَتَعْدُوا مَا وَقَعُ أَمْتُمْ بِهِ ۚ أَلَسْنَا وَ وَقَدْ كُنْتُمْ بِهِ تَسْتَعْجِلُونَ ۝

ثُمَّ قِيلَ لِلَّذِينَ ظَلَمُوا ذُوقُوا
عَذَابَ الْخُلْدِ ۚ

1131 Compare 35: 24, "And there is not a people but a warner has gone among them." This is one of the noblest lessons that the Qur-án has taught, and for which humanity will always be under the deepest obligation to the Holy Prophet. See 2055.

1132 The warning that their doom must overtake the opponents of the Holy Prophet is reasserted in these words. By "between them" must be understood the Apostle and those who charge him with falsehood, because when an apostle has preached the truth and that has been rejected by the people, the issue then is between the preacher and the rejecters.

1133 These are not the words which a pretender would utter. The words are those of an honest man who, without assuming any personal pretensions, preaches truth in all sincerity. The Holy Prophet is repeatedly made to disclaim any control of good and evil, so that he offers no low temptation to his followers. Truth must be accepted for its own sake, not for any hope of worldly gain or fear of worldly loss.

1134 The verse does not teach fatalism. It lays down a truth which no historian can deny. To every nation, as to every individual, is granted a term of life, and nations live and die like individuals. What are the circumstances which play a part in the lengthening out or shortening of that term is a different question, but that every nation must live its term of life, and die when that term is finished, is an undoubted truth.

1135 The coming of the doom by night or by day signifies its coming at a time when people are engaged in their revelries or occupied with their business transactions, so as to be utterly inattentive to the most vital questions on which depends the life of a nation. There is a gentle remonstrance conveyed in the words, "What then is there of it that the guilty would hasten on?" The doom approaches; why then should a people hasten on its approach by their guiltiness? It also indicates the Prophet's sorrow for their hastening on their doom.

you are not requited except for what you earned!

Ar. thee.

53 And they ask you: Is that true? Say: Aye! by my Lord! it is most surely the truth, and you will not escape.

مَلْ تُجْزَوْنَ إِلَّا بِمَا كُنْتُمْ تَكْسِبُونَ
وَيَسْتَنْبِئُونَكَ أَحَقُّ هُوَ دَلِيلٌ لِّىْ وَبِىْ
إِنَّهُ نَحْنُ الْمَوْمِنُونَ مَا أَنْتُمْ بِمُعْجِزِينَ

SECTION 6

Mercy takes Precedence of Punishment

54-56. Redemption cannot be bought. 57, 58. The Qur-án is a mercy and a grace. 59, 60. Grace and mercy are always sent first.

54 And if every soul that has done injustice had all that is in the earth, it would offer it for ransom, and they will *manifest*¹¹³⁶ regret when they see the chastisement, and the matter shall be decided between them with justice and they shall not be dealt with unjustly.

Or, conceal.

Ar. it.

55 Now surely Allah's is what is in the heavens and the earth; now surely Allah's promise is true, but most of them do not know.

56 He gives life and causes death, and to Him you shall be brought back.

57 O men! there has come to you indeed an admonition from your Lord and a healing for what is in the breasts and a guidance and a mercy for the believers.¹¹³⁷

58 Say: In the grace of Allah and in His mercy, in that they should rejoice; it is better than that which they gather.¹¹³⁸

وَلَوْ أَنَّ لِلْكَافِرِينَ مَا فِى الْأَرْضِ لِأَفْتَدَتْ بِهِمْ ذُرِّيَّتَهُمْ أَوْ الْأَمْثَلُ
الْعَدَاةَ لَمَّا سَأَرُوا الْعَذَابَ
وَقُضِيَ بَيْنَهُمْ بِالْقِسْطِ وَهُمْ لَا يُظْلَمُونَ

الْآدَمُ لِلَّهِ مَا فِى السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ وَالْآدَمُ
وَعَدَ اللَّهُ حَقًّا وَلَكِنَّ أَكْثَرَهُمْ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ
هُوَ الْحَيُّ وَيُحْيِي وَيُمِيتُ وَإِلَيْهِ تُرْجَعُونَ
يَا أَيُّهَا النَّاسُ قَدْ جَاءَكُمْ مَوْعِظَةٌ
مِّنْ رَبِّكُمْ وَشِفَاءٌ لِّمَا فِى الْبُحُورِ وَرِءُ
هُدًى وَرَحْمَةً لِّلْمُؤْمِنِينَ

قُلْ بِفَضْلِ اللَّهِ وَبِرَحْمَتِهِ فَبِذَلِكَ
قُلِّبُوا أَهْوَ خَيْرٌ مِّمَّا يَجْمَعُونَ

1136 Asarra is one of the words which have contrary meanings. It means he concealed it as well as he manifested it.

1137 This verse and the next show how the Prophet was a mercy to them. They demanded punishment again and again, but they are told that Allah has sent to them first that in which they will find a healing and a guidance and a mercy for them, viz. the Holy Qur-án. Compare 29: 51, where, in answer to a demand for a sign which should destroy them, the unbelievers are told: "Is it not enough for them that we have revealed to you the Book which is recited to them? Most surely there is mercy in this and a reminder for a people who believe." The Qur-án places mercy before punishment.

1138 They courted punishment and gathered everything that was evil for themselves, and they are told that instead of this they should rejoice in the grace and mercy of Allah which was vouchsafed to them through the Holy Qur-án; or the meaning may be that they reject

59 Say : Tell me what Allah has sent down for you of sustenance, then you make (a part) of it unlawful and (a part) lawful. Say : Has Allah commanded you or you forge a lie against Allah?¹¹³⁹

60 And what will be the thought of those who forge lies against Allah on the day of resurrection? Most surely Allah is the Lord of grace towards men, but most of them do not give thanks.

قُلْ أَرَأَيْتُمْ مَا أَنْزَلَ اللَّهُ لَكُمْ مِنْ
رِزْقٍ فَجَعَلْتُمْ مِنْهُ حَرَامًا وَحَلَالًا قُلْ

61 And you are not (engaged) in any affair, nor do you recite concerning it any portion of the Qur-ān, nor do you do any work but We are witnesses over you when you enter into it, and there does not lie concealed from your Lord the weight of an atom in the earth or in the heaven, nor any thing less than that nor greater, but it is in a clear book.¹¹⁴⁰

62 Now surely the friends of Allah—they shall have no fear nor shall they grieve.¹¹⁴¹ what is for their spiritual and moral welfare and gather worldly goods which would be of no use to them in the life after death.

1139 Just as Allah gave them the means of their physical sustenance, He has also sent His grace and mercy for their spiritual welfare through revelation, yet they discard the latter as unlawful for themselves; or the reference may be to their declaring certain things to be unlawful for them, out of reverence for their idols.

1140 The clear book mentioned here is not, of course, a collection of written or printed sheets bound together. It is the book of the Divine law which makes every deed, good or evil, great or small, bring its reward.

1141 They shall have no fear regarding the future, nor shall they grieve for what they have already done. It is a prophecy regarding the future triumph of Islam, for when a man attains his object he does not grieve for the sacrifices he has made in a cause. As regards fear, there is no doubt that the condition of Muslims at the time of this revelation was one in which they feared utter extinction, and there is a promise here that an entire change would be brought about in this condition.

63 Those who believe and guarded (against evil).

64 They shall have good news¹¹⁴² in this world's life and in the hereafter; there is no changing the words of Allah;¹¹⁴³ that is the mighty achievement.

65 And let not their speech grieve you; surely might is wholly Allah's; He is the Hearing, the Knowing.

66 Now, surely, whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth is Allah's;¹¹⁴⁴ and they do not (really) follow any associates, who call on others besides Allah; they do not follow (any thing) but conjectures, and they only lie.

67 He it is who made for you the night that you might rest in it, and the day giving light; most surely there are signs in it for a people who would hear.

68 They say: Allah has taken a son (to Himself)! Glory be to Him; He is the Self-sufficient; His is what is in the heavens and what is in the earth; you have no authority for this; do you say against Allah what you do not know?

69 Say: Those who forge a lie against Allah shall not be successful.

1142 The Holy Prophet said: "Al-bushrā, or the good news, signifies good visions which the Muslim sees or which are shown to others regarding him" (Rz). Bkh also records a saying of the Holy Prophet to the same effect: "'There has remained nothing of prophethood except mubushsharāt. Asked what is meant by mubushsharāt, he replied, The good visions."

1143 The words there is no changing the words of Allah, read with the context, show clearly that the words of Allah here signify the prophecies. It is the prophecy of the good reward for the faithful that is mentioned immediately before these words, and the meaning of there being no change is that the prophetic word must be fulfilled. Compare similar words used in 6: 34 and 116 and 18: 27, and the context in each case shows clearly that no other significance can be attached to the words.

1144 These words explain what is said in the previous verse. The Prophet is there told not to be grieved at what the unbelievers said regarding the suppression of his mission, for "surely might is wholly Allah's," and therefore the Divine cause could not be brought to naught. The same idea is expressed in the words "Whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth is Allah's."

70 (It is only) a provision in this world, then to Us shall be their return, then We shall make them taste severe chastisement because they disbelieved.

74 Then did We raise up after him apostles to their people, so they came to them with clear arguments, but they would not believe in what they had rejected before; thus it is that We set seals upon the hearts of those who exceed the limits. 1146

1145 The words of Noah no doubt convey a challenge similar to that thrown out to the opponents of the Holy Prophet, who are told that their most energetic plans could not do him the least harm.

1146 This verse explains how seals are set upon the hearts. It is not that a seal is set upon the hearts first, and people thereafter refuse to accept the truth owing to their hearts being already sealed; they first reject, then grow persistent in the rejection of the truth.

75 Then did We send up after them Moses and Aaron to Pharaoh and his chiefs^a with Our signs,^b but they showed pride and they were a guilty people.

^a 925A.

^b 935.

76 So when the truth came to them from Us they said: This is most surely clear enchantment!

77 Moses said: Do you say (this) of the truth when it has come to you? Is it enchantment? And the enchanters are not successful.

Ar. hast thou.

78 They said: Have you come to us to turn us away from what we found our fathers upon, and (that) greatness in the land should be for you two? and we are not going to believe in you.

79 And Pharaoh said: Bring to me every skilful enchanter.

80 And when the enchanters came, Moses said to them: Cast down what you have to cast.

81 So when they cast down, Moses said to them: What you have brought is deception; surely Allah will make it naught;^c surely Allah does not make the work of mischief-makers to thrive.

^c 929.

82 And Allah will show the truth to be the truth by His words, though the guilty may be averse (to it).

ثُمَّ بَعَثْنَا مِنْ بَعْدِهِمْ مُوسَى وَهَارُونَ إِلَى فِرْعَوْنَ وَمَلَئِهِ بِآيَاتِنَا فَاسْتَكْبَرُوا وَكَانُوا قَوْمًا مُجْرِمِينَ ۝

قَالُوا أَجِئْتَنَا لِنَعْبُدَكَ وَأَنْتَ الْعَالِمُ الْغَيْبِ ۖ إِنَّا بِمَا نَعْبُدُ مِنْ دُونِكَ أَكْثَرُ ۖ إِنَّا بِمَا نَعْبُدُ مِنْ دُونِكَ أَكْثَرُ ۖ إِنَّا بِمَا نَعْبُدُ مِنْ دُونِكَ أَكْثَرُ ۖ

وَقَالَ فِرْعَوْنُ أَتَدْعُونِي رَبِّي بِكُلِّ سِحْرٍ عَلِيمٍ ۖ فَلَمَّا جَاءَهُ السَّحَرَةُ قَالَ لَهُمْ مُوسَى أَلْقُوا مَا أَنْتُمْ مُلقُونَ ۝

فَلَمَّا أَلْقَوْا قَالَ مُوسَى مَا جِئْتُمْ بِهِ السِّحْرُ ۖ إِنَّ اللَّهَ سَيُبْطِلُهُ ۖ إِنَّ اللَّهَ لَا يُصْلِحُ عَمَلَ الْمُفْسِدِينَ ۝

وَيُخَيِّطُ اللَّهُ الْحَقَّ يَكَلِّمُ بِهِ وَلَوْ كُنْتَ فَاهِجًا ۖ

وَيُخَيِّطُ اللَّهُ الْحَقَّ يَكَلِّمُ بِهِ وَلَوْ كُنْتَ فَاهِجًا ۖ

They do not ponder over the truth, but having rejected once, go on opposing its progress without ever reflecting on it. This condition is described as the setting of the seal on the heart, because the heart, being made for reflection, would no doubt be fitly described as being sealed when it ceases to reflect. Hence it is that the seal is said to be set upon the hearts of those who exceed the limits. The setting of the seal is thus the consequence of some previous deeds.

Or, a trial for.

1147 Moses was no doubt a prophet to the Israelites, and by his people are apparently meant the Israelites. The meaning is that at first even his own people would not believe in him, on account of Pharaoh's fear, which was quite natural. Some think that his refers to Pharaoh, because some of Pharaoh's people, such as his wife (66: 11), and a believer (40: 28) and the enchanters had believed in Moses.

1148 The word fitnah here means an occasion of persecution (Kf, JB). If we take the alternative significance, the meaning of the passage would still be the same, for make us not a trial for the unjust people would mean that their punishment at the hands of Pharaoh's people may not harden the hearts of the latter, "for they would say: Had these people followed the truth they would not have been thus subject to disgrace at our hands" (Kf).

1149 Qiblah here means a place of worship (S, Kf), because the qiblah is that facing which one prays, and therefore it indicates a place of worship. The Israelites were obliged to pray in their houses because they did not enjoy full religious liberty in Egypt and had no public places of worship.

1150 The lām here is the lām used to indicate the consequence of a thing (Rz), and hence I translate it as such.

Or, assault.

90 And We made the children of Israel to pass through the sea,* then Pharaoh and his hosts followed them for oppression and tyranny; until when drowning overtook him, he said: I believe that there is no god but He in whom the children of Israel believe and I am of those who submit.¹¹⁵²

1151 شد عليه means he made an assault upon him in war, and shadda-hu also means he strengthened him or bound it (a thing) firmly or fastly. The phrase اشدد على قلوبهم is generally taken as meaning harden, or bind their hearts so as to set a seal upon them. The adoption of the alternative significance makes the two parallel phrases اشدد على قلوبهم and اطمس على اموالهم carry a similar significance, the assaulting of their hearts being equivalent to the destruction of the things which were nearest to their hearts—the finery and riches of this life.

1152 Commenting on Exod. 9: 16, "And in very deed for this cause have I raised thee up for to show in thee my power," the Talmud says: "Recognize the power of repentance in the case of Pharaoh, King of Egypt, who rebelled excessively against the Most High: Who is God that I should hearken to His voice? (Exod. 5: 2). But with the same that sinned he did penance: Who is like Thee, O Lord, among the gods?" (Rodwell). Whether the comment is strange, as Rodwell thinks, or otherwise, there appears to be no doubt that in the agonies of death pronounced atheists have sometimes recognized the existence of God.

1153 That the body was really cast ashore, though the Bible does not mention it, is clear from the fact that the body of Rameses II, who is regarded as the Pharaoh of Moses, has been discovered as preserved among the mummies in Egypt (Enc. Br. Art. Mummy). This is another instance of the insufficiency of the Bible narrative and of the truth of the Quranic statement where it supplements the Bible. Surely the discovery now made could not have been known to the Holy Prophet, and here we have a clear example of the supernatural knowledge contained in the Holy Qur-án.

1154 The occurrence of this passage in a Meccan sura, when the Holy Prophet had not as yet occasion to address the Jews directly nor had they shown their disagreement, is a prophetic announcement as to their later attitude towards him, when knowledge of the Prophet's advent in accordance with the prophecies and tests found in their books came to them. The first part of this passage is taken by some to refer to the Israelites who were with, and came after, Moses, and by others, among whom is I'Ab, to the Medina Jews (Rz). But to whomsoever the reference in that passage may be, the disagreement must be taken to be the disagreement with respect to the Holy Prophet.

1155 It should be noted that the person addressed in the Holy Qur-án is not a'ways the Holy Prophet, though the form may be singular, as here. It is very often the reader. Nor does the form revealed to you (literally ther) show that the Prophet is meant, for the Holy Qur-án is in many places spoken of as being revealed to all the people, as, for instance, in what has been revealed to us (2: 136), and in "We have revealed to you a Book" (21: 10). And the opening words of the next section make it clear that the reader is addressed, because there we have: "Say, O people! if you are in doubt as to my religion." Throughout the Holy Qur-án the Holy Prophet appears as having the greatest certainty about the word which was revealed to him, so much so that he never entertained the slightest doubt about the truth of the promises of future success and triumph when to the material eye there appeared nothing around but failure and disappointment.

1156 That is, ask them whether previous revelation does not contain clear prophecies of the advent of the Prophet.

97 Though every sign should come to them, until they witness the painful chastisement.

101 Say: Consider what is it that is in the heavens and the earth; and signs and warners do not avail a people who would not believe.¹¹⁶⁰

102 What do they wait for then but the like of the days of those who passed away before them? Say: Wait then; surely I too am with you of those who wait.

1157 Compare Jonah 3:10: "And God saw their works that they turned from their evil way, and God repented of the evil that He had said that He would do unto them, and He did it not." References to Jonah are contained in the Holy Qur-ān in 6:87, 10:98, 21:87, 37:139-148, 68:48-50. He bears a resemblance to the Holy Prophet in that his people benefited by the warning, as did the Arabs by the warning of the Holy Prophet, though after much opposition. Jonah is thus the type of a prophet whose people were dealt with mercifully. It was in reference to this aspect of his character that the Holy Prophet is reported to have said: "Do not give me preference over Jonah."

1158 Compare 2:256: "There is no compulsion in religion." The reference is to the great zeal of the Holy Prophet and his over-exerting himself in preaching the truth. Compare "Maybe you will kill yourself with grief, sorrowing after them, if they believe not in this announcement" (18:6).

1159 Those who will not understand the truth will find uncleanness cast on them. That is only natural. The word rijs also means punishment (LL), and adopting this significance, the meaning of the passage is equally clear, viz. those who will not care for the warning and guard themselves against it must receive the punishment.

1160 That is, there is an abundance of signs in nature itself for the direction of man.

103 Then We deliver Our apostles and those who believe—even so (now), it is binding on Us (that) We deliver the believers.

CHAPTER XI

HÚD

REVEALED AT MECCA

(10 sections and 123 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. A warning.
- Sec. 2. Truth of revelation.
- Sec. 3-8. Histories of Noah, Húd, Sálîh, Lot, and Shu'aib.
- Sec. 9. Punishment of the wicked is a Divine law.
- Sec. 10. The believers should shun evil.

The Title.

THE name of this chapter is taken from that of the Prophet Húd, whose history is referred to herein, because he seems to have been the first prophet to a people living within the Arabian peninsula.

Subject-matter.

I need not dilate upon its subject-matter. The opponents are warned first, and the truth of the revelation is most forcibly asserted in the second section by challenging them to produce ten chapters like it, and by showing that the truth of the Qur-án is borne witness to by previous prophets. A cruel and persecuting enemy is then warned of the evil fate of previous people who opposed the well-known prophets Noah, Húd, Sálîh, Lot, and Shu'aib. Moses is only briefly referred to in the ninth section, which really demonstrates the Divine law that evil must be followed by evil consequences. The last section requires the Holy Prophet and his followers to maintain the firmest attitude in the cause of righteousness and truth.

Context and date of revelation.

The chapter seems to be a complement to the last, which deals mostly with abstract questions relating to the truth of revelation, while this illustrates the truth of those questions by referring to the histories of former prophets. It is wholly a Meccan revelation, and must be placed at about the same period as the last chapter. Its connection with the previous chapter is thus also clear.

SECTION 1

A Warning

1-4. Mercy and punishment. 5. Concealed enmity. 6, 7. Providence of Allah. 8. Punishment is deferred.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

* 1109.

Or, characterized by wisdom, or rendered valid by arguments.

1 I am Allah the Seeing.^a (This is) a book, whose verses are made decisive, then are they made plain, from one Wise All-aware:

2 That you shall not serve (any) but Allah, surely I am a warner for you from Him and a giver of good news,

3 And that ask forgiveness of your Lord, then turn to Him; He will provide you with a goodly provision to an appointed term and bestow His grace on every one endowed with grace,¹¹⁶¹ and if you turn back, then surely I fear for you the chastisement of a great day.

4 To Allah is your return, and He has power over all things.

5 Now surely they fold up their breasts¹¹⁶² that they may conceal (their enmity) from Him: now surely, when they put their garments as a covering,¹¹⁶³ He knows what they conceal and what they make public; surely He knows what is in the breasts.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

الرَّاسِ كُنْزٌ لِّحُكْمٍ آيَةٌ ثُمَّ قُصِّصَتْ

مِنْ لَدُنْ حَكِيمٍ خَبِيرٍ

أَلَّا تَعْبُدُوا إِلَّا اللَّهَ إِنِّي كَذِكرُكُمْ

نَذِيرٌ وَبَشِيرٌ

وَأَن اسْتَغْفِرُوا ذُرِّيَّتَكُمْ ثُمَّ تَوْبُوا إِلَيْهِ

نُمَتِّعْكُمْ مَتَاعًا حَسَنًا إِلَى أَجَلٍ مُّسَمًّى

وَيُؤْتِي كُلَّ ذِي فَضْلٍ فَضْلَهُ وَإِن تَوَلَّوْا

فَإِنِّي أَخَافُ عَلَيْكُمْ عَذَابَ يَوْمٍ كَبِيرٍ

إِلَى اللَّهِ مَرْجِعُكُمْ وَهُوَ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ

قَدِيرٌ

أَلَا إِنَّهُمْ يَشْنُونَ سُدُورَهُمْ لِيَسْتَخْفُوا

مِنْهُ مَا الْإِحْسَانُ يَسْتَخْفُونَ ثِيَابَهُمْ

يَعْلَمُ مَا يُبْسِرُونَ وَمَا يَأْتِيهِمْ إِلَّا

عَلَيْهِمْ بِإِذْنِ الصُّدُورِ

1161 The zi-faḍl, lit. a possessor of grace, signifies one on whom Allah bestows His grace, so that the meaning is that every one on whom grace is bestowed has that grace bestowed upon him by Allah. Or the zi-faḍl is one whose good is in excess of his evil, because faḍl also signifies excess.

1162 ثَنَى صَدْرَهُ (lit. he folded his breast or bosom) means he concealed enmity in his breast or bosom (TA-LI), and hence the meaning of يَشْنُونَ صُدُورَهُم is they conceal in their breasts enmity and hatred for the Prophet (JB), or the meaning may be, they bend or turn their breasts from the truth (KF).

1163 اسْتَغْشَى ثَوْبَهُ means he covered himself with his garment in order that he might not see nor hear (Q-LI). According to Rgh اسْتَغْشَوْا ثِيَابَهُمْ means they made their garments a covering over their ears, and this signifies their holding back from lending an ear, or it is an allusion to their running away.

7 And He it is Who created the heavens and the earth in six periods^a—and His dominion^b (extends) on the water¹¹⁶⁴—that He might manifest you, which of you is best in action,¹¹⁶⁵ and if you say, Surely you shall be raised up after death, those who disbelieve would certainly say: This is nothing but clear deceit.¹¹⁶⁶

8 And if We hold back from them the chastisement until a stated period of time, they will certainly say: What prevents it? Now surely on the day when it will come to them, it shall not be averted from them and that which they scoffed at shall beset them.¹¹⁶⁷

وَمَا مِنْ دَابَّةٍ فِي الْأَرْضِ إِلَّا عَلَى اللَّهِ رِزْقُهَا وَيَعْلَمُ مُسْتَقَرَّهَا وَمُسْتَوْدَعَهَا
كُلٌّ فِي كِتَابٍ مُبِينٍ

وَهُوَ الَّذِي خَلَقَ السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضَ فِي سِتَّةِ أَيَّامٍ وَكَانَ عَرْشُهُ عَلَى الْمَاءِ لِيَبْلُوَكُمْ أَيُّكُمْ أَحْسَنُ عَمَلًا وَلَئِنْ فُلْتُمْ لَأَنْتُمْ مُعْجَنُونَ مِنْ بَدَلِ السَّعِيرِ لَيَقُولَنَّ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا إِنْ هَذَا إِلَّا أَسْحَرُ
مُبِينٍ

وَلَئِنْ أَخَّرْنَا عَنْهُمُ الْعَذَابَ إِلَى أُمَّتٍ مَعْدُودَةٍ لَيَقُولُنَّ مَا يَحْبِسُهُ الْيَوْمَ لَا نَنْبِئُكُمْ لَيْسَ مَصْرُوعًا فَاعْبُدْهُمْ وَحَاذِرْهُمْ
مَا كَانُوا بِهِ يَسْتَهْزِئُونَ

1164 The meaning of 'arsh has been explained in 895. As all life is produced from water, hence the special mention of the extension of Allah's dominion on the water along with the creation of heaven and earth, because without water life would have been impossible. Compare 21: 30, "And We have made of water every thing living."

1165 The object of the creation of man and all that has been brought into existence for him is that he should do good, because it is goodness that Allah loves. The two words balá and ibtílá are synonymous according to TA, and signify the manifestation of good qualities and mean qualities.

1166 The use of the word sihr here is a clear indication that this word is used in the Holy Qur-án in the sense of deceit or falsehood. Rz gives three explanations of the word sihr, under this verse, and all three corroborate this statement. The first explanation is that of Qaffál, and that is that it is here equivalent to khadī'at, or deceit, the significance of the passage being that by talking of a life after death the Prophet only deceived men so that they should not enjoy the good things of this life as they desire. The second explanation is that it means bā'íl, i.e. falsehood. The third is that the life after death is called sihr, because it is a doctrine upheld by the Qur-án, which was called sihr, because it fascinated men and was, as it were, an enchantment.

1167 The stated period of time is thus referred to in 8: 33: "But Allah was not going to chastise them while you were among them."

SECTION 2

Truth of Revelation

9-12. Mercy predominates. 13, 14. Uniqueness of revelation. 15, 16. But only those benefit who act on it. 17. Witnesses to the truth of the Qur-án. 18-24. The opponents and the faithful.

9 And if We make man taste mercy from Us, then take it off from him, most surely he is despairing, ungrateful.

10 And if We make him taste a favour after distress has afflicted him, he will certainly say: The evils are gone away from me. Most surely he is exulting, boasting;

11 Except those who are patient and do good, they shall have forgiveness and a great reward.

Ar. thou

12 Then, may it be that you will give up part of what is revealed to you and your breast will become straitened by it because they say: Why has not a treasure been sent down upon him or an angel come with him? You are only a warner; and Allah is custodian over all things.^{1167a}

13 Or, do they say: He has forged it. Say: Then bring ten forged chapters like it and call upon whom you can besides Allah, if you are truthful.¹¹⁶⁸

أُنزِلَ عَلَيْهِ كَنزٌۭ أَوْ جَاءَ مَعَهُ مَلَكٌۭ
إِنَّمَا أَنْتَ نَذِيرٌۭ ۚ وَاللَّهُ عَلَىٰ كُلِّ شَيْءٍ وَكِيلٌۭ

أَمْ يَقُولُونَ افْتَرَاهُ فَقُلْ فَاتُوا بَعِيرَ
سُورٍۭ مِّثْلِهِ مَعَرَّيْتِۚ وَادْعُوا مَنِ اسْتَنْظَمَ

مِّنْ دُونِ اللَّهِ إِن كُنْتُمْ صَادِقِينَۙ

1167a It should be noted that this passage does not signify, as may be supposed, that the Prophet intended to give up any part of the revelation: on the other hand, it is a strong statement indicating that he could not do it. It is a peculiar use of the word la'alla. Rz says: "You say of a person when you intend to show his remoteness from a thing: Maybe (Ar. la'allaka) you have power to do such a thing."

1168 This challenge is contained in four different chapters of the Holy Qur-án. (1) In 17: 88: "Say: If men and jinn should combine together to bring the like of this Qur-án, they could not bring the like of it though some of them were aiders of others," where the like of the whole of the Qur-án is required to be produced. Then in the verse under discussion the demand is reduced to ten chapters, and lastly in 10: 38 and 2: 23 they are required to produce a single chapter like the Qur-án. Another point worth noting is that while in some chapters men and jinn are challenged, in others shuhadá, which means their great or learned men, is substituted for jinn, thus showing that jinn in such places means only their great men. The Qur-án does not call for a like in any particular qualification, but for a like in every characteristic and every qualification of the Holy Book. See 36.

14 But if they do not answer you, then know that it is revealed by Allah's knowledge and that there is no god but He: will you then submit?¹¹⁶⁹

15 Whoever desire this world's life and its finery, We will pay them in full their deeds therein, and they shall not be made to suffer loss in respect of them.

16 These are they for whom there is nothing but fire in the hereafter, and what they wrought in it shall go for nothing, and vain is what they do.¹¹⁷⁰

Ar. leader. 17 Is he then who has with him clear proof from his Lord, and a witness from Him recites it and before it (is) the Book of Moses, a guide and a mercy? These believe in it: and whoever of the (different) parties disbelieves in it, the fire is his promised place; so be not in doubt about it, surely it is the truth from your Lord, but most men do not believe.¹¹⁷¹

Ar. thy.

18 And who is more unjust than he who forges a lie against Allah? These shall be brought before their Lord, and the witnesses shall say: These are they who lied against their Lord. Now surely the curse of Allah is on the unjust,¹¹⁷²

هَؤُلَاءِ الَّذِينَ كَذَبُوا عَلَىٰ رَبِّهِمْ أَلَا لَعْنَةُ
اللَّهِ عَلَى الظَّالِمِينَ

1169 The unbelievers are addressed here, the meaning being that if the false gods or the leaders should not answer their devotees when they call on them to assist them in producing a like of the Qur-án, then at least no doubt should be left in their minds that the Qur-án is not the work of the Prophet, but a revelation from the Divine Being.

1170 That is, their opposition to the Holy Prophet shall be fruitless.

1171 The several statements made in this verse require to be explained. He who has with him clear proof from his Lord applies to every believer in the truth of the Holy Qur-án, the words these believe in it, occurring farther on, making this clear. The witness from Allah who recites it is the Holy Prophet, who is called a witness elsewhere, as being an exemplar for the believers. Besides being a clear proof in itself, the Holy Qur-án has a further evidence of its truth in the book of Moses, which is, therefore, called a guide and a mercy, because it contains clear prophecies of the truth of the Holy Prophet. The meaning of the whole passage is: He who, being a believer in the truth of the Holy Qur-án, has clear proof from his Lord; who has an exemplar for him in the person of the Holy Prophet, and has additional testimony of his truth in the book of Moses: is he like him who loves this world and does not care for the truth? The latter statement, being included in the previous verses, is omitted here.

1172, see next page.

19 Who turn away from the path of Allah and desire to make it crooked; and they are disbelievers in the hereafter.

20 These shall not escape in the earth,¹¹⁷³ nor shall they have any guardians besides Allah; the chastisement shall be doubled for them; they could not bear to hear and they did not see.¹¹⁷⁴

21 These are they who have lost their souls, and what they forged is gone from them.

22 Truly in the hereafter they are the greatest losers.

23 Surely (as to) those who believe and do good and humble themselves to their Lord, these are the dwellers of the garden, in it they will abide.

24 The likeness of the two parties is as the blind and the deaf, and the seeing and the hearing; are they equal in condition? Will you not then mind?

1172 The witnesses are according to some the angels, according to others the prophets, according to others still the believers (112).

1173 They would not escape the chastisement if Allah intended to punish them in this world (Kf). A'jaza-hu, of which mu'jiz is a noun-form, may also be translated as he found him without strength or ability, or he frustrated his power.

1174 The phrase ما كانوا يستطيعون السمع does not signify that they were not gifted with the organs of hearing, nor that they were utterly deprived of the power to accept. It is only to show their great hatred of the truth, so that they could not bear even to hear what the Prophet said, and ran away when he spoke.

1175 In every prophet's message to his people, the chief points to which attention is called are always to believe in the Unity of the Divine Being and to mend their ways. It is those very points on which stress is laid in the message of the Holy Prophet. This has led 27 But the chiefs of those who disbelieved from among his people said: We do not consider you but a mortal like ourselves, and we do not see any have followed you but those who are the meanest of us at first thought, and we do not see in you any excellence over us; nay, we deem you liars.

30 And, O my people! who will help me against Allah if I drive them away? Will you not then mind?

31 And I do not say to you that I have the treasures of Allah; and I do not know the unseen, nor do I say that I am an angel; nor do I say about those whom your eyes hold in mean estimation (that) Allah will never grant them (any) good—Allah knows best what is in their souls—for then some Christian critics to think that the Holy Prophet was putting his own experience into the mouth of others. The fact is, however, whatever may have been the details of the messages of the prophets of different nations to their people, the broad principles of the preachings of all of them have always been the Unity of Allah and the brotherhood of man: and as the Holy Qur-án is not concerned with details, it simply lays stress upon the broad doctrines which are common to their preaching, because it was on these two principles that the first message of Islam was given to the world, and during the whole of the Meccan period the Qur-án mainly dealt with only these broad principles. Similarly, the Holy Qur-án does not enter into details of how each prophet was received by his people, for its object is to illustrate in the life of each of them the prophesied final triumph of the Holy Prophet and the utter discomfiture of his enemies, and therefore prominence is given only to these two points. The Qur-án is not a book of history, hence there is no reason why it should enter into all the details of history.

History of Noah

36-48. Noah's opponents are drowned. 49. A like fate awaits the Holy Prophet's opponents.

Ar. thy.

36 And it was revealed to Noah: That none of your people will believe except those who have already believed, therefore do not grieve at what they do:

37 And make the ark before Our eyes and (according to) Our revelation, and do not speak to Me in respect of those who are unjust: surely they shall be drowned.

38 And he began to make the ark; and whenever the chiefs from among his people passed by him they laughed at him. He said: If you laugh at us, surely we too laugh at you as you laugh (at us).¹¹⁷⁷

وَأُوحِيَ إِلَىٰ نُوحٍ أَنَّهُ لَنْ يُؤْمِنَ مِنْ قَوْمِهِ
إِلَّا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا مِن قَبْلُ فَكَانَ أَزْوَاجُ الْمُنَافِقِينَ

وَبَصُرْنَا الْفُلْكَ فَنُوحٌ أَمْرٌ عَلَيْنَا
مَلَأْنَا مِنْ قَوْمِهِ فَخَرْنَا وَهُنَا نَقَالُ
نُفَعْنَا وَهَذَا الْكَفُورُ مِنْكُمْ لَكُمُ الشَّكْرُ

1176 The change shows positively that the unbelievers of Mecca are meant, and the reference is to their calling the Qur-án a forgery.

This shows that the histories of prophets are referred to in the Holy Qur-án, not for the purpose of those histories, but as representing the history of the Holy Prophet himself.

1177 Rodwell quotes Midr Tauchuma: "They laughed and jeered at him in their words." It was only natural that they should have laughed; it is the gravest error to think that 39 So shall you know who it is on whom will come a chastisement which will disgrace him, and on whom will lasting chastisement come down.

40 Until when Our command came and water came forth from the valley,¹¹⁷⁸ We said: Carry in it two of all things, a pair,¹¹⁷⁹ and your own family—except those against whom the word has already gone forth, and those who believe. And there believed not with him but a few.

41 And he said: Embark in it, in the name of Allah be its فَنَزَفْنَا لَهُ مِنْ تَحْتِ يَدَيْهِ

وَجَعَلْنَا عَلَيْهِ عَذَابًا مُقِيمًا

حَتَّىٰ إِذَا جَاءَ أَمْرُنَا وَفَارَ التَّنُّورُ
قُلْنَا اخْبِرْ فِيهَا مِنْ كُلِّ زَوْجَيْنِ
اشْتَيْنَ وَأَهْلَكَ إِلَّا مَنْ سَبَقَ عَلَيْهِ
الْقَوْلُ وَمَنْ أَمِنَ وَمَا أَمِنَ مَعَهُ
إِلَّا قَلِيلٌ

وَقَالَ ارْكَبُوا فِيهَا بِسْمِ اللَّهِ anything relating to these patriarchs could not have happened that is not found in the Bible. The laughing of the righteous at the wicked is not to be taken literally. You laugh at a thing to show your contempt for it; even as the unbelieving people showed their contempt for the making of the ark, the believer in Divine promise shows his contempt for the unbelief of the others; the reason is given in the words as you laugh at us. Kf gives another significance: If you think us ignorant on account of what we are doing, we consider you ignorant on account of your unbelief . . . because your thinking us ignorant is due really to your own ignorance.

1178 فَارَ التَّنُّورُ is translated by Sale as meaning the oven poured forth water, by Palmer the oven boiled, and by Rodwell the earth's surface boiled up, all three at the same time adding a note that the word tannūr also signifies a reservoir (Palmer), or a reservoir of water (Rodwell), or a place whence waters spring forth or where they are collected (Sale). It is therefore strange to find the words translated as they are, in spite of the translators' knowledge that the word has another significance better suited to the context. But it is, I think, more a misconception of the word fāra which has led to the error, than that of the word tannūr. Fāra means it (the water) boiled, or it (the fire) raged, but neither of these significances is applicable here, as the oven could not boil, nor could it rage, because tannūr does not mean fire. But fāra has another significance. LL says: "Fāra, said of water, signifies also it welled or came forth from the earth or ground (Mgh); it appeared, spouting forth from the spring or source (TA)." Hence also fawwārah signifies a spring or source of water. And tannūr, according to the same authority, means the highest part of the earth or ground . . . (TA); any place from which water pours forth (M, Q); a place where the water of a valley collects (M, Q). Now these two significances of the two words fāra and tannūr so suit each other, and each so suits the context, that they would appeal even to a man of ordinary intelligence. We know, from v. 43, where Noah's son is made to say: "I will betake myself for refuge to a mountain," that there must have been a valley, and hence, in my opinion, it is the only reasonable interpretation of the words. Another interpretation is that given by the Caliph 'Alī, who is said to have interpreted these words as meaning the daybreak rose. The word tannūr, which also means an oven, has given rise to a number of ridiculous stories which must be rejected.

1179 Each of a pair is called in Arabic a sauf, and hence the dual form saufain means only a pair, and زَوْجَيْنِ accordingly signifies one male and one female of each pair (Rs). By all things are apparently meant all things needed by Noah, and not all things existing in the world, which was too extensive for Noah to travel over the whole of it.

sailing and its anchoring; most surely my Lord is Forgiving, Merciful.

42 And it moved on with them amid waves like mountains;¹¹⁸⁰ and Noah called out to his son, and he was aloof: O my son! embark with us and be not with the unbelievers.¹¹⁸¹

43 He said: I will betake myself for refuge to a mountain that shall protect me from the water. He said: There is no protector to day from Allah's punishment but He Who has mercy;¹¹⁸² and a wave intervened between them, so he was of the drowned.

44 And it was said: O earth, swallow down your water, and O cloud, clear away; and the water was made to abate and the affair was decided, and the ark rested on the Judi,¹¹⁸³ and it was said: Away with the unjust people.

1180 It should be borne in mind that the Qur-án does not give any countenance to the story that the deluge covered the whole surface of the earth. On the other hand, it repeatedly speaks of Noah as having been sent to his people, i.e. to a single tribe, and according to the Divine law the punishment must have overtaken merely his people, who not only rejected the truth, but also sought to destroy Noah and his followers. The mention of the water flowing from the valley also shows that it was only a tract of land that was deluged, and not the entire earth. The taking in of a pair of all things does not mean that Noah had travelled over the whole earth and taken a pair of every living animal wherever it could be found: in that case he would have spent perhaps a thousand years in collecting pairs of all living creatures on earth, and then without success. The order is clearly to take in pairs of all those things that he considered necessary for himself and those who were with him in the ark. The Bible narrative, which makes God "bring a flood of water upon the earth to destroy all flesh wherein is the breath of life from under heaven," and then makes Noah collect and lodge in an ark a pair of each of the thousands of animals and birds, cannot be accepted by any reasonable person.

1181 The son referred to here is said to have been the son of Noah's wife by a former husband. This is corroborated by a second reading, according to which 'Ali read ibna-há, i.e. her son (Rz). Most of the early Muslims held that view (JB). The mention of the same person in v. 45 lends further support to this conviction, as there he is called min ahli, which may be translated as meaning from my wife. Some have held him to be a grandson of Noah, Can'aan by name, the word ibn being equally applicable to a son and a grandson.

1182 Man rahíma may either mean He who has mercy, referring to Allah, the significance being that only the Merciful One can save from the punishment, or the phrase may mean he on whom He has mercy; the meaning of the passage in this case is: no one can protect from the chastisement sent by Allah, but he only shall be protected on whom Allah has mercy.

1183 The Greek name of this mountain is said to be Gordyosi, being "one of those mountains which divide Armenia on the south from Mesopotamia" (Sale). According to 45 And Noah cried out to his Lord and said: My Lord! surely my son is of my family, and Thy promise is surely true, and Thou art the justest of the judges.

Ar. thy 46 He said: O Noah! surely he is not of your family; surely he is (the doer of) other than good deeds,¹¹⁸⁴ therefore ask not of Me that of which you have no knowledge; surely I admonish you lest you may be of the ignorant.

وَنَادَى نُوحٌ رَبَّهُ فَقَالَ رَبِّ إِنَّ ابْنِي مِنْ أَهْلِي وَإِنَّ وَعْدَكَ الْحَقُّ وَأَنْتَ أَحْكَمُ الْحَكَمِينَ ۝

قِيلَ يٰنُوحُ اهْبِطْ بِسَلَامٍ مِنَّا وَبَرَكَاتٍ عَلَيْكَ وَعَلَىٰ

the same authority, "the tradition which affirms the ark to have rested on those mountains must have been very ancient, since it is a tradition of the Chaldeans themselves (Berosus, apud Joseph); the Chaldean paraphrasts consent to their opinion, which obtained very much formerly, especially among the Eastern Christians. To confirm it we are told that the remainders of the ark were to be seen on the Gordycean mountains. Berosus and Abydenus both declare there was such a report in their time, the first observing that several of the inhabitants thereabout scraped the pitch off the planks as a rarity, and carried it about them for an amulet; and the latter saying that they used the wood of the vessel against many diseases with wonderful success. The relics of the ark were also to be seen in the time of Epiphanius, if we are to believe him (Epiph. Hæres, 18); we are also told that the Emperor Heraclius went from the town of Thamanin up to the mountain Al-judi, and saw the place of the ark (Elmacin, I. i. c. l.). Formerly there also existed a famous monastery, called the monastery of the ark, on some of those mountains." But the word as it stands in Arabic may simply be a derivative of jūd, meaning excellence or approval, the yā being added to denote the relation.

1184 The meaning of إِنَّهُ عَلَىٰ غَيْرِ صَالِحٍ is made clear by the parallel phrase

إِنَّهُ لَيْسَ مِنْ أَهْلِكَ the personal pronoun hu referring in both cases to the same person. It should be borne in mind that when it is meant to speak of a person as the very embodiment of a certain quality, he is designated not as the possessor of that quality, but as that quality itself. Thus you say of a person إِنَّهُ كَرِيمٌ i.e. surely he is excellence, or جود i.e. surely he is charity, meaning he is the very embodiment of excellence or charity. In the Qur-ān we have الْبَرُّ هُوَ مَنْ آمَنَ i.e. righteousness is he who believes, etc. (2: 177), the meaning apparently being that such a person is the embodiment of righteousness. Therefore إِنَّهُ عَلَىٰ غَيْرِ صَالِحٍ means surely he is the embodiment of other than good deeds. A second reading which uses the preterite 'amila, meaning he did, instead of the infinitive 'amalun, meaning deed, also corroborates this significance.

1185 The announcement relating to the unseen is not the history of Noah, but the fate of the Meccans opposed to the Holy Prophet, as read in that history. The words that follow—be patient—are a clear indication of what the announcement relating to the unseen was, for patient waiting was needed for the fate of the Holy Prophet's opponents, not for anything relating to Noah's history. At the end of the last section there was also a similar reference to the opponents of the Holy Prophet; compare also the 26th chapter, in which the history of every prophet is concluded with the words: "Most surely there is a sign in this, but most of them will not believe," where the fate of the opponents of the Holy Prophet is indicated as being identical with the fate of those who opposed earlier prophets.

1187 Compare Gen. 18:1-7. The Qur-án does not expressly say that they were angels.

1188 This, however, contradicts the Bible statement (Gen. 18:8), which says that they ate the roasted calf and other food provided by Abraham. But the contrary, as Rodwell notes, was maintained by the Rabbins, and he directs attention to Is. Baba Mezia, fol. 86: "They made as though they ate."

1189 Compare Gen. 18:10-12. The mention of a son's son (Jacob) was to show that that son should have progeny. It should be borne in mind that ward, which ordinarily signifies behind or before, also means a son's son—TA: الوراء ولد الولد Hence I have translated it as such. And elsewhere the Holy Qur-án says و يعقوب نافلة where the addition of the word nāfilah to Jacob's name is clearly to show that he was a grandson.

1190 The original words are yā wailatā, and as wail means ordinarily woe, the meaning would appear to be Woe is me! But as these words are expressive of grief and sorrow, while the occasion on which they are spoken is one of joy, I render them differently. It should be remembered, however, that, according to the best authorities, wail is used to express wonder, whether the occasion be one of weal or woe. Thus we have in TA: "And wail does occur in the sense of wonder." The commentators consider this to be the meaning here (Kf, Bq). According to AH it is a word which is frequently used by women when anything causing wonder occurs to them.

1191 اهل البيت includes the wife of a person: in fact, it is Abraham's wife that is primarily addressed here. The same phrase in the case of the Holy Prophet (33: 33) includes his wives as well as his children.

1192 Compare Gen. 18: 21-23.

1193 زار, which primarily signifies the stretching forth the arm (LL), is used in the sense of power or ability (TA, TH, Kf, JB), and hence the phrase ضاق بالامر ذرعا means he was unable to do the thing, or he lacked strength to accomplish the affair (Q-LL).

1194 Lot, it appears from Gen 19: 9, was a stranger in the city: "This one fellow came in to sojourn, and he will needs be a judge," and the messengers being strangers, the townsmen would not allow him to keep them. Lot offered his daughters as hostages so that he might be allowed to keep his guests with him, for according to 15: 70 he had not the permission to allow any stranger under his roof: "Have we not forbidden you from other people?" i.e. from giving shelter to them, this no doubt being due to the constant danger of tribal fighting. It may also be noted that the more generally received opinion among the commentators is that Lot did not point to his real daughters, but to women of the tribe, because a prophet would speak of the women of his tribe as his daughters (Rz, JB), and in that case he did no more than point to the natural relation of man and woman. The answer of his people seems, however, to relate to his daughters.

1194A Allah is the strong support to whom the righteous have recourse when they are in trouble. The particle au signifies or, as well as rather, in the latter case being the equivalent of bal (Mgh-LL).

1195 Compare Gen. 19: 26.

1196 It was a severe earthquake, which so utterly demolished the cities as to have turned them upside down. In 15: 73 it is called saiḥah, i.e. the rumbling that precedes an earthquake. See 918. The stories of Gabriel taking up the cities to heaven and then throwing them down are entirely baseless.

1197 The raining down of stones might have been the result of a volcanic eruption which was accompanied by an earthquake. See 918.

1198 The word sijjil is a pure Arabic word and not a corruption of the Persian sang-i-gil, as thought by some lexicologists. It is derived from the root sajala, meaning he poured forth (water), from which a large number of derivatives has followed, as usual in Arabic: for instance, the verb forms sajjala, i.e. he wrote a paper or a scroll, or decided judicially, sajala-hū, i.e. he vied with him for superiority in anything, originally in the drawing of water, asjala-hū, i.e. he gave him a bucketful, insajala, i.e. it (water) poured forth, and nouns such as sijill, meaning a writing, or a scroll, sajl, meaning a full bucket, etc. (LL). In consonance with the original meaning of writing, sijjil means what had been written or decreed for them (Q-LL), or according to AO many and hard (LL).

1199 As in the previous instances, the concluding words show a reversion to the subject of the punishment of the Meccan opponents of the Holy Prophet.

Punishment of the Wicked is a Divine Law

96-102. Iniquity draws punishment on Pharaoh. 103-105. A like fate for the opponents of the Prophet. 106, 107. Punishment is only remedial and not everlasting. 108. Reward of the righteous is unceasing. 109. The Meccans shall receive punishment.

96 And certainly We sent Moses with Our communications and a clear authority, 97 To Pharaoh and his chiefs, but they followed the bidding of Pharaoh, and Pharaoh's bidding was not right-directing.

98 He shall lead his people on the resurrection day, and bring them down to the fire: and evil the company brought down.

Or, places to which they are brought.

99 And they are overtaken by curse in this (world), and on the resurrection day: evil the gift which shall be given.

100 This is an account of (the fate of) the towns which we relate to you: of them are some that stand and (others) mown down.

102 And such is the punishment of your Lord when He punishes the towns while they are unjust; surely His punishment is painful, severe.

103 Most surely there is a sign in this for him who fears the chastisement of the hereafter; this is a day on which the people shall be gathered together and this is a day that shall be witnessed.

104 And We do not delay it but to an appointed term.

105 On the day when it shall come, no soul shall speak except with His permission, then (some) of them shall be unhappy and (others) happy.

مَا شَاءَ رَبُّكَ لَعَنَآءٌ عَصٰى وَنٰدٍ ۝

1201 This limitation on the duration of abiding in hell—except as your Lord please—is given twice in the Holy Qur-án, here and in 6:129, and it shows clearly that the punishment of hell is not everlasting. A comparison with the verse that follows makes it clearer. There, too, we have that those in paradise shall abide there as long as the heaven and the earth endure, but the statement is immediately followed by another: a gift which shall never be cut off, thus showing that in fact there is no limitation upon the eternity of paradise, and the words except as your Lord please have been used only to express the unbounded power and greatness of the Divine Being. In the case of hell, however, the words except as your Lord please are followed by a statement which corroborates the limitation thus placed, for the word fa'al, as an attribute of the Divine Being, indicates that He does even those things which seem impossible to others, the word being an intensive form of fi'il, meaning doer. The same words are in the two cases followed by entirely different statements, showing that the same sense is not to be attached to the words إِلَّا مَا شَاءَ رَبُّكَ in both cases. In the case of hell it is an actual limitation, because Allah is the great doer, who does what He intends even though it may appear impossible to men, while in the case of heaven it is not a limitation on its eternity—for that is a gift never to be cut off, but an expression of Divine greatness.

Various sayings of the Holy Prophet corroborate the statement made above. For instance, the concluding portion of one of these which is met with in one of the most reliable collections runs thus: "Then will Allah say: 'The angels and the prophets and the faithful have all in their turn interceded for the sinners, and now there remains none to intercede for them except the most Merciful of all merciful ones. So He will take out a handful from fire and bring out a people who never worked any good'" (Mus). There are also other sayings in the Kanz-ul-'Ummál: "Surely a day will come over hell when it will be like a field of corn that has dried up after flourishing for a while"; and again, "Surely a day will come over hell when there shall not be a single human being in it" (vol. vii. p. 245). There is also a saying of 'Umar on record (see Fat-h-ul-Bayán, Fat-h-ul-Barí, Durr-i-Mansoor, and the Hád-il-Arwah of Ibn-i-Qayyum): "Even if the dwellers in hell may be numberless as the sands of the desert a day will surely come when they will be taken out of it."

One question, however, remains to be answered, and that is the use of the word abad (which is generally considered as meaning for ever). This abiding in hell (abadan) is mentioned thrice in the Holy Qur-án, in 4:169, 33:65, and 72:23. On all these three occasions I render the words as meaning for a long time, and this significance appears to be correct, in the light of what has been stated above. It must be borne in mind that abad signifies a long time (LÍ), being synonymous with دهر طويل (Mgh), or as TA says الدهر الطويل الذى ليس يحدود i.e. a long time which is not limited; it also signifies time (in an absolute sense) or time without end; hence eternity. But the other significance of the word has its use in Arabic literature, and hence its plural ābād, which would be meaningless if the word signified nothing but eternity. Rgh also gives us a clue to the other significance (i.e. abad being equivalent to a long time), for he says تَابَدَ الشَّيْءُ means the thing remained for abad, adding دِيعِبَرُ بِهِ عَمَّا يَبْقَى مَدَّةَ طَوِيلَةٍ i.e. it is also used to signify that which remains for a long time. The Qur-ān makes this use of the word clear by stating in 78 : 23 that the unbelievers shall remain in hell for ahqāb, i.e. long ages, the word being plural of hugbah, which means seventy or eighty years (see 2645). If abad in the case of hell signified eternity, the word ahqāb could not have been used. Hence a long time is the correct rendering of the word. Thus the Qur-ān rejects the doctrine of the eternity of hell.

1202 See note on the preceding verse, where the words except as your Lord please are fully explained. In accordance with what is said here in connection with the heavenly life, that it is a gift which shall never be cut off, we have in 15 : 48, "Nor shall they be ever ejected from it."

1203 Ikhtalafa means also khalafa, i.e. he acted in opposition to, or disagreed with (see 212A for full explanation).

1204 Not only is it forbidden to man to commit any injustice himself, but he should also refrain from leaning towards those who are guilty of injustice—a very hard rule of conduct to carry out, no doubt, but the only one that can keep him upright.

1205 The times of prayer are clearly indicated in this verse, and it is not true that it was revealed before any time was fixed for prayer. The prayer is to be said in the two parts of the day and the first hours of the night. In the first part of the day is the sajr, or the morning prayer before sunrise, and in the second part of the day the zuhr, or the early afternoon, and the asr, or the later afternoon, prayers. In the first hours of the night we have the maghrib, or the after sunset prayer, and the ishā, or the night prayer, just before going to bed. It is a remarkable fact that the two afternoon prayers and the two sunset prayers, which are spoken of together, may under exceptional circumstances be said together. It should also be noted that though ṭarf means an end or extremity, it also means a quarter, or a portion, or a part (synonym ṭāifah) of a thing (S, O, Q-LL), and it is used in relation to bodies or material things and to times, etc. (Rgh, TA-LL). Hence I prefer the rendering two parts (of the day) to two ends, which is not applicable here.

1206 In the phrase ulū baqiyyah, the word baqiyyah is interpreted in a number of ways. LL collects all of these in the article on baqy. Some of these are: persons possessed of excellence, or possessing a relic of judgment and intelligence (Bd), or persons of understanding (Q, TA) and discrimination (TA), or persons of obedience (TA), or having the quality of preserving themselves (Az, Bd, Q) from punishment.

1207 Zulm here signifies wrong belief as distinct from guilty conduct. The commentators almost agree in giving it here the significance of shirk or polytheism (Rz, Bd, JB). The Holy Qur-ān generally speaks of Divine punishment and Divine wrath overtaking men in this world for their inordinacy, or transgression, or grossly immoral conduct, and not for wrong or erroneous beliefs, which may be compatible with good conduct. Here this is asserted very plainly. It should be noted that the word zulm, which I have generally translated as injustice, is very broad in its significance. Rgh deals with all the shades of its meaning, saying that zulm is of three kinds: (1) as between man and Allah, the greatest of which is kufir or unbelief, and shirk or polytheism; this would, of course, include all wrong beliefs with regard to the Divine Being; (2) as between man and man, which would include all kinds of immoralities and transgressions involving a violation of the rights of others; (3) as between man and his own self, which would include all kinds of guilty action injurious not to others but to man's own self. The other meaning is given in the margin.

1208 The meaning is that if it were a Divine law to force men to one particular belief, they would have become a single nation, but as it is, He has so created them that they shall continue to differ, hence some of them accept the truth and others reject it.

1209 Here it is clearly stated that Allah created all men to have mercy on them. By His mercy He guides some to the right path, while to others, who go over to evil and make themselves deserving of hell, mercy shall come only after punishment. It is by their own hands that they get into distress and difficulty, while Allah has mercy on them in extricating them from it.

1210 Because they went against the ways which Allah had mercifully shown to them, therefore they must pass through another ordeal, so that they may be purged of evil and made fit for spiritual progress.

CHAPTER XII

JOSEPH

(Yūsuf)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(12 sections and 111 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Joseph's vision.
- Sec. 2. Plot against Joseph by his brothers.
- Sec. 3. Joseph's firmness under temptations.
- Sec. 4. Joseph is imprisoned.
- Sec. 5. Joseph's preaching in the prison.
- Sec. 6. The king's vision and its interpretation by Joseph.
- Sec. 7. Joseph is cleared of the charge and raised to eminence.
- Sec. 8. Joseph helps his brothers.
- Sec. 9. Joseph's youngest brother.
- Sec. 10. Joseph discloses his identity to his brothers.
- Sec. 11. Israel goes to Egypt.
- Sec. 12. A lesson for the Prophet's opponents in the histories of the former prophets.

Title and Subject-matter.

THIS chapter receives its title from the story with which it deals. The entire chapter gives a continuous account of the history of Joseph, the first three verses and the concluding section both pointing to the purpose which underlies the story. It is not, in fact, a mere narrative, but foretells the ultimate triumph of the Holy Prophet, who was being turned out of his native city, and also the final submission of those who were plotting against his very life.

The chapter deals with three kinds of visions, viz. the vision of a prophet (Joseph), which pointed to his ultimate triumph and the triumph of the truth which he preached (vv. 4 and 100); the vision of a king, relating to the measures of the material welfare of those under his care (vv. 43-49), and the visions of ordinary men, relating to their own adversity or prosperity (vv. 36-41). The grander the purpose, the longer it takes for its due fulfilment; Joseph's vision took a whole lifetime, the king's vision fourteen years, while the visions of ordinary men come to immediate fulfilment. The Holy Prophet doubtless obtained consolation from these facts, and as he had before him a very grand object—the reformation first of the Arabs and then of the whole world—he patiently awaited the realization of these noble ideals, knowing that it would surely take some time.

Context.

In the arrangement of the chapters, the connection of this chapter with the one preceding it is clear. That chapter deals with the histories of several well-known prophets and the fate of their opponents. This prophetically states that the dealings of the enemies towards the Holy Prophet, and those of the Holy Prophet towards his enemies, were more in the nature of the mutual dealings of Joseph and his brothers, there being strict persecution on one side and entire forgiveness and merciful dealing on the other. It will be further seen that the concluding words of the last chapter speak of the accounts of the apostles to strengthen your heart therewith (11 : 120), and as this chapter is expressly mentioned to have been revealed to give solace to the Holy Prophet in his persecution by his enemies (AH) and to comfort him at a time when that most critical moment of his life was approaching which led to his flight to Medina, it is a fitting sequel to the eleventh chapter.

Date of revelation.

As to the place of its revelation, there is almost a consensus of opinion that the whole of it was revealed at Mecca. The conjecture that the first three verses were revealed at Medina does not deserve attention, because these are clearly necessary as a preliminary to the chapter which, there is good ground for believing, was revealed on the eve of the Holy Prophet's flight to Medina. Such is the opinion of Sayooti; Weil, among the European critics, holds the same opinion. It is an undisputed fact that when the Holy Prophet conquered Mecca he repeated the very words, when forgiving his bitterest enemies, that Joseph had spoken when forgiving his brothers. Thus no doubt is left that the revelation of the chapter belongs to the period when the Holy Prophet's enemies were actively plotting against him, there being a clear reference to this in v. 7.

1211 احسن القصص does not mean the best of the stories, nor does it here refer to the story of Joseph. Qaṣaṣ is an infinitive noun, from qaṣṣa, meaning he related or explained (I.L.). And نحن نقص عليك احسن القصص is explained in Q and TA as meaning we explain to you with the best explanation. It should be noted that the plural of qisṣah, meaning a story, is qisṣaṭ, and not qaṣaṣ (I.L.). See also the commentators (Kf, Rz, JB), who consider it as an infinitive noun. The meaning of the passage is that the revelation of the Qur-án affords the best explanation in regard to the spiritual and moral needs of man, and also regarding the future events of the life of the Holy Prophet.

1212 The Prophet's "unawareness" relates to his own future, of which this chapter gives a clear indication in the incidents of Joseph's life, viz. that he shall be expelled from

SECTION 2

Plot against Joseph by his Brothers

7. A sign as to the Prophet's future. 8-20. Plot of Joseph's brothers and their casting Joseph into a pit.

7 Certainly in Joseph and his brothers there are signs for the inquirers.¹²¹⁴

8 When they said: Certainly Joseph and his brother¹²¹⁵ are dearer to our father than we, though we are a (stronger) company: most surely our father is in manifest error:

لَقَدْ كَانَ فِي يُوسُفَ وَإِخْوَتِهِ آيَاتٍ لِلنَّاسِ لَئِنْ
إِذَا قَالَ الْيُوسُفُ وَأَخُوهُ أَحَبُّ إِلَىٰ أَبِينَا

ضَلَالٍ مُبِينٍ ٨

his home as Joseph was expelled, but that his countrymen shall ultimately come to him in submission, asking pardon for their faults, as Joseph's brothers had done. The Holy Prophet's reference to the reply of Joseph to his brothers اليوم لا تنزيب عليكم اليوم (v. 92), after the conquest of Mecca, when the Quraish came to him asking pardon for their crimes, shows clearly that the story of Joseph was understood to convey this meaning from the first. But "unawareness" here may also refer to all those things that are related in the Qur-án, because the Prophet knew nothing of them before the revelation. This is also stated in 42: 52: "And thus did We reveal to you an inspired Book by Our command; you did not know what the Book was, nor what the faith was, but We made it a light, guiding thereby whom We please of Our servants."

1213 Compare Gen. 37: 9: "And behold the sun and the moon and the eleven stars made obeisance to me." It should be noted that there is nothing in this verse to show that it was a vision.

1214 What was hinted at in the first section is now made clearer. At the time of this revelation the Prophet was in the greatest difficulty, for the chief men of Mecca conspired against his life, and therefore people no doubt inquired about his fate. In answer they are told that their treatment of him and his treatment of them would be similar to that which Joseph experienced at the hands of his brothers, and that which they met with from him.

1215 Benjamin, his brother by the same mother, is meant here.

9 Slay Joseph or cast him (forth) into some land, so that your father's regard may be exclusively for you, and after that you may be a righteous people.¹²¹⁶

10 A speaker from among them said: Do not slay Joseph, and cast him down into the bottom of the pit if you must do (it), (so that) some of the travellers may pick him up.¹²¹⁷

11 They said: O our father! what reason have you that you do not trust in us with respect to Joseph? and most surely we are his sincere well-wishers:

12 Send him with us tomorrow that he may enjoy himself and sport, and surely we will guard him well.

13 He said: Surely it grieves me that you should take him off, and I fear lest the wolf devour him while you are heedless of him.

14 They said: Surely if the wolf should devour him notwithstanding that we are a (strong) company, we should then certainly be losers.

15 So when they had gone off with him and agreed that they should put him down at the bottom of the pit, and We revealed to him: You will most certainly inform them of this their affair while they do not perceive.¹²¹⁸

1216 The conspiracy of the Quraish against the Holy Prophet was of a similar nature. It is referred to in the Qur-án in the following words: "And when those who disbelieved devised plans against you, that they might confine you or slay you or drive you away" (8: 30).

1217 "And Reuben said unto them: Shed no blood, but cast him into this pit that is in the wilderness and lay no hand upon him" (Gen. 37: 22).

1218 The essential difference between the two versions of this story, one given in the Bible and the other in the Qur-án, is this, that while the Bible narrates it as a simple story, the Holy Qur-án preserves in it the spiritual element which alone can justify its record in a book meant for the spiritual guidance of man. Here is a child whose age does not exceed seventeen years, who, though to all appearance lost for ever, receives a Divine revelation and promise that he will one day be the master of his present oppressors. It is this circumstance in the life of a prophet which really enables him to face all distresses and difficulties, viz. the deep conviction of the ultimate triumph of truth which is produced by revelation from on high. By omitting the spiritual significance the Bible narrative divests the story of all its beauty.

19 And there came travellers and they sent their water-drawer and he let down his bucket. He said: O good news! this is a youth; and they concealed him as an article of merchandise, and Allah knew what they did.

20 And they sold him for a small price, a few pieces of silver, and they showed no desire for him.¹²²⁰

وَشَرَوْهُ بِثَمَنٍ بَخِيسٍ دَرَاهِمَ مَعْدُودَةٍ
وَكَانُوا فِيهِ مِنَ الزَّاهِدِينَ

1219 The Qur-án represents Jacob as doubting from the very first the sincerity of Joseph's brothers, but not so the Bible. Again, according to the Holy Qur-án, Joseph relates his vision to his father, who is at once apprehensive of the envy of his brothers if they are apprised of it; but according to the Bible, Jacob himself rebuked Joseph for his dream, which being true, the circumstance casts a reflection upon Jacob's prophetic character. Besides several discrepancies, the Bible narrative represents Jacob as an ordinary mortal, while the Holy Qur-án represents him as a prophet. The former makes him grieve for the loss of a beloved son as any other mortal would, but the latter shows that he had from the first a hope: "And Allah is He Whose help is sought for against what you describe." And throughout the story this hope is the bright ray without which the story would be a gloomy description, devoid of all value as a spiritual lesson. There are traces left still in the Bible narrative which show that the account as now met with in Genesis does not truly depict the character of Jacob, for in Gen. 37:11 we are told: "And his brethren envied him, but his father observed the saying," i.e. kept the vision in his heart, which shows that he was convinced of its truth. This is so inconsistent with the rest of the narrative as to Jacob's belief in the sincerity of his sons, that there is no alternative left but the admission that the Quranic narrative not only fits in with the prophetic character of Jacob, but also that wherever it contradicts the Bible it removes in fact the inconsistencies of the Bible, which only records a distorted version of the story.

1220 Compare Gen. 37:28: "Then there passed by Midianites, merchantmen, and they drew and lifted up Joseph out of the pit, and sold Joseph to the Ishmaelites for twenty pieces of silver." Those who sold him were either Joseph's brothers or the merchants who found him in the pit; according to the story as related in Genesis, Joseph's brothers sold him to the Midianites, who again sold him in Egypt.

21 And the Egyptian who bought him¹²²¹ said to his wife: Give him an honourable abode, maybe he will be useful to us, or we may adopt him as a son. And thus did We establish Joseph in the land and that We might teach him the interpretation of sayings; and Allah is the master of His affair, but most people do not know.

22 And when he had attained his maturity, We gave him wisdom and knowledge; and thus do We reward those who do good.¹²²²

24 And certainly she made for him, and he would have made for her, were it not that he had seen the manifest evidence of his Lord; thus (it was) that We might turn away from him evil and indecency, surely he was one of Our

1221 "And the Midianites sold him into Egypt unto Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh and a captain of the guard" (Gen. 37:36). And Gen. 39:1 says: "And Joseph was brought down to Egypt; and Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, captain of the guard, an Egyptian, bought him of the hands of the Ishmaelites, which had brought him thither."

1222 "And the Lord was with Joseph, and he was a prosperous man." (Gen. 39:2).

1223 Rdwada-hi means he endeavoured to turn him from a thing (LA-LI), and hence راودته عن نفسه literally means she sought by blandishment to turn him from his disdain and make him yield to her (T-LI).

1224 A comparison with Gen. 39:7-12 will give the reader a true impression of the purity of the language of the Qur-ān.

1225 This does not show that Joseph had the least desire for her; but that the temptation was so strong that if he had not been strengthened by great faith in Allah he would have fallen a prey to mortal weakness.

25 And they both hastened to the door, and she rent his shirt from behind and they met her husband at the door. She said: What is the punishment of him who intends evil to your wife except imprisonment or a painful chastisement?

Ar. thy.

26 He said: She sought to make me yield (to her); and a witness of her own family bore witness: If his shirt is rent from front, she speaks the truth and he is one of the liars:

27 And if his shirt is rent from behind, she tells a lie and he is one of the truthful.

28 So when he saw his shirt rent from behind, he said: Surely it is a device of you women: surely your device is great.¹²²⁶

29 O Joseph! turn aside from this; and (O my wife!) ask forgiveness for your fault, surely you are one of the wrong-doers.

SECTION 4

Joseph is Imprisoned

30 And women in the city said: The chief's¹²²⁷ wife seeks her slave to yield himself (to her), surely he has affected her deeply¹²²⁸ with (his) love; most surely we see her in manifest error.

وَقَالَ نِسْوَةٌ فِي الْمَدِينَةِ امْرَأَتُ الْعَزِيزِ
تُرَاوِدُ فَتَاهَا عَنْ نَفْسِهِ قَدْ شَغَفَهَا
حُبًّا إِنَّا لَنَرَاهَا فِي ضَلَالٍ مُبِينٍ ○

1226 The vindication of Joseph's character on this occasion, and the production of the evidence of the shirt, are not related in the Bible; but without it the episode of leaving the garment becomes meaningless. It seems to be a clear omission. The next section proves that Joseph was not cast into prison for being guilty of having committed an outrage against his master's wife. The Holy Book does not allow even an accusation of this nature to stand against a prophet.

1227 Al-'Aziz stands for Potiphar (Kf). 'Aziz really means mighty, powerful, strong, and might as such be applied to such a dignitary as the captain of the guard, which rank was held by Potiphar. Al-'Aziz has become associated with the rulers of Egypt as their title, but the fact that it is not meant here to express that position is clear from the ruler being called al-Malik, or the king (v. 43), and Joseph himself, who was admittedly not the ruler but only the chief dignitary of the empire, being addressed as 'aziz' in v. 78.

1228 Shaghafa-ha literally means he has affected her so that the love of him has entered beneath the shighaf, i.e. the pericardium of her heart.

31 So when she heard of their device,¹²²⁹ she sent for them and prepared for them a repast,¹²³⁰ and gave each of them a knife, and said (to Joseph): Come forth to them. So when they saw him, they deemed him great, and cut their hands (in amazement), and said: Remote is Allah (from imperfection): this is not a mortal; this is but a noble angel.¹²³¹

32 She said: This is he with respect to whom you blamed me, and certainly I sought his yielding himself (to me), but he abstained, and if he does not do what I bid him, he shall certainly be imprisoned, and he shall certainly be of those who are in a state of ignominy.

33 He said: My Lord! the prison house is dearer to me than that to which they invite me; and if Thou turn not away their device from me, I will yearn towards them and become (one) of the ignorant.

34 Thereupon his Lord accepted his prayer and turned away their device from him; surely He is the Hearing, the Knowing.

35 Then it occurred to them after they had seen the signs that they should imprison him till a time.¹²³²

فَلَمَّا سَمِعَتْ بِمَكْرِهِنَّ أَرْسَلَتْ إِلَيْهِنَّ

فَلَمَّا رَأَيْنَهُ أَكْبَرْنَهُ وَقَطَّعْنَ أَيْدِيَهُنَّ

يُمِينُ

1229 The secret imputation of the women is called here their makr or device (Kf, Bđ). Some, however, think that she knew that certain women had circulated the news with the object of getting a chance to see Joseph, and hence it is called their makr or device.

1230 Muttaka'a means originally a place in which one reclines, then that upon which one reclines in eating, drinking, or talking, and also food, or repast, which last is considered by TA to be the meaning here (LL). The commentators add that muttaka'a is the particular food which requires to be cut with a knife (Kf, Rz), and suggest that to be the reason for handing over knives to them.

1231 The Egyptians were a superstitious and polytheistic people, and anything strange, or any human being about whom they witnessed anything wonderful, was considered by them to be a god. Hence, when they saw Joseph they thought he was not a mortal. The words حاش لله are generally spoken to express wonder or admiration.

1232 There is nothing to show that Joseph was cast into prison on a charge of having committed an outrage on Potiphar's wife. As he was proved guiltless of that charge, it is very likely that some other accusation was brought against him; and more probably an autocratic ruler needed no excuse for putting an innocent man into prison. By signs must be understood the signs of Joseph's innocence.

SECTION 5

Joseph's Preaching in the Prison

36 And two youths entered the prison with him.¹²³³ One of them said: I saw myself pressing wine. And the other said: I saw myself carrying bread on my head, of which birds ate. Inform us of its interpretation; surely we see you to be of the doers of good.¹²³⁴

Ar. three.

37 He said: There shall not come to you the food with which you are fed, but I will inform you both of its interpretation before it comes to you: this is of what my Lord has taught me: surely I have forsaken the religion of a people who do not believe in Allah, and they are deniers of the hereafter:

38 And I follow the religion of my fathers, Abraham and Isaac and Jacob: it beseems us not that we should associate aught with Allah: this is by Allah's grace upon us and on mankind, but most people do not give thanks:

39 O my two mates of the prison! are sundry lords better or Allah the One, the Supreme?

40 You do not serve besides Him but names which you have named, you and your fathers; Allah has not sent down any authority for them; judgment is only Allah's; He has commanded that you shall not serve aught but Him; this is the right religion, but most people do not know:

1233 For the whole of this section compare Gen. 40th chapter, which, however, omits Joseph's preaching. The two youths were the butler and the baker.

1234 It should be noted that in the case of the four dreams mentioned in this chapter, viz. the two recorded here and Joseph's dream mentioned in v. 4 and Pharaoh's dream mentioned in v. 43, the word used for seeing a vision is the same word arā (from ru'yat, meaning to see) as is used for the seeing of ordinary things. This consideration would help us in interpreting correctly many verses of the Qur-ān and the sayings of the Holy Prophet.

41 O my two mates of the prison! as for one of you, he shall give his lord to drink wine; and as for the other, he shall be crucified, so that the birds shall eat from his head: the matter is decreed concerning which you inquired.

Ar. thy. 42 And he said to him whom he knew would be delivered of the two: Remember me with your lord; but the devil caused him to forget mentioning (it) to his lord, so he remained in the prison a few years.¹²³⁵

SECTION 6

The King's Vision and its Interpretation by Joseph

43 And the king said:¹²³⁶ Surely I see seven fat kine which seven lean ones devoured; and seven green ears and (seven) others dry; O chiefs! explain to me my dream, if you can interpret the dream.

44 They said: Confused dreams, and we do not know the interpretation of dreams.

Ar. send me. 45 And of the two (prisoners) he who had found deliverance and remembered after a long time said: I will inform you of its interpretation, so let me go:

46 Joseph! O truthful one! explain to us seven fat kine which seven lean ones devoured, and seven green ears and (seven) others dry, that I may go back to the people so that they may know.

Or, continuously. 47 He said: You shall sow for seven years as usual, then what you reap leave it in its ear except a little of which you eat.

48 Then there shall come after that seven years of hardship which shall eat away all that you have beforehand laid 1235 The word bid 'is applied to indicate a number from three to ten. Some lexicologists, however, consider it to be applicable from one to ten (L.L.).

1236 Compare this section with Gen. 41:1-31.

Joseph is cleared of the Charge and raised to Eminence

Ar. thy. 50 And the king said: Bring him to me. So when the messenger came to him, he said: Go back to your lord and ask him, what is the case of the women who cut their hands; surely my Lord knows their device.

Or, manifest. 51 He said: How was your affair when you sought Joseph to yield himself (to you)?¹²³⁷ They said: Remote is Allah (from imperfection), we knew of no evil on his part. The chief's wife said: Now has the truth become established: I sought him to yield himself (to me), and he is most surely of the truthful ones.

52 This is that he might know that I have not been unfaithful to him in secret and that Allah does not guide the device of the unfaithful.¹²³⁸

53 And I do not declare myself free, most surely (man's) self is wont to command (him to do) evil, except such as my Lord has had mercy on: surely my Lord is Forgiving, Merciful.¹²³⁹

1237 That is, the king said to the women.

1238 These are the words of Joseph, who explains his conduct in preferring to remain in prison until his innocence was established. But they may also be attributed to Potiphar's wife as an assurance to Joseph.

1239 These are generally accepted to be the words of Joseph, though some are inclined to attribute them to Potiphar's wife. Even taking the first view, there is no objection, for the prophets of God never attribute any good to themselves, but attribute all good to the Great Source of Goodness—God. Man's self is here called ammarah, i.e. one wont to command. It

55 He said : Place me (in authority) over the treasures of the land, surely I am a good keeper, knowing well.

56 And thus did We give to Joseph power in the land—he had mastery in it wherever he liked : We send down Our mercy on whom We please, and We do not waste the reward of those who do good.

57 And certainly the reward of the hereafter is much better for those who believe and guard (against evil).

SECTION 8

Joseph helps his Brothers

58 And Joseph's brothers came and went in to him, and he knew them, while they did not recognize him.

59 And when he furnished them with their provision, he said : Bring to me a brother of yours from your father : do you not see that I give full measure and that I am the best of hosts ?

60 But if you do not bring him to me, you shall have no measure (of corn) from me, nor shall you come near me.

61 They said : We will strive to make his father yield in respect of him, and we are sure to do (it).

وَجَاءَ اِخْوَةُ يُوسُفَ فَدَخَلُوْا عَلَيْهِ
فَعَرَفَهُمْ وَهُمْ لَهُ مُنْكَرُوْنَ ۝
وَلَمَّا جَهَّزَهُمْ بِجَهَّازِهِمْ قَالَ اِئْتُونِيْ

is in fact the lowest stage in the spiritual growth of man. His inner self, as it were, again and again commands him to do evil, but he refrains from doing it, being involved as it were in a great struggle to get out of the power of evil. The next stage is called the lawwamah, which is referred to in 75 : 2 as the self-accusing spirit, when the slightest departure from the path of rectitude at once rouses the pangs of the conscience. The third stage is the stage of perfection—the muṣṭa'innah, or the soul at rest, where it is in perfect peace, having attained the goal of perfection. See 2732.

Those who have attained the second stage in the spiritual advancement and those who have attained the goal of perfection are spoken of as those on whom the Lord has had mercy.

62 And he said to his servants: Put their money¹²⁴⁰ into their bags that they may recognize it when they go back to their family, so that they may come back.

63 So when they returned to their father, they said: O our father, the measure is withheld from us, therefore send with us our brother, (so that) we may get the measure, and we will most surely guard him.

64 He said: I cannot trust in you with respect to him, except as I trusted in you with respect to his brother before; but Allah is the best Keeper, and He is the most Merciful of the merciful ones.

65 And when they opened their goods, they found their money returned to them. They said: O our father! what (more) can we desire? This is our property returned to us, and we will bring corn for our family and guard our brother, and will have in addition the measure of a camel-(load); this is an easy measure.

66 He said: I will by no means send him with you until you give me a firm covenant in Allah's name that you will most certainly bring him back to me, unless you are completely surrounded. And when they gave him their covenant, he said: Allah is the one in whom trust is placed as regards what we say.

67 And he said: O my sons! do not (all) enter by one gate and enter by different gates,¹²⁴¹ and I cannot avail you aught against Allah: judgment is only Allah's: on Him do I rely, and on Him let those who are reliant rely.

1240 Biḍā'ah means merchandise, or a portion of one's property which one sends for traffic (S, LL). Money is also called biḍā'ah, because it is a man's stock with which he can traffic.

1241 Jacob, it seems, had come to know by Divine revelation that Joseph was there, and therefore he ordered them to enter by different gates so that Joseph might find his brother.

68 And when they had entered as their father had bidden them, it did not avail them aught against Allah, but (it was only) a desire in the soul of Jacob which he satisfied; and surely he was possessed of knowledge because We had given him knowledge, but most people do not know.¹²⁴²

The Youngest Brother

69 And when they went in to Joseph, he lodged his brother with himself, saying: I am your brother, therefore grieve not at what they do.

Ar. thy.

70 So when he furnished them with their provisions, (some one) placed the drinking cup in his brother's bag.¹²⁴³ Then a crier cried out:¹²⁴⁴ O caravan! you are most surely thieves.

71 They said while they were facing them: What is it that you miss?

72 They said: We miss the king's drinking cup, and he who shall bring it shall have a

The next verse makes it clear when it says: And surely he was possessed of knowledge because We had given him knowledge. The statement is corroborated by Mid. Rab and Midr Jalkut. See Rodwell's note 1242 The Bible narrative represents Jacob as being quite ignorant in the matter.

1243 Though the Bible narrative ascribes the placing of the cup to Joseph, the Qur-ān does not say so. It is evident that the furnishing of provisions was not done by Joseph himself. It was somebody else who carried out the orders and furnished the provisions; from the preceding section it is clear that Joseph's servants did so, and when he had to return the money he had to give an order to that effect to his servants. And therefore it was by the king's servants that the drinking-cup (which belonged to the king) was placed in the bag of Joseph's brother. It is not stated here whether it was done intentionally or was put there by mistake: the words may imply either, but even if the servants put it there intentionally it may have been done as an act of special favour to "Benjamin, the well-beloved" brother, seeing that Joseph, on their first visit, treated them with such kindness as even to give instructions that their money should be put into their bags.

1244 It is another mistake to suppose that the crier was the very person who had placed the cup there. As v. 72 makes it clear, it was the king's drinking-cup—in other words it was not Joseph's personal property, but the property of the king, or government property; and it is clear that the men who distributed corn were different from those who had charge of the king's property. This would show that the cup was really misplaced unintentionally.

camel-load, and I am responsible for it.

73 They said: By Allah! you know for certain that we have not come to make mischief in the land, and we are not thieves.

74 They said: But what shall be the requital of this, if you are liars?

75 They said: The requital of this is that the person in whose bag it is found shall himself be (held for) the satisfaction thereof; thus do we punish the wrong-doers.

76 So he began with their sacks before the sack of his brother,¹²⁴⁵ then he brought it out from his brother's sack. Thus did We plan for the sake of Joseph;¹²⁴⁶ it was not (lawful) that he should take his brother under the king's law unless Allah pleased; We raise the degrees of whomsoever We please, and above every one possessed of knowledge is the All-knowing one.

77 They said: If he steal, a brother of his did indeed steal before;¹²⁴⁷ but Joseph kept it secret in his heart and did not disclose it to them. He said: You are in an evil condition and Allah knows best what you state,

78 They said: O chief! he has a father, a very old man,

Ar. soul.

1245 The personal pronoun his refers to Joseph. This was done out of respect for that brother, for they knew that Joseph had lodged him with himself.

1246 This makes it clear that this was not Joseph's plan, but a Divine plan. In other words, the circumstances were made to assist Joseph to keep his brother with him. Joseph's desire, no doubt, was to retain his brother Benjamin while the others returned; but he was unable to do so under the laws of Egypt, as is shown by what follows. Circumstances, however, enabled him to satisfy his desire. The Qur-án here tells us how one living under an alien government should abide by the laws of that government.

1247 The reference is said to be to Joseph's having taken away an image belonging to his mother's father. Compare Gen. 31 : 19 : "And Rachel had stolen the images that were her father's." Christian critics say there is a confusion here between the stories of Joseph and Rachel. But there is nothing to show that the Qur-án actually regards Joseph as having stolen an idol. It is very probable that his brothers made a false statement to cast a veil over their own shame. Joseph's reply shows that he treated this statement as a falsehood, because he spoke of them as being in an evil condition.

Ar. thee.

therefore retain one of us in his stead; surely we see you to be of the doers of good.

79 He said: Allah protect us that we should seize other than him with whom we found our property, for then most surely we would be unjust.

Joseph discloses his Identity to his Brothers

80 Then when they despaired of him, they retired, conferring privately together. The eldest of them said: Do you not know that your father took from you a covenant in Allah's name, and how you fell short of your duty with respect to Joseph before? therefore I will by no means depart from this land until my father permit me or Allah decide for me, and He is the best of the judges:

Ar. thy.

82 And inquire in the town in which we were and the caravan with which we proceeded, and most surely we are truthful.

83 He said: Nay, your souls have made a matter light for you, so patience is good; maybe Allah will bring them all together to me; surely He is the Knowing, the Wise.

84 And he turned away from them, and said: O my sorrow for Joseph! and his eyes were filled¹²⁴⁸ (with tears) on account of the grief, and he was a represser (of grief).

interprets the words as meaning the filling of eyes with tears (Rz). The story of Jacob becoming blind in his grief for the loss of Joseph may be rejected, as it has for its basis only this word.

1249 Tafta'u here stands for la tafta'u, the la being omitted (Rz).

1250 Haraḍ is, according to Q, a person who is in a disordered and diseased state, so that he is one from whom good is not expected, nor is evil feared from him. Hence it is also applied to one who is at the point of death. It also signifies one who falls down so that he is not able to rise again (TA), or one affected by constant disease (AZ-LI), which seems to be the meaning here.

1251 This shows clearly that he knew by Divine revelation that Joseph was alive.

1252 How much the Holy Prophet regarded the story of Joseph as a prophetic description of the events that were to befall him is shown by the following report. It is related that the Apostle of Allah, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him, took hold of the two sides of the gate of the Ka'ba on the day of the conquest (of Mecca) and said to the Quraish: How do you think I will treat you? They said: We hope for good, a noble brother and the son of a noble brother. Then he said: I say as my brother Joseph said: "There shall be no reproof against you this day" (Rz).

فَارْتَدَّ بِصِيرًا قَالَ أَلَمْ أَقُلْ لَكُمْ إِنِّي
أَعْلَمُ مِنَ اللَّهِ مَا لَا تَعْلَمُونَ

1253 عَلَى وَجْهِ ابْنِي may either mean before my father's face or before my father, for waj-h

also means fit, or person, and being the most noble part is used for the whole. Joseph's giving them a shirt was in allusion to their first false statement about marks of blood on his shirt when they pretended that a wolf had torn him

1254 The words يَات بَصِيرًا do not imply that Jacob was blind and recovered his eyesight when Joseph's shirt was cast on his face. Basir means one who sees things with the eyes, as well as one endowed with mental perception or one knowing (S, M, A, Q, Msh-LL). And أَنَا بَصِيرٌ بِهِ means I am knowing respecting it (Msh-LL). All that is meant is that when Jacob saw Joseph's shirt he would possess certain knowledge of Joseph's abiding place; for though he knew by Divine revelation that Joseph was yet alive, he did not know the actual place of his habitation.

1255 When the caravan in which were Joseph's brothers departed from Egypt, Jacob again received assurance from on high about Joseph, so he said to those about him that he perceived the power of Joseph, i.e. he saw that Joseph was a man who possessed power. The word rih signifies both wind and predominance or power (LL). Hence I render the word as meaning greatness.

97 They said : O our father ! ask forgiveness of our faults for us, surely we were sinners.

98 He said : I will ask for you forgiveness from my Lord ; surely He is the Forgiving, the Merciful.

99 Then when they came in to Joseph, he took his parents to lodge with him and said : Enter safe into Egypt, if Allah please.¹²⁵⁶

Or, on account of.

100 And he raised his parents upon the throne¹²⁵⁷ and they made obeisance to¹²⁵⁸ him, and he said : O my father ! this is the significance of my vision of old : my Lord has indeed made it to be true : and He was indeed kind to me when He brought me forth from the prison and brought you from the desert after that the devil had sown dissensions between me and my brothers : surely my Lord is benignant to whom He pleases : surely He is the Knowing, the Wise.

101 My Lord ! Thou hast given me of the kingdom and taught me of the interpretation of sayings : Originator of the heavens and the earth ! Thou art my guardian in this world and the hereafter ; make me die a muslim and join me with the good.

Or, in submission.

1256 Leah was Rachel's elder sister and a wife of Jacob (Gen. 29, 16-28). The fact that Rachel was dead in no way contradicts this statement, because Leah would be Joseph's mother in both capacities, as his mother's sister and as his father's wife.

1258 The words do not definitely state who it was that made obeisance. It may have been the people of Egypt who did obeisance to Joseph as a mark of his high dignity, for it is not necessary that the number of men making obeisance should be the same as the number of stars in Joseph's vision. All that the vision meant was that Joseph would be raised to great dignity. Or the meaning may be that when Joseph's parents and his brothers saw the great dignity to which Joseph had attained, they made obeisance to Allah on account of Joseph.

1259 'It is indeed strange to find men like Rodwell and Muir giving vent to their feelings of hatred of the Holy Prophet on occasions like this. The remark that "Muhammad must at this period, while recasting and working up these materials, have entered upon a course of wilful dissimulation and deceit (although the end would justify to him the means employed) in claiming inspiration for them" (Rodwell) is due to crass ignorance if not to deep malice. It has already been noted how the Qur-ân, after relating that which befell the opponents of a prophet, immediately changes the subject, hinting that the same punishment was in store for the opponents of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, and throughout the Holy Qur-ân the anbâ-ul-ghaib, or the announcements relating to the unseen, signify, not the ancient histories of past prophets, but a repetition of those histories in the life of the Holy Prophet Muhammad. Take this case, for instance. The present history of Joseph ends in the last verse with his prayer for being classed with the righteous at his death, and there is a reversion in this verse to the similar events that befell or must befall the Holy Prophet. It has already been shown how the events in the lives of the two prophets closely resembled each other. The reference in "When they resolved upon their affair and they were devising plans" is to the resolution of the Quraish and their plans of either killing him or banishing him or imprisoning him (see 8 : 30, where the very word yamkurûn is used for these plans). The two verses which follow and the whole of the next section show still more clearly that the change of subject has already been introduced. The Qur-ân does not relate stories for the sake of giving information of the past, but for the lessons which they afford for the future guidance of man : hence it is that it omits many details and long portions, and mentions sometimes apparently trifling incidents, when these minor incidents have some bearing on the future, while the others have not. Compare 421, 1185, and 1212.

108 Say: This is my way: I call to Allah, I and those who follow me being certain,^a and glory be to Allah, and I am not one of the polytheists.

Ar. they. 110 Until when the apostles despaired and the people became sure that they were indeed told a lie, Our help came to them and whom We pleased was delivered; and Our punishment is not averted from the guilty people.¹²⁶⁰

^b 70. 111 In their histories there is certainly a lesson for men of understanding. It is not a narrative which could be forged, but a verification of what is before it^b and a distinct explanation of all things and a guide and a mercy to a people who believe.

وَعَهْدَىٰ ذُرِّيَّتَهُ لِقَوْمٍ يُؤْمِنُونَ ۝

1260 The personal pronouns, if not rightly understood, quite distort the sense of the passage. The apostles warn their people, but the latter are so stubborn that the apostles at length despair of their people benefiting by the warning. The people, on the other hand, were sure, on account of the delay of the punishment, that what the prophets had spoken to them about the warning and the coming of the punishment was a lie. Then it is that the promised help for the prophets and the punishment with which the evil-doers are threatened come to them. That the prophets never despair of Divine assistance coming to them in accordance with Divine promise is clear from what has already been said in v. 87: "For none despairs of Allah's mercy except the unbelieving people."

CHAPTER XIII
THE THUNDER
(Al-Ra'd)

REVEALED AT MECCA
(6 sections and 43 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Truth of Revelation.
- Sec. 2. Demand for punishment.
- Sec. 3. Righteousness will bring its reward and transgression its evil consequences.
- Sec. 4. Miracles of the Qur-án.
- Sec. 5. Opposition shall fail.
- Sec. 6. Steady progress of truth.

The Title.

THIS chapter is named the Thunder from the analogy of the rain, which is often likened to revelation in the Holy Qur-án. As the rain is a mercy from Allah, so is revelation, yet as rain is accompanied with thunder and lightning, so revelation is accompanied with warning of punishment, though its real object is to confer benefit. Thus the name of this chapter gives us a hint as to its subject-matter. It has necessarily to deal with the punishment of the offenders, yet punishment must not be mistaken to be the object of revelation.

Context and subject-matter.

It deals with the truth of revelation, and a reference to previous history in the chapter preceding the last is here followed by a discussion as to the fate of the opponents of the Holy Prophet. As regards the internal arrangement of the verses of this chapter, it will be seen that it opens with an assertion as to the truth of Divine revelation, and points to the numerous signs in physical nature which bear witness to its truth; but not satisfied with these signs, the unbelievers demand that the punishment with which they were threatened as being their ultimate fate should overtake them. The second section is a reply to this demand. There is a law according to which nations rise and fall, and the fall of idolaters, and the rise of the Muslim nation, were to be brought about in accordance with that law. Here it is that the warning is compared to thunder, revelation being rain, the suggestion being that a demand for punishment is as foolish as a desire to be struck by lightning instead of being benefited by the rain. In the third section the unbelievers are told that there is no showing of partiality for one or hatred for another in Divine nature, but that it is in accordance with Divine laws that righteousness should bring its own reward, while continued transgression must be followed by evil consequences. And why should they again and again demand a miracle from without? The much-talked-of miracles, we are told in the fourth section, are miracles which work within man. The satisfaction which the Holy Book brings to the hearts of the true believers, the great transformation which it was to bring about in the world, the moving away of the great mountains which were obstacles to the spread of truth, and the quickening of those who were dead in spirit, were the real miracles which a heavenly book should work among men; and this is what the Qur-án was destined to do, and what it had already effected to a remarkable extent. There was no doubt great opposition, and mountains of difficulties had risen to obstruct the spread of truth; but this opposition, we are told in the fifth section, was destined to fail because truth must spread in the world and prevail over falsehood, and the time must come when the righteous should no more be mocked at, but should prosper, because the prosperity of truth was bound up with their prosperity. The closing section brings in the evidence of the progress of truth, which, however slow, was certainly steady. Unbelief was already at a discount, for while the ranks of the unbelievers continued to be thinned, the number of Muslims was gradually increasing.

Date of revelation.

This chapter, like the three sister chapters preceding it and the two that follow it, was revealed at Mecca, and all six of them belong to about the same period, viz. to the period preceding the flight to Medina, as does also the 16th chapter, all of them dealing with and affirming the truth of revelation, and speaking as it were the last word on that point preparatory to the flight to Medina. V. 41 clearly shows that truth was gradually gaining ground, and the reference to the curtailing of the sides in that verse either refers to the conversions which were made in Medina or to the increasing number of conversions at Mecca itself, which even the severest opposition had not been able to check. Similarly there is a reference in v. 42, in the word makr, to the plans of the opponents by which they sought to deal a final blow to the movement by taking away the life of the Holy Prophet.

1261 The letters are alif, standing for aná and meaning I, lám for Allah, mím for a'lam, meaning the Knowing, and rá for rá'ee, i.e. the Seeing.

3 And He it is who spread the earth and made in it firm mountains and rivers, and of all fruits He has made in it two kinds; He makes the night cover the day; most surely there are signs in this for a people who reflect.

4 And in the earth there are tracts side by side and gardens of grapes and corn and palm-trees having one root and (others) having distinct roots—they are watered with one water, and We make some of them to excel others in fruit; most surely there are signs in this for a people who understand.¹²⁶²

Ar. thou wouldst.

5 And if you would wonder, then wondrous is their saying: What! when we are dust, shall we then certainly be in a new creation? These are they who disbelieve in their Lord, and these have chains on their necks, and they are the inmates of the fire; in it they shall abide.¹²⁶³

6 And they ask you to hasten on the evil before the good, and indeed there have been exemplary punishments¹²⁶⁴ before them: and most surely your Lord is the Lord of forgiveness to people, 1262 Unity in diversity is observable in the whole of nature, which is a sure sign of the Unity of the great Author of all existence. Besides this, as there is a difference in the produce of different tracts, though they are subject to the same laws of nature, even so are the hearts of men in relation to the growth of the seed of virtue which is sown by revelation.

1263 The chains spoken of here are the chains which keep them constrained to evil usages and wicked courses. Bq's explanation is that they are constrained to error, their deliverance cannot be hoped for. Kf says it is to describe their great persistence in error that this form is used, like as the poet says: لهم عن الرشدا غلال و اقياد i.e. they are kept back from the right course by chains and restraints. AH adds: The chains here signify their corrupt practices, which are like chains on their necks. It should be noted that as those very invisible chains which keep a man constrained to an evil course in this life become the visible chains of the next life, so also the fire of the heart-burnings arising from disappointments and avarice would become the palpable fire of that life. Such is the true nature of the hell of the next life, which really begins in this very life.

1264 Magulât is the plural of muglah which, according to Rgh, means a punishment that comes down upon a man so that he is made an example by which another is restrained. JB and Kf translate the word as meaning punishment that overtook rejecters like them.

Ar. thy. notwithstanding their injustice;¹²⁶⁵ and most surely your Lord is severe in requiting (evil).

Ar. thou art. Or, (there is) a guide. 7 And those who disbelieve say: Why has not a sign been sent down upon him from his Lord? You are only a warner and a guide for every people.¹²⁶⁶

SECTION 2

Demand for Punishment

8-10. Allah knows good-doers and evil-doers. 11. Rise and fall of nations. 12, 13. He threatens that you may mend. 11-18. Truth will prevail.

8 Allah knows what every female bears, and that of which the wombs fall short of completion and that in which they increase; and there is a measure with Him of everything:¹²⁶⁷

اللَّهُ يَعْلَمُ مَا تَحْمِلُ كُلُّ أُنْثَىٰ وَمَا
تَغِيضُ الْأَرْحَامُ وَمَا تَزْدَادُوا مِنْ
شَيْءٍ عِنْدَ رَبِّكَ

1265 Surely your Lord is the Lord of forgiveness to people, notwithstanding their injustice, is a Quranic teaching which one would in vain seek elsewhere. The word zulm or injustice, as has been shown elsewhere, includes all kinds of iniquities and wrongs, whether erroneous beliefs or evil practices. The Meccans were warned again and again and they demanded that the threatened punishment should overtake them, but they are told that the Merciful God would deal with them not according to their iniquities, but according to His vast and comprehensive forgiveness. The same principle is enunciated in different words in 39:53: "Say: O my servants who have acted extravagantly against their own souls, do not despair of the mercy of Allah; surely Allah forgives the faults altogether, surely He is the Forgiving, the Merciful."

But when evil outsteps all bounds, His very mercy, which must be exercised towards His righteous servants, then requires that the iniquitous should not be left without punishment. Hence the Lord is also severe in requiting evil.

1266 The words وَلِكُلِّ قَوْمٍ هَادٍ muḥ refer to the Holy Prophet, as being a warner to the Arabs, who were directly addressed by him and who directly opposed his mission, and as being a guide for all the nations of the earth, the reference thus being to the universality of his mission. The commentators generally consider this phrase to be independent of the first part of the sentence, thus taking the meaning to be and there is a guide for every people, and then explain it as signifying either that the Holy Prophet was a warner in the same manner as there had been before him a guide for every people, being the equivalent of what is said in 35:24, and there is not a people but a warner has gone among them; or that the Prophet was only a warner, while it rested with Allah to guide people in the right way, He being the true Guide (Rz).

1267 By "the falling short of wombs of completion" and by "their increasing" is meant respectively the absence of gestation and the completion of gestation; and by there being a measure of everything is meant that every thing is adapted to a particular end. The object of this verse is to state that it is known to Allah whether a person will be righteous or wicked. This is not only clear from what has been said before, but also from what follows. It is to apprise the opponents of the Holy Prophet of the fact that their mischiefs are known to Allah, and the meaning is expressed more clearly in v. 10, which is again followed by the 9 The Knower of the unseen and the seen, the Great, the Most High.

10 Alike (to Him) among you is he who conceals (his) words and he who speaks them openly, and he who hides himself by night and (who) goes forth by day.¹²⁶⁸

11 For his sake there are angels following one another, before him and behind him, who guard him by Allah's commandment;¹²⁶⁹ surely Allah does not change the condition of a people until they change their own condition; and when Allah intends evil to a people, there is no averting it, and besides Him they have no protector.

12 He it is who shows you the lightning causing fear and hope and (who) brings up the heavy cloud.

13 And the thunder declares His glory with His praise, and the angels too for awe of Him; and He sends the thunderbolts and smites with them whom He pleases, yet they dispute concerning Allah, and He is mighty in prowess.

14 To Him is due the true prayer; and those whom they pray to besides Allah give them no answer, but (they are) like one who stretches forth his two hands towards water that it may reach his mouth, but it will not reach it; and the prayer of the unbelievers is only in error.

still plainer statement that no nation can hope for a good and prosperous future if it does not forsake the ways of evil.

1268 The reference is no doubt to the secret and open counsels against the Prophet and to enemies seeking his life by day and by night. A perusal of the history of his life shows that those who sought his life sometimes followed him secretly when he went out to pray during the early hours of the morning, and sometimes openly followed him in the daytime with an evil purpose.

1269 While the statement is no doubt general and refers to the guardian angels referred to in 6:61, there is a deeper allusion to the Divine protection specially vouchsafed to the Holy Prophet against the numerous enemies among whom he lived day and night. Mu'aqqibât means following one another and the guardian angels of man are so called because they follow one another during day and night, man being at no moment deprived of their guardianship.

1269A The verse lays down the principle in the most clear and emphatic words that all creation has been brought into existence solely by Allah, and that those who are taken as gods besides Allah (Christ being one of them) have not created anything. The words so that what is created became confused to them signify that the things made by man can never be so like the creation of nature that the two should ever become mixed up.

1270 Matâ' includes here all kinds of things necessary for the life of man, such as utensils, tools, implements, and instruments of war (S).

1271 The parable set forth here signifies that the Holy Prophet and his followers, being meant for the good of mankind, will live and prosper; on the other hand, the worthless usages and customs of the Meccans, as well as those who upheld them, shall be swept away before the mighty current of truth as rubbish is borne away by a torrent.

الْسَّيِّئَةِ أُولَئِكَ لَهُمْ عُقْبَى الدَّارِ

1272 While the previous verse deals with man's duty to his Maker, this treats of the relations with His creatures. "What Allah has bidden to be joined" includes all those ties of love and relationship which Allah has taught man to observe and keep inviolate.

1273 Patience in trials and sufferings is only one of the ideas which the word qabr conveys. According to Rgh, qabr is the keeping oneself constrained to that which reason or law requires, or to withhold from that from which they require to withhold, which in similar words may be put as being constant in doing good and refraining from evil.

1274. This passage lays down the noble doctrine of meeting evil with good, which Christians generally put forward as being taught nowhere but in the Christian religion. The Qur-án not only teaches it but improves upon it, making it practicable, so that its observance in Islam does not interfere with law and order, whereas the Gospel doctrine, owing to its impracticability, has not been observed to this day. The words used here are يُدْرُونَ بِالْحَسَنَةِ السَّيِّئَةِ i.e. repel evil with good. Evil is a thing which is by all means to be repelled, and hence good for evil is recommended only in cases when evil would be repelled by that good. A society which unconditionally requited evil with good would abolish all safeguards; evil-doers who received nothing but good for every evil they committed would most assuredly establish a condition of anarchy by their evil deeds. In a similar strain the Qur-án says elsewhere, he who forgives and amends (thereby) (42: 40).

23 The gardens of perpetual abode which they will enter along with those who do good from among their parents¹²⁷⁵ and their spouses¹²⁷⁶ and their offspring; and the angels will enter in upon them from every gate:

24 Peace be on you because you were constant, how excellent is then the issue of the abode.

25 And those who break the covenant of Allah after its confirmation and cut asunder that which Allah has ordered to be joined and make mischief in the land; (as for) those, upon them shall be curse and they shall have the evil (issue) of the abode.

26 Allah amplifies and straitens the means of subsistence for whom He pleases; and they rejoice in this world's life, and this world's life is nothing compared with the hereafter but a temporary enjoyment.

Miracles of the Qur-án

27-30. The Qur-án gives true satisfaction to man's heart. 31. The transformation to be wrought.

27 And those who disbelieve say: Why is not a sign sent down upon him by his Lord?¹²⁷⁷ Say: Surely Allah makes him who will, go astray, and guides to Himself those who turn (to Him).¹²⁷⁸

Or, whom
He pleases.

وَيَقُولُ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا لَوْلَا نُزِّلَ

1275 Ábá is the plural of abwá, i.e. parents, and means fathers and mothers (Kf).

1276 A distinct statement that not only shall women enjoy the bliss of paradise for what they do, but even the righteousness of their husbands shall entitle them to share those joys. As against the raillery of Gibbon and Muir, I need only remark that aswáj is the plural of zawj, which means either husband or wife, and hence I have rendered it as spouse or mate.

1277 The answer to this question is given in the concluding words of the section: "There will not cease to afflict them because of what they do a repelling calamity, or it will alight close by their abodes until the promise of Allah comes about." This promise related to the utter annihilation of the power of the unbelievers. The question, why is not a sign sent down upon him? here as elsewhere in the Holy Qur-án, is really a demand for the

28 Those who believe and whose hearts are set at rest by the remembrance of Allah; now surely by Allah's remembrance are the hearts set at rest.

29 (As for) those who believe and do good, a good final state shall be theirs and a goodly return.¹²⁷⁹

30 And thus We have sent you among a nation before which other nations have passed away, that you might recite to them what We have revealed to you and (still) they deny the Beneficent God. Say: He is my Lord, there is no god but He: on Him do I rely and to Him is my return.

31 And even if there were a Qur-án with which the mountains were made to pass away, or the earth were travelled over with it, or the dead were made to speak thereby;¹²⁸⁰ nay! the commandment is wholly

الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَتَطْمَئِنُّ قُلُوبُهُمْ

مِنْ قَبْلِكَ أَمْثَلُ لِيَتْلُوَ عَلَيْهِمُ الَّذِي
أَوْحَيْنَا إِلَيْكَ وَهُمْ يَكْفُرُونَ بِالرَّحْمَنِ
قُلْ هُوَ رَبِّي لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا هُوَ عَلَيْهِ
تَوَكَّلْتُ وَإِلَيْهِ مَتَابُ ۝

وَلَوْ أَنَّ فُرَاتًا سَدَّتْ بِهِ الْجِبَالُ أَوْ
قُطِعَتْ بِهِ الْأَرْضُ أَوْ كَلِمَةٌ مِنَ الْمَوْتِ بَلَّ اللَّهُ الْأَمْرَ بِحَسْبِ يَعْلَا

promised annihilation of their power and their vanquishment, and the answer is always conveyed in somewhat similar terms, stating first that they should ask for mercy; that the Qur-án has healing power, the condition of the faithful being a witness to it; that the fate of the former generations affords a lesson; that smaller calamities continue to afflict them, and in these they can see the signs of their ultimate vanquishment; and that finally, if all those tokens are rejected, the great calamity will not fail to overtake them

1278 Of the two alternative significances the words may bear either. The contrast with those who turn to Him makes the meaning adopted preferable. Thus there are two kinds of men, those who will go astray and those who will turn to Allah. The former are made to go astray and the latter are guided. But even if the meaning given in the margin is adopted, it is not meant that Allah leads certain men astray though they may desire to walk in the right way. Mark the contrast: "And guides to Himself those who turn to Him," and this will explain the meaning of the first part: "Allah makes whom He pleases go astray," for if He guides those who turn to Him, it follows naturally that those who do not turn to Him are led astray. Their leading astray by Allah is therefore only equivalent to a pronouncement of judgment as to their having gone astray. Compare 2: 26: "He does not cause to err by it any except the transgressors who break the covenant of Allah . . ." and 14: 27: "And Allah causes the unjust to go astray."

1279 Tubá, as an infinitive noun (from ṭaba, meaning it became good), means a good final state or good future (LL).

1280 What would have happened if there were a Qur-án with which the mountains were made to pass away is not mentioned. Some commentators say the words

كان هذا القرآن are understood, i.e. this Qur-án would have answered this description

(JB), thinking that there is a reference here to such demands as removing the mountains and the cutting short of journeys to distant lands (or, according to some, cleaving asunder the

And (as for) those who disbelieve, there will not cease to afflict them because of what they do a repelling calamity, or it will alight close by their abodes, until the promise of Allah comes about;¹²⁸² surely Allah will not fail in (His) promise.

فَكَيْفَ كَانَ عِقَابِ ۝ earth or cutting it up into rivers and canals) and the raising of the dead. But I think that the answer is contained in what follows and there is no omission here. That the Qur-ân should work great wonders is not here treated as an impossibility, but rather as a very near probability, for it is immediately followed by the words the commandment is wholly Allah's, which is equivalent to saying that He is by no means unable to do it, and that His commandment will soon be established, by which is meant the establishment of the superiority of Islam. The "mountains," by which are meant the chief opponents of the Holy Prophet in the spread of Islam, were made to pass away; it soon spread in distant countries, and the dead were no doubt made to speak, for the whole of Arabia, which was quite dead, resounded with the proclamations of the Unity of Allah. That by the mountains are to be understood great men is sufficiently clear from what is said in the Q., which explains the word jabal as meaning سَيِّدُ الْقَوْمِ i.e. the chief of a people and their most learned man. And that the dead signify those spiritually dead is made clear by the Qur-ân itself in many places; see, for instance, 27: 80: "Surely you do not make the dead to hear."

1281 Yai'as does not here convey the significance of despair, but that of knowing, and this significance is favoured by the majority of commentators (Rz). There are examples of this use of the word in Arab poetry, as:

اقول لهم بالشعب اذ ياسرونى ۞ لم تياسوا الى ابن فارس زهدم

i.e. I said to them when they imprisoned me on the road, Do you not know that I am the son of the rider of Zahdam?

1282 The passage is capable of bearing a double significance. The meaning is either that smaller calamities will continue to afflict them, or alight near their abodes, until the final promise relating to the utter annihilation of their power is accomplished; or by the calamities are meant the reverses in battles which the Meccans will, it is prophesied, suffer, and the Prophet (taking the alternative significance given in the margin) alight close by their abodes, as happened in Hudaibiyya, until the triumphant entry into Mecca was brought about. Whatever the significance, it is a grand prophecy relating to the triumph of the helpless Muslim community, which was now flying to Medina for refuge, and of the utter discomfiture

93 Is He then who watches every soul as to what it earns?¹²⁸³ And yet they give associates to Allah! Say: Give them a name;¹²⁸⁴ nay, do you mean to inform Him of what He does not know in the earth, or (do you affirm this) by an outward saying?¹²⁸⁵ Rather, their plans are made to appear fairseeming to those who disbelieve,¹²⁸⁶ and they are kept back from the path; and whom Allah makes err,* he shall have no guide.

* 44, 1009.

34 They shall have chastisement in this world's life, and the chastisement of the hereafter is certainly more grievous, and they shall have no protector against Allah.

of a powerful enemy that had apparently succeeded in crushing Islam and dispersing the Muslims.

1283 The words like him who is not such are understood, but the omission is plainly hinted in the sentence that follows, and yet they give associates to Allah, i.e. notwithstanding that they know that Allah watches all things, while their associates do not do this.

1284 It is to show the utmost contempt for the alleged associates of the Divine Being that their worshippers are called upon to give them a name, as if it were said that they are not worthy a name (Rz). Or the meaning may be, give them a name expressing any qualification of godhead, such as a sustainer, creator, etc. (JB).

1285 The passage contains an appeal to their inner feelings. The idolater worships the idol because he thinks it will serve as an intercessor with Allah, but Allah Himself knows what is in the earth, and no mediator is needed between man and his Master. By ظَاهِرٌ مِنَ الْقَوْلِ or outward saying, is meant an assertion which has no reality or truth in it (Kf, JB). In the latter part of the passage they are told to reflect whether their assertion as to mediators possesses any reality.

1286 As to who makes the evil deeds fairseeming to the wicked, compare 16 : 63, 6 : 43 and 29 : 38, in all of which it is plainly stated that it is the devil that makes evil deeds fairseeming to men. The last of these is very similar to what is said here, except that there the devil is mentioned as the agent: "And the devil made their deeds fairseeming to them and kept them back from the path." See also concluding portion of 809.

1287 It should be noted that the paradise mentioned here is called only a likeness, as also in 47 : 15. The reason is, as a saying of the Holy Prophet makes it clear, that the blessings of paradise are such as no eye has seen, nor has ear heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man to conceive of them. Therefore, what it actually is cannot be known to man until he has tasted of its blessings; the description given in the Qur-án being only a likeness of what it actually is, for an impression of a thing which is of a nature entirely different from the things of this world can only be conveyed by giving an example.

¹²⁸⁸ The word zill has other meanings besides shade. According to Rgh it signifies mightiness, inaccessibility, ease, or plenty. It also signifies protection (LI). See also 591.

¹²⁸⁹ By the Book is meant the Qur-ān, as the context clearly shows. Some, however, take the Book to signify the previous revelation given to the Israelite prophets, and understand Jewish or Christian converts to Islam to be meant here (Bq).

¹²⁹⁰ The significance is that the sign so often demanded will come at the appointed time. So early had revelation prophesied the ultimate discomfiture of the power of the Quraish, that even the Meccan period of the Holy Prophet's life seemed to them to be too long for the fulfilment of the prophecy, and therefore they continued to trouble the Prophet, requiring the immediate coming of that sign.

import are called the basis of the Book, because allegorical verses must be interpreted with reference to them. Here the Divine ordinance to annihilate the power of the opponents of the Holy Prophet and to bring about the predominance of Islam is called the basis of the Book, because the final vanquishment of the powers of evil, which was previously foretold, would be such a clear sign that all doubts and difficulties would be solved by reference to this plain proof.

1293 Atréf signifies sides, as indicating the high and the low or exalted men (LL). The reference may be either to some of the exalted men having died and the opposition being thus weakened, or to the diminution of the number of unbelievers, both high and low, by men daily leaving their ranks and joining the ranks of Islam.

1294 The meaning is that the plans of the enemy need not be feared, for all their planning is controlled by Allah, or the requital of their plans is in the hands of Allah.

1295 The Book here stands for previous revelation from Allah, and attention is called to the fact that all those who have any knowledge of previous revelations will testify to the truth of the revelation of the Qur-ān, because it fulfils all previous prophecies and satisfies the criteria of a true revelation—the surest test of this, as declared in Deut. 18: 22, is the fulfilment of prophecy.

CHAPTER XIV

ABRAHAM

(Ibrāhīm)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(7 sections and 52 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Revelation dispels darkness.
- Sec. 2. Truth is rejected first.
- Sec. 3. Opposition is at last destroyed.
- Sec. 4. Truth is confirmed.
- Sec. 5. Man's injustice in rejecting truth.
- Sec. 6. Abraham's prayer.
- Sec. 7. The end of opposition.

The Title.

THE name of this chapter is taken from Abraham, whose prayer is mentioned in the sixth section. As this prayer speaks of the settling of Ishmael in the wilderness of Paran, the mention of it is meant to be a reminder to the Arabs of the truth of the Holy Prophet. This prayer forms the chapter's distinctive characteristic, distinguishing it from other chapters of this group.

Subject-matter.

It opens with the statement that the Qur-ān is revealed that men may thereby be taken out of darkness and led into light, and goes on to show that the Mosaic revelation, although given with a similar object, was for a particular people. The second section shows that Moses also exhorted his people to accept the truth, but that all prophets had their message rejected at first. The third section maintains that in all cases opposition was at last destroyed; the Divine promise of help to the Prophet being brought to fulfilment and his powerful opponents rendered helpless. That truth is confirmed as the natural sequel is affirmed in the next section, and this is followed by one which shows that by rejecting truth man leads up to his own ruin, for every thing is made subservient to man, which establishes the grand truth of Divine Unity. Here follows Abraham's prayer expressing his disavowal of polytheism of every sort, with special reference to his descendants through Ishmael, for whom he also prayed. In the concluding section is found that the end of opposition to truth has always been, and shall always be, failure.

Context.

In the group of the seven chapters belonging to the same period and dealing with a similar subject, this chapter is the fifth, and it states more plainly what is affirmed in the last chapter, viz. that the object of revelation is to bring men into light, to remove every kind of polytheism, and that all opposition, however strong and determined, to such a noble cause, which has the welfare of the whole of humanity at heart, is destined to fail.

Date of revelation.

As regards the date of revelation, it may fairly be assumed that it belongs to about the same period as the sister chapters beginning with alif, lām, rā. The clear reference in v. 13 to the unbelievers planning the expulsion of the Prophet, and the reference in v. 46 to their mighty plans, afford conclusive evidence as to its revelation being about the period preceding the Flight.

1296 The statement made here that a prophet is sent with the language of his people is far from leading to any "logical inference" that "Muhammad regarded himself as merely the Prophet of the Arabs." Only a perversion of the words, or ignorance as to what is said elsewhere in the Holy Qur-án, can lead to such a conclusion. In 7: 158 we have: "Say: O people! surely I am the Apostle of Allah to you all—of Him Whose is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth." A similar statement is made in 34: 28: "And We have not sent you but to all the men as a bearer of good news and as a warner." And here (i.e. in the verse under discussion) nothing is said about the extent of the mission of the Holy Prophet. It is a statement of a different nature altogether. All that is said here is that every prophet is sent with the language of his people—not that his people, or the nation to which he belongs, are the only people to whom he is required to deliver the message. And the reason for send-

Allah makes whom He pleases err and He guides whom He pleases, and He is the Mighty, the Wise.¹²⁹⁷

SECTION 2

Truth is rejected first

7, 8. Moses exhorts his people to accept the truth. 9-12. Every prophet's message is met with rejection first.

7 And when your Lord made it known: If you are grateful, I would certainly give to you more, and if you are ungrateful, My chastisement is truly severe.

8 And Moses said: If you are ungrateful, you and those on earth all together, most surely Allah is Self-sufficient, Praised:

وَإِذْ نَادَىٰ رَبُّكَ لِمَنِ شُكِرْتُ
لَا يُذَكَّرُكُمْ وَلَئِنْ كَفَرْتُمْ إِنَّ عَذَابِي
لَشَدِيدٌ

وَقَالَ مُوسَىٰ إِنَّ تَكْفُرًا وَأَنْتُمْ وَمَنْ
فِي الْأَرْضِ جَمِيعًا ۖ إِنَّ اللَّهَ لَغَنِيٌّ جَمِيدٌ

ing a prophet with the language of a people is stated to be that he may explain to his people, because it is his people who are the first recipients of his message. And history tells us that the opposition to the message of a prophet is strongest among his own people, while it is equally true that a prophet is raised when and where he is most needed, and therefore the condition of the people whom he addresses in the first instance is the worst of all.

1297 The words whom He pleases should not be taken as being synonymous with arbitrarily. It is true that remaining in error and being guided are both often stated in the Holy Qur-ān to be according to the pleasure of the Divine Being. But it is nowhere stated that His pleasure is exercised arbitrarily. On the other hand, we have it frequently stated who they are that are led astray and who they are that are guided. 2:26 is conclusive on the first point: "But He does not cause to err by it any except the transgressors," and so many other verses. See 44, 1099. As regards guidance see 13:27.

1298 أيام الله is explained by Mjd as meaning the favours of Allah (TA). The use of the word in a similar sense is well-known in Arabic literature, in which أيام العرب

9 Has not the account reached you of those before you, of the people of Noah^a and 'Ad^b and Samood,^c and those after them? None knows them but Allah.^{1298a} Their apostles came to them with clear arguments, but they thrust their hands into their mouths¹²⁹⁹ and said: Surely we deny that with which you are sent, and most surely we are in serious doubt as to that to which you invite us.¹³⁰⁰

Ar. dis-
quieting.

10 Their apostles said: Is there doubt about Allah, the Maker of the heavens and the earth? He invites you to forgive you your faults and to respite you till an appointed term. They said: You are nothing but mortals like us; you wish to turn us away from what our fathers used to worship: bring us therefore some clear authority.

11 Their apostles said to them: We are nothing but

أَلَمْ يَأْتِكُمْ نَبَأُ الَّذِينَ مِنْ قَبْلِكُمْ
قَوْمِ نُوحٍ وَعَادٍ وَثَمُودَ وَالَّذِينَ
مِنْ بَعْدِهِمْ لَا يَعْلَمُهُمْ إِلَّا اللَّهُ
جَاءَهُمْ رَسُولُهُمْ بِالْبَيِّنَاتِ فَرَدُّوا
أَيْدِيَهُمْ فِي أَفْوَاهِهِمْ وَقَالُوا إِنَّا
شَاكِرُونَ مَا أَرْسَلْتُمْ بِهِ وَإِنَّا لَفِي شَكٍّ
مِمَّا تَدْعُونَا إِلَيْهِ مُرِيدِينَ
قَالَتْ رُسُلُهُمْ إِنِّي اللَّهُ شَاكِرُ السَّمَوَاتِ
وَالْأَرْضِ يُدْعُوكُمْ لِيُغْفِرَ لَكُمْ مِنْ ذُنُوبِكُمْ
وَيُؤَخِّرَكُمْ إِلَى أَجَلٍ مُّسَمًّى قَالُوا إِنْ أَنْتُمْ
إِلَّا بَشَرٌ مِثْلُنَا مُرِيدُونَ أَنْ تُصَدِّقُوا نَاعِمًا
كَانَ يَعْبُدُ آبَاؤُنَا فَأَنْتُمْ أَنْتُمْ مُبِينِينَ
قَالَتْ لَهُمْ رُسُلُهُمْ إِنْ نَحْنُ إِلَّا

or the days of the Arabs, is used for the conflicts of the Arabs. Hence, as a conflict is a source of blessings for the conqueror and a source of distress for the vanquished, the days of Allah signify His merciful dealings with the righteous and His punishment of the wicked.

1298a This statement deserves to be noted. The Qur-ān does not claim to give a history of the prophets, and as it elsewhere states (4: 164 and 40: 78), there are apostles that have not been mentioned in the Holy Qur-ān. But the statement made here is much wider, for it is claimed that no other book mentions them all; their number being so great, they are known only to Allah. In fact, the Bible does not contain more than a mingled account of some of the prophets of a single nation.

1299 هم ردوا أيديهم في أفواههم literally means they thrust their hands into their mouths. Abu 'Ubaida and Akhfash say that the Arabs say إذا سكنت عن الجواب وإذا أمسك رد يده i.e. when a man does not return an answer (being unable to do so) and withholds, he thrusts his hand into his mouth (AH). Or, as the majority of the commentators agree, this phrase may be equivalent to the more well-known form عض الإناامل i.e. the cutting of fingers, which is expressive of rage, a form occurring in the Holy Qur-ān in 3: 118, and the meaning may thus be they bit their hands (by reason of rage). Or the meaning may simply be that the unbelievers put their hands into the mouths of the apostles to silence them.

1300 The general statements made with regard to the apostles and the treatment of their people in this and the following section, while essentially true with regard to apostles generally, are particularly made in reference to the mission of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, the determined opposition and enmity of his people, their turning him out of the city, and their final discomfiture.

mortals like yourselves, but Allah bestows (His) favours on whom He pleases of His servants, and it is not for us that we should bring you an authority except by Allah's permission; and on Allah should the believers rely.

12 And what reason have we that we should not rely on Allah? and He has indeed guided us in our ways; and certainly we would bear with patience your persecution of us; and on Allah should the reliant rely.

SECTION 3

Opposition is at last destroyed

13-20. Divine promise of help and its fulfilment. 21. Opponents shall be helpless.

13 And those who disbelieved said to their apostles: We will most certainly drive you forth from our land, or else you shall come back into our religion.¹³⁰¹ So their Lord revealed to them: Most certainly We will destroy the unjust.

14 And most certainly We will settle you in the land after them: this is for him who fears standing in My presence and who fears My threat.¹³⁰²

15 And they asked for judgment and every insolent opposer was disappointed:

وَقَالَ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا لِلرُّسُلِ
لَنُخْرِجَنَّكُمْ مِنْ أَرْضِنَا أَوْ لَتَعُوذَنَّ
فِي مِلَّتِنَا مَا أَوْحَى إِلَيْهِمْ رَبُّهُمْ
لَنُهْلِكَنَّ الظَّالِمِينَ
وَلَنَسْكَنَنَّكُمْ الْأَرْضَ مِنْ بَعْدِهِمْ
ذَٰلِكَ لِمَنْ خَافَ مَقَامِي وَخَافَ وَعِيدِ
وَاسْتَغْفِرُوا خَوَابَكُمْ كُلَّهَا
عَنْ يَدِي

1301 This is no doubt equally a description of what the Holy Prophet was suffering at the hands of his enemies.

1302 The prophecy or the final triumph of the Holy Prophet and of the utter discomfiture and overthrow of the power of his opponents is of very frequent occurrence in the Holy Qur-án, but here it is expressed in the clearest words. The opponents are told that they may expel the Prophet, but there was not the least doubt that he would ultimately come back as a conqueror, and be made the ruler in the land after their power was crushed. This verse contains, in fact, the clearest prophecy of the flight of the Holy Prophet from Mecca and of his re-entry into that city as a conqueror and ruler, and following as it does a chapter in which the same prophecy is contained in an allegorical form, it is as it were a clear statement of the meaning of the allegory of the 12th chapter. It should be noted that the words used here as to the determination of the opponents to expel the Prophet and those indicating his re-entry are expressive of the greatest certainty.

16 Hell is before him and he shall be given to drink of hot water;¹³⁰³

Ar. death.

21 And they shall all come forth before Allah, then the weak shall say to those who were proud: Surely we were your followers, can you therefore avert from us any part of the chastisement of Allah? They would say: If Allah had guided us, we too would have guided you; it is the same to us whether we are impatient (now) or patient, there is no place for us to fly to.

Ar. we are

1303 Mā-un ṣadid is translated variously as pus, filthy water, hot or boiled water. That ṣadid means pus is true, but then it cannot be called mā-un ṣadid, and Palmer's rendering liquid pus is beyond the mark, for ṣadid qualifies mā (i.e. water), and water is not used in the original as a qualifying word for pus, pus being already liquid. Hence Palmer's translation as well as his note on this, as a "filthy expression," are hasty. Ṣadid means hot water, or water boiled until it thickens (LA, TA), and as mā-un ḥamīm is the expression elsewhere used in the Holy Qur-ān, this is the correct significance here.

1304 The word maut does not always mean death, and conveys a number of other significances. According to Rgh, the meaning here is the grief causing distress. The meaning is that grief and distress sufficient to cause death will be experienced by him, but he shall not die, for death or cessation of life implies rest, and this is what he shall not have. That is the real hell, i.e. a state in which a man is gnawed by grief and cannot find any comfort.

1305 Vv. 18-20 are again prophetic. V. 18 states that all the exertions of the opponents against the Holy Prophet shall be useless, while vv. 19 and 20 warn the unbelievers that their power will come to an end and another people will now take their place and rule the country.

SECTION 4

Truth is confirmed

22. The devil forsakes his followers. 23. The faithful are in peace. 24. Truth has a firm basis. 26. Evil has no basis. 27. Faithful are confirmed.

22 And the devil¹³⁰⁶ shall say after the affair is decided: Surely Allah promised you the promise of truth, and I gave you promises then failed to keep them to you,¹³⁰⁷ and I had no authority over you,¹³⁰⁸ except that I called you and you obeyed me, therefore do not blame me but blame yourselves: I cannot be your aider (now) nor can you be my aiders: surely I disbelieved in your associating me with Allah before:¹³⁰⁹ surely it is the unjust that shall have the painful chastisement.

وَقَالَ الشَّيْطَانُ لَمَّا قُضِيَ الْأَمْرَانِ
اللَّهُ وَعَدَكُمْ وَعْدَ الْحَقِّ وَوَعَدْتُكُمْ
فَاخْلَفْتُكُمْ وَمَا كَان لِي عَلَيْكُمْ مِنْ
شَيْءٍ أَنْ دَعَوْتُكُمْ فَاسْتَجَبْتُمْ لِي
فَلَا تُلْزِمُونِي وَلَكُمْ أَنْفُسُكُمْ مَا أَنْتُمْ
بِعَصْرٍ خَكْدٍ وَمَا أَنْتُمْ بِمُصْرِخِي مَا لِي لَكُمْ
بِمَا أَسْرَفْتُمْ مِنْ قَبْلُ إِنْ الظَّالِمِينَ
لَهُمْ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٌ
وَأَدْخَلَ الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّالِحَاتِ
جَنَّاتٍ يَجْرِي مِنْ تَحْتِهَا الْأَنْهَارُ خَالِدِينَ
فِيهَا أَبَدًا رِزْقُهُمْ فِيهَا مِنْ لَبَنٍ سَلَمٍ
أَلَمْ يَتْرَكُوا لَكُمْ مَثَلًا كَلِمَةً
طَيِّبَةً كَتَبَتْهُ طَيِّبَةً أَصْلُهَا ثَابِتٌ
وَفَرْعُهَا فِي السَّمَاءِ

1306 The devil mentioned in this verse is none other than the proud misleader of the preceding one. Compare also 37: 30, where the very words we had no authority over you are put into the mouths of the leaders of evil from among men.

1307 Whenever a person is misled into an evil deed he finds in the end that the promise of a good consequence for an evil deed was only a deception. Compare 4: 120: "He gives them promises and excites vain desires in them, and the devil does not promise them but to deceive." See also 17: 64.

1308 It should be noted that here the devil is made to deny having any authority over the evil-doers. According to the Holy Qur-án no one is compelled to an evil course: the evil one points out an evil way, and the evil-doer follows that way.

1309 The denial of being associated with Allah implies the confession that he did not deserve to be obeyed. When the evil consequences of an evil deed become manifest, the suggester of the evil course declares his freedom from having led the evil-doer to that course. Compare 35: 14: "If you call on them they shall not hear your call, and even if they could hear they shall not answer you, and on the resurrection day they will deny your associating them (with Allah)." The words may also convey the significance I disbelieved because you associated me with Allah, the explanation being that the leaders disbelieve because their followers lead them by their flattery to think that they are worthy of being obeyed and followed.

1310, see next page.

25 Yielding its fruit in every season by the permission of its Lord? and Allah sets forth parables for men that they may be mindful.

26 And the parable of an evil word is as an evil tree pulled up from the earth's surface: it has no stability.¹³¹¹

27 Allah confirms those who believe with the sure word in this world's life and in the hereafter, and Allah causes the unjust to go astray, and Allah does what He pleases.¹³¹²

تُؤْتِي أَكْثَرَهَا ثَمَرًا بِإِذْنِ رَبِّهَا يُؤْتِرُ
 اللَّهُ الْأَمْثَالَ لِلنَّاسِ لَعَلَّهُمْ يَتَذَكَّرُونَ
 وَمَثَلُ كَلِمَةٍ خَبِيثَةٍ كَشَجَرَةٍ خَبِيثَةٍ
 لَاجَتْ مِنْ فَوْقِ الْأَرْضِ مَا لَهَا مِنْ قَرَارٍ
 يُبَيِّنُ اللَّهُ لِلَّذِينَ آمَنُوا بِالْقَوْلِ الثَّابِتِ
 فِي الْحَيَاةِ الدُّنْيَا وَفِي الْآخِرَةِ وَيُضِلُّ
 اللَّهُ الظَّالِمِينَ نَدُو يُفَعِّلُ اللَّهُ مَا يَشَاءُ

1310 The parable likening a good word to a good tree follows immediately a description of the final abode of those who do good, which is repeatedly described in the Holy Qur-án as being a garden or gardens beneath which rivers flow. This gives us a clue to the real nature of the paradise of Islam. A good word is like a good tree which gives its fruit in every season, and therefore the fruits which a man shall find in paradise, ever ready and within his reach, are no other than the fruits of his own good deeds, and the trees of paradise are in fact man's own good deeds which have grown into trees, bearing a fruit which is an embodiment of the spiritual fruits of the good deeds of this life. It should also be noted that as good deeds are likened to fruit-bearing trees, faith is likened to water repeatedly in the Holy Qur-án, being the source of physical life. It is for this reason that, just as the righteous are always spoken of as being those who believe and do good, paradise is always described as being a garden in which rivers flow, the rivers corresponding to faith and the trees of the garden corresponding to the good which a man does.

It should also be borne in mind that kalimah (meaning word) is applied to every thing, whether it is a word that is spoken or a deed that is done. Explaining تَمَّتْ كَلِمَةُ رَبِّكَ Rgh says: By the kalimah (word) is meant a thing, or an affair or a matter, because every matter is termed a kalimah, whether it is a word or a deed.

1311 The evil deed is likened to a tree whose roots do not go down into the earth, and in whose case, therefore, the process of nutrition must stop. Therefore an evil deed does not prosper and cannot bear any fruit.

1312 The clear statement made here explains many a dubious statement. Allah causes only the unjust, and not the innocent, to go astray. In other words, those who are guilty of iniquities are made to go astray, their very iniquities leading them astray. It is equivalent to the statement that Allah does not allow light to shine upon him who closes all the doors and windows of a room upon himself. The immediate cause of their going astray is their iniquity, and Allah only causes them to go astray because they are iniquitous. If they forsake their iniquities, Allah will not cause them to go astray.

31 Say to My servants who believe that they should keep up prayer and spend out of what We have given them secretly and openly before the coming of the day in which there shall be no bartering nor mutual befriending:

32 Allah is He who created the heavens and the earth and sent down water from the clouds, then brought forth with it fruits as a sustenance for you, and He has made the ships subservient to you, that they might run their course in the sea by His command, and He has made the rivers subservient to you.¹³¹⁵

33 And He has made subservient to you the sun and the moon pursuing their courses, and He has made subservient to you the night and the day.

أَلَمْ تَرَ إِلَى الَّذِينَ بَدَّلُوا نِعْمَتَ اللَّهِ

1313 That is, they have rejected Allah's favour, by which is meant the revelation of the Holy Prophet, which aimed at making them a great and exalted people, and adopted unbelief in its place. Or the alternative significance given in the margin may be adopted, the meaning being, instead of gratitude for Allah's favour, they have become ungrateful.

1314 The statement is prophetic, as the past tense is often used in prophetic language as indicating certainty about the future.

1315 The whole of creation is here, and in the next verse, declared to be made subservient to man, to show his high place in creation. How much then does man degrade himself by bowing before and worshipping things which were made to serve him.

34 And He gives you of all that you ask Him; and if you count Allah's favours, you will not be able to number them; most surely man is very unjust, very ungrateful.

وَأَنْتُمْ مِنْ كُلِّ مَا سَأَلْتُمُوهُ وَإِنْ تَعُدُّوا نِعْمَتَ اللَّهِ لَا تَحْصُوهَا إِنْ الْإِنْسَانُ لَظَلُومٌ كَفَّارٌ

SECTION 6

Abraham's Prayer

35-41. Abraham's prayer is a clear testimony to the truth of the Prophet.

35 And when Abraham said: My Lord! make this city secure, and save me and my sons from worshipping idols.¹³¹⁶

36 My Lord! surely they have led many men astray:¹³¹⁷ then whoever follows me, he is surely of me, and whoever disobeys me, Thou surely art Forgiving, Merciful.¹³¹⁸

37 O our Lord! surely I have settled a part of my offspring¹³¹⁹ in a valley unproductive of fruit near Thy Sacred House,* our Lord! that they may keep up prayer;¹³²⁰ therefore make the hearts of some people yearn towards them and provide them with fruits; haply they may be grateful:

38 O our Lord! surely Thou knowest what we hide and what we make public, and nothing in the earth nor any thing in heaven is hidden from Allah:

وَلَمَّا قَالَ ابْرَاهِيمُ رَبِّ اجْعَلْ هَذَا الْبَلَدَ آمِنًا وَانْجِنِي وَابْنِي مِنَ التَّعْبُدِ الْإِصْنَامِ رَبِّ إِنَّهُمْ أَضَلُّوا كَثِيرًا إِنْ النَّاسُ مِنْ تَبِعِي فَإِنَّهُ مِنِّي وَمَنْ عَصَانِي فَإِنَّكَ غَفُورٌ رَحِيمٌ رَبَّنَا إِنِّي أَتَّكَلْتُ مِنْ ذُرِّيَّتِي بِوَادٍ غَيْرِ ذِي زَرْعٍ عِنْدَ بَيْتِكَ الْمُحَرَّمِ رَبَّنَا لِيُقِيمُوا الصَّلَاةَ فَاجْعَلْ أَفْئِدَةً مِنَ النَّاسِ تَهْوِي إِلَيْهِمْ وَارْزُقْهُمْ مِنَ الثَّمَرَاتِ لَعَلَّهُمْ يَشْكُرُونَ رَبَّنَا إِنَّكَ تَعْلَمُ مَا نُخْفِي وَمَا نُعْلِنُ وَمَا يَخْفَى عَلَى اللَّهِ مِنْ شَيْءٍ فِي الْأَرْضِ وَلَا فِي السَّمَاءِ

* 170.

1316 That idolatry received a death-blow from the hands of one of Abraham's descendants shows that Abraham's prayer was not in vain; and that his descendants may have for a short time gone over to idol-worship does not lend any support to the allegation that the prayer was not accepted.

1317 The idols do not actually lead men astray, but as it is on account of them that people go astray, they are described as causing men to go astray. It is clear from this that the nominative here is not the active cause.

1318 The prayer of Abraham is in fact the prayer of the Holy Prophet and illustrates the breadth of his view. Those who follow him are of course his own, but he does not reject even those who disobey him, for he prays for Allah's mercy and protection even for them.

1319 That is, Ishmael and his descendants. Both according to oral Arab tradition and the Bible, Ishmael's descendants were settled in Arabia.

1320 The placing of his descendants in the vicinity of the Sacred House was a guarantee that they would keep up prayer; in fact, the only person who has made the institution of prayer to prosper for ever in the world was a descendant of that son of Abraham who was settled close to the Sacred House.

39 Praise be to Allah, Who has given me in old age Ishmael and Isaac: most surely my Lord is the Hearer of prayer:

40 My Lord! make me keep up prayer and from my offspring (too), O our Lord, and accept my prayer:

SECTION 7

The End of Opposition

42. A respite. 43-46. All plans shall fail. 47-52. Opponents shall be brought in disgrace and subjugation.

42 And do not think Allah to be heedless of what the unjust do: He only respites them to a day on which the eyes shall be fixedly open.¹³²¹

43 Hastening forward, their heads upraised, their eyes not reverting to them and their hearts vacant.¹³²²

44 And warn people of the day when the chastisement shall come to them, than those who were unjust will say: O our Lord! respite us to a near term, (so) we shall respond to Thy call and follow the apostles. What! did you not swear before (that) there will be no passing away for you!

45 And you dwell in the abodes of those who were unjust to themselves, and it is clear to you how We dealt with them and We have set forth parables to you.

Or, made (them)
examples.

بِهِمْ وَضَرَبْنَا لَكُمْ الْأَمْثَالَ ۝

1321 The expression indicates a state of intense terror in which one is unable even to wink the eye.

1322 The striking terror into the hearts of those who opposed the Prophet was witnessed in this very life when the Prophet advanced on Mecca. The vacancy or blankness of the heart also indicates a state of great terror.

Ar. and.

46 And they have indeed planned their plan,¹³²³ but their plan is with Allah,¹³²⁴ though their plan was such that the mountains should pass away thereby.

47 Therefore do not think Allah (to be one) failing in His promise to His apostles; surely Allah is Mighty, the Lord of Retribution.

52 This is a sufficient exposition for the people and that they may be warned thereby, and that they may know that He is One God and that those possessed of understanding may mind.

لِيُنْذِرَ أُولُو الْأَلْبَابِ ۝

1323 The words are explained by commentators as meaning their mighty plans in which they exerted themselves to their utmost (Bd, Kf, JB). The reference is to the most energetic plans of the Quraish, which they were now making against the Holy Prophet.

1324 The words their plan is with Allah signify that their plan is controlled by Allah, Who will make it ineffective. Wonderful prophecies indeed in the mouth of a person whose only chance of saving himself now lay in escaping from his enemies, while they were taking every precaution not to allow him to escape, having decided to put him to death. See 8: 30 and 998, where these plans are detailed.

1325 The transformation wrought by the Holy Prophet no doubt changed the earth into a different earth and the heaven into a new heaven. The Arabia at the birth of the Holy Prophet was not the Arabia at his death. Beliefs, usages, and practices which had baffled all attempts at reformation for centuries were swept away, and the ignorant, superstitious, and warring tribes had given place to a single nation, holding aloft the torch of knowledge and civilization to the whole world. Idolatry was blotted out of existence so completely that no vestige of it could be found among a people who had remained addicted to it for centuries. The verse no doubt speaks of the great resurrection, but it equally suggests in prophetic language the smaller resurrection brought about by the advent of the Holy Prophet in this very life.

1326 The powerful opponents of the Holy Prophet were brought before him linked together in chains in this very life, in the battle of Badr. These promises were fulfilled in this life to show that they were equally true as regards the next life.

CHAPTER XV

THE ROCK

(Al-Hijr)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(6 sections and 99 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Protection of the Qur-án.
- Sec. 2. Allah controls all things.
- Sec. 3. The devil's opposition to the righteous.
- Sec. 4. Mercy for the righteous—an incident from Abraham's history.
- Sec. 5. Transgressors perish : incidents from Lot's and Shu'aib's histories.
- Sec. 6. Dwellers of the rock : a warning for the enemies of the Qur-án.

The Title.

THIS, the last of the chapters of the alif, lām, rā group, is named the Rock, because of the mention of the dwellers of the Rock in v. 80, whose fate is mentioned as a warning to those who contemplated the slaying of the Holy Prophet. While promising a complete protection for the message of truth contained in the Holy Qur-án against all evil designs, it intensifies the warning contained in the previous chapters against those who were bent on its destruction.

Context and subject-matter.

The last chapter closed by warning the opponents of the end which they were destined to meet if they did not abstain from persecuting the truth. The same subject is continued in the beginning of this chapter, because the Qur-án, which was meant for the welfare of humanity, must be guarded against all evil intentions. Thus it is in the very first section that the grand promise is expressly given that the Qur-án shall for ever be guarded against all corruption, and, of course, against all attempts to annihilate it. There were many signs of its truth, yet the reprobate opponents would not benefit by any of them. In the next section we are told that all things are controlled by Allah, so that the mischief-makers cannot inflict any injury on the elect, and the signs of the triumph of truth could already be witnessed. In the third section it is stated that the devil has always been opposing the righteous servants, yet his opposition is devoid of harm. The next, while promising mercy for the righteous, refers to an incident in Abraham's history as to how he was given the good news of the birth of a son through whom a great nation was to be blessed. The same messengers also bore to him the news that Lot's people were about to be destroyed because of their great iniquities. The fifth section, therefore, speaks of the punishment of the guilty people who would not listen to Lot, closing with a reference to Shu'aib, also a descendant of Abraham. The Arabs, however, are warned of the fate of a people nearer home, the Samood, who dwelt in rocks, and they are told that, all-important as the message of the Qur-án was, their mockery and opposition would not go unpunished.

SECTION 1

Protection of the Qur-ân

1-8. Opponents shall meet their doom. 9. The Qur-ân shall ever be guarded. 10-15. No signs would benefit the rejecters.

Date of revelation.

That the chapter was revealed at Mecca is agreed on all hands, but it is generally regarded to be earlier than the other chapters of this group. Yet it appears that opposition to the Prophet had grown so strong that, were it not for the Divine protection, his message would have been swept out of existence. Hence I am inclined to assign it to the last Meccan period, i.e. to the period to which the other chapters of this group belong, although it may be comparatively earlier.

1327 The passage does not refer only to life after death. The powerful opponents who were under the impression that Islam would soon be annihilated must no doubt have felt in after life, when the truth of Islam became manifest to them, that it would have been much better for them if they had accepted Islam at the first call of the Prophet and not opposed the truth.

1328 This verse, and that preceding, make clear the significance of the coming of angels. The demand is here as elsewhere: Why are not the angels brought? the words if you are of

9 Surely We have revealed the Reminder and We will most surely be its guardian.¹³²⁹

Ar. thee.
Ar. sects.

10 And certainly We sent (apostles) before you among the nations of yore.

11 And there never came an apostle to them but they mocked him.

12 Thus do We make it to enter into the hearts of the guilty;¹³³⁰

13 They do not believe in it, and indeed the example of the former people has already passed.

14 And even if We open to them a gateway of the heaven, so that they ascend into it all the while,

15 They would certainly say: Only our eyes have been covered over, rather we are an enchanted people.¹³³¹

إِنَّا نَحْنُ نَزَّلْنَا الذِّكْرَ وَإِنَّا لَهُ

وَلَقَدْ أَرْسَلْنَا مِنْ قَبْلِكَ فِي شَتَّى الْأَوَّلِينَ

فِيهِ لَمُوجِرُونَ ۝

لَقَالُوا إِنَّمَا سَكِرَاتُ الْأَبْصَارِ نَابِلٌ لَخَنَّ فَوْرٌ مَّسْجُورُونَ ۝

the truthful ones clearly showing that the coming of angels is demanded in relation to the fulfilment of prophecies. But the answer makes it still more clear. The words bil-haq (with truth) really signify in accordance with the requirements of truth, justice, and wisdom (I.L.), and the meaning therefore is that the angels will be sent when they are required to execute the judgment of the doom of the unbelievers; and the concluding words, and then they would not be respited, dispel all doubts on the point, making it clear as daylight that the angels will be sent to punish the guilty ones.

1329 This is one of the most wonderful prophecies, whose fulfilment is, and shall ever remain, a standing testimony to the truth of the Holy Qur-án. The statement is first made in connection with the powerful opposition of the unbelievers, and is then made general, that the Qur-án shall for all time be preserved safe from all attacks to destroy it and from every kind of corruption. The wonderfully clear fulfilment of this prophecy is so evident a fact that a hostile writer like Muir is compelled to admit that "There is probably in the world no other book which has remained twelve centuries with so pure a text." The recent attempt of Dr. Mingana to prove alterations in the text of the Holy Qur-án has resulted in miserable failure, and his discovery has rather set the question at rest, because it was apparently the most powerful attack made on the purity of the text of the Holy Qur-án during the thirteen centuries it has been in existence. During the whole length and breadth of the Islamic world there does not exist a single copy with any variations from the recognized text, and thus not only was the Qur-án preserved from destruction against a powerful enemy, but it has also been preserved from corruption.

1330 Kazálíka, or thus, refers to the mockery mentioned in the previous verse, the meaning being as they mock the revelation, so we cause it to enter into their hearts that they do not believe in it. How could they believe in it when they never gave it a serious thought, but scorned and treated it rather lightly? It should be noted that though the act of not believing in the Divine revelation is described as being made to enter into hearts by Allah, it is into the hearts of those who have made themselves guilty by mocking it, which is equivalent to saying that this is due to their mockery, or a consequence of their mockery.

Allah controls All Things

16-18. The devils cannot injure the elect. 19-21. Law and order in nature.
22-25. Signs of the triumph of truth.

16 And certainly We have made strongholds in the heaven and We have made it fairseeming to the beholders.

20 And We have made in it means of subsistence for you and for him for whom you are not the suppliers.

21 And there is not a thing but with Us are the treasures of it, and We do not send it down but in a known measure.

22 And We send the winds fertilizing,¹³³³ then send down water from the cloud so We give it to you to drink of, nor is it you who store it up.

23 And most surely We bring to life and cause to die and We are the heirs.¹³³⁴

فَاسْقَيْنَاكُمْ ۝ وَمَا أَنْتُمْ لَهُ بِخَازِنِينَ ۝

وَلَا الْغَنَىٰ تُجِي وَفِيَتْ وَتَحْنُ الْوَارِثُونَ ۝

1331 This verse and the one preceding it speak of the hardness of their hearts, so that they have determined to reject the truth, though the clearest evidence of it may be brought before them.

1332 The three verses speak of the soothsayers and the diviners, who were among the opponents of the Holy Prophet. They pretended to receive communications from on high, but they were really driven away from the Divine presence, and therefore could not have any access to that source of purity. In speaking of the divinations as being followed by a visible flame, it is indicated that they meet with failure and disappointment. The description of spiritual truths in words relating to physical laws prevailing in the world is of common occurrence in the Holy Qur-án. Thus in v. 22 the fertilizing winds stand for the imperceptible advance of Islam (see 1333). For further reference see 2102, 2103, 2104, 2365, 2590, and 2582. The following verses of the Holy Qur-án deal with this subject: 37 : 8, 52 : 38, 67 : 5, 72 : 8.

1333 The lawáqih, or fertilizing winds, are those which raise a cloud that gives rain, or those which make herbage and plants fruitful. The fertilizing winds, before the coming of the rains, represent the signs of the progress of Islam before its final triumph.

1334 Wáris means an heir, and therefore one who remains after another has perished. The announcement made here is a prophecy that the true worshippers of Allah shall be heirs in the land while the others shall perish.

Or, those of

The Devil's Opposition to the Righteous

وَلَقَدْ خَلَقْنَا الْإِنْسَانَ مِنْ صَلْصَالٍ
مِنْ حَمِإٍ مَسْنُونٍ
وَالْجِبَّاءِ خَلَقْنَاهُ مِنْ قَبْلُ مِنْ نَارِ السَّمُومِ
وَلَدَّ قَالِ رَبُّكَ لِلْمَلِكَةِ إِنِّي خَالِقٌ بَشَرًا
مِنْ صَلْصَالٍ مِنْ حَمِإٍ مَسْنُونٍ
فَإِذَا سَوَّيْنَاهُ وَنَفَخْتُ فِيهِ مِنْ رُوحِي
فَقَعُوا لَهُ يَحْيَىٰ

1335 Al-mustaqlimin are those who are foremost in accepting truth, and Al-musta'khirin, those who lag behind in accepting it. They will all be gathered together, i.e. ultimately those who now lag behind will be brought over to the right course. We have here, therefore, a prophecy that the Holy Prophet should not be disappointed of them. Some understand by these two words those who have gone before and those who will come afterwards respectively, in point of time. The meaning would still be the same.

1336 For an explanation of man's creation from dust see 862. In man's creation from dust there also seems to be a reference to his low and humble origin and to his temperate nature, as opposed to another kind of creation of a fiery nature, which is called the jinn or the devil. The two words, jinn and devil, are frequently applied to men of a fiery temperament or rebellious nature, men who lead others into evil. This description of the creation of men and jinn from dust and fire respectively is no doubt an allegorical description of the nature of those who are submissive to Divine laws and those who rebel against them, and the allegory is carried on further in what is stated of the rebellion of the devil against Adam, the two being taken as prototypes of the two kinds of temperament. The two descriptions of the origin of man, his being made from the clay that gives sound and of the mud that is fashioned in shape, refer to the two great characteristics which give man a superiority over other animals, there being a reference to the use of language in the clay that gives sound, and to the perfection of his make in the mud fashioned in shape. Were it not for the use of language and the perfection of his make, man could not have risen above the lower animals.

1337 This shows that man is made complete when the Divine inspiration, or spirit, is breathed into him. It should be noted that the Divine spirit (Ar. ruh) does not mean here the animal soul in man, but the spirit, or word of Allah, that gives him perfection.

30 So the angels made obeisance, all of them together,

• 57, 58

31 But Iblis (did it not*); he refused to be with those who made obeisance.

Ar. hast
thou.
Ar. thou
art.

32 He said: O Iblis! what excuse have you that you are not with those who make obeisance?

33 He said: I am not such that I should make obeisance to a mortal whom Thou hast created of the essence of black mud fashioned in shape.

Ar. thou
art.

34 He said: Then get out of it, for surely you are driven away:

Ar. thee.

35 And surely on you is curse until the day of judgment.

36 He said: My Lord! then respite me till the time when they are raised.¹³³⁸

Ar. thou
art.

37 He said: So surely you are of the respited ones,

• 8.

38 Till the period^b of the time made known.

39 He said: My Lord! because Thou hast made life evil to me,¹³³⁹ I will certainly make (evil) fairseeming to them on earth, and I will certainly cause them all to deviate,

Or, sincere.

40 Except Thy servants from among them, the chosen ones.

41 He said: This a right way with Me:

Ar. thou
hast.

42 Surely, as regards My servants, you have no authority over them except those who follow you of the deviators.¹³⁴⁰

Ar. thee.

43 And surely Hell is the promised place of them all:

فَسَجَدَ الْمَلَائِكَةُ كُلُّهُمْ أَجْمَعُونَ
إِلَّا إِبْلِيسَ أَبَى أَنْ يَكُونَ مَعَ السَّاجِدِينَ
قَالَ يَا إِبْلِيسُ مَا لَكَ أَلا تَكُونَ
مَعَ السَّاجِدِينَ

قَالَ لَمْ أَكُنْ لِأَسْجُدَ لِبَشَرٍ
خَلَقْتَهُ مِنْ صَلْصَالٍ مِنْ
حَمِإٍ مَسْنُونٍ

قَالَ فَاخْرُجْ مِنْهَا فَإِنَّكَ رَجِيمٌ
وَإِنَّ عَلَيْكَ اللَّعْنَةَ إِلَى يَوْمِ الدِّينِ
قَالَ رَبِّ فَأَنْظِرْنِي إِلَى يَوْمِ يُبْعَثُونَ
قَالَ فَإِنَّكَ مِنَ الْمُنْظَرِينَ

إِلَى يَوْمِ الْوَقْتِ الْمَعْلُومِ
قَالَ رَبِّ بِمَا أَغْوَيْتَنِي
لَأَزِيدَنَّهُمْ فِي الْأَرْضِ
وَلَأُغْوِيَنَّهُمْ أَجْمَعِينَ

الْأَعْيَادُ مِنْهُمْ الْمُخَلَّصِينَ
قَالَ هَذَا صِرَاطٌ عَلَيَّ مُسْتَقِيمٌ
إِنَّ عِبَادِي لَيْسَ لَكَ عَلَيْهِمْ سُلْطَنٌ
إِلَّا مَنِ اتَّبَعَكَ مِنَ الْغَاوِينَ
وَإِنَّ جَهَنَّمَ لَمَوْعِدُهُمْ أَجْمَعِينَ

1338 When a man is raised to life spiritually, the suggestions and the promptings of the devil cease to affect him. But until he finds spiritual life, evil suggestions mislead him now and then. This is the time made known in v. 38.

1339 The meaning has been fully explained in 865. It may be added here that this is a remarkable instance of what iqdāl, ighwā, and such other words mean when attributed to Allah. The devil refuses to make obeisance to Adam of his own accord, and this is expressed by saying فبأاغويتني the meaning clearly being, because Thou hast judged me to be in error. not caused me to err.

1340 In a broad sense all men are servants of Allah. That the devil has no authority over any man is clear from 14: 22, where the devil says to his followers: "I had no authority over you except that I called you and you obeyed me."

44 It has seven gates; for every gate there shall be a separate party of them.¹³⁴¹

Mercy for the Righteous—an Incident from Abraham's History

45-50. The faithful find peace and rest. 51-56. Goodness to Abraham. 57-60. Lot's people.

45 Surely those who guard (against evil) shall be in the midst of gardens and fountains:

46 Enter them in peace, secure.

47 And We will root out whatever of rancour is in their breasts—(they shall be) as brethren, on raised couches, face to face.

48 Toil shall not afflict them in it, nor shall they be ever ejected from it.¹³⁴²

49 Inform My servants that I am the Forgiving, the Merciful,

50 And that My chastisement—that is the painful chastisement.

51 And inform them of the guests of Abraham:

52 When they entered upon him, they said, Peace. He said: Surely we are afraid of you.

Ar. thec. 53 They said: Be not afraid, surely we give you the good news of a boy, possessing knowledge.

54 He said: Do you give me good news (of a son) when old age has come upon me?—of what then do you give me good news!

1341 Hell is mentioned by seven different names in the Holy Qur-án: (1) jahannam, or hell; (2) laẓāʾ, or the flaming fire (70: 15); (3) ḥuṭamah, or the crushing disaster (104: 4); (4) saʿīr, or the burning fire; (5) saqar, or the scorching fire; (6) jaḥīm, or the fierce fire; (7) hawiyah, or the abyss (104: 9). The seven gates mean the seven ways which lead into it, according to which there are seven different names. But see 46, where it is shown that the numeral seven in Arabic often stands for a large number, so that the meaning is that there are many gates or many ways leading to it.

1342 This is a very beautiful description of the Muslim paradise, but one which the Christian critics pass over without notice. There is absolute peace of mind, perfect security 55 They said: We give you good news with truth,¹³⁴³ therefore be not of the despairing.

56 He said: And who despairs of the mercy of his Lord but the erring ones?

57 He said: What is your business, then, O messengers?

58 They said: Surely we are sent towards a guilty people,

Transgressors perish: Incidents from Lot's and Shu'ailb's Histories from any inclination to evil or any other danger (v. 46); there is a brotherhood in which no one conceals any rancour in his heart for his brother, nor has any one a complaint against another (v. 47); and lastly, there is neither toil nor fatigue, nor is one to be ever deprived of that state of perfect bliss (v. 48). The last verse refutes the Hindu doctrine of a temporary salvation, and also establishes: (1) that those who are once made to enter paradise are not sent back to this world; and (2) that the garden in which Adam was at first placed was not the paradise of heavenly life, for in that case he would not have been ejected from it.

1343 بشرناك بلحق in this verse is exactly parallel to يشرك بكلمة منه (3: 44).

It is neither the good news of haqq, or truth, in the first case, nor that of kalimah, or word, in the second, but in both cases the meaning is that the good news of a son is given—the words of a son being omitted in both cases—by means of (the correct meaning of bā in these two instances is by means of) Divine revelation, which is called the truth in the first instance and a word from Allah in the second.

66 And We revealed to him this decree that the roots of these shall be cut off in the morning.

67 And the people of the town came rejoicing.

68 He said : Surely these are my guests, therefore do not disgrace me, 69 And guard against (the punishment of) Allah and do not put me to shame.

1344 As remarked in 1194, Lot was a stranger among the Sodomites, and, as this verse shows, he was forbidden by the people to entertain any stranger as a guest or to give him shelter, for such is the meaning of ادله ننهك عن العالمين as given by the commentators (Kf, JB). Hence it is that when he received his guests he immediately cried out, You are an unknown people, i.e. strangers.

1345 He offered his daughters as hostages, as a guarantee that the strangers would not make any mischief. See further 1194.

1346 Mutawassim is one who examines things in order to know the real character of a thing from outward signs. And by the mutawassimin here are meant those who take a lesson or a warning from the fate of others.

1347 The dwellers of the thicket were Shu'aib's people (Kf, JB, Rz). But whether they are the same as the people of Madian is not agreed upon. Being in all particulars almost identical with the latter, they may be taken to be the same.

80 And the dwellers of the Rock certainly rejected the messengers;¹³⁴⁹

81 And We gave them Our communications, but they turned aside from them;

82 And they hewed houses in the mountains in security.

a 915. 83 So the rumbling* overtook them in the morning;

84 And what they earned did not avail them.

85 And We did not create the heavens and the earth and what is between them two but in truth; and the hour is most surely coming, so turn away with kindly forgiveness.¹³⁵⁰

Ar. thy 86 Surely your Lord is the Creator of all things, the Knowing.

Ar. thee. 87 And certainly We have given you seven of the oft-repeated (verses)¹³⁵¹ and the grand Qur-án.

وَلَقَدْ كَذَّبَ أَصْحَابُ الْجِبَالِ الْمُزِيلِينَ
وَأَتَيْنَهُمُ آيَاتُنَا لَمَّا تَوَاعَوْا عَنْهَا مُعْرِضِينَ
وَكَانُوا يُخَيِّتُونَ مِنَ الْجِبَالِ بُيُوتًا
أُمْنِينَ

فَأَحَدْنَاهُمْ الصَّيْحَةَ مُضْجِينَ
فَمَا أَغْنَى عَنْهُمْ مَا كَانُوا يَكْسِبُونَ
وَمَا خَلَقْنَا السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضَ وَمَا
بَيْنَهُمَا إِلَّا بِالْحَقِّ وَإِنَّ السَّاعَةَ لَآتِيَةٌ
فَاصْفِرِ الصُّفْرَ الْجَمِيلَ
إِنَّ رَبَّكَ هُوَ الْخَلَّاقُ الْعَلِيمُ
وَلَقَدْ أَنشَأْنَاكَ سَبْعًا مِنَ الْمَثَانِي وَ
الْقُرْآنَ الْعَظِيمَ

1348 Imám signifies a road because it is pursued or followed, the root being amma, meaning he directed his course to . . . or aimed at (LL, Kf). By both are meant the cities of the people of Lot as well as those of Shu'aib's people. The road alluded to is the road followed by caravans from Hijaz to Syria.

1349 The dwellers of the Rock are the people of Samood; see 911.

1350 صَحَّ عَنْهُ means he turned away from him and left him (TA-LL), or he turned away from his sin or crime, he forgave him (TA-LL). The verse gives us a true insight into the Holy Prophet's mind, and not only did he act upon this injunction while at Mecca, but he was equally forgiving in his conquests. One instance only in the conquest of Mecca is sufficient to prove this, when, having captured the city which had most tyrannically driven him out with his followers, and whose people were guilty of shedding the innocent blood of the Muslims, he forgave all, although he could have justly slain large numbers of them.

There is no doubt a reference here to the Holy Prophet's flight. The hour of punishment, of the discomfiture of opponents, was drawing nigh, and he must now leave them, as punishment was delayed so long as he was among them.

1351 The oft-repeated seven verses of the opening chapter of the Holy Qur-án are here spoken of (Bkh), which shows that the Fātiḥah was not only revealed, but also repeated in prayers, long before the revelation of this chapter. The Fātiḥah is called the grand Qur-án, because it contains the essence of the whole of the Qur-án.

Ar. thine.

88 Do not strain your eyes after what We have given certain classes of them to enjoy, and do not grieve for them, and make yourself gentle to the believers.¹³⁵²

Ar. thyself.

89 And say: Surely I am the plain warner.

Or, dividers.

90 Like as We sent down on the obstructors,

Or, divided the Qur-an into parts.

91 Those who declared the Qur-an to be a lie,

Ar. thy.

92 So, by your Lord, We would most certainly question them all 93 As to what they did.

Ar. thou art.

94 Therefore declare openly what you are bidden, and turn aside from the polytheists.

Ar. thee

95 Surely We will suffice you against the scoffers,

96 Those who set up another god with Allah, so they shall soon know.

Ar. thys

97 And surely We know that your breast straitens at what they say;

Ar. thy.

98 Therefore celebrate the praise of your Lord, and be of those who make obeisance.

Ar. thy.Ar. thee.

99 And serve your Lord until there comes to you that which is certain.¹³⁵³

إِنَّا كَاشِفُكَ الْمُسْتَهْزِئِينَ ۝

الَّذِينَ يَجْعَلُونَ مَعَ اللَّهِ إِلَهًا آخَرَ ۝

فَسَبِّحْ بِحَمْدِ رَبِّكَ وَكُن مِّنَ السَّاجِدِينَ ۝

وَاعْبُدْ رَبَّكَ حَتَّىٰ يَأْتِيَكَ الْيَقِينُ ۝

1352 This verse gives us a picture of the holy mind, for which the riches and embellishments of this life had no temptation, and the unequalled simplicity of his life from the time that he married a rich widow to the time that he ruled Arabia may be guessed from the last scene of his life, when he ordered the last pie in his house to be given away to the poor. The verse, moreover, draws a picture of the utmost kindness and gentleness which he showed to his followers. The straining of the eyes signifies looking desirously.

1353 Al-yaqīn (literally certainty), or that which is certain, is here generally understood to mean death (Bkh), because it is the one thing which is certain to come to every creature.

حتى يَأْتِيَكَ الْيَقِينُ (literally, until there comes to you that which is certain) is therefore understood to mean the whole of your life.

CHAPTER XVI

THE BEE

(An-Nahl)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(16 sections and 128 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Revelation testified to by nature.
- Sec. 2. Nature upholds Unity.
- Sec. 3, 4. Deniers of Divine Unity and Revelation shall come to disgrace.
- Sec. 5, 6. Prophets are raised to explain to people.
- Sec. 7. Human nature revolts against polytheism.
- Sec. 8. Iniquity of deniers.
- Sec. 9. Parables showing the truth of revelation.
- Sec. 10. Selection of the recipient of revelation.
- Sec. 11. Punishment withheld.
- Sec. 12. Prophets shall testify against their people.
- Sec. 13. Revelation enjoins good.
- Sec. 14. The Qur-án is not a forgery.
- Sec. 15. The fate of the Meccans.
- Sec. 16. How to become a great nation.

The Title.

THIS chapter is very appropriately named the Bee, because the bee, guided by instinct, which is called a revelation in its case (v. 68), gathers together sweet honey from flowers of all kinds, taking what is best in them, thus producing "a beverage of many colours in which there is healing for men," so Divine revelation to the Holy Prophet collected what was best in the teachings of all the prophets and presented it in the Holy Qur-án, which is also declared to be a healing (10:57) for the spiritual diseases of men.

Connection with the preceding Chapters.

The subject-matter of this chapter is the same as that of the preceding six chapters of the alif, lám, rá group, to which it really forms, as it were, a supplement; for whereas that group establishes the truth of revelation mostly by references to the past history of the prophets, this chapter does it by inferences drawn from the analogy of Divine work in creation, and further shows the truth of Divine Unity by similar inferences. Thus the evidence contained in that group of six chapters is supplemented by the evidence drawn from nature which is given in this chapter. The truth of revelation is further emphasized by laying stress upon the all-important principle of Divine Unity, the promulgation of which has always been the chief object of revelation.

Subject-matter.

This chapter amplifies the principles laid down in the last. A warning was given to the opponents of the Qur-án, and the approach of the doom is here announced. Then it is shown by reference to the great Divine gifts for the physical welfare of man that such a beneficent Master could not have neglected his spiritual welfare. The first section thus ends with the important statement: And upon Allah it rests to show the right way. The second section, still dwelling upon the benefits which the Divine hand has conferred upon man in physical nature, draws attention to man's superiority over the whole of creation, which is made subservient to him. It thus appeals to man's self-esteem, admonishing him not to bow before the created things (v. 20), which he has, indeed, been created to rule. The next two sections lead us again into the domain of prophecy by stating that the deniers shall come to disgrace. These are followed by two sections further explaining the truth of the statements made above and dealing with some of the false excuses of those who rejected the truth. The seventh section shows how human nature revolts against polytheism, and the eighth deals with the iniquities of the deniers, which, however, a Merciful God is slow to punish. The ninth establishes the necessity of revelation by reference to the working of law in nature, and the tenth shows that all men cannot be the recipients of that revelation, but that choice is made of the best. The eleventh speaks of the hour when the opponents shall be overthrown, though the punishment is delayed out of Divine mercy. The twelfth section refers to the evidence of prophets against their people, the thirteenth shows that it is nothing but good that is enjoined by revelation, and thus appeals to human instinct not to reject it. The Qur-án is next plainly stated to be a revelation in substitution for the former revelations, and not to be the work of a man. The fate of the Meccans, who still persist in rejecting its Divine truth, is then compared to that of a flourishing town which must be made to suffer fear and hunger because of the ingratitude of its people.

And now that the enemy is punished on account of transgression and his power broken, the chapter is closed by giving the Muslims certain directions which they must follow in order to become, and to remain, a great nation. Abraham, that great patriarch, honoured alike by the Jew, the Christian, and the idolatrous Arab, is stated to be a great exemplar, who was made great in this life, and who was a most righteous servant of Allah. He attained this high position on account of his being a great preacher of Divine Unity, and his absolute submission to his Maker, and that was what was now required of the Muslims. Their religious controversies were to be conducted in a spirit of utmost mildness and great wisdom; they were to be a forbearing, not a revengeful nation, for forbearance was the path to greatness and triumph.

Date of revelation.

The revelation of this chapter belongs to the last Meccan period, like that of the group which it supplements. A clear exposition of the truth of the Divine revelation seems to be set out at great length in this chapter, as a last argument against the reprobate sinners of Mecca. The mention, in vv. 41 and 110, of Muhájirs, i.e. those who fly from their home, and the injunction, in v. 115, relating to prohibited foods, have led some to think that these verses must have been revealed at Medina. As regards the first, it may be noted that the first flight of the Muslims to escape the severe persecution of the Meccans had taken place as early as the fifth year of the Holy Prophet's call; but it is more probable that the reference is to the second Muslim exodus from Mecca, which took place before the Holy Prophet's departure from that town. As regards the latter, it should be borne in mind that the subject of prohibited foods, having, as it did, a deep connection with idolatry, inasmuch as all that food was prohibited on which any other name than that of Allah was mentioned, was dealt with at Mecca not only in this chapter, but also in the 6th. So neither the first argument nor the second is reasonable, and the only conclusion left is that the entire chapter is a late Meccan revelation.

SECTION 1

Revelation testified to by Nature

1, 2. Approach of doom. 3-8. Creation testifies to Divine beneficence for man. 9. The right way pointed out by Allah.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

1 Allah's commandment has come, therefore do not desire to hasten it;¹³⁵⁴ glory be to Him, and highly exalted be He above what they associate (with Him).

أَلَمْ أَنْزَلْ أَنْزَارًا ۖ لَا تَسْتَعْجِلُوهُ مَا يُبْعَثُ

2 He sends down the angels with the inspiration¹³⁵⁵ by His commandment on whom He pleases of His servants, saying:¹³⁵⁶ Give the warning that there is no god but Me, therefore be careful (of your duty) to Me.

يُنَزِّلُ الْمَلَائِكَةَ بِاللَّيْلِ وَالنَّهَارِ مِنْ أَمْرِهِ عَلَى مَنْ يَشَاءُ مِنْ عِبَادِهِ أَنْ أَنْذِرُوا أَنَّهُ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا أَنَا فَاتَّقُونِ ۝

3 He created the heavens and the earth with the truth, highly exalted be He above what they associate (with Him).

خَلَقَ السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضَ بِالْحَقِّ تَعَالَى عَنِ الْبَيْنِ ۝

4 He created man from a small life-germ,^{1356A} and lo! he is an open contender.

أَنْ مِنْ نُطْفَةٍ فَدَا هُوَ حَصِيمٌ مُؤْتَمِرٌ ۝ وَالْأَنَامُ خَلَقَهَا الْكَفْرُ فِيمَا دَفَنَ مَتَابِعُهُمْ ۝ ١٠ ۝

5 And He created the cattle for you; you have in them warm clothing and (many) advantages, and of them do you eat.

Ar. the cattle, He created them.

1354 The first words of this chapter are a fitting sequel to the previous chapters, which repeatedly give warning of punishment to the wicked opponents of the truth. The amr-ullah (lit. Allah's commandment) signifies the threatened punishment of Allah, which is here spoken of as having already come to express the highest degree of certainty as to its advent. The use of the past tense for the future is of frequent occurrence in Arabic literature, when great certainty about the future is to be expressed. But the unbelievers are asked not to hasten the punishment, for Allah, Who conferred so many physical benefits on them, is willing to bestow His spiritual gifts, as mercy has the foremost place in Divine nature. This is stated in the verses that follow. What that punishment was going to be is expressly stated at the end of this chapter (v. 112); see 1406.

1355 Ruh here signifies inspiration or Divine revelation, such as is imparted by means of an angel . . . so called because it quickens to life from the death of infidelity (or ungodliness) . . . and the prophetic commission. It also signifies the Qur-an (LL).

1356 The particle an is usually rendered by that, but it is frequently used as an explicative meaning ai (or that is) or in the manner of ai, meaning qāḍin, or qāḍina (i.e. saying), or some other form of qāḍa (i.e. he said) (Mgh-LL). For this use of an certain conditions are requisite, for which see Mgh.

1356A The nutfah signifies originally only pure water (TA : al-mā-uṣ-ṣāfi), the word being applied to a very small quantity as well as to a very large volume of it, so that any good drink is called a nutfah, so also is a sea (TA). The nutfah from which man is stated to be created is the small life-germ, or the spermatozoon, in the seminal fluid.

Ar. There is beauty in them for.

6 And they are pleasing to you when you drive them back (to home), and when you send them forth (to pasture).

7 And they carry your heavy loads to regions which you could not reach but with distress of the souls; most surely your Lord is Compassionate, Merciful.

8 And (He made) horses and mules and asses that you might ride upon them and as an ornament; and He creates what you do not know.

9 And upon Allah it rests to show the right way, and there are some deviating (ways); and if He please He would certainly guide you all aright.¹³⁵⁷

وَلَكُمْ فِيهَا جَمَالٌ حِينَ تُرْجَعُونَ وَحِينَ تُسْرَحُونَ ۝

وَتَحْمِلُ أَثْقَالَكُمْ إِلَىٰ بَلَدٍ لَّا تَكُونُونَ لَهَا بِغْيَمَةً ۖ أَلَا يَشِقُّ الْإِنْسَانُ إِنْ رُبِّكَ زُرَّ وَثَرَجِيْمٌ ۝

وَالْخَيْلَ وَالْإِبْعَالَ وَالْأَحْمِلَ لِأَرْكَبِكُمْ وَرِيَّةً وَوَحْيَانٌ مَّا لَا تَعْلَمُونَ ۝

وَعَلَى اللَّهِ قَصْدُ السَّبِيلِ وَمِنْهَا جَلِيلٌ ۖ وَلَوْ شَاءَ لَهَدَىٰكُمْ أَجْمَعِينَ ۝

SECTION 2

Nature upholds Unity

10-19. The whole creation is made subservient to man. 20, 21. No created object should be taken for a god.

10 He it is who sends down water from the cloud for you; it gives drink, and by it (grow) the trees upon which you pasture.

11 He causes to grow for you thereby herbage, and the olives, and the palm-trees, and the grapes, and of all the fruits; most surely there is a sign in this for a people who reflect.

12 And He has made subservient for you the night and the day and the sun and the moon, and the stars are made subservient by His commandment; most surely there are signs in this for a people who ponder;

13 And what He has created in the earth of varied hues; most surely there is a sign in this for a people who are mindful.

هُوَ الَّذِي أَنْزَلَ مِنَ السَّمَاءِ مَاءً لَكُمْ مِنْهُ شَرَابٌ وَمِنْهُ شَجَرٌ فِيهِ تُسِيمُونَ ۝

يُنْبِتُ لَكُمْ بِهِ الزَّرْعَ وَالزَّيْتُونَ وَالنَّخِيلَ وَالْأَعْنَابَ وَمِنْ كُلِّ الثَّمَرَاتِ ۚ إِنَّ فِي ذَٰلِكَ لَآيَةً لِّقَوْمٍ يَتَفَكَّرُونَ ۝

وَاللَّيْلَ وَالنَّجْمَ وَالشَّمْسَ وَالْقَمَرَ ۚ إِنَّ فِي ذَٰلِكَ لَآيَةً لِّقَوْمٍ يَعْلَمُونَ ۝

وَمَا ذَرَأَكُمْ فِي الْأَرْضِ مُخْتَلِفًا أَلْوَانُهُ ۚ إِنَّ فِي ذَٰلِكَ لَآيَةً لِّقَوْمٍ يَذَّكَّرُونَ ۝

1357 And so at last it was that at first Mecca and then the whole of Arabia accepted Islam. The verse indicates that the kind and merciful God Who granted man so many physical boons could not have neglected his spiritual requirements.

14 And He it is Who has made the sea subservient that you may eat fresh flesh from it and bring forth from it ornaments which you wear, and you see the ships cleaving through it, and that you might seek of His bounty and that you may give thanks.

Ar. thou seest

15 And He has cast great mountains in the earth lest it might be convulsed with you, and rivers and roads that you may go aright,¹³⁵⁸

Or, that they might give you food.

16 And landmarks; and by the stars they find the right way.

17 Is He then Who creates like him who does not create? Do you not then mind?

18 And if you would count Allah's favours, you will not be able to number them; most surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

19 And Allah knows what you conceal and what you do openly.

20 And those whom they call on besides Allah have not created anything while they are themselves created;

21 Dead (are they), not living, and they know not when they shall be raised.¹³⁵⁹

وَهُوَ الَّذِي سَخَّرَ الْبَحْرَ لَنَا كَالْوَأْنِ مِنْ حَمَلٍ طَرِبًا وَلِنَصْغُرَ بِجَارِمِهِ حَلِيَّةٍ تَلْبَسُوهَا وَتَرَى الْفُلْكَ مَوَاجِدَ فِيهِ وَلِتَبْتَغُوا مِنْ فَضْلِهِ وَلَعَلَّكُمْ تَشْكُرُونَ
وَالْفُجَاءِ فِي الْأَرْضِ زَوَاجِي أَنْ يُغْدِيَكُمْ وَأَنْهَارًا وَسُبُلًا لَعَلَّكُمْ تَهْتَدُونَ
وَعَلَيْكُمْ وَالْجِبَالُ هُمْ يُهْتَدُونَ
أَفَمَنْ يَخْلُقُ كَمَنْ لَا يَخْلُقُ أَفَلَا يَذْكُرُونَ

وَلَنْ تَدْرُكُوا فَعْلَهُ اللَّهُ لَا تَخْضَرُّوهُ
إِنَّ اللَّهَ لَعَفُورٌ رَحِيمٌ
وَاللَّهُ يَخْلُقُ مَا يَشَاءُ وَنُفُوسًا مَا تُلَوِّذُونَ
وَالَّذِينَ يَدْعُونَ مِنْ دُونِ اللَّهِ لَا يَخْلُقُونَ شَيْئًا وَهُمْ يُخْلَقُونَ
أَمْوَاتٌ غَيْرُ أَحْيَاءٍ وَمَا يَشْعُرُونَ
يَا كَانُ يُبْعَثُونَ

1358 When and how mountains were formed is a subject belonging to the domain of geology. The words of the Qur-ān seem to point to the great upheavals and the violent agitations which led to the formation of the mountains, before man's existence on earth, and that having been effected, the convulsions are now comparatively very insignificant. The present condition of the earth with man upon it (to this attention is drawn in the words with you) is therefore one of stability, making life possible. The significance given in the margin, however, finds support from what is said elsewhere in the Holy Qur-ān: "And the mountains, He made them firm, a provision for you and your cattle" (79: 32, 33); as māda signifies also, he conferred a benefit, and māidah means food. But māda also means it went round, تصيد بكم being the equivalent of تدور بكم (the particle an in this case simply meaning that), and the meaning in this case would be, He has cast great mountains in the earth that they (or it) might rotate with you.

1359 These two verses show conclusively that neither Jesus Christ nor any other person who is taken for god ever created anything, and secondly, that Jesus Christ was not alive at the time of the revelation of the Holy Qur-ān, because it is stated in clear words that all those who are called on besides Allah are dead, not living, and the further statement that they do not even know when they shall be raised shows that the verse speaks of men taken for gods, and at any rate includes them.

SECTION 3

Deniers of Divine Unity and Revelation

22-24. Denial of Unity and Revelation. 25. They shall bear a double burden.

22 Your God is one God; so (as for) those who do not believe in the hereafter, their hearts are ignorant and they are proud.

23 Truly Allah knows what they hide and what they manifest; surely He does not love the proud.

24 And when it is said to them, What is it that your Lord has revealed? they say: Stories of the ancients;

25 That they may bear their burdens entirely on the day of resurrection and also of the burdens of those whom they lead astray without knowledge; now surely evil is what they bear.

إِلَهُكُمْ إِلَهٌ وَاحِدٌ ۖ فَالَّذِينَ لَا يُؤْمِنُونَ
بِالْآخِرَةِ قُلُوبُهُمْ مُنْكَرَةٌ وَهُمْ

لَا جَرَءَانَ اللَّهُ يَعْلَمُ مَا يُبْشِرُونَ وَمَا
يُنْذِرُونَ ۚ إِنَّهُ لَا يَحِبُّ الْمُسْتَكْبِرِينَ ۝
وَإِذَا قِيلَ لَهُمْ مَاذَا أَنْزَلَ رَبُّكُمْ قَالُوا
أَسَاطِيرُ الْأَوَّلِينَ ۝

يَحْمِلُوا أَوْزَارَهُمْ كَامِلَةً يَوْمَ الْقِيَامَةِ
وَمِنْ أَوْزَارِ الَّذِينَ يَضِلُّوا لَهُمْ يَعْتَدِلُ
سَاءَ مَا يَزْمُرُونَ ۝

SECTION 4

The Wicked shall come to Disgrace

26-29. Those who plan against truth shall meet with disgrace. 30-32. The righteous shall prosper. 33, 34. Final punishment to be awaited for.

26 Those before them did indeed devise plans, but Allah demolished their building from the foundations, so the roof fell down on them from above them, and the chastisement came to them from whence they did not perceive.¹³⁶⁰

قَدْ هَمَّتْ مِنْ قَبْلِهِ ۖ إِنَّ اللَّهَ
بَنِيَانَهُمْ مِنَ الْقَوَاعِدِ فَخَرَّ عَلَيْهِمُ
السَّقْفُ مِنْ فَوْقِهِمْ وَأَنْتُمْ الْعَذَابُ
مَنْ حَبِثَ لَا يَشْعُرُونَ ۝

1360 This is a prophecy relating to the fate of the opponents. They devised plans against the Prophet, and on the basis of those plans they erected a building which, when complete, was certainly to be destroyed, involving in its destruction the builders themselves, by the roof falling upon their heads. The meaning is that they will be given time to complete their plans, and then these plans and all that they spent on them will not only be brought to naught, but also prove a cause of their own ruin. Compare 8: 36: "Surely those who disbelieve spend their wealth to hinder people from the way of Allah: so they shall spend it, then it shall be to them an intense regret, then they shall be overcome."

Ar. My associates.

27 Then on the resurrection day He will bring them to disgrace and say: Where are the associates you gave Me, for whose sake you became hostile? Those who are given the knowledge will say: Surely the disgrace and the evil are this day upon the unbelievers:¹³⁶¹

28 Those whom the angels cause to die while they are unjust to themselves. Then would they offer submission: We used not to do any evil. Aye: surely Allah knows what you did.

29 Therefore enter the gates of hell, to abide therein; so certainly evil is the dwelling-place of the proud.

30 And it is said to those who guard (against evil): What is it that your Lord has revealed? They say, Good. For those who do good in this world is good, and certainly the abode of the hereafter is better; and certainly most excellent is the abode of those who guard (against evil);

31 The gardens of perpetuity, they shall enter them, rivers flowing beneath them: they shall have in them what they please. Thus does Allah reward those who guard (against evil), 32 Those whom the angels cause to die in a good state, saying: Peace be on you, enter the garden for what you did.

33 They do not wait aught but that the angels should come to them or that the commandment of your Lord should come to pass.¹³⁶² Thus

Ar. thy.

ثُمَّ يَوْمَ الْقِيَامَةِ يُخْزِيهِمْ وَيَقُولُ
أَيْنَ شُرَكَائِيَ الَّذِينَ كُنْتُمْ تُشَاقِقُونَ
فِيهِمْ قَالِ الَّذِينَ أُوتُوا الْعِلْمَ
إِنَّ الْخِزْيَ الْيَوْمَ وَالْشُّوْمَ عَلَيْكَ

الَّذِينَ تَتَوَفَّيهِمُ الْمَلَائِكَةُ ظَالِمِي أَنْفُسِهِمْ
قَالُوا السَّلَامُ مَا كُنَّا نَعْمَلُ مِنْ سُوءٍ بَلْ
إِنَّ اللَّهَ عَلِيمٌ بِمَا كُنْتُمْ تَعْمَلُونَ

فَادْخُلُوا أَبْوَابَ جَهَنَّمَ خَالِدِينَ فِيهَا
فَلَيْسَ مَتْوًى الْمُنْكَرِينَ

وَقِيلَ لِلَّذِينَ اتَّقَوْا مَاذَا أَنْزَلَ رَبُّكُمْ
قَالُوا خَيْرٌ الَّذِينَ أَحْسَنُوا فِي
هَذَا الدُّنْيَا خَيْرَةً وَلَدَّارُ
الْآخِرَةِ خَيْرٌ وَلَنِعْمَ دَارُ

جَنَّةٍ عَالِي بُدُ خَالِدِينَ فِيهَا مِنْ نَحْوِهَا
الْآخِرَةُ لَهُمْ فِيهَا مَا يَشَاءُونَ كَذَلِكَ
يَجْزِي اللَّهُ الْمُتَّقِينَ

الَّذِينَ تَتَوَفَّيهِمُ الْمَلَائِكَةُ طَيِّبِينَ
يَقُولُونَ سَلَامٌ عَلَيْكُمْ ادْخُلُوا الْجَنَّةَ
بِمَنْ تَعْمَلُونَ

هَلْ يَنْظُرُونَ إِلَّا أَنْ تَأْتِيَهُمُ
الْمَلَائِكَةُ أَوْ يَأْتِيَ أَمْرٌ مِنْ رَبِّكَ كَذَلِكَ

1361 Mark that the punishment of the unbelievers on the resurrection day is described twice in this verse as being disgrace. This shows that disgrace is a sort of hell-fire which they had in this very life too.

1362 What is meant by the coming of the angels or the coming of the Lord is made clear by the next verse: it is the punishment for their evil deeds and ultimately their complete overthrow that is meant. They wait that the angels should come and the evil consequences did those before them; and Allah was not unjust to them, but they were unjust to themselves.

34 So the evil (consequences) of what they did shall afflict them and that which they mocked shall encompass them.¹³⁶³

قُلِ الَّذِينَ مِنْ قَبْلِهِمْ وَمَا ظَلَمَهُمُ اللَّهُ
وَلَكِنْ كَانُوا أَنْفُسَهُمْ يَظْلِمُونَ
فَأَصَابَهُمْ سَيِّئَاتُ مَا عَمِلُوا وَخِافَ مِنْهُمْ
مَكَانُوا بِهِ يَسْتَهْزِءُونَ

SECTION 5

Prophets are raised to explain

35. False excuses. 36, 37. Prophets raised to guide. 38-40. Denial of life after death.

35 And they who give associates (to Allah) say: If Allah had pleased, we would not have served any thing besides Allah, (neither) we nor our fathers, nor would we have prohibited any thing without (order from) Him.¹³⁶⁴ Thus did those before them; is then aught incumbent upon the apostles except a plain delivery (of the message)?

36 And certainly We raised in every nation an apostle saying: "Serve Allah and shun the devil. So there were some of them whom Allah guided and there were others against whom error was due;¹³⁶⁵ therefore travel in the land, then see what was the end of the rejecters.

وَقَالَ الَّذِينَ أَشْرَكُوا لَوْ شَاءَ اللَّهُ

of their deeds afflict them, and they wait that the commandment of the Lord should come to pass and they should be beset on all sides by that at which they mocked. The coming of the angels thus stands for the smaller afflictions, such as overtook them in the form of famine and war, while the coming to pass of the commandment of the Lord indicates the complete overthrow of their power which was brought about by the conquest of Mecca. Compare 268 and 2: 210.

1363 The past tense, as already stated, is frequently used in the Holy Qur-án to denote the future, when it is required to express the highest degree of certainty (Rz, vol. 2, p. 242). The prophecy is an answer to the demand of the previous verse.

1364 The answer to this foolish excuse is given in the concluding portion of this verse and continued in the next. Allah's pleasure is not exercised by compelling people to adopt one way or the other, but by sending His apostles in every age and nation to point out the right way to the people, and by clear messages through the mouths of His ministers to warn people to avoid evil.

1365 حق عليه كذا means such a thing was suitable to the requirements of justice, etc., to take effect upon him (LL). Hence حقت عليهم الصلاة signifies that remaining in error was suitable to the requirements of justice in their case; in other words, they adhered to error, and there was no injustice on the part of Allah in their having remained on such a desirest.

37 If you strive for¹³⁶⁶ their guidance, yet surely Allah does not guide him who leads astray,¹³⁶⁷ nor shall they have any helpers.

38 And they swear by Allah with the most energetic of their oaths: Allah will not raise up him who dies. Yea! it is a promise binding on Him, quite true, but most people do not know;

39 So that He might make manifest to them that about which they differ, and that those who disbelieve might know that they were liars.

40 Our word for a thing when We intend it, is only that We say to it, Be, and it is.*

إِنْ تَحْرَصْ عَلَىٰ هَدْيِهِمْ فَإِنَّ اللَّهَ لَا يَهْدِي course. The apostles had delivered to them the message and shown them the right way, but they chose to remain in error. The words do not mean that Allah had decreed that they should remain in error, for then the sending to them of apostles would have been absurd. And in the concluding portion of the verse the rejecters of the Holy Prophet are told to take a lesson from the fate of the former rejecters of the truth, which would not have been done if they had been considered as foredoomed to err.

1366 حرص عليه signifies he strove or laboured or exerted himself for him (Msb, TA-LL); also, he was exceedingly eager for him (TA-LL).

1367 I think there has been a great misunderstanding in the interpretation of the words من يضل which clearly mean he who leads (others) astray. The use of adalla without an objective is permissible, as in علم بخير علم i.e. and most surely many would lead (people) astray by their low desires out of ignorance (6: 120). The meaning is therefore that those who do not only walk in error themselves, but are even engaged in leading others astray, cannot be guided so long as they stick to this course. But if it is necessary to make the words ambiguous, by interpreting them as meaning Allah does not guide him whom He causes to err, it is by no means justifiable to make them contradict the plain words of the Holy Qur-án; the Qur-án itself makes it quite clear as to those whom Allah causes to err. For instance, we have in 2: 26: "But He does not cause to err by it any except the transgressors," and in 14: 27, "And Allah causes the unjust to go astray." Even, therefore, if we adopt the other interpretation, the words only mean that the transgressors and the unjust are not guided, the translation of من يضل being whom He judges to have gone astray.

SECTION 6

Prophets are raised to explain

41, 42. Reward of those who are persecuted. 43, 44. Revelation of Divine will through man. 45-50. Opponents of truth are always overthrown.

41 And those who fly for Allah's sake after they are oppressed, We will most certainly give them a good abode in the world, and the reward of the hereafter is certainly much greater: did they but know.¹³⁶⁸

42 Those who are patient and on their Lord do they rely.

1368 This is a most clear prophecy regarding those Muslims who had to fly from their homes on account of the persecutions of the Quraish. What is promised them is not only a reward of the hereafter but a goodly abode in this world too. Whether the reference here is only to the earlier flight to Abyssinia, or to the later flight to Medina, which had begun before the Holy Prophet's departure, one thing is certain: those who fled their homes in utter helplessness, and were in danger even of their very lives, were given the clearest promise of a great future in this life, and this promise proved true notwithstanding the hard struggle against a powerful nation, united at least in the determination to exterminate Islam. It is related of the Caliph 'Umar that he used to say, when he gave a gift to one of the emigrants: "Take this—may Allah bless you! This is what He promised you in this life, and what is for you in the hereafter is greater" (Kf), evidently referring to this verse.

1369 By the أهل الذكر (lit. the followers of the Reminder) are generally understood the Jews and the Christians, to whom it is supposed the Quraish are told to refer the question whether it is or it is not true that only men and not angels were sent with Divine revelation before, but the mention in the very next verse of the zikr or the Reminder having been sent to the Holy Prophet shows that the words apply to the Muslims. Some commentators, however, take the words generally as meaning learned men.

1370 This verse and the two that follow speak of the punishment in store for those who invented mischievous plans to kill the Prophet. The punishment spoken of in this verse is

46 Or that He may seize them in the course of their journeys, then shall they not escape;¹³⁷¹

47 Or that He may seize them by causing them to suffer gradual loss,¹³⁷² for your Lord is most surely Compassionate, Merciful.

48 Do they not consider every thing that Allah has created? its (very) shadows return from right and left, making obeisance to Allah while they are in utter abasement.

49 And whatever creature that is in the heavens and that is in the earth makes obeisance to Allah (only), and the angels (too), and they do not show pride.

50 They fear their Lord supreme and do what they are commanded.*

their being swallowed by the earth, which is a metaphorical expression for the utter annihilation of their power. Khasf, which is ordinarily rendered as cleaving open or swallowing, also means izlāl (TA), i.e. bringing to disgrace. Hence the meaning of يُخَسَفُ بِهِمُ الْأَرْضُ or the earth swallowing them up is their being brought to disgrace in the land. Khasf also indicates the disappearance of a thing, as خسوف العين signifies the eyes sinking, or going away into the head, meaning its blinding (S, TA-LL). Hence the meaning of the phrase يُخَسَفُ بِهِمُ الْأَرْضُ may be that they may be made to disappear altogether from the land, being the prophecy of the absolute disappearance of idolatry and unbelief from Arabia. Khasafa also signifies it became defective or suffered loss (Q-LL), and the infinitive noun khasf signifies being vile, abject, or contemptible (KL-LL), or the lowering, abasing, or humbling another (Ham, TA-LL), and accordingly the meaning may be He may make them suffer loss, or abase them in the earth.

1371 Taqallub signifies journeying for traffic (LL), because for this purpose one has to go and come again and again (lit. turning about). The prosperity of the Meccans depended on their journeying to Syria with their goods, and as Medina was in the way they suffered by the war they made upon the Muslims of Medina, because it interrupted their journeys and traffic. Thus this prophecy was fulfilled by them with their own hands.

1372 Takhawwafá-hu means he took little by little from it (S, Q, LA-LL), and the meaning is that they shall be diminished gradually until unbelief is utterly annihilated. This was the form which the punishment of the opponents of the Holy Prophet took. Their annihilation and the vanishing of their power, spoken of in the two previous verses, were brought about gradually, not suddenly, so that seeing the prophecy being fulfilled they may accept the truth. Thus they were dealt with kindly and mercifully, as the two attributes of the Divine Being brought in at the conclusion of the verse indicate.

Human Nature revolts against Polytheism

51-55. Man turns to God in affliction. 56. Polytheistic offerings. 57-59. They ascribe daughters to Allah while hating them for themselves. 60. Burying girls alive.

51 And Allah has said: Take not two gods, He is only one God: so of Me alone should you be afraid.

52 And whatever is in the heavens and the earth is His, and to Him should obedience be (rendered) constantly; will you then guard against other than (the punishment of) Allah?

53 And whatever favour is (bestowed) on you it is from Allah, then when evil afflicts you, to Him do you cry for aid.

54 Yet when He removes the evil from you, lo! a party of you associate others with their Lord.¹³⁷³

Or, be ungrateful for.

55 So that they may deny what We have given them; then enjoy yourselves, for soon will you know.

56 And they set apart for what they do not know¹³⁷⁴ a portion of what We have given them. By Allah, you shall most certainly be questioned about that which you forged.

57 And they ascribe daughters to Allah, glory be to Him; and for themselves (they would have) what they desire.

58 And when a daughter is announced to one of them his face becomes black and he is full of wrath.

59 He hides himself from the people because of the evil of that which is announced to him. Shall he keep it with disgrace or bury it (alive) in the dust? Now surely evil is what they judge.¹³⁷⁵ prevalent among the Arabs, especially among their chiefs, and its abolition was one of the numerous blessings of Islam. With no physical or administrative power behind it to ensure its enforcement, the word of Allah swept off the deep-rooted custom as with a magician's wand, so that not a single case of the burial of a living girl has ever been met with since the mandate came. Attention is drawn to the inconsistency of their avowed beliefs with their inward convictions in v. 62; see 1376.

1376 The reference is to their ascribing daughters to Allah, while they themselves did not like that any one of them should have a daughter, thus showing how obviously inconsistent with their inward convictions was their professed belief in the Divine Being.

1377 By the water from the heaven is clearly meant the Divine revelation, as the previous verse also shows. The death of the earth is its corruption, and the giving of life signifies its spiritual life, marvellous signs of which had already appeared in Arabia.

1378 This and the previous verse seem to aim at a comparison between the Divine laws as manifested in nature and the handiwork of man. It is the working of Divine law in nature that produces such a valuable and agreeable diet as pure milk, separating it from the other elements—blood and dung—to which food is reduced in the belly of a cow, a goat, or other animal. Divine Providence thus most successfully separates the pure elements from excrements, which the hand of man is unable to do. On the other hand, the most agreeable provisions produced by nature in the form of fruits are turned into such a poisonous drug as wine by the hand of man. The two illustrations thus point out that just as Divine laws working in the physical world produce the purest and most agreeable diets, separating them from obnoxious elements and useless excrements, so their working in the spiritual world produces the sublimest and most practicable moral teachings, which afford to man the purest and most agreeable spiritual diet. But the best teachings given by Divine revelation are likely to be corrupted by the hands of man, as the best of fruits is turned into such a disagreeable and obnoxious thing as wine, though if it had been preserved in its original condition it could have served as an excellent provision. The second illustration, in fact, points out how man has corrupted the pure teachings of Divine revelation, and therefore mankind cannot be trusted to evolve the highest moral and ethical code; it is only Divine law working in the spiritual world, i.e. Divine revelation, that gives to man pure moral teachings, nourishing him spiritually, as milk nourishes the human being physically.

which there is healing for men; most surely there is a sign in this for a people who reflect.¹³⁷⁹

SECTION 10

Selection of the Recipient of Revelation

71, 72. Degrees of superiority. 73, 74. Those who set up other gods. 75, 76. Parables showing that only the good are fit for selection.

71 And Allah has made some of you excel others in the means of subsistence, so those who are made to excel do not give away their sustenance to those whom their right hands possess, so that they should be equal therein; is it then the favour of Allah which they deny?¹³⁸¹

وَاللَّهُ فَضَّلَ بَعْضَكُمْ عَلَى بَعْضٍ فِي الرِّزْقِ
فَمَا الَّذِينَ فُضِّلُوا ابْرَأُوا إِلَىٰ مَا يَدْرِيهِمْ
عَلَىٰ مَا مَلَكَتْ أَيْمَانُهُمْ فَهُمْ فِي سَوَاءٍ
أَفَسِينَعَةَ اللَّهِ يَجْحَدُونَ

1379 This is another illustration to show that divine revelation brings about an object which cannot be effected by human exertions. In this case the Divine laws of nature are shown working in the bee, which gathers the sweet juice of different flowers, making it into honey. What this small creature effects, working instinctively in obedience to Divine laws, cannot be effected by the combined exertions of the whole of humanity. This illustration from the physical world is introduced to show a similar working of the Divine laws in the spiritual world, viz. that the Prophet, working as it were instinctively in obedience to the Divine laws prevailing in the spiritual and moral worlds, has by Divine revelation collected all that was best and noblest in any religion or religious teaching and summed it up in the Holy Qur-án: a work which could not be effected by the mere exertions of men. Hence it is that of the Qur-án it is said in 98:3, "wherein are all the right ordinances." The object is to show that the Holy Qur-án, as a collection of all the highest and noblest moral teachings, could only be produced by Divine revelation and not by human exertions. And just as honey is said to possess the quality of healing here, the Qur-án in 17:82 and elsewhere is called a healing. It should be noted that five kinds of the wah-y (literally revelation or inspiration) of Allah are mentioned in the Holy Qur-án; viz. first, in its relation to inanimate objects, as earth in 99:5; secondly, in relation to living creatures other than man, as the bee; thirdly, in relation to men and women other than prophets, as the apostles of Jesus in 5:111 and the mother of Moses in 28:7; fourthly, in relation to prophets and apostles; and fifthly, in relation to angels. It should be borne in mind that all these kinds of wah-y are not of the same nature, as, for instance, in the case of the bee, it is its very instinct that is a revelation to it. The revelation of the prophets is the expression of Divine will for the guidance of men.

1380 As in the individual, so in nations. Those who, before the Holy Prophet, had been given knowledge of Divine revelation had lost or corrupted it at the time of his advent; hence the necessity for a new Divine revelation.

1381 The verse points to the differences in the physical world and affords an answer to

Or, grandchildren.

72 And Allah has made wives for you from among yourselves,¹³⁸² and has given you sons and daughters from your wives, and has given you of the good things; is it then in the falsehood that they believe while it is in the favour of Allah that they disbelieve? ¹³⁸³

73 And they serve besides Allah that which does not control for them any sustenance at all from the heavens and the earth, nor have they any power.

74 Therefore do not give a likeness to Allah; surely Allah knows and you do not know.

75 Allah sets forth a parable—(Consider) a slave, the property of another, (who) has no power over anything, and one whom We have granted from Ourselves a goodly sustenance so he spends from it secretly and openly; are the two alike?¹³⁸⁴ (All) praise is due to Allah! Nay, most of them do not know.

وَاللَّهُ جَعَلَ لَكُمْ مِنْ أَنْفُسِكُمْ أَزْوَاجًا
وَجَعَلَ لَكُمْ مِنْ أَزْوَاجِكُمْ بَنِينَ وَحَدَثًا
وَرَزَقَكُمْ مِنَ الظَّالِمَاتِ أَفْئِدًا بَاطِلًا
يُؤْمِنُونَ وَيَنْعَمَتِ اللَّهُ هُمْ يَكْفُرُونَ
وَيَعْبُدُونَ مِنْ دُونِ اللَّهِ مَا لَا يَمْلِكُ
لَهُمْ شَرًّا نَافِعًا مِنَ السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ
شَيْئًا وَلَا يَسْتَطِيعُونَ
فَلَا تَضْرِبُوا لِلَّهِ الْأَمْثَالَ إِنَّ اللَّهَ يَعْلَمُ
وَأَنْتُمْ لَا تَعْلَمُونَ

ضَرَبَ اللَّهُ مَثَلًا عَبْدًا مَمْلُوكًا
لَا يَقْدِرُ عَلَى شَيْءٍ وَمَنْ رَزَقْنَاهُ مِنْ
رِزْقًا حَسَنًا فَهُوَ يُنْفِقُ مِنْهُ سِرًّا
وَجَهْرًا ۚ أَمْ هَلْ يَسْتَوُونَ الْحَمْدُ لِلَّهِ
بَلْ أَكْثَرُهُمْ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ

the demand of the unbelievers expressly stated elsewhere (6:125): "We will not believe until we are given the like of what Allah's apostles are given," claiming an equal right with the Prophet to receive Divine revelation. It is therefore pointed out that as in the physical world it is seen that some are given greater abundance than others, while there are even those "whom your right hands possess" who do not possess any property and have to look to others for their maintenance, though working equally hard with them, so too there are differences in the spiritual world, as all men are not equally fit to receive the gift of Divine revelation. It is to this that the concluding words of the verse allude; the favour of Allah, which is the Divine revelation, should not be denied simply because all men are not equal recipients of it.

1382 The statement made here is that for all men wives are created from their anfus (plural of nafs, meaning soul or self); no one ever thinks of placing such an unnatural interpretation upon these words as that which is erroneously placed upon similar words about Adam, where the rib is made to take the place of soul or self. It should be observed that the words of the Qur-án do not allow this unnatural interpretation, which is based upon the story of Genesis.

1383 They believe in the superstition that the idols, which are inanimate objects, can intercede with Allah, and deny the favour of Allah being granted to a human being. Hence the next verse speaks of the idols.

1384 By slave is meant the idol-worshipper who, instead of being master of idols, stones, and such-like objects, as Allah had created him to be, chooses to become a slave to them, bows before them, and considers them more powerful than himself. By the master of the goodly provision received from Allah is meant he who is the recipient of the Divine revelation, i.e. the Holy Prophet. The comparison is introduced to show that the idol-worshippers will

76 And Allah sets forth a parable of two men: one of them is dumb, not able to do anything, and he is a burden to his master; wherever he sends him, he brings no good; can he be held equal with him who enjoins what is just, and he (himself) is on the right path?¹³⁸⁵

79 Do they not see the birds, constrained in the middle of the sky? None withholds them but Allah; most surely there are signs in this for a people who believe.¹³⁸⁷ ultimately find themselves deprived of all power. See the parable of the next verse, which makes it clear. The words of the parable find an echo in the reply of Abu Sufyán, when the Holy Prophet, who was in the act of entering Mecca as a conqueror, inquired of him: "Has not the time come when you should know that there is no God but Allah?" Abu Sufyán replied: "By Allah, I am now certain that if there had been a God besides Allah, it would surely have availed me somewhat."

1385 This parable makes the same comparison as the previous one. The purport is here made clearer. The master of the goodly provision from Allah of the previous verse is here plainly called the enjoiner of what is just and the one who is on the right path, while the idol-worshipper is the one who is not able to do anything and who remains unsuccessful in whatever he undertakes—a prophetic allusion to the defeats and discomfiture of the idolaters.

1386 By the unseen is meant the knowledge of the unseen, or the knowledge of the eventual fulfilment of the prophecies; and by the hour is meant the hour of the doom of the opponents of the Prophet, the hour when their power was to be utterly destroyed. They are told that it would be accomplished sooner than they could imagine, because they considered it to be impossible.

81 And Allah has made for you, of what He has created, shelters, and He has given you in the mountains places of retreat, and He has given you garments to preserve you from the heat¹³⁸⁸ and coats of mail to preserve you in your fighting; even thus does He complete His favour upon you, that haply you may submit.¹³⁸⁹

1387 The withholding of the birds by Allah signifies His withholding the punishment which was to overtake the enemy in the form of battles, which, as prophecy clearly indicates, were to entirely subdue them. Both Arab proverb and Arab poetry bear witness to birds being spoken of as attending a victorious army to feed upon the corpses of the enemy left on the battlefield. Thus we have the well-known Arab proverb تبدد بلمحك الطير i.e.

may the birds disperse thy flesh, which is a kind of imprecation, meaning "may the man die and his flesh may be dispersed and eaten by birds" (Majma'ul Amsal, by Maidani, Part 1). Arab poetry has many references to this, but I cannot quote more than an instance or two. The famous Nābighah says:—

اِذَا مَا غَدَا بِالْجَيْشِ حَلَقَ فَوْقَهُ ۖ عَصَائِبُ طَيْرٍ تَهْتَدِي بِعَصَابِ

i.e. when he goes out with the army, flocks of birds, being guided by the companies of the army, hover over his head. Here the birds are made the attendants of a victorious army, as if they knew that the army which they followed would slay the enemy, and that they would thus feed on dead bodies. And Abul-Tayyib says in praise of Muhammad bin Ishaq:—

اِذَا لَقُوا جَيْشًا يَتَقَنَّ اِنَّهُ ۖ مِنْ بطن طَيْرٍ تَنْوُفَةٌ مَحْشُورٌ

i.e. and when they meet an army, it becomes certain that it shall be raised up from the bellies of the birds of Tanufah. Here the opposing army becomes certain of vanquishment and of being eaten by birds, so that, the bellies of the birds serving as their tombs, they should be raised from these bellies on the day of resurrection.

1388 The mention of one of two contrary things always involves the other; thus when heat is spoken of, cold is understood, and when light is spoken of, darkness is understood, and vice versa (Mubarrad-Rz). Hence by the preservation from heat spoken of here, preservation from heat and cold alike is meant. Or, as Zj says, since what preserves a man from heat also preserves him from cold (Rz), therefore the mention of the other would have been superfluous.

1389 As He has given you of the good things of this life, the physical blessings, He now completes these blessings by giving you the greatest of His blessings, i.e. Divine revelation.

Ar. thee.

82 But if they turn back, then on you devolves only the clear deliverance (of the message).

1390 In this verse, as well as in the concluding verse (v. 89) of this section, the broad humanitarian doctrine is taught that a prophet has been raised in every nation. A Christian annotator seems to note with some wonder that "this verse seems to necessitate the belief of some true prophet having existed in India, China, Japan, etc.," but certainly it is much more surprising that those who claim hundreds of prophets for a single nation like the house of Israel should grudge even a single true prophet to these vast countries and nations. Islam rejects all such narrow views of the spiritual providence of Allah, Who is not the "Lord God of Israel," but the Lord of all the nations and worlds.

Revelation enjoins Good

90. Good enjoined and evil prohibited. 91–96. Covenants to be fulfilled. 97–100. The faithful live a life of purity.

90 Surely Allah enjoins the doing of justice and the doing of good (to others) and the giving to the kindred, and He forbids indecency and evil and rebellion; He admonishes you that you may be mindful.¹³⁹³

91 And fulfill the covenant of Allah when you have made a covenant, and do not break the oaths after making them fast, and you have indeed made Allah a surety for you; surely Allah knows what you do.

إِنَّ اللَّهَ يَأْمُرُ بِالْعَدْلِ وَالْإِحْسَانِ
وِإِيتَاءِ ذِي الْقُرْبَىٰ وَيَنْهَىٰ عَنِ الْفَحْشَاءِ

اللَّهَ عَلَيْكُمْ كَفِيلًا إِنَّ اللَّهَ يَعْلَمُ مَا تَعْمَلُونَ

1391 These words should not be misconstrued to mean that the Prophet's mission was to no other people than the Arabians. The Arabians were the people to whom the Prophet directly preached, and therefore they were the first to be judged guilty in rejecting the Holy Prophet. That the Prophet's message was for all people to whom the truth was to be preached by his followers is shown by 2:143, "And thus we have made you an exalted nation, that you may be bearers of witness to other people and that the Prophet may be a bearer of witness to you."

1392 Brinkman's note that "If the Qur-án explains everything and is a guidance, what need is there for the sunnah?" is based on ignorance. Sunnah means way or practice, and by sunnah is meant the practice of the Prophet, as illustrating the precepts of the Qur-án. Moreover, by everything is meant every basic principle necessary for the spiritual welfare of man and to decide the disputes of various religions, and not everything that may possibly exist in the world.

1393 This verse deals comprehensively with the different degrees of goodness and evil. The lowest form of goodness is that which is called 'adl (literally justice) or returning good for good, and includes not only justice proper, but also the fulfilment of all duties and obligations, as they all more or less take the form of doing good for good. A higher degree of goodness is, however, that which is called ihsán, or goodness proper. It is the doing of good in cases where man has received no benefit. The highest degree of goodness is that which is called the إيتاء ذى القربى or the giving to the kindred, for what a man gives to his own kindred, to his children or parents or brothers and sisters, is given out of a natural desire, and hence the last stage of goodness is that in which a man's nature is not inclined to good that he has not to make an effort for doing good, but his very nature

92 And be not like her who unravels her yarn, disintegrating it into pieces after she has spun it strongly.¹³⁹⁴ You make your oaths to be means of deceit between you because (one) nation is more numerous than (another) nation.¹³⁹⁵ Allah only tries you by this; and He will most certainly make clear to you on the resurrection day that about which you differed.

93 And if Allah please He would certainly make you a single nation, but He causes to err whom He pleases and guides whom He pleases; and most certainly you will be questioned as to what you did.¹³⁹⁶

94 And do not make your oaths a means of deceit between you, lest a foot should slip after its stability and you should taste evil because you turned away from Allah's way and grievous chastisement be your (lot).

95 And do not take a small price in exchange for Allah's covenant; surely what is with Allah is better for you, did you but know.

96 What is with you passes away and what is with Allah is enduring; and We will most certainly give to those who are patient their reward for the best of what they did.

inclines to good. Similarly this verse deals with the three degrees of evil, from the merest indecency to the wrongful conduct which violates the rights of individuals and nations.

1394 This is a parable, the meaning of which is explained in what follows.

1395 The opponents of Islam, being more numerous than its adherents, would not respect their covenants with the Muslims. Most commentators understand the words to be generally true of the Quraish: "It being usual with them, when they saw the enemies of their confederates to be superior in force, to renounce their league with their old friends." But the verse applies with much greater truth to the civilized Christian nations who have not the least regard for their treaties—especially when the other party to the treaty is weak—in fact, it has become a by-word among them that agreements are made to be violated. Rodwell's note, that "the Arabs, like most half-savage tribes, used to consider superior numerical strength as entitling them to disregard a treaty," only needs revision, in view of recent circumstances, by substituting the words "some civilized nations" for "half-savage tribes."

1396 His pleasure is exercised according to His laws; it is only the transgressors and the unjust who go astray. See verse 104, which makes this verse clear: "Surely as for those who do not believe in Allah's communications, Allah does not guide them." The subject has been fully explained in 44 and elsewhere; see 1099, 1297, 1312.

97 Whoever does good, whether male or female,¹³⁹⁷ and he is a believer, We will most certainly make him live a happy life, and We will most certainly give them their reward for the best of what they did.

1398 It is absolutely unreasonable to argue the doctrine of the abrogation of certain Quranic verses on the basis of this verse. All those verses which are considered as having abrogated previously revealed verses—and the number of these is limited to five by the more learned—belong to the Medina period, because, even admitting for the sake of argument that there was abrogation, it was not needed until the Holy Prophet had established himself at Medina and detailed commandments were required for the guidance of the Muslims. But this chapter belongs to Mecca, and there does not exist the slightest evidence that any verse had been abrogated while the Holy Prophet was at Mecca. Moreover, the context clearly shows that it was the revelation of the Qur-án itself that was called a forgery, and not an occasional change that any of its commandments could have undergone, with which change the unbelievers had, in fact, no concern. What the unbelievers objected to was either the revelation of a new book while there was in existence a previous revelation, or the destruction of their own customs and usages, which had become sacred to them. The answer in the first case is that the same Holy Spirit which brought revelation to Jesus Christ and other prophets also brought it to the Holy Prophet Muhammad, and in the second, that their usages were not founded on Divine revelation, while the Qur-án was based on such revelation. For a fuller discussion of the doctrine of abrogation see 152.

102 Say: The Holy Spirit¹³⁹⁹ has revealed it from your Lord with the truth, that it may establish those who believe and as a guidance and good news for those who submit.

105 Only they forge the lie who do not believe in Allah's communications, and these are the liars.

مَنْ سَخَّرَ بِالْأَعْمَى صَدْرًا فَكَيْفَ يُعْصَبُ
مِنْ اللَّهِ وَلَهُمْ عَذَابٌ عَظِيمٌ

1399 The Holy Spirit is here stated to be the bearer of the revelation to the Holy Prophet, while elsewhere the same bearer is called the Ruh-ul-amin, or the Faithful Spirit (26 : 193), and the same is called Gabriel in 2 : 97.

1400 Various names have been suggested as to the person whom the opponents of the Prophet referred to. These are mostly the names of Christian slaves, Jabr, Yásir, 'Aish or Ya'ish, Qais, 'Addás. The name of Salmán is suggested by Prideaux, which Sale shows to be an utterly baseless conjecture, as Salmán came after the Flight. All these slaves were among the early converts to Islam, and it was they who were most cruelly persecuted by the Quraish; yet they remained firm under the severest tortures. Is it possible to conceive that they, without being the least gainers, should have thus willingly suffered persecutions for a cause which they knew to be false? This consideration is alone sufficient to show the absurdity of the allegation of the Quraish and their Christian followers, who attach such importance to this allegation. ¹ The general opinion of the Christians is that it was a Nestorian monk named Sergius, who is identified with the monk Buhairah, whom the Holy Prophet, while yet a boy, met on his journey to Syria with his uncle Abú Tálib. The absurdity of this view is also expressed by Sale. As regards the Christian slaves, they certainly cannot be supposed to have been the authors of the sublime themes of the Holy Qur-án. That the opponents of the Prophet said so is rather a proof of the falsehood of the assertion than an indication of its truth; for, unable to meet the arguments of the Holy Qur-án, they had to adopt less honest methods of making the Qur-án unpopular.

1401 It is clear from this that believing in Allah's commandments is equivalent to acting upon them.

1402, see next page.

107 This is because they love this world's life more than the hereafter, and because Allah does not guide the unbelieving people.¹⁴⁰³

108 These are they on whose hearts and their hearing and their eyes Allah has set a seal, and these are the heedless ones.¹⁴⁰⁴

109 No doubt that in the hereafter they will be the losers.

Ar. thy. 110 Yet surely your Lord, with respect to those who fly¹⁴⁰⁵ after they are persecuted, then they struggle^{1405a} hard and are patient, most surely your Lord after that is Forgiving, Merciful.

مِن بَعْدِهَا لَغَفُورٌ رَّحِيمٌ ۝

1402 Only very rare instances are met with in the early history of Islam in which the converts even under compulsion ever recanted. Being sincere converts, they would not recant even under hardest trials. For instance, Yásir and Sumayyah, husband and wife, suffered death at the hands of the unbelievers because they would not recant, the latter being put to death most cruelly, her legs being tied to two camels which were made to run in opposite directions. Their son 'Ammar, however, having been affected by these tortures, was not so resolute. The cruellest persecutions were inflicted on those slaves who had become converts to Islam. Muir says: "These were seized and imprisoned, or they were exposed upon the scorching gravel of the valley to the intense glare of the midday sun. The torment was enhanced by intolerable thirst, until the wretched sufferers hardly knew what they said." Yet even under these trying circumstances, which would have maddened even the most resolute man, there were those among these slave-converts who were as firm as a mountain; as in the case of Bilál, of whom it is recorded that "in the depth of his anguish the persecutors could force from him but one expression: Ahad! Ahad! One! One! (only God)."

1403 How can a people be guided who reject the truth and refuse to act upon it?

1404 It is clear from this that Allah does not set seals on the hearts of men and thus hinder them from accepting the truth; on the other hand, it is they who reject and would not believe the truth, turning a deaf ear to the preaching of the Prophet (as the previous verses show), and thus seals are set on their hearts, etc. Nor is this done permanently, for, as v. 110 shows, even after this Allah forgives them if they repent and show perseverance in the pursuit of truth and righteousness.

1405 They fly from the place where they are persecuted so that they may not again be afflicted. It appears that some of the believers were now flying to Medina.

1405a It should be noted that the Jihád spoken of here is certainly not in connection with fighting, for the verse was revealed at Mecca.

The Fate of the Meccans

111-116. Divine favours to Meccans and their ungratefulness. 117, 118. Prohibited foods. 119. Mercy is shown to the penitent.

111 (Remember) the day when every soul shall come, pleading for itself, and every soul shall be paid in full what it has done, and they shall not be dealt with unjustly.

112 And Allah sets forth a parable: (Consider) a town safe and secure, to which its means of subsistence come in abundance from every quarter; but it became ungrateful to Allah's favours, therefore Allah made it to taste the utmost degree of hunger and fear because of what they wrought.¹⁴⁰⁶

Ar. cover-

113 And certainly there came to them an Apostle from among them, but they rejected him, so the chastisement overtook them while they were unjust.¹⁴⁰⁷

114 Therefore eat of what Allah has given you, lawful and good (things), and give thanks for Allah's favour if Him do you serve.

يَوْمَ تَأْتِي كُلُّ نَفْسٍ بِجِذَائِهَا
وَتُؤْتَى كُلُّ نَفْسٍ مَّا عَمِلَتْ وَهِيَ لَا
يُظْلَمُونَ

وَضَرَبَ اللَّهُ مَثَلًا قَرْيَةً كَانَتْ آمِنَةً
مُطْمَئِنَّةً يَأْتِيهَا رِزْقُهَا رَغَدًا
مِّن كُلِّ مَكَانٍ فَكَفَرَتْ بِأَنْعُمِ اللَّهِ
فَأَذَاقَهَا اللَّهُ لِبَاسَ الْجُوعِ وَالْخَوْفِ
بِمَا كَانُوا يَصْنَعُونَ

وَلَقَدْ جَاءَهُمْ رَسُولٌ مِّنْهُمْ
فَكَذَّبُوهُ فَأَخَذَهُمُ الْعَذَابُ
وَهُمْ ظَالِمُونَ

رَزَقَكُمْ اللَّهُ حُلَالَ طَيِّبَاتٍ أَتَشْكُرُونَ
نِعْمَتِ اللَّهِ إِنَّ كُنُودَنَا لَا نَعْبُدُونَ

1406 The parable is set forth to depict the state of Mecca as it was before the time of the Holy Prophet and the fate to which it was to be reduced after he was rejected, after it became ungrateful for Allah's favour. Its first condition was one of great prosperity and influence, being the centre to which all tribes came for pilgrimage and trade, a picture of which is drawn in one of the concluding chapters of the Holy Qur-ān: "So let them serve the Lord of this house, Who feeds them against hunger and gives them security against fear" (106: 3, 4). Its later state was, firstly, that in which, on account of the great famine that followed the curse uttered by the Holy Prophet—"O Allah! overtake them with years of famine like Joseph's years of famine"—they ate even bones and corpses (JB): this was the libās-ul-jū', or the covering of hunger; and secondly, that it trembled at the advent of an army of ten thousand Muslims, and this was the libās-ul-khauf, or covering of fear, being so called because no blood was shed. The word libās (literally, covering) used in connection with hunger and fear indicates the utmost degree of hunger and fear, which, as it were, covered them all over.

1407 This makes the prophecy indicated in the previous parable clear. This is the amr-ullah, or the commandment of Allah, the approach of which was announced at the commencement of this chapter. Thus the end of the chapter states with wonderful exactitude what that punishment would be.

115 He has only forbidden you what dies of itself and blood and flesh of swine and that over which any other name than that of Allah has been invoked,^a but whoever is driven to necessity, not desiring nor exceeding the limit,^b then surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

116 And, for what your tongues describe, do not utter the lie, (saying) This is lawful and this is unlawful, in order to forge a lie against Allah; surely those who forge the lie against Allah shall not prosper.

117 A little enjoyment and they shall have a painful chastisement.

118 And for those who were Jews We prohibited what We have related to you already,^c and We did them no injustice, but they were unjust to themselves.

119 Yet surely your Lord, with respect to those who do an evil in ignorance, then turn after that and make amends, most surely your Lord after that is Forgiving, Merciful.

إِنَّمَا حَرَّمَ عَلَيْكُمُ الْمَيْتَةَ وَالدَّمَ وَلَحْمَ الْخِنْزِيرِ وَمَا أُهْلَ لِفِيهِ مِنَ اللَّهِ إِلَهٍ قَمِينَ اضْطُرَّ غَيْرَ بَاغٍ وَلَا عَادٍ فَإِنَّ اللَّهَ غَفُورٌ رَحِيمٌ

وَلَا تَقُولُوا لِمَا يُصِفُ السُّنَنُ الْكَذِبَ هَذَا حَلَلٌ وَهَذَا حَرَامٌ لَفِ تَزْوَاعِلِ اللَّهِ الْكَذِبَ إِنَّ الَّذِينَ يَفْعَلُونَ عَلَى اللَّهِ الْكَذِبَ لَا يَفْعَلُونَ

مَاءً قَلِيلٌ وَلَهُمْ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٌ وَعَلَى الَّذِينَ هَادُوا حَرَامًا مَّا قَصَصْنَا عَلَيْكَ مِنْ قَبْلُ وَمَا ظَلَمْنَاهُمْ وَلَكِنْ كَانُوا أَنْفُسَهُمْ يَظْلِمُونَ

ثُمَّ إِنَّ رَبَّكَ لِلَّذِينَ عَمِلُوا السُّوءَ بِمِغْرَابٍ ثُمَّ تَابُوا مِنْ بَعْدِ ذَلِكَ وَأَصْلَحُوا إِنَّ رَبَّكَ مِنْ بَعْدِهَا لَغَفُورٌ رَحِيمٌ

1408 The principle laid down for preaching and religious controversy by the "unlearned Arabian" has yet to be learned by the most advanced people, whose controversies are carried on with no other object than that of faultfinding, and whose preaching only aims at carping at others. It shows the breadth of mind of the Holy Prophet, more especially when it is remembered that the injunction was given at a time when the Muslims were being most severely persecuted and there was the greatest reason for adopting a harsh attitude.

1409 As the context abundantly sets forth, the retaliation spoken of relates only to things said in controversies, and not to acts of war or bodily injuries, hence there is no need to ascribe this verse to the Medina period. But if once the permission to retaliate is given, the injunction to endure patiently what the opponents say and do is immediately repeated thrice, and this indicates the true spirit of the Islamic teaching. There is no evidence whatever that this and the two following verses were not revealed at Mecca.

CHAPTER XVII

THE ISRAELITES

(Bani-Isrdeel)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(12 sections and 111 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Punishment of the Israelites.
- Sec. 2. Every deed has a consequence.
- Sec. 3, 4. Moral precepts.
- Sec. 5. Unbelievers grow harder.
- Sec. 6. Punishment must follow.
- Sec. 7. The devil's opposition to the righteous.
- Sec. 8. Opposition to the Prophet.
- Sec. 9. Falsehood shall vanish before truth.
- Sec. 10. The Qur-ān is a wondrous miracle.
- Sec. 11. Trivial excuses.
- Sec. 12. A comparison with Moses' warning.

The Title and connection.

This chapter goes under the name of the Israelites, who, after being made a great nation and having risen to power and eminence in the world, were severely punished and almost annihilated on account of their transgressions. It opens and ends with a reference to the history of that nation. The beginning and the end of this chapter clearly indicate that it is meant to be a warning to the Muslims themselves as well as to the opponents of the Holy Prophet. It speaks of the fate of the Israelites when they became a great nation, and of that of their opponents when they were yet weak and oppressed; thus containing clear prophecies of the fate of the Quraish and of the disasters which were in store for the Muslims after their rise to power. It will be seen that the punishment of the Israelites themselves is referred to in the beginning, hence the connection of this chapter with the last is clearly established. The last chapter ended by showing to the Muslims how they could become a great nation, while this begins by calling their attention to the fate of a nation that had risen to greatness and then fallen; the reason of the fall being that it no more followed those principles which had been the cause of its greatness.

Subject-matter.

The opening reference is to the Mi'raj, or the spiritual Ascension of the Holy Prophet, which must be interpreted as referring to the eminence which the Holy Prophet was to achieve and to the greatness to which Islam was to rise. Thus, while the last section of the last chapter gave certain directions to the Muslims, by following which they could become a great nation, here in the very commencement we have in the Holy Prophet's ascension a clear prophecy of the greatness of the Muslim nation. After this reference, the Muslims are warned of the fate of the Israelite nation, which had been raised to eminence before them, but which failed to retain that high position. The second section establishes the immortal principle that every deed has a consequence, the universal law of cause and effect, a right understanding of which alone can raise men to the true dignity which befits humanity. The next two sections contain moral precepts which the Muslims are required to follow. Yet all these high moral teachings only cause the unbelievers to grow harder, as is shown in the fifth section, hence the next section deals with their punishment, whilst it enjoins the faithful to be gentle, even to their opponents. The seventh section refers to the universal law that the mischief-makers have always stood up in opposition to the righteous, and the eighth speaks specifically of the opposition to the Holy Prophet. The next section, however, makes it clear that that opposition would be brought to naught, for falsehood must disappear before the advance of truth. The advent of the Holy Prophet has been here described as the advent of truth itself, or of the Spirit of Truth mentioned by John. The tenth shows how great a miracle is the Holy Qur-án in itself, yet the opponents seek other signs. How trivial are the excuses on which they reject the Holy Qur-án is set forth in the eleventh section, and the justice of their retribution is thus made clear. The last section draws attention to Moses' warning to Pharaoh, the mighty ruler of Egypt, and gives a similar warning through the Holy Qur-án, ending with a brief mention of the absurdity of the doctrine of "sonship," which is dealt with at greater length in the two chapters that follow.

Date of revelation.

The whole of this chapter was revealed at Mecca. The verses which speak of the designs of the Quraish to expel the Holy Prophet (73-76) are regarded by some as having been revealed at Medina, but that conclusion is rather strange, as the revelation on the very face of it is Meccan. The references to the ascension must have been revealed about a year or two before the Flight, while other portions may have been revealed still earlier. The principal portion of it appears to have been an earlier revelation than the group of the seven chapters which precede it. On the whole it would be safe to place it among the early revelations of the last Meccan period.

1410 This journey is generally supposed to refer to the ascension (Mi'raj) of the Holy Prophet, for which see 1441, where the nature of the ascension is discussed. If the reference here is to the mi'raj, the significance underlying it is the future triumph of the cause of the Holy Prophet. But the reference may as well be to the Holy Prophet's coming Flight to Medina. It was at night that the Holy Prophet left Mecca (Ibn-i-Hishám). The remote mosque would in this case mean the Prophet's mosque which was to be built at Medina, or Medina itself, as the Sacred Mosque stands for Mecca. Or it may signify Jerusalem, the significance being that the Prophet shall inherit all the blessings of the Israelite prophets, including the Holy Land.

1411 Rodwell says that this verse has no connection with the previous one, but this is not the case. The first verse really prophesies a great future for Islam and the Muslims, while this warns them of the pitfalls of greatness, citing the instance of a nation that had been made to rise to eminence before them.

1412 Compare 5:78: "Those who disbelieved from among the children of Israel were cursed by the tongue of David and Jesus son of Mary." Jerusalem was destroyed twice as a punishment for the transgressions of the Jews, once by the Babylonians, and again by the Romans. See Jesus' warning in Matt. 23:38: "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate," and Luke 21:24: "And Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles," and various other like references. The Psalms are also replete with warnings.

1413 Verse 5 relates the destruction of the temple at Jerusalem and the murder, imprisonment, and banishment of the Jews by the Babylonians in the year 588 B.C., while v. 6 relates to the return of the Jews and rebuilding of the temple under Zerubbabel, and to their subsequent prosperity. This is the turn of fortune spoken of here.

وَالْأَحْسَابِ ۚ وَكُلَّ شَيْءٍ فَصَّلْنَاهُ
تَفْصِيلًا ۝

1414 This verse describes the destruction of the temple a second time, which was accomplished by the Romans under Titus. The personal pronouns refer in all cases to the enemy, whoever he might be, and by no means indicate that the same enemy who first destroyed the temple would do so on the second occasion.

1415 This relates to the advent of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, when the Israelites were again given a chance to reform, but they are told that if they return to mischief they will again be punished. When the Holy Prophet came to Medina, the Jews were at first in a conciliatory mood, but their enmity increased day by day, until they joined hands with the enemies of the Holy Prophet, devising plans to take his very life. The result was, they were punished as they had been previously.

1416 The night stands for the darkness of ignorance and unbelief (see 344), and the passing away of the night indicates that ignorance will vanish and the light of Islam will take its place.

13 And We have made every man's actions to cling to his neck,¹⁴¹⁷ and We will bring forth to him on the resurrection day a book which he will find wide open :

16 And when We wish to destroy a town, We send Our commandment¹⁴²⁰ to the people of it who lead easy lives, but they transgress therein; thus the word proves true against it, so We destroy it with utter destruction.

مُتَرَفِفًا فَتَقْضُوا قِيَامَهَا حَقَّ عَلَيْهَا
الْقَوْلَ فَذَمَّرْنَاهَا تَدْمِيرًا ۝

1417a Note that according to this verse the reckoning of a man's actions shall be his own work on the day of resurrection. This statement throws a flood of light on the nature of that reckoning and the wazn and the mizán (7 : 8; 55 : 7), showing clearly that it is nothing but a complete manifestation of the effects of the deeds done in this life.

1418 This verse strikes at the root of the doctrine of atonement. The burden of the sins of one man cannot be taken away by another, for, as already stated, the effect of each man's actions clings to himself. This is in perfect accordance with the laws of nature. Nor does the verse contradict what is said in 29 : 13 : "And most certainly they shall carry their own burdens and other burdens with their own burdens," which refers to those who mislead others; they shall therefore carry the burden of their own errors as well as the burden of misleading others, while those others must also answer for their own errors. For the significance of bearer of burden see 851.

1419 The chastisement spoken of is that which is inflicted for breaking the law that is given, but only after it has been promulgated. Hence it is stated here that no one is chastised unless the truth has first been preached to him through a prophet.

1420 The meaning of these words is often misunderstood. Allah does not command people to transgress, for it is plainly stated in 7 : 28, "Allah does not enjoin indecency," and the seed from which—if the child is properly taught this lesson—springs the great obligation of obedience to all constituted authority. Hence it is that obedience to parents is given such an important place in the moral code of Islam.

1422 إخوان الشياطين signifies the brethren, friends, and followers of the devil, and means evil-doers. While enjoining charity, the Holy Qur-án also draws attention to economy, thus indicating the golden mean.

1423 The hoping for mercy from the Lord means standing in need of the bounty of the Lord, i.e. not having anything to give to the needy. In that case one should still speak to him gently and not chide him with harshness, so that if the difficulty cannot be relieved, one's behaviour should at least be kind. A saying of the Holy Prophet declares a gentle word spoken to a fellow-man to be a deed of charity.

1424 By the shackling the hand to the neck is meant being niggardly in one's expenses, and by stretching it forth to its utmost extent, being so profuse as to waste away all one's substance. The verse supplies a general rule regarding the mean to be adopted in one's ordinary expenses, and thus inculcates the duty of economy.

Moral Precepts

31-33. Infanticide, fornication, and murder forbidden. 34. Care of orphans and fulfilment of obligations enjoined. 35. Honesty to be observed in dealings. 36-38. Meekness and humility commended. 39-40. Polytheism condemned.

31 And do not kill your children for fear of poverty; We give them sustenance and yourselves (too); surely to kill them is a great wrong.¹⁴²⁵

32 And go not nigh to fornication; surely it is an indecency and evil is the way.¹⁴²⁶

1425 Infanticide, in the case of daughters, was met with among the Arabs, because the females could not go out to war and thus procure for themselves, by means of plunder, their means of subsistence (Rz). But the civilized Christian countries stand more in need of this admonition than the Arabs of the time of ignorance, because the tendency is growing day by day among them either to limit the number of children or to totally dispense with offspring, and this may be accomplished by means other than that of strangling or burying children alive. The decreasing birth-rate of the more civilized countries is a clear sign of this tendency.

1426 This is another evil which is becoming prevalent with the growth of civilization. The Qur-ān not only forbids fornication but enjoins men not to go near it, thus avoiding all those opportunities which are likely to tempt one to fall into the evil.

1427 This verse contains nothing inconsistent with what is said in 2 : 178. The words he is aided probably indicate that as the government is bound to aid him by bringing the murderer within reach of the law, the heir should not take the law into his own hands.

1428 If this injunction were followed, all society gossip would immediately cease, thereby relieving many an innocent man and woman of the heart-burnings which he or she suffers on account of evil and unfounded reports. The verse also forbids entering into discussions without accurate knowledge, or proffering uncertain opinion. In fact, peace and contentment would reign in society, instead of mutual strife and hatred, if the injunction were observed.

1429 Allah's purpose in repeating arguments and signs in the Qur-án is clearly to make them mindful, but the more they are reminded, the greater is their aversion to it, so that every fresh revelation of the Qur-án, instead of reminding them, becomes the occasion of their greater aversion: thus it adds to their aversion. It is really not the active cause, but the occasion of the increase of their aversion. This is further proof of the correctness of what is said in 24.

1430 That is, they would have prevailed against the Muslims with the help of their gods, because they thought that their gods interceded for them with Allah; the Muslims, being the rejecters of idols, could not have found access to the Divine Being, and accordingly could not have found help from Him to prevail against their enemy. Or the reference may be to the spiritual advantages which access to the Source of purity should bring to a man. If the idols could indeed give them access to the Divine Being, the idol-worshippers should long before have risen above all impurities.

43 Glory be to Him and exalted be He in high exaltation above what they say.

1480A The whole universe is here mentioned as declaring the glory of Allah. Tasbīḥ is synonymous with tanzīh, and means the declaring God to be free from every imperfection and impurity, or from every thing derogatory to His dignity (LL). This declaration need not be with the tongue and in words; in fact, the very dependence of the whole creation on the Creator and its consequent imperfection is a glorification of the Creator.

1481 This hidden barrier is nothing but that erected by their own aversion, as plainly indicated in v. 41. Allah, according to that verse, sends the Qur-án to remind them, but because of their aversion to it a barrier is imposed between them and it.

1482 The context is alone sufficient to dispel illusion where verses like this are supposed to indicate that those who reject the Qur-án are compelled to do so by Allah Himself. The placing of the coverings on the hearts and heaviness into the ears of the unbelievers is no doubt attributed to Allah as the prime cause of all things, but how this covering or heaviness is directly brought about is plainly indicated in the latter part of this very verse. It is because they do not even listen to the mention of Allah, and fly in aversion from His word, that there follow a heaviness in their ears and a covering over their hearts. Allah brings this about, but He brings it about on account of the condition of their own hearts and ears. This is made very clear in 7: 179: "They have hearts with which they do not understand and they have eyes with which they do not see and they have ears with which they do not hear."

1433 The Arabs denied a life after death, giving as an argument that they would be reduced to decayed particles, and that hence there was no possibility of their being raised to life again. They are told that a life after death must follow even if they could change themselves into stones. And the spiritual life with which they were quickened by the Holy Prophet, notwithstanding their hard-heartedness, so that "they were like rocks, rather worse in hardness" (2: 74), afforded a clear proof of the fulfilment of the statement made here.

1434 The shaking of the head is to indicate one's disbelief in a thing. The answer, maybe it has drawn nigh, refers to the spiritual resuscitation of Arabia, which was now to be accomplished through the agency of the Holy Prophet, as an indication of the greater resurrection relating to the hereafter. The next verse makes it clear: Then shall you obey Him, giving Him praise. Only ten years after this the whole of Arabia resounded with Divine praises.

1435 The Muslims are here enjoined to be very kind when they speak to the unbelievers. It is related that when the Muslims complained to the Holy Prophet that they were abused by the idolaters, they were told to be kind and not to retaliate (JB). The breadth of mind disclosed in this teaching is unsurpassed. The believers had suffered the cruellest tortures at the hands of the unbelievers, including scoffing and abuse. Not content with this treatment, steps were now being taken to sweep Islam out of existence. Observe the treatment Islam enjoins in return for all these persecutions and abuses: Say to My servants (i.e. the Muslims) that they speak that which is best. And why? Because it was the devil (and this word often signifies the mischief-makers) that was causing these quarrels. The words evidently imply

54 Your Lord knows you best; He will have mercy on you if He pleases, or He will chastise you if He pleases: and We have not sent you as being in charge of them.¹⁴³⁶ that these dissensions were only transient; the two parties would again become united. Or by 'ibādī may be meant the opponents (Rz), especially the Jews and the Christians, because of the reference to David and the Psalms in what follows. The meaning in this case is that the opponents should cease reviling Islam, for they would soon have reason to regret this.

1436 It should be noted that in this verse, as elsewhere, mercy is mentioned first, thus showing that Divine mercy has precedence over Divine retribution. The opponents are therefore given greater hope of mercy than fear of retribution.

1437 By saying that some of the prophets are made to excel others, the excellence of the Holy Prophet over others is implied, and David is specially mentioned, because, as stated in the Psalms, he prayed for the utter destruction of his enemies, whereas the above two verses show the Holy Prophet was enjoined to deal mercifully with his opponents. As regards David's invoking curses and destruction on his enemies, a few examples from the Psalms will be sufficient: "Break their teeth, O God . . . let them melt away as waters . . . let them be as cut in pieces . . . let every one of them pass away" (Ps. 58: 6-8). "Be not merciful to any wicked transgressors" (Ps. 59: 5). "Consume them in wrath, consume them that they may not be" (Ps. 59: 13).

1438 This and the previous verse seem to refer to the worship of prophets, saints, and rabbis by the Christians and the Jews. Explaining the words whom they call upon, JB adds, as the angels and Jesus and his mother and Ezra. These divinities, it is argued, themselves hoped for Divine mercy and feared His retribution; the nearer a person to the Divine Being, the greater was his hope of mercy and his fear of chastisement.

1439 It is a law to which history bears evident testimony. Populous towns and cities of

Or, signs 59 And nothing could have hindered Us that We should send communications except that the ancients rejected them;¹⁴⁴⁰ and We gave to Samood the she-camel—a manifest sign—but on her account they did injustice, and We do not send signs but to make (men) fear.

وَمَا مَنَعَنَا أَنْ نُرْسِلَ بِالْآيَاتِ إِلَّا أَنْ كَذَّبَ بِهَا الْأَوَّلُونَ وَآتَيْنَا ثَمُودَ النَّاقَةَ مُبْصِرَةً فَظَلَمُوا بِهَا وَمَا نُرْسِلُ بِالْآيَاتِ إِلَّا تَخْوِيفًا one age are the ruins of another. This law which worked in old days operates even now. The hand of time continues to devastate old habitations, while new ones are erected in their place.

1440 This verse has been much misunderstood, but, as in so many other cases, the misunderstanding arises from careless or ignorant observation. The word ayat, as shown in 67, signifies both a message or a communication and a sign, the former significance being the one that is generally applicable unless there is something in the context to indicate that the latter significance must be adopted. As Divine communications were always rejected at first, that significance may be adopted here, the meaning being that the only thing which could possibly be a hindrance in the continuance of Divine communications to one generation after another would be the rejection of it by the first generation, but that consideration never hindered the Divine Being from sending communications to a later generation. The same is the significance if the alternative meaning given in the margin is adopted. That this verse does not deny the sending of signs is conclusively proved by the fact that it concludes with the statement that signs are sent to make men fear, and by the very next verse affirming in the clearest language that even now We cause them to fear, which could not have been done otherwise than by sending signs. The meaning is plain: If anything could ever have hindered Us from sending signs, that would have been their rejection by a former people, but We have always been Merciful, and not even rejection by one people of Our signs hindered Us from sending signs to a later generation.

1440a Ihdāḥ, or encompassing, is used in the Holy Qur-án in the sense of holding in grasp as it were about to destroy; and by the people are here evidently meant the opponents of the Holy Prophet, the prophetic reference being to their utter discomfiture, which was to be brought about by the conquest of Mecca (Rz).

1441 Most commentators agree that the reference here is to the vision of Ascension (Bkh, Rz), which gave the Holy Prophet promises of great success after his flight, because so the vision of Ascension to heaven is to be interpreted (see 1410). There has been a difference of opinion among the learned as to whether the Holy Prophet's ascension was bodily or spiritual; the majority adhere to the first view, but among those who hold the latter view there are personages of sound opinion, such as 'A'yesah and Mu'aviah. In view of the plain words of the Qur-án, however, which refer to the ascension as being the vision which We showed you, the opinion of the majority must be rejected. The Qur-án on several occasions mentions even visions without describing them as visions. But when it is plainly called a vision, not the least reason exists to question its nature. The sayings of the Holy Prophet do not indeed say whether it was a vision or not, but the circumstances related clearly show it to be a vision. Thus in a report received through Sharik, it is stated that the angel came to him:

في ليلة أخرى فيما يرى قلبه ر تمام عينه ولا ينام قلبه i.e. on another night when his heart saw (things) and his eyes slept but his heart did not sleep; and the concluding words of this report are واستيقظ وهو في مسجد الحرام i.e. and he awoke and he was in the Sacred Mosque (Bkh, kitāb ul Tauhīd). In another report the words describing the condition in which he was at the time of ascension are بيننا أنا بين النائم واليقظان i.e. whilst I was in a state between that of one sleeping and one awake. In fact, it is quite true that he was not asleep; he was in a vision though not in a dream, but at the same time it was not a corporeal ascension. He was actually carried to the Holy Presence, and he was shown great wonders, but it was in spirit that he was carried, and it was with the spiritual eye that he saw those wonders, not in body and with the physical eye, for things spiritual can only be seen with the spiritual eye. And this vision had an important significance. He saw it at a time when his condition was, to human seeming, one of utmost helplessness, and he was shown that a great future lay before him. His opponents, as usual, disbelieved in such visions, and laughed at them.

1442 The cursed tree is the tree of zaqqūm (Rgh). According to the Holy Qur-ān, every good action is a good tree and every evil action is an evil tree. The peculiarity about the word zaqqūm (for the significance of which see 2111) is that it is made of the first two and the last letters of the sentence ذق انك انت العزيز الكريم meaning, Taste, for you to be sure are the mighty, the generous, with which those in hell shall be addressed (44:49). One explanation of the cursed tree being a trial for the unbelievers is given in 2111. But the statement is made here in contrast with the Prophet's vision, and both in fact have a deeper significance. As the Prophet's vision signified his future triumph and gave an indication of the greatness to which Islam would rise, the statement made elsewhere that the tree of zaqqūm was the food of sinners (44:43, 44) contained a prophecy of the discomfiture of the enemies of Islam, telling them that a deadly food was in store for them. It was these two prophecies that the opponents laughed to scorn, hence they were a trial for them. And the reason why the vision and the statement about the cursed tree are conjoined is thus evident. The triumph of Islam and the discomfiture of the enemy went hand in hand.

63 He said: Be gone! for whoever of them will follow you, then surely hell is your recompense, a full recompense:

64 And beguile whomsoever of them you can with your voice, and collect against them¹⁴⁴³ your forces riding and on loot,¹⁴⁴⁴ and share with them in wealth and children,¹⁴⁴⁵ and hold out promises to them; and the devil makes not promises to them but to deceive:

65 Surely (as for) My servants, you have no authority over them;¹⁴⁴⁶ and your Lord is sufficient as a Protector.

66 Your Lord is He who speeds the ships for you in the sea that you may seek of His grace; surely He is ever Merciful to you.

67 And when distress afflicts you in the sea, away go those whom you call on except He; but when He brings you safe to the land, you turn aside; and man is ever ungrateful.¹⁴⁴⁷

1443 You say جلب جلبة ثم امكث meaning it thundered and then refrained from raining of a coward who threatens and then is silent (LL). The devil is therefore here compared to a coward who comes with a great show but little real force, and who, if shown the least resistance, retreats at every step. According to I'Ab, every inviter who invites (others) to the disobedience of Allah is a satan uttering the cry (JB).

1444 The forces of the devil are no other than the evil-doers, those going quickly into evil being likened to riders, and those who walk slowly in their evil course being likened to footmen. According to JB, by the devil's horse and foot is meant every fast rider and slow walker in disobedience.

1445 The sharing of the devil in wealth signifies everything spent unlawfully or acquired unlawfully; and sharing in children is in reference to committing fornication, which results in illegitimate births (JB). It is for this reason that the expression روح منه (4: 171), spoken about Jesus Christ, is translated by some as meaning a soul from Allah, in the sense that the devil had no share in him, the ultimate significance of the words thus being the clearance of Mary from the charge of fornication which the Jews brought against her, as is referred to in the Qur-án elsewhere in the words: "And their uttering a grievous calumny about Mary" (4: 156). ●

1446 By My servants are to be understood all men, for as the devil himself is made to acknowledge in 14: 22: "I had no authority over you." See 1308.

1447 A true picture is drawn here of human nature, which turns to Allah in affliction but forgets Him when relief comes. The words are spoken here in reference to the Quraish, who, when the famine and other minor distresses afflicted them, prayed to Allah alone for their removal, but went back to their idols when they found themselves free from affliction.

Or, bring

69 Or, do you feel secure that He will (not) take you back into it another time, then send on you a fierce gale and thus drown you on account of your ungratefulness? Then you shall not find any aider against Us in the matter.¹⁴⁴⁹

70 And surely We have dignified the children of Adam, and We carry them in the land and the sea, and We have given them of the good things, and We have made them to excel, by a (high) degree of excellence, most of those whom We have created.

1448 Hāṣib primarily means a thrower or peltor of stones, and رَجَحَ حَاصِبٌ signifies a violent wind that raises pebbles (LL). Hence hāṣib comes to mean a punishment from Allah (TA-LL). The word is also applied to a cloud raining hail.

1449 These two verses remind the opponents of the Holy Prophet in clear words that though they may for a while escape the punishment, yet it is certain to overtake them. The distress is here likened to the sea. The heavy gale of which they are here warned blew on them on land and led to the precipitate flight of an army of ten thousand which was besieging Medina in what is known as the battle of the Confederates (Ibn-i-Hishām), because the Quraish, determined to deal a death-blow to Islam, had come with all their allies.

1450 The meaning is that the righteous shall follow the righteous leaders and the wicked shall follow their wicked leaders. The word imām, or leader, here, is interpreted in several other ways, meaning scripture, prophet, law, book of deeds. The last of these significances also suits the context, as the books of deeds are spoken of in the following words; elsewhere, also, the Holy Qur-ān says: Every nation shall be called to its book (45: 28).

1451 This book is the one mentioned in v. 14, i.e. the effect of one's deeds, which shall be brought before every one in palpable form on the resurrection day.

1452 This verse gives us the guiding rule in determining what hellish life is and when it begins. We are here told in plain words that those who remain blind to truth in this life remain blind in the life after death, which shows in the first place that it is here that a hellish life begins with spiritual blindness; and secondly, that the hell of the next life is also a blindness. This is corroborated by what is said in 57:13, that the faithful shall have a light on that day, and the hypocrites shall ask for that light from them, but they shall not be allowed to have it, and this will be their torment.

1453 كَادَ يَفْعَلُ كَذَا means he was near doing it as well as he purposed or intended to do it. For the latter significance, which I adopt here as suiting the context, see LL, who quotes Lth, M, and other authorities, in the article Kaud. The interpretation adopted by Rodwell and Palmer, they had well-nigh beguiled thee, and a somewhat similar translation given by Sale, is wrong, as it contradicts the statement made in the very next verse, according to which the Holy Prophet had already been so firmly established in the path of truth that he was not even near to inclining to them a little.

The commentators think the allusion to be to an incident which happened at Medina long after the revelation of this chapter. On the contrary, there is a clear and well-authenticated incident regarding the attempt of the Quraish at Mecca which, both as regards the offer of the Quraish and the firm reply of the Holy Prophet, exactly fits in with the statement of this verse and the one that follows. The Christian annotators are ever ready to distort the words, so as to make them allude to the supposed "lapse" of the Holy Prophet, but I leave that incident for discussion in its proper place (2382). The incident which I think is alluded to here is given in Ibn-i-Mishām. The chief men of the Quraish met in an assembly and invited the Prophet, saying to him that they were prepared to gather for him wealth or to make him their king if only he left them and their idols to do as they liked. The Prophet's reply was that he wanted neither of these things, but that it was for their welfare that he asked them to give up evil ways. On an earlier occasion, when a deputation of the Quraish went to Abū Tālib, the Prophet's uncle, to prevail upon him to dissuade the Prophet from speaking of their idols, and Abū Tālib told the Prophet that he too was unable to defend him against the Quraish, his reply was: "If they place the sun in my right hand and the moon in my left and ask me to give up my mission, I will not give it up until the truth prevails or I myself perish in the attempt."

1454 The word iz-an (then or in that case) refers to the concluding words of the last verse. The verse makes it clear that notwithstanding all the attempts of his opponents the Holy Prophet never inclined to them in the least. This is quite true in the light of the events narrated above, but, supposing for the sake of argument that there is a reference here to the alleged "lapse," the plain words of the Holy Qur-án negative any lapse, for the lapse should have been followed by a double punishment, which never happened.

1455 When the opponents failed to make the Prophet swerve from the path of truth, they planned to expel him from the land, though they were told beforehand that in that case, i.e. in case they expelled him from Mecca, they themselves should not stay behind him but for a short time. This prophecy speaks of the conquest of Mecca by the Holy Prophet in self-evident terms.

1456 It is stated here to be the Divine law, with regard to those who expel their prophets from their homes, that they themselves are destroyed in their turn. And this law, the verse states, would not be changed in the case of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him!

1457 From the declining of the sun to sunset are two prayers, i.e. the zuhr and 'asr, or the afternoon and later afternoon prayers, while from sunset till darkness there are two others, i.e. the maghrib and the 'ishá, or the sunset prayer and the prayer of nightfall, and the fifth is the morning prayer, which is called here the Qur-án-ul-fajr, or the morning Qur-án or morning recitation. Thus this verse mentions all the five prayers.

1458 Tahajjud is derived from hajada, which means he slept in the night, and also he was wakeful in the night (LA-LL). The addition of by it, meaning by means of prayer, shows the latter significance to be the one meant here. In Islamic religious terminology tahajjud invariably denotes the prayer said after rising from sleep, usually after midnight.

1459 Another clear promise that the very man whom the opponents had planned to expel from their city as a helpless man was to be raised to a position of eminent dignity. As time passes on the Prophet is ever rising to positions of greater and greater glory, and it is impossible to conceive of the resplendent glory to which he would rise in the resurrection.

1460 By the entering is meant the entry into the new place, i.e. Medina, after his flight, and by going forth, the flight from Mecca (JB, KI).

1461 The coming of the Prophet is here spoken of as the coming of the Truth, in reference to the prophecy in John 16: 13 as to the coming of the "Spirit of Truth" to guide men into all truth: "Howbeit when he, the Spirit of Truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth; for he shall not speak of himself, but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak; and he will show you things to come." No one has appeared in the world after Jesus Christ answering this description except the Holy Prophet Muhammad. Of him the Holy Qur-ān says in one of the earliest chapters: "Nor does he speak out of desire; it is naught but revelation that is revealed" (53: 3, 4). And he it was who showed the things to come, his prophecies affording the clearest evidence of his truth. And again, he it was who claimed that he was the truth that was to come. And the disappearance of falsehood from Arabia before his eyes showed the truth of his assertion.

The vanishing of the falsehood is here spoken of in the past tense to indicate the certainty of its occurrence. Falsehood finally disappeared from Mecca when the Prophet re-entered it as a conqueror, and as the House of the Holy One was cleared of the idols, the Prophet recited this verse, the truth has come and falsehood vanished (Bkh), thus showing that he understood it to contain the prophecy of the conquest of Mecca.

1462 Because in rejecting it they were rejecting the remedy of their diseases and depriving themselves of the mercy sent through it.

1463 So He will make it clear by bringing about a distinction between the righteous and the wicked.

1464 For the word ruh, meaning inspiration or revelation, see 653. Here, before this verse as well as after it, the Qur-ân is the only topic of discussion, and therefore the context shows clearly that the question of the unbelievers is not about the soul of man, for which the proper word is nafs, but about the Qur-ân itself, i.e. the revelation or the spirit.

1465 The meaning is that if We take it away there is none who can bring it back to you, and thus be your protector as against Us.

1466 For the uniqueness of the Holy Qur-ân see 36. It may be noted that out of the four places in which the unbelievers are challenged to produce the like of the Quranic revelation this is the only one where the jinn and the men are spoken of together; in all the other places the shuhadd, or the leaders, take the place of the jinn. Now the word jinn (plural jinn) is used in Arabic language as signifying a man acting with penetrative energy in his affair, as is clearly maintained by Tabrezi on Ham: thus, reading this verse along with the other verses bearing the same import, it becomes certain that the word jinn in this verse conveys the same significance as the word shuhadâ in the other verses. This settles conclusively that the word jinn is used in the Holy Qur-ân for evil-disposed men.

1467 Magal is synonymous with wasf (Rgh), and thus a description of anything may be called its magal, though its application to a description by way of comparison or a parable is more general. It is here affirmed that all that contributes to the moral and spiritual welfare of man is made distinct in the Holy Qur-ân.

94 And nothing prevented people from believing when the guidance came to them except that they said : What ! has Allah raised up a mortal to be an apostle ?

مُطْمَئِنِّينَ لَنَزَّلْنَا عَلَيْهِمْ مِنَ السَّمَاءِ
مَلَكًا رَّسُولًا ۝

1468 The signs demanded in this and the following three verses relate to the promises made for the righteous and the threats of punishment for the wicked, as given in the Qur-án, and they were no doubt fulfilled in their time. Gardens with fountains were given to the Prophet and his followers in the conquest of Mesopotamia ; the heaven came down upon the rejecters, in the form of famine and distresses, the angels came down in battles and wrought havoc among them, and lastly, the great Divine manifestation took place in the conquest of Mecca, which is termed the coming of Allah. The ascension to heaven had also taken place, and the Prophet had brought to them a book, but all this was accomplished gradually, as is the Divine law in the case of apostles.

1469 The answer to all the demands of the unbelievers is that the Prophet was only a mortal apostle, the import of these words being that all those prophecies which he had made regarding his own great future or the discomfiture of his enemies would be brought to fulfilment gradually and in their time, and in the manner in which all prophecies are fulfilled, according to what has been the Divine law of the fulfilment of prophecies in the case of other mortal apostles.

98 This is their retribution because they disbelieved in Our communications and said: What! when we shall have become bones and decayed particles, shall we then indeed be raised up into a new creation?

99 Do they not consider that Allah, Who created the heavens and the earth, is able to create their like, and He has appointed for them a doom about which there is no doubt? but the unjust do not consent to aught but denying.

1470 These nine signs are detailed in 935, where it is shown that they agree with the signs mentioned in Exodus. These signs are the rod, the shining hand, the drought, the loss of fruits, the widespread death, the locusts, the lice, the frogs, and the blood.

وَيَخْرُجُونَ لِلْآذَانِ يَسْكُونُونَ وَابْتَغُوا لَهَا خَشَعًا ۝

1471 Istafazza-hu means he unsettled him, and also he deceived him so as to cast him into destruction, and he slew him (TA-LI). Al-arḍ here means the face of the earth, not the land of Egypt.

1472 By the land is meant the land promised to the Israelites, to settle in which Moses asked Pharaoh to allow his people to leave Egypt.

1473 The latter promise here relates to the promise given to Moses for the raising up of another prophet like him. This is corroborated by what is said in the next verse about the revelation of the Qur-án, which came with truth, i.e. in fulfilment of a true promise. By the rolling up of the Israelites is meant that they would make way for another people.

1474 Allah's revealing the Qur-án with truth indicates His revealing it in fulfilment of prophecies which He had uttered by the mouths of His prophets; and the coming with truth signifies its actually fulfilling all those prophecies.

1475 The promise spoken of here is no doubt the promise given to the former prophets regarding the advent of the Holy Prophet; and by knowledge in the previous verse is also meant knowledge of the prophecies.

Ar. thy.

110 Say: Call upon Allah or call upon the Beneficent God;¹⁴⁷⁶ whichever you call upon, He has the best names; and do not utter your prayer with a very raised voice nor be silent with regard to it, and seek a way between these.¹⁴⁷⁷

111 And say: (All) praise is due to Allah, Who has not taken a son and Who has not a partner in the kingdom, and Who has not a helper, to save Him from disgrace; and proclaim His greatness, magnifying (Him).

قُلْ اَدْعُوا اللَّهَ اَوْ اَدْعُوا الرَّحْمٰنَ اِنَّمَا
تَاْتَدْعُوْهُ اَسْمَاءُ الْاِحْسٰنِ وَلَا
تَجْهَرُ لَهُمْ فَاُولٰٓئِكَ هُمُ الْاَوْبٰتُ
بَيْنَ ذٰلِكَ سَبِيْلًا ۝
وَقُلِ الْحَمْدُ لِلّٰهِ الَّذِيْ لَمْ يَخْلُقْ
وَلَمْ يَكُنْ لَهٗ شَرِيْكٌ فِى الْمُلْكِ وَ
لَمْ يَكُنْ لَهٗ وَلِیٌّ مِنَ الدَّلٰلِ وَكَرِهَ

1476 The name Rahmān, or the Beneficent God, seems to have been particularly objectionable to the Arabs, who objected to its use even so late as the truce at Hudaibiyyah, when the Quraish would not allow 'Ali to write بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ and insisted that he should commence the writing with بِاسْمِكَ اللّٰهُمَّ. The Christians also do not recognize Allah to be Rahmān, because the attribute of rahmāniyyat signifies that Allah shows mercy to His creatures without their having done anything to deserve it, while the Christian doctrine of atonement is based on the belief that Allah cannot show mercy to His creatures because He must be just; an error due to the misapprehension that Allah cannot be Just and Merciful at one and the same time. No doubt a mere judge may be unable to show mercy, but Allah is more than a judge. He is a judge and cannot be unjust, but He is also the Master, and therefore Merciful to the sinners. To show mercy is not synonymous with being unjust.

1477 The two extremes with regard to prayer are its utterance in a very loud voice or not uttering any word at all with the tongue, which some people do on the assumption that Allah knows what is in their hearts. The Muslims are told to take the middle course between these two extremes.

CHAPTER XVIII

THE CAVE

(Al-Kahf)

REVEALED AT MECOA

(12 sections and 110 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. A warning to Christians.
- Sec. 2, 3. The dwellers of the cave.
- Sec. 4. The Qur-án as a guidance.
- Sec. 5. A parable.
- Sec. 6. The guilty are brought to judgment.
- Sec. 7. Their helplessness.
- Sec. 8. Warning is disregarded.
- Sec. 9, 10. Moses' travels in search of knowledge.
- Sec. 11. The two-horned one, and the Gog and Magog.
- Sec. 12. Christian nations.

The Title.

It will be seen from the above abstract that this chapter deals entirely with the Christian religion and the Christian nations. Not only is this evident from a perusal of, especially, the first and the last sections of the chapter, but the Holy Prophet is also related to have said that the first ten verses, and according to some the last ten verses, should be recited as a protection against the great tribulation of the latter days. Why is this chapter called the Cave, then? The cave has, in fact, much to do with the growth and progress of the Christian religion, because the distinctive characteristic of its early history is its institution of monkery, which required for its practice such corners of solitude as caves. And even the story of the Dwellers of the Cave may be interpreted as the story of the Christian religion, whose first condition was one of dwelling in caves in perfect seclusion, cut off from all connection with men, but whose last condition is quite contrary to it, so much so that its votaries have now devoted their entire energies to the betterment of their worldly condition, wholly neglecting the hereafter. They thus follow a way entirely opposite to that of the early Fathers of Christianity. And hence it is that this chapter, which, as it were, gives the whole history of Christianity, deals in its beginning with the connection of Christianity with the cave, i.e. with its institution of monkery, and at its close with its worldly occupations, which is its ultimate condition. Reference to both these aspects is contained in the epithet Aṣḥāb-ul-kahf-i-warraqīm, i.e. the fellows of the cave and the inscription (see 1481).

Connection with the previous chapter.

The last chapter dealt with the Israelites and the punishment which they twice suffered. The second occasion was the one connected with the rejection of Jesus Christ, and hence the last chapter was brought to a close by pointing out the erroneousness of attributing a son to the Divine Being, while that very doctrine is denounced at the commencement of this chapter, thereby clearly establishing the connection of the two. Moreover, as Christianity is really an outgrowth of the Judaistic religion, the mention of the one necessitates the mention of the other.

الْكِتَابَ وَلَمْ يَجْعَلْ لَهُ عِوَجًا

Subject-matter.

The chapter opens with a plain denunciation of the Christian doctrine of the sonship of Jesus, and then refers to the earthly "embellishments" which hinder the Christian nations from accepting the truth; yet, we are told, it was their ancestors who cut off all worldly connections for the sake of their religion. The second and the third sections deal with a certain story of Christian youths who sought refuge in a cave, but the story has evidently beneath it a deeper significance, and contains prophetic reference to the later history of Christianity itself. The fourth section shows that, the day of Christianity being over, true guidance was now offered in the Holy Qur-án. The fifth illustrates in a parable that the Christians shall reject the truth because of their greater power and wealth. The next two sections deal with the bringing of the guilty to judgment and their ultimate helplessness, while the one succeeding indicates how warning is disregarded when first given. The ninth and tenth sections take us back to the story of Moses, whose travels in search of knowledge make him discover a man of God far superior in knowledge to himself. If the story be taken as speaking of the Mi'rāj, or ascension, of Moses, it may be interpreted as affording a contrast between the narrow limits of the Mosaic dispensation and the universal nature and the high ideal of the Islamic dispensation. The eleventh section speaks of Darius I, the two-horned one of Daniel's vision, and of his great efforts against the two tribes known as Gog and Magog, the real object being a prophetic allusion to their latter-day representatives. The last section of the chapter again refers in plain language not only to the basic doctrine of the Christian religion, but also to the great ingenuity in manufactures of the nations professing that religion, whose labour is lost in this world's life, and thus draws a very true picture of the present condition of the Christian nations.

Date of revelation.

The whole of this chapter was revealed at Mecca, and most probably belongs to the Middle Meccan period, which may approximately be taken as extending from 4 to 8 B.H.

1478 The following saying of the Holy Prophet, which is treated as authentic in the most trustworthy collections of hadis, conclusively settles what is meant by the appearance of the Antichrist in the latter days. The report is to the following effect: Abū Dardā relates that the Prophet (may peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) said: He who remembers the first ten verses of the chapter entitled the "Cave" is protected from the tribulation of the Dajjāl (Antichrist). Shi'ba mentions the last ten verses of the "Cave" instead of the first ten (Muslim).

Or, main-tainer (of truth).

2 Rightly directing,^{1478a} that he might give warning of severe punishment from Him and give good news to the believers who do good that they shall have a goodly reward,

3 Staying in it for ever ;

4 And warn those who say : Allah has taken a son.

5 They have no knowledge of it, nor had their fathers ; a grievous word it is that comes out of their mouths ; they speak nothing but a lie.

Ar. thou
wilt.
Ar. thyself.

6 Then maybe you will kill yourself with grief, sorrowing after them, if they do not believe in this announcement,¹⁴⁷⁹

7 Surely We have made whatever is on the earth an embellishment for it, so that We may try them (as to) which of them is best in works.

قِيَمًا لِّئِنْ رَبًّا شَدِيدَ الْعِقَابِ لَذُنَّةٌ
وَيُبَشِّرُ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ الَّذِينَ يَعْمَلُونَ
الصَّالِحَاتِ أَنَّ لَهُمْ أَجْرًا حَسَنًا ۝
مَّا كُنْتُمْ فِيهِ وَابَدًا ۝
وَيُنذِرَ الَّذِينَ قَالُوا اتَّخَذَ اللَّهُ وَلَدًا ۝
مَّا لَهُمْ بِهِ مِنْ عِلْمٍ وَلَا يَتْلُوهُمْ عَنْ كُنُوتِ
كَلِمَةٍ تُخْرِجُهُمْ مِنْ أَفْوَاهِهِمْ أَنْ يَقُولُوا
إِنَّا كَذِبًا ۝
فَلَمَّا كَفَّ بِأَنفُسِكُمْ عَلَىٰ آثَارِهِمْ
إِنْ لَمْ يُؤْمَرُوا بِهَذَا الْخُبْرَةِ
سَمِعُوا ۝
إِنَّا جَعَلْنَا مَا عَلَى الْأَرْضِ زِينَةً لِّهَا
لِنَبْلُوَهُمْ أَهُمْ أَحْسَنُ عَمَلًا ۝

Now, according to this saying, the opening or the concluding ten verses of this chapter are a special safeguard against the Antichrist. If we now look for the subject specially dealt with in these verses, it will be found that both in the first and the last sections of this chapter the Christian doctrine of the divinity of Jesus is condemned. In the first section a warning is given to those who say Allah has taken to Himself a son, in the last to those who take human beings for gods, and both these doctrines are the fundamental doctrines of the Christian religion as now preached. The Holy Qur-án does not speak of the appearance of Dajjál, or Antichrist, anywhere, but the Prophet's saying quoted above plainly shows that what is called the Antichrist in the sayings of the Holy Prophet is the same as the erroneous Christian doctrine of the sonship and divinity of Jesus Christ as dealt with in the Holy Qur-án. Christianity in its present form, being opposed to the true teaching of Christ, is thus the only Antichrist known to the Qur-án. It may be added that Dajjál signifies one who conceals the truth with falsehood (LL), or a liar (TA-LL), or a great deceiver (LL).

1478a The Qur-án is here described as possessing two qualifications. The first refers to its own perfection in the words, did not make in it any crookedness, so that it is perfect in itself ; and the second speaks of it as a book suited to make others perfect, for it is called qayyim as meaning one that rightly directs others without making them swerve to this or that side. Or it is called qayyim as regulating the affairs of men or as maintaining the spiritual truth, which indeed would have been entirely lost to the world but for its being guarded by the Holy Qur-án.

1479 This verse gives us an insight into the anxiety which the Holy Prophet had on account of a fallen humanity, an anxiety so great that he is spoken of here as almost killing himself with grief. His was a life of absolute devotion to the cause of humanity, his only concern being that man should rise to the true dignity for which God had made him. This anxiety was not only for those who were directly addressed by him, but, as the context shows, it was as deep for another people who attributed a son to the Divine Being, and whom outward finery was to mislead to such an extent as to make them strangers to spiritual truth. Reading the next verse along with this, no doubt is left that the Prophet was shown the earthly embellishments which are so great a trial for Christendom to-day.

8 And most surely We will make what is on it bare ground without herbage.¹⁴⁸⁰

Ar. dost thou.

9 Or, do you think that the Fellows of the Cave and the Inscription were of Our wonderful signs?¹⁴⁸¹

10 When the youths sought refuge in the cave, they said: Our Lord! grant us mercy from Thee, and provide for us a right course in our affair.

11 So We prevented them from hearing in the cave for a number of years,¹⁴⁸²

وَلَا تَجْعَلُونَا عَلَيْهِمْ صَغِيرًا

فَضَرَبْنَا عَلَى آذَانِهِمْ فِي الْكَهْفِ
سِتْرَيْنَ عَدَدًا

The word hadis means new or recent, and hence is applied to a narration or announcement which is new or which gives some new information. It here refers to the Qur-án.

1480 The 7th and the 8th verses direct man's attention to the fact that the finery of this life does not last for ever. The beautiful tracts of land and the fair cities of one age are built upon the ruins of another. A dweller of the desert of Arabia, with no sight before his eyes but that of the sands of the desert and bare and rugged hills, could not imagine the earth being embellished. The picture drawn here is evidently of beautiful cities with all their attractions and luxuries, which so engross men that they neither pay attention to the preaching of truth nor to the pursuit of righteousness. Yet where there is growth there is decay, and those who indulge in luxuries do not escape ruin; it is their ruin that is indicated in the words bare ground without herbage. Earthquakes and terrible wars lay waste most beautiful cities, and prophecies in the Gospel as well as in the Holy Qur-án clearly point to a time when nation shall rise against nation and great earthquakes will occur. The powerful hand of God is thus seen clearly working in the history of the world.

1481 Kahf signifies a cave as well as a place of refuge, and raqm means an inscription or a tablet with a writing upon it. Now the cave, as I have already stated in the introduction to this chapter, stands for that peculiar aspect of the Christian religion which finds manifestation in its institution of monkery, this being the distinctive characteristic which it assumed soon after its birth. But what about the inscription? This word, I think, contains a prophetic reference to another aspect of the Christian religion quite opposed to its first aspect of growth in the cave. Inscription is, in fact, as prominent a feature of the business activities of the Christian nations of to-day as the cave was a feature of their religious activities in the early days, and the Holy Qur-án seems to have chosen these epithets to designate the Christian nations by thus indicating their most prominent characteristics in their early and latter days. The first and the last conditions of Christianity thus seem to be hinted at in the cave and the inscription respectively, a religion of monkery turned into a religion of business, the cave representing the former and the inscription the latter. As for the story of the dwellers of the cave, see 1483.

1482 Explaining this verse, TA says that the meaning of ضربنا على آذانهم is منعناهم السمع i.e. we prevented them from hearing. This is Dk's explanation, and it is nearest the original sense of the words, for one significance of daraba is sadda, i.e. he prevented (TA-LI). The preventing from hearing is then understood to be equivalent to causing to sleep, but the original meaning is favoured by the context, the significance being that these people remained cut off from the rest of the world for a number of years, so as not to hear much about what was happening in the outside world. Thus the Holy Qur-án neither supports the story of these men remaining in the cave for hundreds of years nor of their being actually in a condition of sleep all this while.

SECTION 2

The Dwellers of the Cave

Ar. thee.

13 We relate to you their story with the truth; surely they were youths who believed in their Lord and We increased them in guidance.¹⁴⁸³

نَحْنُ نَقُصُّ عَلَيْكَ بَنَانَهُمْ بِالنِّحْيِ
لَهُمْ فِتْنَةٌ أَمْؤَارٌ أَبَدٌ لَّهُمْ
رِزْقُهُمْ هُدًى ۝

1482A The raising them up might signify raising them up from sleep, as also raising them up into a condition of activity, after their remaining cut off from the world as stated in the previous verse. What this does mean with reference to the story itself or with reference to the history of Christianity is explained in the second and the third sections.

1483 The memorable story of the "seven sleepers," with whom the "Fellows of the Cave and the Inscription" are identified, is a story of the reign of the Emperor Decius. Seven noble youths of Ephesus, it is said, took refuge in a cave to escape Decius' persecution. But the Emperor, eventually learning this, ordered the entrance to the cave to be firmly secured with a pile of large stones. It is stated that the youths fell asleep as soon as they were shut up in the cave, and awoke 187 years after this in the reign of Theodosius, when the stones were removed by the slaves of one Adolius to supply building material for some edifice. They then sent one of their number, Jamblicus, to bring food for them from the city, but he was taken to the judge on presenting a coin of the reign of Decius, and thus the youths were discovered. It is related that the Emperor himself saw their radiant faces. This is the account given by Gibbon. But some state that these youths remained in that condition for 375 years.

That there may be a modicum of truth underlying this story is not only most probable, but almost certain, for the story could not otherwise have found such a wide prevalence. The story as narrated in the Qur-án does not credit the unnatural incidents of the above account. It only speaks of some men having taken refuge in a dark cave on account of a religious persecution; where and when it does not state. That is all that is stated in this section of the story, and apparently it seems to be continued in the third, while according to another view the third section may be a prophetic description of the later growth of Christianity itself. Taking, however, the first view, what is related in the third section is, that after they had rested for a part of a day, they made arrangements to get their food from outside, and remained in this condition probably for some years; but were subsequently discovered, and an edifice being built at the mouth of the cave caused them to perish. It mentions conjectures as to their number and the number of years they remained in the cave, but does not go beyond saying that they were some men who remained there for some years.

There is another very plausible suggestion that the persons referred to here were Joseph of Arimathea and some other early Christians, their place of refuge being Glastonbury in England, which on account of its northern position well answers the description of the cave as given in the Qur-án. According to William of Malmesbury, Joseph of Arimathea "was sent to Britain by St. Philip, and having received a small island in Somersetshire, there constructed with twisted twigs the first Christian church in Britain, afterwards to become the abbey of Glastonbury. The legend says that his staff planted in the ground became a thorn flowering twice a year" (En. Br. Art. "Joseph of Arimathea"). In the tenth edition of En. Br. Joseph of Arimathea is said to have "wandered into Britain in the year 63." "The Glastonbury thorn, which is said to be a distinct variety, was regularly visited by pilgrims

14 And We strengthened their hearts with patience, when they stood up and said: Our Lord is the Lord of the heavens and the earth; we will by no means call upon any god besides Him, for then indeed we should have said an extravagant thing: ^{1483a}

15 These our people have taken gods besides Him: why do they not produce any clear authority in their support: who is then more unjust than he who forges a lie against Allah?

16 And when you forsake them and what they worship save Allah, betake yourselves for refuge to the cave; your Lord will extend to you largely of His mercy and provide for you a profitable course in your affair.

Ar. thou mightest,

17 And you might see the sun when it rose decline from their cave towards the right hand, and when it set leave them behind on the left while they were in a wide space thereof. This is of the signs of Allah; whomsoever Allah guides, he is the rightly guided until it was destroyed about the Reformation times." Again we find in the En. Br., under Glastonbury: "According to the legends which grew up under the care of the monks, the first church of Glastonbury was a little wattled building erected by Joseph of Arimathæa as the leader of the twelve apostles sent over to Britain from Gaul by St. Philip." The legends of the "Holy Grail" again connect the name of Joseph of Arimathæa with Britain. According to one of these the Grail, which was the dish of the last supper, was confided to the care of Joseph, while according to another, "the Grail is said to have followed Joseph to Britain" (En. Br., Art. "Grail"). All these may be legends, but they are certainly not without an undercurrent of truth. The connection of the name of Joseph of Arimathæa with Britain is the strong central fact underlying them all. What makes it still more significant is the fact that Joseph of Arimathæa, who appears very prominently in the closing scenes of the Gospels, so much so that one Gospel looks upon him as a disciple of Jesus, altogether disappears from the history of Christianity as imaged in the exertions of the apostles. Does this not show that he had changed the scene of his exertions? May then Joseph of Arimathæa and his companions be taken as being referred to in the story of the "Fellows of the Cave and the Inscription"? If an answer could be found in the affirmative, then England could definitely be said to be the cave referred to in the Holy Qur-án, and the description of the cave given in v. 17 well applies to it (see 1484). But even if our answer to that question is in the negative, the story itself is not without a deeper meaning, and more statements than one show that there is a reference to the history of Christianity itself in the story.

1483a This is to show that the early followers of Christianity were Unitarians.

1484 The verse does not speak of any miraculous change in the sun's course; it does not speak of any change at all. It simply describes the position of the cave, which was so situated that it did not admit sunshine. This could easily happen in a cave with its mouth to the north (situated in the northern hemisphere and above the tropic of Cancer). In fact, the description applies to any country in the northern hemisphere north of the tropic of Cancer. It may be noted that it is only in the northern hemisphere, and in countries situated mostly to the north of Arabia, that the Christian nations have prospered. The whole of Europe thus, in one sense, answers the description of the cave.

1485 What is related in this section is clearly applicable to the story of the seven sleepers, as also to the later history of Christianity. Taking the first view, the meaning is that the youths who fled for fear of persecution and betook themselves to a cave slept for some time with a dog at the door of the cave. The whole scene was rather awe-inspiring; a dark cave, in some distant and uninhabited part of the country, with some men sleeping in it and a dog at the door, would have inspired awe into the heart of a casual looker-on. Applied to the history of Christianity the statement is equally true. In this case it should be borne in mind that ruqūd also means inactive, or stagnant. Thus, according to TA, رَقِدَ عَنِ الْأَمْرِ means رَقِدَتِ السُّوقُ —i.e. he abstained or held back from the affair; and رَقِدَتِ السُّوقُ

is equivalent to كَسَدَتْ i.e. the market became stagnant or dull with respect to traffic, and ruqūd is infinitive noun of ruqada. Similarly aiqāṣ is plural of yaqīṣ, which means a man vigilant, wary, in a state of caution, or a man having his attention much roused (LL). According to TA you say تَنِيْقَطُ لِلْأَمْرِ meaning tanabbaha—i.e. he had his attention roused to the affair.

The turning about to the right and the left, which signifies an uneasy condition while sleeping, may be used as expressing the activities of a man or a nation. Thus there may be a reference here to the lethargy in which the Christian nations remained for a long time, and to their subsequent going about in the world to the right and to the left, i.e. spreading in all directions. While there is nothing strange in the persecuted men having taken a dog with them to guard them from wild animals, the fact that nowadays Europeans are very fond of dogs, and carry them about with them, is very significant, as showing that the reference here may also be to the later history of Christianity. The scene of a modern European house is on the whole so impressive, that the description given here of the cave is equally applicable to it.

19 And thus did We rouse them that they might question each other. A speaker among them said: How long have you tarried? They said: We have tarried for a day or a part of a day. (Others) said: Your Lord knows best how long you have tarried.¹⁴⁸⁶ Now send one of you with this silver (coin) of yours to the city, then let him see which of them has purest food, so let him bring you provision from it, and let him behave with gentleness, and by no means make your case known to any one.¹⁴⁸⁷

20 For surely if they prevail against you they would stone you to death or force you back to their religion, and then you will never succeed.

21 And thus did We make (men) to get knowledge of them,¹⁴⁸⁸ that they might know that Allah's promise is true and that as for the hour there is no doubt about it.¹⁴⁸⁹ When they disputed among themselves about their affair and said: Erect an edifice over them¹⁴⁹⁰—their Lord best knows them. Those who prevailed in their affair said: We will certainly raise a mosque over them.¹⁴⁹¹

1486 The TA gives labg, meaning as ibāḍ, i.e. being slow or tardy or backward. The question and the answer may refer either to the time for which the youths slept or to the centuries of inactivity or tardiness of the Christian nations. A day of a thousand years is spoken of in the Holy Qur-ān on more occasions than one (see 22: 47, etc.), and therefore the word day, applied to the history of a nation, may signify a thousand years.

1487 The circumstances narrated in this passage do not call for any explanation. After having been refreshed with sleep, which might have been brought on by the fatigue of the journey, they might have thought of procuring food for themselves in that solitary cave. In reference to the history of Christianity, the passage may be said to speak of the commercial activities of the Christian nations.

1488 That is, they would have remained hidden had it not been for the necessities of life, which they had still to procure from the city. It was their going out to purchase food that brought them to the knowledge of the outside world. It is not stated how long they continued in this state: they may have passed some days or months or years, but their daily going out at last made their hiding-place known to others. Comparing this with v. 11, however, we may say that they passed several years in this condition, but that they passed two or three hundred years is nowhere stated in the Holy Qur-ān. The underlying significance of these words as relating to the history of the Christian nations may be easily guessed.

22 (Some) say: (They are) three, the fourth of them being their dog; and (others) say: Five, the sixth of them being their dog, making conjectures at what is unknown; and (others yet) say: Seven, and the eighth of them is their dog. 1489 The result of their becoming known is described in words which show that they were put to death, because the promise of Allah as to a future state of life is fully realized only after death. The hour often denotes the doom of a people or a nation in this world, the time of their decay, and sometimes of their annihilation.

1490 These words show how their death was brought about; it was by closing the mouth of the cave. This is what is meant by the erection of an edifice over them. Or the words may signify the erection of a monument.

1491 The masjid, or the mosque, is the house of worship of the Muslims in particular.

1492 This verse and verse 25, coming as they do after the story is finished, show that these are only conjectures of the people with regard to them. Their number and the number of years during which they remained in the cave are both matters which are said to be only known to Allah. 'Ab is, however, of opinion that the words condemning the first two as conjectures show that the last-mentioned number—i.e. seven—is correct.

1493 The direction contained in these words is of a general nature, with special prophetic reference to the Prophet's flight and his taking refuge in a cave. It was not in his power to bring about this escape, and therefore it was not for him to say that he would do such and such a thing at such and such a time. He had entirely to trust in Allah, Who was to bring it about as He thought best for him.

1494 The meaning is that the difficulties which had to be experienced by the dwellers of the cave would be removed from the Prophet's way. He had to pass only three days in the cave, and though a powerful enemy exerted itself to its utmost, his hiding-place at only a distance of three miles from the city, whither food was conveyed to him, could not be discovered. Or, the meaning is that the Qur-án affords a better guidance.

25 And they remained in their cave three hundred years and (some) add (another) nine.¹⁴⁹⁶

26 Say: Allah knows best how long they remained; to Him are (known) the unseen things of the heavens and the earth; how clear His sight and how clear His hearing!¹⁴⁹⁶ There is none to be a guardian for them besides Him, and He does not make any one His associate in His judgment.

27 And recite what has been revealed to you of the Book of your Lord; there is none who can alter His words;¹⁴⁹⁷ and you shall not find any refuge besides Him.

28 And withhold yourself with those who call on their Lord morning and evening

وَاصْبِرْ نَفْسَكَ مَعَ الَّذِينَ
يَدْعُونَ رَبَّهُمْ بِالْعَدْوَةِ وَالْعُشِيِّ

1495 There is not the least doubt that this verse is conjoined to v. 22, and the statement made here is one of the many conjectures regarding the period of their stay, the words and they say, occurring in the latter verse, being understood here. The words that follow, say: Allah knows best how long they remained, clearly show this to be the case. Some of the earliest commentators, Qatada among them, have held this opinion (Rz, JB); and the explanatory reading of Abdulla—and they say they remained . . . corroborates this view (Rz, Kf). But if the words are not taken as such, there may be a reference to the three centuries during which Christianity was more or less a persecuted religion in the Roman Empire, all persecution of Christians stopping with the conversion of Constantine. The special mention of the addition of nine years to three hundred seems to be due to their reduction to lunar years. It may be added that the Nicene Creed, which formulated the doctrine of the Trinity, was promulgated in the year 325 A.D., and thus the Christian religion may be said to have retained some of its purity for three centuries, after which the Trinitarian instead of the Unitarian religion became the state religion, and thus the partisans of Unity became more and more insignificant. Therefore the remaining in a cave for three hundred years may refer to the time during which Christianity suffered more or less from persecution and retained some of its original purity before Constantine's conversion.

1496 Palmer is right in noting that both Sale and Rodwell have translated the words ابصر به واسمع wrongly, not understanding the Arabic idiom, but his own rendering, He can see and hear, does not make the sense of the original clear. The words signify, according to all Arabic grammarians and lexicologists, ما ابصر واسمع which literally means, what a sight he has! what a hearing he has! and the idiomatic expression adopted in my translation is therefore the correct rendering.

1497 It is absurd to argue from this that the directions given through revelation to a people are unchangeable, in the sense that no man can add to or take away from them a word. By kalimât are clearly meant here prophecies, because it is the prophecy of the Prophet's flight and his final triumph over his enemies that is dealt with here. These prophecies, it is claimed, cannot be altered by men, and they must come to pass however great the opposing forces.

1498 Because they will have only the effect of what they did. The water of spiritual life they had not had in this life, and so they shall not have any water in the life after death.

1499 It is after these things that men hanker in this life, but the ornaments and robes of this life are transitory. The righteous, who in this life desire and struggle for only spiritual ornaments and moral beauty, shall find these visible in after-life. It should, however, be borne in mind that these prophecies were brought to fulfilment in this very life. The Arabs, whose only wealth consisted of their camels and horses, and whose clothes were made of skins or rough textures, found the treasures of Rome and Persia laid at their feet, and the bracelets of gold and silk brocade interwoven with gold, which they had never seen, were now brought to them in abundance, while the gardens of Mesopotamia and Persia were given to them for a permanent heritage.

SECTION 5

A Parable

32 And set forth to them a parable of two men; for one of them We made two gardens of grape-vines, and We surrounded them both with palms, and in the midst of them We made cornfields.¹⁵⁰⁰

33 Both these gardens yielded their fruits, and failed not aught thereof, and We caused a river to gush forth in their midst,

Ar. thou. 34 And he possessed much wealth; so he said to his companion, while he disputed with him: I have greater wealth than you, and am mightier in followers.

35 And he entered his garden while he was unjust to himself. He said: I do not think that this will ever perish,

36 And I do not think the hour will come, and even if I am returned to my Lord I will most certainly find a returning-place better than this.¹⁵⁰¹

Ar. doest thou. 37 His companion said to him while disputing with him: Do you disbelieve in Him who created you from dust,^a then from a small life-germ,^b then He made you a perfect man? Ar. thee.

38 But as for me, He, Allah, is my Lord, and I do not associate any one with my Lord:

Ar. didst thou 39 And wherefore did you not say when you entered your garden: It is as Allah has pleased, there is no power save in Allah? If you consider me

وَاصْرِبْ لَهُم مِّثْلًا رَّجُلَيْنِ جَعَلْنَا لِأَحَدِهِمَا جَنَّتَيْنِ مِنْ أَعْنَابٍ وَبَيْنَهُمَا نَهْرٌ وَجَعَلْنَا بَيْنَهُمَا زَرْعًا وَكُنَّا الْجَنَّتَيْنِ تَاتَا أَكْلَهُمَا وَلَمْ نُظْلِمْهُنَّ شَيْئًا وَفُجِّرْنَا بِلَهُمَا نَهْرًا

وَوَكَانَ لَهُ ثَمَرٌ فَقَالَ لِصَاحِبِهِ وَهُوَ يُحَاوِرُهُ أَنَا أَكْثَرُ مِنْكَ مَالًا وَأَعَزُّ نَفَرًا وَدَخَلَ جَنَّتَهُ وَهُوَ ظَالِمٌ لِنَفْسِهِ إِنَّهُ أَظُنُّ أَنْ يَنْصُرَهُ ابْنُ آدَمَ وَمَا أَظُنُّ السَّاعَةَ قَائِمَةً وَلَئِنْ رُودْتُ إِلَىٰ رَبِّي لَأَجِدَنَّ خَيْرًا مِنْهَا مُنْقَلَبًا قَالَ لَهُ صَاحِبُهُ وَهُوَ يُحَاوِرُهُ أَكَفَرْتَ بِالَّذِي خَلَقَكَ مِنْ تُرَابٍ ثُمَّ ثُمَّرَ مِنْ تُفْلَةٍ ثُمَّ سَوَّكَ رَجُلًا لَيْكِنَّا هُوَ اللَّهُ رَبِّي وَلَا أُتْرِكُ لِرَبِّي أَحَدًا

وَلَوْلَا إِذْ دَخَلْتَ جَنَّتَكَ قُلْتَ مَا شَاءَ اللَّهُ لَا تَسْقُوهُ إِلَّا بِاللَّهِ إِنَّ شَرِيبَ آتَا أَفْطَلًا

1500 The parable—it is clearly called a parable and is not at all a story—set forth here is undoubtedly a parable to illustrate the condition of those possessing abundance of wealth and the Muslims. The former received an abundance of the wealth of this life, as is indicated by the gardens of the parable, while the latter, though poorer in worldly possessions, were richer in the heavenly blessings of Allah. The former reject the message of truth—of which the latter are the bearers—and their vaunt is the same as that of the wealthy man in the parable: I have greater wealth than you, and am mightier in followers.

1501 By the “hour” is meant the hour of doom which must overtake every people who heedlessly reject the truth.

Ar. thes. to be inferior to you in wealth and children :

40 Then maybe my Lord will give me what is better than your garden, and send on it a reckoning from heaven, so that it shall become even ground without plant :

41 Or its waters should sink down into the ground so that you are unable to find it.

42 And his wealth was destroyed; so he began to wring his hands¹⁵⁰² for what he had spent on it, while it lay, having fallen down upon its roofs, and he said: Ah me! would that I had not associated any one with my Lord.

43 And he had no host to help him besides Allah, nor could he defend himself.

44 Here is protection only Allah's, the True One; He is best in (the giving of) reward and best in requiting.

SECTION 6

The Guilty are brought to Judgment

45, 46. Transitoriness of the adornments of this life. 47-49. The guilty confronted with what they did.

45 And set forth to them the parable of the life of this world: like water which We send down from the cloud so the herbage of the earth becomes luxuriant on account of it, then it becomes dry, broken into pieces which the winds scatter; and Allah is the holder of power over all things.

46 Wealth and children are an adornment of the life of this world; and the ever-abiding, the good works, are better with your Lord in reward and better in expectation.

وَأَضْرِبْ لَهُم مَّثَلًا الْخَيْرَةِ الَّتِي نَاسَا

1502 The original words are يَقْلِبُ كَفَيْهِ literally meaning he turns his hands over and over or upside down (Kf). But تَقْلِبُ الْكَفَيْنِ being the action of him who is repenting or grieving, the phrase is used in the sense of repentance or grief; the English idiom to wring the hands comes nearest to it in form and significance.

SECTION 7

Their Helplessness

50 And when We said to the angels : Make obeisance to Adam ;^a they made obeisance but Iblis (did it not).^b He was of the jinn, so he transgressed the commandment of his Lord. What ! would you then take him and his offspring for friends rather than Me, and they are your enemies ? evil is (this) change for the unjust.¹⁵⁰⁵

1503 Making the earth a levelled plain indicates the removal of all those mighty obstacles which stood in the way of the Prophet, and these are the mountains which shall be made to pass away. See 1604.

1504 This comprehensive book is the same as is spoken of in 17: 13, 14, "And We have made every man's actions to cling to his neck, and We will bring forth to him on the resurrection day a book which he will find wide open—Read your book ; your own self is sufficient as a reckoner against you this day." There is not the slightest action, good or bad, which does not leave its effect behind.

1505 Here Iblis is plainly declared to be one of the jinn or the evil spirits, so it is an error to take him for an angel or a good spirit. The spirit of evil is always rebellious, and it is against this that man is warned, so that he should resist every evil tendency.

51 I did not make them witnesses of the creation of the heavens and the earth, nor of the creation of their own souls; nor could I take those who lead (others) astray for aiders.

52 And on the day when He shall say: Call on those whom you considered to be My associates. So they shall call on them, but they shall not answer them, and We will make their union a perdition.¹⁵⁰⁶

Or, cause a separation between them.

53 And the guilty shall see the fire, then they shall know that they are going to fall into it, and they shall not find a place to which to turn away from it.

SECTION 8

Warning is disregarded

54-57. Disregard of warning. 58. Merciful God defers punishment. 59. Their doom is appointed.

54 And certainly We have made distinct in this Qur-an every kind of description; and man is most of all given to contention.

55 And nothing prevents men from believing when the guidance comes to them, and from asking forgiveness of their Lord, except that what happened to the ancients should overtake them, or that the chastisement should come face to face with them.

Ar. the course of

Or, of various sorts should come to.

56 And We do not send apostles but as givers of good news and warning, and those who disbelieve make a false contention that they may render null thereby the truth, and they take My communications and that with which they are warned for a mockery.

¹⁵⁰⁶ Bain has three significances, viz. disunion, union, and between (LL), and maubig means perdition or separation, or fatal enmity (TA). I prefer the meaning which Farrá and Sairaffi adopt, leaving the alternative significance to the margin. The meaning in the former case is that the very union which exists between the leaders of evil and the evil-doers will become a cause of their perdition

57 And who is more unjust than he who is reminded of the communications of his Lord, then he turns away from them and forgets what his two hands have sent before? Surely We have placed veils over their hearts lest they should understand it and a heaviness in their ears; and if you call them to the guidance, they will not ever follow the right course in that case.¹⁵⁰⁷

Ar. thou.

Ar. thy.

58 And your Lord is Forgiving, the Lord of Mercy; were He to punish them for what they earn, He would certainly have hastened the chastisement for them; but for them there is an appointed time from which they shall not find a refuge.¹⁵⁰⁸

59 And (as for) these towns, We destroyed them when they acted unjustly, and We have appointed a time for their destruction.¹⁵⁰⁹

Moses' Travels in search of Knowledge

60 And when Moses said to his servant:¹⁵¹⁰ I will not cease until I reach the junction of the two rivers¹⁵¹¹ or I will go on for years.¹⁵¹²

فَإِذْ قَالَ مُوسَى لِفَتَاهُ لَا أَبْرَحُ
حَتَّى أَتِلَّهُ جَمْعَ الْبَحْرَيْنِ أَوْ
أَمْضِيَ حُقُبًا ○

1507 How clearly is stated here again when it is that veils are placed over hearts; it is when man becomes so iniquitous as to turn away from the truth and so callous as not to care for the evil that he does. He hardens his heart and refuses to listen; hence a veil is placed over his heart and there is a heaviness in his ears.

1508 The appointed time referred to is the battle of Badr, in which the power of the Quraish was crushed (Kf). Or, the reference may be to latter-day opposition.

1509 The personal pronoun their refers to the opponents of the Holy Prophet.

1510 Some reports give his name as Joshua son of Nûn, being the man who afterwards appears so prominently in the history of Israel. The Qur-ân, however, does not give his name.

The incidents narrated in the ninth and the tenth sections may be the actual experience of Moses or this journey may simply be an ascension of Moses, like the ascension of the Holy Prophet referred to in the last chapter. What is stated in the next section makes the latter view more probable, but even taking it to be an actual journey in search of knowledge, there is nothing improbable in it. See next foot-note.

1511 The words جمع البحرين have been misunderstood generally. It should be borne in mind that Moses lived in Egypt for forty years, and the junction of the two rivers
1512, see next page.

61 So when they had reached the junction of the two (rivers), they forgot their fish, and it took its way into the sea, going away.¹⁵¹³

62 But when they had gone farther, he said to his servant: Bring to us our morning meal, certainly we have met with fatigue from this our journey.

Ar didst
thou.

63 He said: Did you see when we took refuge on the rock, then I forgot the fish, and nothing made me forget to speak of it but the devil, and it took its way into the river; what a wonder!¹⁵¹⁴

64 He said: This is what we sought for; so they returned retracing their footsteps.

65 Then they found one from among Our servants whom We had granted mercy

فَلَمَّا بَلَغَا مَجْمَعَ بَيْنِهِمَا نَسِيَا حُوتَهُمَا فَاتَّخَذَ سَبِيلَهُ فِي الْبَحْرِ سَرَبًا

is no other than the junction of the two great branches of the Nile at Khartoum, one of which is called the Bahr-ul-Abyad or the White Nile and the other the Bahr-ul-Aswad or the Blue Nile. That the story of this journey of Moses is not found in the Bible or even in Rabbinical literature is no argument against it. The Rabbinical literature relates things about Moses which give us strong reason to believe that such a journey was very probably undertaken by him. South of Egypt was the kingdom of Ethiopia, whose southern boundary reached Khartoum, or the junction of the two Niles, and various accounts met with both in Rabbinical and Hek-mistic literature (see Jewish Encyclopedia) agree that Moses went to Ethiopia. According to one of these accounts he became king of Ethiopia by reason of his great prowess in having defeated an enemy, and married the king's widow. This is corroborated to some extent by the statement in the Bible that "Miriam and Aaron spoke against Moses because of the Ethiopian woman whom he had married" (Num. 12: 1). Hence a journey to Khartoum, which was near the southern boundary of Ethiopia, made in search of knowledge is most probable. Some commentators, however, do not take the words majma'-ul-Bahrain literally, and consider the meaning to be a union of two persons, who are compared to two oceans of human and Divine knowledge. I would, however, suggest that if we accept this journey in the light of an ascension it would be an indication of the limitation of the Mosaic dispensation. Moses' going on for years until he reached the Majma'-ul-Bahrain would mean that the Mosaic dispensation would see its termination after a time; the new dispensation taking its place being one which was to be guided by a prophet who is described here as being the Majma'-ul-Bahrain, i.e. the union of the two seas of human and Divine knowledge, or one in whom the temporal and the spiritual would find their highest manifestation, such being the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him.

1512 Huṣub signifies a long time (Bd), or a year or seventy years or eighty years.

1513 The loss of the fish was, according to a report, to serve as a sign that the goal had been attained (Bkh). There is nothing either in the Holy Qur-ān or in the report to show, however, that this was a roasted fish.

1514 The taking of refuge on the rock shows that they were staying at a place which was flooded by the river, and Moses' companion, when fleeing for refuge, forgot to take the fish along with him. The wonder is not expressed at the fish having gone down into the river, but because he had forgotten to mention the loss to Moses.

68 And how can you have patience in that of which you have not got a comprehensive knowledge?

69 He said: If Allah please, you will find me patient and I shall not disobey you in any matter.

70 He said: If you would follow me, then do not question me about any thing until I myself speak to you about it.

Moses' Travels in search of Knowledge

71 So they went (their way) until when they embarked in the boat he made a hole in it. (Moses) said: Have you made a hole in it to drown its inmates? certainly you have done a grievous thing.

72 He said: Did I not say that you will not be able to have patience with me?

73 He said: Blame me not for what I forgot, and do not constrain me to a difficult thing in my affair.

74 So they went on until, when they met a boy, he slew him. (Moses) said: Have you slain an innocent person otherwise than for manslaughter? certainly you have done an evil thing.

1515 The interpretation of the three incidents shows a manifestation of Divine wisdom in what takes place in the everyday life of man. Divine laws as manifested in nature are really working towards ultimate good, though sometimes they may appear to the outward eye to be working to the detriment of somebody. The beneficent hand of Allah that works in nature is always directing humanity to the goal of great good, though that goal must necessarily be reached with apparent loss. Sometimes the loss is only apparent, as in the case of making a hole in the boat; there was no real loss, but the apparent loss served a great purpose and brought much benefit to the owner. The second instance is that in which there is real loss to a person, but it is for the good of humanity at large, for life must be sacrificed for the ultimate good of humanity. The third instance shows that for the good of humanity deeds must be done which bring no immediate reward, and that good done by one generation is not devoid of benefit to the next.

Moses himself had, in fact, to undergo the experience of his teacher, and the incidents seem no more than prophetic allegories of Moses' own life-work. Just like the scuttling of a boat which causes apprehension as to the safety of its inmates, Moses had to lead his people to a place where they thought they had only been brought to be drowned; but their safe passage through the water showed that it was for their good. Then he had to order his men to fight against iniquitous people and to put them to death, but he was not shedding human blood to no purpose, for it was really a step towards the evolution of a better race. And finally, his laying down his own life for the Israelites—descendants of a righteous man—corresponded to his teacher's building the wall for the orphans without claiming recompense. Read in this light, the narration is clearly an ascension of Moses, foreshadowing the great events which were to befall him.

80 And as for the boy, his parents were believers and we feared lest he should make disobedience and ingratitude to come upon them :

81 So we desired that their Lord might give them in his place one better than him in purity and nearer to having compassion :

82 And as for the wall, it belonged to two orphan boys in the city, and there was beneath it a treasure belonging to them, and their father was a righteous man; so your Lord desired that they should attain their maturity and take out their treasure, a mercy from your Lord, and I did not do it of my own accord.¹⁵¹⁶ This is the significance of that with which you could not have patience.

The Two-horned One and Gog and Magog

Ar. thee. 83 And they ask you about Zulqarnain.¹⁵¹⁷ Say : I will recite to you an account of him.

84 Surely We established him in the land and granted him means of access to every thing,

وَيَسْأَلُكَ عَنِ ذِي الْقَرْنَيْنِ قُلْ

إِنَّمَا مَكَّنَّا لَهُ فِي الْأَرْضِ وَآتَيْنَاهُ مِنْ
كُلِّ شَيْءٍ سَبِيلًا

1516 This shows that it was meant to be only a lesson for Moses.

1517 The word zulqarnain literally means the two-horned one. The reference is to the two-horned ram of Daniel's vision (Dan. 8:3), which he interpreted as the kingdom of Media and Persia, which were combined into a single kingdom under one ruler, Cyrus, who is erroneously called Darius in the Bible (En. Bib. and Jewish En., Art. "Darius"). The reference in Daniel's vision is, however, not to Cyrus but to Darius I Hystaspis (521-485 B.C.), "who allowed the Jews to rebuild their temple, and is referred to in Ezra 4:5, 24; 5:5; Hag. 1:1; 2:10; Zech. 1:7, and probably in Neh. 12:22. His liberality towards the Jews is in complete accord with what we know otherwise of his general policy in religious matters towards the subject nations" (En. Bib. "Darius").

That "the two-horned ram" of Daniel's vision is the king of Media and Persia is made plain in Daniel's book, where the interpretation of the dream is given in the following words: "The ram which thou sawest having two horns are the kings of Media and Persia" (Dan. 8:20). That the reference in the Qur-ān in the history of Zulqarnain is to Darius I is clear from the fact that "Darius was the organizer of the Persian Empire. His conquests served to round out the boundaries of his realm in Armenia, the Caucasus, and India, and along the Turanian steppes and the highlands of Central Asia" (Jewish En., "Darius I"). The following remarks in the En. Br. strengthen this view: "Darius in his inscriptions appears as a fervent believer in the true religion of Zoroaster. But he was also a great statesman and organizer.

The time of conquests had come to an end; the wars which Darius undertook, like those of Augustus, only served the purpose of gaining strong natural frontiers for the empire and keeping down the barbarous tribes on its borders. Thus Darius subjugated the wild nations of the Pontic and Armenian mountains, and extended the Persian dominion to the Caucasus; for the same reason he fought against the Sacæ and other Turanian tribes " The references in this quotation to Darius being a fervent believer in the true religion of Zoroaster, to his subduing the barbarous tribes on the borders, to his gaining strong natural frontiers for the empire, and to his fighting against the Sacæ clearly point him out as the Zulqarnain of the Qur'an.

1518 Maghrib-ush-shams, or the place where the sun set, signifies the westernmost point of his empire, because going towards the west he could not go beyond it, and to him it was the place where the sun set.

1519 The words in Arabic are عين حمئة which literally mean a black sea, 'ain meaning an abundance of water, or a place in which water remains and collects (TA-LI), and hame'ah meaning black mud (TA-LI). The place referred to is no other than the Black Sea, as, Armenia being within the kingdom of Persia, the Black Sea formed the north-western boundary of the empire.

1520 Being a true follower of Zoroaster, the well-known Persian prophet, Darius seems to have invited these tribes to his religion.

1521 The three journeys alluded to seem to have been undertaken with the object of strengthening the frontiers of the empire, the most important of these being directed to the part of the frontier between the Caspian and the Black Seas, where the Caucasus afforded a natural protection against the attacks of the Scythians. Darius goes first westward to the Black Sea, then eastward, and lastly northward to Mount Caucasus. The description of the people found here as a people who had no shelter from the sun is a description of the barbarous aboriginal tribes on the shores of the Caspian. The En. Br. says in the article on Media: "The names in the Assyrian inscriptions prove that the tribes in the Zagros and the northern parts of Media were not Iranians nor Indo-Europeans, but an aboriginal population, like the early inhabitants of Armenia, perhaps connected with the numerous tribes of the Caucasus. We can see how the Iranian element gradually became dominant: princes with Iranian names occasionally occur as the rulers of these tribes. But the Gelse, Tapuri, Cadusi, Amardi, Utii, and other tribes in Northern Media and on the shores of the Caspian were not Iranians."

1522 The two mountains are the mountains of Armenia and Azarbaijan. The people settling there spoke a different language and could not understand the Iranian language.

1523 This verse brings us face to face with an all-important subject—viz. the identity of Gog and Magog. The Bible references to Gog and Magog are somewhat loose. In Gen. 10:2 and 1 Chron. 1:5, "Magog is mentioned as the second son of Japheth, between Gomer and Madai, Gomer representing the Cimmerians and Madai the Medes. Magog must be a people located east of the Cimmerians and west of the Medes. But in the list of nations, Gen. 10, the term connotes rather the complex of barbarian peoples dwelling at the extreme north and north-east of the geographical survey covered by that chapter. . . . In Ezek. 38:2 Magog occurs as the name of a country; in Ezek. 39:6 as that of a northern people, the leader of whom is Gog" (Jewish En., Art. "Gog and Magog"). "Josephus identifies them with the Scythians, a name which among the classical writers stands for a number of unknown ferocious tribes. According to Jerome, Magog was situated beyond the Caucasus near the Caspian Sea" (Jewish En.). The En. Br. considers the traditional identification of Gog and Magog with the Scythians to be "plausible." In fact, it not only considers the opinion of Josephus and Jerome identifying Gog and Magog with the Scythians to be plausible, but also adds that "this plausible opinion has been generally followed," with this reservation, that the word may be applied to "any or all of the numerous but partially known tribes of the north; and any attempt to assign a more definite locality to Magog can only be very hesitatingly made."

All these writers have, however, not paid sufficient attention to the words of Ezek. 38:2, "Gog, the land of Magog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal." Tubal and Meshech are almost always mentioned together, and their identification has been a task of great difficulty, so much so that a renowned Biblical critic suggests the names of certain nations in South Palestine. But this contradicts the views of ancient writers like Josephus, who settle the Magog north of the Caucasus. If we go, however, to the north of Caucasus we find still two rivers bearing the names of Tobal and Moskoa, on the latter of which is situated the ancient city of Moscow, and on the former the more recent town of Tobolsk. It seems almost certain that these two rivers received their names from the two tribes of Ezek. 38:2, the Tubal and Meshech, and then gave their names to the two above-mentioned cities, thus keeping the names of these tribes. This view is in accordance with the opinion of Josephus, who identifies Magog with the Scythians, for "throughout classical literature Scythia generally meant all regions to the north and north-east of the Black Sea, and a Scythian any barbarian coming from these parts."

It is clear from the above that the name Magog stands for tribes which occupied territories to the north and north-east of the Black Sea, tribes which gave their names directly or indirectly to the towns of Tobolsk and Moscow.

There is, however, another point worth considering, and that is the gigantic effigies of Gog and Magog in Guildhall, London. "It is known," says the En. Br., "that effigies similar to the present existed in London as early as the time of Henry V." An explanation of this remarkable circumstance is given by Geoffrey of Monmouth: "Gaemot or Gaemagot (either corrupted from or corrupted into Gog and Magog) was a giant who, along with his brother Gorineus, tyrannized in the western horn of England until slain by foreign invaders" (En. Br., Art. "Gog and Magog"). It is very difficult to speak with anything bordering on accuracy about the early connections of different races, but the preservation of the effigies of Gog and Magog in England, which can be traced to a very early period in English history, makes it probable that the Angles or the Saxons had in very ancient times some connection with the Scythians or other tribes living north of the Caucasus or the Black Sea. The relations of the different nations in early history are very complicated, and it is out of place to enter into any such discussion here. But it may be noted that the Goths, who are considered to be the easternmost of the Teutonic races, are said to have migrated into Scythia (En. Br., "Goths"), which shows the existence of connection between the two races. And again, "the Bathinæ also, who in the third century B.C. invaded and settled in the regions between the Carpathians and the Black Sea, are said by several ancient writers to have been Teutonic by origin, though they had largely intermarried with the native inhabitants" (En. Br., "Teutonic Peoples").

Next we come to the statement that the tribes found by Darius between Azerbaijan and the Armenian mountains were constantly harassed by their northern neighbours, the Scythians. History bears evidence to the truth of this statement. The Scythians, or, according to some writers, the Sacæ, constantly troubled Asia. According to Herodotus the Scyths ruled Media for twenty-eight years (En. Br., Art. "Scythia"). "About 512 Darius undertook a war against the Scythians. . . . The purpose of this war can only have been to attack the nomadic Turanian tribes in the rear, and thus to secure peace on the northern frontier of the empire" (En. Br., Art. "Darius"). The portion which I give in italics shows that Darius exerted himself to his utmost in securing peace on the northern frontier of his empire, where the Caucasus, bounded on both sides by the Black and Caspian Seas, afforded a natural protection.

The barrier referred to in this verse, and described in the verses that follow, is the famous wall at Derbent (Ar. Darband). An account of this wall is given by Muslim geographers and historians, for instance, in Marâsid-ul-Ittilâ' and Ibn-ul-Faqîh. The following account, however, taken from the Encyclopædia Britannica, should be more convincing: "Derbent or Darband, a town of Persia, Caucasia, in the province of Daghestan, on the western shore of the Caspian. . . . It occupies a narrow strip of land beside the sea, from which it climbs up the steep heights inland. . . . And to the south lies the seaward extremity of the Caucasian wall (50 miles long), otherwise known as Alexander's Wall, blocking up the narrow pass of the Iron Gate or Caspian Gate (Portus Albana, or Portus Caspæ). This, when entire, had a height of 29 feet and a thickness of about 10 feet, and with its iron gates and numerous watch-towers formed a valuable defence of the Persian frontier." (Italics in the last sentence are mine, for which see the next foot-note.) The misnomer Alexander's Wall seems to have been due to the mistake made by Muslim historians in supposing Zulqarnain to be Alexander.

1524 The blocks of iron were needed for the iron gates in the wall, for which see the concluding lines of the last note.

1525 The allusion here seems to be to some mighty conflict of the nations, and the words no doubt refer to some catastrophe like that which is predicted in the Gospels in the words: "For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places. All these are beginning of sorrows" (Matt. 24: 7, 8).

1526 These words clearly indicate that the Christians are meant here, because theirs is the most prominent example of having taken a servant of Allah for their God. Moreover, the last ten verses of this chapter are, according to a saying of the Holy Prophet (narrated in the Muslim), a protection against the Antichrist, thus showing that they contain a teaching that is an antidote against the poison of the erroneous doctrines of Christianity.

يَرْجُوا لِقَاءَ رَبِّهِ فَلْيَعْمَلْ عَمَلًا صَالِحًا
وَلَا يُبَشِّرْكُم بَعَادَةَ رَبِّهِ أَحَدًا ۝

1527 This is a clear description of the present attitude of the civilized nations to their moral and spiritual needs—their labour is entirely submerged in this world's life, and they cannot give a moment's consideration to the life after death, and their only qualification is that they are well versed in the skill of the work of their hands.

1528 Evil deeds have no weight or estimation in the sight of Allah, though they yield an evil fruit to the doer of them. Hence those who have performed no good deeds shall not have any "balance set up for them." By the deeds becoming null is meant that these deeds shall bring them no good in ^{after} life; their exertions being entirely confined to this world, they had reaped whatever fruit these exertions could bring in this very life.

1529 This verse should be specially noted by those who think that the Qur-án supports the doctrine of Jesus' divinity by calling him His kalimah or word, for here the words of Allah are said to be so numerous that they cannot be exhausted by writing down. Hence, in the language of the Holy Qur-án, every creature of God is called His kalimah or word. See also 1956.

CHAPTER XIX

MARY

(Maryam)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(6 sections and 98 verses)

Abstract

- Sec. 1. Zacharias and John.
- Sec. 2. Mary and Jesus.
- Sec. 3. Abraham.
- Sec. 4. Other prophets.
- Sec. 5. How the opponents were dealt with.
- Sec. 6. False doctrine of sonship.

The Title and connection.

THE controversy with Christianity is continued in this chapter, and the title is taken from the name of Jesus' mother, Mary; the circumstances connected with her having given birth to Jesus are narrated here. But while the last chapter deals at greater length with the history of Christianity than with its doctrines, this devotes considerable space to the falsity of the Christian religious dogmas, which it shows to be absolute innovations and quite foreign to the teachings of all the prophets.

Subject-matter.

The first two sections deal with the last representatives of prophecy in the house of Israel, viz. John and Jesus. The false doctrines that grew up round the name of the latter are clearly denounced at the end of the second section; the history of Abraham in the third, and that of some other prophets in the fourth, are referred to as showing that Allah always sent men as His prophets to reform the world. Towards the close of the fourth section it is stated that mere faith unattended with good deeds or righteousness is as nothing, and cannot benefit a people except when it is translated into practice. The fifth section deals with the opponents of the prophets generally, while the sixth brings to a close the discussion of the Christian religion by outspokenly denouncing the false doctrine of the sonship of Jesus.

Date of revelation.

It is quite certain that the most important portion of this chapter, viz. that relating to the history of Mary and Jesus, was revealed early at Mecca, most probably about the fifth year of the Holy Prophet's mission, because this portion was recited by Ja'far, head of the first batch of the Muslim immigrants in Ethiopia, before the Christian king of that country, when a deputation of the Quraish urged the king to expel the Muslim refugees from his country. This incident cannot be later than the sixth year of the Prophet's mission, because the emigration took place in the fifth year, and the shelter which the Muslims found in a foreign land excited the jealousy of the Quraish, and they at once sent a deputation to the Negus for the purpose of misrepresenting the Muslim religion. From this it would appear at how early a date the Qur-án expressed its opinion of the Christian religion, vehemently denouncing its fundamental doctrines : They say : The Beneficent God has taken to Himself a son : certainly you have made an abominable assertion : the heavens may almost be rent thereat and the earth cleave asunder and the mountains fall down in pieces (vv. 88, 90). This quotation is a sufficient answer to the generality of Christian critics of Islam, who allege that the Holy Prophet's attitude towards the Christian religion was changed later. As the Qur-án has praised the virtues of nations unstintedly, so it has openly denounced their errors, and its attitude towards all other religions remained unchanged from the first to the last. This chapter contains the earliest notice of the Christian religion, which does not materially differ from what the latest revelation (for instance, ch. 5) contains.

1530 I make a slight departure in explaining the abbreviation at the commencement of this chapter from the usual interpretation put upon it. It is said that each of these letters stands for one of the names of the Divine Being, káf standing for káfī, i.e. sufficient, hā for hādī, i.e. Guide, yā for يَا i.e. One whose power is above all powers, 'ain for 'Alīm, i.e. Knowing, and gād for Ṣādiq, i.e. Truthful (JB, Kf, Rz). I make a departure in the interpretation of the letter yā, interpreting it as a letter of interjection meaning O, which is the interpretation unanimously adopted in the case of the same letter as occurring at the commencement of the 36th chapter. This appears to me to be much better, for in the abbreviations a letter generally stands for a single word throughout the Holy Qur-án. With this slight modification the five letters would mean Sufficient art Thou as a Guide, O Knowing, Truthful Lord ! Each letter in this case stands for a single word.

1531 His fear was due to their not leading righteous lives, so that he feared there should be none to lead people into the ways of righteousness after him.

Ar. thou shouldst. 11 So he went forth to his people from his place of worship, then he made known to them that they should glorify (Allah) morning and evening.

يَحْنِي خَدَّ الْكِنْبِ يَقُوْهُ وَاَتَيْنَاهُ
اِسْمَكَ صَبِيًّا

1532 The inheritance from the children of Jacob is the inheritance of the Divine blessing of prophethood which had been promised to Jacob's children.

1533 Samī means a competitor, or contender for superiority in eminence or glory (TA-LL); hence also an equal, or a like (S, M, Q, TA-LL). The word occurs again in this chapter in v. 65 and bears the same meaning, not namesake, because there it is spoken about Allah. It is not of course meant that one like John or equal to him was never before created in the world (though Jesus Christ in Matt. 11:11 seems to hold this view, for he says: "Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist"), but the meaning is that one like him was not born in Zacharias' family, because in the previous verse it was his own relatives about whom Zacharias said that he feared them, and therefore an assurance was now given to him that the promised son would not be like the other members of his family whom he feared. Or the meaning may be that one like him had not appeared in that age.

1534 The word lail, i.e. night, is interpreted as including the day, as yum, or day, includes the night. Moreover, in 3:40 the words are three days, thus showing that three days and three nights are meant. It should also be noted that the Qur-án does not support the idea that Zacharias was struck dumb, and seems to contradict the Bible narrative by saying here plainly that he was to observe this commandment though in sound health, such being the meaning of sawīyyá. The truth is here evidently on the side of the Qur-án, and the writer of the Gospel had clearly some misapprehension, for being struck dumb had no connection with being granted a son. According to the Holy Qur-án, the object of assuming silence was to be engaged solely in prayer to the Divine Being, and hence Zacharias told his people also to glorify God. The sign was given as an answer to his question, When shall I have a son? It implies that when he assumed silence for three days and nights, and glorified God alone during the time, his wife should conceive. See also 420.

Mary and Jesus

16 And mention Mary in the Book when she drew aside from her family to an eastern place;

17 So she took a veil (to screen herself) from them; then We sent to her Our inspiration, and there appeared to her a well-made man.¹⁵³⁶

18 She said: Surely I fly for refuge from you to the Beneficent God, if you are one guarding (against evil).

19 He said: I am only a messenger of your Lord: That I will give you a pure boy.¹⁵³⁷

20 She said: When shall I have a boy and no mortal has yet touched me,^{a 437} nor have I been unchaste?

21 He said: Even so; your Lord says: It is easy to Me:

وَإِذْ كُنَّا فِي الْكِتَابِ مَرَ سِمٌ إِذْ أَنْتَبَذَتْ مِن أَهْلِهَا مَكَانًا شَرْقِيًّا
فَاتَّخَذَتْ مِنْ دُونِهِمْ حِجَابًا فَأَرْسَلْنَا إِلَيْهَا رُوحَنَا فَتَمَثَّلَ لَهَا بَشَرًا سَوِيًّا
قَالَتْ إِنِّي أَعُوذُ بِالرَّحْمَنِ مِنْكَ إِنْ كُنْتَ نَذِيرًا
قَالَ إِنَّمَا أَنَا رَسُولُ رَبِّكِ لِأَهَبَ لَكِ غُلَامًا زَكِيًّا
قَالَتْ أَنَّى يَكُونُ لِي غُلَامٌ وَلَمْ يَمْسَسْنِي بَشَرٌ وَلَمْ أَكُ بَغِيًّا
قَالَ كَذَلِكَ قَالَ رَبُّكِ هُوَ عَلَىٰ هَيْئٍ

1535 The various aspects of the character of John should be pondered over by the upholders of the exclusive innocence of Jesus Christ. John was pure and sinless and never disobeyed Allah. Nowhere is Jesus Christ praised in better words. The words, in fact, show that every prophet is pure and sinless and never disobeys Allah.

1536 This shows that it was in a vision that the angel came, and the conversation that follows also took place in a vision. The word tamassala used here lends support to this, for the word signifies assuming the likeness of another thing, and this happens only in vision. This is clear even if the ordinary significance given in the margin is adopted, for the spirit or angel of God appears to His chosen ones only in visions, and angels are not seen by the physical eye.

1537 It should be noted that Jesus is called here a ghulam, i.e. a boy, not kalimah (i.e. word) or ruh (i.e. inspiration), while the prophecy of his birth as announced to Mary is given in detail. This shows clearly that elsewhere the words kalimah or ruh only stand for the prophecy, while Jesus Christ was nothing more than a boy. The words I will give you a pure boy are the words of the revelation, and hence the speaker of these words is Allah. For such a construction, in which a part of the verse is put into the mouth of the angel, while the other part gives the word of Allah, see verse 21, where the words, and that We may make him a sign, seem to be spoken apparently by the angel, but are the words of the Divine Being.

and that We may make him a sign to men and a mercy from Us; and it is a matter which has been decreed.

22 So she conceived him; then withdrew herself with him to a remote place.

23 And the throes (of childbirth) compelled her to betake herself to the trunk of a palm-tree.¹⁵³⁸ She said: Oh, would that I had died before this, and had been a thing quite forgotten!¹⁵³⁹

24 Then (a voice) called out to her from beneath her: Grieve not, surely your Lord has made a stream to flow beneath you:

25 And shake towards you the trunk of the palm-tree, it will drop on you fresh ripe dates:

26 So eat and drink and refresh the eye. Then if you see any mortal, say: Surely I have vowed a fast to the Beneficent God, so I shall not speak to any man to-day.

27 And she came to her people with him, carrying him¹⁵⁴⁰ (with her). They said: O Mary! surely you have done a strange thing.¹⁵⁴¹

1538 This shows that Mary gave birth to Jesus while on a journey; hence the reference to water and food in vv. 24 and 25, such as one can only find in a journey. That she was going to a distant place is shown by v. 22. She may have had recourse to the trunk of a palm-tree to find a support in the throes of childbirth.

1539 This shows that Mary gave birth to Jesus under the ordinary circumstances which women experience in giving birth to children. The throes of childbirth were too severe for her to bear, and hence she gave utterance to such words. The reference to the throes of childbirth clearly shows that an ordinary human child was coming into the world, and thus it bespeaks a denial of his divinity. Or there may be a reference to Gen. 3:16, in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children. The object in either case is clearly to show that the birth of Jesus was not attended with any extraordinary circumstances, and that his mother brought him forth in the ordinary way, so his conception also could not have taken place otherwise than in the regular course of nature.

1540 The conversation that is related to have taken place in the verses that follow is alone sufficient to make it clear that the coming of Mary to her people with her son, as stated in this verse, relates to a time when Jesus had grown sufficiently old to have been raised to the dignity of a prophet, and to have received Divine revelation in the form of a book (as he speaks of having been given the book in v. 30). The commentators, merely because the verse follows one in which the birth of Jesus is spoken of, understand the verse to relate to a time when Jesus was as yet a baby. But it should be noted that the Holy Qur-ān does not relate stories in all their details, and often omits a number of incidents which are not needed for its purpose. Compare, for instance, the 11th and 12th verses, the first of which relates only Zacharias' receiving the joyful news of a son, while the second asks that son to take hold of the Book with strength; and it would be as reasonable to infer from these two verses that John was born quite a grown-up man (as soon as the prophecy was announced) as to draw the conclusion from the verses under discussion that Jesus was taken to his people by his mother as soon as he was born, and that he immediately grew to the age of thirty-three years to declare that he was made a prophet. Jesus could only say that he was a prophet when he was actually entrusted with the mission of a prophet, and not before, and Jesus' address to his people, as related in vv. 30 and 31, clearly shows that he had already been entrusted with that mission. Moreover, it is too unreasonable to suppose that as soon as Mary gave birth to the child she took it to her people to make a show of it. The Qur-ān, v. 22, states that she was then going to some remote place, and thus the incident related here could not have taken place immediately after delivery. But if then it could take place after the lapse of a year, why not after the lapse of thirty years? The word carrying does not show that she was carrying him in her arms, but it means that he was being carried on an animal. Compare 9:92, where some of the companions are spoken of as coming to the Prophet that he might carry them, and he is related as saying in reply that he had not that on which to carry them.

1541 While retaining the ordinary translation of the words لقد جئت شيئا فريا I give another significance of the words in the margin. If the ordinary rendering is adopted, the reference in Mary's doing (or, bringing) a strange thing may be to her having given birth to a son who claimed greater authority than the elders of Israel, with a deeper hint to the calumny against her, for which see 644 (4:156). But as the word fariyy clearly signifies a forger of lies, the alternative significance given in the margin better suits the context, and in the light of this rendering Jesus' reply is quite reasonable, for when the Jews called him a forger of lies, it was his duty to rebut that charge, and hence he says that he is a prophet. It is remarkable that in his reply Jesus does not make a single reference to the circumstances of his birth. Hence the inference is quite reasonable that the question, whichever significance of the words may be taken, was directed against the mission of Jesus and not against the circumstances relating to his birth.

1542 It is only a limited acquaintance with the Arabic language that has made men like Rodwell call this an anachronism. As shown in 412, Mary belonged to the priestly class, as Wherry also admits, "because she was of the Levitical race (as by her being related to Elizabeth it should seem she was)," and therefore she is rightly called ukhta Hārūn, or sister of Aaron, the word ukht being by no means limited to the close blood-relationship like its equivalent in English; see 412 for further explanation. IJ relates the following incident: Safiyya (the Prophet's wife) came to the Apostle of Allah, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him, and said: "The women say to me, A Jewess, daughter of two Jews." He said to her: "Why did you not say: Surely my father is Aaron and my uncle is Moses and my husband is Muhammad?" This incident shows clearly that a woman belonging to the Jewish race was spoken of as being immediately related to Aaron and Moses.

1543 Old and learned Jews would no doubt speak of a young man who was born and brought up before their eyes as one who was but yesterday a child in the cradle, as if disdainful to address one so young. It should be noted that they speak of Jesus as one who was (not is) a boy in the cradle.

30 He said : 'Surely I am a servant of Allah. He has given me the Book and made me a prophet.'¹⁵⁴⁴

31 And He has made me blessed wherever I may be, and He has enjoined on me prayer and poor-rate so long as I live.'¹⁵⁴⁵

32 And dutiful to my mother, and He has not made me insolent, unblessed.'¹⁵⁴⁶

33 And peace on me on the day I was born, and on the day I die, and on the day I am raised to life.

34 Such is Jesus son of Mary; (this is) the saying of truth about which they dispute.

35 It beseems not Allah that He should take to Himself a son, glory be to Him; when He has decreed a matter He only says to it "Be," and it is."

36 And surely Allah is my Lord and your Lord, therefore serve Him; this is the right path.'¹⁵⁴⁷

37 But parties from among them disagreed with each other, so woe to those who disbelieve, because of presence on a great day.

* 163.

1544 It is clear that this conversation did not take place when Jesus was an infant in the cradle, but when he had actually been made a prophet, because he speaks of himself as such, i.e. not as one who would be made a prophet, but one who had actually been made a prophet, which was only when he was a grown man.

1545 It is absurd to suppose that prayers and alms had been enjoined on Jesus while he was yet a day old and that he really observed these injunctions at that age. In fact, Jesus' answer clearly shows that he was addressing his people after he had been entrusted with the mission of prophethood, and he does not say a word about his having been born without the agency of a male parent.

1546 Here only the mother is spoken of, whereas in a similar case in v. 14 John is spoken of as being dutiful to both parents. This may be due to the fact that Joseph may not have been living at the time when Jesus spoke these words. Joseph was already an old man when he married Mary, and by the time that the ministry of Jesus begins we find no mention of him even in the Gospels, the mother and brothers being the only relations mentioned; or the mother alone is mentioned because the Gospels relate an incident showing that Jesus was rude to his mother (Matt. 12 : 48), and this verse disproves the statement, it being one of the objects of the Qur-án to clear Jesus of all false charges.

1547 According to Matthew, when Jesus was tempted of the devil, who asked him to worship him, Jesus' reply was : "For it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and Him only shalt thou serve" (Matt. 4 : 10).

38 How clearly shall they hear and how clearly shall they see on the day when they come to Us ; but the unjust this day are in manifest error.

40 Surely We inherit the earth and all those who are on it, and to Us they shall be returned.

¹⁵⁴⁸ Here the punishment which is elsewhere called fire is called hasrat or intense regret, and this is frequently described in the Holy Qur-an as being the lot of the evil-doers.

48 And I will withdraw from you and what you call on besides Allah, and I will call upon my Lord: maybe I shall not remain unblessed in calling upon my Lord.

49 So when he withdrew from them and what they worshipped besides Allah, We gave to him Isaac and Jacob, and each one of them We made a prophet.¹⁵⁴⁹

50 And We granted to them of Our mercy, and We left (behind them) a truthful mention of eminence for them.¹⁵⁵⁰

51 And mention Moses in the Book; surely he was one purified, and he was an apostle, a prophet.¹⁵⁵¹

52 And We called to him from the blessed side of the mountain, and We made him draw nigh, holding communion (with Us).

53 And We gave to him out of Our mercy his brother Aaron, a prophet.

وَاذْكُرْ فِي الْكِتَابِ مَوْسَىٰ إِذْ كَانَ

وَقَرَّبْنَاهُ نَحِيًّا ۝

وَوَهَبْنَا لَهُ مِنْ رَحْمَتِنَا
هُرُونَ نَبِيًّا ۝

1549 It is elsewhere made clear that Jacob was his grandson (11:71; 21:72). Nor should it be supposed that giving signifies only the giving of a son, for of Moses it is said a few verses further on, We gave to him his brother Aaron, a prophet, though Aaron was older than Moses.

1550 The literal significance of جعلنا لهم لسان صدق عليا is, We made for them the tongue of truth to be lofty. As the tongue is the vehicle of expression, therefore lisana şidqin stands for a truthful mention. However humble a life a prophet may lead, he is granted an eminence among later generations, but the distinguishing characteristic of a prophet is that his record of eminence is a truthful one.

1551 Rasool, or apostle, means one who is sent with a message for the regeneration of men, while nabi, or prophet, is one who has the gift of prophecy, i.e. who receives a naba' or information from on high. The elect who are chosen for the regeneration of man are called prophets as receiving knowledge from Allah, and apostles as delivering to humanity the message received.

54 And mention Ishmael in the Book; surely he was truthful in (his) promise, and he was an apostle, a prophet.¹⁵⁵²

55 And he enjoined on his family prayer and alms-giving, and was one in whom his Lord was well pleased.

56 And mention Idris in the Book; surely he was a truthful man, a prophet,

57 And We raised him to an elevated state.¹⁵⁵³

58 These are they on whom Allah bestowed favours, from among the prophets of the seed of Adam, and of those whom We carried with Noah, and of the seed of Abraham and Israel, and of those whom We guided and chose; when the communications of the Beneficent God were recited to them, they fell down making obeisance and weeping.*

59 But there came after them an evil generation, who wasted prayers and followed the sensual desires, so they will meet perdition,

60 Except such as repent and believe and do good, these shall enter the garden, and they shall not be dealt with unjustly in any way:

1552 Christians think that prophethood was the exclusive heritage of Isaac and his seed, but the Bible gives as great promises for Ishmael as for Isaac. And when Abraham prayed to the Lord "that Ishmael might live before Thee" (Gen. 17: 18), the reply was: "And as for Ishmael, I have heard thee" (Gen. 17: 20), which shows that Ishmael was made a prophet. See 168 and 170. In the Holy Qur-án Ishmael is mentioned by name on the following occasions as one of the prophets: 2: 125, 127-129, 133, 136, 140; 6: 87; 19: 54, 55; 21: 85, and 38: 48, while he is referred to in 37: 101-107.

1553 Idris is the same as Enoch (Bđ). The word rafa', which is used of Jesus, is also used of Enoch, and some commentators therefore misinterpret the words as indicating that Enoch was taken up to heaven alive, like Jesus. But the same mistake is made in both cases, for rafa' signifies raising to high dignity. See 437. The mistake seems to have arisen from what is said of Enoch in the Bible. Thus, in Gen. 5: 24: "And Enoch walked with God, and he was not, for God took him." The New Testament is plainer yet: "By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him" (Heb. 11: 5). Only once again is he mentioned in the Holy Qur-án, viz. in 21: 85.

66 And says man: What! when I am dead shall I truly be brought forth alive?

67 Does not man remember that We created him before, when he was nothing?

وَيَقُولُ الْإِنْسَانُ إِذَا مَا مِيتَ

قَبْلُ وَلَمْ يَكُ شَيْئًا

1554 The word Muslim is derived from the same root, salam, meaning peace, as salām, and therefore the Muslim is one who is at peace. It is by making peace here with the Creator and His creatures that one can find peace hereafter, and this is the great truth underlying the Islamic idea of paradise, for of paradise it is frequently stated in the Holy Qur-ān that there shall be nothing but peace therein.

1555 The state of perfect peace spoken of in the previous verse is here called the garden which the righteous shall inherit.

1556 The words "we do not descend" are generally understood to refer to the coming of angels with Divine revelation. There is no doubt that the reference here is to the revelation of the Holy Prophet, the significance being that, as the angels brought revelation to previous prophets, so they now bring revelation, by the command of the Lord, to the Holy Prophet Muhammad. The concluding words of the verse, and your Lord is not forgetful, are meant to signify that the promises and prophecies made by Allah through His prophets could not be forgotten. Thus an account of the previous prophets is concluded with a reference to the revelation of the Holy Prophet, and this is the subject dealt with in the remaining sections of the chapter.

74 And how many of the generations have We destroyed before them who were better in respect of goods and outward appearance!

75 Say: As for him who remains in error, the Beneficent God will surely prolong his length of days, until they

ثُمَّ لَنَخْتِمْ أَفْئِدَةً بِالَّذِينَ هُمْ أَوْلَىٰ

لَهُ الرَّحْمَنُ مَدَدًا ۚ حَقَّقَ

Some, however, think that these are the words of the faithful, which they will speak when they enter paradise (AbM-Rz).

1557 The devils here are clearly those who lead others into evil.

1558 The wicked only are spoken of, as the context shows clearly. That the righteous shall not go to hell is made clear in many places in the Holy Qur-ān. See a few verses further on: "The day on which We will gather those who guard (against evil) to the Beneficent God to receive honour, and We will drive the guilty to hell thirsty" (vv. 85-6). And in 21 : 102 we are told that the righteous shall not hear the faintest sound of hell.

1559 It does not mean, as already shown, that the righteous shall first be brought to hell and then delivered. For the meaning of gunma see 45. The word is used to begin an altogether new statement.

1560 Compare v. 68, where it is said that the guilty shall be brought to hell on their knees. Those who did not bend their knees in humility in this life shall be made to bend them hereafter.

1561 That is, they are proud of their great wealth and numerous forces.

see what they were threatened with, either the chastisement or the hour; ¹⁵⁶² then they shall know who is in more evil plight and weaker in forces. ¹⁵⁶³

Ar. thy. 76 And Allah increases in guidance those who go aright; and ever-abiding good works are with your Lord best in recompense and best in yielding fruit. ¹⁵⁶⁴

Ar. hast thou. 77 Have you, then, seen him who disbelieves in Our communications and says: I shall certainly be given wealth and children? ¹⁵⁶⁵

78 Has he gained knowledge of the unseen, or made a covenant with the Beneficent God?

79 By no means! We write down what he says, and We will lengthen to him the length of the chastisement.

80 And We will inherit of him what he says, and he shall come to Us alone. ¹⁵⁶⁶

81 And they have taken gods besides Allah, that they should be to them a source of strength; ¹⁵⁶⁷

82 By no means! They shall soon deny their worshipping them, and they shall be adversaries to them.

إِذَا أَرَادُوا مَيُّوتَ وَكَانُوا الْعَدَاةَ
فَلَمَّا السَّاعَةُ سَفَعُوا لَمْ يَكُنْ لَهُمْ

كَلَّا سَيَكْفُرُونَ بِعِبَادَتِهِمْ وَقَدْ
يَكُونُونَ عَلَيْهِمْ ضِدًّا

1562 The lunur signifies the hour of doom, the time when they shall be utterly destroyed, their power departing from them once for all. The chastisement, in comparison with the doom, signifies a lighter punishment.

1563 In these words it is clearly indicated that the time will come when they will find themselves in an evil condition, and their forces weaker than the forces of Islam.

1564 You say ضيعة كثيرة المرد i.e. an estate yielding much revenue (A-LL).

1565 The only desire of the unbelievers is for wealth and children.

1566 The reference is to his saying in verse 77: "I shall certainly be given wealth and children." The meaning is that the wealth and children of which the unbelievers are so proud shall be taken away from them, and Allah (i.e. the servants of Allah, or the Muslims) shall inherit them. It is foretold that the wealth of the unbelievers shall fall into the hands of Muslims and their children shall go over to Islam.

1567 The unbelievers looked to their idols for aiding them against the Muslims. The reply is given in the next verse: They (i.e. their idols) shall not be a source of strength to them, but they shall be their adversaries.

SECTION 6

89 Certainly you have made an abominable assertion:

90 The heavens may almost be rent thereat, and the earth cleave asunder, and the mountains fall down in pieces, 91 That they ascribe a son to the Beneficent God.

92 And it is not worthy of the Beneficent God that He should take (to Himself) a son.¹⁵⁷¹

أَلَمْ تَرَ أَنَّا أَرْسَلْنَا الشَّيَاطِينَ عَلَى
الْكَافِرِينَ تَؤْزُهُمْ أَزًّا ۖ

عَذَابٌ ۖ
يَوْمَ نَحْشُرُ الْمُتَّقِينَ إِلَى الرَّحْمَنِ وَقُلًا
وَنَسُوقُ الْكُفْرِينَ إِلَى الْهَظْمِ وَرَدًّا ۖ
لَا يَمْلِكُونَ الشَّفَاعَةَ إِلَّا مَنِ اتَّخَذَ
عِنْدَ الرَّحْمَنِ عَهْدًا ۖ
وَقَالُوا اتَّخَذَ الرَّحْمَنُ وَلَدًا ۖ
لَقَدْ جِئْتُمْ شَيْئًا إِدًّا ۖ
تَكَادُ السَّمَوَاتُ يَتَّقَطْنَ مِنْهُ
وَتَنْشَقُّ الْأَرْضُ وَتَخِرُّ الْجِبَالُ
هَدًّا ۖ
أَنْ دَعَا لِلرَّحْمَنِ وَلَدًا ۖ
وَمَا يَنْبَغِي لِلرَّحْمَنِ أَنْ
يَتَّخِذَ وَلَدًا ۖ

1568 The meaning is that their doom is already decreed, but it will overtake them at the appointed time; and the days of their life will be numbered out to them till that time arrives.

1569 Wafd is a party coming to a king to receive honours (JB); hence the significance.

1570 Wird signifies a coming to or arriving at water (LL); hence it signifies thirsty, because thirsty beasts are driven to water.

1571 The five verses 89-92 contain a most emphatic and clear condemnation of the Christian doctrine of the Godhead of Jesus Christ, and it is to this that this chapter particularly refers. It may be noted that this chapter belongs to about the fifth year of the Holy Prophet's mission, as portions of it were read out before the Negus by Ja'far, who was the head of the Muslim emigrants to Abyssinia. Thus Islam had set before itself from the very first the grand object of the reformation of Christianity. The particular point on which stress is laid in this chapter, as against the fundamental errors of the Christian religion, is the rahmānīyyat or beneficence of the Divine Being, which establishes the doctrine that for the forgiveness of a sinner God does not require to be paid any compensation. It is for this reason that the name Rahmān, in preference to all other names of the Divine Being, is mentioned over and over again in this chapter, and the key to the whole position is contained in v. 92 in the words: It is not worthy of the Beneficent God that He should take to Himself a son.

93 There is no one in the heavens and the earth but will come to the Beneficent God as a servant.

94 Certainly He has a comprehensive knowledge of them, and He has numbered them a (comprehensive) numbering.

95 And every one of them will come to Him on the day of resurrection alone.

96 Surely (as for) those who believe and do good deeds, for them will Allah bring about love.¹⁵⁷²

97 So we have only made it easy in your tongue that you may give good news thereby to those who guard (against evil) and warn thereby a vehemently contentious people.

98 And how many a generation have We destroyed before them! Do you see any one of them or hear a sound of them?

إِنَّ كُلَّ مَنْ فِي السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ
إِلَّا أَنَا الرَّحْمَنُ عَبْدُ اللَّهِ
لَقَدْ أَحْصَيْنَاهُمْ وَعَدَّاهُمْ عَدًّا
وَكَلَّمَهُمْ آيَاتِهِ يَوْمَ الْقِيَامَةِ قَوْلًا
إِنَّ الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّالِحَاتِ

هَلْ يُحِصُّ مِنْهُمْ مِّنْ أَحَدٍ أَوْ
نَسْمَعُ لَهُمْ رِكْزًا

As has been shown at the very outset, the word Rahmān, which along with Allah is mentioned as a proper name of the Divine Being, and which next to Allah occurs most frequently in the Holy Qur-ān (with the exception of the name Ar-Rahim, which is derived from the same root and carries a somewhat similar significance), means the Beneficent God Who shows mercy to man without his having done anything to deserve it (3). This directly contradicts the doctrine of atonement, which is the basis of the theory of the divinity of Jesus. For if God could forgive sins without requiring any compensation from man, if He could show mercy though man might have done nothing to deserve it, then there was no need of atonement, and consequently no need of attributing a son to the Divine Being who should be offered up as a sacrifice. The name Rahmān shows that Allah does not look for compensation or atonement, and is merciful to all His creatures, providing for them beforehand all that is necessary for them, and thus this one word in fact contains a condemnation of all the errors of the Christian religion.

The Christian faith is self-contradictory. While it denies the possibility of God showing mercy to sinners without the atonement by Christ, yet it asks them to seek forgiveness from God and to expect that He will forgive them without exacting any compensation. The well-known Lord's prayer makes this contradiction evident when it asks: "And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors" (Matt. 6: 12). Now, when is a man said to forgive his debtor? Only when he remits the debt and does not exact any compensation or return of his money from him. And the same, according to Christ's plain teaching, we should expect of God, viz. that He is able to forgive us our sins without requiring the least compensation from us. Thus this prayer leaves no place for the doctrines of atonement and sonship.

1572 It is by right belief and good deeds that true love for Allah and His creatures is inspired in the heart. Allah's bringing about love for the righteous means that He loves them Himself and inspires a love for them in the hearts of other people, while they also love Allah as well as their fellow-beings. The righteous servants of God are not liked much at first in this world, but gradually their goodness prevails and they are loved and admired. There is no doubt a prophetic reference here to the great love with which the hearts of the enemies of the Prophet were to be inspired in the near future.

CHAPTER XX

TÁ HÁ

REVEALED AT MECCA

(8 sections and 135 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1-5. The history of Moses.
- Sec. 6. The Prophet's opponents shall be brought low.
- Sec. 7. The devil's misleading.
- Sec. 8. Punishment is certain.

The Title.

THE initial letters of this chapter serve as its title. The greater part of it is devoted to the story of Moses, which is here given in detail. It will be seen that not only are references to Moses of much more frequent occurrence in the Holy Qur-án than references to other prophets, but the history of Moses is also given in much greater detail. The reason for this is to be found in the fact that the Holy Prophet came in fulfilment of the prophecy of Moses, which foretold the advent of a prophet who was to be the like of Moses. Hence the frequency of references and the elaboration of detail.

Context and subject-matter.

As the last chapter deals at length with the story of Jesus, this, dealing as it does in detail with the story of Moses, is placed after. It opens with a comforting message to the Holy Prophet, to the effect that he should not be disheartened by the bitter opposition to his preaching, because his mission would assuredly be crowned with prosperity. The first five sections (out of a total of eight) are taken up with the story of Moses, the Prophet's mission being introduced towards the close of the fifth section. The remaining three sections are taken up with the description of the opposition to the Prophet and the consequences of that opposition.

Date of revelation.

The revelation of this chapter belongs in all probability to the same period as that of the last chapter, because, even as there is proof of the last chapter being recited by the Muslim emigrants before the Negus, there is also evidence to show that this chapter was revealed before the sixth year of the Prophet's mission. Both Ibn-i-Hisham and Ibn-i-Sa'd connect this chapter with the story of 'Umar's conversion to Islam, which took place in the sixth year. They say that it was the recital of this chapter by his sister that changed 'Umar's murderous intention against the Prophet into a feeling of deep love and reverence for him. The mere circumstance that the commentators have not narrated this incident is no proof against its correctness, for it is vouched for by two of the best historians. The reason of the commentators' silence is to be found in the fact that they do not enter into a discussion concerning the exact date of the revelation of a chapter.

SECTION 1

The History of Moses

1-8. Consolation to the Prophet. 9-24. Moses entrusted with Divine mission and sent to Pharaoh.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

1573 Táhá, a combination of the two letters tá and há of the alphabet, is, according to most of the earliest commentators, F'Ab, Qtd, Mjd, Hasan, Sa'id, etc., a word meaning (according to some in certain dialects and according to others in some sister-languages) يا رجل

i.e. O man (Rz). AH quotes two couplets of the poets of the tribe of 'Akk, showing that in their dialect táhá is a well-known word meaning O man, so that one of them would not answer you if you said yá rajulu, but would reply if you said táhá. The couplets quoted are دعوت بطه في القتال فلم يجب i.e. I called out O man! in fighting, but he did not answer; and ان السفاهة ظه من خلافتكم i.e. surely meanness is of your characteristics, O man. The same authority says that Táhá is one of the names of the Holy Prophet. Kf interprets it as meaning يا هذا i.e. O you. It is also explained as meaning be at rest (TA-LL), being thus a word of comfort to the Holy Prophet.

1574 That is, it could not be that the Prophet, to whom the Qur-án was revealed, should remain unsuccessful in bringing about the transformation for which it was revealed. It is a consolation to the Holy Prophet, and at the same time a clear prophecy that a mighty transformation will be brought about, not only in Arabia but in the whole of the world, for that was the object which the Holy Qur-án had set out to accomplish from the first.

1575 This verse, and those that follow it, give the reason why the Qur-án cannot be a failure. This is because it is a manifestation of the will of Him who holds sway over all.

1576 Sarā means moisture of the earth, or moist earth (LL).

1577 The secret is that which a man hides in his heart, but what is not yet even in man's heart is hidden still more—all being known alike to Allah.

8 Allah — there is no god but He; His are the very best names.

Ar. thou. 9 And has the story of Moses come to you?

10 When he saw fire, he said to his family: Stop, for surely I see a fire, haply I may bring to you therefrom a live coal or find a guidance at the fire.¹⁵⁷⁸

11 So when he came to it, a voice was uttered: O Moses:

Ar. thy. 12 Surely I am your Lord,
Ar. thy. therefore put off your shoes,
Ar. thou surely you are in the sacred
art. valley, twice.¹⁵⁷⁹

Or Tuwá. 13 And I have chosen you, so
Ar. thes. listen to what is revealed:

14 Surely I am Allah, there is no god but I, therefore serve Me and keep up prayer for My remembrance:

15 Surely the hour is coming—I am about to make it manifest¹⁵⁸⁰—so that every soul may be rewarded as it strives:

اللَّهُ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا هُوَ لَهُ الْأَسْمَاءُ
وَهَلْ أُنَمِّكَ حَدِيثُ مُوسَى
إِذْ رَأَى نَارًا فَقَالَ لِأَهْلِهِ امْكُثُوا
إِنِّي أَنَسْتُ نَارًا تَكُونُ إِلَيْنَا فَمَنْهَا
يُقْبَسُ أَفَأَنبِئُكَ عَلَى النَّارِ هَدًى
فَلَمَّا أَشْتَبَا نَادَاهُ رَبُّهُ يُسَبِّحُ
إِنِّي أَنَا رَبُّكَ فَاخْلَعْ نَعْلَيْكَ إِنَّكَ
بِأَوْدَانِ الْمَقْدَرِ طَوًى
وَأَمَّا خَطَرُكَ فَاستَمِعْ بِمَا يُوحَى
إِنِّي أَنَا اللَّهُ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا أَنَا فَاعْبُدْنِي
وَأَقِمْ الصَّلَاةَ وَقُلْ لِلرَّحْمَنِ
إِنَّ السَّاعَةَ آتِيَةٌ أَكَادُ أُخْفِيهَا فَخُذْ
كُلَّ نَفْسٍ بِمَا تَسْعَى

1578 As we have here the words he saw fire, so we have in 12:4 I saw eleven stars. In both cases it was not an actual sight of the physical eye. In Joseph's case it was only a dream or a vision, but in the case of Moses it was a sight of the spiritual eye which is granted to the prophets of God, especially on occasions when they receive Divine revelation. Now, as the verses that follow show clearly that Moses received a Divine revelation on the same occasion, there remains not the least doubt that his seeing the fire was also a part of the revelation, and hence it was with the spiritual eye that he saw it. The Holy Qur-án has stated elsewhere that revelation is received only in three ways (42:51), and in each of these the recipient is really given particular senses with which to feel and see things (see 2235).

It may be added that the fire is a symbol of war, as we have in the Holy Qur-án itself: "Whenever they kindle a fire for war, Allah puts it out" (5:64). Thus in Moses seeing the fire there was an allusion to the coming struggle with Pharaoh, or probably to the wars with the tribes settling in the Holy Land.

1579 The command to put off the shoes is a metaphorical expression for making the heart vacant from care for family and property (Bd). According to others "it is a command to stay; like as you say to him whom you desire to stay, Pull off thy garment and thy boots and the like" (TA-LL).

I translate the word tuwan, or tuwá, as meaning twice, the significance being twice blessed, as qualifying the valley, or twice called, referring to Moses' call. But some think that Tuwá is the name of the valley. Rgh gives a third explanation, saying that the word tuwá (lit. rolled up) is spoken in reference to the election of Moses, so that he had not to exert himself to attain that great goal.

1580 The phrase أكاد أخفيها is often misunderstood. Ikhfá is one of the words which convey contrary significances. But that here it does not mean concealing is made clear by the context. It is the coming of the hour and the meting out of rewards and punishments that the verse deals with, which is clearly removing of the veil or making the hour manifest ; for the giving of rewards and punishments takes place when the hour comes. It should be noted that the hour does not necessarily signify the resurrection ; on the other hand, it very often indicates the doom of a people, the hour of the departure of their glory and power.

1581 As I have already stated, all this was experienced by Moses in that particular state in which the recipient of a revelation finds himself at the time of the revelation. I have explained this fully in 926. I may here add that the Qur-án here affords evidence that what was shown to Moses on this occasion had a deeper significance beneath it, and this is clearly stated in v. 23, where the object of showing these signs is stated to be that We may show you of Our greater signs. Thus the two signs mentioned here were really indications of something greater. To know this we have to see what 'aṣá means. This has already been explained in 96, where it is shown that the word 'aṣá stands metaphorically for a community, hence the sight of his staff becoming a running serpent was shown to him as an indication that his community, i.e. the Israelite people, who had been reduced to a state of intellectual death under Pharaoh, would soon become a living nation.

1582 Bearing in mind what has been said above, the yad-i-baiḍá, has also a deeper meaning. يد بيضاء lit. a white hand, signifies حجة مبرهنة i.e. an argument made very clear (TA) ; and a demonstrating or demonstrated argument or allegation or evidence (M-LL). The showing of the white hand to Moses signified that he would be able to afford a convincing argument, or it implied a revelation from on high that should serve as a light.

1583 It is to put an unnatural interpretation on the words to search for the knot or impediment of the tongue in the burning of it. عقدة اللسان is according to LA ما غلظ منه i.e. the coarseness or roughness of it. And the man who has 'uqdah (i.e. knot) in his tongue is called 'aqid, which is explained by LL as meaning a man having an impediment in his tongue, unable to speak freely.

1584 Wazir (from wizr, meaning burden) is literally one who bears burden, and hence an aider or helper, because he bears the burden of another. It may also be rendered as minister, as the word is extensively used as signifying a minister of a king.

1585 This is in accordance with the Bible narrative. Moses was born at a time when Pharaoh had commanded all male children born to the Israelites to be thrown into the Nile. Moses' mother kept him concealed for three months, and at last, unable to hide him any longer, threw him into the river in an ark of bulrushes, whence he was picked up by Pharaoh's daughter (Exod. 2:1-10).

Ar. thy. 40 When you sister went and said : Shall I direct you to one who will take charge of him? So We brought you back to your mother, that her eye might be cooled and she should not grieve.¹⁵⁸⁶ and you killed a man, then We delivered you from the grief, and We tried you with (a severe) trying. Then you stayed for years among the people of Midian;¹⁵⁸⁷ then you came hither as ordained, O Moses:

Ar. thy. 43 Go both to Pharaoh, surely he has become inordinate:

44 Then speak to him a gentle word, haply he may mind or fear.

45 Both said: O our Lord! surely we fear that he may hasten to do evil to us or that he may become inordinate.

46 He said: Fear not, surely I am with you both: I do hear and see:

47 So go you both to him and say: Surely we are two apostles of your Lord; therefore send the children of Israel with us and do not torment them! Indeed we have brought to you a communication from your Lord, and peace is on him who follows the guidance:

48 Surely it has been revealed to us that the chastisement will surely come upon him who rejects and turns back.¹⁵⁸⁸

1587 See Exod. 2:11-15.

1588 This contains a clear warning to Pharaoh of his end in case of rejection.

Moses and Aaron were directed to convey this message. The whole account of their actual going to Pharaoh and the delivery of this message is omitted here, and the next verse gives us Pharaoh's reply to their demand.

49 (Pharaoh) said: And who is your Lord, O Moses?

50 He said: Our Lord is He Who gave to everything its creation, then guided it (to its goal).¹⁵⁸⁹

51 He said: Then what is the state of the former generations?

52 He said: The knowledge thereof is with my Lord in a book: my Lord errs not, nor does He forget:

1589 This verse contains an argument for the necessity of Divine revelation. It says that, as Allah has created everything, and then given it the qualities and means by which it can attain to perfection—for this is the true significance of hadā, or guiding a thing (to its goal)—so man also stands in need of spiritual and moral direction for his attainment of spiritual perfection.

59 (Moses) said: Your appointment is the day of the Festival, and let the people be gathered together in the early forenoon.

60 So Pharaoh turned his back and settled his plan, then came.¹⁸⁹⁰

61 Moses said to them: Woe to you! do not forge a lie against Allah, lest He destroy you by a chastisement, and he who forges (a lie) indeed fails to attain (his desire).

62 So they disputed with one another about their affair and kept the discourse secret.

63 They said: These are most surely two enchanters who wish to turn you out from your land by their enchantment and to take away your most exemplary usage.

64 Therefore settle your plan, then come standing in ranks, and he will prosper indeed this day who overcomes.

65 They said: O Moses! will you cast, or shall we be the first who cast down?

66 He said: Nay! cast down. Then lo! their cords and their rods—it was imaged to him on account of their enchantment as if they were running.¹⁸⁹¹

1890 جمع امره and اجمع امره both indicate he determined or resolved upon his affair; and accordingly جمع كيد means he determined upon or settled (LL) his plan. For the meaning of kaid, see 965.

1891 The forces of untruth appear to carry the day for a while, but are soon vanquished. As to what was the nature of these cords and rods and what is meant by their running, the Bible does not help us much to understand. The Qur-ān gives hints in certain places; for instance, in 7:117, where they are described as being the lies they told. Both the words 'asā and ḥabal are used in the Arabic language metaphorically in a number of ways. For instance, you say قرعه بعصا الملامة (literally, he struck him with the staff of censure), whereas the significance is that he exceeded the usual bounds in censuring him. And you say, نلان يصلي عصا فلان (literally, such a one straightens the staff of such a one by turning it round over the fire), meaning, such a one manages or regulates the affairs of such a one.

Likewise قشرت له العصا literally, I peeled for him the staff signifies I revealed to him what was in my mind. And 'asā is synonymous with lisan—i.e. the tongue (TA, LL). Similarly ḥabal signifies something more than a mere cord; in fact, it means any means of access 67 So Moses conceived in his mind a fear.

68 We said: Fear not, surely you shall be the uppermost:

69 And cast down what is in your right hand: it shall devour what they have wrought; they have wrought only the plan of an enchanter, and the enchanter shall not be successful where-soever he may come from.

70 And the enchanters were cast down making obeisance; they said: We believe in the Lord of Aaron and Moses.*

71 (Pharaoh) said: You believe in him before I give you leave; most surely he is the chief of you who taught you enchantment, therefore I will certainly cut off your hands and your feet on opposite sides, and I will certainly crucify you on the trunks of the palm-trees, and certainly you will come to know which of us is the more severe and the more abiding in chastising.

72 They said: We do not prefer you to what has come to us of clear arguments and to Him who made us, therefore decide what you are going to decide; you can only decide about this world's life:

73 Surely we believe in our Lord that He may forgive us our sins and the enchantment to which you compelled us; and Allah is better and more abiding.

74 Whoever comes to his Lord (being) guilty, for him is surely hell; he shall not die therein, nor shall he live.¹⁵⁹²

And this is further supported by the saying ان من البيان لسحر explained in 148, where an eloquent speech is called sīhr, or enchantment, the very word used here.

The History of Moses

Ar. that.
• 1356.

77 And certainly We revealed to Moses, saying: "Travel by night with My servants, then make for them a dry path in the sea, not fearing to be overtaken, nor being afraid."¹⁵⁹³

78 And Pharaoh followed them with his armies, so there came upon them of the sea that which came upon them.

79 And Pharaoh led astray his people and he did not guide (them) aright.

80 O children of Israel! indeed We delivered you from your enemy, and We made a covenant with you on the blessed side of the mountain,^b and We sent to you the manna and the quails.^c

81 Eat of the good things We have given you for sustenance, and be not inordinate with respect to them, lest My wrath should be due to you, and to whomsoever My wrath is due he shall perish indeed.¹⁵⁹⁴

82 And most surely I am most Forgiving to him who repents and believes and does good, then continues to follow the right direction.

فَاتَّبَعَهُمْ فَرَغَوْا مِنْهُ فَنِسِيتُمْ
مِنْ الْيَمِّ مَا عَشِيْتُمْ ۖ
وَأَضَلَّ فِرْعَوْنُ قَوْمَهُ وَمَا هَدَىٰ

فَلَنْ لِنَفَاكِ لِمَنْ تَابَ وَأَمَّنْ وَعِلْ
صَاحِبًا نَفَرًا هَتْدَى ۖ

¹⁵⁹³ This shows that there was at that time a dry path in the sea. It shows also that there was only one path, and the twelve paths of the commentators are not mentioned in the Holy Qur-ān. See also 82.

¹⁵⁹⁴ Halla has the aorist yahillu as well as yahullu, the infinitive noun in both cases being halal. حل عليه with yahillu as the aorist means it became due to him, while with yahullu as the aorist the meaning is it alighted or descended upon him (TA-LI). As the word occurring here is yahillu, and not yahullu, therefore, the correct interpretation of the words is that displeasure from your Lord should be due to you.

Ar. thee.Ar. thy.

83 And what caused you to hasten from your people, O Moses?

84 He said: They are here on my track and I hastened on to Thee, my Lord, that Thou mightest be pleased.

Ar. thy.Ar. thee.

85 He said: So surely we have tried your people after you, and the Sámiri has led them astray.¹⁵⁹⁵

86 So Moses returned to his people wrathful, sorrowing. Said he: O my people! did not your Lord promise you a goodly promise: did then the time seem long to you, or did you wish that displeasure from your Lord should be due to you, so that you broke (your) promise to me?

Ar. thee.

87 They said: We did not break (our) promise to you of our own accord, but we were made to bear the burdens of the ornaments of the people, then we cast them away, and thus did the Sámiri suggest.¹⁵⁹⁶

88 So he brought forth for them a calf, a (mere) body, which had a hollow sound, so they said: This is your god and the god of Moses, but he forgot.¹⁵⁹⁷

مُوسَىٰ قَتِيلٌ ۝

1595 Whether this Sámiri was some ancestor of the Samaritans or not need not be discussed. The verse only shows that some person other than Aaron was responsible for making the calf. From Rabbinical literature (see Jewish En., Art. "Calf") it appears that the Egyptians who had come with the Israelites were foremost in demanding the making of the calf. And 'Atá held on the authority of I'Ab that he was an Egyptian who had believed in Moses and came along with the Israelites (Rz). The opinion that he was of a people who worshipped the cow is also traceable to I'Ab (Rz).

1596 The Israelites may have borrowed ornaments from the Egyptians, as is affirmed in Exod. 12:35, and the reference may here be to those ornaments, or the significance may simply be that the nomadic tribes of Israel, who were unaccustomed to these things, had imbibed these habits from the Egyptians, and now gave up those ornaments at the suggestion of the Sámiri. The words فَكَذَّابُكَ الْفَقِيرُ are generally taken to mean that the Sámiri also cast away the ornaments, and though the word alqá means he cast away, yet the object of alqá is not mentioned here. The reply of the people states clearly they had not done the thing of their own accord, and hence the reference in the concluding words is to the suggestions cast into the minds of the people by the Sámiri. And you say القاه عليه meaning he put it into his mind, or he suggested it (Kull-LL). It also means he dictated it, i.e. a writing (Msb-LL). The word kazálíka, meaning thus, therefore refers to the proposal of the casting away of the ornaments.

1597 According to I'Ab, it had neither a voice nor a soul, but it was only a hollow sound produced by the air passing through the hollow of the metal of which it was made (JB).

1598 The argument made use of in this verse shows that the Holy Qur-án condemns the worship of all those gods who neither return answers to the prayers of their worshippers nor control their destinies. The logical consequence of this argument is that the true worshipper of God receives a reply to his prayers.

1599 From this it is clear that not only had Aaron no part in making the calf, but he even enjoined his people to give up its worship. The Qur-án here differs from the Bible in declaring a prophet to be free from the sin of associating gods with Allah.

1600 The stories built upon the simple words قبضت قبضة من اثر الرسول do not deserve to be noticed. Suffice it to say that even Rz discredits them. That the apostle is

97 He said: Begone then, surely for you it will be in this life to say, Touch (me) not; and surely there is a threat for you, which shall not be made to fail to you, and look at your god to whose worship you kept (so long); we will certainly burn it, then we will certainly scatter it a (wide) scattering in the sea.¹⁶⁰¹

Gabriel, that he rode on a horse, that by اثر الرسول (lit. the footprints of the apostle) is meant footprints of the horse, are conjectures pure and simple, to which the Qur-án does not lend the least support. The rasul, or apostle, is evidently Moses himself; his aqar signifies his sunnah, i.e. his practices and sayings, a significance to which all authorities agree (LL), the word being well known in Muslim religious literature, and the qabḍatun is taking or following those practices in part, because qabḍatun denotes a single act of taking, or only a handful, i.e. a small part of it. The meaning is thus clear: the man who made the calf asserts that he had a clearer perception of things than the Israelites, that he accepted the teachings of Moses only partially, and confesses that he now threw off even that part and made a calf for worship.

1601 This shows that the ashes of the calf were thrown into the sea, and the story of the Israelites being made to drink of water mixed with the ashes of the calf is not, therefore, credited by the Holy Qur-án (see 137). The punishment given to the Sámiri is that of an outcast in society, who is prohibited from having any intercourse or relations with the Israelite people.

1601A The word zurq means blue-eyed, and thus it serves as an indication of the nations who are spoken of here as being gathered. According to Bḍ, blue being the colour of the eyes of the Rûm (i.e. the Greeks or the Romans), who were most hated by the Arabs, that colour was regarded by the Arabs as the worst colour for the eye. The word may also signify blind, in reference to the guilty being raised up blind on the resurrection day, for which see v. 124.

إِذْنُ لَهُ الرَّحْمَنُ وَرَضِيَ لَهُ قَوْلًا

1602 The object of 'ashrá is omitted; but, as elsewhere the lovers of the world are described as loving to be granted a life of a thousand years (2:96), and they are told that even their being granted such a long life will in no way remove them further off from the chastisement, what is apparently indicated here is that they shall have enjoyed ten centuries of great prosperity. Or, if the word days is understood, the ten days of the life of a nation would also mean ten centuries.

1603 Because a day is equal to a thousand years. See 22:47: "And they ask you to hasten on the chastisement, and Allah will by no means fail in His promise, and surely a day with your Lord is as a thousand years of what you number." It is the man who reminds them of this Divine promise that is called the fairest in course.

1604 The word jabal means a mountain, as well as the lord or chief of a people (Q, TA-IL). That the latter significance is intended here is shown by the context; see in particular v. 108: "On that day they shall follow the inviter." In the same sense are to be taken the two verses that follow: they point to the removal of all obstacles that hindered the propagation of truth.

1605 The inviter in whom there is no crookedness is no other than the Holy Prophet, as is clearly stated elsewhere, "Who revealed the Book to His servant and did not make in it (or him) any crookedness" (18:1). The whole verse clearly points to a time when Islam should be completely established, and instead of opposition the voices should be low before the Beneficent God. The lowness of the voice indicates submission.

110 He knows what is before them and what is behind them, while they do not comprehend it in knowledge.

112 And whoever does good works and he is a believer, he shall have no fear of injustice nor of the withholding of his due.

113 And thus have we sent it down an Arabic Qur-ān, and have distinctly set forth therein of threats that they may guard (against evil) or that it may produce a reminder for them.

114 Supremely exalted is therefore Allah the King, the Truth: and do not make haste with the Qur-ān before its revelation is made complete to you and say: O my Lord! increase me in knowledge.¹⁶⁰⁶

Ar. thee.

115 And certainly We gave a commandment to Adam before, but he forgot; and We did not find in him any determination (to disobey).¹⁶⁰⁷

The Devil's misleading

116-121. The devil deceives. 122, 123. Allah is merciful. 124-128. The spiritually blind.

116 And when We said to the angels: Make obeisance to Adam,^a they made obeisance, but Iblis (did it not)^b; he refused.

1606 The making haste with the Qur-ān signifies the Holy Prophet's desire that the warning to the unbelievers may be given in clear words, so that they may benefit by it. This is explained at length in 2614.

1607 This shows that Adam's fault was not intentional, and hence no sin can be attributed to him on this ground.

Ar. thee.
Ar. thou

118 Surely it is (ordained) for you that you shall not be hungry therein nor bare of clothing;

Ar. thou

120 But the devil made an evil suggestion to him; he said: O Adam! shall I guide you to the tree of immortality and a kingdom which decays not?

a 866.

121 Then they both ate of it, so their evil inclinations became manifest to them,^a and they both began to cover themselves with leaves of the garden,^b and Adam disobeyed his Lord, so his life became evil (to him).¹⁶⁰⁹

b 867.

122 Then his Lord chose him, so He turned to him and guided (him).

123 He said: Get forth you two therefrom, all (of you), one of you (is) enemy to another. So there will surely come to you guidance from Me, then whoever follows My guidance, he shall not go astray nor be unhappy;

إِنَّ لَكَ أَلَّا تَجُوعَ فِيهَا وَلَا تَعْرَىٰ
وَأَنَّكَ لَا تَظْمَأُ فِيهَا وَلَا تَصْفَىٰ
فَوَسْوَسَ إِلَيْهِ الشَّيْطَانُ قَالَ يَا دُمْ

قَالَ اهْبِطَا مِنْهَا جَمِيعًا بَعْضُكُمْ
لِبَعْضٍ عَدُوٌّ. وَأَمَّا يَا تَبْتَكَفُ مِنْ
هُدًى لَمْ تَتَّبِعْ هُدَايَ فَلَا
يُضِلُّ وَلَا يَشْفَعُ

1608 The garden of which a picture is given here is an earthly garden in which all comforts necessary for a man are made available to him. The words you shall not be hungry therein should be read along with what is said elsewhere: And eat from it a plenteous food wherever you wish (2: 35). Allegorically it signifies a state of contentment or rest in which there is no yearning to either good or evil, being as it were a state of inertia, devoid of exertion or ambition.

1609 Ghawā is explained by Rgh as meaning فسد عليه عيشه i.e. his life became evil to him. It is also interpreted as meaning he was disappointed, or he acted ignorantly (TA-LL).

It should be noted that while in the picture of the garden drawn above in vv. 118 and 119 mention is made of four things, the consequence of getting out of that state is only one, the becoming manifest to them of their evil inclinations or their shame. An explanation of this is found in 7: 26, where it is said: "O children of Adam! We have indeed sent down on you clothing to cover your shame and clothing for beauty; and clothing that guards (against evil), that is the best." Thus it is the clothing that guards against evil that is really spoken of here, and by the manifestation of the shame is meant the consciousness of having done something evil. The allegorical nature of what is so often related as the story of Adam is thus evident. It will be further seen that the remedy pointed out by the Holy Qur-ān is of a spiritual nature: "So surely there will come to you a guidance from Me; then whoever follows My guidance no fear shall come upon them, nor shall they grieve" (2: 38). This shows that the spiritual aspect of man's life and not the physical one is the real theme of Adam's story. This is further made clear by the verses that follow, viz. 123 and 124.

124 And whoever turns away from My reminder, his shall surely be a straitened life, and We will raise him on the day of resurrection, blind.¹⁶¹⁰

125 He shall say: My Lord! why hast Thou raised me blind, and I was a seeing one indeed?

126 He will say: Even so: Our communications came to you, but you neglected them; even thus shall you be forsaken this day.

127 And thus do We recompense him who is extravagant and does not believe in the communications of his Lord; and certainly the chastisement of the hereafter is severer and more lasting.

128 Does it not then direct them aright how many of the generations in whose dwelling-places they go about We destroyed before them? Most surely there are signs in this for those endowed with understanding.

Ar. thou.
Ar. thou didst neglect.
Ar. shalt
thou.

1610 The straitened life is really, as pointed out above, a life of spiritual straitness, because it is of the spiritual aspect of man's life that the Holy Qur-án is speaking here.

1610a Both Rodwell and Palmer are wrong in translating this passage. The meaning is clear. The unbelievers would have the threatened punishment hastened. But they had been told that so long as the Holy Prophet was among them they would not be punished. This was the word that had already gone forth. The appointed term was the battle of Badr, which is frequently spoken of in the Holy Qur-án as being the time when a blow will be dealt to the power of a persecuting enemy. See 982.

1610a The Holy Prophet, while told to bear patiently the persecutions for a time, is also told to seek comfort in prayer. Hence the injunction to bear patiently is at once followed by an injunction to pray. And he did find comfort in prayer under the severest persecutions. "The coolness of my eyes is in prayer," he is reported to have said. This verse speaks of the five obligatory prayers and the two optional ones. Before the rising of the sun is the morning prayer, before its setting the 'aṣr prayer. Three prayers, the maghrib, the 'ishā and the tahajjud (the last named being optional), occur during hours of the night, while during parts of the day are the ḡhur and the ḡhūdā, the latter again being optional, being a short prayer before midday, as the ḡhur is the after midday prayer.

1610c The Holy Qur-ān is here called a clear evidence of what is contained in the previous books, because it fulfils their prophecies and also adduces arguments for the assertions made in them.

PART XVII

CHAPTER XXI

THE PROPHETS

(Al-Anbiyá)

REVEALED AT MECOA

(7 sections and 112 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Judgment approaches.
- Sec. 2. Truth has always triumphed.
- Sec. 3. The truth of revelation.
- Sec. 4. Allah deals with men mercifully.
- Sec. 5. Abraham's history.
- Sec. 6. Allah delivers prophets from their enemies.
- Sec. 7. The righteous shall inherit the land.

The Title.

THIS chapter deals more with the deliverance of the righteous than the punishment of the wicked, more with the triumph of truth than the annihilation of falsehood, though the one no doubt implies the other. While it is devoted in part to general statements regarding the deliverance of the prophets and the ultimate triumph of their cause, and hence it goes under the name of Prophets, the history of Abraham, the great father of numerous prophets, is particularly referred to, as affording an example nearer to the case of the Holy Prophet than the example of any other prophet.

Connection with preceding chapters.

As regards the arrangement of chapters, it may be noted that the sixth and seventh belong to the first group of Meccan chapters and complement each other. The second group consists of seven chapters, from the 10th to the 16th inclusive. The third group, beginning with chapter 17, also consists of seven chapters. The first chapter of this group, while promising Islam a great future, cites the example of the Israelites and in what manner they were dealt with. This is followed by that which deals with the history of Christianity, then by one giving prominence to the histories of John and Jesus, a fourth dealing chiefly with the history of Moses. Naturally, then, these chapters should have been followed by the history of that great patriarch who is the father of both the Israelites and the Ishmaelites. Another phase of this chapter is the deliverance of the righteous, even as the punishment of the wicked is the distinguishing characteristic of the four that precede it, and thus destruction is here followed by construction.

Subject-matter.

The chapter begins with the certainty of the punishment of the Meccans, and is followed by a clear declaration that the judgment approaches and the reckoning is nigh. This is

SECTION 1

Judgment approaches

1-4. Warning is unheeded. 5. They waver in judgment. 6-10. Former prophets and their opponents.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 Their reckoning has drawn near to men, and in heedlessness are they turning aside.

2 There comes not to them a new reminder from their Lord but they hear it while they sport,

3 Their hearts trifling; and those who are unjust counsel together in secret: He is nothing but a mortal like yourselves; what! will you then yield to enchantment while you see?

4 He said: My Lord knows what is spoken in the heaven and the earth, and He is the Hearing, the Knowing.

5 Nay! say they: Medleys of dreams; nay! he has forged it; nay! he is a poet; so let him bring to us a sign as the former (prophets) were sent (with).¹⁶¹¹ borne out by the fact that truth must triumph now as it has always done, and this is shown in the second section. The third draws attention to the truth of revelation in general, and the revelation of the Prophet in particular. The fourth calls attention to the predominance of mercy in Divine nature, for merciful dealing was specially to mark the punishment of the Holy Prophet's opponents, and in this respect Abraham was to be his prototype, whose history forms the subject-matter of the next section. The sixth shows how prophets have always been delivered from the hands of their enemies in the most critical circumstances, and the last adds that the righteous are made to inherit the land, specially referring to the Holy Land, which was now promised to the Muslims as righteousness had departed from the house of Israel.

أُرْسِلَ الْأَوَّلُونَ ۝

Date of revelation.

As regards the date of revelation, while there is nothing to show that any portion of it was revealed elsewhere than at Mecca, there are no data which could help us in deciding an approximately probable date of its revelation. In all probability, however, it belongs to the middle period of the Holy Prophet's Meccan career.

1611 The Quraish seem to have been quite puzzled—as the Christian critics of the Qur-án are puzzled to-day—what they could liken the Qur-án to. They first call it a sihr, i.e. skilful eloquence (TA), because, notwithstanding their opposition to it, it had an attraction for them. But then there are prophecies which mere eloquence cannot produce, so they call it medleys

Ar. thes.

6 There did not believe before them any town which We destroyed: will they then believe? ¹⁶¹²

7 And We did not send before you any but men to whom We sent revelation, so ask the followers of the reminder if you do not know.

8 And We did not make them bodies not eating the food, and they were not to abide (for ever). ¹⁶¹³

9 Then We made Our promise good to them, so We delivered them and those whom We pleased, and We destroyed the extravagant.

10 Certainly We have revealed to you a book in which is your eminence; what! do you not then understand? ¹⁶¹⁴

SECTION 2

Truth has always triumphed

11-15. The wicked are destroyed. 16-18. Truth prevails in heavens and earth. 19-26. Unity is the great truth preached by all prophets. 27-29. Sinlessness of prophets.

11 And how many a town which was iniquitous did We demolish, and We raised up after it another people!

12 So when they felt Our punishment, lo! they began to fly from it.

وَكَمْ قَصَمْنَا مِنْ قَرْيَةٍ كَانَتْ ظَالِمَةً of dreams. Then they think that there is a settled purpose therein, by reason of its asserting the Prophet's triumph and the discomfiture of his powerful enemies, so they call it an intentional forgery; and lastly, as if to devise one word combining all these, they call him a poet. Then they demand a sign the like of which was given to the former prophets, meaning their destruction and his triumph, because the Qur-án had repeatedly called their attention to the fate of those who had rejected the truth before them.

1612 They are told, in reply to their demand for a sign similar to those given to the former prophets, that persistence in wickedness and unbelief have always been punished with destruction, but they are called upon to follow the truth and avoid punishment. They have, however, been warned that if they would not obey, then what had led to the destruction of those before them would also lead to theirs.

1613 This shows clearly that every prophet had a mortal body needing food for its support, and that every one of ~~them~~ tasted of death. Therefore Jesus also must have had a body which stood in need of food and must have tasted of death. So the idea that he is alive in the heavens is clearly opposed to the Holy Qur-án. The Qur-án has plainly said that all prophets were mortals, so the prophet Jesus must also have been a mortal, and he could not now be alive, needing no food, as the holders of the belief in his ascent to heaven think.

1614 Whenever the Quraish demanded that the threatened punishment should be inflicted 13 Do not fly (now) and come back to what you were made to lead easy lives in and to your dwellings, haply you will be questioned.

14 They said: O woe to us! surely we were unjust.

15 And this ceased not to be their cry till We made them cut off, extinct.¹⁶¹⁵

16 And We did not create the heaven and the earth and what is between them for sport.¹⁶¹⁶

17 Had We wished to make a diversion, We would have made it from before Ourselves: by no means would We do (it).¹⁶¹⁷

18 Nay! We cast the truth against the falsehood, so that it breaks its head, and lo! it vanishes; and woe to you for what you describe.¹⁶¹⁸

19 And whoever is in the heavens and the earth is His; and those who are with Him are not proud to serve Him, nor do they grow weary.

20 They glorify (Him) by night and day: they are never languid.

21 Or have they taken gods from the earth who raise (the dead).¹⁶¹⁹ upon them, the reply always was that the Qur-án was a blessing and a mercy for them. The same truth is expressed here. They demand a sign like that of former prophets, but they are told that the Qur-án has been revealed to make them a great and eminent nation in the world. As for zīkr meaning eminence, fame, renown, honour, see S, Msh, Q, TA and LL. Also compare 94 : 4, 43 : 44, in all which places zīkr has the same meaning.

1615 The metaphor in ḥaṣīd is taken from seed-produce which is reaped and in kḥāmīd from fire which is extinguished and the ashes of which are left smouldering. The above verses contain a clear warning for the Meccans.

1616 It is a continuance of the warning given in the previous verses. They were made to witness signs of the truth of the Prophet and of the Unity of Allah in heaven and earth, and they are now told to bear in mind that these signs were not in vain. In nature every cause has an effect and every end is achieved by means. Everything in nature is serious, so man too must take things seriously.

1617 The in is here nafīyah, i.e. negating the statement already made. Diversion in this verse carries the same significance as sporting in the previous verse. The commentators, however, add that lahw, in the dialect of Yeman, signifies wife or child, and thus the statement made in the verse is a refutation of the Christian doctrine that Jesus Christ is the son of God (Rā, Bq). The meaning in this case would be that God does not take to Himself a son.

1618 This statement is the logical sequence of the statement in the two previous verses: truth in nature is always prevailing against falsehood.

1619 Here we have a clear statement that those who are taken for gods could not raise the dead to life. This must be borne in mind in any discussion about the miracles of Jesus Christ, whose alleged divinity in particular is the subject matter of these verses.

1620 This is a conclusive argument against polytheism. There is order in the universe because one law pervades the whole of it, and one law clearly points to one Author and Maintainer of that law. Had there been other gods, one law could not have governed the whole of the universe, and disorder and confusion would certainly have been the result. The unity of law is a clear proof of the Unity of the Maker.

1621 The great and fundamental truth of the Unity of Allah is common to all religions.

1622 This is a clear reference to the Christian doctrine of the sonship of Jesus.

1623 The meaning is that they whom they call sons are honoured servants of Allah, the reference being to prophets, because it is a prophet whom they call a son of God. Against the doctrine that Jesus Christ is the son of God the Qur-ān does not say that he is an honoured servant, but that they are honoured servants, which, while negating the doctrine of the sonship of Jesus, adduces an argument against it. That argument is in the words honoured servants, for these words draw our attention to the fact that many men were spoken of as the sons of God, but that the title signified nothing more than that they were honoured servants, and that therefore Jesus was son of God exactly in the same sense as the others.

1624 This verse gives us a conclusive testimony to the sinlessness of prophets. When they speak they do not precede Allah in speech, i.e. they speak according to what He has taught them, not speaking of their own accord. And when they act, they act according to 28 He knows what is before them and what is behind them, and they do not intercede except for him whom He approves, and for fear of Him they tremble.

29 And whoever of them should say, Surely I am a god besides Him, such a one do We recompense with hell; thus do We recompense the unjust.

The Truth of Revelation

30-35. Arguments of the truth of revelation. 36-41. Their mockery and its punishment.

His commandment. Thus both their speech and their actions are in accordance with Divine will, and therefore it cannot be said that they commit sin. The context shows clearly that the verse speaks of prophets, and not of angels.

1625 The closing up of the heavens and the earth is an allusion to the cessation of Divine revelation for a time before the advent of the Holy Prophet, which was marked by the absence of a prophet in the world for six hundred years and the prevalence of corruption all over the world. The opening up of the heavens and the earth signifies the coming of revelation, which brought life to the world. In physical nature we see that the rain opens up the earth.

1626 While this statement reveals a remarkable truth in the physical world, a truth which science has established only recently, and which was not known to the world generally at the time of the Holy Prophet, viz. that water is the source of all life, it draws attention to the equally remarkable spiritual truth that it is only by Divine revelation, which is again and again compared to water in the Holy Qur-án, that life is given to a world otherwise dead in sin and corruption. Thus, according to the Holy Qur-án, this heavenly water always continues to be rained upon earth, and the door to Divine revelation is not closed upon the world in any age.

1627 The wide ways are the ways pointed out by prophets among every nation. By following these ways they could find the right direction, i.e. the truth concerning the Holy Prophet.

32 And We have made the heaven a guarded canopy and (yet) they turn aside from its signs.¹⁶²⁸

33 And He it is who created the night and the day and the sun and the moon: all (orbs) travel along swiftly in their celestial spheres.

1628 Arabia had its spiritualists, the astrologers and the diviners who pretended to have access to the secrets of heaven, for a full explanation of which see 3580. They are told that they cannot have any such access. Or the meaning may be that revelation (being called here heaven) is guarded against all attacks.

1629 They were afflicted with small evils, and the removal of these again brought to them a turn of good events. All this was by way of probation; the greater punishment which was to bring about the final overthrow of their power was yet in store for them.

1630 The Arabs, being an idolatrous people, would not, like the Christians, call Allah by the name Ar-Rahmān; hence the Beneficent God is here spoken of in contrast with the idols. In practice, too, they denied the beneficence of Allah (the quality of showing mercy to His creatures without their deserving it), for they repeatedly asked for the punishment to be hastened to them, though they were again and again told to seek His mercy. Their scoffing at the Prophet was also due to the delay of the punishment, because they thought that the Prophet's warning contained empty threats.

1631 So prominent is the characteristic of haste in man that he may be said to have been created, as it were, of very haste. The expression is explained by what follows: Now will I show to you My signs, therefore do not ask Me to hasten them on.

1632 This verse in clear terms refutes those who say that no signs were shown by the Prophet. It explains that whenever it is said that signs are with Allah, the meaning is that He will show those signs, not that they will not be shown.

1633, see next page.

39 Had those who disbelieve but known (of the time) when they shall not be able to ward off the fire from their faces nor from their backs, nor shall they be helped.

1633 The particular sign which they again and again demanded was that a destructive punishment like that which overtook former people should overtake them.

1634 The rejecters of truth have always scoffed at the idea of being punished for their rejection. Thus do all doers of evil think that they shall not be made to suffer the consequences of their misdeeds.

This and the two preceding verses assert in the clearest and most forcible words that the final triumph of truth will be brought about.

1635 That is, were it not that Allah were beneficent to you and guarded you, there is none who could guard you. Or if He, notwithstanding His beneficence, were to punish you because of your persistence in evil to such a degree as to call for the wrath of even a Beneficent Master, there would be none to guard you against that punishment.

47 And We will set up a just balance* on the day of resurrection, so no soul shall be dealt with unjustly in the least; and though there be the weight of a grain of mustard seed, (yet) will We bring it, and Sufficient are We to take account.

48 And certainly We gave to Moses and Aaron the distinction and a light and a reminder for those who would guard (against evil);¹⁶³⁶

1636 The distinction given to Moses was that he overthrew a most powerful enemy. The last verse of the section predicts that a similar sign would be shown in the case of the Holy Prophet.

1637 The history of Abraham is contained in various chapters of the Holy Qur-án, the different portions supplementing each other, there being very little repetition. The following is a complete list of all references to him: 2: 124-132, 133, 135, 136, 140, 258, 260; 3: 64-67, 83; 4: 125; 6: 75-83; 9: 114; 11: 69-76; 12: 6; 14: 35-41; 15: 51-60; 16: 110-123; 19: 41-49; 21: 51-72; 22: 28-29; 26: 69-89; 29: 16, 17, 24-27; 37: 83-113; 38: 45, 46; 43: 28-28; 51: 24-34; 57: 26; 60: 4.

1638 The story of Abraham's breaking the idols is related in Jewish Rabbinical literature, Gen R 38, and Tauna Debe Eliyahu 2: 25 (Jewish En.).

1639 No regard being paid to punctuation, this passage قال بل فعله كبيرهم هذا has been wrongly translated by many; there is a stop after the words بل فعله and the words كبيرهم هذا are thus separated from the first words. The rendering, the chief of them here has done this, would be only correct if there were no pause after the first words, but the pause being there in all the copies of the Qur-án, the two phrases must be translated independently of each other. Thus fa'alahú would signify some doer has done it—Rz:

فعله من فعله —and the word bal is not necessarily a particle of digression, implying the negation of what precedes it, often denoting no more than and or surely. Thus LL says: "Sometimes it is used to denote the passing from one subject to another without cancelling what precedes it and is synonymous with wao, as in the saying in the Qur-án, 85: 20, 21

والله من وراءهم محيط بل هو قَرآنٌ مجيد (And God from behind them is encompassing, and it is a glorious Qur-án; or here it may mean as in an example below) . . . (Msb)."

The other passage كبيرهم هذا being an independent statement, means the chief of them is this, because it was left unbroken by Abraham, and is connected with what follows, therefore ask them, if they can speak. The use of the plural in the latter part of the statement is in no way objectionable, as examples of this kind, i.e. of transition from singular to plural, are of such frequent occurrence in Arabic literature and in the Holy Qur-án that I need not offer an explanation.

1640 نكسروا على رؤسهم may mean either that they were made to hang down their heads on account of the shame, for their deities had proved so helpless as to be unable to name even the person who did them injury, or that they were turned upon their heads upside down, i.e. they were made to fall back into disputation with Abraham after having confessed their weakness.

1641 This event no doubt kindled the fire of opposition against Abraham, but it did no harm to him and he remained in peace. The next verse shows that this fire was only a kaid, or a hard struggle, against him, or a war of opposition to him. They may have resolved to burn him, but their plan failed. See further 1910, 1910a.

1642 According to the Biblical account of Abraham, the patriarch undertook successful expeditions against Chedorlaomer, king of Elam, and his confederate kings. Rabbinical literature also gives the names of certain kings whom Abraham defeated.

1643 It is a Meccan Sura, and it shows clearly that the Qur-án regards Jacob not as Abraham's son, but as his grandson, for such is the significance of the word naflah.

1644 Elsewhere it is stated that everything that exists in the heaven or the earth is made subservient to man (45: 13); and on various occasions it is mentioned that the rivers, the sea, the sun and the moon, night and day, etc., are made subservient to man (16: 12, 14; 18: 2, etc.). This explains the meaning of making things subservient or tashkir, which thus signifies only making them useful to man. Nor need any stories be built up on the mountains declaring glory, for elsewhere it is said that there is nothing that does not declare the glory of Allah (17: 44).

But see 2022, where a similar statement occurs and is shown to refer to the conquests of David. For other references to David see 2:251; 4:163; 5:78; 6:85; 27:15, 16; 34:10-13; 38:17-30.

1645 It is not here stated that the making of coats of mail was not known before David. He had to fight many battles and against very strong enemies, and there is no doubt that in these battles he had to equip the armies of Israel in the best possible manner; and if he therefore equipped his troops with coats of mail on a large scale for their protection against the enemy, there is nothing wonderful about it. The story of iron becoming wax in his hands is a pure fable. See further 2023, 2024.

1646 For other references to Solomon see 2:102; 4:163; 6:85; 27:15-44; 34:12-14; 38:30-40. The meaning given in the margin conveys the true significance of the words. Solomon's fleet did him an important service. According to Biblical history, "with the Phenicians he united in maritime commerce, sending out a fleet once in three years from Ezion-geber, at the head of the gulf of Aqaba, to Ophir, presumably on the eastern coast of the Arabian peninsula. From this distant part and others on the way he derived fabulous amounts of gold and tropical products. These revenues gave him almost unlimited means for increasing the glory of his capital city and palace, and for the perfection of his civil and military organization" (Jewish Ency.). Also compare 14:32: "And He made the ships subservient to you, that they might run their course in the sea by His command," which is in exact accordance with what is stated here. For what taskhtr, or subservience, signifies, see 1644.

1647 The shayāṭīn, i.e. the devils that dived to bring up pearls from the bottom of the sea, were not different from the divers of to-day, though they must have been fiercer and stronger men, because strength had to supply the place of knowledge in those days. The word shayṭān in Arabic signifies one who is excessively proud, rebellious, or audacious, whether a man, or a jinn, or a beast (LL). See further 2027.

life from among the dead, for when a man is separated from his friends or family we speak of his friends or family being restored to him without entertaining the least idea of their being raised to life from among the dead. See 2144, 2145, and 2146, where is described Job's joining his family and friends after a long journey accompanied by many difficulties.

1649 The name given here is Zulkifl, which literally means one having a portion that would suffice (Rgh). The commentators differ in identifying him with one of the Biblical prophets, Zacharias, Elias, or Joshua (Rz). Rodwell states, on the authority of Travels of Niebuhr, that the Arabs call Ezekiel by the name of Kifl. The suggestion, therefore, that by Zulkifl is meant the Prophet Ezekiel is more sound. This prophet is mentioned only once again, as here without any reference to his history, in 38:48.

1650 Zunnun is another name for Jonah, the Arabic equivalent of the latter being Yūnus, by which name the prophet is mentioned in 6:87, 10:98, and 37:139. Zunnun literally signifies lord of the fish, and a similar epithet صاحب الحوت i.e. the companion of the fish, is given in 68:48. The title of the prophet is taken from the incident of the fish, for an explanation of which see 2123.

1651 The Qur-ān is far from teaching that Jonah was wroth with Allah. Evidently he was wroth with his people because of their stubbornness (Rz). See also 2121.

1652 لَنْ نَقْدِرَ عَلَيْهِ is, according to commentators, equivalent to لَنْ نَضِيقَ عَلَيْهِ

i.e. we would not straiten him; and the same is the meaning of قَدَّرَ عَلَيْهِ as given by the lexicologists. See LL, which quotes several authorities.

1653 ظلمات البحر signifies calamities or hardships of the sea (M-LL); and difficulty is compared to darkness because of the inability of a man to find his way when in difficulty, as when in darkness.

1654 Jonah's prayer gives us a true picture of human nature in affliction. Man, no doubt, always makes himself the sufferer of loss, and it is Divine grace which takes him by the hand. The "I" here stands for "man." As for ḡulm, according to some its primary significance is nugṭ (MF, TA), i.e. the making to suffer loss or detriment (LL).

1655 That is, one who will remain after all have perished.

90 So We responded to him and gave him John and made his wife fit for him;¹⁶⁵⁶ surely they used to hasten, one with another, in deeds of goodness and to call upon Us, hoping and fearing; and they were humble before Us.

1656 By fitness is meant fitness to bear a child, because she was thought to be barren.

1657 Nothing is said about immaculate conception here. The guarding of chastity, which is the true significance of أحصنت فرجها does not preclude the lawful union of husband and wife.

1658 The basic principle of all religions taught by the prophets has been one and the same in all ages and all countries, that Allah is the Lord of all and He alone must be served. The word ummat either signifies a community or religion (Rgh), the word being used in the latter sense elsewhere in the Holy Qur-ān, as in 43 : 22, this being, in fact, the primary significance of the word, which means a way or a course of acting and also religion (LL). The basic principles of the religions of all the prophets are one and the same, and therefore all prophets themselves form a single community.

1659 By qaryah, i.e. town, here are meant ahli-qaryah, i.e. the people of a town, and ḥardm means wajib, i.e. binding, essential, or due, according to Kasāf, ḤAb giving the same meaning to the word by a slight variation in the reading, and in support of this significance is quoted a verse of Abdur Rahman bin Jumana, a poet of the days of ignorance:

فَان حَرَامًا لَا أَرَى الدَّهْرَ بَاكِيًا + عَلَى شَجْوَةِ الْإِبْكِيَّتِ عَلَى عَمْرٍ

where ḥardm is evidently equivalent to wajib (Rz). The verse reveals the great truth that those who are made to taste of death are not sent back into this world. Nisai and Ibn-i-Maja relate a saying of the Holy Prophet according to which Jābir, son of Abdulla, was informed by the Prophet that his father Abdulla, who was slain in a battle with the enemies of Islam, on being asked by the Almighty what he desired most, expressed a wish to go back into the world and be slain again in the cause of truth, but received the reply that this could not be, for "the word has gone forth from Me that they shall not return," where the concluding words are evidently the concluding words of this verse, and therefore the verse, read along with this saying, settles conclusively that no one who is dead returns to life in this world. The verse also points out that a nation that is destroyed does not rise again.

1520 The previous verse contains a prohibition against the return to life of those who are dead, or the rise of nations that are once destroyed. This one points out that, even Gog and Magog, notwithstanding their mighty predominance in the world, will follow the same law. For ḥattā, meaning even, see LL, who quotes Mgh.

1521 This shows that a time will come when Gog and Magog shall prevail over the whole world. The breaking forth from every elevated place signifies the taking possession of every position of advantage and of eminence.

1522 Those who turn a deaf ear to the preaching of truth here shall be raised deaf in the life after death.

1523 This verse totally refutes the false idea that even the righteous shall first go to hell. They are here declared to be so far off from it as not even to hear its faintest sound.

1524 It is the bliss of communion with the Divine Being which the souls of the righteous long for, so it is that bliss in which they shall live in the hereafter.

103 The great fearful event shall not grieve them, and the angels shall meet them: This is your day which you were promised.

104 On the day when We will roll up heaven like the rolling up of the scroll for writings: as We originated the first creation, (so) We shall reproduce it; a promise (binding) on Us; surely We will bring it about.¹⁶⁶⁵

105 And certainly We wrote in the Book after the reminder that (as for) the land, My righteous servants shall inherit it.¹⁶⁶⁶

106 Most surely in this is a message to a people who serve (Us).

Ar. thes. 107 And We have not sent you but as a mercy to (all) the nations.¹⁶⁶⁷

108 Say: It is only revealed to me that your God is one God: will you then submit?

لَا يَحْزَنُهُمُ الْفَرَقُ الْأَكْبَرُ وَتَلْقَاهُمْ

قُلْ إِنَّمَا يُوحَىٰ إِلَيَّ أَنَّمَا إِلَهُمُ إِلَهٌ
وَاحِدٌ قَهْلَ أَنْتُمْ مُسْلِمُونَ

1665 The rolling up of the heaven and the bringing about of a new creation refer to the complete transformation which was to be brought about in Arabia by the Prophet's message, a transformation so great that, as it were, both earth and heaven were changed. Instead of the mutual strifes of one tribe with another, leading to endless confusion and disorder in the land, there was a single united nation marching forth with triumph and enlightenment, and instead of the childish fancies and impious superstitions of fortune-tellers, diviners, and star-worshippers, and in place of idolatry which degraded human nature itself, there was an entire resignation to Divine will and holy communion with the real Source of all Holiness. This interpretation is corroborated by the verse that follows.

1666 The Qur-án had repeatedly warned the unbelievers that Islam would be made triumphant in the land, and the righteous servants who were made to suffer persecution would one day be masters of the land. The words also contain a prophecy of the possession of the Holy Land by the Muslims, which was fulfilled in the Caliphate of 'Umar. Compare Ps. 37:29.

1667 While the words no doubt contain a reference to the merciful dealing with the Prophet's opponents, the real significance is that the Prophet's advent will prove a mercy not only to the Arabs by making them a foremost nation in the world, but to the whole of humanity. And, in fact, the teachings of the Qur-án have not only benefited its followers, but even those who still reject its message, for, notwithstanding their rejection of it, they have accepted many of its majestic principles. Even European nations will be found to have prospered to the extent to which they have acted upon the principles of Islam. Islam has, moreover, proved a mercy to the nations on account of having brought back into the world all those teachings leading to the glory and greatness of man which had been quite lost to the world before its advent, and of having eradicated numerous superstitious beliefs and doctrines degrading humanity.

These words clearly establish the excellence of the Holy Prophet above all other prophets

109 But if they turn back, say : I have given you warning in fairness and I do not know whether what you are threatened with is near or far :

110 Surely He knows what is spoken openly and He knows what you hide :

111 And I do not know if this may be a trial for you and a provision till a time.

112 He said : O my Lord ! judge Thou with truth ; and our Lord is the Beneficent God Whose help is sought against what you ascribe (to Him).

فَإِنْ تَوَلَّوْا أَقْبَلْ أَذُنَكُمْ عَلَى سَمْعِ آدَمَ وَإِنْ of the world, for whereas every prophet before him was sent as a mercy to a particular people, he is sent as a mercy to the whole world. Through him shall all nations of the earth be blessed. And there is no doubt that the Cimmerian darkness which prevailed over the whole world before the advent of the Prophet was dispelled by his advent, and light and learning have followed the footsteps of Islam.

CHAPTER XXII
THE PILGRIMAGE
(Al-Hajj)

REVEALED AT MECCA
(10 sections and 78 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. The judgment.
- Sec. 2. Certainty of Divine help.
- Sec. 3. Believers shall be triumphant.
- Sec. 4. The Sacred House.
- Sec. 5. Sacrifices.
- Sec. 6. Believers permitted to fight.
- Sec. 7. Opposition to the Prophet.
- Sec. 8. The faithful shall be established in the land.
- Sec. 9. Divine mercy in dealing with men.
- Sec. 10. Polytheism shall be uprooted.

The Title and context.

THIS is the sixth chapter of the third Meccan group, and while the last chapter dealt generally with the ultimate triumph of truth, this deals particularly with the triumph of the truth proclaimed by the Holy Prophet at Mecca, from whence he was being expelled, and this city is plainly pronounced herein as being the future centre of the Muslims, where pilgrims from all quarters of the world would resort. Here too the Muslims are permitted to fight in defence of the Sacred House, which was really a defence of the liberties of all religions. The chapter is called The Pilgrimage because the proclamation of pilgrimage originally made by Abraham was now repeated by the Holy Prophet and addressed to the whole world, being no longer confined to the borders of Arabia. The permanence of the pilgrimage was really a sign of the permanence of Islam, hence the triumph of Islam is the real significance of the proclamation of pilgrimage.

Subject-matter.

The internal arrangement of the chapter is clear from the abstract. A promise is given to the righteous at the close of the last chapter that they shall inherit the land. This implies the doom of the present masters, consequently they are warned of the approach of judgment and of the terribleness of their doom in the opening verses of this chapter. The second section asserts in the most clear and emphatic words the certainty of Divine help to the Holy Prophet, the emphasis being no doubt due to the utter helplessness of the Prophet, against whom secret plans had been formed, and who was about to flee from his enemies. The next section asserts the triumph of the believers, who were now fleeing by twos and threes to escape persecution by their cruel oppressors. Their triumph, however, involved the conquest of Mecca, for without that spiritual centre their triumph could not be complete, hence the fourth section speaks of the Sacred House and the pilgrimage to it. The connected subject of sacrifices is dealt with next, and the sacrifices which the Muslims themselves were now required to make, viz. the laying down of their lives in the cause of truth, are spoken of in the sixth section, which introduces the subject of fighting. The opposition to the Holy Prophet is mentioned in the seventh, and the eighth clearly states that the faithful shall be established in the land when they have made great sacrifices. Allah's dealing, however, with even the opponents of the truth is merciful, and therefore the punishment is withheld for a while. This we are told in the ninth section, which also shows that mere differences of belief are not punished in this world. The tenth, which is the last section, sums up the whole by showing that polytheism shall ultimately be uprooted.

Date of revelation.

Though it is admitted by all authorities that the major portion of this chapter was revealed at Mecca, doubts have been entertained as to certain verses which are said to have been revealed at Medina. I'Ab is of opinion that vv. 19-22 belong to Medina revelation (AH), while the rest of the chapter is considered by him to be Meccan. But his opinion as to the actual time or place of the revelation of these verses is not based on historical information, but is really due to his interpretation of them. He thinks that the words these are two adversaries who dispute about their Lord refer to the two parties at Badr, but a reference to the text will show that the words refer to the believers and unbelievers generally; and there is not a word in these verses indicating that they speak of two fighting armies and not of two parties controverting each other's religious views. The text, on the other hand, favours the latter interpretation. Moreover, the omission of these verses seriously interrupts the continuity of the subject. The opening words of v. 18 clearly speak of two parties, the believers and the unbelievers, as is shown by v. 18, where two classes of people are mentioned, those who obey Allah and those against whom punishment has become necessary, and while the latter are spoken of in vv. 19-22, their punishment being clearly indicated there, the former are spoken of in vv. 23, 24. Hence vv. 19-22 must have been revealed along with the rest of this portion of the chapter, and their Meccan origin is thus established beyond all doubt.

Rodwell is certainly wrong in placing this chapter among the latest Medina revelations; he is also in error when he considers it to be 107th in the order of revelation. Muir places it at the close of the Meccan suras of the fifth period, and external as well as internal evidence tends to show the correctness of his view. The suggestion that vv. 26-41, speaking of the pilgrimage, belong to Medina is without a foundation. Regarding vv. 39-41, however, I may add that though they speak of permission to fight, it does not follow that they were revealed at Medina merely because no fighting took place at Mecca. For a full discussion of this point see 1697. It is noteworthy that the oath of allegiance taken by the Medina converts at 'Aqaba, before the Holy Prophet's flight, contained a promise that they would fight in defence of the Holy Prophet. Such an oath would not have been taken if a revelation permitting fighting in self-defence had not been received by the Holy Prophet. As regards vv. 58, 59, see 1705, and in the matter of v. 67 no ground is given regarding its Medina origin.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ
يَا أَيُّهَا النَّاسُ اتَّقُوا رَبَّكُمُ إِنَّ زَلْزَلَةَ
السَّاعَةِ شَيْءٌ عَظِيمٌ
يَوْمَ تَرَوْهَا تَنْذَهُلْ كُلُّ مَرْضِعَةٍ
عَمَّا أَزْضَعَتْ وَتَضَعُ كُلُّ ذَاتِ حَمْلٍ
حَمْلَهَا وَتَرَى النَّاسَ سُكَرَى وَهُمْ
يَسْكُرُونَ وَلَكِنَّ عَذَابَ اللَّهِ شَدِيدٌ

1668 The word zalzalah originally signifies a great motion and a violent agitation (I'Ab, Rz), and hence زَلْزَلَةُ الْأَرْضِ means an earthquake. But the use of the word in other senses is extensive. Zalzala means originally he put him into a state of commotion or agitation (LL). And you say جاء بالابل يزلزلها meaning he brought the camels, driving them with violence (TA). And according to the same authority زلزل القوم means the people were turned away from the right course and fear was cast into their hearts. It is noteworthy that the word is specially used in connection with the enemy's defeat, implying a casting of terror into its heart. Thus in 33:11 and also in a prayer of the Prophet when all the Arab tribes allied themselves to destroy the small Muslim community at Medina, we find اللهم اهزم الاحزاب وزلزلهم i.e. O Allah! put to flight the combined forces and make their state of affairs to be unsound (TA-LL), or rather we may translate zalzilhum as meaning cast terror into their hearts (IAs). And according to Ibn-i-Anbari اصابت القوم زلزلة means a condition of affright befell the people (LL). And zaldzil (which is plural of zalzalah, and is not a plural of an unknown singular, as LL seems to think) is plainly given as meaning difficulties, trials, afflictions (TA-LL). Thus the zalzalat is nothing but the terror or affliction of the hour. Such is also one of the significances adopted by AH.

1669 In the Holy Qur-án the word As-sá'at or the hour does not necessarily imply the day of judgment. It qá'n implies the time of judgment in this life, the time when the threatened doom overtakes a people, and this seems to be the significance here, for the very next verse depicts that terror in such words as are only applicable to this life—there being neither pregnant women nor those giving suck on the judgment day. Some consider that a severe shaking of the earth is meant as a sign of the approach of the great judgment, but even in that case it might imply any terrible calamity, such as a great war.

3 And among men there is he who disputes about Allah without knowledge and follows every rebellious devil ;¹⁶⁷⁰

4 Against him it is written down that whoever takes him for a friend, he shall lead him astray and conduct him to the chastisement of the burning fire.

5 O people! if you are in doubt about the raising,¹⁶⁷¹ then surely We created you from dust,¹⁶⁷² then from a small life-germ, then from a clot, then from a lump of flesh, complete in make and incomplete, that We may make clear to you ;¹⁶⁷³ and We cause what We please to stay in the wombs till an appointed time, then We bring you forth as babies, then that you may attain your maturity ; and of you is he who is caused to die, and of you is he who is brought back to the worst part of life,¹⁶⁷⁴ so that after having knowledge he does not know anything ; and you see the earth sterile land, but

Ar. thou seest.

1670 The words may apply to Abu Jahl or Nadar-bin-Hars, but they might as well apply to any one else answering the description. The devil here is, as very frequently in the Holy Qur-án, the devil in human form (Rz).

1671 The word ba'z (raising) is used in three senses in the Holy Qur-án : viz. (1) the raising of the dead to life according to their good or evil deeds on the judgment day, which is the day of the great manifestation of all spiritual realities ; (2) the raising of the spiritually dead to life by the prophets ; and (3) the raising up of prophets by Allah for the guidance of mankind. The word as used here may include all three cases, whether it is the denial of the resurrection or the denial of Allah's raising a prophet (i.e. Muhammad) or the denial of the Prophet's raising them to spiritual life. The argument contained in this and the following verses is equally applicable to all, but it most prominently refers to the spiritual resurrection of the dead.

1672 These words explain the meaning of Adam's, or man's, creation from dust, which is frequently referred to in the Holy Qur-án, for all people are first plainly addressed and are subsequently told that they are all created from dust. But as it is clear that the meaning here cannot be that their figures are moulded from clay, we are led to the conclusion that the reference to Adam's, or man's, creation from dust implies simply his humble origin, or the ultimate springing of all life from earth.

1673 By the various elements from which man is said to be created here are meant the various stages through which every human child passes, the object being to show how humble is his origin. Or the reference may be to the various stages of life through which man has passed in his evolution to the present stage of perfection. Attention is drawn in this to the growth and development of spiritual life in man.

1674 By ارذل العمر or the worst part of life is meant dotage and decrepitude (Rz).

when We send down on it the water, it stirs and swells and brings forth of every kind a beautiful herbage.¹⁶⁷⁵

6 This is because Allah is the Truth and because He gives life to the dead and because He has power over all things,

7 And because the hour is coming, there is no doubt about it; and because Allah shall raise up those who are in the graves.¹⁶⁷⁶

8 And among men there is he who disputes about Allah without knowledge and without guidance and without an illuminating book,

9 Turning away haughtily¹⁶⁷⁷ that he may lead (others) astray from the way of Allah; for him is disgrace in this world, and on the day of resurrection We will make him taste the punishment of burning:

Ar. thy.

10 This is due to what your two hands have sent before, and because Allah is not in the least unjust to the servants.

فَإِذَا أَنْزَلْنَا عَلَيْهَا الْمَاءَ اهْتَزَّتْ وَ رَبَّتْ وَأَبْثَّتْ مِنْ كُلِّ ذَوْبٍ يَخْرِجُ
ذَلِكَ بِأَنَّ اللَّهَ هُوَ الْحَيُّ وَأَنَّهُ يُحْيِي
الْمَوْتَى وَأَنَّهُ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِيرٌ
وَأَنَّ السَّاعَةَ آتِيَةٌ لَا رَيْبَ فِيهَا
أَنَّ اللَّهَ يَبْعَثُ مَنْ فِي الْقُبُورِ
وَمِنَ النَّاسِ مَنْ يُجَادِلُ فِي اللَّهِ بِغَيْرِ
عِلْمٍ وَلَا هُدًى وَلَا كِتَابٍ مُنِيرٍ
ثَانِي عِطْفُهُ لِيُضِلَّ عَنْ سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ
لَهُ فِي الدُّنْيَا خِزْيٌ وَنَذِيرُهُ يَوْمَ
الْقِيَامَةِ عَذَابُ الْحَرِيقِ
ذَلِكَ بِمَا قَدَّمْت يَدَكَ وَأَنَّ اللَّهَ
لَيْسَ بِظَلَّامٍ لِّلْعَبِيدِ

1675 The stirring and swelling of the earth means its stirring and swelling with the growth of herbage. Compare 41 : 29 and see 2210. The illustration draws attention to the fact that revelation quickens dead hearts as rain quickens dead earth. The next verse makes it plain : Because He gives life to the dead and because He has power over all things. See also what follows here.

1676 To understand what is meant by those who are in the graves, compare 35 : 22 : "Surely Allah makes whom He pleases hear, and you cannot make those hear who are in the graves." Therefore the significance is that even those whom you look upon as incorrigible will be brought over to the acceptance of truth by Allah.

1677 ثَانِي عِطْفُهُ signifies literally folding up, twisting, or turning his side ('If meaning the side of a man from the head to the hip'), but the expression is used metaphorically to signify behaving proudly (LL) or turning away (Rgh). I'Ab interprets it as meaning showing haughtiness, and Ibn-i-juraij as turning aside from the truth (AH).

SECTION 2

Certainty of Divine Help

11-13. The weak in faith. 14-16. The Prophet shall be helped. 17. Differences of belief to be judged hereafter. 18-22. Rejecters punished with disgrace and grief.

11 And among men is he who serves Allah (standing) on the verge,¹⁶⁷⁸ so that if good befalls him he is satisfied therewith, but if a trial afflicts him he turns back headlong; he loses this world as well as the hereafter; that is a manifest loss.

Ar. remote.

13 He calls upon him whose harm is nearer than his profit: evil certainly is the guardian and evil certainly is the associate.

14 Surely Allah will cause those who believe and do good deeds to enter gardens beneath which rivers flow; surely Allah does what He pleases.

Or stretch a rope to the ceiling ... die strangled.

15 Whoever thinks that Allah will not assist him in this life and the hereafter, let him raise (himself) by some means to the heaven, then let him cut (it) off, then let him see if his struggle will take away that at which he is enraged.¹⁶⁷⁹

وَمِنَ النَّاسِ مَن يُعِندُ اللَّهَ عَلَىٰ ذُرِّيِّانٍ

يُدْجِبُ كَيْدَهُ مَا يُغِطُّ

1679 This passage is misconstrued on account of a misconception in connection with the personal pronoun hu in yanpuraku, which refers really to the Holy Prophet. The second difficulty is in connection with the object of yaqta', i.e. cut (it) off, which is understood as being really the Divine assistance, which the opponents are told must come to the Holy Prophet however hard their struggle against that Divine assistance, and this is clearly indicated by the concluding words of the verse. The prophecies of the final triumph of truth and of the coming of Divine assistance to the Holy Prophet were repeatedly declared in the 16 And thus have We revealed it, being clear arguments, and because Allah guides whom He intends.

17 Surely those who believe and those who are Jews and the Sabæans* and the Christians and the Magians and those who associate (others with Allah)—surely Allah will decide between them on the day of resurrection; surely Allah is a witness over all things.¹⁶⁸⁰

Ar. dost thou.

18 Do you not see that Allah is He whom obeys whoever is in the heavens and whoever is in the earth, and the sun and the moon and the stars, and the mountains and the trees, and the animals and many of the people; and many there are against whom chastisement has become necessary; and whomsoever Allah abases, there is none who can make him honourable; surely Allah does what He pleases.¹⁶⁸¹

b 978.

19 These are two adversaries¹⁶⁸² who dispute about their Lord: then (as to) those who disbelieve, for them are cut out garments of fire; boiling water shall be poured over their heads.

20 With it shall be melted what is in their bellies and (their) skins as well.

Holy Qur-ân, and the unbelievers were enraged at this. They are told that the Divine assistance must come, and that they should leave no stone unturned in their struggle against it, inasmuch that, if they could, they should rise to heaven and cut off all heavenly or Divine assistance from the Prophet. Or the meaning may be as given in the margin, the significance being, in that case, that they may carry their anger to the greatest possible extremity and be driven to the utmost desperation, yet they would be unable to stop the coming of Divine help. The meaning is in either case that Divine assistance which is promised to the Prophet shall come to him most surely, however hard the struggle made against him, or however great the disappointment of the opponents.

1680 It is implied that differences in religious beliefs do not call for a punishment in this life, but that they shall be decided on the day of judgment. It is the mischievous conduct of those who oppose the propagation of the truth that calls for punishment in this life.

1681 The verse contains a clear prophecy that the opponents shall ultimately be brought low before the Prophet.

1682 The two adversaries are the believers and the unbelievers. It should be noted that the enmity of the two parties, whose original difference is only a dispute about their Lord, is now assuming a graver aspect, and the fate of the two in the coming conflicts is clearly foretold—of the unbelievers in vv. 19-22 and of the believers in vv. 23-25.

SECTION 3

Believers shall be Triumphant

23, 24. Believers shall be rewarded with conquests. 25. They shall possess the Sacred Mosque.

23 Surely Allah will make those who believe and do good deeds enter gardens beneath which rivers flow; they shall be adorned therein with bracelets of gold and (with) pearls, and their garments therein shall be of silk.¹⁶⁸⁵

24 And they are guided to goodly words and they are guided into the path of the Praised One.

25 Surely (as for) those who disbelieve and hinder (men) from Allah's way and from the Sacred Mosque which We have made equally for all men, (for) the dweller therein and (for) the visitor,¹⁶⁸⁶ and whoever shall incline therein to wrong unjustly, We will make him taste of a painful chastisement.

إِنَّ اللَّهَ يُدْخِلُ الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّالِحَاتِ جَنَّاتٍ تَجْرِي مِنْ تَحْتِهَا الْأَنْهَارُ يُحَلَّوْنَ فِيهَا مِنْ أَسَاوِرَ مِنْ ذَهَبٍ وَلُؤْلُؤًا وَلِبَاسُهُمْ فِيهَا خَزَائِرُ وَهُمْ فِيهَا مُقَامُونَ
وَهُدًى إِلَى الْقَلْبِ مِنَ الْقَوْلِ وَهُدًى إِلَى صِرَاطٍ مُبِينٍ

إِنَّ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا وَيَصُدُّونَ عَنْ سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ وَالْمَسْجِدِ الْحَرَامِ الَّذِي جَعَلْنَاهُ لِلنَّاسِ سَوَاءً الْعَاكِفُ فِيهِ وَالْبَادِ وَمَنْ يُزِدْ فِيهِ بِالْحَادِ يَظْلِمِ تَنَزُّهُهُ مِنْ عَذَابِ إِلِيمٍ

1683 The iron whips indicate holding in subjection. Thus says TA قَعَهُ قَعَهُ ذَلَّلَهُ i.e. qama' (which is the root from which maqma', meaning whip, is derived) signifies he held him in subjection and brought him to submission.

1684 مِنْ غَمٍّ (from grief), being a badal for minhā, explains the nature of the chastisement in this and the previous verse. It is a grief which will constantly grow and burn their souls so as to melt them.

1685 There is a reference here to the conquests of the great neighbouring kingdoms by the Muslims and the bringing of the treasures of those kingdoms into the possession of the Arabs. The following incident, mentioned by Baihaqi, shows that the companions of the Prophet understood these prophecies in this sense: The bracelets of KISRÁ, the Persian monarch, were brought to 'Umar, and he caused SURÁQA, son of MÁLIK, to wear them, on which he praised the Almighty. The reason for 'Umar causing the bracelets to be worn by SURÁQA is also given by the same authority in another report, according to which the Holy Prophet had said to SURÁQA: "How will you feel when you wear the bracelets of KISRÁ?" ("Khaṣāṣ-ul-Kubrā," vol. ii., p. 113; printed at Hyderabad, Deccan).

1686 Or 'akīf may signify the dweller in Mecca, and bād, the dwellers in the desert, or the two may respectively signify one who dwells in it constantly and one who comes to it

28 That they may witness advantages for them and mention the name of Allah during stated days over what He has given them of the cattle quadrupeds, then eat of them and feed the distressed one, the needy.¹⁶⁸⁹ occasionally. The unbelievers, being then in possession of the Sacred Mosque, prevented the Muslims from using it. They are told that this state of things shall be brought to an end, for it must be open to all visitors, and that could only be brought about by the Muslims being made masters of it.

وَأَذِّنَا لِلْإِبْرَاهِيمَ مَكَانَ الْبَيْتِ

1687 The words are addressed to the Holy Prophet, and contain a mighty prophecy that Mecca will become the centre to which men shall come for pilgrimage. The grandeur of this prophecy becomes the greater when it is borne in mind that it was announced just at the time when the Holy Prophet was being driven away from Mecca by his enemies, who were being left the sole masters of the place. At the time of this prophecy the Holy Prophet and his followers had no access to the holy place, as is clearly stated in v. 25. Just under circumstances when Mecca seemed to have lost every chance of becoming a Muslim centre, and when the Muslims themselves were in danger of being entirely swept off, the mighty prophecy is pronounced in the most forcible words that Islam shall spread to all nations and Mecca shall become the universal centre to which pilgrims from all nations shall always continue to resort. This one sign is sufficient to demonstrate the truth of the Divine message to the Holy Prophet, for no human foresight could ever utter such a grand and sublime prophecy under such adverse circumstances.

1688 The qāmīr, or the lean camel, is particularly mentioned here to indicate the great distances from which the pilgrims should come.

1689 The subject of sacrifice is one that is specially related to the pilgrimage, because every pilgrim must sacrifice an animal. The outward act of sacrifice on this occasion indicates the reason which has required pilgrimage to be made one of the principles of Islam. In fact, it is the lesson of sacrifice that is taught in both these institutions. The subject as regards the sacrificing of animals is fully discussed in the next section. Here it may only be noted that the pilgrimage requires all comforts of the body to be sacrificed before an ordinance of Allah, and this is the practical lesson taught in pilgrimage, without which no religion can live and show vitality. Other benefits of the pilgrimage are mentioned in the following verses. It may be added that the act of the pilgrim finds an echo throughout the Muslim world, for every Muslim in well-to-do circumstances sacrifices an animal on this occasion, which is known as the 'Id ud-dhah.

Sacrifices

34-37. Meaning underlying sacrifices. 38. Necessity for sacrifice of life.

1690 The mention of the Ka'ba as the Ancient House, here and in v. 33, shows that it is so old that it came to be known throughout Arabia by that name, thus pointing to its very remote antiquity. See further 170.

1691 The principle of sacrifice is one which is accepted in one form or another by all nations of the world. Like all other religious principles which are universally recognized, the principle of sacrifice finds a deeper meaning in Islam. The outward act is still there as of old, but it no more conveys the meaning attached to it in some ancient religions, viz. that of appeasing an offended Deity, or that of serving as an atonement for sins, but signifies the sacrifice of the sacrificer himself, and becomes thus an outward symbol of his readiness to lay down his life if required and to sacrifice all his interests and desires in the cause of truth. Hence it is that words introducing the subject of sacrifice are immediately followed by an injunction to submit oneself entirely to Allah, Who is the one God, i.e. the only Being Who deserves to be made the true object of one's love and the true goal of one's life. See further what follows.

1692 It is by the mention of Allah's name that an animal is sacrificed, and here the Muslims are told that it is not an empty mention of a word that they make, but the meaning underlying it is that their own hearts should tremble at the mention of that name, and they should bear in mind, if they have sacrificed an animal over which they hold control, how much more necessary it is that they should lay down their lives in the way of Allah, Who is not only their Master but also their Creator and their Sustainer, and thus exercises a far greater authority over them than they do over animals. Hence a verse speaking of sacrifices is immediately followed by one which requires the exercise of great patience and endurance under hard trials by the faithful. In the sacrifice of animals Islam thus gives a lesson to its followers of laying down their own lives in the cause of truth.

1693 The meaning conveyed here is the same as that in the previous verse. The camels which are brought for sacrifice to Mecca by the pilgrims are here stated to be only outward signs of the true religion of Allah, that religion being no other than the religion of entire submission and of laying down all one has, even one's life, in the way of Allah.

1694 The flesh of the animals sacrificed is not to be wasted, but it should serve as food for the poor and the needy. Thus, while inwardly laying down one's life in the cause of truth, it is to be borne in mind that outwardly a Muslim should devote himself to the service of humanity. The burying of the flesh of the numerous sacrifices at Mecca, on the occasion of the pilgrimage, is not in accordance with any injunction of the Holy Qur-ān or any saying of the Holy Prophet. It can be turned to good use.

Believers permitted to Fight

39. Fighting permitted in self-defence. 40, 41. Object of war to establish freedom of religion. 42-46. People destroyed formerly. 47, 48. Punishment will not be hastened.

39 Permission (to fight) is given to those upon whom war is made because they are oppressed, and most surely Allah is well able to assist them;¹⁶⁹⁷

أُذِنَ لِلَّذِينَ يُقَاتُونَ بِأَنَّهُمْ ظُلُمُوا
وَأَنَّ اللَّهَ عَلَىٰ نَصْرِهِمْ لَقَدِيرٌ

1695 This verse settles conclusively that it is not the outward act of sacrifice which is acceptable, but the deep meaning of sacrifice which underlies it. Those who consider Islam to be a religion of ceremonial should note these plain words. It should also be borne in mind that the idea of atonement is quite foreign to the Islamic sacrifices. It is the righteous whom Islam requires to sacrifice, and this is hinted at in the words, to Him is acceptable the guarding (against evil) on your part.

1696 That which shall be repelled from the believers is the mischief of the unbelievers (Rz). With this verse, which brings this section to a close, is introduced a new subject—the subject of fighting in the way of Allah, which is dealt with at length in the following section. This sheds light upon the connection which exists between the two subjects, and, moreover, serves to illustrate how apparently unconnected verses are deeply connected with one another, the connection being sometimes so deep as to be undiscoverable to a superficial observer. The connection in this case is that when the true meaning of sacrifice has been taught, the Muslim has in fact been prepared to bring into practice the theory of the sacrifice. Hence he is told that the time is near when he shall be required to lay down his very life in the defence of truth, which the opponents are striving to exterminate. Therefore, the subject of fighting in the cause of truth is a fitting sequel to the subject of sacrifices, as casting further light upon the inner meaning of sacrifice, and also requiring that doctrine to be carried into practice.

1697 According to authentic reports, this is the earliest permission given to the Muslims to fight. There is nothing to show that this verse was not revealed at Mecca. On the other hand, it is clearly a Meccan revelation, like the rest of this chapter, and it was owing to this revelation that in the well-known oath of allegiance taken at 'Aqaba the Holy Prophet required a promise from the Medina deputation that they would defend him against his enemies even as they would defend their own children. The words in which the permission is granted show clearly that war was first made on the Muslims by their opponents; and secondly, that the Muslims had already suffered great oppression at the hands of their persecutors. It also shows that when permission was given the Muslims were very weak, for they are comforted by the words that Allah is able to help them. The words of the next verse, those who have been expelled from their homes, may refer to the immigration to Abyssinia, or to the slow exodus to Medina which commenced soon after the 'Aqaba allegiance.

1698 Those who call Islam a religion of fanaticism may be reminded here that the religious freedom which was established by Islam in a country like Arabia thirteen hundred years ago has not yet been surpassed by the most civilized and tolerant of nations, while many of the civilized Christian nations are still as far from upholding this noble principle as ever they were. It deserves to be noted that the lives of Muslims are to be sacrificed not only to stop their own persecution by their opponents and to save their own mosques, but to save churches, synagogues, and cloisters as well—in fact, to establish perfect religious freedom. The mosques, though they are the places where the name of Allah is remembered most of all, come in for their share of protection even after the churches and the synagogues—such is the tolerant attitude of Islam to other religions. Has any other religious teacher taught that noble principle, or is there a single direction in the sacred scriptures of any other religion that its followers should lay down their lives to protect the places of worship of other religions? Muslims closely followed these directions, and every commander of an army had express orders to respect all houses of worship, and even the cloisters of monks, along with their inmates.

1699 The statement made here affords a conclusive proof that the ailments spoken of in the Holy Qur-án are not the ailments of the body, but spiritual diseases. Many an intricate point can be easily settled if this fact is borne in mind.

1699A Here the Qur-án seems to speak plainly of the punishment of the opponents of truth who were to come later. The people spoken of here are a people who have been allowed to oppose the progress of Islam for a thousand years.

1700 The phrase which I render as strive to oppose Our communications is سَعَوْا فِي سَعَيْتَ فِي أَمْرٍ فَلَانِ The first part of this is a parallel to أَيَاتِنَا مُجْرِمِينَ which, according to LL, means I strove in respect of the affair of such a one either to rectify or to vitiate it, and the latter part, mu'djisin, signifies fighting and contesting (with the prophets and their followers) to render (them) unable (to perform the command of Allah). 1701 The story which is suggested as explaining this verse is absurd and altogether baseless. That the story of the praising of idols and of according recognition to any power or privilege of intercession in their behalf is a pure forgery is shown in 2382. Here I may only note that all learned commentators have always rejected it, as Rz observes: As regards those who aim at accuracy and truth they say that this story is false and a forgery. Bq makes similar remarks.

The words of the Qur-án do not, and cannot, mean that when a prophet recites a revelation the devil introduces his own words into his recitation. Apart from the apparent absurdity of it, we find the Qur-án negating any such suggestion. For instance, in 72:26-28, which was revealed before this chapter, we find the plain statement that the messages of the Lord are delivered in all their purity: "He does not reveal His secrets to any, except to him whom He chooses as an apostle; for surely He makes a guard to march before him and after him, so that He may know that they have truly delivered the messages of their Lord." Moreover, it is absolutely inconceivable that such an important incident as the Prophet's having accepted the intercession of idols should have been mentioned in the Qur-án eight years after it happened. It is admitted on all hands that the chapter An-Najm (the 53rd chapter), in which the change is said to have taken place, was revealed about the fifth year after the Prophet's preaching, while the portion of this chapter under discussion was revealed on the eve of the Prophet's departure from Mecca. That more than half the Qur-án should have been revealed during this long period without a single reference to the alleged story, and that it should then have been quite unnecessarily referred to in a sura where it is quite out of place, is alone sufficient to give the lie to the contention of men like Muir that this story is referred to here. It is also worthy of note that the form of the words is so general that it of necessity follows (if the reference to the alleged story may be taken to be implied here) that every prophet and every apostle must have experienced a similar insertion into his revelation at the devil's suggestion, but this idea must be condemned, not only because no single word of the Holy Qur-án can be produced in its support, but also because history falsifies it. For internal evidence as to the falsity of the story see 2382.

What is the meaning of the words then? Tamanná, according to all lexicologists, signifies he desired; and according to TA, tamanni signifies the desire to attain to that which is liked by one. Now, what every prophet desires is the establishing in the world of the Unity of the Divine Being and of the truth that is revealed to him, and it is with this desire of every prophet that the devil, who is no other than his leading opponent, interferes, instigating men, making suggestions to them, as stated here, to oppose the prophet and the spread of the truth. That this is the true meaning is also shown by the context, which deals with the establishing of the truth and the desire of the opponents of truth to annihilate it. See the previous verse, which condemns those who fight and contest with the Prophet to render him unable to establish the truth, 1702, 1703, see next page.

lish the truth in the world. It is asserted in the words that follow, as it is asserted so frequently and plainly in this chapter and elsewhere in the Qur-ān, that the plans of the enemies will be frustrated and truth established in the world.

1702 The devil's strivings against the Prophet become a trial for the weak, who, unable to endure the severe persecutions of their enemies, go back to unbelief.

1703 It should be noted that in the concluding passage the unjust (ẓālimīn) are substituted for the devil, and opposition for ilqā or suggestion, thus showing that the devil's suggestion is nothing but the opposition of the enemies of truth, being a suggestion to the hearts of the enemies of the Prophet.

1704 'Aqīm, applied to a womb, means barren; applied to wind, it signifies such as does not fructify (TA-LI); hence الرِّيحُ الْعَقِيمُ in 51:41 means a destructive wind, and يَوْمٌ عَقِيمٌ here a destructive day, i.e. a day bringing no good. This verse, as well as the two following, while explaining those preceding, state in most clear and forcible language the prophecy of the establishment of truth—for that is the kingdom of Allah—and the discomfiture of the power of evil.

إِنَّ اللَّهَ لَهُوَ الْغَنِيُّ الْحَمِيدُ ۝

1705 The mere occurrence of the word hajarū (they fled) in this verse does not show that it was not revealed at Mecca, for a flight of the faithful to Abyssinia had taken place as early as the fifth year of the Holy Prophet's preaching. Moreover, it should be noted that the Holy Prophet, with Abū Bakr and 'Alī, were the last men to depart from Mecca on the occasion of the second flight. A true and generous leader of men, he waited to see his faithful followers depart before he left, so that their safety might be ensured. There is no doubt that if he had left his followers behind him they would have encountered a very hard fate at the hands of an exasperated enemy. The reference to some being slain after their flight is clearly prophetic.

1706 This verse permits the Muslims, who were long persecuted and oppressed, to punish their persecutors, but at the same time recommends pardon and forgiveness by referring to those two attributes of the Divine Being in the concluding words of the verse.

1707 Apparently the succession of the day and the night refers here to the turn of fortune hinted at in the previous verse, because an oppressed community could not punish its persecutors unless it gained the mastery over them. The same is indicated in the two attributes of the Divine Being with which the verse is closed. The verses that follow contain hints to the same effect.

1708 The first part of the verse gives a promise of victory to the Muslims, while the latter part warns the opponents that Allah withholds the punishment from them for a time, for He is kind and merciful to men. The withholding of the heaven means the withholding of the punishment which the opponents were told would come down upon them from heaven.

1709 This verse gives us another proof of the principles of tolerance and equal religious freedom to all inculcated by Islam.

1711 The true religion of Allah, which has been the religion of all the prophets, is Islam, or entire submission to Allah. Abraham prayed that from among his descendants there should arise a nation of Muslims (2:128). Abraham himself is repeatedly spoken of in the Holy Qur-án as being a Muslim, for he submitted himself to Allah with the complete submission of a true Muslim.

PART XVIII

CHAPTER XXIII THE BELIEVERS

(Al-Mu'minin)

REVEALED AT MECCA
(6 sections and 118 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Success of the faithful.
- Sec. 2, 3. Noah and the prophets after him.
- Sec. 4. A repetition of the history of prophets.
- Sec. 5. Polytheism is self-condemned.
- Sec. 6. Regrets of the wicked.

The Title, context, and date of revelation.

THIS chapter, which brings the third group of the Meccan chapters to a close, is known under the name of The Believers because it deals with the success of the believers. It is rightly regarded by Sayooti as the last Meccan revelation. At any rate there is no difference of opinion as to its Meccan origin, and that it belongs to the latest period of the Holy Prophet's Meccan career is amply attested by internal evidence. The concluding section, which states how the wicked shall regret their deeds, seems to be like a parting word uttered to a relentless enemy. The opponents were made to taste of torment, and again they were shown mercy, but punishment and mercy had left them as reprobate as ever. Surely there is clear evidence here of the late revelation of this chapter, and Sayooti's opinion seems to be well founded.

Subject-matter.

As the final word of kind advice and as a firm expression of the success of the believers, the chapter no doubt forms an appropriate sequel to a group of chapters dealing with the great and triumphant future of Islam. It seems to continue, in fact, the subject-matter of the last chapter, and therefore asserts the success of the believers in clear and forcible words in the first section, which is followed by two others referring to similar success in the case of former prophets. The fourth section tells us that the history of the Holy Prophet Muhammad (may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him!) is, in fact, a repetition of the history of previous prophets. The last great Divine revelation was a final blow at polytheism, which really stands condemned out of the mouths of its own votaries, as the fifth section shows. The sixth naturally brings the subject to a close by showing how the wicked will regret what they indulged in so freely.

SECTION 1

Success of the Faithful

1-11. True believers and their success. 12-14. Spiritual growth compared to physical growth. 15, 16. Life after death. 17-22. Divine gifts in nature as evidence of spiritual gifts.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

poor-rate.

4 And who act aiming at purification,¹⁷¹³

وَالَّذِينَ هُمْ لِلزَّكَاةِ فَاعِلُونَ ۝

5 And who guard their private parts,¹⁷¹⁴

وَالَّذِينَ هُمْ لِفُرُوجِهِمْ حَافِضُونَ ۝

6 Except before their mates or those whom their right hands possess, for they surely are not blameable,¹⁷¹⁵

إِلَّا عَلَىٰ أَزْوَاجِهِمْ أَوْ مَا مَلَكَتْ أَيْمَانُهُمْ
فَإِنَّهُمْ غَيْرُ مَلُومِينَ ۝

1712 The last two chapters opened with a warning of the approach of judgment. This, as a fitting sequel, opens with a declaration of the triumph of the believers, for it was possible that the wicked should have tasted punishment without resultant good to the faithful. To dispel all such doubts it is stated that the believers shall be successful even in this life. The past tense قد افلح is used to denote the great certainty, as in اِنِّى اَمْرُ اللَّهِ in 16:1 regarding the punishment of the unbelievers. Both these things are so certain to come about that they are again and again spoken of as having, as it were, already come to pass.

1713 The words occurring here are لِلزَّكَاةِ فَاعِلُونَ whereas throughout the Holy Qur-án, where zakát in the sense of alms or poor-rate is mentioned, the form adopted is يُؤْتُونَ الزَّكَاةَ where zakát occurs as an objective complement. The lám occurring here is therefore taken as denoting aim and cause (Rgh, TA-LL), and zakát, carried back to its literal sense (being derived from zakú, i.e. it became pure), means purification, a significance which is borne by it also elsewhere in the Holy Qur-án, as in حَنَانًا مِن لَّدُنَّا وَزَكَاةً in 19:13, meaning "tenderness from Us and purity." But it should be noted that this significance is preferred simply on account of the construction of the phrase, and not because, as is supposed by some, zakát (alms or poor-rate) was not enjoined at Mecca, where this chapter was revealed. Ṣalát, or prayer, standing for the performance of one's obligations towards Allah, and zakát, or alms, standing for the performance of one's obligations towards one's fellow-beings, form in early as well as in later revelation the two pillars of Islam, and it was only the details of the institution of zakát that were given at Medina.

1714 Furrij, plural of Farj, indicates the part of a person which it is indecent to expose (Msb, Q-LL), and hence حَفَظَ الْفَرْجَ means generally the observing of continence.

1715 The words أَوْ مَا مَلَكَتْ أَيْمَانُهُمْ of which a literal rendering is given in the translation, usually indicate servants or slaves. A Muslim, man or woman, is not allowed to expose, in the presence of others, any part of the body which it is not decent to expose, but a certain degree of freedom is allowed to women in the presence of their

7 But whoever seeks to go beyond that, these are they that exceed the limits;

8 And those who are keepers of their trusts and their covenant,

9 And those who keep a guard on their prayers;

10 These are they who are the heirs,

11 Who shall inherit the Paradise; they shall abide therein.

12 And certainly We created man of an extract of clay,¹⁷¹⁶

13 Then We made him a small life-germ in a firm resting-place,

14 Then We made the life-germ a clot, then We made the clot a lump of flesh, then We made (in) the lump of flesh bones, then We clothed the bones with flesh, then We caused it to grow into another creation, so blessed be Allah, the best of the creators.¹⁷¹⁷

15 Then after that you will most surely die.

16 Then surely on the day of resurrection you shall be raised.

17 And certainly We made above you seven ways; and never are We heedless of creation.¹⁷¹⁸ husbands and female servants, and to men in the presence of their wives and male servants. According to the Islamic ideas of decency, the exposure of such parts of the body as European ladies are generally in the habit of exposing in ballrooms and theatres is disallowed. It should be noted that this chapter is a Meccan revelation, and the conditions under which slave-girls could be taken as wives were given later at Medina (see 561), so that if the reference here is to sexual relations, the permission regarding those whom their right hands possess must be read subject to the conditions of 4:25. It may be added that slave-girls when taken as wives did not acquire the full status of a free wife, and hence they are spoken of distinctly.

1716 The creation of man is here traced back to earth, as being an extract or essence of the earth, for the life-germ in sperma is an extract of the food which is drawn from earth in whatever form it may be. It should be noted that while the first ten verses speak of the spiritual growth of man, his physical growth is here spoken of, and thus a comparison may be established between the physical and the spiritual growth.

1717 The several stages in the growth of the human child as given here are quite in accordance with scientific investigation. Only it should be borne in mind that the letter fā, meaning then, as used in then We clothed the bones, . . . does not always imply order. This is clear from the context, which states that there is first a lump of flesh, and the nucleus of the bones is generated in this flesh.

18 And We send down water from the cloud according to a measure, then We cause it to settle in the earth, and most surely We are able to carry it away.

19 Then We cause to grow thereby gardens of palm-trees and grapes for you; you have in them many fruits and from them do you eat;

20 And a tree that grows out of Mount Sinai which produces oil and a condiment for those who eat.¹⁷¹⁹

21 And most surely there is a lesson for you in the cattle: We make you to drink of what is in their bellies, and you have in them many advantages and of them you eat, 22 And on them and on the ships you are borne.

SECTION 2

Noah's Success

23-29. Noah's rejection and promise of deliverance. 30-32. Another prophet sent with a similar message.

* 901. 23 And certainly We sent Noah* to his people, and he said: O my people! serve Allah, you have no god other than Him: will you not then guard (against evil)?

24 And the chiefs of those who disbelieved from among his people said: He is nothing but a mortal like yourselves who desires that he may have superiority over you, and if Allah had pleased, He could certainly have sent down angels. We have not heard of this among our fathers of yore:

وَلَقَدْ أَرْسَلْنَا نُوحًا إِلَىٰ قَوْمِهِ فَقَالَ لِقَوْمِهِ
اعْبُدُوا اللَّهَ مَا لَكُمْ مِنْ إِلَهٍ غَيْرُهُ
أَفَلَا تَتَّقُونَ
فَقَالَ الْمَلِكُ الَّذِي كَفَرَ مِنْ قَوْمِهِ
مَا هَذَا إِلَّا بَشَرٌ مِثْلُكُمْ يُرِيدُ أَنْ يَتَفَضَّلَ
عَلَيْكُمْ وَكُوشًا اللَّهُ لَا يُزِيلُ مَلِكَكُمْ
وَمَا سَمِعْنَا بهذا فِي آبَائِنَا الْأَوَّلِينَ

1718 Instead of the seven heavens, here we have the seven ways, which are no doubt the orbits of the seven members of the solar system, excluding the earth. This shows that the word heaven is used in a variety of ways in the Holy Qur-ān. It means what is overhead: it means the clouds; it means the upper regions; it means the planets of the solar system; it means their orbits; it means the whole starry creation as seen by the eye.

1719 In the tree that grows out of Mount Sinai, and which produces oil, there seems to be reference to the blessed olive-tree of 24: 35 as representing the Muslim nation (see 1757).

25 He is only a madman, so bear with him for a time.

26 He said: O my Lord! help me against their calling me a liar.

27 So We revealed to him, saying: Make the ark before Our eyes and (according to) Our revelation; and when Our command is given and the valley overflows,^a take into it of every kind a pair, two,^b and your followers, except those among them against whom the word has gone forth, and do not speak to Me in respect of those who are unjust; surely they shall be drowned.

28 And when you are firmly seated, you and those with you, in the ark, say: All praise is due to Allah who delivered us from the unjust people:

29 And say: O my Lord! cause me to alight a blessed alighting, and Thou art the best to cause to alight.

30 Most surely there are signs in this, and most surely We are ever trying (men).

31 Then We raised up after them another generation.

32 So We sent among them an apostle from among them, saying: Serve Allah, you have no god other than Him: will you not then guard (against evil)?

SECTION 3

Prophets after Noah

33-41. Opponents destroyed. 42-44. Other generations follow their fate. 45-49. Moses and Pharaoh. 50. A refuge given to Jesus and his mother.

33 And the chiefs of his people who disbelieved and called the meeting of the hereafter a lie, and whom We had given plenty to enjoy in this world's life, said: This is nothing but a mortal like yourselves, eating of what you eat from and drinking of what you drink.¹⁷²⁰

وَقَالَ الْمَلَأِينَ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا
وَكَذَّبُوا لِقَاءَ الْآخِرَةِ وَاتَّخَذُوا فِي
الْحَيَاةِ الدُّنْيَا مَاهِدًا لَا بَشْرَؤَ شَلَكُمْ
يَا كُلِّ مِمَّا تَأْكُلُونَ مِنْهُ وَيَشْرَبُونَ
مِمَّا أَنتَرُونَ ۝

1720 The prophets are rejected because they are subject to the same laws of nature in their human requirements as other men. The objection would no doubt be valid against any one

34 And if you obey a mortal like yourselves, then most surely you will be losers:

35 What! does he threaten you that when you are dead and become dust and bones that you shall then be brought forth?

36 Far, far is that which you are threatened with:

37 There is naught but our life in this world: we die and we live and we shall not be raised again:

38 He is naught but a man who has forged a lie against Allah, and we are not going to believe in him.

39 He said: O my Lord! help me against their calling me a liar.

40 He said: In a little while they will most certainly be repenting.

41 So the punishment overtook them in justice, and We made them as rubbish; so away with the unjust people.¹⁷²¹

42 Then We raised after them other generations.

43 No people can hasten on their doom nor can they postpone (it).

44 Then We sent Our apostles one after another; whenever there came to a people their apostle, they called him a liar, so We made who claimed to be God, but as prophets are human beings they must be subject to the laws of nature governing other human beings. And no one can be a model for men who is not himself a human being, and who is not subject to the same laws of nature as other men, for only a man can show men the way by walking in it himself, thereby showing how they can avoid falling a prey to the frailties of human nature. Hence, a Divine incarnation, or God in a human body, can no more serve as a model to men than a man can be a model to a horse or a dog. If Jesus were sinless because he was God, he cannot be a model for us who are not gods: we want a mortal to show us how to avoid the pitfalls with which we as mortals are surrounded.

1721 It is the occurrence of the word ṣaiḥah in this verse which has led many to think that vv. 33-41 of this section refer to Hūd or Ṣāliḥ. But it should be borne in mind that ṣaiḥah means punishment (LL), and is equally applicable to punishment by earthquake or by any other means. In the chronological order of prophets given in the 7th chapter it is Hūd who follows Noah, and his people 'Ād were destroyed by a sandstorm. Hence I translate the word ṣaiḥah as meaning punishment.

some of them follow others haughtily and they were an insolent people.

shall we believe in two mortals like ourselves while their people serve us?

48 So they rejected them and became of those who were

Moses the Book that they may

فَاتَّبَعْنَا بَعْضَهُمْ بَعْضًا وَجَعَلْنَاهُمْ أَحَادِيثَ
فَبُعِدَ الْقَوْمُ لَا يُؤْمِنُونَ
ثُمَّ أَرْسَلْنَا مُوسَى وَأَخَاهُ هَارُونَ
بِآيَاتِنَا وَسُلْطَانٍ مُبِينٍ
إِلَى فِرْعَوْنَ وَمَلَئِهِ فَاسْتَكْبَرُوا
وَكَانُوا قَوْمًا عَالِينَ
فَقَالُوا أَنُؤْمِنُ لِبَشَرَيْنِ مِثْلِنَا
أَوْ قَوْمَهُمَا لَنَا عِندُونَ
كَذَّبُواهُمَا فَكَانُوا مِنَ الْمُهْلَكِينَ
وَلَقَدْ آتَيْنَا مُوسَى الْكِتَابَ لَعَلَّهُمْ يَحْتَدِرُونَ
وَجَعَلْنَا ابْنَ مَرْيَمَ وَآلَتَهُ آيَةً وَآوَيْنَاهُمَا
إِلَى رَبْوَةٍ ذَاتِ قَرَارٍ وَمَعِينٍ

1722 The significance of making them stories is that the stories of their evil fate were the only remembrance of them left after they had perished.

1723 There has been much discussion as to the land spoken of in this verse. Rabwah is lofty ground, and qarār means cultivated land and a place where water rests in a meadow (TA-LL). Neither Jerusalem nor Egypt, nor Palestine nor Damascus, which are the names suggested, answers the description, which applies only and exactly to the valley of Cashmere. Part of the lost ten tribes of Israel is also traced to Cashmere, where a large number of towns and villages bear the names of the towns and villages of Palestine. The presence of a tomb known as the tomb of Nabí Sāhib (i.e. the prophet), or Isā Sāhib (i.e. Jesus), or Yús Ásaf Nabí (i.e. the prophet Yús Ásaf), in the Khan Yár street in the capital of Cashmere, lends additional support to this theory. The fact that the chapter deals with the final triumph of prophets and their followers and their deliverance from the hands of their enemies also gives us a clue to the mystery attending the circumstances of the disappearance of Jesus Christ; for, as has been shown in 645, Jesus did not die on the cross. This verse tells us that, being delivered from the hands of his enemies, he was given shelter at some other place, and the description of that place as indicated in this verse, along with the fact that Cashmere has a tomb which every available evidence shows to be the tomb of Jesus himself, leads us to the conclusion that Cashmere is the land referred to in this verse. As regards the tomb, the following evidence shows that the sacred body of no less a personage than Jesus Christ rests there. (a) Oral testimony, based on traditions, of the people of Cashmere tells us that the tomb belongs to one who bore the name of Yús Ásaf, who was known as a nabí (i.e. a prophet), and who came to Cashmere from the west about 2,000 years ago. (b) The Tárikh-i-A'zamí, an historical work written some two hundred years ago, says, referring to this tomb, on p. 82: "The tomb is generally known as that of a prophet. He was a prince, who came to Cashmere from a foreign land. . . . His name was Yús Ásaf." (c) The Ikmál-ud-Din, an Arabic work which is a thousand years old, also mentions Yús Ásaf as having travelled in some lands. (d) Joseph Jacobs states, on the authority of a very old version of the story of Yús

SECTION 4

A Repetition of the History of Prophets

51-56. Righteousness of prophets and opposition to them. 57-61. Characteristics of true believers. 62-70. Opposition shall fail. 71-74. Acceptance of truth will make them eminent. 75-77. Persistence in rejection will bring severest punishment.

51 O apostles! eat of the good things and do good; surely I know what you do.

Or, religion.

53 But they cut off their affair among themselves into portions, each party rejoicing in that which is with them.

54 Therefore leave them in their overwhelming ignorance till a time.

55 Do they think that by what We aid them with of wealth and children, 56 We are hastening to them of good things? Nay, they do not perceive.

Or, compassionate.

57 Surely they who from fear of their Lord are cautious,

58 And those who believe in the communications of their Lord,

59 And those who do not associate (ought) with their Lord,

60 And those who give what they give (in alms) while their hearts are full of fear that to their Lord they must return,

يَا أَيُّهَا الرُّسُلُ كُلُّوْا مِنَ الْخَيْرَاتِ وَأَعْمَلُوا

إِنَّ الَّذِينَ هُمْ مِنْ خَشْيَةِ رَبِّهِمْ مُشْفِقُونَ
وَالَّذِينَ هُمْ يُأْتِيهِمْ رَبُّهُمْ يُؤْمِنُونَ
وَالَّذِينَ هُمْ يُرِيدُ أَنْ لَا يَشْرُكُوا
وَالَّذِينَ يُؤْتُونَ مَا آتَوْا وَقُلُوبُهُمْ
وَجِلَّةٌ أَنَّهُمْ إِلَىٰ رَبِّهِمْ رَاجِعُونَ

Asaf, that he (Joasaph) at last reached Cashmere, and there died ("Barlaam and Josaphet," p. cv). This evidence shows that the tomb in Khan Yâr is the tomb of Yûs Asaf. But who is this Yûs Asaf? That he is called a nabi (prophet) both in oral tradition and in history settles the time in which he lived, for no prophet is recognized by the Muslims to have appeared after their Holy Prophet. Again, there is a striking resemblance between the names Yûs and Yasû', the latter being the Arabic form of Jesus. There is a striking resemblance in the teachings of Yûs Asaf and Jesus; for instance, the parable of the seed-sower occurring in Matt. 13:3, Mark 4:3, and Luke 8:5 occurs also in "Barlaam and Josaphet" (p. cxi). Another very striking circumstance is that Yûs Asaf gives the name Bushrâ (the exact Arabic word for Gospel) to his teaching, as the following passage from the "Ikmal-ud-Din" shows: "Then he began to compare the tree to Bushrâ, which he preached to the people." All these circumstances lead us to the conclusion that Jesus Christ went to Cashmere after the event of the crucifixion, and that he preached, lived, and died there.

61 These hasten to good things and they are foremost in (attaining) them.

62 And We do not lay on any soul a burden except to the extent of its ability, and with Us is a book which speaks the truth, and they shall not be dealt with unjustly.

63 Nay, their hearts are in overwhelming ignorance with respect to it and they have besides this other deeds which they do.

64 Until when We overtake those who lead easy lives among them with chastisement, lo! they cry for succour.

65 Cry not for succour this day; surely you shall not be given help from Us.

66 My communications were indeed recited to you, but you used to turn back on your heels, 67 Haughtily discoursing about it, you withdrew yourselves to a distance.

68 Is it then that they do not ponder over what is said, or is it that there has come to them that which did not come to their fathers of old?

69 Or is it that they have not recognized their Apostle, so that they deny him?

70 Or do they say: There is madness in him? Nay! he has brought them the truth, and most of them are averse from the truth.

71 And should the truth follow their low desires, surely the heavens and the earth and all those who are therein would have perished. Nay! We have brought to them their reminder, but from their reminder they turn aside.

72 Or is it that you ask them a recompense? but the recompense of your Lord is best, and He is the best of those who provide sustenance.

73 And most surely you invite them to a right way.

Polytheism is self-condemned

78-83. Unbelievers recognize Allah as the Author of all goodness, but deny resurrection. 84-89. Allah recognized as supreme Lord. 90-92. These admissions give a deathblow to polytheism.

78 And He it is Who made for you the ears and the eyes and the hearts: little is it that you give thanks.

79 And He it is Who multiplied you in the earth, and to Him you shall be gathered.

80 And He it is Who gives life and causes death, and (in) His (control) is the alternation of the night and the day; do you not then understand?

81 Nay, they say the like of what the ancients said:

82 They say: What! when we are dead and become dust and bones, shall we then be raised?

83 Certainly we are promised this, and (so were) our fathers aforetime: this is naught but stories of those of old.

وَهُوَ الَّذِي أَنشَأَ لَكُمُ السَّمْعَ وَالْأَبْصَارَ

1724 The punishment referred to in this verse, and the distress, the removal of which is mentioned in the previous verse, probably refer to the famine which overtook the Meccans.

1725 They do not take a warning from the milder punishment, so a severer punishment must follow. This overtook them in the form of battles, culminating in the conquest of Mecca.

90 Nay! We have brought to them the truth, and most surely they are liars.

91 Never did Allah take to Himself a son, and never was there with Him any (other) god—in that case would each god have certainly taken away what he created, and some of them would certainly have overpowered others; glory be to Allah above what they describe!

1727 The doing of good in return for evil is the common teaching of all prophets; it is by no means a monopoly of the teaching of Christ. But nowhere is the principle put in such a beautiful and practical form as in the Qur-án, and the whole change is worked by the simple change of a single word. To return good for evil is only possible under certain circumstances, and notwithstanding all the sentimental praises of the Gospel doctrine, no individual or community who has taken that teaching for a guide has found it possible in practice to return good for evil in all cases; some of the latter-day disciples of the great teacher have, perhaps because of the impracticability of the original doctrine, adopted rather the opposite course. The Qur-án, however, says, repel evil by what is best. Evil is a thing that must be repelled; it is not a thing that must be encouraged. But in repelling it the rule to be observed is that it must be repelled by what is best. If you can repel an evil by doing good for it, it is what is recommended; but if punishment is necessary, and the meekest follower of Christ must admit the necessity of the punishment of evil, that would be the better course. The aim is to repel evil, and the method of repelling it is to be the best that is possible in the circumstances. The rule laid down here was the guiding rule of the life of the Holy Prophet, and is really a true description of his character in requiting the evil of his enemies.

1728 The evil suggestions of the devils were really the evil suggestions of the wicked ones who were opposed to the progress of Islam, and the Prophet is here told to look upon Allah as his only support. But even if the words are taken in a general sense there can be no objection, for to seek refuge in the Lord is the height of goodness. Nowhere has a man a better refuge than in the Source of all strength, and no mortal can aspire to a higher honour than having his refuge in the Lord. The command to the Prophet to say this is really an image of the aspiration of his soul, the inmost desire which furnished the guiding rule of his life. His soul rested in that highest degree of security from all evil suggestions which is termed the refuge in the Lord. As he stood on the firmest ground against all evil suggestions, we do not find any mention of the devil making evil suggestions to him as he made to Jesus Christ, for such no doubt were the three temptations offered to him by the devil which Matthew speaks of in 4: 1-10. "Then was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil." And the temptations offered are described in the verses that follow. Evidently these were suggestions into the heart, which Jesus rejected like a righteous man.

1729 These words make it quite certain that the devils of the two previous verses are no other than the wicked opponents of the Holy Prophet, and their evil suggestions are only their cruel persecutions of the Holy Prophet and his followers.

1730 The original has irji'un, in which irji' is in the plural, whereas it should have been irji' in the singular in accosting the Divine Being. But in Arabic the plural is sometimes used to denote a repetition of the singular verb, and thus irji'un is here regarded as equivalent to irji'ni repeated twice (Bd), and it is so translated. A well-known example of this is afforded by the famous verse where qifá (the dual form of the imperative) stands for qif (the singular imperative form) repeated twice.

1731 That the dead do not return to life is a principle which is reaffirmed here (see 1659). According to the Holy Qur-án there are three states of a man's life, viz. his life in this world, his life in barzakh, and the great manifestation of all spiritual realities that will take place on the day of resurrection; the state of barzakh being the intermediate state in which the soul lives after death till the greater resurrection. Here it is stated in plain words that no one who has passed into the state of barzakh through death's door is allowed to go back into the previous state. See further 2165.

1732 Mawázín is the plural of mauzún, meaning a thing that is weighed (Kf). As only good deeds have a weight, and of the doers of evil it is said that "We will not set up a balance for them on the day of resurrection" (18: 105), the word mawázín is translated here as meaning good deeds. See also 859 and 1528.

1733 The word ikhṣa' is used to drive a dog back; hence it indicates driving away as one despised and hated.

so do Thou forgive us and have mercy on us, and Thou art the best of the Merciful ones:

110 But you took them for a mockery until they made you forget My remembrance and you used to laugh at them.¹⁷³⁴

111 Surely I have rewarded them this day because they were patient, that they are the achievers.

112 He will say: How many years did you tarry in the earth?

113 They will say: We tarried a day or part of a day, but ask those who keep account.

114 He will say: You did tarry but a little—had you but known (it):

115 What! did you then think that We had created you in vain and that you shall not be returned to Us?¹⁷³⁵

116 So exalted be Allah, the True King; no god is there but He, the Lord of the honourable dominion.*

117 And whoever invokes with Allah another god—he has no proof of this—his reckoning is only with his Lord; surely the unbelievers shall not be successful.

118 And say: O my Lord! forgive and have mercy, and Thou art the best of the Merciful ones.

فَاغْفِرْ لَنَا وَارْحَمْنَا وَأَنْتَ خَيْرُ الرَّاحِمِينَ

فَالْتَقَنَّا قَوْمَهُمْ بِنَارٍ يَأْتِيهِمُ أَسُوفٌ وَكَرِي

وَكُنْتُمْ مِنْهُمْ تَضَلُّوْنَ

إِنِّي جَزَيْتُهُمُ الْيَوْمَ بِمَا صَبَرُوا إِنَّهُمْ

هُمْ الْفَائِزُونَ

قُلْ كَمْ لَكُمْ لِسْتُمْ فِي الْأَرْضِ عَدَدَ سِنِينَ

قَالُوا الْبَيْنَا يَوْمًا أَوْ بَعْضُ يَوْمٍ فَسِئِلِ

الْعَادِينَ

قُلْ إِنْ لَكُمْ لِسْتُمْ إِلَّا قَلِيلًا لَوْ أَنْتُمْ

كُنْتُمْ تَعْلَمُونَ

أَحْسَبْتُمْ أَنْتُمْ أَخْلَقْنَاهُمْ عَبَثًا وَأَنْتُمْ

إِلَيْنَا لَا تُرْجَعُونَ

تَعْلَى اللَّهُ الْمَلِكُ الْحَيُّ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا

هُوَ رَبُّ الْعَرْشِ الْكَرِيمِ

وَمَنْ يَدْعُ مَعَ اللَّهِ إِلَهًا آخَرَ لَا بُرْهَانَ

لَهُ بِهِ وَإِنَّا لَنَاحِسَابُهُ عِنْدَ رَبِّهِ

إِنَّهُ لَا يَغْفِرُ الْكَافِرُونَ

وَقُلْ رَبِّ اغْفِرْ وَارْحَمْ وَأَنْتَ خَيْرُ الرَّاحِمِينَ

* 895.

1734 Really it was not the believers who caused them to forget the remembrance of their Lord, but on account of their mocking the believers, the unbelievers forgot their Lord; hence the believers are here spoken of as having caused the unbelievers to forget their Lord.

1735 This verse clearly establishes the doctrine of the responsibility of human actions. Man is not created in vain, but he shall be returned to his Lord to meet the consequences of what he does in this life.

CHAPTER XXIV

THE LIGHT

(An-Nûr)

REVEALED AT MEDINA
(9 sections and 64 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Law relating to adultery.
- Sec. 2. 'Ayesha's slanderers.
- Sec. 3. Slanderers of women.
- Sec. 4. Preventive measures against fornication and slander.
- Sec. 5. Manifestation of Divine light in Islam.
- Sec. 6. Manifestation of Divine power.
- Sec. 7. Establishment of the kingdom of Islam.
- Sec. 8. Respect for each other's privacy.
- Sec. 9. Matters of state should take precedence of all private affairs.

The Title :

"LIGHT," the title of this chapter, is taken from the statement made in sec. 5, where Islam is shown to be the most perfect manifestation of Divine light, and is compared to a most refined and resplendently brilliant light which shall shine in the East as well as the West.

Context.

The continuity of the Meccan revelation, which begins with the 10th chapter, may apparently seem to have been abruptly broken by the introduction of a Medinian revelation, but the reader who has followed the chain of reasoning showing the continuity of the subject-matter in the present arrangement of chapters cannot fail to observe the deep relation that exists between the last group of the Meccan chapters and this Medinian revelation. The trend of the last group of the Meccan chapters has been to show the ultimate triumph of Islam. As already pointed out in the head-note to the last chapter, the group of the Meccan chapters beginning with the 17th and ending with the 23rd chapter deals with the great and triumphant future of Islam, and hence it is fittingly followed by a chapter which promises in the clearest words the establishment of the kingdom of Islam. The principal point dealt with in this chapter is not really the subject of adultery and its preventives, but the fact that the light of Islam is the purest ray of Divine light, that it shall never die out, that its light shall not be limited either to the East or to the West, but shall lighten both (v. 35), and that the kingdom of Islam shall be permanently established (v. 55). But as the establishment of a kingdom brings ease and luxury in its train, leading to such social evils as adultery and slander, the undermining evils of society, the latter subject is also dealt with here, along with the preventive measures calculated to check these evils.

Subject-matter.

The chapter begins with a condemnation of adultery, because it is the one evil which, though the least condemned in present-day civilized societies, is the most abhorrent to Islamic

SECTION 1

Law relating to Adultery

1, 2. Punishment for adultery. 3. Adulterers and adulteresses to be socially avoided. 4, 5. Punishment for a false charge of adultery. 6-10. Accusation of adultery against one's wife.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 (This is) a chapter which We have revealed and made obligatory and in which We have revealed clear communications that you may be mindful.

2 (As for) the fornicatress and the fornicator, flog each of them, (giving) a hundred stripes, and let not pity for them detain you in the matter of obedience to Allah, if you believe in Allah and the last day,

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ
سُورَةُ الزَّانِعَاتِ وَأَنْزَلْنَاهَا وَأَنْزَلْنَا فِيهَا
آيَاتٍ بَيِّنَاتٍ لَعَلَّكُمْ تَذَكَّرُونَ
الزَّانِيَةُ وَالزَّانِي فَاجْلِدُوا كُلَّ وَاحِدٍ
مِنْهُمَا مِائَةَ جَلْدَةٍ سَوَاءٌ تَأْخُذْكُمُ
بِهِمَا أَرَأَيْتُمْ فِي دِينِ اللَّهِ إِنْ كُنْتُمْ تُؤْمِنُونَ بِاللَّهِ وَالْيَوْمِ الْآخِرِ civilization. It is to draw attention to this point that the ordinance relating to the punishment of the adulterer and the adulteress is combined with the injunction: Let not pity for them detain you in the matter of obedience to Allah. In the same section are correlated subjects, such as false accusation of adultery against women, and the case when the husband, while certain of the adultery of his wife, is unable to bring forward any evidence. The second section deals with the gravity of the sin of those who talked slander about a most innocent woman, 'Ayesha, the Holy Prophet's wife. This is followed by another pardoning 'Ayesha's slanderers and condemning the slanderers of women in general. The fourth section deals with measures which would serve as a check upon adulterous intercourse. Then follow three sections dealing with the kindling of Divine light in Muslim hearts and the manifestation of Divine power in establishing the kingdom of Islam. The eighth section again refers to the subject-matter of the opening sections by enjoining respect for each other's privacy, which is calculated to put restraint upon the tongue of slander, and the last section teaches respect for the Prophet's orders, because in his hands lies the decision of all matters of importance, and because private matters should not take precedence of matters of state.

Date of revelation.

The whole of this chapter is universally held to be a Medianian revelation (AH), and hence the attempt of the latest Christian annotator to ascribe vv. 35-45 to Mecca, without assigning a reason for his assertion, is unworthy of attention. The exact date of the revelation of some portions of the chapter can be ascertained with probable certainty, as that of the verses relating to 'Ayesha's slanderers, which were revealed about a month after the return from the expedition against the Bani Mustaliq, which took place in the month of Sha'bān in the fifth year of Hejira. The verses immediately preceding, which relate to the punishment of adultery, and those following, dealing with false charges of adultery against innocent women, and the preventive measures given further on in sec. 4, as well as those in sec. 8, are all closely related to the subject-matter of sec. 2, and therefore must have been revealed about the same time, while the remainder of the chapter, having a still deeper relation to the subject-matter of the sections referred to above, must be taken to belong also to the fifth year of Hejira. Therefore the whole of this chapter was most probably revealed in that year.

and let a party of believers witness their chastisement.¹⁷³⁶

3 The fornicator shall not marry any but a fornicatress or idolatress, and (as for) the fornicatress, none shall marry her but a fornicator or an idolater; and it is forbidden to the believers.¹⁷³⁷

4 And those who accuse free women then do not bring four witnesses, flog them, (giving) eighty stripes, and do not admit any evidence from them ever; and these it is that are the transgressors.¹⁷³⁸

5 Except those who repent after this and act aright, for surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

6 And (as for) those who accuse their wives and have no witnesses except themselves, the evidence of one of these (should be taken) four times, bearing Allah to witness that he is most surely of the truthful ones.¹⁷³⁹

7 And the fifth (time) that the curse of Allah be on him if he is one of the liars.

وَلَيْسَ هَذَا عَلَى مَا رَافَقَهُ مِنَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ
الرَّزَى لَا يَكُنْ إِلَّا زَانِيَةً أَوْ مُشْرِكَةً
وَالزَّانِيَةُ لَا يَكُنْهَا إِلَّا زَانٍ أَوْ مُشْرِكٌ وَحُرْمَ ذَلِكَ عَلَى الْمُؤْمِنِينَ
وَالَّذِينَ يَرْمُونَ الْمُحْصَنَاتِ ثُمَّ لَا يَأْتُوا
بِأَرْبَعَةِ شُهَدَاءَ فَاجْلِدُوهُمْ ثَمَانِينَ
جَلْدَةً وَلَا تَقْبَلُوا لَهُمْ شَهَادَةً أَبَدًا
وَأُولَئِكَ هُمُ الْفَاسِقُونَ
إِلَّا الَّذِينَ تَابُوا مِنْ بَعْدِ ذَلِكَ وَ
أَصْلَحُوا فَإِنَّ اللَّهَ غَفُورٌ رَحِيمٌ
وَالَّذِينَ يَرْمُونَ أَزْوَاجَهُمْ وَلَمْ يَكُنْ لَهُمْ
شَهِدٌ إِلَّا أَنْفُسُهُمْ فَشَهَادَةُ أَحَدِهِمْ
أَرْبَعٌ شَهَدَاتٍ بِاللَّهِ أَنَّهُ لَيْسَ الصَّادِقِينَ
وَالْخَامِسَةَ أَنَّ لَعْنَتَ اللَّهِ عَلَيْهِ إِنْ
كَانَ مِنَ الْكَذَّابِينَ

1736 Chastity, as a virtue, is not given the first place in modern civilized society, and hence, while fornication is not a criminal offence, even adultery is not considered a sufficiently serious one to subject the guilty party to any punishment except the payment of damages to the injured husband. This, indeed, is a very low view of sexual morality. Materialism has taken such a strong hold of the civilized mind that even chastity, the most precious jewel in a woman's crown of virtue, can be compensated for by a few pounds. The breach of the greatest trust which can be imposed in a man or a woman, the breach which ruins families, destroys household peace, and deprives innocent children of their loving mothers, is not looked upon even as seriously as the breach of trust of a few pounds. Hence the Islamic law seems to be too severe to an easygoing Westerner.

1737 This verse places one guilty of fornication under a kind of interdict. His or her company is to be shunned, so much so that whores and whoremongers are not allowed to have matrimonial relations in good Muslim society. This, more than anything else, would check the offence of fornication.

1738 This is an effectual restraint against slander and gossip, which so often bring disaster upon the heads of innocent women. Unless there is the clearest evidence of adultery against a woman—the evidence of four witnesses—the slanderer is himself to be punished.

1739 The ordinance relates to the case of husbands who accuse their wives of adultery and have no evidence. See a case reported in Bkh. In such a case a divorce is effected, the husband not being punishable for the accusation, though he cannot produce witnesses, and the wife not being punishable for adultery if she denies the charge in the manner stated. Compare Num. 5: 11-31.

8 And it shall avert the chastisement from her if she testify four times, bearing Allah to witness that he is most surely one of the liars;

9 And the fifth (time) that the wrath of Allah be on her if he is one of the truthful.

10 And were it not for Allah's grace upon you and His mercy—and that Allah is Oft-returning (to mercy), Wise!

وَيَكْفُرُوا عَنْهَا الْعَذَابَ أَتَيْتُمْ بِهَا
شَهَادَاتٍ بِاللَّهِ إِنَّهُ لَمِنَ الْكَاذِبِينَ
وَالْخَاسِئَةِ أَنْ غَضِبَ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهَا
كَانَ مِنَ الصَّادِقِينَ
وَلَوْ لَا فَضْلُ اللَّهِ عَلَيْكُمْ وَرَحْمَتُهُ وَأَنَّ اللَّهَ تَوَّابٌ حَكِيمٌ

SECTION 2

'Ayesha's Slanderers

11 Surely they who concocted the lie are a party from among you.¹⁷⁴⁰ Do not regard it an evil to you; nay, it is good for you. Every man of them shall have what he has earned of sin; and (as for) him who took upon himself the main part thereof, he shall have a grievous chastisement.¹⁷⁴¹

12 Why did not the believing men and the believing women, when you heard it, think well of their own people, and say: This is an evident falsehood?¹⁷⁴²

13 Why did they not bring four witnesses of it? But as they have not brought witnesses they are liars before Allah.¹⁷⁴³

إِنَّ الَّذِينَ جَاءُوا بِالْإِفْكِ عُصْبَةٌ مِنْكُمْ
لَا تَحْسَبُوهُ شَرًّا لَكُم بَلْ هُوَ خَيْرٌ لَكُمْ
لِكُلِّ امْرِئٍ مِنْهُمْ مَا اكْتَسَبَ مِنَ الْإِثْمِ
الَّذِي تَوَلَّى كِبْرَهُ مِنْهُمْ لَهُ عَذَابٌ عَظِيمٌ
لَوْلَا إِذْ سَمِعْتُمُوهُ ظَنَّ الْمُؤْمِنُونَ وَالْمُؤْمِنَاتُ
بِأَنفُسِهِمْ خَبَرًا وَقَالُوا هَذَا إِفْكٌ مُبِينٌ
لَوْلَا جَاءُوا عَلَيْهِ بِأَرْبَعَةِ شُهَدَاءَ فَإِذْ
لَمْ يَأْتُوا بِالشَّهَدَاءِ ظَنَّكَ عِنْدَ اللَّهِ
سَمُ الْكَاذِبِينَ

1740 The incident referred to in this section took place when the Prophet, accompanied by his wife 'Ayesha, was returning from the expedition against Banī Mustaliq in the fifth year of the Hejira. 'Ayesha had gone out on a private occasion, but when she returned she perceived that she had lost her necklace, and went back to search for it. In her absence the attendants, supposing her to be in her howdah, started while it was yet dark. When she returned, finding the camel and the men gone, she sat down there and was brought to Medina by Safwān, who was coming in the rear. Some mischievous persons from among the hypocrites spread false reports, slandering her, and some of the Muslims also associated themselves with the slander. 'Ayesha's innocence was at length established by this revelation, and those who had taken part in the accusation were punished. This is the grievous punishment referred to in the concluding words of the verse.

1741 He who took the main part thereof upon himself is said to be 'Abdulla bin Ubayy bin Salul, the chief of the hypocrites (Bkh), because he concocted the lie and circulated the false report. But according to another report it was Hassan bin Sabit, the poet, who became blind in his old age, this being the grievous punishment predicted here (Bkh).

1742 There was not a single witness nor any circumstance that could lend a colour to the false report.

1743, see next page.

14 And were it not for Allah's grace upon you and His mercy in this world and the hereafter, a grievous chastisement would certainly have touched you on account of the discourse which you entered into.

15 When you received it with your tongues and spoke with your mouths what you had no knowledge of, and you deemed it an easy matter while with Allah it was grievous.

16 And why did you not, when you heard it, say: It does not beseem us that we should talk of it: glory be to Thee! this is a great calumny?

17 Allah admonishes you that you should not return to the like of it ever again if you are believers.

18 And Allah makes clear to you the communications; and Allah is Knowing, Wise.

19 Surely (as for) those who love that scandal should circulate respecting those who believe, they shall have a grievous chastisement in this world and the hereafter; and Allah knows, while you do not know.

20 And were it not for Allah's grace on you and His mercy, and that Allah is Compassionate, Merciful.

وَلَوْلَا ضَلُّ اللّٰهُ عَلَيْكُمْ وَرَحْمَتُهُ

بِهَا لَعْنَةُ عَظِيمٍ ۝

إِذْ تَلَقَّوْنَهُ بِالسَّبِّحَةِ وَتَقُولُونَ

هَيْئَةً وَهُوَ عِنْدَ اللّٰهِ عَظِيمٌ ۝
وَلَوْلَا إِذْ سَمِعْتُمُوهُ قُلْتُمْ مَا يَكُونُ
لَنَا أَنْ نَتَكَلَّمَ بِهَذَا سُبْحَنَكَ
هَذَا بَهْتَانٌ عَظِيمٌ ۝

يَعِظُكُمُ اللّٰهُ أَنْ تَعُودُوا لِلْخِطَايَةِ أَبَدًا
إِنْ كُنْتُمْ مُؤْمِنِينَ ۝

وَسَيُنْزِلُ اللّٰهُ لَكُمْ آيَاتٍ وَاللّٰهُ عَلِيمٌ حَكِيمٌ
إِنَّ الَّذِينَ يَحْمِلُونَ الزُّنُوحَ وَالْأَفْوَاحَ
فِي الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا لَهُمْ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٌ فِي الدُّنْيَا
وَالْآخِرَةِ وَاللّٰهُ يَعْلَمُ وَأَنْتُمْ لَا تَعْلَمُونَ
وَلَوْلَا ضَلُّ اللّٰهُ عَلَيْكُمْ وَرَحْمَتُهُ
وَأَنَّ اللّٰهُ ذُو فَضْلٍ رَّحِيمٌ ۝

1743 Severe as the punishment of adultery is in Islam, the evidence of four witnesses is required to establish the guilt. See v. 4. The allegation of a Christian annotator that this requirement of the law was simply to shield 'Ayesha is a base attack on the Holy Prophet's good faith. All the reports unanimously show that the slander against 'Ayesha was utterly unfounded, and at least this much is clear, that in her case there was not a single witness. Why should the Prophet then have required four witnesses? If it was to shield 'Ayesha, the requirement of a single witness would have better suited his purpose. But the fact is that while the Qur-án takes, on the one hand, a very serious view of the crimes against chastity, it disallows the circulation of all reports affecting a woman's chastity, except those based on the surest evidence. Thus even a lighter accusation in connection with the misconduct of women required the evidence of four witnesses. See 4: 15, which was admittedly revealed long before. This only shows how great a respect Islam has for the virtue of woman.

SECTION 3

Slanderers of Women

21, 22. Slanderers of 'Ayesha to be forgiven. 23-26. Slanderers of women condemned.

21 O you who believe! do not follow the footsteps of the devil; and whoever follows the footsteps of the devil, then surely he bids the doing of indecency and evil; and were it not for Allah's grace upon you and His mercy, not one of you would have ever been pure, but Allah purifies whom He pleases; and Allah is Hearing, Knowing.¹⁷⁴⁴

22 And let not those of you who possess grace and abundance swear against giving to the near of kin and the poor and those who have fled in Allah's way, and they should pardon and turn away. Do you not love that Allah should forgive you? and Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.¹⁷⁴⁵

23 Surely those who accuse chaste believing women, unaware (of the evil), are cursed in this world and the hereafter, and they shall have a grievous chastisement,¹⁷⁴⁶

24 On the day when their tongues and their hands and their feet shall bear witness against them as to what they did.¹⁷⁴⁷

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا لَا تَتَّبِعُوا خُطُوَاتِ الشَّيْطَانِ وَمَنْ يَتَّبِعْ خُطُوَاتِ الشَّيْطَانِ فَإِنَّهُ يَأْمُرُ بِالْفَحْشَاءِ وَالْمُنكَرِ وَلَوْ لَا فَضْلُ اللَّهِ عَلَيْكُمْ وَرَحْمَتُهُ مَا كُنْتُمْ مِنْ أَحَدٍ أَبَدًا وَلَكِنَّ اللَّهَ يُزَكِّي مَنِ يَشَاءُ وَاللَّهُ سَمِيعٌ عَلِيمٌ ۝

وَلَا يَأْتَلِ أُولُو الْفَضْلِ مِنْكُمْ وَالسَّعَةِ أَنْ يُؤْتُوا أُولَى الْقُرْبَىٰ وَالْمَسْكِينِ وَالْمُحْجِرِينَ فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ وَلْيَعْفُوا وَلْيَصْفَحُوا أَلَا يَعْلَمُونَ أَنَّ اللَّهَ يَعْفُو اللَّهُ لَكُمْ وَاللَّهُ عَفْوٌ ذَرِيمٌ ۝

إِنَّ الَّذِينَ يَرْمُونَ الْمُحْصَنَاتِ الْفَاحِشَاتِ الْمُؤْمِنَاتِ لَعُنُوا فِي الدُّنْيَا وَالْآخِرَةِ وَلَهُمْ عَذَابٌ عَظِيمٌ ۝
يَوْمَ تَشْهَدُ عَلَيْهِمْ أَلْسِنَتُهُمْ وَأَيْدِيهِمْ وَأَرْجُلُهُمْ بِمَا كَانُوا يَعْمَلُونَ ۝

1744 This passage shows that the companions of the Holy Prophet were purified from sins by Allah's grace, which He manifested through His Prophet.

1745 This is a very important passage. It is agreed on the basis of most trustworthy reports that this verse was revealed in connection with the action of Abu Bakr, who had sworn not to allow maintenance to one of his relatives named Mistah, who had taken a part in spreading the false reports against 'Ayesha (Bkh). It shows in the first place the broad-mindedness of the Prophet, who after inflicting the legal punishment upon the culprits was required to bear them no ill-will, and hid no rancour in his breast even towards the slanderers of his own wife; revelation even required his companions to be kind and forgiving to them. Secondly, it mentions Abu Bakr, not by name, but as one possessing grace and abundance, the former of these words referring to his moral and spiritual superiority and the latter to abundance in wealth.

1746 This refers to those who continue to spread evil reports concerning chaste women, the gossip-mongers in every society. The slanderers of 'Ayesha, it may be noted, were forgiven, as the previous verse shows.

1747 The evidence of the members of the body is sometimes witnessed in this very life against the doers of evil, in the consequences of the evil done. On the resurrection day the 25 On that day Allah will pay back to them in full their just reward, and they shall know that Allah is the evident Truth.

26 Unclean things are for unclean ones and unclean ones are for unclean things, and the good things are for good ones and the good ones are for good things; these are free from what they say; they shall have forgiveness and an honourable sustenance.¹⁷⁴⁸

Preventive Measures against Fornication and Slander

27-29. Houses not to be entered without permission. 30, 31. Guarded relations between males and females. 32. A married state to be preferred to singleness. 33, 34. Continence in case of inability to marry.

27 O you who believe! do not enter houses other than your own houses until you have asked permission and saluted their inmates; this is better for you, that you may be mindful.¹⁷⁴⁹

28 But if you do not find any one therein, then do not enter them until permission is given to you; and if it is said to you, Go back, then go back; this is purer for you; and Allah is Cognizant of what you do.

29 It is no sin in you that you enter uninhabited houses wherein you have your necessities; and Allah knows what you do openly and what you hide.

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا لَا تَدْخُلُوا بُيُوتًا consequences of the evil deeds will assume a palpable form, as is also indicated in the paying back in full of the just rewards in the next verse, and thus bear witness to the evil done. This highly developed idea of the resurrection did not exist before the Holy Qur-ān.

1748 The meaning of this whole passage is made clear by the concluding words, i.e. nothing impure can be attributed to the pure ones, and they are free from what the impure ones say.

1749 The Arabs entered houses without permission (Rz). This savage custom was abolished, and the law revealed in this verse laid down the basis of domestic peace and security needed for an advanced society. The law is a clear testimony of the great trust which Muslims have in their womenfolk. It is also a preventive measure against slander.

30 Say to the believing men that they cast down their looks and guard their private parts; that is purer for them; surely Allah is Aware of what they do.¹⁷⁵⁰

31 And say to the believing women that they cast down their looks and guard their private parts and not display their ornaments except what appears thereof,¹⁷⁵¹ and let

قُلْ لِلْمُؤْمِنِينَ كَفَّيْهِمْ أَبْصَارُهُمْ
وَيَحْفَظُوا أَرْوَاحَهُمْ ذَلِكَ أَزْكَى لَهُمْ
إِنَّ اللَّهَ خَبِيرٌ بِمَا يَصْنَعُونَ
وَقُلْ لِلْمُؤْمِنَاتِ كَفَّيْهُنَّ مِنْ أَبْصَارِهِنَّ
وَيَحْفَظْنَ فُرُوجَهُنَّ وَلَا يُبْدِينَ
زِينَتَهُنَّ إِلَّا مَا ظَهَرَ مِنْهَا

1750 The men are enjoined to keep their eyes cast down, just as the women are enjoined to do in the next verse. This injunction is given as a preventive against an evil which deals a deathblow to all pure social relations, viz. the evil of fornication. The Qur-án does not only forbid evil, but also points out the way by walking in which man may be able to eschew it. From this injunction it appears further that there is no restriction as to women going out when they think it necessary, for if women were totally forbidden to go out of their houses, men would not have been required to cast down their eyes. In fact, the Holy Qur-án requires both men and women to keep their eyes cast down, so that when they meet each other, neither should men stare at women nor women at men. In a society in which women never appeared in public, the injunction to men to have their looks cast down would be meaningless, and the similar injunction to women given in the next verse, if they never left the compounds of their houses, would be equally absurd. As for the limits of the pardah or the veil, see the next foot-note and also 1989.

1751 To guard the relations between males and females and to check a too free intermingling of men and women, the Qur-án now lays down another injunction in addition to that which requires both sexes to go abroad with their looks cast down. One part of the injunction is common to both sexes: both must keep their looks cast down and both must guard their private parts. But women must observe some further directions. The injunction which relates to women in particular is to keep their ornaments concealed. There is a difference of opinion as to what zinat or ornament means. According to some it includes the beauty of the body, while according to others it is exclusively applied to external ornaments and adornments (Rz). The use of the same word in the concluding portion of the verse, let them not strike their feet so that what they hide of their ornaments may be known, clearly supports the latter view, as the only ornaments that can be known by the striking of the feet are external ornaments. But even according to those who include the beauty of the body in the significance of zinat, it is permissible for a woman to have her hands and face uncovered (Rz), as being allowed under the exception what appears thereof, as without uncovering these it would be impossible for women to take part in any business; the rest of the body and the ornaments upon it, whether in the form of tight clothes or of gold and silver ornaments, are to be kept concealed by a long head-covering or, say, an overcoat. According to Kf الإما جرت العادة إلا ما ظهر منها except what appears thereof means

والجبلية على ظهوره except that which it is customary and natural to uncover. The customs of different societies would therefore allow a variation, and one rule cannot be laid down for all. According to Qaffál the meaning of the words is

i.e. except that which a person discloses usually, and in the case of women this means the face and the two hands (Rz). Thus a woman when going out should have herself covered over by an external wrapper or an overcoat, it being permissible to leave the hands and the face uncovered. The exposure of such parts as the neck, the bosom, or the arms is forbidden, want out of His grace.¹⁷⁵⁴ And (as for) those who ask for a writing from among those whom your right hands possess, give them the writing if you know any good in them, and give them of the wealth of Allah which He has given you;¹⁷⁵⁵ and do not compel your slave girls to prostitution, when they desire to keep chaste, in order to seek the frail good of this world's life; and whoever compels them, then surely after their compulsion Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.¹⁷⁵⁶

34 And certainly We have sent to you clear communications and a description of those who have passed away before you, and an admonition to those who guard (against evil).

مِنْ فَضْلِهِ وَالَّذِينَ يَبْتَغُونَ الْكِتَابَ
مِمَّا مَلَكَتْ أَيْمَانُكُمْ فَمَكِّتُوهُمْ إِنْ عُلِمَ
فِيهِمْ خَيْرٌ فَإِنْ عَلِمُوا لَكُمْ
لَا تَكْرِهُوْا أَفْيَتَكُمْ
عَلَى الْبَغَاءِ إِنْ أَرَدْتَ تَحَصُّنًا لِّتَبْتَنُوا
عَرَضَ الْحَيَوةِ الدُّنْيَا وَمَنْ يُكْرِهْمَنْ
فَإِنَّ اللَّهَ مِنْ بَعْدِ أَلْوَاهِمَنْ غَفُورٌ رَحِيمٌ
وَلَقَدْ أَنْزَلْنَا إِلَيْكُمْ آيَاتٍ مُبِينَاتٍ وَمَثَلًا
مِّنَ الَّذِينَ خَلَوْا مِن قَبْلِكُمْ وَ
مَوْعِظَةً لِّلْمُتَّقِينَ ۝

1754 Marriage thus becomes an obligatory institution in Islam, only those being excused who do not find a match or who lack the means to marry. Not only does this injunction uproot idleness, but it also affords the surest guarantee for the betterment of the moral tone of society. In this respect, too, Islam has proved a blessing for the world. No vow of celibacy has a legal sanction in Islam.

1755 The word kitāb, translated writing, as used here, stands for mukātabah, which is an infinitive noun of kātaba, signifying he (a slave) made a written (or other) contract with him (his master), that he (the former) should pay a certain sum as the price of himself, and on the payment thereof be free (Q-LL); also he (a master) made such a contract with him (his slave). According to Rz, it was called a kitāb (or writing), because of the obligation which the master imposed on himself, and the money was paid in two or more instalments. Thus every possible facility was afforded to the slave to earn his freedom. Though the practice of the master making such a contract with the slave prevailed before the advent of Islam, the important reform was introduced by Islam that when a slave desired such a contract to be made the master should not refuse it. Twelve centuries before any attempt was made by any individual or community to legislate for the liberty of slaves, a dweller of the Arabian desert had laid down this noble institution, that if a slave asked for a writing of freedom, he was not only to be given that writing by the owner, but he was also to be provided with money to purchase his freedom, the only condition being if you know any good in them, i.e. if he is fit for work and able to earn his livelihood. Is there any other religious leader in the world who laid down a similar law for the liberty of slaves? And, in addition, the duty was imposed upon the state of spending a part of the collections of the poor-rate upon this object, as stated in 9:60.

1756 It is related that Abdulla bin Ubayy, the leader of the hypocrites, kept six slave-girls for prostitution (Rz). This practice, which seems to have prevailed before the advent of Islam in Arabia, is condemned here. But this most mischievous curse of society, i.e. prostitution, has obtained an incredible prevalence in the whole of Christendom, and is legalized in many countries of Europe as a necessary evil, while in others it is openly connived at.

Manifestation of Divine Light in Islam

35-38. Perfection of Divine light in Islam. 39. Opposition to truth gives false hopes like a mirage. 40. Comparison of unbelief to darkness.

Or, niche

35 Allah is the light of the heavens and the earth; a likeness of His light is as a pillar on which is a lamp, the lamp is in a glass, (and) the glass is as it were a brightly shining star, lit from a blessed olive-tree, neither eastern nor western, the oil whereof almost gives light though fire touch it not—light upon light—Allah guides to His light whom He pleases, and Allah sets forth parables for men, and Allah is Cognizant of all things.¹⁷⁵⁷

36 In houses which Allah has permitted to be exalted and that His name may be remembered in them;¹⁷⁵⁸ there glorify Him therein in the mornings and the evenings,

اللَّهُ نُورُ السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ مِثْلُ نُورِ
كَيْسُكُو فِيهَا مِصْبَاحٌ الْمِصْبَاحُ فِي
زَجَاجَةٍ الزَّجَاجَةُ كَأَنَّهَا كَوْكَبٌ
دُرِّيُّ يُوقَدُ مِنْ شَجَرَةٍ مُبَارَكَةٍ زَيْتُونَةٍ
لَا شَرْقِيَّةٍ وَلَا غَرْبِيَّةٍ يَكَادُ زَيْتُهَا يُضِيئُ
وَلَوْ لَمْ تَمْسَسْهُ نَارٌ نُورٌ عَلَى نُورٍ يَهْدِي
اللَّهُ لِنُورِهِ مَنْ يَشَاءُ وَيَضْرِبُ اللَّهُ
الْأَمْثَالَ لِلنَّاسِ وَاللَّهُ بِكُلِّ شَيْءٍ عَلِيمٌ
فِي بُيُوتٍ إِنَّ اللَّهَ أَنْ تَرَوْهُ وَيَذْكُرُ فِيهَا
اسْمَهُ لَا يَسْجُدُ لَهُ فِيهَا إِلَّا النَّذِيرُ وَالْأَمَلُ

1757 Nūr, or light, is that which manifests hidden things, and Allah is called here the light of the heavens and the earth, because He has manifested them and brought them into existence. This statement is followed by an example of His light, which, if read along with the connecting verses that follow, makes its own meaning clear, though it has been made a riddle by neglecting that connection.

In the parable that follows, Islam is represented as a likeness of the Divine light, a light placed high on a pillar so as to illumine the whole world; a light guarded by being placed in a glass, so that no puff of wind can put it out; a light so resplendent that the glass itself in which it is placed is as a brilliant star. It should be noted that the religion of Islam is repeatedly spoken of as the Divine light in the Holy Qur-án: "They desire to put out the light of Allah with their mouths, but Allah will not consent save to perfect His light, though the unbelievers are averse" (9: 32, 61: 8). Hence it is of Islam that the parable of Divine light speaks. The blessed olive, from which that light is lit, stands here for a symbol of Islam, as the fig stands for a symbol of Judaism (see 2766). The blessed olive, which stands for a symbol of Islam, belongs neither to the East nor to the West. Even so is Islam, which must give light to both the East and the West, and which, therefore, does not specially belong to any one of them. The reference seems to be to the welding together of the East and the West in Islam, a prophecy which is now approaching its fulfilment in the awakening of the West to the truth of the principles of Islam.

1758 The Divine light spoken of in the last verse is here stated as being met with in certain houses, the distinctive mark of those houses being that the name of Allah is remembered in them, thus showing that these houses are the houses of the Muslims, and the light is therefore the light of Islam. These houses, we are further told, though humble now, shall be exalted one day, as Allah has so ordained. And the exaltation of the humble huts of the Arab dwellers of the desert to royal palaces is too clear to need any comment as to the truth of this wonderful prophecy.

37 Men whom neither merchandise nor selling diverts from the remembrance of Allah and the keeping up of prayer and the giving of poor-rate;¹⁷⁵⁹ they fear a day in which the hearts and the eyes shall turn about;

38 That Allah may give them the best reward of what they have done, and give them more out of His grace; and Allah gives sustenance to whom He pleases without measure.

39 And (as for) those who disbelieve, their deeds are like the mirage in a desert, which the thirsty man deems to be water; until when he comes to it he finds it to be naught, and there he finds Allah, so He pays back to him his reckoning in full; and Allah is quick in reckoning:

40 Or like utter darkness in the deep sea: there covers it a wave above which is another wave, above which is a cloud, (layers of) utter darkness one above another; when he holds out his hand, he is almost unable to see it; and to whomsoever Allah does not give light, he has no light.¹⁷⁶⁰

رَجَالٌ لَا تُلِيهِمْ تِجَارَةٌ وَلَا بَيْعٌ عَنْ
ذِكْرِ اللَّهِ وَاقَامَ الصَّلَاةَ وَآتَاكَ الزَّكَاةَ

يُعْزِزُهُمُ اللَّهُ أَحْسَنَ مَاعَمَلُوا وَيَزِيدُهُمْ
فَضْلَهُ وَاللَّهُ يَرْزُقُ مَنْ يَشَاءُ بِغَيْرِ حِسَابٍ
وَالَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا أَعْمَالُهُمْ كَسَرَابٍ بِفِغَةٍ
يُحْسِبُهَا الظَّمْآنُ مَاءً حَتَّى إِذَا أَجَاءهُ
لَمْ يَجِدْهُ شَيْئًا وَوَجَدَ اللَّهُ عِنْدَهُ ثَوْنًا
حِسَابَهُ وَاللَّهُ سَرِيعُ الْحِسَابِ
أَوْ كَظُلُمٍ فِي تِجَارٍ يَغْشَاهُ مَوْجٌ مِنْ
قُرُومٍ مَوْجٌ مِنْ قُرُومٍ سَحَابٌ طُلُمٍ
سَحَابٌ طُلُمٍ إِذَا أَخْرَجَ يَدَهُ
لَمْ يَكُنْ يَرَاهَا وَمَنْ لَمْ يَجْعَلِ اللَّهُ لَهُ
نُورًا فَلَا لَهُ مِنْ نُورٍ

1759 A further description of these houses makes the reference still more clear. In these houses Allah is glorified in the morning and the evening, and therefore these can be the houses of no other than Muslims, because the keeping up of prayer and the giving of poor-rate is the distinguishing characteristic of Islam. In these houses there are men whose business is trading, because it is stated that merchandise does not divert them from remembering Allah, and hence these are the companions who fled from Mecca with the Holy Prophet, because it was they who carried on trade. The opposition to this light, and the end of that opposition, are described in the two concluding verses of the section.

1760 As the first part of the section gives a picture of the brilliant and dazzling Divine light which is given to the believers, the last part describes the utter darkness of doubts and ignorance in which the unbelievers are. Their apparent hopes of success are compared to a mirage, and when they are undecieved of these they will find themselves in a darkness in which they will not be able to see anything.

1761 This and the previous verse indicate the establishment of the kingdom of Islam.

1762 This verse calls attention to the slow and gradual progress that Islam was making, and some of the disasters which the unbelievers had already witnessed, in which they could see clear signs of the final triumph of Islam.

47 And they say: We believe in Allah and in the Apostle and we obey; then a party of them turn back after this, and these are not believers.

48 And when they are called to Allah and His Apostle that he may judge between them, lo! a party of them turn aside.

49 And if the truth be on their side, they come to him quickly, obedient.

50 Is there in their hearts a disease,* or are they in doubt, or do they fear that Allah and His Apostle will act wrongfully towards them? Nay! they themselves are the unjust.

52 And he who obeys Allah and His Apostle, and fears Allah, and is careful of (his duty to) Him, these it is that are the achievers.

Ar. thou. 53 And they swear by Allah with the most energetic of their oaths that if you command them they would certainly go forth. Say: Swear not; reasonable obedience (is desired); surely Allah is aware of what you do.

54 Say: Obey Allah and obey the Apostle; but if you turn back, then on him rests that which is imposed on him and on you rests that which is imposed on you; and if you obey him, you are on the right way; and nothing rests on the Apostle but clear delivering (of the message).

1763 This verse not only prophesies the establishment of the kingdom of Islam, but also its permanence, so that successors will be raised to the Holy Prophet and the Muslims made a ruling nation on earth. By those before them are meant in particular the followers of Moses (Bq). Islam at the time of the revelation of this chapter, or these verses, was still surrounded by enemies on all sides; there was still fear for the believers, as the verse clearly shows, and idol-worship still had the upper hand in Arabia. The triumph of Islam which is prophesied in the parable of the Divine light first, and the gradual advent of which is referred to afterwards, is here predicted in the clearest and most emphatic terms: the believers shall be made rulers in the promised land, or rulers of the country; their religion shall be firmly established; security shall be given to them in place of fear; Divine Unity shall rule supreme, no other gods being worshipped with the true God. All these favours shall be bestowed upon the Muslims, for which they should be thankful; but if they are ungrateful after that they shall be dealt with as transgressors. Rz explains kuf here as meaning مُحَدِّق.

هَذِهِ النِّعَمُ i.e. the denial of what is due to these favours; or ungratefulness, because when conveying the meaning of disbelief it is generally followed by a ba and the object of disbelief. But even if the ordinary meaning of kuf be retained, as given in the margin, the denial means the denial of the Divine blessings and not the denial of the rulers or the successors.

Though the promise contained in this verse refers clearly to the establishment of the kingdom of Islam and to the Muslims being made successors to the Israelites, as regards the promised Holy Land, there may also be a reference here to the Divine promise to raise reformers among the Muslims as prophets were raised among the Israelites. Such is the clear promise contained in a saying of the Holy Prophet: "Surely Allah will raise up for this people (i.e. the Muslims) in the beginning of every century one who shall reform their religion." The promise given in the verse may therefore refer not only to the temporal successors of the Holy Prophet, but also to his spiritual successors or reformers. The analogy of the Israelites, to which the verse refers, points to the appearance of a Messiah among the Muslims as a Messiah was raised among the Israelites, and it was on this verse that the claim of the late Mirza Ghulam

61. Familiar intercourse in case of close relationship and friendship.

58 O you who believe! let those whom your right hands possess and those of you who have not attained to puberty ask permission of you three times: before the morning prayer, and when you put off your clothes at midday in summer, and after the prayer of the nightfall; these are three times of privacy for you; neither is it a sin for you nor for them besides these, some of you must go round about (waiting) upon others; thus does Allah make clear to you the communications, and Allah is Knowing, Wise.¹⁷⁶⁴

59 And when the children among you have attained to puberty, let them seek permission as those before them sought permission; thus does Allah make clear to you His communications, and Allah is Knowing, Wise.

60 And (as for) women advanced in years¹⁷⁶⁵ who do not hope for a marriage, it is no sin for them if they put off their clothes without displaying their ornaments; and if they restrain themselves it is better for them; and Allah is Hearing, Knowing.

lays down a middle rule, and allows the individual a great latitude in this respect. A man may eat alone or with others, he may eat with the maimed, etc., or he may eat from the houses of near relations and friends. Cut-and-dried rules on these points, like those which prevailed before Islam, or which prevail in Christian society to this day, are unacceptable to Islam. Or the negation of blame on the blind and the lame and the sick has reference to the doctrine which ascribes these defects to the sins of a previous birth, for Islam rejects the doctrine of the transmigration of souls. It also lays down a rule which permits familiar intercourse in certain cases.

رَٰسَدُونَ ۚ أَعْمَلُوا وَاللَّهُ بِكُلِّ شَيْءٍ عَلِيمٌ

1767 The significance of this verse has been misunderstood by both Palmer and Rodwell. It does not indicate how the Prophet is to be addressed, but in what manner his call is to be responded to. The context makes it clear. The previous verse states that none is to leave without the Prophet's permission when they are gathered together for some important affair requiring their presence, and the words that follow this passage are to the same effect. Hence what is stated here is that the Prophet's call to the believers is to be respected, and not to be treated as their calling to one another; because the Prophet's call must relate to some important affair affecting the welfare of the community, while their mutual calling to each other relates to their own private affairs of an ordinary type.

1768 مَا أَنْتُمْ عَلَيْهِ signifies the state of mind and conduct to which you conform yourselves, i.e. whether you are sincere or hypocritical.

CHAPTER XXV
THE DISTINCTION
(Al-Furqān)

REVEALED AT MECCA
(6 sections and 77 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. A warner for all nations.
- Sec. 2. Truth of the warning.
- Sec. 3. The day of distinction.
- Sec. 4. A lesson in the fate of former people.
- Sec. 5. A lesson from nature.
- Sec. 6. The transformation wrought.

The title, context and date of revelation.

THIS chapter, which is entitled The Distinction, is, in its entirety, one of the earlier Meccan revelations, and it is an error to ascribe vv. 68-70 to Medina, as the context clearly shows. The later prophecies of the last chapter, which clearly promised the establishment of a Muslim kingdom, are followed by an earlier prophecy as to the great day of distinction, when truth and falsehood shall be so clearly separated that even the superficial eye should not fail to observe it. Thus it happened in the battle of Badr, which is called the day of distinction in the Holy Qur-ān (8 : 41), and this is the day referred to in v. 25.

Subject-matter.

The chapter opens with the statement that the Holy Prophet's message was for all nations of the world, and, as the last exposition of the doctrine of Divine Unity, it must unite all the nations and uproot all sorts of polytheism; the Unity of God and the unity of humanity must go hand-in-hand. The unbelievers objected to his being a mortal, and to this an answer is given in the concluding words of the second section, which asserts the truth of the warning. The third section points out that a distinction shall be finally made between good and evil, and refers to the day of distinction. These general statements are followed by concrete instances of the fate of previous peoples, some of which are very briefly referred to in the fourth section, and the Meccans are warned against their persistence in error. The fifth section draws attention to some natural phenomena which bear evidence to the law of gradual growth in nature, showing how merciful dealing characterizes all Divine laws: laws of which it often became necessary to remind those who derided punishment in their opposition to truth. The chapter is brought to a close by a description of the righteous servants of the Beneficent God, being, in fact, an indication of the mighty transformation which had already begun to work.

SECTION 1

A Warner for all Nations

1. A message for the whole world. 2, 3. Divine Unity. 4, 5. The Qur-an reveals deep knowledge of the future. 7-9. The Prophet is denied and called a madman.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 Blessed is He Who sent down the distinction upon His servant that he may be a warner to the nations;¹⁷⁶⁹

2 He, Whose is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth, and Who did not take to Himself a son, and Who has no associate in the kingdom, and Who created every thing, then ordained for it a measure.¹⁷⁷⁰

3 And they have taken besides Him gods, who do not create anything while they are themselves created, and they control not for themselves any harm or profit, and they control not death, nor life, nor raising (the dead) to life.

4 And those who disbelieve say: This is nothing but a lie which he has forged, and other people have helped him at it; so indeed they have done injustice and (uttered) a falsehood.

5 And they say: The stories of the ancients—he has got them written—so these are read out to him morning and evening.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

تَبَارَكَ الَّذِي نَزَّلَ الْفُرْقَانَ عَلَى عَبْدِهِ

لِيَكُونَ لِلْعَالَمِينَ نَذِيرًا ۝

يَ الَّذِي لَهُ مُلْكُ السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ

لَمْ يَتَّخِذْ وَلَدًا وَلَمْ يَكُن لَّهُ شَرِيكٌ فِي الْمَلِكِ

وَخَلَقَ كُلَّ شَيْءٍ فَقَدْ رُءَاهُ تَقْدِيرًا ۝

وَإِذْ أَخَذُوا مِنْ دُونِهِ آلِهَةً لَا يُخْلَقُونَ شَيْئًا

وَهُمْ يُخْلَقُونَ وَلَا يَمْلِكُونَ أَنْفُسَهُمْ

ضَرًّا وَلَا نَفْعًا وَلَا يَمْلِكُونَ مَوْتًا

وَأَحْيَاوَهُ وَلَا تَمُوتُونَ ۝

وَقَالَ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا لَهَذَا إِلَّا أَنْفُكَ

بِإِفْتِرَائِهِ وَآخَانُهُ عَلَيْهِ قَوْمٌ آخَرُونَ

فَقَدْ جَاءُوا ظُلُمًا وَزُورًا ۝

وَقَالُوا آسَاطِيرُ الْأَوَّلِينَ السَّبَّحَاتِ

تُنْكَرُ عَلَيْهِ بُكْرَةً وَأَصِيلًا ۝

Ar. nor

1769 This distinction consisted in the discomfiture of the power of an enemy who, at the time when these prophecies were announced, was so strong as to call these prophecies the ravings of a madman. The earliest occasion on which the power of the Quraish was broken was the battle of Badr, where their nine mischievous leaders fell, while its final overthrow was consummated by the conquest of Mecca. Such a distinct sign of the Holy Prophet's truth, the value of which is in no way diminished by the lapse of time, no doubt entitled him to be a true warner to all the nations of the earth. It should be noted that the universality of the Prophet's message is plainly asserted in this early Meccan revelation.

1770 The mission of the Prophet is universal, for he is the Apostle of a King whose kingdom extends over the entire universe. And by reason of the greatness of His power He will accomplish the fulfilment of the prophecies which had already been pronounced. The verse condemns in very brief words all kinds of polytheism.

6 Say: He has revealed it Who knows the secret in the heavens and the earth; surely He is ever Forgiving, Merciful.¹⁷⁷¹

7 And they say: What is the matter with this Apostle that he eats food and goes about in the marts; why has not an angel been sent down to him, so that he should have been a warner with him?¹⁷⁷²

8 Or (why is not) a treasure sent down to him, or he is made to have a garden from which he should eat?¹⁷⁷³ And the unjust say: You do not follow any but a man deprived of reason.

Ar. thee.

9 See what likenesses do they apply to you, so they have gone astray, therefore they shall not be able to find a way.¹⁷⁷⁴

قُلْ أَنْزَلَهُ الَّذِي يَعْلَمُ السِّرَّ فِي السَّمَوَاتِ
وَالْأَرْضِ إِنَّهُ كَانَ غَفُورًا رَحِيمًا
وَقَالُوا مَالِ هَذَا الرَّسُولِ يَأْكُلُ
الطَّعَامَ وَيَمْشِي فِي الْأَسْوَاقِ لَوْلَا أَنْزَلَ
إِلَيْهِ مَلَكٌ يَكُونُ مَعَهُ نَذِيرًا
أَوْ يُنَزِّلُ إِلَيْهِ كُتُبًا أَوْ تَكُونُ لَهُ جَنَّةٌ
يَأْكُلُ مِنْهَا وَقَالَ الظَّالِمُونَ إِنْ تَتَّبِعُونَ
إِلَّا رَجُلًا مَسْكُورًا

فَلَا يَسْتَطِيعُونَ سَبِيلًا

SECTION 2

Truth of the Warning

10. Goodness in store for the Prophet. 11-14. Destruction is the end of the wicked. 15, 16. Reward of the faithful. 17-19. False deities. 20. All prophets were mortals.

Ar. thee.

10 Blessed is He Who, if He please, will give you what is better than this: gardens beneath which rivers flow, and He will give you palaces.¹⁷⁷⁵

Ar. thee

تَبَارَكَ الَّذِي إِن شَاءَ جَعَلَ الْخَيْرَ
مِنْ ذَلِكَ جَنَّاتٍ تَجْرِي مِنْ تَحْتِهَا
الْأَنْهَارُ وَيَجْعَلُ لَكَ قَصُورًا

1771 Hence the truth of his prophecies will be a sure sign of the truth of this revelation from Allah. This is the reply to the charges contained in the previous verses.

1772 The Prophet's life was one of utmost simplicity. He did all his work himself. "He aided his wives in their household duties, mended his clothes, tied up the goats, and even cobbled his sandals" (Muir). Nay, his kind and genial nature often led him to do others' work. Once a woman, unable to work for herself, asked him to lead her into a certain street; he accompanied her there, only taking leave when her work was accomplished (Mishkât). Therefore unbelievers speak of him as going about in the marts. He was a mortal, and partook of the ordinary food of a simple Arab. Hence they speak of him as eating food. The answer to this is given in v. 20, viz. that all prophets were mortal and subject to human laws, even as the Holy Prophet. This is a clear proof of the continuity of the subject-matter of the Holy Qur-án.

1773 Treasures were placed at the feet of the companions of the Holy Prophet, and they were made lords of the fertile lands of Mesopotamia and its gardens, but all this was done in accordance with Divine law, which requires the fulfilment of prophecy to be brought about gradually, even as it requires all growth to be gradual in the physical world.

1774 It shall be a proof of their having gone astray that they shall not find a way to success, or a way of escaping from the punishment with which they are threatened.

1775 The gardens of Mesopotamia, the palaces of Persia and of the Cæsars, were given to the followers of the Holy Prophet as proof of the truth of this prophecy. According to

- Ar. nor. to ward off or help, and whoever among you is unjust, We will make him taste a great chastisement.
- Ar. thee. 20 And We have not sent before you any messengers but they most surely ate food and went about in the markets; and We have made some of you a trial for others; will you bear patiently? and your Lord is ever Seeing.¹⁷⁷⁸

The Day of Distinction

21, 22. Demand of punishment. 23, 24. The wicked and the righteous are separated. 25-29. Signs of the day of distinction. 30, 31. Rejection of the Qur-ān and enmity to it. 32. Revelation by portions. 33. A perfect revelation. 34. End of the wicked.

PART XIX

- Or, hope. 21 And those who do not fear Our meeting, say: Why have not angels been sent down upon us, or (why) do we not see our Lord? Now certainly they are too proud of themselves and have revolted in great revolt.¹⁷⁷⁹
- 22 On the day when they shall see the angels, there shall be no good news on that day for the guilty, and they shall say: *It is a forbidden thing intally prohibited.*¹⁷⁸⁰
- Or, Let there be an inviolable obstruction 23 And We will proceed to what they have done of deeds, so We shall render them as scattered notes.¹⁷⁸¹

وَقَالَ الَّذِينَ لَا يَرْجُونَ لِقَاءَنَا لَوْلَا
أَنْزِلَ عَلَيْنَا الْمَلِيكَةُ أَوْ تَرَى رَبَّنَا لَقَدْ
اسْتَكْبَرُوا فِي أَنْفُسِهِمْ وَعَتَوْا عُتُوًّا كَبِيرًا ۝
يَوْمَ يَرَوْنَ الْمَلِيكَةَ لَا بُشْرَى يَوْمَئِذٍ
لِّلْجَبْرِ مِيزٍ وَيَقُولُونَ جَبْرًا مَّحْجُورًا ۝
وَقَدْ مَنَّآ إِلَىٰ مَا عَمِلُوا مِنْ عَمَلٍ فَجَعَلْنَاهُ
هَبًّا ۖ مَّنْشُورًا ۝

1778 This is an injunction to the Muslims to bear the persecutions of their opponents patiently, for these trials will distinguish the bad from the good. The concluding words are a solace to them: Your Lord is Seeing and He will punish the oppressors.

1779 The coming of the angels and the Lord signifies the coming of the threatened punishment in the Holy Qur-ān, and the next verse makes it clear. Also see 268.

1780 The words جَبْرًا مَّحْجُورًا may bear different interpretations according as they are taken to be spoken by the angels or by the guilty. In the former case the meaning is that good news will be a forbidden thing to the guilty, which is equivalent to saying that they shall be punished. In the latter case, the words are a kind of prayer for the coming of an obstruction between them and their punishment. The latter significance is given in the margin.

1781 All the exertions of the Quraish were brought to naught in the battle of Badr.

24 The dwellers of the garden shall on that day be in a better abiding-place and a better resting-place.

25 And on the day when the heaven shall burst asunder with the clouds, and the angels shall be sent down a sending.¹⁷⁸²

26 The kingdom on that day shall rightly belong to the Beneficent God, and a hard day shall it be for the unbelievers.

27 And the day when the unjust one shall bite his hands, saying: O! would that I had taken a way with the Apostle:¹⁷⁸³

28 O woe is me! would that I had not taken such a one for a friend!

29 Certainly he led me astray from the reminder after it had come to me; and the devil fails to aid man.

30 And the Apostle cried out: O my Lord! surely my people have treated this Qur-án as a forsaken thing.

31 And thus have We made for every prophet an enemy from among the guilty, and sufficient is your Lord as a Guide and a Helper.

32 And those who disbelieve say: Why has not the Qur-án been revealed to him all at once? Thus, that We may establish your heart by it and We have arranged it well in arranging.¹⁷⁸⁴

1782 This description of the day of Badr is also given in 8: 11, where the falling of rain is clearly mentioned, and on the same occasion is also mentioned the coming of the angels. The next verse shows that it will be a day of victory for the Muslims, the believers in the Beneficent God, and a hard day for the unbelievers. In fact, the distress and hardship the Quraish experienced in the battle of Badr were not tasted by them in any of their subsequent encounters with the Muslims.

1783 'Aqba is said to be the person particularly meant here. He was one of the Quraish chiefs who, to please a friend, spat in the Prophet's face (Rz). At Badr he was the only prisoner to be put to death. After the battle, as the dead bodies of the Quraish chiefs who fell were being conveyed to a pit to be buried, the Prophet exclaimed, as he named the chiefs against whom he had prayed on account of their severe persecution of the Muslims: "Have you now found that which your Lord promised true? Surely I have found what my Lord promised me to be true." The reference was no doubt to these clear and forcible prophecies declared at so early a date.

1784 رتل الكلام means he put together and arranged well the component parts of the speech (LL). Hence the meaning is that the Qur-án was revealed piecemeal, so that under the varying circumstances through which the Prophet passed the Divine revelation might be a source of strength to his heart; and then, as it were to refute any suggestion that the revelation might remain a disorderly collection of fragments revealed under different circumstances, having no connection with each other, it is added that the entire arrangement was also Divinely accomplished. The verse contradicts in the clearest terms the false opinion that the Qur-án was arranged by Abú Bakr or 'Usmán, for its arrangement according to this verse was a part of the Divine scheme, brought about in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet who was the recipient of the Divine revelation.

1785 Magal signifies a description, state, or case, and is metaphorically applied to a state or condition that is strange or wonderful (LL), or it means hujjat, i.e. an argument (TA). The meaning is that they would not bring any strange question (Kf: سوال عجیب) or strange objection (JB: شیء عجیب فی القدر) which has not been answered in the Holy Qur-án with truth, and of which the best significance is not given therein. The verse lays down the basis of an important principle, viz. that the Holy Qur-án not only contains answers to all objections against it, but also adduces arguments of the truth of the assertions made. It is sufficient to remark that no other religious book of the world satisfies this requirement, which circumstance alone places the Qur-án above all scriptures, and points to it as a unique revelation capable of satisfying the spiritual requirements of all men in all times.

1786 According to Zj, Rass was a country in which a part of the tribe of Samood resided; others say that Rass is the name of a town in Yamama (TA). The word Rass has several other meanings, as, for instance, a well, and it is said that they were a people who threw their prophet into a well (JB). Hence the reference may be to Joseph's brothers, who threw him into a well.

1787 The meaning is that every one of these generations was warned of its doom by means of the stories and examples of those who had previously perished, but, not heeding the warning, was destroyed as the others had been.

1788 This town is Sodom, which was situated on the way to Syria.

1789 This verse shows how broad is the idea of shirk or polytheism according to the Holy Qur-án. It is not simply worship of idols that is condemned, but blindly following one's desires is equally condemned. Many men who consider themselves the servants of the One God really bow in submission before the greatest of their idols, i.e. their desires. In no other religion has the monotheistic doctrine been brought to this state of perfection.

50 And certainly We have repeated this to them that they may be mindful, but the greater number of men do not consent to aught except denying.

51 And if We had pleased We would certainly have raised a warner in every town.¹⁷⁹²

52 So do not follow the unbelievers, and strive against them a mighty striving with it.¹⁷⁹³

1790 This and the previous verse show that Allah deals mercifully with His servants. He would not destroy them all at once. The sun of righteousness had risen, and there were clear indications that the shadows of darkness would disappear, but, as in physical nature, they would not disappear suddenly, but gradually, diminishing little by little.

1791 The mercy of Allah, which appears in the form of rain in physical nature, is spiritual in revelation: as the pure water from the clouds gives life to a dead land, so does the pure water of revelation from Him raise the spiritually dead to life.

1792 The companions of the Holy Prophet no doubt had this in mind when they spread far and wide, taking his message and warning into every distant town. How few Muslims there are to-day who are inspired with that zeal to prove the truth of every word of the Qur-ān.

It should, however, be noted that the verse does not contradict the statement in 35:24, and elsewhere, that a prophet was raised among every nation. Warners have not been raised in every town, but they have been raised in every nation.

أَنْ يَتَّخِذَ إِلَىٰ رَبِّهِ سَبِيلًا

1793 This verse affords a clear proof of the significance of the word jihād, as used in the Holy Qur-ān. This chapter, being admittedly Meccan in origin, contains no reference to fighting. Every exertion to spread the truth is, according to this verse, a jihad—nay, it is called جهاد أكبر or the great jihād, and fighting in defence of religion received the name of jihād, because under the circumstances it became necessary for the truth to live and prosper, and if fighting had not been permitted, truth would surely have been uprooted. The commentators all accept this significance of the word here. See Bq, Rz, AH, etc. It should be noted that the greatest jihād which a Muslim can carry out is one by means of the Qur-ān, to which the personal pronoun it at the end of the verse unquestionably refers, and not with the sword.

1794 The two seas undoubtedly refer to the two parties, the believers, who are compared to the sea of sweet water, and the unbelievers, who are compared to the salt-water sea. Both exist in the world side by side, and so they would continue.

1795 The passage seems to me to hint at the flight to Medina. The Prophet was related to the Meccans through his father, and to the Medina people through his mother. As his blood relations had persecuted him and were bent upon killing him, he is now reminded of his relationship through marriage to another people. This chapter is an early revelation, and it was no doubt due to some such hint in the Divine revelation that the Prophet later on began, on the occasion of the pilgrimage, to search for adherents among the people of Medina.

1796 The unbeliever aided the cause of untruth, as against his Lord, Who had sent truth into the world, but he is reminded that his deities would do him no good.

1797 It should be noted that good news given through the Holy Prophet, being a manifestation of Divine mercy, always takes precedence of the warning of punishment, which is a manifestation of Divine wrath. It also points to the Prophet as being more concerned with mercy than with the desire to exact vengeance. He gave his enemies practical proof of this in every field of battle.

CHAPTER XXVI

THE POETS

(Ash-shu'arā)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(11 sections and 227 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. The Prophet is consoled.
- Sec. 2-4. History of Moses.
- Sec. 5. History of Abraham.
- Sec. 6-10. Histories of Noah, Hūd, Šālīḥ, Lot, and Shu'aib.
- Sec. 11. The Meccans are warned.

The Title.

THE title of this chapter, The Poets, is taken from a reference to the poets in v. 224, where it is clearly suggested that the Holy Qur-ān is not the work of a poet, because it in no way resembles the work of poets. It should be noted that one of the frequent charges which its bewildered opponents brought against the Holy Qur-ān was that it was a poet's work. The Qur-ān has often rebutted this charge. This has been effectively accomplished here by showing that the Holy Prophet's work and preaching were similar in detail to the work and preaching of preceding prophets, bearing no resemblance whatever to the work of poets.

Subject-matter.

While the prophets mentioned herein are identical with those in the 7th chapter, where they appear chronologically, their order in this chapter is quite different. The reason of according precedence to the narrative of Moses is given below, the object being to draw attention to a repetition of the history of Moses in the history of Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him! In the opening section of the chapter the Holy Prophet is given a consolation, and told not to grieve too much on account of the unbelief of the Meccans, nor yet to despair of their reformation, because human nature must eventually revolt against the worship of objects lower than, or like, itself (sec 1807). The history of Moses is taken up in the next three sections from the time of his message to Pharaoh to that of the monarch's ill-fated end, together with his hosts, in the Red Sea. The fifth section takes us back to Abraham, because that patriarch gives us the connecting link between the houses of Israel and Ishmael, or between the two great prophets, Moses and Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon them! The next five sections are devoted to the narratives of Noah, Hūd, Šālīḥ, Lot, and Shu'aib in chronological order; the fate of the opponents of each of these prophets being, as it were, a warning to the opponents of the Holy Prophet: this is clearly indicated in the concluding section of the chapter.

Context and date of revelation.

The three chapters, 26th, 27th, and 28th, form a group not only connected in subject, but also belonging to the same period. All three belong to the middle Meccan period, and were undoubtedly revealed at Mecca. The chief point in each is the story of Moses, with which they all begin, although the 27th chapter makes only a brief allusion to it. In each case that story begins with Moses being called to prophethood at Mount Sinai with a special message for Pharaoh, ending with Pharaoh being drowned in the Red Sea; the later wanderings of the Israelites are not referred to in any of them. This common thread of the narrative in all three chapters gives us a clue to the subject-matter and to their connection with what has gone before. It will be noted that the 25th chapter spoke of the furqân, or the great distinctive sign that was given to the Holy Prophet, and these three chapters really supply the furqân or distinctive sign given to Moses, which, as shown in 84, was the drowning of the Egyptians in the Red Sea; hence the narrative is in all cases brought to an end with that incident. Moses is the prophet who is again and again referred to in the Holy Qur-ân as a prototype of the great Arabian Prophet, because of his remarkable prophecy contained in Deut. 18: 15-18, whose fulfilment was claimed by no prophet in the world other than the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him! Attention is drawn to this point in the last chapter of this group. Thus, while the 25th chapter promises a furqân, or a sign, that should finally distinguish truth from falsehood in the case of the Holy Prophet, the three chapters that follow show that such a sign was granted to Moses, in whose likeness the Holy Prophet had come, and that the history of the great Israelite prophet must be repeated in the great Ishmaelite Prophet. This group of three chapters may therefore be called an illustration of the chapter which they follow. Another point of connection between this chapter and the one preceding it is that it rebuts the charge mentioned in the previous chapter that the Holy Prophet was a poet, it being here shown, as already pointed out, that his lifework was not the lifework of a poet.

The four concluding verses of the chapter are supposed by some to have been revealed at Medina, but no reason is given for this assertion. On the other hand, it clearly concludes with a rebuttal of the two most prominent charges against the Holy Qur-ân. The Qur-ân aimed at the purification of the lives of its followers, and therefore it could be neither the work of the devil, as were the utterances of the soothsayers, nor the work of a poet; because soothsayers and poets never attempted the noble object of effecting a transformation in the lives of men. Thus the concluding verses, relating to poets, are an essential part of the chapter, and the thread of reasoning is incomplete without them. Moreover, as these verses furnish the title, it is highly improbable that they should have been separated from the main part of the chapter by about ten or twelve years.

1802 The meaning of these letters is not explained by early authorities, and the interpretation that I adopt is based on the remark, which is traceable to the earliest authorities, that these letters generally signify some attribute of the Divine Being. Hence I take lâ as standing for lâţif, meaning Benignant, sin as standing for samî, meaning Hearing, and mîm as standing for ʿalm, meaning Knowing. I may, however, suggest another interpretation. Every one of the three chapters of this group opens with the same letters, only the final mîm being omitted in the 27th chapter. And as these chapters speak in particular of the calling up of Moses at Mount Sinai, tā sin may stand for Tūr-i-Sinā, or the Mount Sinai, and mim may stand for Moses; attention is thus called in these letters to the revelation granted to Moses at Mount Sinai, which is such a clear proof of the revelation of the Qur-ān. This is corroborated by the plain statement made in the last chapter of this group, that the unbelievers called the revelations of Moses and Muhammad—may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon them!—two acts of deception. 28 : 46-49 may be specially noted as showing that the Mosaic revelation was an evidence of the truth of the revelation of the Holy Prophet.

1803 الكتاب المبين is variously interpreted as meaning the book that makes manifest all that is required, or the book that makes manifest the truth as distinguished from the falsehood. It is the nominative form from the verb abāna, which signifies he spoke distinctly or plainly.

1804 Other prophets may have cursed a generation and warned it of the doom awaiting it, but none was ever anxious on account of its fate to the same extent as the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him! He had been informed by Divine revelation of the doom of an evil generation, but instead of cursing it, he exerted himself heroically to save his people by bringing about a mighty transformation among them, a transformation for which he was so anxious that he is described here as almost killing himself with grief. It was the utmost limit of sympathy for the sufferings of humanity, the practical sympathy of a true reformer, not the wild or sentimental talk of a dreamer.

1805 Such a sign was sent at Badr and upon the conquest of Mecca. In the former place their chiefs were laid low and in the latter they accepted submission.

1806 It was the prophecies of their own punishment and of the predominance of Islam which they mocked. By the news of these is meant the reality or truth, which will be made manifest in their fulfilment.

1807 Will not then men, who are the noblest of the creation of Allah, turn to noble aspirations, and cease to bow before objects of their own invention or those which they are meant to rule? But alas for men, that even when they see their folly in bowing down before inanimate objects they think it wise to bow before human beings like themselves, and when rid of that delusion, still bow before their own desires and the passions which they were made to rule like all things in nature.

Ar. and. 8 Most surely there is a sign in that, but most of them will not believe.

Ar. thy. 9 And most surely your Lord is the Mighty, the Merciful.

History of Moses

Ar. thy. 10 And when your Lord called out to Moses, saying:*

* 1856.

Go to the unjust people,

11 The people of Pharaoh: Will they not guard (against evil) ?

12 He said: O my Lord! surely I fear that they will reject me:

13 And my breast straitens, and my tongue is not eloquent,^{1807a} therefore send Thou to 20 : 29

to Aaron (to help me):^b

14 And they have a crime against me, therefore I fear that they may slay me.¹⁸⁰⁸

15 He said: By no means, so go you both with Our signs; surely We are with you, hearing:

16 Then come to Pharaoh, and say: Surely we are the messengers of the Lord of the worlds:¹⁸⁰⁹

وَإِذْ نَادَىٰ رَبُّكَ مُوسَىٰ أَنْ ائْتِ الْقَوْمَ الظَّالِمِينَ
قَوْمُ فَارْعُونَ، أَلَا يَتَّقُونَ
قَالَ رَبِّ إِنِّي أَخَافُ أَنْ يُكَذِّبُونِ
وَيَضْحَكُوا بِصَدْرِي وَلَا يَنْطَلِقُ لِسَانِي
فَأَرْسِلْ إِلَىٰ هَارُونَ
وَلَهُمْ عَلَيَّ ذَنْبٌ فَأَخَافُ أَنْ يَقْتُلُونِ
قَالَ كَلَّا، هَٰذَا بَيْنَا أَنَا مَعَكُمْ
مُسْتَمْعُونَ
فَأْتِيَا فِرْعَوْنَ فَقُولَا إِنَّا رَسُولُ رَبِّ الْعَالَمِينَ

1808 The reference is to the killing of the Egyptian in 28:15. It should be noted that Moses only says that the people of Pharaoh charged him with a crime, not that he was actually guilty or that he was sinful in the sight of Allah. As shown in 1811 and 1875, Moses could not in justice be charged with a crime, but the unjust people of Pharaoh wanted to lay their hands on him under some pretext.

1809 Objection has been taken to the use of the word rasul in إنا رسول رب العالمين in the singular, whereas there were two. The commentators explain rasul here as meaning risalat, or message, and then consider the word as being equivalent to zu-risalat, i.e. bearer of the message (Kf). But as LL observes, on the authority of Mgh and TA, rasul, as meaning a messenger, is like 'aduww (for) and ḡiddiq (friend), and is used alike as masculine and feminine, and singular and dual and plural. And it is so used in Arabic literature, in support of which the following verse of Abū Zu'aib is quoted: الكنى إليها وخير الرسول.

اعلمهم بنواحي الخبر i.e. Be thou my messenger to her, and the best of messengers is the most knowing of them in respect of the bounds or limits of the tidings (M-LL): here the singular word rasul is used for the plural rusul, and is so translated.

17 That send with us the children of Israel.

Ar. thee.

Ar. thou

Ar. thy.

Ar. thou

18 (Pharaoh) said:¹⁸¹⁰ Did we not bring you up as a child among us, and you tarried among us for (many) years of your life:

19 And you did (that) deed of yours which you did, and you are one of the ungrateful.

20 He said: I did it then while I was of those unable to see the right course:¹⁸¹¹

21 So I fled from you when I feared you, then my Lord granted me wisdom and made me of the apostles:

Ar. thou remindest.
Ar. thou
hast.

22 And is it a favour of which you remind me that you have enslaved the children of Israel?¹⁸¹²

23 Pharaoh said: And what is the Lord of the worlds?

24 He said: The Lord of the heavens and the earth and what is between them, if you would be sure.

25 (Pharaoh) said to those around him: Do you not hear?

26 He said: Your Lord and the Lord of your fathers of old.

27 Said he: Most surely your Apostle who is sent to you is mad.

28 He said: The Lord of the east and the west and what is between them, if you understand.

Ar. thou
wilt.

Ar. thee.

29 Said he: If you will take a god besides me, I will most certainly make you one of the imprisoned.¹⁸¹³

1810 The Qur-án usually omits large portions of the details of stories which do not serve its purpose.

1811 One of the significances of dalla is he was perplexed, or confused, and unable to see his right course. Rz's explanation of the word dalla here is, perplexed, being unable to know what was incumbent on him. See also 2756. Moses' taking the law into his own hands to punish a guilty man was owing to his being confused at the moment as to the step which he should take, so he struck him with his fist (28: 15). Death was really accidental, not intentional; striking with the fist not being ordinarily sufficient to cause the death of a person.

1812 Pharaoh had reminded Moses of bringing him up as a child, and Moses puts him to shame by pointing to the enslavement of the whole nation of the Israelites, thus keeping them under such a debasing form of subjugation that all the higher aspirations had entirely disappeared. Being only employed in menial work by Pharaoh and the Egyptians, they were not permitted to rise to any dignity in the land. It is this subjection which is here called enslavement.

41 And when the enchanters came, they said to Pharaoh: Shall we get a reward if we are the vanquishers?

42 He said: Yes, and surely you will then be of those who are made near.

43 Moses said to them: Cast what you are going to cast.

1813 The gods of the Egyptians were innumerable. There were the abstract gods, the cosmic gods, the human gods, and animal gods; their god-cult may be summed up briefly in the words of the En. Br. (vol ix. p. 51): "Truly it might have been said in ancient Egypt, Of the making of gods there is no end." Pharaoh's claim to divinity among a people who were willing to deify any one was therefore only a natural result of existing conditions. The statement in the Qur-ān does not imply that Pharaoh was really one of the gods of Egypt, but only that he asked Moses to regard him as a god.

Or, because of (your) opposition.

50 They said: No harm: surely to our Lord we go back:

51 Surely we hope that our Lord will forgive us our wrongs because we are the first of the believers.

and treasures was given to the Israelites in the land of Canaan, the promised land flowing with milk and honey.

1815 The expression اضرب بعصاك البحر is similar to اضرب بعصاك البحر and for the various explanations of it see 96. Elsewhere the same idea is expressed by saying فاضرب لهم طريقا في البحر يبسا meaning "then make for them a dry path in the sea" (20:77), where the same word, idrib, is used for seeking a way. See 82, 1593.

1816 The sea had cloven asunder and gone back, thus leaving a dry way (20:77) for the Israelites. The كل فرق, or each party, may either refer to the Egyptians and the Israelites or to the several parties into which the large number of Israelites may have necessarily been divided. Or, the meaning may be that each wave as it receded was like a huge mountain. There is nothing to show that the sea was divided into several parts. The word faud, it may be noted, means a mountain, as well as an elevated or overlooking tract of land (TA-LL), and is even applied by a poet to a camel's hump (LA-LL).

71 They said: We worship idols, so we shall be their votaries.

1817 The prophets, being always conscious of their weaknesses, seek Allah's protection. Expressions like this invariably indicate human weakness before Divine perfection, and are not evidences of sinfulness. Compare Jesus' confession of weakness in a similar strain: "Why callest thou me good? there is none good but One, that is, God" (Matt. 19: 17). It does not mean that Jesus was a bad man, but before God, Who is the source of all good, he naturally thought that a mortal had no right to be called good.

History of Noah

* 901. 105 The people of Noah rejected the apostles.*

106 When their brother Noah said to them: Will you not guard (against evil)?

107 Surely I am a faithful apostle to you:

1819 The word ayat, literally a sign, is used here to indicate the lofty building that should acquire a renown as a sign of greatness. These lofty buildings were, no doubt, used to terrorize others, as v. 130 shows that acts of cruelty and violence were committed by 'Ad while they considered themselves safe in their fortresses.

1820 That is, all these things have been going on of old.

1821 Samood are described in v. 149 as hewing houses out of mountains, and, as it appears from here and 54:28, the springs of water seem to have been few, and access to these was probably specially guarded, so that they were open only at particular times. Sâlih seems to have demanded that the she-camel should be allowed a drink at such times. See note on 54:28, where the words كل شرب محتضر occur, meaning that every share of the water shall be attended by the she-camel, or that she shall have access to water at all times when a drink is allowed to others. A singular demand as regards her pasture is contained in 11:64 in the words, "leave her to pasture on Allah's earth," followed by the same words as those following this demand for drink: "And do not touch her with evil."

The word shirb signifies either an act of drinking, or a share, or portion that falls to one's

عَلَى قُلُوبِكُمْ لِتَكُونُوا مِنَ الْمُنذِرِينَ ۝

1825 Kisaf means a portion (Rgh), and a portion of the heaven signifies a punishment from heaven, such as the Midianites thought they were threatened with by Shu'aib. According to JB, kisaf means punishment.

1826 It should be noted that the demand for the threatened punishment is always met with expressions signifying that the matter rests in the hands of Allah. This is as much true as regards the demands of the opponents of the previous prophets as those of the Quraish. Such statements are really equivalent to saying that the thing will certainly be accomplished.

1827 Zullah signifies a shade, or a covering, and the day of punishment is called the day of covering because it covered them with punishment.

1828 The Faithful Spirit is the angel Gabriel, who brought the Divine revelation to the Holy Prophet; thus Al-Amin received the Rûh-ul-Amin from on high.

1829 The addition of the words upon your heart is to indicate that the Prophet's heart, being the receptacle of the mighty revelation, was no doubt truly responsive to the great truths contained in it. The high morals and the broad humanitarian truths which the Qur-ân contains give us a true picture of the great mind and of the high morals which are referred to in one of the earliest revelations in the words: "And most surely you conform yourself to sublime morality" (68: 4). The pithy but most beautiful statement of that intelligent lady, 'Ayesha, than whom none was more familiar with the recipient of the Quranic revelation, remains unsurpassed in depicting the character of the Holy Prophet; when asked about it she replied: كَانَ خَلْقَهُ الْقُرْآنُ, i.e. his character is the Qur-ân. She thus intimated in

195 In plain Arabic language

196 And most surely the same is in the scriptures of the ancients.¹⁸³⁰

197 Is it not a sign to them that the learned men of the Israelites know it?

198 And if We had revealed it to any of the foreigners,

199 So that he should have recited it to them, they would not have believed therein.¹⁸³¹

200 Thus have We caused it to enter into the hearts of the guilty.¹⁸³²

201 They will not believe in it until they see the painful chastisement;

202 And it shall come to them all of a sudden, while they shall not perceive;

203 Then they will say: Shall we be respited?

204 What! do they still seek to hasten on Our chastisement?

205 Have you then considered if We let them enjoy themselves for years,

206 Then there comes to them that with which they are threatened, 207 That which they were made to enjoy shall not avail them?

brief words that all those wonderful pictures of moral sublimity drawn in the Holy Qur-án were pictures of the noble mind to which the Qur-án was revealed.

1830 The prophecies of the earlier books, especially of the scriptures of the Israelites, are clearly referred to here. Some of these prophecies have been quoted in these foot-notes. We may, however, add one more that is met with in Isa. 54, where "the children of the desolate" are given preference above "the children of the married wife." References to the Jews and the Christians constantly occur in the Meccan revelations, and there is not the least ground for the statement of Sayooti and others that the verse, because of the mention of "the learned men of the Israelites," must have been revealed at Medina.

1831 Because prophecy plainly showed that the Arabs were to be the recipients of the revelation; see Isa. 42. 11: "Let the wilderness and the cities thereof lift up their voice, the villages that Kedar doth inhabit." In the Old Testament, Kedar, the son of Ishmael, stands for the Arab nation. Hence earlier prophecy required that the final revelation should be granted to an Arab.

1832 The meaning is that the Qur-án was made to enter into their hearts by reason of the convincing proof of its truth, but they rejected it, as the next verse shows. It appealed to their hearts and convinced them very often of its truth, as is plainly stated elsewhere in the Holy Qur-án, but they would not submit until they saw a sign like that granted to the former prophets.

1833 The argument here is similar to that advanced by Jesus Christ when he said: "And if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself" (Matt. 12: 26) The evil one cannot be the source of the Qur-án, for the Qur-án calls to righteousness, and the evil-doers do not even hear its call, whereas, if it were the devil's work, none would have accepted it more greedily than the doers of evil. See also vv. 221-223 and 1836.

1834 When this verse was revealed, the Holy Prophet, standing on the Mount Safá, invited every tribe by name, and when the representatives of all the tribes had gathered together—among those assembled being also the Quraish and that inveterate enemy of the Holy Prophet, Abú Lahab—the Holy Prophet thus addressed them: "Tell me, if I inform you that a great army in the valley lies in wait to make a raid upon you, would you believe me?" "Aye!" was the reply in one voice, "for we have never found anything but truth emanating from your lips." "Then," said the Prophet, "know that I am a warner to you of an approaching doom." "May you perish!" cried out the ill-tempered Abú Lahab; "was it for this that you called us together?" (Bkh). It, however, does not mean that the Holy Prophet had not previously warned them. Long before the revelation of this chapter he had been declared a warner to all the nations (25: 1).

1835 The Prophet is here told to rely on the Mighty, the Merciful, the very words that are repeated at the end of almost every section of this chapter, thus showing that the fate of the opponents of former prophets was spoken of simply to warn his own opponents. The attribute of mightiness is used to indicate the power to punish the wicked, while mercy indicates the deliverance and triumph of the righteous.

الَّذِينَ ظَلَمُوا أَيَّ مُنْقَلَبٍ يَنْقَلِبُونَ ۝

1836 The subject of v. 212 is reverted to here, and it corroborates what is said in 1833.

1837 That is, they pursue an aimless course.

1838 The first suggestion of the unbelievers was that the Qur-án is the work of the devil. That being shown to be inconsistent with its very nature and with the righteousness it preaches, they make another suggestion, viz. that it is the work of a poet. As against this they are told that none of the characteristics of a poet's work are to be met with in the Qur-án. The poet pursues an aimless course, while the Qur-án has a set purpose before it, viz. a pure transformation in the lives of those who follow it. In the second place, the poets say the things they do not perform, whereas the Prophet is not only a preacher of righteousness, but also an exemplar who translated into practice what he taught in theory. And the weightiest consideration of all is that the poets cannot utter prophecies like those which are met with in the Qur-án. It is to this that attention is called in the next verse.

1839 The passage gives a description of the true believers in general, a new statement being introduced with illā (or except); or it may refer particularly to the poets from among the believers.

CHAPTER XXVII

THE NAML

(An-Naml)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(7 sections and 93 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. The Prophet is called as Moses was called.
- Sec. 2, 3. History of Solomon.
- Sec. 4. Šālīḥ and Lot.
- Sec. 5. The faithful shall be exalted.
- Sec. 6. The spiritual resurrection.
- Sec. 7. Passing away of the great opponents.

The Title.

THE title of this chapter is taken from the mention of a tribe known as the Naml in v. 18, in connection with Solomon's march against the Queen of Sheba. By the Naml is meant a tribe of that name, and not ants, as shown in 1847.

Subject-matter.

As regards the date of the revelation of this chapter and its place in the Qur-ān, see head-note to the preceding chapter. The subject-matter, as there pointed out, is almost the same as the subject-matter of the last chapter. The Qur-ān is the word of Allah which the Holy Prophet received from on high, just as Moses received a call at Mount Sinai, and the enemies of the former would be dealt with even as those of the latter. This is the substance of the first section. The second and third are devoted to Solomon's history, wherein the Holy Prophet's future greatness is indicated. It is really a part of the Mosaic history, for the Israelite kingdom attained its full glory under Solomon, and, as is well known, Moses passed away before any Israelite kingdom was established. On the other hand, the Holy Prophet Muhammad was destined to combine prophetic greatness with kingship, the glory of Solomon with the prophetic meekness of Moses. In his lifetime he was recognized as the king of Arabia, yet, notwithstanding his being crowned with kingly glory, he led a life of marked simplicity which even Moses did not practise, though he passed his life as the head of a nation wandering in the wilderness. The rest of the chapter is taken up with a brief reference, in the fourth section, to the histories of Šālīḥ and Lot, whose opponents were destroyed, and the fifth may be regarded as the natural sequel of it, viz. that the faithful shall be exalted. The sixth section states, however, that the Prophet's triumph was not to be marked by the utter destruction of his enemies, as in the case of these prophets, but by the ultimate spiritual resurrection of those who seemed to be quite deaf, dumb, and dead. That none but the great opponents would pass away is shown in the last section.

1840 By their deeds are meant the deeds which they ought to perform, not the mischievous deeds which they were performing. For as to the latter we find it plainly stated elsewhere: "And the devil made what they did fairseeming to them" (6: 43), where instead of their deeds we have what they did. Thus it is clear that mischievous deeds are made fairseeming to evil-doers by the devil, while Allah commends good deeds. In support of the same we may quote 49: 7, where we find: "But Allah has endeared the faith to you and has made it seemly in your hearts, and He has made hateful to you unbelief and transgression and disobedience."

1841 The latter part of the verse shows that the evil punishment spoken of here is the punishment which should overtake them in this life: a greater loss being in store for them in the hereafter.

1842. see next page.

9 O Moses! surely I am Allah, the Mighty, the Wise:

Ar. thy.

10 And cast down your rod. So when he saw it in motion as if it were a serpent,* he turned back retreating and did not return: O Moses! fear not; surely the apostles shall not fear in My presence:

11 Neither¹⁸⁴³ he who has been unjust, then he does good instead after evil, for surely I am the Forgiving, the Merciful:

Ar. thy.

Ar. thy.

13 So when Our clear signs came to them, they said: This is clear enchantment.

14 And they denied them unjustly and proudly while their souls had been convinced of them; consider, then, how was the end of the mischief-makers.

يُؤْمِنُ إِنَّهُ أَنَا اللَّهُ الْعَزِيزُ الْحَكِيمُ
وَأَلْقَى عَصَاهُ فَلَمَّا رَأَاهَا تَهْتَزُّ كَأَنَّهَا
جَانٌّ وَلَّى مُدْبِرًا وَلَمْ يُوقِفْ مُوسَى
لَا خُفَّ لَنَا لَوْ كُنَّا فِي الْمُرْسَلِينَ
إِلَّا مَنْ ظَلَمَ ثُمَّ بَدَّلْ حِسَابًا بَدَلًا
فَأَنَّى عُقُوهُمْ رَجِيمٌ
وَأَدْخَلْ يَدَكَ فِي جَيْبِكَ تَخْرُجْ بَيْضَاءَ
مِنْ غَيْرِ سُوءٍ فِي تِسْعِ آيَاتٍ إِلَى فِرْعَوْنَ
وَقَوْمِهِ لَا يَتَّبِعُهُمْ كَافِرُونَ مَا يُفْقِنُونَ
فَلَمَّا جَاءَتْهُمْ آيَاتُنَا مُبْهَرَةً قَالُوا هَذَا سِحْرٌ مُبِينٌ
وَجَحَلُوا لَهَا أَهْوَاءَ اسْتَبَقْنَهَا أَنْفُسَهُمْ ظُلُمًا وَعُلُوًّا فَنَظُرْ كَيْفَ كَانَ عَاقِبَةُ
الْمُفْسِدِينَ

1842 The words من في النار have been explained in a number of ways. The best explanation is that in which the word fi (lit. in) may be rendered as meaning after or in search of. Thus one of the explanations of the phrase given by AH is he who is in the place or follows the direction in which the fire appears to him to be burning. Rz says Moses may be said to be fin-nār, because of his nearness to the fire, for he says that one who is very near a thing is spoken of as being in it. The Tāj-ut-Tafāsīr puts this explanation in very lucid terms, saying من في طلبها وقصدها, i.e. he who is in search of it and after it. Another explanation is that by man is not meant here who but what, and the place where fire was seen by Moses to be burning is meant (AH, Rz, Bḍ). By من حولها, or whatever is about it, is meant the blessed land of promise, on account of its being the place where many prophets rose (Bḍ).

1843 The word illā here is equivalent to wao (i.e. and) according to Mughni, who quotes Akhfash, Farra, and Abū 'Ubaida in support of illā being a simple conjunction. But as the negative lā in the previous passage, to which the latter is conjoined, would be regarded as understood after wao, hence the correct translation of illā here is and not or neither. Others consider illā here as introducing a new statement (Bḍ). Or illā is equivalent to lākin, i.e. but (Rz), the meaning being: But as to him who has been unjust, then does good after evil, then surely I am the Forgiving, the Merciful.

SECTION 2 .

History of Solomon

15-19. Vastness of Solomon's kingdom. 20-31. The queen of Sheba.

15 And certainly We gave knowledge to David and Solomon, and they both said: Praise be to Allah, Who has made us to excel many of His believing servants.

16 And Solomon was David's heir, and he said: O men! we have been taught (the significance of) the voices of birds,¹⁸⁴⁴ and we have been granted abundance.¹⁸⁴⁵ most surely this is manifest grace.

Ar. of every thing.

Or, horses.

17 And his hosts of the jinn and the men and the birds were gathered to him, and they were formed into groups.¹⁸⁴⁶

نِعْمَ آدَاوُدَ وَسُلَيْمَنَ عِلْمًا
قَالَ الْحَمْدُ لِلَّهِ الَّذِي فَضَّلَنَا عَلَى
كَثِيرٍ مِّنْ عِبَادِهِ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ
وَوَرِثَ سُلَيْمَنُ دَاوُدَ وَقَالَ يَا أَيُّهَا
النَّاسُ عَلِمْنَا مَنَظِنَ الطَّيْرِ وَأَوْثَقْنَا
كُلَّ شَيْءٍ إِنَّ هَذَا لَهُوَ الْفَضْلُ الْمُبِينُ
وَاحِدٍ سُلَيْمَنَ جُنُودَهُ مِنَ الْجِنِّ وَالْإِنسِ
وَالطَّيْرِ فَهُمْ يُوزَعُونَ

1844 The root word nutq, from which the word mantiq is derived, signifies originally articulate speech or jointed voices uttered by the tongue and kept by the ears (Rgh). Its use with regard to other than human beings is looked upon as a kind of metaphor, and the use of the word is allowable when one understands the significance, though it may not be articulate speech (Rgh). Solomon's understanding the significance of the voices of birds may imply the use he might have made of birds in conveying messages from one place to another, so that these messages may metaphorically be called the speech of the birds. Or, it may signify any other means of communication. See also 1846, where the meaning of the word fair, occurring in v. 17, is explained. The grant of abundance spoken of immediately afterwards shows clearly that, whatever significance may be taken, the reference is here to the great resources of Solomon's kingdom in his victorious marches against near and distant enemies.

1845 كَثْرَةُ مَا أُوتِيَ من كل شَيْء is here explained by the commentators as meaning i.e. the abundance of what was given to him, the use of kull or all, for kagrah or abundance, being looked upon as a metaphor (Rz). JB gives a similar explanation, for he says: You say كثرة ما أُوتِيَ من كل شَيْء lit. such a one knows everything, the significance being that he has a vast or abundant knowledge. Or the meaning may be, of everything pertaining to kingdom.

1846 The hosts of Solomon are here divided into three classes, the jinn, the men, and the fair. As regards the jinn, it has been shown in 1647 that these were men belonging to certain mountain tribes whom Solomon had subjugated. The question now is what is meant by fair. The gathering together of all three classes and their division into groups shows that all three were human beings. The word fair, or fair, is derived from fara, which indicates it flew, and is applied not only to birds, but "is also said of other things than those which have wings" (LL). Fair signifies a flying thing, and as the root word applies to other than winged beings, fair, of which fair (the word used here) is a plural, may also be applied to swift animals such as horses. Thus fayyâr, which is an intensive form of fair, signifies, when standing alone, a sharp, spirited, vigorous horse that is almost made to fly by reason of the vehemence of its running (TA-LL). It also means a company of men (O-LL). Fayyâr, which is another intensive form of the nominative fair, signifies a man who is sharp and quick, as in the proverb هو طيور فيور meaning he is sharp and quick in returning (Q-LL). Thus the context taken in the light of these explanations would justify 18 Until when they came to the valley of the Naml,¹⁸⁴⁷ a Namlite said: O Naml! enter your houses, (that) Solomon and his hosts may not crush you while they do not know.

19 So he smiled, wondering¹⁸⁴⁸ at her word, and said: My Lord! grant me that I should be grateful for Thy favour which Thou hast bestowed on me and on my parents, and that I should do good such as Thou art pleased with, and make me enter, by Thy mercy, into Thy servants, the good ones.

Or, hosses. 20 And he reviewed the birds, then said: How is it I see not Hudhud, or is it that he is of the absentees?¹⁸⁴⁹

حَتَّى إِذَا أَتَوْا عَلَى وَادِ النَّمْلِ قَالَتْ نَمْلَةٌ
يَا أَيُّهَا النَّمْلُ ادْخُلُوا مَسْكِنَكُمْ لَا يَحْطِبُ عَلَيْكُمْ
سُلَيْمَنٌ وَجُنُودُهُ ؕ وَهُمْ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ
فَتَبَسَّمَ ضَاحِكًا مِنْ قَوْلِهَا وَقَالَ رَبِّ
ارْزُقْنِي أَنْ أَشْكُرَ نِعْمَتَكَ الَّتِي أَنْعَمْتَ
عَلَيَّ وَعَلَى وَالِدَيَّ وَأَنْ أَعْمَلَ
صَالِحًا تَرْضَاهُ وَأَدْخِلْنِي بِرَحْمَتِكَ
فِي عِبَادِكَ الصَّالِحِينَ
وَتَفَقَّدَ الطَّيْرَ فَقَالَ مَا لِيَ لَا أَرَى الْهُدُودَ ؕ أَمْ كَانَ مِنَ الْغَائِبِينَ

the conclusion that fair here means horse, i.e. cavalry, because it could be moved quickly. This is corroborated by the statement regarding Solomon's love of horses in 38:31-33. For those who would take the words literally, it may be added that the use of birds in conveying messages, particularly in time of war, made the birds a necessary adjunct to a military expedition, while for the birds following a victorious army see 1387.

1847 Many of the fables regarding Solomon have been due to a misconception of the word naml, or namlat-un. It should be noted that وادي النمل cannot be properly translated as the valley of the ants, for it is a proper noun, and according to TA (see under the root wady) وادي النمل بين جبرين وعسقلان i.e. the valley of the Naml is situated between Jibrin and 'Asqalân. And Naml is the name of a tribe, like Mâzin, which literally signifies the eggs of the ants (Tabrizi on Hamasa under the verse لو كنت من مازن i.e. were I one of the Mâzin); and naml means رجل حاذق i.e. a clever man (TA). The name Namlah used also to be given to a child in whose hands an ant was placed at its birth, because it was said such a child would be wise and intelligent (TA). And the Namlah are plainly spoken of as a tribe in the Qâmús, which says under the word barq نملة من مياه i.e. and Abriqa is of the waters of Namlah.

1848 Dāḥik means wondering, for according to Rgh the word dihk is used as well for simple joy as for simple wonder. See also LL, which says ḡahaka, said of a man, signifies also he wondered, synonym 'ajiba (TA).

1849 By Hudhud is not to be understood the lapwing, but a person of that name. Even if fair be taken as meaning birds, the mention of a person named Hudhud may have been due to a similarity of the name. In every language many of the proper names given to men will be found to be identical with the names of animals. The Arab writers speak of a king of Himyar as Hudad (LA), which is almost identical with Hudhud mentioned in the Qur-ân. This shows that there is nothing strange in such a name being given to man. The verses that follow show clearly that Solomon was speaking of one of his own officers: the infliction of severe punishment on a small bird by such a mighty monarch as Solomon, and the exposition of the great religious doctrine of Unity by the lapwing, are quite incomprehensible.

21 I will most certainly chastise him with a severe chastisement, or kill him, or he shall bring to me a clear plea.

1850 Saba is the same as the Sheba of the Bible. That the story as given here is not met with in the Bible, though known to Jewish rabbis, is no argument against its truth. The Bible speaks of the coming of the queen of Sheba to Solomon with large presents to test him. See 1 Kings 10 and 2 Chron. 9. And later on it speaks of many strange women as Solomon's wives (1 Kings 11).

35 And surely I am going to send a present to them, and shall wait to see what (answer) do the messengers bring back.

36 So when he came to Solomon, he said: What! will you help me with wealth? But what Allah has given me is better than what He has given you. Nay, you are exultant because of your present:

37 Go back to them, so we will most certainly come to them with hosts which they shall have no power to oppose, and we will most certainly expel them therefrom in abasement, and they shall be in a state of ignominy.

38 He said: O chiefs! which of you can bring to me a throne for her before they come to me in submission?¹⁸⁵¹

39 One audacious among the jinn said: I will bring it to you before you rise up from your place; and most surely I am strong (and) trusty for it.¹⁸⁵²

1851 As usual, the narrative here omits the return of the messengers to the queen, and her willingness to submit to Solomon on receiving the threat mentioned in the last verse, but continues at the point where Solomon makes preparations to receive her. 'Arsha-hi signifies a throne for her, being the throne that was prepared for her by Solomon, not her own throne in Sheba.

1852 The rising up from the place does not signify his standing up from the sitting posture, but his marching away from the place where he was at the time. The reference to being

Ar. thee.
Ar. before returns to thee.

40 One who had the knowledge of the Book said: I will bring it to you in the twinkling of an eye.¹⁸⁵³ Then when he saw it settled beside him,¹⁸⁵⁴ he said: This is of the grace of my Lord that He may try me whether I am grateful or ungrateful; and whoever is grateful, he is grateful only for his own soul, and whoever is ungrateful, then surely my Lord is Self-sufficient, Honoured.

41 He said: Alter her throne for her; we will see whether she follows the right way or is of those who do not go aright.

42 So when she came, it was said: Is your throne like this? She said: It is as it were the same, and we were given the knowledge before it, and we were submissive.

43 And what she worshipped besides Allah prevented her, surely she was of an unbelieving people.

44 It was said to her: Enter the palace; but when she saw it she deemed it to be a great expanse of water, and prepared herself to meet the difficulty.¹⁸⁵⁵ trusty shows that the execution of the work required an honest worker. The audacious jinn is apparently one of the Amalekites, who were men of large stature.

1853 The word tarf means an eye as well as a man generous or noble in respect of ancestry (TA-LL). Adopting the first significance, the returning of the eye would mean the twinkling of an eye, the idea conveyed being that he could do it without delay. Taking the other significance, the words may be translated as meaning, before your noble (messenger) returns to you. One having the knowledge of the Book is an Israelite.

1854 Strange and curious legends are introduced into the simple words of the Qur-án on the supposition that the events narrated took place in immediate succession. The words so when he saw it settled beside him do not indicate that he saw it settled in the course of the conversation given in the previous passage. It is an altogether different incident.

1855 The use of the word sâq to signify difficulty or distress in many phrases is a commonplace of Arabic literature, and only crass ignorance of the Arabic language would make any one adopt the too literal significance of the word sâq (i.e. shank) in the face of the recognized idiomatic uses of the word. اِكْتَشَفَ عَنِ السَّاقِ is a well-known idiomatic usage of the word, and refers to a man "when difficulty befalls him . . . ; meaning he prepared himself for the difficulty, so says I'Amb; and hence, he says (TA, in which a similar explanation is cited from Isd also), they mention the sâq when they mean to express the difficulty of a case or an event, and to tell of the terror occasioned thereby (Q, TA)" (LL). Thus the statement in 68:42 يَوْمَ يَكْشَفُ عَنْ سَاقٍ means on a day

He said: Surely it is a palace made smooth with glass.¹⁸⁵⁶ She said: My Lord! surely I have been unjust to myself, and I submit with Solomon to Allah, the Lord of the worlds.¹⁸⁵⁷ when difficulty or calamity shall be disclosed (I'Ab, Mjd). And similarly قامت الحرب على

كشفت الحرب ساق signifies the battle became vehement (Msb-LL), and Jal explains

ساق similarly (LL). And والتفت الساق بالساق in 75 : 29 means and the affliction of the present state of existence shall be combined with that of the final state (TA-LL).

And likewise قامت القوم على ساق signifies the people became in a state of distress (TA-LL). There are many other instances of this metaphorical use of the word sāq, but the few cited above will suffice to explain the translation of كشفت عن ساقيتها which I have adopted. See also 2546, where it is shown that the commentators attach the same significance to these words.

1856 The Holy Qur-án's description of the palace, and the purpose which it served, show Solomon's wisdom in affording an illustration of the working of the Divine hand in nature. He had built a palace of glass, the floor of which was also of glass, and under it ran water. The queen of Sheba mistook the glass for the water which ran beneath, and when Solomon drew her attention to it, she at once realized her own error in worshipping outward objects, such as the sun, while the real force or the source of life was Allah, whose hand worked in these objects. It is for this purpose that the story is given.

1857 In this the Qur-án contradicts the Bible, the latter holding that Solomon had gone over to idol-worship on account of his non-Israelite wives, while the Qur-án states that his wives were converts to his religion and believers in Divine Unity. Recent investigation has shown the correctness of the statement made in the Qur-án; see 147.

48 And there were in the city nine persons who made mischief in the land and did not act aright.¹⁸⁵⁸

49 They said : Swear to each other by Allah that we will certainly make a sudden attack on him and his family by night, then we will say to his heir : We did not witness the destruction of his family, and we are most surely truthful.¹⁸⁵⁹

50 And they planned a plan, and We planned a plan while they perceived not.

51 See, then, how was the end of their plan that We destroyed them and their people, all (of them).

52 So those are their houses fallen down because they were unjust ; most surely there is a sign in this for a people who know.

53 And We delivered those who believed and who guarded (against evil).

• 917.

54 And (We sent) Lot,* when he said to his people : What ! do you commit indecency while you see ?

55 What ! do you indeed approach men lustfully rather than women ? Nay, you are a people who act ignorantly.

56 But the answer of his people was no other except that they said : Turn out Lot's followers from your town ; surely they are a people who would keep pure !

اخْرِجُوا آلَ لُوطٍ مِّنْ قَرْيَتِكُمْ إِنَّهُمْ

أُنَاسٌ يَّتَطَهَّرُونَ

1858 There is no doubt a reference here to the enemies of the Holy Prophet, the chief of them being nine in number, eight of whom were slain at Badr (the exception being Abū Lahab, who died at Mecca on hearing the news of the defeat at Badr). Their names were Abū Jahl, Mut'im bin 'Adiyy, Shaiba bin Rabi'a, 'Utha bin Rabi'a, Walid bin 'Utha, Umayya bin Khalaf, Nadar bin Al-Hars, 'Aqba bin Abi Mu'ait, and Abū Lahab.

1859 There seems to be a prophetic reference here to the plot against the Holy Prophet, for the same plan was ultimately agreed upon by the Quraysh to do away with him. It should be borne in mind that the revelation of this chapter belongs to an early period ; the plot against the Prophet's life was to have been executed in the following manner : one man from every tribe of the Quraysh was selected, who should take the Prophet unawares. They were to thrust their swords into his body simultaneously, so that no particular tribe could be held guilty ; this was agreed upon immediately before the Prophet's flight to Medina, and thus the incident as relating to Salih is meant as a prophecy.

57 But We delivered him and his followers except his wife; We ordained her to be of those who remained behind.

1860 How beautifully is prophecy mingled with the statements of the manifestation of Divine power in nature! And this is the real object of the Divine word in the whole of this section. The distressed ones here are no other than the Muslims, who were being cruelly persecuted at this time.

وَإِذَا دُفِعَ الْقَوْلُ عَلَيْهِمْ أَخْرَجْنَا لَهُمْ دَابَّةً مِّنَ الْأَرْضِ تُكَلِّمُهُمْ أَنَّ النَّاسَ كَانُوا بِآيَاتِنَا لَا يُوقِنُونَ

1862 This verse is a clear testimony to what is meant by the Prophet's raising the dead; for here we are told that if the dead go back retreating, the Prophet cannot make them hear. Evidently this verse and the opening words of the following one speak of the reprobates who shut their eyes and close their ears to all truth.

1863 The creature from the earth that wounds men when they disbelieve stands for the calamities which overtake men, such as wars, famines, plagues, etc., and particularly the last of these, whose bacilli literally wound men by entering into their bodies. The reference here is to the punishment which is sometimes dealt out to the opponents of truth in this very life, because they would not allow the truth to live and prosper, or to the transgressors when their iniquities exceed all limits and virtue is almost entirely swept away. In such cases the evil-doers are made to taste of some punishment in this life. It is for this reason that while many of the prophecies met with in the sayings of the Holy Prophet clearly speak of wars, famines, plagues, and earthquakes in the latter days, one prophecy speaks of punishment being inflicted by means of dābbat-ul-arḍ, or a creature of the earth. Or, dābbat-ul-arḍ may stand for a people bent low upon the earth.

SECTION 7

Passing away of the Great Opponents

83-86. Rejecters called to judgment. 87, 88. Great opponents shall be brought low. 89, 90. Recompense of good and evil. 91. Mecca shall fall into the Prophet's hand. 92, 93. Warning to opponents.

83 And on the day when We will gather from every nation a party from among those who rejected Our communications, then they shall be formed into groups.

84 Until when they come, He will say: Did you reject My communications while you had no comprehensive knowledge of them? Or what was it that you did?

85 And the word shall come to pass against them because they were unjust, so they shall not speak.

86 Do they not consider that We have made the night that they may rest therein, and the day to give light? Most surely there are signs in this for a people who believe.

87 And on the day when the trumpet shall be blown,* then those who are in the heavens and those who are in the earth shall be terrified except such as Allah please, and all shall come to Him abased.¹⁸⁶⁴

88 And you see the mountains, you think them to be solid, and they shall pass away as the passing away of the cloud: the handiwork of Allah Who has made every thing thoroughly; surely He is Aware of what you do.¹⁸⁶⁵

1864 To show that it shall be so in the life after death, the prophecy was also brought to fulfilment in this life. The whole of Arabia recognized the Holy Prophet as its temporal and spiritual head, and the proud opponents were abased.

1865 That jabal signifies a great man has been shown in 1280. That in the passing away of the mountains there is a clear reference to the removal of the mighty men who opposed the Prophet's preaching is also shown by the concluding words of the verse, which clearly speak of the punishment of the evil deeds by One who is aware of what they do. The mountains or the mighty men were considered at the time of the utterance of the prophecy to be too great for removal, but the prophecy declared that they would pass away as vapour passes away.

89 Whoever brings good, he shall have better than it; and they shall be secure from terror on that day.

90 And whoever brings evil, these shall be thrown down on their faces into the fire; shall you be rewarded (for) aught except what you did?

91 I am commanded only that I should serve the Lord of this city, Who has made it sacred, and His are all things:¹⁸⁶⁶ and I am commanded that I should be of those who submit:

92 And that I should recite the Qur-án. Therefore whoever goes aright, he goes aright for his own soul, and whoever goes astray, then say: I am only one of the warners.

93 And say: Praise be to Allah, He will show you His signs so that you shall recognize them; nor is your Lord heedless of what you do.¹⁸⁶⁷

1866 The statement here that the Prophet is commanded to serve the Lord of the city of Mecca contains an allusion that the servant of the Lord shall be the lord of that city, because all things are His, and so shall also be the city which is made sacred, inasmuch as sacred things cannot remain in impure hands.

CHAPTER XXVIII

THE NARRATIVE

(Al-Qaṣaṣ)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(9 sections and 88 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1-4. History of Moses.
- Sec. 5. A prophet like Moses.
- Sec. 6. The truth of revelation.
- Sec. 7. Opponents shall be brought low.
- Sec. 8. Korah's wealth leads him to ruin.
- Sec. 9. The Prophet's ultimate triumph.

Date of revelation.

THIS chapter is said by some to have been revealed to the Holy Prophet when fleeing from Mecca on his way to Medina, at a place known as Jahfa (I'AB-AH). According to others, however, only v. 85, which predicted a triumphal return of the Holy Prophet to Mecca, was revealed there (I-Salam-AH). The latter seems to be the correct view. See introductory note on the 26th chapter.

Subject-matter.

The likeness to Moses is the chief theme of this chapter, and the revelation of Moses is here spoken of as a clear evidence of the truth of the revelation of the Holy Prophet Muhammad. The first four sections of the chapter are taken up with a recital of the chief incidents of the life of Moses from the time of his birth to the time that he successfully led the Israelites out of Egypt, together with the drowning of the hosts of Egypt. Many of the details of this period are to be met with here that are not given elsewhere. Moses' narrative is followed by showing that a prophet like him had now appeared, to whose truth the revelation of Moses bore a clear testimony. The sixth section upholds the truth of the revelation of the Qur-ān, while the seventh shows that its opponents shall be humbled. The eighth instances Korah, whose very wealth led to his ruin, and is a warning to the Quraish against placing too great faith upon earthly possessions, or it may be a warning to the Muslims against the time when they shall grow rich and powerful. The chapter ends with a declaration of the ultimate triumph of the Holy Prophet, and of his triumphal entry into the very city from whence he was now being expelled.

SECTION 1

History of Moses

1, 2. A plain-speaking book. 3-6. Pharaoh persecutes the Israelites. 7-13. Moses as a child thrown into river, saved and brought back to his mother.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

2 These are the verses of the Book that makes manifest.^b

يَا أَيُّهَا الْكَافِرِينَ

3 We recite to you from the account of Moses and Pharaoh with truth for a people who believe.

تَتْلُو عَلَيْكَ مِنْ بَيْنِ أَيْدِي وَخَلْفَىٰ

Ar. thee.

4 Surely Pharaoh exalted himself in the land and made its people into parties, weakening one party from among them:¹⁸⁶⁸ he slaughtered their sons and let their women live; surely he was one of the mischief-makers.

بِالْحَقِّ لِقَوْمٍ يُؤْمِنُونَ

إِنَّ فِرْعَوْنَ عَلَا فِي الْأَرْضِ وَجَعَلَ أَهْلَهَا

شِبَعًا مَنصُوبًا طَائِفَةً مِنْهُمْ يَتَلَوْنَهُمْ

أَبْنَاءَهُمْ وَيَسْتَعْنِي نِسَاءَهُمْ إِنَّهُ كَانَ

مِنَ الْمُفْسِدِينَ

5 And We desired to bestow a favour upon those who were deemed weak in the land, and to make them the leaders, and to make them the heirs,¹⁸⁶⁹

وَنُرِيدُ أَنْ نَمُنَّ عَلَى الَّذِينَ اسْتُضِعُوا فِي

الْأَرْضِ بِجَاهِهِمْ إِنَّهُمْ لَجَاهِلُونَ الَّذِينَ

وَعَمَّنْ لَهُمْ فِي الْأَرْضِ فَزَيَّرْنَا وَهَاسِن

وَجَعَلْنَاهُمْ مَّا كَانُوا إِحْسِدًا

6 And to grant them power in the land, and to make Pharaoh and Haman and their hosts see from them what they feared.¹⁸⁷⁰

1868 The two parties were the Israelites and the Egyptians, the latter being made the task-masters of the former. This refers no doubt to the persecutions of the Muslims. The Quraish, the stronger party, wanted to crush the weaker party of the Muslims.

1869 By making them heirs is not meant that they would be made heirs to Pharaoh's possessions, but heirs to a kingdom in the promised land of Canaan. And this refers also to the establishment of the kingdom of Islam and the vanquishment of its persecutors.

1870 Pharaoh and his counsellors feared that the Israelites, who were aliens in the land of Egypt, might one day become powerful and supreme in the land. Hence they oppressed and persecuted them in various ways. Yet the Divine intention was to bring about what Pharaoh feared, and to make the Israelites hold in subjugation a powerful and ruling nation. Even such was the Divine intention with regard to the persecuted Muslims. That Abasuerus, a king of Persia, had a favourite named Haman, combined with the fact that the Bible does not mention a minister of Pharaoh bearing that name, is considered to be a valid reason why the Holy Prophet confused Pharaoh with that Persian king. It is certainly a curious mode of reasoning. An Egyptian could as well bear the name Haman as a Persian.

7 And We revealed to Moses' mother, saying: * Give him suck, then when you fear for him, cast him into the river and do not fear nor grieve; surely We will bring him back to you and make him one of the apostles.

8 And Pharaoh's followers took him up that he might be an enemy and a grief for them; ¹⁸⁷¹ surely Pharaoh and Haman and their hosts were wrong-doers.

Ar. thee.

9 And Pharaoh's wife said: A refreshment of the eye to me and to you: do not slay him: maybe he will be useful to us, or we may take him for a son; and they did not perceive.

10 And the heart of Moses' mother was free (from anxiety); ¹⁸⁷² she would have almost disclosed it had We not strengthened her heart so that she might be of the believers.

11 And she said to his sister: Follow him up. So she watched him from a distance while they did not perceive, him.

Ar. forbade

12 And We did not allow him to suck before, so she said: Shall I point out to you the people of a house who will take care of him for you, and they will be benevolent to him? ¹⁸⁷³

13 So We gave him back to his mother that her eye might be refreshed, and that she might not grieve, and that she might know that the promise of Allah is true, but most of them do not know. ¹⁸⁷⁴

وَأَوْحَيْنَا إِلَىٰ أُمِّ مُوسَىٰ أَنْ أَرْضِعِيهِ وَأُذِيتْ عَلَيْهِ نَاقِيهِ فِي الْيَمِّ وَلَا تَحْزَنِي وَلَا تَحْزَنِي ۚ إِنَّا ذَاذُوهُ إِلَيْكَ وَجَاءَهُ مِنَ الْمُسْلِمِينَ ۝

فَالْقِطْعَةُ الَّتِي فَرَعُونَ لِبَكْرَتِهِمْ عَدُوًّا وَحَزَنًا لِّإِن فَرَعُونَ وَهَامَانَ وَجُنُودَهُمَا كَانُوا خَاطِبِينَ ۝

وَقَالَتِ امْرَأَتُ فِرْعَوْنَ قُرْتُتُ عَيْنِي لِي وَلَكَ لَا تَقْتُلُوهُ نَحْنَعُمُ أَنْ يُعَفَّى أَوْ نَجِدَ لَهُ وَلَدًا ۚ وَهُمْ لَا يَسْعُرُونَ ۝

وَأَصْبَحَ نُورًا أَدْرِمُوسَىٰ فِرْعَاوْنَ كَاذِبًا لِّتُبْدِي بِهِ لَوْلَا أَنْ رَّبَّنَا عَلَيَّ فَلْيَا لَيَكُونَنَّ مِنَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ ۝

وَقَالَتْ لِأُخْتِهِ قُصِّيهِ فَبَصُرَتْ بِهِ عَنْ جُنُبٍ وَهُمْ لَا يَسْعُرُونَ ۝

وَحَرَّمْنَا عَلَيْهِ الْمَرَاضِعَ مِنْ قَبْلِ فَقَالَتْ هَلْ أَدُلُّكُمْ عَلَىٰ أَهْلِ بَيْتٍ يَكْفُلُونَهُ لَكُمْ وَهُمْ لَهُ نَاصِحُونَ ۝

فَرَادَدْنَاهُ إِلَىٰ أُمِّهِ كَيْ تَقَرَّ عَيْنُهَا وَلَا تَحْزَنَ ۚ وَلِنَعْلَمَ أَنَّ وَعْدَ اللَّهِ حَقٌّ وَلَكِنَّ أَكْثَرَهُمْ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ ۝

1871 This is a very clear instance of the lām-al-‘āqibah, i.e. the lām used to denote the end or consequence. It was not the object of Pharaoh's people that the child should be their enemy, but this ultimately happened.

1872 Her heart became free from anxiety on account of the assurance which she had received through Divine revelation; the words that follow show that her heart had been strengthened with patience, so it cannot be said to have become devoid of patience. In fact, fāriḡh often, used elliptically, signifies free from care or anxiety or disquietude (LL).

1873 Nāṣiḡh signifies one who gives advice sincerely, as well as one who desires good for another or one benevolent (Q-LL).

1874 The reference is clearly to the opponents of the Holy Prophet, who did not know that the promise of Allah as given to the faithful would prove true.

History of Moses

He said: This is on account of the devil's doing; surely he is an enemy, openly leading astray.¹⁸⁷⁵

1894.

16 He said: My Lord! surely I have done harm to myself, so do Thou protect me. So He protected him; surely He is the Forgiving, the Merciful.¹⁸⁷⁶

17 He said: My Lord! because Thou hast bestowed a favour on me, I shall never be a backer of the guilty.

يُرِيدُ فَإِذَا الْإِنِّي اسْتَنْصَرُهُ

1875 The word "this," in Moses' statement, refers to the punishment which he had given to the Egyptian, the meaning being that it was on account of his devilish deed that the Egyptian had been so punished. The Rabbinical explanation of Exod. 2:12, which mentions Moses' slaying the Egyptian, is that the Egyptian merited death "because he had forced an Israelitish woman to commit adultery with him" (Jewish En., vol. ix. p. 48). The Qur-án does not name the offence, but there is no doubt that it calls his offence a devilish deed. The allegation that Moses calls his assault on the Egyptian with his fist a devilish deed is untrue: v. 17 shows clearly that Moses did not consider himself as one who had done an unjust deed or helped a guilty person. See also 1808.

1876 Moses' prayer is not evidence of his being guilty, for the words طلبت نفسي mean, I have caused detriment to myself, the primary significance of zulm being naqs (TA), or making to suffer loss or detriment (LL), and this is the meaning adopted in 7:160 and 18:33. Zalama-hu also signifies he imposed upon him a burden that was above his power or ability. The meaning here is that he had risked his own life in giving help to another.

the day before was crying out to him for aid. Moses said to him: You are most surely one erring manifestly.

Ar. thou art.

19 So when he desired to seize him who was an enemy to them both, he said: O Moses! do you intend to kill me as you killed a person yesterday? you desire nothing but that you should be a tyrant in the land, and you do not desire to be of those who act aright.

History of Moses

22-26. Flight to Midian. 27, 28. His marriage.

22 And when he turned his face towards Midian, he said: Maybe my Lord will guide me in the right path.

23 And when he came to the water of Midian, he found on it a group of men watering, and he found besides them two women keeping back (their flocks). He said: What is the matter with you? They said: We cannot water until the shepherds take away (their sheep) from the water, and our father is a very old man.

24 So he watered (their sheep) for them, then went back to the shade, and said: My Lord! surely I stand in need of whatever good Thou mayest send down to me.

1877 Compare Exod. 2: 15-21. The Qur-án does not state how many daughters the man had; it only speaks of two of them being in charge of their father's flock. Hence the alleged confusion of this story with that of Laban's two daughters is itself due to a confusion.

1878 Christian critical opinion discovers here another confusion. Because Jacob had made an agreement with Laban to serve him for seven years as a condition of marrying one of his daughters (Gen. 29: 18), it is alleged that this fact in the trustworthy Bible history must have been present to the Prophet's mind in a confused state, giving rise to the story relating to Moses' marriage. The slightest similarity in incidents, like similarity of names, gives rise—in the mind of the Christian critic—to a conclusion of confusion and anachronism where the Qur-án is concerned. According to Rabbinical accounts Moses lived with Jethro for ten years, which corroborates the Quranic story in substance (see Jewish En.), and there is nothing improbable in the circumstance that he may have served him during that period in consideration of marrying one of his daughters.

1879 The meaning is, so that they will not be able to injure you.

36 So when Moses came to them with Our clear signs, they said : This is nothing but forged enchantment, and we never heard of it amongst our fathers of old.

37 And Moses said : My Lord knows best who comes with guidance from Him, and whose shall be the good end of the abode ; surely the unjust shall not be successful.

38 And Pharaoh said : O chiefs ! I do not know of any god for you besides myself ; therefore kindle a fire for me, O Haman, on dust, then prepare for me a lofty building so that I may obtain knowledge of Moses' God, and most surely I think him to be one of the liars.¹⁸⁸⁰

39 And he was unjustly proud in the land, he and his hosts, and they deemed that they will not be brought back to Us.

40 So We caught hold of him and his hosts, then We cast them into the sea, and see how was the end of the unjust.

41 And We made them leaders who call to the fire, and on the day of resurrection they shall not be assisted.¹⁸⁸¹

42 And We caused a curse to follow them in this world, and on the day of resurrection they shall be of those removed from good.

Or, made to appear hideous.

1880 Pharaoh mocks at the idea of the Lord of the heavens and the earth, and derisively commands one of his ministers to prepare bricks (such being the significance of kindling a fire on dust) and to erect a lofty building so that he may have a peep into the heavens to discover the Lord of the heavens and the earth.

1881 Pharaoh is thus made a prototype of evil, and the opponents of the Holy Prophet are warned that walking in Pharaoh's footsteps they will meet a similar fate.

SECTION 5

A Prophet like Moses

43-46. Moses foretold of the Prophet by Divine revelation. 47-50. Prophet comes in truth.

43 And certainly We gave Moses the Book after We had destroyed the former generations, clear arguments for men and a guidance and a mercy, that they may be mindful.

Ar. thou wert.

44 And you were not on the western side when We revealed to Moses the commandment, and you were not among the witnesses.¹⁸⁸²

Ar. thou wert.

45 But We raised up generations, then life became prolonged to them; and you were not dwelling among the people of Midian, reciting to them Our communications, but We were the senders.

Ar. thou wert.

46 And you were not on this side of the mountain when We called, but a mercy from your Lord that you may warn a people to whom no warner came before you, that they may be mindful.¹⁸⁸³

Ar. thou wert.

Ar. thy.

Ar. thou mayest.

Ar. thee.

47 And were it not that there should befall them a disaster for what their hands have sent before, then they should say: Our Lord! why didst Thou not send to us an apostle so that we should have followed Thy communications and been of the believers!

48 But (now) when the truth has come to them from Us, they say: Why is he not given the like of what was given to

وَلَقَدْ آتَيْنَا مُوسَى الْكِتَابَ مِنْ بَعْدِ مَا أَهْلَكْنَا الْقُرُونَ الْأُولَىٰ بَصَائِرَ لِلنَّاسِ وَهُدًى وَرَحْمَةً لَّعَلَّهُمْ يَتَذَكَّرُونَ ۝ وَمَا كُنْتَ بِجَانِبِ الْغُرِيِّ إِذْ قَضَيْنَا إِلَىٰ مُوسَى الْأَمْرَ وَمَا كُنْتَ مِنَ الشَّاهِدِينَ ۝ وَلَكِنَّا أَنشَأْنَا فِرْعَوْنَ نَاقِطًا أُولَٰئِكَ عَلَيْهِمُ الْعُرْسُ وَمَا كُنْتَ تَأْوِي إِلَيْنَا أَهْلَ مَدْيَنَ تَتْلُو آيَاتِهِمْ أَنِيتِنَا وَلَكِنَّا كُنَّا مُرْسِلِينَ ۝

وَمَا كُنْتَ بِجَانِبِ الطُّورِ إِذْ نَادَيْنَا وَلَكِنْ رَحْمَةً مِنْ رَبِّكَ لِتُنْذِرَ قَوْمًا مِمَّا أَتَتْهُمْ مِنْ نَذِيرٍ مِنْ قَبْلِكَ لَعَلَّهُمْ يَتَذَكَّرُونَ وَلَوْ لَا أَنَّا نَصِيبُهُمْ مِصْرَبًا فَإِذَا مَتَّأْيَدِيهِمْ قَيْقُورٌ أَرَبْنَا أُولَٰئِكَ أَرْسَلْنَا إِلَيْنَا رَسُولًا فَنُذِّعُ آيَاتِنَا وَنَكُونُ مِنَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ ۝

فَلَمَّا جَاءَهُمُ الْحَقُّ مِنْ عِنْدِنَا قَالُوا لَوْلَا أُوْتِيَ مِثْلَ مَا أُوتِيَ

1882 How was it then that Moses spoke so clearly of the advent of the Holy Prophet? Were it not by Divine revelation, Moses could not have spoken so clearly of the Holy Prophet two thousand years before his advent. The repetition of the phrase you were not at such and such a place in this and the following two verses is simply to lay stress upon the clear fulfilment of the prophecy, which is so clear that one should think Moses were speaking of one whose presence at the time made him fully well known to him.

1883 This verse throws light on the purpose of the foregoing verses: You were not there, but it was Divine mercy that put a prophecy into the mouth of Moses regarding you. This is made clear by the words a mercy from your Lord that you may warn The people to whom no warner had come before were the Arabs. Compare 32 : 8, 36 : 6.

Moses? What! did they not disbelieve in what Moses was given before? They say: Two enchantments backing up each other; and they say: Surely we are unbelievers in all.¹⁸⁸⁴

49 Say: Then bring some (other) book from Allah which is a better guide than both of them, (that) I may follow it, if you are truthful.¹⁸⁸⁵

Ar. thee.

50 But if they do not answer you, then know that they only follow their low desires; and who is more erring than he who follows his low desires without any guidance from Allah? Surely Allah does not guide the unjust people.

SECTION 6

The Truth of Revelation

51-53. Connection with previous revelation established. 54-57. Believers must be patient under trials. 58-60. Towns already destroyed afford warning.

51 And certainly We have made the Word to have many connections on account of them so that they may be mindful.¹⁸⁸⁶

وَلَقَدْ وَصَّلْنَا لَهُمُ الْقَوْلَ لَعَلَّهُمْ
يَتَذَكَّرُونَ ۝

1884 The unbelievers did not adopt any one firm position against the Holy Prophet, and whenever one objection was shown to be erroneous they took refuge in another. At the advent of the Prophet they said that he should have received a revelation like the revelation of Moses, but when the likeness was pointed out to them, and they were told that their fate was to be like the fate of the opponents of Moses, they are found saying that both, i.e. Moses and Muhammad—may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon them!—were deceivers who enchanted people by their eloquence, the one helping the other, and therefore they believed neither in the one nor in the other.

1885 The meaning is that if you do not admit the truth of either revelation, you should show some other revelation existing in the world which should offer better rules of guidance. This statement only draws attention to the fact that the revelation granted to Moses and that granted to the Holy Prophet both occupy a higher position than any other revelation. And this is in fact true, for among all the sacred books of the world the Bible occupies a position second only to the Holy Qur-ān. The words, however, do not signify that the Bible occupies a position equal to the Holy Qur-ān. For their comparative merits see 697, 703. See also 152.

1886 The form fa'ala indicates either intensity (mubdalagha) or extensiveness (taksir) in the meaning of the verb, and accordingly waṣṣala signifies he joined or connected much or he made (a string) to have many joinings (TA-LĪ). What is implied here is that the word of Allah, as contained in the Qur-ān, is made to have many points of connection with previous revelation, so that it may be the easier for them to be reminded of its truth. Even if they did not believe in previous revelation, the broad points of likeness in the principles of two different prophets appearing at such a distance of time from each other, among entirely different nations, and

52 (As to) those whom We gave the Book before it, they are believers in it.¹⁸⁸⁷

53 And when it is recited to them they say: We believe in it; surely it is the truth from our Lord; surely we were submitters before this.

54 These shall be granted their reward twice, because they are steadfast and they repel evil with good and spend out of what We have given them.¹⁸⁸⁸

55 And when they hear idle talk they turn aside from it and say: We shall have our deeds and you shall have your deeds: peace be on you, we do not desire the ignorant.

56 Surely you can not guide whom you love, but Allah guides whom He pleases, and He knows best the followers of the right way.¹⁸⁸⁹

Ar. these.

57 And they say: If we follow the guidance with you, we shall be carried off from our country. What! have we not settled them in a safe, sacred territory to which fruits of every kind shall be drawn?—a sustenance from Us; but most of them do not know.¹⁸⁹⁰ under totally different circumstances, and the fulfilment of the prophecies uttered by one in the other, afford conclusive evidence of the truth of them both. That the reference is to the connection with the previous revelation is also shown by the verse that follows, where those who have been given the Book are clearly spoken of.

1887 It is not meant that all those who have been previously given the scriptures believe in the Qur-ān. The verse only draws attention to the fact that all believe in the truth of revelation from Allah, and they cannot deny the points of connection between the two revelations, the truth of the fundamental principles and the fulfilment of prophecies. But only those would believe who have submitted themselves already to Allah, as the verse that follows shows.

1888 It is not meant that those who believed in the previous scriptures and now believe in the Holy Prophet shall have a double reward for that reason. The reason of a double reward—which only means a greater reward—is given in the words that follow: Because they are steadfast and they repel evil with good and spend out of what we have given them. They had to suffer persecutions, and not only did they remain steadfast in these great trials, but repelled the evil of their persecutors with good, and in addition to all this made great sacrifices in the cause of truth. See also 1987 on 33:31 and 2458.

1889 It is related that when Abū Ṭālib was on his death-bed the Holy Prophet asked him to believe in Divine Unity. Abū Jahl, being by him at the time, dissuaded him from doing so, saying that he should not desert the religion of his fathers. Abū Ṭālib died an unbeliever, and the words you cannot guide whom you love were a comfort to the Prophet (Bkh).

1890 The verse speaks first of the unfounded fears of those who thought that the weakness of the Muslims would result in the seizure, death, or expulsion of those who accepted the faith of Islam. In reply they are told that the prophecies which declare Mecca to be a safe and sacred territory, to which people will flock in all ages, must come to fulfilment, and Mecca will ultimately be theirs for whose sake these prophecies are uttered.

1891 That is, even now the Divine kingdom will be established, and the true believers in God shall be made masters of the country.

1892 There are two parties spoken of here: the Prophet and his followers, who have received a goodly promise from Allah, though weak and oppressed at the time, and the powerful enemy, who has all the provisions of life in his possession, but who will one day be called upon to receive the judgment.

1893 All commentators agree that by those against whom the sentence has been confirmed are meant the leaders in unbelief (JB, Kf). Hence their saying they never served or worshipped us shows that these very leaders are spoken of as the gods whom their followers worship.

1894 They shall not be able to offer an excuse, for the vanity of the false excuses which satisfied them here would then become manifest to them. Nor shall they ask each other, for each shall know the falsity of the excuses of the others.

Korah's Wealth leads him to Ruin

76-80. Korah rebels against Moses and exults in his wealth. 81, 82. His ruin.

76 Surely Korah was of the people of Moses, but he rebelled against them, and We had given him of the treasures, so much so that his hoards of wealth would certainly weigh down a company of men possessed of great strength. When his people said to him: Do not exult, surely Allah does not love the exultant. 1895

إِنْ قَارُونَ كَانَ مِنْ قَوْمِ مُوسَى يَتَّبِعُ

إِنَّ اللَّهَ لَا يُحِبُّ الْفَرِحِينَ ۝

1895 The story of Korah or Qārūn, his revolt against the leadership of Moses and Aaron, and his being swallowed up by the earth, is given in Num. 16. The only addition of any importance to the story as given in the Qur-ān is the mention of his wealth, a fact noticed in Rabbinical literature (Jewish En.), according to which the fabulous renown of his wealth is so great that the keys of his treasures formed a load for three hundred mules. The word mafātīḥ as occurring in the Qur-ān is plural of maftaḥ, which means a hoard, or treasure, or buried property (TA-LI). It is also plural of miftaḥ, meaning a key, but kunūz (meaning treasures, singular kanz) being in the plural, the personal pronoun in mafātīḥa-hu does not refer to kunūz but to Korah; accordingly mafātīḥ denotes the treasures.

Ar. thoe. 77 And seek by means of what Allah has given you the future abode, and do not neglect your portion of this world, and do good (to others) as Allah has done good to you, and do not seek to make mischief in the land: surely Allah does not love the mischief-makers.

78 He said: I have been given this only on account of the knowledge I have. Did he not know that Allah had destroyed before him of the generations those who were mightier in strength than he and greater in assemblage? And the guilty shall not be asked about their faults.¹⁸⁹⁶

79 So he went forth to his people in his finery. Those who desire this world's life said: O would that we had the like of what Korah is given; most surely he is possessed of mighty good fortune.

80 And those who were given the knowledge said: Woe to you! Allah's reward is better for him who believes and does good, and none is made to receive this except the patient.

81 Thus We made the earth to swallow up him and his abode; so he had no body of helpers to assist him against Allah, nor was he of those who can defend themselves.¹⁸⁹⁷

82 And those who yearned for his place only the day before began to say: Ah! (know) that Allah amplifies and straitens the means of subsistence for whom He pleases of His servants; had not Allah been gracious to us, He would most surely have abased us; ah! (know) that the ungrateful are never successful.

1898 The word ma'ad means the ultimate place of one's returning (from 'ada, meaning he returned) (LL). The word ma'ad in مرادك الى معاد has been taken to mean Mecca, according to an interpretation given by I'Ab, and TA accepts this interpretation, because the conquest of it was promised to the Prophet, so that it was the place to which he would return. O gives another reason for Mecca being called ma'ad, viz. because the pilgrims return to it (LL). According to some this verse was revealed on the Prophet's departure from Mecca, i.e. on his way to Medina. At any rate it contains a clear promise of the Prophet being brought back to Mecca.

1899 The Prophet being the recipient of the revelation containing the commandments in this and the previous verse, the commandments really give us a picture of his mind. It is a distorted imagination which can deduce from commandments like this an inclination to polytheism in the Prophet's mind. So far from showing an inclination of this nature, the commandments show that his heart was entirely free from any such inclination.

CHAPTER XXIX

THE SPIDER

(Al-'Ankabūt)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(7 sections and 69 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Trials purify.
- Sec. 2, 3. Histories of Noah, Abraham, and Lot.
- Sec. 4. Frailty of false beliefs : a lesson in the fate of earlier nations.
- Sec. 5. The Qur-ān is a purifier.
- Sec. 6. Unbelievers warned and believers comforted.
- Sec. 7. Triumph of the faithful.

The Title, context, and date of revelation.

THIS chapter is entitled The Spider from the fact that false, idolatrous, and polytheistic beliefs are here compared to a spider's web : And surely the frailest of the houses is the spider's house (v. 41). The significance is clear : false beliefs will not stand the test of time, and they shall be swept away before the strong current of truth. This chapter and the three following form another group of Meccan revelation, each being headed by the letters alif, lām, Mīm. The present chapter deals chiefly with the persecutions of the Muslims and the trials which they underwent, and hence some have thought that some portions of this chapter, particularly the opening verses, were revealed at Medina and refer to the battles which the Muslims fought. But to consider that the persecution and the trials of the Muslims began at Medina and with fighting is to ignore the whole of the earlier history of Islam. The Muslims had a very hard time at Mecca, and even if no account of the cruel persecutions of the early converts to Islam had been left, the earlier flight to Abyssinia and the later one to Medina should be sufficient testimony of the great trials which the Muslims suffered at Mecca. This chapter speaks of the time when persecution was rife and it comforts the converts to Islam. Hence, in all probability the chapter belongs to the close of the early Meccan, or the beginning of the middle Meccan, period.

Connection and subject-matter.

The last chapter predicted in plain words a triumphal return of the Holy Prophet to Mecca, thus indicating the triumph of Islam. Here we are told that the great object of the triumph of truth has never been achieved except by suffering sore afflictions and severe trials in its cause. Hence trials and persecutions were necessary. Starting thus, there is a reference to the persecution of children by their very parents, and the converts to Islam are told that they must yield to their parents in all other matters, but must resolutely reject false doctrines. The second, third, and fourth sections make brief references to the histories of Noah, Abraham, Lot, and other prophets, showing how the righteous had always to undergo trials and how they were subjected to persecutions, but false beliefs had no basis and had always been swept away by truth. At the end of the fourth section, false beliefs are com-

Trials purify

1-5. Trials are necessary. 6, 7. Striving will bring reward. 8, 9. Obedience to idolatrous parents. 10, 11. Persecution separates the faithful from the hypocrites. 12, 13. The burden of evil.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

2 Do men think that they will be left alone on saying, We believe, and not be tried?¹⁹⁰⁰

3 And certainly We tried those before them, so Allah will certainly know those who are true and He will certainly know the liars.^b

4 Or do they who work evil think that they will escape Us? Evil is it that they judge!¹⁹⁰¹

Or, hopes.
5 Whoever fears to meet Allah, the doom appointed by Allah will then most surely come; and He is the Hearing, the Knowing.

6 And whoever strives hard, he strives only for his own soul; most surely Allah is Self-sufficient, above (need of) the worlds.¹⁹⁰² pared to a spider's web, thus illustrating their extreme frailty. The fifth section refers to the purifying effect of the Qur-án, and the repeated demand for more signs is met with the simple answer that the holy word of God was in itself a sufficiently clear sign, because it wrought a transformation in the lives of those who followed it. The sixth section warns the unbelievers of the fate in store for them and of the consequences of their tyrannical persecutions of the Muslims; it also comforts the latter by stating that their sufferings will soon be changed into a state of happiness. The seventh section shows that Allah, who deals mercifully even with the unbelievers, will not allow the exertions of the faithful in the cause of truth to remain unfruitful, and that those who strive hard and earnestly will be guided in the right way, which is the way to success.

1900 By the trials spoken of in these verses is meant the persecution of the believers by the unbelievers at Mecca. This is made clear in v. 10. A misconception as to the nature of these trials has led some critics to think that the first ten verses must have been revealed at Medina.

1901 That is, the persecutors shall not go unpunished.

1902 As has been shown in 1793, the word jihad occurs in Meccan revelation frequently, and carries its proper significance of striving hard in Allah's way. The suffering of persecutions and tortures at the hands of their enemies for the sake of their faith was no less a jihad of the Muslims at Mecca than their fighting in defence of Islam at Medina.

7 And (as for) those who believe and do good, We will most certainly do away their evil deeds and We will most certainly reward them the best of what they did.¹⁹⁰³

9 And (as for) those who believe and do good, We will most surely cause them to enter among the good.

10 And among men is he who says: We believe in Allah; but when he is persecuted in (the way of) Allah he thinks the persecution of men to be as the chastisement of Allah;¹⁹⁰⁵ and if there come assistance from your Lord, they would most certainly say: Surely we were with you. What! is not Allah the best knower of what is in the breasts of mankind?

Ar. thy.

وَالَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّالِحَاتِ لَنُكَفِّرَنَّ عَنْهُمْ سَيِّئَاتِهِمْ وَلَنَجْزِيَنَّهُمْ أَحْسَنَ الَّذِي كَانُوا يَعْمَلُونَ ۝

وَمِنَ النَّاسِ مَنْ يَقُولُ آمَنَّا بِاللَّهِ فَإِذَا أُوذِيَ فِي اللَّهِ جَعَلَ فِتْنَةَ النَّاسِ كَعَذَابِ اللَّهِ وَلَئِنْ جَاءَ نَصْرٌ مِّنْ رَبِّكَ لَيَقُولُنَّ إِنَّا كُنَّا مَعَكُمْ ۖ أَوَلَيْسَ اللَّهُ بِأَعْلَمَ بِمَا فِي صُدُورِ الْمُكْفِرِينَ ۝

1903 The word rendered by do away here is nukaffiranna, from which is derived the kaffārah or atonement of the Christian doctrine. The Qur-ān points out that the true kaffārah or atonement for evil deeds is the doing of good deeds, so that the latter, taking the place of the former, change the whole course of a man's life. The atonement of sin by virtue is the true doctrine of nature, while atonement by blood is absolutely unnatural and incomprehensible.

1904 This verse, while signifying the importance of obedience to parents, at the same time warns against attaching over-importance to even the filial duty. It shows that when even an important duty clashes with a still higher one, the former is to be sacrificed to the latter. It is related that when Sa'd ibn-i-Abi-Waqqas became a convert to Islam, his mother swore that she would neither eat nor drink until he reverted to unbelief, and that this verse was revealed on that occasion. If the incident is true, it is a further proof that these verses were revealed at Mecca, because Sa'd was one of the early converts. At any rate Noldeke's argument, that since these verses were revealed at Medina therefore the incident cannot be true, carries no weight. It is quite conceivable that such a verse was more needed for the guidance of early converts at Mecca than the later converts at Medina, for it was at Mecca that children had to leave their parents on account of their conversion to Islam, the parents not allowing them to forsake their old religion.

1905 The meaning is that those who are weak in faith consider the persecution by the unbelievers which was necessary to strengthen and purify their faith as if it were a chastisement from Allah for their change of faith. The latter part of the verse is a prophecy as to what the weak in faith will say when they see the assistance of Allah coming to the Muslims and destroying the unbelievers.

11 And most certainly Allah will know those who believe, and most certainly He will know the hypocrites.*

* 494.

12 And those who disbelieve say to those who believe: Follow our path and we will bear your wrongs. And never shall they be the bearers of any of their wrongs; most surely they are liars.

13 And most certainly they shall carry their own burdens, and other burdens with their own burdens, and most certainly they shall be questioned on the resurrection day as to what they forged.¹⁹⁰⁶

وَأَبْرَاهِيمَ إِذْ قَالَ لِقَوْمِهِ اعْبُدُوا اللَّهَ وَاتَّقُوهُ

1906 It should be noted that the Qur-ān does not anywhere say that the burden of one shall be taken away by another. Each one is responsible for what he does. The "other burdens" are really their own burdens in misleading others, and thus the two burdens spoken of here are the burden of one's own wrong-doing and the burden of misleading others.

1907 The Christians, of course, have no objection to the statement made here as to Noah having lived for 950 years, for the Bible gives that to be the age of that patriarch. It is not improbable that the span of man's life may have been greater in his earlier history than at present, and Noah may have attained an extraordinary age among his compatriots. But there are indications that the reference here is to the abiding for 950 years of the law preached by Noah, his place being then taken by Abraham, who is for this reason mentioned immediately after Noah. According to the dates given in the Bible, a period of 952 years elapsed between the birth of Noah and that of Abraham, and the reference may be to these 950 years, as the mention of Abraham immediately afterwards shows. It should be noted that the concluding words, and the deluge overtook them, are separated by a full stop from the first part of the verse, and it is for this reason that the words do not signify that the deluge overtook the people after he had dwelt among them 950 years. Or, the ṭūfān may have here the significance given in the margin, and the reference may be not to the deluge, but to some later calamity. For this significance of the word see 934.

(your duty to) Him : this is best for you, if you did but know :

17 You only worship idols besides Allah and you create a lie ; surely they whom you serve besides Allah do not control for you any sustenance, therefore seek the sustenance from Allah and serve Him and be grateful to Him ; to Him you shall be brought back.

18 And if you reject (the truth), nations before you did indeed reject (the truth) ; and nothing is incumbent on the Apostle but a plain delivering (of the message).

19 What! do they not consider how Allah originates the creation, then reproduces it? Surely that is easy to Allah.¹⁹⁰⁸

20 Say : Travel in the earth and see how He makes the first creation, then Allah creates the latter creation ; surely Allah has power over all things.¹⁹⁰⁹

21 He chastises whom He pleases and has mercy on whom He pleases, and to Him you shall be turned back.

22 And you shall not escape in the earth nor in the heaven, and you have neither a protector nor a helper besides Allah.

وَمَا لَكُمْ مِنْ دُونِ اللَّهِ مِنْ وَلِيٍّ وَلَا نَصِيرٍ

1908 The law of creation and destruction of things which is constantly working in nature finds an expression in the lives of nations : a nation is brought into existence, then it is swept away and a new nation raised in its stead. It is to this law that the verse refers as a warning to the idolatrous Meccans that the time had now come when their place should be taken by another nation. This is made clearer in the verses that follow.

It should be noted that vv. 18-23 are parenthetical, being an address to the opponents of the Holy Prophet. The Qur-ān frequently adopts this method of warning in the middle of another narration, for its object is not to relate a story, but to warn those who opposed the spread of the truth as revealed to the Holy Prophet.

1909 Elsewhere, the words travel in the earth are always followed by then see what was the end of the rejecters, instead of which we have here how He makes the first creation, then Allah creates the latter creation. The apparent identity of the significance of these two statements is thus made clearer by the comparison, which shows that what is meant is the disappearance of one nation to give place to another.

SECTION 3

Abraham and Lot

23-25. Abraham is persecuted. 26, 27. He flies and is blessed. 28-30. Lot.

23 And (as to) those who disbelieve in the communications of Allah and His meeting, they have despaired of My mercy, and these it is that shall have a painful chastisement.

26 And Lot believed in him, and he said: I am fleeing to my Lord, surely He is the Mighty, the Wise.^{1910a}

27 And We granted him Isaac and Jacob,^b and caused the prophethood and the book to remain in his seed, and We gave him his reward in this world, and in the hereafter he will most surely be among the good.

فَمَا كَانَ جَوَابَ قَوْمِهِ إِلَّا أَنْ قَالُوا
إِنَّا نَرَاهُ أَوْحِي قُوَّةً فَأَنجَاهُ اللَّهُ مِنَ النَّارِ
إِنَّ فِي ذَلِكَ لَآيَاتٍ لِّقَوْمٍ يُؤْمِنُونَ

وَقَالَ إِنَّمَا اتَّخَذْتُمْ مِمَّنْ دُونِ اللَّهِ

فَأَمَّنَ لَهُ لُوطٌ وَقَالَ إِنِّي مُهَاجِرٌ
إِلَى رَبِّي إِنَّهُ هُوَ الْعَزِيزُ الْحَكِيمُ

وَوَهَبْنَا لَهُ إِسْحَاقَ وَيَعْقُوبَ وَجَعَلْنَا
فِي ذُرِّيَّتِهِ الشُّبُهَةَ وَالْكِتَابَ وَآتَيْنَاهُ
أَجْرَهُ فِي الدُّنْيَا وَإِنَّهُ فِي الْآخِرَةِ
لَمِنَ الظَّالِمِينَ

1910 As in 21: 69, so here, it is not stated that Abraham was actually cast into the fire. On the one hand, the expression used here, then Allah delivered him from the fire, shows that the opponents were unable to cast him into the fire. On the other hand, the plan was either to slay or to burn him, and therefore the fire may only stand for the opposition which these plans involved.

1910a The words I am fleeing to my Lord indicate his flight to another country whither he was commanded to flee by his Lord (Bd). This is more clearly stated in 19: 49: "And I will withdraw from you," being followed by the statement made in 19: 50: "So when he withdrew from them." This makes it further clear that his deliverance from the fire was brought about by his flight to another country.

28 And (We sent) Lot when he said to his people: Most surely you are guilty of an indecency which none of the nations has ever done before you:

29 What! do you come to the males and commit robbery on the highway, and you commit evil deeds in your assemblies?¹⁹¹¹ But nothing was the answer of his people except that they said: Bring on us Allah's chastisement, if you are one of the truthful.

30 He said: My Lord! help me against the mischievous people.

1911 Three evils are ascribed to Lot's people—unnatural crime, highway robbery, and openly committing evil deeds in their assemblies. Therefore it is a mistake to explain all incidents in connection with Lot's story only with reference to unnatural crime as the sole evil of which they were guilty. قطع السبيل is, according to Kf, "the work of robbers, killing men and seizing their property." JB adds after the words تتقطعون السبيل by way of explaining them, "for they used to murder the passers-by and rob them of their property." Other commentators give similar explanations. 1912, see next page.

Ar. thes. 45 Recite that which has been revealed to you of the Book and keep up prayer; surely prayer keeps (one) away from indecency and evil, and certainly the remembrance of Allah is the greatest, and Allah knows what you do.¹⁹¹⁵

1914 A trust in false deities, which really stands for all false beliefs, is here compared to a spider's web to express the nature of its extreme frailty. It may prosper for a time, but no sooner is the light of criticism and research brought to bear upon it than it vanishes and leaves no trace behind. Or, as the spider's web is entirely changed when it is once destroyed, so, like the web, false beliefs do not retain their original form, and every objection causes a new doctrine to spring forth in the place of the old, which is really devoid of solidity and strength.

There may also be a reference here to the plans of the Holy Prophet's opponents, which were destined to be brought to naught by reason of their inability to withstand the overwhelming advance of truth.

1915 This verse invites the followers of the Book to accept the Qur-án on account of its purifying effect upon life, whereas their own scriptures had ceased to effect a release from the bondage of sin, which is the real object of revelation. The verse also lays down the right principle for getting rid of the bondage of sin in the words the remembrance of Allah is the greatest, i.e. the most powerful and effective restraint upon sin. That this is the right principle is borne out by the testimony of all the prophets and righteous men, and reason 46 And do not dispute with the followers of the Book except by what is best,¹⁹¹⁶ except those of them who act unjustly,¹⁹¹⁷ and say: We believe in that which has been revealed to us and revealed to you, and our God and your God is One, and to Him do we submit.

47 And thus have We revealed the Book to you. So those whom We have given the Book believe in it, and of these there are those who believe

وَلَا تَجَادَلُوا أَهْلَ الْكِتَابِ إِلَّا بِالَّتِي
هِيَ أَحْسَنُ دَلَالَةِ الَّذِينَ ظَلَمُوا مِنْهُمْ

أُنْزِلَ إِلَيْكُمْ وَالْهُنَاءُ وَالْهُكْمُ وَاحِدٌ
وَنَحْنُ لَهُ مُسْلِمُونَ ٥

وَكَذَلِكَ أُنْزِلَ إِلَيْكَ الْكِتَابُ فَالَّذِينَ آمَنُوا الْكِتَابَ يُؤْمِنُونَ بِهِ وَمِنْ هَؤُلَاءِ مَنْ يُؤْمِنُ

also leads us to the same conclusion. It is a living belief in Divine power, knowledge, and goodness that restrains man from walking in the ways of His displeasure, and this is what is implied in the remembrance of Allah. A sure and certain knowledge that every evil action leads to an evil consequence, that there is a Supreme Being Who knows what is hid from human eyes and Whose moral law is effective where the moral force of society altogether fails, that He is the source of all goodness and it is through goodness that man can have communion with Him, are the only effective restraints upon evil. These are the principles wherein every fresh revelation inspires a living faith.

It should also be noted that the recitation of the Book, the keeping up of prayer, and the remembrance of Allah are really all identical; for the Qur-án is recited in prayers, and the Qur-án is the best means of the remembrance of Allah: every line of it brings before the mind of the reader the goodness, power, and knowledge of the Divine Being, while there is no other book which fulfils this requirement. The Qur-án is neither a book of law, though it contains the principles of the laws necessary for the guidance of man, nor a book of sacred history, though it contains the necessary sacred history, but it is pre-eminently a Book that manifests the glory, greatness, grandeur, goodness, love, purity, power, and knowledge of the Supreme Being.

1916 It should be noted that this passage deals only with the mode of controversy to be adopted in inviting those who already had scriptures in their hands—which the Arabs had not—to the truth of Islam and the revelation of the Qur-án. The diseased imagination that discovers a recommendation for the use of force altogether fails to understand the meaning of the passage, for it is absurd to speak of a religious controversy being carried on by the use of force. This may be the method which the Christian missionary of the latter day has found most effective, but the Qur-án makes its own meaning quite clear when it explains what it regards as best, and that it is the broad principles of religion that should demand paramount consideration. The two fundamental principles of religion are the existence of the Divine Being and Divine revelation, these being common to all revealed religions. The only difference is that a Muslim's is a purer monotheism, a conception of the Divine Being which gives the most perfect attributes to Him while declaring Him to be free from all imperfections and weaknesses, a conception which cannot reasonably be criticized by any one who admits a belief in a Supreme Being. A Muslim's conception of Divine revelation is wider than that of the follower of any other religion, recognizing, as it does, that Divine revelation is granted in all ages and to all nations. A Muslim, therefore, admits the truth of all the prophets and revelations, and the follower of any other religion has nothing to lose but everything to gain by accepting Islam.

1917 The significance of the words except those who act unjustly is not that controversy is to be carried on with these in a different manner, but that the unjust would not accept this reasonable interpretation of the principles of religion. This is made clear in the verse that follows.

in it, and none deny Our communications except the unbelievers.¹⁹¹⁸

50 And they say: Why are not signs sent down upon him from his Lord? Say: The signs are only with Allah, and I am only a plain warner.¹⁹²¹

يَمْ وَمَا يَخْدُ بِأَيِّنَا إِلَّا الْكُفْرُونَ

وَمَا كُنْتَ تَتْلُو مِنْ قَبْلِهِمْ مِنْ كِتَابٍ

الظَّالِمُونَ

وَقَالُوا لَوْلَا أُنْزِلَ عَلَيْهِ آيَاتٌ مِنْ رَبِّهِ قُلْ

إِنَّمَا الْآيَاتُ عِنْدَ اللَّهِ وَإِنَّمَا أَنَا نَذِيرٌ مُبِينٌ

1918 And thus have We revealed the Book; that is, by confirming the truth of all previous revelation. The reference in these is to the Arabs, who possessed no sacred scriptures.

1919 The broad principles of religion and the beautiful moral and spiritual truths which find expression in the Qur-án could not have been collected, if such a collection by human exertion were possible, except by one who had knowledge of all the previous scriptures; but, to say nothing of all the scriptures, the Holy Prophet had not read even a single book. What might have been said against a prophet like Jesus, that he had read the previous scriptures and collected some beautiful truths from them, could not be said against the Holy Prophet, for the latter could neither read nor write, and his inability to do either is thus a confirmation of his truth. Leaving aside all the principles and truths, if we consider the broad principle that Islam taught with regard to the truth of Divine revelation in all ages and to all nations, a truth never taught or recognized by any religion or by any man before the Holy Prophet, it is remarkable that such a broad truth should have been preached in such clear and forcible words by one who had never read the scriptures of any religion and who lived in a country which was almost cut off from all communication with other countries. That an Arab of the desert should proclaim a truth which it was not vouchsafed to any of the great prophets to preach, and which after thirteen centuries of learning and intercommunication of nations is recognized as the essential truth of all religious preaching, is alone sufficient to show that the source from which this teaching was drawn was far above the knowledge possessed by any human being.

1920 While the previous verse asserts that the truths of the religious scriptures, which were never read by the Holy Prophet, were to be found in the Qur-án, this verse goes further, and claims that not only those truths, but also others which are not to be found in any scripture, and which are only in the breasts of the learned ones, or those that shall ever be conceived by the learned ones, are to be seen in the pages of the Holy Qur-án. That what the most progressive religious thought of to-day considers desirable for the basis of a common religion of humanity is met with in Islam is a clear testimony to the truth of this assertion.

1921 As remarked elsewhere, it should be noted that this expression is not a denial of the coming of signs, but an assertion that they shall be shown. The Prophet is a warner, and gives warning in due time that the signs are with Allah, whose power to send these signs they deny. Read also in this connection vv. 53-55, which uphold, in mos. clear and forcible language, the coming of the punishment—which, however, the unbelievers would have hastened on—leaving no doubt as to the meaning of signs being with Allah.

Ar. thou.

مِنْ تَحْتِ أَعْيُنِهِمْ وَيَقُولُ ذُوقُوا مَا
ن ۝

1922 This is another reply to those who demanded the sign which involved their own destruction. The Qur-án is a mercy: if they would only accept it, and mould their lives according to its directions, they would be dealt with most mercifully. They could see how the believers had benefited by it; how a wonderful transformation had been wrought in their lives. Was it not a sufficient sign for them of the truth of the Holy Qur-án? Indeed, this was direct evidence of the truth of the holy word, for to effect a pure transformation in the lives of those who would follow it was its avowed object, while the overthrow of its enemies was only an indirect testimony.

1923 Even the punishment of this life, which the unbelievers would hasten, is called a hell. But even if this verse is taken as indicating the punishment of the life after death, as some commentators think, it is a transition from the one to the other—from the punishment of this life to the punishment after death—which is of frequent occurrence in the Holy Qur-án, both being spoken of in several places in such conjunction that it is hardly possible to separate the one from the other.

1924 The expression used is simply to indicate the all-encompassing nature of the punishment, which will not leave them a way to escape. Or, the punishment from above is the drought, and punishment from beneath, the battles.

56 O My servants who believe! surely My earth is vast, therefore Me alone should you serve.¹⁹²⁵

57 Every soul must taste of death, then to Us you shall be brought back.

58 And (as for) those who believe and do good, We will certainly give them abode in the high places in gardens beneath which rivers flow, abiding therein; how good the reward of the workers.¹⁹²⁶

1925 This is to comfort the Muslims against the severe persecutions by their enemies. If they are persecuted at Mecca, they shall find a refuge elsewhere, where they shall not find such hindrances.

1926 This promise was abundantly fulfilled in this life when the Muslims were given the grand palaces of the Chosroes and Cæsars to dwell in.

1927 This is a consolation to the Muslims that the giving up of their concerns and business at Mecca will not be productive of distress.

1928 Most of them do not understand that the dead earth of Arabia is now about to be raised to life.

67 Do they not see that We have made a sacred territory secure,* while men are carried off by force from around them?^{1928A} Will they still believe in the falsehood and disbelieve in the favour of Allah?

68 And who is more unjust than one who forges a lie against Allah, or gives the lie to the truth when it has come to him? Will not in hell be the abode of the unbelievers?

69 And (as for) those who strive hard for Us, We will most certainly guide them in Our ways; and Allah is most surely with the doers of good.

1928A The haram includes the city of Mecca and several miles of territory around it. War is forbidden within these limits. The reference in men being carried off by force is to the great insecurity of life and property in Arabia, while no one dare violate the sacredness of Mecca. The inviolability of the haram in such a warlike country and among such ignorant people for long ages was no doubt a wonderful manifestation of Divine power and knowledge.

CHAPTER XXX

THE ROMANS

(Ar-Rûm)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(6 sections and 60 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. A great prophecy.
- Sec. 2. The two parties.
- Sec. 3. Manifestation of Divine power in nature.
- Sec. 4. Islam responds to human nature.
- Sec. 5. A transformation.
- Sec. 6. Overthrow of opposition.

The Title, context, and date of revelation.

THE chapter receives its name from the important prophecy regarding the victory of the Romans over the Persians, who, at the time of the utterance of this prophecy, had overrun the whole of the Roman Empire and were almost knocking at the gates of Constantinople. But the importance of this chapter does not lie in this prophecy alone, but in another and grander declared along with it. This is the prophecy of the victory of the Muslims over their mighty foe, the Quraish; a circumstance which, in the light of all events on which human inference could be based, was as clear an impossibility as ever existed in the world. This prophecy saw its fulfilment in the battle of Badr, which took place in the same year as the victory of the Romans over the Persians. Indeed, the one thing common to this group of the four Meccan chapters, 29th, 30th, 31st, and 32nd, which begin with Alif, lām, mīm, is the grand and majestic utterance that a great nation was about to be raised from the dead land of Arabia, and this prophecy, though clearly mentioned in all these chapters, finds the clearest expression here. The date of revelation of this chapter, which is unanimously regarded as a Meccan revelation (AH), is put by the best authorities in the sixth or seventh year before the Hejira, and thus in subject-matter as well as in revelation it may be classed with the last chapter, being placed in the early middle period of Meccan revelation.

Subject-matter.

The chapter opens with a reference to the Roman vanquishment, and immediately declares a prophecy of Rome's triumph over her foe, and adds a prophecy of a great Muslim victory over their oppressors at the same time. The second section speaks of the two parties of believers and unbelievers, stating that their respective conditions will soon be reversed, the Muslims getting the upper hand. The third section refers to the manifestation of Divine power in nature as an indication that a manifestation of the same power will bring about the triumph of Islam. The fourth section shows that the spiritual triumph of Islam is a certainty, because, responding as it does to human nature and answering all the requisites of the natural religion of man, it must ultimately appeal to man's nature and be accepted universally. This triumph, it is stated in the next section, was to be accomplished by a great and wonderful transformation in Arabia. Those who doubted the accomplishment of such a revolution, on account of the mighty opposition to the progress of Islam, are told in the concluding section that the overthrow of opposition was absolutely certain.

1929 The people of the empire called themselves Romans, and to them Greek, which was synonymous with heathen, was a term of reproach (Butler's Arab Conquest of Egypt, foot-note, p. 141). Hence the rendering of Rûm into Greeks, generally adopted by English translators, does not convey the correct idea.

1930 The struggle between Persia and the Roman Empire had existed for a long time. The great struggle, in which Persia was victorious, began in 602 of the Christian era, when Chosroes II of Persia began war with Rome to avenge the death of Maurice, who was murdered by Phocas. "His armies plundered Syria and Asia Minor, and in 608 advanced to Chalcedon. In 613 and 614 Damascus and Jerusalem were taken by the general Shahabraz, and the Holy Cross was carried away in triumph. Soon after, even Egypt was conquered. The Romans could offer but little resistance, as they were torn by internal dissensions and pressed by the Avars and Slavs" (En. Br., Art. "Chosroes II"). When the news of this conquest reached Mecca the Quraish were jubilant, as their sympathies were with the fire-worshipping Persians more than with the Christians, who, being the followers of the scriptures, were classed by them with the Muslims. One reason for their joy seems to have been founded on the belief that this defeat of the Christians foreboded vanquishment for the Muslims, to whom the Qur-ân had repeatedly prophesied success and triumph over themselves. It was in the year 615 or 616 that the Qur-ân announced this revelation, containing two different prophecies, one about the vanquishment of the victorious Persians, who had reached the very gates of Constantinople, by the Romans, who were by this time quite exhausted, and the other about the vanquishment of the powerful Meccans by the handful of persecuted Muslims.

As to the fulfilment of these two prophecies, which utterly turned the tables against the powerful Persian Empire and the mighty opponents of the helpless and homeless Muslims within the short period of nine years, that being the time-limit given in the prophecy (the word bid'-'un denoting, according to all authorities, a period from three to nine or ten years), one need only cast a glance at history in and after the year 624. "In 624 he (Heraclius) advanced into northern Media, where he destroyed the great fire-temple of Goudzak" (En. Br., Art. "Chosroes II").

In the same year, 318 Muslims, many of whom were raw, inexperienced youths without any arms, routed a strong force of about a thousand of the Quraish warriors, killing all the leaders and dealing a death-blow to the power of the enemy. The successes of the Muslim army, on the one hand, and of the Romans on the other, continued until the Quraish were utterly crushed by the conquest of Mecca in 630, while "the Persian Empire, from the apparent greatness which it had reached ten years ago, sank into hopeless anarchy" (En. Br.).

I leave it for the unbiased judgment of the reader to consider whether it is possible for mere political forecast to determine such highly improbable events with such exactness, or whether there is a single instance in history in which a political forecast may claim equal rank with the two prophecies contained here. When did forecast have the courage to declare that a mighty conqueror that had laid waste another mighty empire, taking province after province during a long course of years, until its soldiers came to the door of the vanquished enemy's capital, would, within a fixed period—a period too short to either bring about débâcle in the conquering troops or to allow the vanquished and almost annihilated armies to regain sufficient strength and organization—not only recapture its lost territory, but attack the very heart of the victorious country? Or when was forecast ever able to say that a handful of men whose numbers did not exceed a hundred, and who were so persecuted and oppressed that most of them had to take refuge in another country, would within nine years vanquish a whole nation of warriors? The Arabians, too, had the gift of forecast with which Mr. Wherry's "daily newspapers are gifted," and they called these prophecies, as a similar prophecy would be called in our day, the ravings of a madman. And here is Palmer's opinion, which gives the lie to Wherry's note: "The Greeks were so distressed that there appeared little likelihood of their being able to retrieve their fortune, and in the following year the Persians proceeded to lay siege to Constantinople itself."

Rodwell contrives to mitigate the force of the prophecy by saying that the vowel-points were given later, and therefore the prophecy could be read either way, i.e. either as translated above, "And they, after being vanquished, shall overcome," or reading sayughlabûn, "And they, after being vanquished, shall be vanquished." Apart from the apparent absurdity of the words becoming quite meaningless, what would be the significance of on that day the believers shall rejoice? for, adopting Rodwell's reading, we should have grieve instead of rejoice, and the vowel-points cannot change yafraḥûn into yahzanûn. But there is no doubt that the actual ignorance of the manner in which the revelation of the Qur-ân was propagated is the only excuse we can offer for such an absurd suggestion. Every portion revealed was committed to memory by many men and was repeated over and over in prayers in congregation, and the vowel-points could not be left undecided. Moreover, there is clear evidence that when this verse was revealed Abû Bakr asserted in a public assembly that the Romans would overcome (the correct rendering of sa-yaghlibûn) their enemies within three years, and Ubayy bin Khalf, an unbeliever, denied this, and ten camels were betted on the issue. This coming to the Holy Prophet's knowledge, he told Abû Bakr that the time-limit of three years was not correct, for biq'-un signified from three to ten years. The time-limit was accordingly extended and the bet raised to a hundred camels. This shows how sure were the companions and the Holy Prophet himself of the fulfilment of the prophecy (Rz).

1931 The help of Allah is the help that was over and over again promised to the believers against the idolatrous Meccans. Thus we have here a clear prophecy of the victory of the Muslims over the Meccans within nine years from the pronouncement of the prophecy. It was fulfilled in the battle of Badr.

6 (This is) Allah's promise! Allah will not fail His promise, but most people do not know.

7 They know the outward of this world's life, but of the hereafter they are absolutely heedless.

8 Do they not reflect within themselves: Allah did not create the heavens and the earth and what is between them two but with truth, and (for) an appointed term? And most surely most of the people are deniers of the meeting of their Lord.

9 Have they not travelled in the earth and seen how was the end of those before them? They were stronger than these in prowess, and dug up the earth,¹⁹³² and built on it in greater abundance than these have built on it, and there came to them their apostles with clear arguments; so it was not befitting for Allah that He should deal with them unjustly, but they dealt unjustly with their own souls.

10 Then evil was the end of those who did evil,¹⁹³³ because they rejected the communications of Allah and used to mock them.

1935 The close relation between the male and the female (i.e. husband and wife) is expressed in words which indicate the closeness of the union to such an extent as to have misled many to suppose that the act of the physical creation of the female from the male is implied. But the Qur-ān explains itself when it refers to the ties of love and compassion, and to the quietness of mind which a married person finds in his mate. The verse gives us the Islamic ideal of the union of husband and wife.

SECTION 4

Islam responds to Human Nature

28, 29. Unity appeals to human nature. 30-32. Natural religion of man. 33, 34. Allah is called upon in distress. 35-37. No authority for polytheism. 38-40. Charity for man and Unity of Allah are the two principles of natural religion.

28 He sets forth to you a parable relating to yourselves:¹⁹³⁶ Have you among those whom your right hands possess partners in what We have given you for sustenance, so that with respect to it you are alike; you fear them as you fear each other? Thus do We make the communications distinct for a people who understand.

29 Nay! those who are unjust follow their low desires without any knowledge; so who can guide him whom Allah makes err?^a and they shall have no helpers.

^a 44.

Ar. thy.

30 Then set your face upright for religion in the right state—the nature made by Allah in which He has made men; there is no altering of Allah's creation: that is the right religion, but most people do not know—¹⁹³⁷

31 Turning to Him, and be careful of (your duty to) Him, and keep up prayer and be not of the polytheists,

ضَرَبَ لَكُمْ مَثَلًا مِّنْ أَنفُسِكُمْ هَلْ لَّكُمْ مِّنْ مَّا مَلَكَتْ أَيْمَانُكُمْ مِنْ شُرَكَاءَ فِي مَآرَزِقِكُمْ فَإِنَّمَا فِيهِ سَوَاءٌ تَخَافُوهُمْ كَخِيفَتِكُمْ أَنفُسَكُمْ كَذَلِكَ نُفَصِّلُ الْآيَاتِ لِقَوْمٍ يَعْقِلُونَ ٥

بَلِ اتَّبِعِ الَّذِينَ ظَلَمُوا أَهْوَاءَهُمْ بِغَيْرِ عِلْمٍ فَمَنْ يَهْدِي مَنْ أَضَلَّ اللَّهُ وَمَا صَرِيحٌ

فَاتِمَّةٌ وَتَحَمُّكَ لِلدِّينِ حِينَهَا وَفَطَرَتِ اللَّهِ الَّتِي فَطَرَ النَّاسَ عَلَيْهَا لَا تَبْدِيلَ لِخَلْقِ اللَّهِ ذَلِكَ الدِّينُ الْقَدِيمُ وَلَكِنْ أَكْثَرُ النَّاسِ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ ٦

مُذِيبِينَ إِلَيْهِ وَاتَّقُوهُ وَأَقِيمُوا الصَّلَاةَ وَلَا تَكُونُوا مِنَ الْمُشْرِكِينَ ٧

1936 This parable can be very easily understood by everybody, and there can be no doubt as to its appropriateness. If the master and the slave are not equal, how can inanimate objects such as stones from among His creatures be equal to the Creator, Who is the intelligent cause and Controller of all?

1937 Islam according to this verse is the natural religion of man, or a religion to the truth of which human nature bears testimony. Its fundamental principles, the Unity and all-comprehensive providence of Allah, the universality of Divine revelation, and the accountability for all actions in a life after death, are recognized by all religions and all nations, and their universal acceptance is a clear evidence that it is the very nature of man that bears testimony to their truth. Islam removes all limitations upon these three fundamental doctrines of the religion of humanity, and gives them as wide a significance as humanity itself. No other religion in the world has claimed to be the natural religion of man. A saying of the Holy Prophet to the same effect is reported by Abú Huraira: "Every child that is born conforms to the true religion (literally, human nature), then his parents make him a Jew or a Christian or a Magian, as a beast is born entire in all its limbs (or without a defect); do you see one born maimed and mutilated?" Then he repeated (i.e. in support of what he said): "The nature made by Allah in which He has made men; there is no altering of Allah's creation: that is the right religion" (Bkh).

32 Of those who divided their religion and became parties, every sect rejoicing in what they had with them.

33 And when harm afflicts men, they call upon their Lord, turning to Him, then when He makes them taste of mercy from Him, lo! some of them begin to associate (others) with their Lord, 34 So as to be ungrateful for what We have given them; but enjoy yourselves (for a while), for you shall soon come to know.

35 Or, have We sent down upon them an authority so that it speaks of that which they associate with Him?¹⁹³⁸

36 And when We make people taste of mercy they rejoice in it, and if an evil befall them for what their hands have already wrought, lo! they are in despair.

37 Do they not see that Allah makes ample provision for whom He pleases, or straitens? most surely there are signs in this for a people who believe.

38 Then give to the near of kin his due, and to the needy and the wayfarer; this is best for those who desire Allah's pleasure, and these it is who are successful.¹⁹³⁹

39 And whatever you lay out at usury, so that it may increase in the property of men, it shall not increase with Allah; and whatever you give in charity,

Ar. and.

1938 The absence of any authority for associate-gods with the Supreme Being is clear from the fact that no prophet can be shown to have received a revelation from the Divine Being setting up creatures on an equal or co-operative plane with the Creator. Every such doctrine, besides being against the testimony of human nature and reason, stands condemned because of the absence of any revelation in its support.

1939 Charity to man is the practical outcome of the doctrine of the brotherhood of man, which is one of the two principles of the natural religion of man, the other, called the Fatherhood of God (according to the Qur-án, the Lordship of Allah), is referred to in the concluding verse of this section. As Islam has made the doctrine of the brotherhood of man a practical doctrine, therefore it is always referred to in the Qur-án in words enjoining charity on man for his brother-man.

Ar. thy face.
Or, religion.

43 Then set yourself upright to the right course before there come from Allah the day which cannot be averted : on that day they shall become separated.

Ar. on him

44 Whoever disbelieves, he shall be responsible for his disbelief, and whoever does good, they prepare (good) for their own souls,

45 That He may reward those who believe and do good out of His grace; surely He does not love the unbelievers.

46 And one of His signs is that He sends forth the winds bearing good news, and that He may make you taste of His mercy, and that the ships may run by His command, and that you may seek of His grace, and that you may be grateful.¹⁹⁴³

Ar. these.

47 And certainly We sent before you apostles to their people, so they came to them with clear arguments, then We gave the punishment to those who were guilty; and helping the believers is ever incumbent on Us.

48 Allah is He Who sends forth the winds so they raise a cloud, then He spreads it forth in the sky as He pleases, and He breaks it up so that you see the rain coming forth from inside it; then when He causes it to fall upon whom He pleases of His servants, lo! they are joyful, 49 Though they were before this, before it was sent down upon them, confounded in sure despair.

50 Look then at the signs of Allah's mercy, how He gives life to the earth after its death, most surely He is the quickener of the dead; and He has power over all things.

1943 The verse calls attention to the change that was already coming over the peninsula; this was a clear indication of the mighty transformation that was ultimately to be brought about.

51 And if We send a wind and they see it to be yellow, they would after that certainly continue to disbelieve.¹⁹⁴⁴

SECTION 6

Overthrow of Opposition

54-57. The mighty shall be made weak. 58, 59. Persistence in rejection. 60. Truth of the promise.

54 Allah is He Who created you from a state of weakness, then He gave strength after weakness, then ordained weakness and hoary hair after strength;¹⁹⁴⁵ He creates what He pleases, and He is the Knowing, the Powerful.

55 And at the time* when the hour shall come, the guilty shall swear (that) they did not tarry but an hour; thus are they ever turned away.

56 And those who are given knowledge and faith will say: Certainly you tarried according to the ordinance of Allah till the day of resurrection, so this is the day of resurrection, but you did not know.

57 But on that day their excuse shall not profit those who were unjust, nor shall they be regarded with goodwill.

اللَّهُ الَّذِي خَلَقَكُمْ مِنْ ضَعْفٍ ثُمَّ جَعَلَ

مِنْ بَعْدِ ضَعْفٍ قُوَّةً ثُمَّ جَعَلَ مِنْ بَعْدِ

قُوَّةٍ ضَعْفًا وَشَيْبَةً يَخْلُقُ مَا يَشَاءُ

وَهُوَ الْعَلِيمُ الْقَدِيرُ

وَيَوْمَ يَقُومُ السَّاعَةُ يُقْسِمُ الْمُجْرِمُونَ

مَا لَنَا غَيْرَ سَاعَةٍ كَذَلِكَ كَانُوا يُكَذِّبُونَ

وَقَالَ الَّذِينَ بَنُوا الْعِلْمَ وَالْإِيمَانَ لَقَدْ

كُنْتُمْ فِي كَيْدٍ لَكُمْ إِلَى يَوْمِ الْبَعْثِ هَذَا

يَوْمَ الْبَعْثِ وَلَكُمْ كُنْتُمْ لَا تَعْلَمُونَ

يَوْمَ مِثْلُ لَا يَنْفَعُ الَّذِينَ ظَلَمُوا أَعْرَاجُهُمْ

وَلَا هُمْ يُسْتَعْتَبُونَ

1944 It, in this verse, refers to the seed-produce, which is meant by the expression "gives life to the earth" in the previous verse; the meaning is, the seed-produce may be rendered yellow or caused to wither away by a blast of the wind. The allusion is to the disasters which would strike a blow at the unbelievers' plans. It also refers to their persistence in unbelief, in spite of the afflictions which they shall experience, such as the great famine, or the evident signs of the weakening of their power, such as they saw at Badr and on other fields of battle.

1945 There is a deeper reference here to the law of the rise, growth, and decay of nations.

58 And certainly We have set forth for men every kind of parable in this Qur-án; and if you should bring them a communication, those who disbelieve would certainly say: You are naught but false claimants.

Ar. thou shouldst.

59 Thus does Allah set a seal on the hearts of those who do not know.¹⁹⁴⁶

60 Therefore be patient; surely the promise of Allah is true, and let not those who have no certainty hold you in light estimation.¹⁹⁴⁷

Ar. thee.

وَلَقَدْ ضَرَبْنَا لِلنَّاسِ فِي هَٰذَا الْقُرْآنِ

1946 It is here pointed out in the clearest terms that Allah's setting a seal over the hearts really means their own persistence in unbelief, as the preceding verse shows.

1947 That is, though they mock at you now, a time will come when, the truth of the Divine promise being firmly established, they shall not any more hold you in light estimation.

CHAPTER XXXI

LUQMAN

(Luqmán)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(4 sections and 34 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Believers shall be successful.
- Sec. 2. Luqman's advice to his son.
- Sec. 3. Greatness of Divine power.
- Sec. 4. The doom comes.

The Title, context, and date of revelation.

THE name of this chapter is taken from that of the sage to whose story it refers. Luqmán was an Ethiopian, and his mention here testifies to the breadth of the fundamental principles of Islam alluded to in the last chapter. The reference to the words of Allah in v. 27, which cannot come to an end though all the trees were made into pens and the seas converted into ink, is also to show that the good and righteous people were not limited to any one age or country or to any individual nation, and that Divine revelation was granted to all nations, that the white Jew and the black Ethiopian could equally be the recipients of Divine favours and Divine revelation. As Jesus was a word of Allah, so was the Ethiopian Luqman, who is generally identified with the Greek Æsop. The aim of this chapter is, like its sister chapters, to ensure the success of the believers. As regards the date of revelation, the subject-matter makes it clear that it belongs, like its two predecessors, to the middle Meccan period, notwithstanding the diversity of opinion as to some of its verses, or even the major portion of it, having been revealed at Medina, for which there is no foundation in fact.

Subject-matter.

The chapter consists only of four sections. The first asserts in unmistakable terms the success of the Muslims; the second refers to the advice of Luqman to his son, which was now meant for the Muslims; the third speaks of the greatness of Divine power, which could bring about such an impossible thing as the triumph of the Muslims over their enemies; and the fourth foretells the doom of the mighty opponents.

SECTION 1

Believers shall be successful

1-5. Who shall be successful. 6, 7. A disgraceful punishment for rejecters. 8-11. Believers shall have bliss.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

11. 1 I am Allah, the best Knower.*

2 These are verses of the Book of Wisdom,

3 A guidance and a mercy for the doers of goodness,

4 Those who keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate and they are certain of the hereafter.

5 These are on a guidance from their Lord, and these are they who are successful.

6 And of men is he who takes instead frivolous discourse to lead astray from Allah's path without knowledge, and to take it for a mockery; these shall have an abasing chastisement.¹⁹⁴⁸

7 And when Our communications are recited to him, he turns back proudly, as if he had not heard them, as though in his ears were a heaviness, therefore announce to him a painful chastisement.¹⁹⁴⁹

8 (As for) those who believe and do good, they shall surely have gardens of bliss,

9 Abiding in them; the promise of Allah: (a) true (promise), and He is the Mighty, the Wise.

الْعَزِيْزُ الْحَكِيْمُ

1948 It is a mistake to think that a particular person is meant here. The concluding words of the verse show clearly that the statement is general and applies to all those who take the Qur-án for a mockery. Nadr-ibn-ul-Hars, who is said to have learned certain stories in Persia and recited these in the assemblies of the Quraish to divert their attention from the Holy Qur-án, was only one such person.

1949 This verse makes it clear how a man becomes deaf to truth: he turns back from the truth proudly, as if he had not heard it. It is thus by his own action that he becomes deaf. This verse is of immense importance in explaining those verses in which it is stated that Allah sets a seal upon the ears and hearts of men.

Or, that you

Lugman's Advice to his Son

b 1356.

12 And certainly We gave wisdom to Lugman,¹⁹⁵⁰ saying: Be grateful to Allah. And whoever is grateful, he is only grateful for his own soul; and whoever is ungrateful, then surely Allah is Self-sufficient, Praised.

13 And when Lugman said to his son while he admonished him: O my son! do not associate aught with Allah; most surely polytheism is a grievous iniquity—

14 And We have enjoined man in respect of his parents—his mother bears him with faintings upon faintings and his weaning takes two years—saying: Be grateful to Me and to both your parents; to Me is the eventual coming.¹⁹⁵¹

15 And if they contend with you that you should associate with Me what you have no knowledge of, do not obey them,

1950 Any historical fact related by Oriental people is a myth in the terminology of the "broad-minded" European, while the most absurd myths of Europe are considered very reliable history. From what is stated of him, Lugman seems to have been an Ethiopian, and it is a characteristic of the Qur-ān that it accepts prophets of all nationalities. It is very probable that the Greek Æsop is a corruption of Ethiopian and is identical with Lugman.

1951 Verses 14 and 15 are parenthetical, enjoining the duty of obedience to parents, because it is a parent who is advising his son. They are not misplaced, as Wahl has hastily supposed them to be.

and keep company with them in this world kindly,¹⁹⁵² and follow the way of him who turns to Me, then to Me is your return, then will I inform you of what you did.—

16 O my son! surely if it is the very weight of the grain of a mustard-seed, even though it is in (the heart of) rock, or (high above) in the heaven or (deep down) in the earth, Allah will bring it (to light); surely Allah is Knower of subtilities, Aware:¹⁹⁵³

1952 Notwithstanding the great stress that the Holy Qur-ān lays here and elsewhere on the duty of obedience to parents, it also warns against attaching undue importance to that duty when the same clashes with a still higher duty, viz. one's duty to one's Maker. In fact any duty, however great, must be sacrificed before a higher duty, and one's duty to one's Maker is the highest of all duties.

1953 This was a warning to the Muslims, but they did not profit by it. They indulged in evil ways and tasted the evil consequences.

1954 Humility and meekness are taught in these verses, and the essence of the whole Sermon on the Mount is given here in a few words to show that Allah has not been partial in blessing only a single nation with high moral teachings. Even an Ethiopian could preach the meekness and humility of which the most materially advanced nations of the day may well feel proud.

SECTION 3

Greatness of Divine Power

20-26. Divine blessings and their rejection. 27. Words of Allah will not come to an end. 28. Arabia to be quickened to life. 29, 30. Falsehood will vanish before truth.

20 Do you not see that Allah has made what is in the heavens and what is in the earth subservient to you, and made complete to you His favours outwardly and inwardly? And among men is he who disputes in respect of Allah though having no knowledge, nor guidance, nor a book giving light.¹⁹⁵⁵

21 And when it is said to them, Follow what Allah has revealed, they say: Nay, we follow that on which we found our fathers. What! though the devil calls them to the chastisement of the burning fire!

22 And whoever submits himself wholly to Allah and he is the doer of good (to others), he indeed has taken hold of the firmest thing upon which one can lay hold; and Allah's is the end of affairs.

Ar. thes. 23 And whoever disbelieves, let not his disbelief grieve you; to Us is their return, then will We inform them of what they did; surely Allah is the Knower of what is in the breasts.

24 We give them to enjoy a little, then will We drive them to a severe chastisement.

Ar. thou. 25 And if you ask them who created the heavens and the earth, they will certainly say: Allah. Say: (All) praise is due to Allah; nay! most of them do not know.

فَقَدْ اسْتَمْسَكَ بِالْعُرْوَةِ الْوُثْقَىٰ وَإِلَى

بَلْ أَكْثَرُهُمْ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ ۝

1955 The words are meant as well for the Muslims as for the unbelievers. The Muslims occupied themselves too much with Greek philosophy, which gave no light to them, and forsook the Book which gave them light. So long as they adhered to the Book giving light they continued to advance in the world both materially and intellectually, but when other things occupied their attention to the exclusion of the Book of God, they fell from the height to which they had risen.

26 What is in the heavens and the earth is Allah's; surely Allah is the Self-sufficient, the Praised.

30 This is because Allah is the Truth, and that which they call upon besides Him is the falsehood, and that Allah is the High, the Great.

لَاٰيَةً لِّكُلِّ صَبَّارٍ شَكُوْرٍ ۝

1956 I'Ab thinks this verse and the two that follow belong to Medinian revelation, but there is nothing to show that they were not revealed at Mecca. It is noteworthy that a man who himself could not use the pen and who lived in a country where pen and ink were at any rate scarce, expresses such an idea of the abundance of pens and ink. The words contain an allusion to the abundant use of pens and ink in transcribing the Holy Qur-án. See also 1529, where similar words occur, and where it is shown that the words are also directed against the divinity of Jesus Christ.

1956a The signs for the patient endurer and the grateful one no doubt contain a hint that the suffering but grateful Muslims shall one day be made such a great nation that they shall also have command of the sea.

32 And when a wave like mountains covers them they call upon Allah, being sincere to Him in obedience, but when He brings them safe to the land, some of them follow the middle course; and none denies Our signs but every perfidious, ungrateful one.

33 O people! guard against (the punishment of) your Lord and dread the day when a father shall not make any satisfaction for his son, nor shall the child be the maker of any satisfaction for his father; surely the promise of Allah is true, therefore let not this world's life deceive you, nor let the arch-deceiver deceive you in respect of Allah.¹⁹⁵⁷

34 Surely Allah is He with Whom is the knowledge of the hour, and He sends down the rain and He knows what is in the wombs; and no one knows what he shall earn on the morrow; and no one knows in what land he shall die; surely Allah is Knowing, Aware.¹⁹⁵⁸

إِنَّ اللَّهَ عِنْدَهُ عِلْمُ السَّاعَةِ وَيُنَزِّلُ الْغَيْثَ
وَيَعْلَمُ مَا فِي الْأَرْحَامِ وَمَا تَدْرِي نَفْسٌ
مَّاذَا تَكْسِبُ عَدَا وَمَا تَدْرِي نَفْسٌ
بِأَيِّ أَرْضٍ تَمُوتُ إِنَّ اللَّهَ عَلِيمٌ جَبِيرٌ

1957 Gharūr, which literally means the great deceiver, stands for the devil.

1958 By the hour is meant the hour of the fulfilment of prophecy and of the downfall of the Meccans. The verse refers to the transformation that was to be brought about in Arabia: the sending down of rain signifying the quickening of the spiritually dead; those that were in the wombs were ordained to be Muslims; the opponents of to-day would prove the supporters of to-morrow; and those who turned the Muslims out of their houses would themselves meet death when away from their habitations, even as they did when fighting against the Muslims. In a general sense, the knowledge of those in wombs specially refers to a knowledge whether they shall prove good or evil; that relating to earning to-morrow implies a knowledge of the good or the evil deeds which a person should do, and inability to state where a person shall die indicates inability to guess whether his death shall be with the righteous or with the evil-doers.

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. A warning.
- Sec. 2. The believers and unbelievers.
- Sec. 3. The judgment.

General remarks.

As regards the subject-matter and the date of revelation, this chapter does not differ much from the three that precede it. Suggestions that this or that verse was revealed at Medina are no more than conjectures. This is the last of the group of four chapters beginning with the 29th, and contains as it were their sum and substance, embodying no doubt an allusion to the future history of Islam. The warning is given, the fate of the believers and the unbelievers is compared, and the judgment is announced, and to these three subjects the three sections of this chapter are devoted.

1958^a Mecca had not seen a prophet before the advent of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, who was the only prophet raised among the descendants of Ishmael.

Or, inspiration.

1959 There seems to be a hint here that the amr (translated here as affair, but which also means commandment, and signifies the kingdom of God as represented by Islam) will be first established firmly on earth, and then it will receive a set-back extending over a period of a thousand years. Compare 1602, 1603.

1960 From this it appears that Allah breathes His spirit into every person whom He intends to make perfect. Really the ruh is the word or inspiration of Allah which makes a man perfect. At any rate, the breathing of the spirit into man is here spoken of in a general way and does not refer to any one man in particular. This corroborates what is said in 653, that the ruh really stands for Divine inspiration and not for the animal soul.

14 So taste, because you neglected the meeting of this day of yours: surely We forsake you; and taste the abiding chastisement for what you did.

أَفَنَسْ كَان مُؤْمِنًا كَسَّ كَان فَاسِقًا
لَّا يَسْتَوُونَ

1961 This is a true description of what the blessings of paradise are: No soul knows what is hidden for them. These blessings are hidden from the physical eye of man, and therefore their description in words which convey to the mind an idea of the blessings of this life is metaphorical. Words cannot reveal to us the real nature of those blessings. The Holy Prophet's own comment on these words shows the truth of this statement, for he is reported to have said: "Allah says: I have prepared for My righteous servants what no eye has seen and no ear has heard, and what the heart of man has not conceived" (Bkh).

19 As for those who believe and do good, the gardens are their abiding-place; an entertainment for what they did.

20 And as for those who transgress, their abode is the fire; whenever they desire to go forth from it, they shall be brought back into it, and it will be said to them: Taste the chastisement of the fire which you called a lie.

Ar. besides. 21 And most certainly We will make them taste of the nearer chastisement before the greater chastisement, that haply they may turn.¹⁹⁶²

22 And who is more unjust than he who is reminded of the communications of his Lord, then he turns away from them? Surely We will give punishment to the guilty.

The Judgment

23. Moses' prophecy fulfilled. 24, 25. His followers. 26. Warning from the fate of previous people. 27-30. Signs of the coming judgment.

23 And certainly We gave the Book to Moses, so be not in doubt concerning the receiving of it, and We made it a guide for the children of Israel.¹⁹⁶³

24 And We made of them leaders to guide by Our command when they were patient, and they were certain of Our communications.

Ar. thy. 25 Surely your Lord will judge between them on the day of resurrection concerning that wherein they differ.

26 Does it not point out to وَلَقَدْ آتَيْنَا مُوسَى الْكِتَابَ فَلَا تَكُنْ فِي مِرْيَةٍ

فِي مَا كَانُوا يَفْعَلُونَ
أَوَلَمْ يَهْدِ لَهُمْ

¹⁹⁶² By the near chastisement is meant the earthly punishment which might serve as a warning against the greater punishment of the hereafter.

¹⁹⁶³ The meaning of this verse is that a book was given to Moses containing a clear prophecy about the Holy Prophet. The book which according to that prophecy was to be given to the Holy Prophet is referred to in the word it. In fact, the Holy Prophet is here comforted by the knowledge that all the circumstances necessary to establish that likeness shall be brought about; the most important points in this likeness being the giving of a law, the deliverance of his people, and raising his followers to the position of a great and conquering nation them the right way, how many of the generations, in whose abodes they go about, did We destroy before them? Most surely there are signs in this; will they not then hear?

27 Do they not see that We drive the water to a land having no herbage, then We bring forth thereby seed-produce of which their cattle and they themselves eat; will they not then see?

28 And they say: When will this judgment take place, if you are truthful?¹⁹⁶⁴

29 Say: On the day of judgment the faith of those who (now) disbelieve will not profit them, nor will they be respited.

30 Therefore turn away from them and wait, surely they too are waiting.

1964 The question makes it clear that the above verses speak of their punishment, hence they ask the time when it should come about.

CHAPTER XXXIII

THE ALLIES

(Al-Aḥsāb)

REVEALED AT MEDINA

(9 sections and 73 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Spiritual and physical relationship.
- Sec. 2. The allies' attack on Medina.
- Sec. 3. Allies' flight : Quraiza punished.
- Sec. 4. Prophet's domestic simplicity.
- Sec. 5. Prophet's marriage with Zainab.
- Sec. 6. Objections against the Prophet's domestic life.
- Sec. 7. Rules of conduct in domestic relations.
- Sec. 8. Those who spread evil reports.
- Sec. 9. An exhortation to the faithful.

The Title.

THIS chapter goes under the name of The Allies, by which are meant the Quraish confederated with other idolatrous tribes and the Jews, both those who were expelled and those remaining in Medina. All of these, with the exception of the last-mentioned, marched against Medina to administer to the Muslims a crushing and final defeat. This was surely the most powerful attack directed against the handful of Muslims within that city, and its failure was the most surprising that has ever been recorded in history. Though it cannot be said that the Muslims defeated the combined forces, numbering more than ten times the available Muslim force, yet the flight of the confederated host so disheartened the enemies of Islam, that they never again mustered sufficient courage to take the offensive against the Muslims. The battle, therefore, occupying as it does a most prominent place in the early history of Islam, richly deserves the importance it has been accorded.

Date of revelation.

The date of the revelation of this chapter, which is entirely Meḍinian, can be easily ascertained, for the battle of the Allies, or the battle of the Ditch, took place in the Shawwāl of the fourth year of Hejira (Bkh). Most of the other subjects treated herein, such as those relating to the Prophet's marriage with Zainab, and to his marriages in general, might be fixed a little later, but they cannot be placed beyond the seventh year of Hejira.

Context.

This chapter deals with the two mightiest weapons which have over and over again been wielded against Islam. The first of these is the employment of brute force to crush the Muslims, and the second is that of advancing objections against the purity of the domestic life of the Holy Prophet. Both these weapons failed in the early history of Islam, and they are destined to fail again. The reason why this chapter occupies this place in the arrangement of the chapters of the Qur-án is quite obvious. The last group of Meccan chapters preceding this announces a series of mighty prophecies foretelling subsequent greatness of the Muslims, and here we are shown how the forces employed to crush Islam were made ineffective, thus paving the way for the Muslims to attain the promised greatness.

Subject-matter.

The internal arrangement of the verses may be explained in a few words. The chapter opens with an injunction requiring perfect obedience to Allah without regard to the wishes or carplings of the hypocrites and unbelievers. The first section deals with the question of physical and spiritual relationships to which the above injunction is a preliminary. Mere verbal allegation of relationship was not to be considered after the manner of the Arabs, who frequently deserted their wives by simply asserting that they were to them as their mothers, whilst they treated those whom they alleged to be sons as real sons in all respects. Both these customs were abolished. Yet there was a relationship far above all physical relationships, and this was the spiritual relationship existing between the Holy Prophet and his followers. It had its own sphere, and was to be respected. Thus what is stated in this section is a preliminary to the matters that are more fully discussed in the chapter. The powerful attack of the Quraish and their allies on the Muslims, spoken of in the second and third sections, was really a resort to brute force made with the object of utterly annihilating Islam. The combined forces, however, as previously stated, took to flight, and the internal enemies, the Jews, were punished for their treachery. The physical force of the enemy being thus broken, the second matter, which relates to the objections advanced against the Holy Prophet, is then introduced. The chief objection against the Holy Prophet which has found expression in our own day was answered by the Holy Qur-án thirteen hundred years ago. Thus all objections against the Prophet's domestic life are really refuted in the fourth section. The Holy Prophet's unrivalled simplicity of life is the key to the refutation of all objections, and that simplicity is shown in his readiness to part with his wives if they insisted on possessing those comforts of life which were being enjoyed by their sisters in the houses of the companions. The condition of the Muslim community was now being changed to one of affluence, and the wives of the Prophet naturally desired to share in the growing prosperity of the community. But this was not to be vouchsafed to them. Not only did the Prophet himself retain the utmost simplicity of life to his last days, no change coming over him though he had risen to be the ruler of the whole of Arabia, but he would not allow even his wives to depart from that high standard of simplicity. To call him a voluptuary is the greatest villainy. The simplicity of life which he retained while actually ruling a country is unparalleled, and is not met with even in the lives of the noblest men. It was within his means to furnish his wives with every material comfort, but instead of pandering to their earthly desires he informed them that if they required such provisions he could not retain them in his household. This abundantly proves the exalted purity of his motives in contracting all these marriages.

The fifth section deals with the Prophet's marriage with Zainab, and refutes the objections advanced against him on that score. The sixth generalizes on the objections raised against his domestic life. The seventh draws the attention of the Muslims to certain rules of conduct in their domestic relations. The eighth speaks of those who spread evil reports, and the ninth closes the chapter with an exhortation to the faithful.

SECTION 1

Spiritual and Physical Relationship

1965 The Prophet is enjoined to sever all connection with unbelievers and hypocrites and not to comply with their wishes, for itā'at signifies complying with or consenting to what is desired of one (LL). The chapter was revealed at a time when the powerful and combined forces of the Arabian tribes threatened Medina from without and the hypocrites assisted them from within to crush the Muslims. It was necessary at such a critical time that the Muslims (who are really meant by the phrase "O Prophet") should not in any way be compliant to their deadly enemies, of whose doings it is elsewhere said: "They do not fall short of inflicting loss upon you: they love what distresses you" (3: 117).

If we adopt the ordinary translation of the word tufi which I have given in the margin, the meaning would be that the Holy Prophet should not be troubled by his critics, for their object was only to carp, and one course of action was as well calculated to give them occasion for carping as another.

1966 This passage does not relate to what follows (Rz), but sums up what is said in the previous verse. The Prophet is there told not to be compliant to the unbelievers and the hypocrites, but to trust in Allah alone, because the same heart cannot simultaneously entertain love for Allah and love for His enemies.

1967 This passage abolishes two customs of the days of ignorance. The first of these is what is called zihar or muzāhirah. It was not divorce in the true sense of the word. The word is derived from zahr, meaning back, and ظاهر من امرأته signified he said to his wife أنت على ظهري i.e. thou art to me as the back of my mother. No sooner were the words pronounced than the relation between husband and wife ended as by a divorce, but the

5 Assert their relationship to their fathers; this is more equitable with Allah; but if you do not know their fathers, then they are your brethren in faith and your friends; and there is no blame on you concerning that in which you made a mistake, but (concerning) that which your hearts do purposely (blame may rest on you), and Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

6 The Prophet has a greater claim on the faithful than they have on themselves, and his wives are (as) their mothers;¹⁹⁶⁸ and the possessors of relationship have the better claim in the ordinance of Allah to inheritance, one with respect to another, than (other) believers, and (than) those who have fled (their homes), except that you do some good to your friends;¹⁹⁶⁹ this is written in the Book.

ادْعُوهُمْ لِآبَائِهِمْ هُوَ أَقْسَطُ عِنْدَ اللَّهِ
فَإِنْ لَمْ تَكُونُوا أَبَاءَهُمْ فَأَوْحَاكُمْ فِي
النِّدْبِ وَمَوَالِيكُمْ وَلَيْسَ عَلَيْكُمْ جُنَاحٌ
فِيمَا أَخْطَأْتُم بِهِ وَلَكِنْ مَا تَعَمَّدَتْ

الَّتِي أُولَى بِالْمُؤْمِنِينَ مِنْ أَنْفُسِهِمْ
أَزْوَاجَهُ أُمَّهَاتُهُمْ وَأُولُوا الْأَرْحَامِ
بَعْضُهُمْ أَوْلَى بِبَعْضٍ فِي كِتَابِ اللَّهِ
مِنَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ وَالْمُهَاجِرِينَ إِلَّا أَنْ تَقُولُوا
إِلَى أَوْلِيائِكُمْ مَعْرُوفًا كَانَ ذَلِكَ فِي الْكِتَابِ مَسْطُورًا

woman was not at liberty to leave the husband's house. She remained in the same house; she was now treated as a deserted wife, the conjugal relation having ended for ever. The other custom was that of regarding the adopted son as if he were a real son. This passage abolishes both customs on the same ground; a wife cannot be a real mother nor a stranger a real son. Mere assertion cannot establish the close ties of blood-relationship.

The mischievous statement that one of these customs was abolished by the Prophet to legalize his marriage with Zaid's divorced wife is shown to be false by the very combination of the abolition of two customs of a similar nature on similar grounds, no interested motive being possible in either of these cases; nor is there any proof to show that the passage was revealed after circumstances had arisen which led to the Prophet's marrying the divorced wife of Zaid. The separate treatment of the two in the Qur-ān, on the other hand, shows that no relation exists between them.

The subject of ḡihār is fully discussed in the first section of the 58th chapter.

1968 The Prophet was indeed much more than a father to the believers. He had raised them to the dignity of manhood from a state of savagery, consequently he had a greater claim on them than their own people, and the tie of love which united the believers to him was stronger than the ordinary ties of love and friendship. The statement made in إِزْوَاجَهُ أُمَّهَاتُهُمْ only implies that as the Prophet stood in the spiritual relationship of fatherhood to the believers, his wives were to be respected as mothers, their marriage after the Prophet's death with any of the believers being forbidden further on in v. 53.

1969 When the Muslims first came to Medina a brotherhood was established between those who fled and the helpers, one of the former becoming a brother of one of the latter, and each of the two thus united was entitled to a share of inheritance on the death of the other, according to an old Arab custom. The passage abolishes this custom, maintaining only the brotherhood of Islam in a wider sense, allowing inheritance only to actual relatives. The Islamic brotherhood did not carry the title of inheritance, but a Muslim could assist his brother in Islam by a gift or by making a will in his favour. This is the significance of the words except that you do some good to your friends.

The Allies' Attack on Medina

9-11. A severe attack on all sides. 12-20. The hypocrites and their treachery.

اللّٰهُ بِمَا تَعْمَلُوْنَ بَصِيْرًا ۝

1970 The covenant referred to here is generally supposed to be in relation to the delivery of the message with which the prophets are entrusted (Bq), the consequence of its delivery in each case being that those who followed the truth were rewarded and those who rejected it were punished. But see 3 : 80, where the making of a covenant with the prophets is spoken of, and that covenant is, with regard to the advent of the Holy Prophet, referred to in Acts 3 : 21 and elsewhere ; for a full discussion on which see 458. The only difficulty may appear to be that here a covenant is also spoken of as having been made with the Holy Prophet himself. This evidently refers to the Prophet's verifying all previous revelation, a Muslim's article of faith being expressed clearly thus in the Holy Qur-ān : " And who believe in that which has been revealed to you and that which was revealed before you " (2 : 4).

Or the making of the covenant with the prophets may signify raising them to the dignity of prophethood and giving them books for the guidance of their people. Every prophet had followers as well as opponents ; and God's way of dealing with these two parties has always been the same : the faithful have been rewarded and the opponents punished. In the same way would the two parties be dealt with now.

1971 The events narrated in this section and a part of the following relate to the siege of Medina by the combined forces of the Quraish and their allies—viz. the Ghatfan, the 'Ashja' and Murra, the Fezara, the Suleim, and the Beni Sa'd and Asad, aided by the Jewish tribe of Bani Nadir and Bani Quraiza, the latter of whom had made a treaty of alliance with the Muslims—the entire forces numbering ten thousand according to some, while the Muslims were only about a tenth of that number. The Prophet decided to remain within the town, and a ditch was dug as a protective measure against the onrush of the powerful force. The battle continued for several days, the enemy eventually taking to flight on a stormy night without being able to inflict any loss upon the Muslims.

1972 The reference is to the great hurricane which caused the enemy to fly. Muir says : " Wearied and damped in spirit, the night set in upon them cold and tempestuous. Wind and rain beat mercilessly on the unprotected camp. The storm rose to a hurricane. Fires were extinguished, tents blown down, cooking vessels and other equipage overthrown."

1973 The hosts which could not be seen were the angelic hosts which disheartened the 13 And when a party of them said: O people of Yasrib!¹⁹⁷⁷ there is no place to stand for you (here), therefore go back;¹⁹⁷⁸ and a party of them asked permission of the Prophet, saying, Surely our houses are exposed; and they were not exposed: they only desired to fly away.

14 And if an entry were made upon them from the outlying parts of it, then they were asked to wage war, they would enemy. The storm alone would not have made an army of 10,000 to fly in such disorder, were it not that they had already been disheartened by the futility of their attacks upon the besieged Muslims. The angelic assistance is promised in 3:124 in the following words, which clearly refer to this headlong attack of the enemy: "Yea! if you remain patient and are on your guard and they come upon you in a headlong manner, your Lord will assist you with five thousand of the havoc-making angels"

1974 The Ghatfan pitched on the east side of the town, on the higher part of the valley, and the Quraish on the west side, on the lower part of the valley (Bd.).

1975 Becoming dull of the eyes and the rising of the hearts to the throats indicates the Muslim fear, which was only natural when such a large army was advancing against a mere handful of men. The diverse thoughts signify the fears of the weak-hearted and the hypocrites that Allah's promise would not prove true and that the enemy would certainly destroy them. As regards the thoughts of the faithful, see v. 22.

1976 That the prophecies of the Holy Qur-ān regarding the ultimate triumph of Islam and the victory of the Muslims were not vague utterances, but clear and emphatic assertions, is shown by what the hypocrites are related to have said. There was an unmistakable promise of victory, but the circumstances were decidedly against the fulfilment of that promise, and hence the weak-hearted said that the promise of victory was given only to deceive them.

It should be noted that the weak-hearted, who did not believe in the ultimate triumph of Islam, are here classed with the hypocrites. How many of those who profess Islam would prove sincere Muslims if judged by that criterion!

1978 That is, go back to idolatry to save your lives, or beat a retreat and return to your houses (Bq).

1979 These verses describe the condition of the hypocrites, who advanced excuses for not fighting against the opponents of the Muslims. If an enemy had entered into the city and invited them to join hands with him to fight against the Muslims, they would have been ready to fight. The concluding words show that they would have even left Medina to attack the Muslims and would not then have cared for the protection of their houses.

SECTION 3

Allies' Flight: Quraiza punished

21. The Prophet an exemplar. 22-24. Believers' faith strengthened by prophecy. 25. Enemy returns unsuccessful. 26, 27. Punishment of the Bani Quraiza.

21 Certainly you have in the Apostle of Allah an excellent exemplar for him who hopes in Allah and the latter day and remembers Allah much.¹⁹⁸⁰

22 And when the believers saw the allies, they said: This is what Allah and His Apostle promised us, and Allah and His Apostle spoke the truth; and it only increased them in faith and submission.¹⁹⁸¹

لَقَدْ كَانَ لَكُمْ فِي رَسُولِ اللَّهِ أُسْوَةٌ
حَسَنَةٌ لِّمَن كَانَ يَخُو اللَّهَ وَالْيَوْمَ
الْآخِرَ وَذَكَرَ اللَّهَ كَثِيرًا
وَلَمَّا رَأَى الْمُؤْمِنُونَ الْإِنْفِرَاتِ قَالُوا هَذَا
مَا وَعَدَنَا اللَّهُ وَرَسُولُهُ وَصَدَقُوا
رَسُولَهُ وَمَا أَدْرَاهُمْ إِلَّا نِيْمَانًا وَنَسِيْمَانًا

1980 This verse points to a most significant truth and a distinguishing characteristic of the Holy Prophet, viz. that he is the best exemplar and the highest model of virtue for the faithful. The very circumstance which is used as a point of objection by his opponents is the real beauty of his life. A sentimentalist would tell us that as a persecuted reformer at Mecca he offered a noble example, but that as the head of a state at Medina he fought battles, contracted marriages, ordered the slaughter of his enemies, and did many acts of a similar nature which were better left undone. But the object of his advent was not to please sentimentalists by giving some moral precepts quite impracticable in the actual lives of men, and by merely offering a noble example of steadfastness under severe persecutions, but rather to give practicable rules of guidance to men living and working in the world and to illustrate them by his noble example. If he had not led armies he could not have served as a model for a general leading armies into battle; if he had not fought personally he could not have been an exemplar to a soldier laying down his life in the cause of truth, justice, and freedom; if he had not made laws for the guidance of his followers he could never have been regarded as an outstanding example to a legislator; if he had not decided cases he could not have served as a light to judges and magistrates; if he had not married he would have left men unguided practically in half of their everyday duties and could not have shown how to be a kind and affectionate husband and a loving father; if he had not taken revenge on tyrants for the wrongs inflicted on innocent persons, if he had not overcome his persecuting enemies and forgiven them, if he had not overlooked the faults of those attached to him, he could not have been an excellent exemplar and a perfect model, as he is here pronounced to be. Indeed, it is the distinguishing characteristic of his life that he not only gave practical rules of guidance in all walks of life, but gave by his life a practical illustration of all those rules.

Two more points are worth noting here. In the first place, the Prophet's being an exemplar is a sufficient answer to all those who carp at him, because the very necessity to guide men under varying mundane circumstances and conditions led him through all those circumstances. Secondly, the moral qualities which are latent within man remain in a dormant condition unless they are called into action. Hence no one can claim the possession of a high moral quality unless he has had occasion to display it, acquitting himself creditably.

The occasion on which the Prophet's being an exemplar to the faithful is pointed out is one on which he showed the greatest firmness in utmost danger, confidence in Divine assistance, and steadfastness in the hardest trials, and the believers are told that they must not lose heart, but follow the example of the Holy Prophet. It is, moreover, a reply to the carping of the enemies of Islam, which are dealt with further on in this chapter.

فَرِيقًا تَقْتُلُونَ وَتَأْسِرُونَ فَرِيقًا ۝

1981 The reference here is to the Divine promise that a time would come when the combined forces of Arabia would be put to flight. This promise was given long before, and at a time when the Holy Prophet and his few followers were being severely persecuted at Mecca. These are the very words of the prophecy: "A mighty host of the allies shall be here put to flight" (38:11). So when the combined forces attacked Medina, the words of the prophecy were before the heart of every true Muslim. They rejoiced because they were certain that the combined forces of the enemy would be put to flight. It was only the hypocrites who had misgivings, as the last section shows. The battle had, in fact, inspired greater faith in the ultimate triumph of Islam, not only by bringing earlier prophecies to fulfilment but also because it was here that, when the Holy Prophet smashed a big stone with a hammer (a stone which had proved an obstacle in the digging of the ditch) and a flash of light followed, he announced the mighty prophecy that that flash of light had revealed to him the palaces of Kisra and Cæsar, and that he had been informed that his followers would be triumphant over both these empires.

1982 Some of the believers had become martyrs in the cause of truth; others yet waited, anxious to lay down their lives in the same cause.

1982a It is clearly stated here, as also in v. 17, that all the hypocrites would not be punished, but that Allah would be merciful to them, punishing only such as deserved to be punished. Thus it happened that most of them became afterwards sincere converts to Islam.

1983 The Bani Quraiza were in alliance with the Holy Prophet, and when the enemy laid siege to Medina they were bound to repel the attack (see 126). Instead of this they sided with the investing army. Muir admits that "it was agreed that the Quraiza would assist the Quraish," and though he doubts whether "they entered on active hostilities," there is the surest testimony that they had made an agreement with the Quraish to attack the Muslims from within. Thus from allies they had turned foes. Therefore, when the besieging army took to flight and the Quraiza returned to their fortress, it was besieged by the Holy Prophet, for to leave such an internal enemy unpunished would have been a source of ever-present danger to the safety of the Muslim community. They remained besieged for twenty-five days, and then expressed their willingness to surrender on condition that they would submit to the sentence of punishment pronounced by Sa'd bin Mu'az. Had they trusted the Prophet, he would probably have given them the same punishment as he gave to the Qainuqa', viz. emigration, but Sa'd was exasperated by their treachery, and his judgment was that the fighting men should be put to death and the rest made captives. Three hundred men suffered death under this sentence, and their lands fell into the hands of the Muslims. To say that the Prophet dealt with them harshly is to ignore facts. Such treachery would meet with a similar punishment to-day.

1984 The land which you have not yet trodden refers to the foreign lands which are here promised to the Muslims and which they conquered later.

1985 The introduction of the subject of the Holy Prophet's simplicity in domestic life is most fitting here. The Muslims were now growing powerful and wealthier. The victory at Badr, and the possession of the lands and property of the Quraiza, had increased their wealth. It was most natural, in the circumstances, that the wives of the Prophet should desire to be furnished with better necessities of life than they had previously enjoyed. But just at this time we find a revelation enjoining the strictest simplicity of life upon them. These strictures could not emanate from an impostor, nor even from a man of the world whose power and wealth were increasing daily. If the Prophet had allowed his wives to share in the general prosperity of the community, there could not have been the least objection. But he received a revelation which deprived him and those most nearly related to him of those material benefits which others could easily acquire. The splendours of this world could be obtained, and were not forbidden to any Muslim, but such transitory vanities were not to be admitted within the household of God's Prophet. As he possessed the means, his wives would be allowed to depart with rich and ample gifts if such was their desire. This passage also throws light on the object of the Prophet's marriages, for if his object were sensual enjoyment, he could not have been ready to sacrifice the ease and comforts attendant upon mere carnal desire to the retention of that Spartan simplicity enjoined upon his household.

30 O wives of the Prophet! whoever of you commits an open indecency, the chastisement shall be increased to her doubly; and this is easy to Allah.¹⁹⁸⁶

يَا أَيُّهَا النِّسَاءُ النَّبِيِّ مَنْ يَأْتِ مِنْكُنَّ بِفَاحِشَةٍ مُبِينَةٍ يُضَاعَفْ لَهَا الْعَذَابُ ضِعْفَيْنِ ۖ وَكَانَ ذَلِكَ عَلَى اللَّهِ يَسِيرًا ۝

PART XXII

31 And whoever of you is obedient to Allah and His Apostle and does good, We will give to her her reward doubly, and We have prepared for her an honourable sustenance.¹⁹⁸⁷

وَمَنْ يَتَّقِ اللَّهَ وَتُحِبَّ إِلَى اللَّهِ وَرَسُولِهِ وَتَعْمَلْ صَالِحًا نُؤْتِهَا أَجْرَهَا مَرَّتَيْنِ ۖ وَاعْتَدْنَا لَهَا رِزْقًا كَرِيمًا ۝

32 O wives of the Prophet! you are not like any other of the women; if you will be on your guard, then be not soft in (your) speech, lest he in whose heart is a disease yearn; and speak a good word.¹⁹⁸⁸

يَا أَيُّهَا النِّسَاءُ اتَّقِينَ اللَّهَ كَمَا حَبَدَّ إِلَيْكُمْ ۖ إِنَّ اتَّقِينَ فَلَا تَخْضَعْنَ بِالْقَوْلِ ۖ يُضْمِرَ الَّذِينَ فِي قُلُوبِهِمْ مَرَضٌ ۖ وَفَلَنَ تَوَلَّوْنَ مَعَهُ رَوْقًا ۝

33 And stay in your houses and do not display your finery like the displaying of the ignorance of yore; and keep up prayer, and pay the poor-rate, and obey Allah and His Apostle; Allah only desires to take away the uncleanness from you, O people of the household! and to purify you a (thorough) purifying.¹⁹⁸⁹

وَقَرْنَ فِي بُيُوتِكُنَّ وَلَا تَبَرَّجْنَ تَبَرُّجَ الْجَاهِلِيَّةِ الْأُولَى ۚ وَأَقِمْنَ الصَّلَاةَ وَآتِينَ الزَّكَاةَ وَأَطِعْنَ اللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُ ۚ إِنَّمَا يُرِيدُ اللَّهُ لِيُذْهِبَ عَنْكُمُ الرِّجْسَ أَهْلَ الْبَيْتِ وَيُطَهِّرَكُمْ تَطْهِيرًا ۝

1986 It should be noted that not only are the Prophet's wives denied the comforts of life which were available to other Muslim ladies, but any indecency on their part brought double the ordinary punishment. Let the Christians ponder. Could this be the work of an impostor? In their case the punishment is increased because, being in the Prophet's house, they had a better chance to be guided aright and to pass their lives in the greatest purity. It should be noted that there is no actual occurrence of the least indecency on the part of any of the Prophet's wives.

1987 The double reward spoken of here means only greater reward, as the words honourable sustenance show. The greater reward is due to their having denied themselves the ordinary comforts of life, which they could elsewhere obtain, by remaining in the Prophet's house. See 1985. See also the last foot-note, where an increased punishment for them is spoken of in case of ordinary indecency. Compare also 1888.

1988 Though the injunction is given in particular to the wives of the Prophet, it is really a rule of life for all Muslim women, and promotes purity of heart and chastity in the relations between the sexes. They are not forbidden to speak to men, but as a safeguard against possible inclination of the heart to evil thoughts they are told not to indulge in soft and amorous conversation with the opposite sex.

1989 The means of purification are suggested in the previous verses: to observe the utmost simplicity of life, to avoid every indecency, and not to display their beauty to others. The uncleanness which Allah will thus take away is the uncleanness of the desire for worldly 34 And keep to mind what is recited in your houses of the communications of Allah and the wisdom; surely Allah is Knower of subtilities, Aware.

Prophet's Marriage with Zainab

35, 36. Keeping of Divine ordinances. 37-39. Zainab divorced, and married by the Prophet. 40. Muhammad, as the last of the prophets and the most perfect of them, is the spiritual father of all future generations.

35 Surely the men who submit and the women who submit, and the believing men and the believing women, and the obeying men and the obeying women, and the truthful men and the truthful women, and the patient men and the patient women, and the humble men and the humble women, and the almsgiving men and the almsgiving women, and the fasting men and the fasting women, and the men who guard their private parts and the women who guard, and the men who remember Allah much and the women who remember—Allah has prepared for them forgiveness and a mighty reward.

riches. As the Prophet himself was an exemplar to the faithful, so was his household to be an example of simplicity and purity to Muslim women.

It should also be noted that the Prophet's wives are here addressed as ahl-ul-bait, or the people of the household, they being primarily so, while his children and children's children may also be included. The use of the phrase ahl-ul-bait on the only two other occasions in the Holy Qur-án is to signify the wife, as in the case of Abraham's wife (11 : 73) and Amran's wife or Moses' mother (28 : 12), and this use also shows that it is the wife, who is mistress of the house, that is indicated by the phrase ahl-ul-bait. Thus under this verse the Prophet's children could only claim a sanctity in which his wives also shared.

1990 All commentators agree that this verse was revealed on the occasion when the Holy Prophet demanded Zainab, his cousin through his aunt, in marriage for Zaid, his adopted son.

But when Zaid had accomplished his want of her, We gave her to you as a wife, so that there should be no difficulty for the believers in respect of the wives of their adopted sons, when they have accomplished their want of them; and Allah's command shall be performed.¹⁹⁹¹

Both Zainab and her brother were averse to this match, because Zaid was a freedman, and it was in obedience to this revelation that their scruples were overcome and Zainab accepted Zaid for her husband (Rz, Kf, JB). The verse has no connection with the subsequent events which brought about the divorce and Zainab's marriage with the Holy Prophet. It, moreover, shows that it was the Prophet himself who had arranged this marriage between Zainab and Zaid, and were it not in deference to his wishes, the lady would never have consented to the alliance.

1991 This verse consists of two distinct and separate parts, the first dealing with Zaid's divorce of Zainab, and the second, beginning with but when Zaid had accomplished, etc., with the Holy Prophet's marriage with Zainab. As Christian criticism leans in the direction of attaching too much importance to anything derogatory to the reputation of the Holy Prophet, a full explanation of the events in connection with this marriage is necessary. Zaid belonged to the tribe of Kalb, and was taken prisoner in childhood and sold as a slave at Mecca, where he was bought by Khadija's brother, who gave him over to his sister, and she in her turn presented him to the Holy Prophet, who, as was his wont, liberated him; but Zaid was so much attached to the Holy Prophet, that when the Prophet gave him the option to accompany his father to his home or to remain with him, Zaid chose the latter course. On account of his great attachment, Zaid was called the son of Muhammad, and he was one of the early converts to Islam. It is to these events that the opening words of the verse refer when they speak of Zaid as being one to whom Allah as well as the Prophet had shown favour.

Zainab was the daughter of the Prophet's own aunt, Umayma, daughter of Abdul Muttalib; she was one of the early converts to Islam, and the Holy Prophet proposed to her brother that she should be given in marriage to Zaid. Both brother and sister were averse to this match, and only yielded under pressure from the Holy Prophet, for which see the last note. It is related that they both desired that the Holy Prophet himself should marry Zainab (Rz), but the Prophet insisted that she should accept Zaid.

The marriage was, however, not a happy one. Zainab was harsh of temper, and she never liked Zaid on account of the stigma of slavery which attached to his name. Differences arose, and Zaid expressed a desire to the Holy Prophet of divorcing Zainab. The news was grieving for the Prophet, for it was he who had insisted upon the marriage, and he therefore advised Zaid not to divorce her. He feared that people would object that a marriage which had been arranged by the Prophet was unsuccessful. It is to this circumstance that the words refer, and, you feared men, and Allah had a greater right that you 38 There is no harm in the Prophet doing that which Allah has ordained for him :¹⁹⁹² such has been the course of Allah with respect to those who have gone before : and the command of Allah is a decree that is made absolute :

مَا كَانَ عَلَى النَّبِيِّ مِنْ حَرَجٍ فَمَا أَقْرَضَ
اللَّهُ لَهُ سُنَّةَ اللَّهِ فِي الَّذِينَ خَلَوْا مِنْ
قَبْلُ وَكَانَ أَمْرُ اللَّهِ قَدَرًا مَقْدُورًا ۝

should fear Him. It is also to the same matter that the words and you concealed in your soul what Allah would bring to light refer, for the Prophet did not like that the disagreements between Zainab and Zaid should become generally known. The Prophet's injunction to Zaid not to divorce his wife is contained in unmistakable terms in the Holy Qur-án. But it was all in vain, and Zaid at last divorced Zainab.

After she was divorced the Holy Prophet took her in marriage, that being the wish of the lady and her relatives before her marriage with Zaid, and the Prophet was, now that the marriage arranged by him proved unsuccessful, morally bound to accept the wishes of the lady and her relatives. Moreover, the Qur-án had declared against an adopted son being regarded as if he were a real son, and now there was an opportunity when the Holy Prophet could by his own example deal a death-blow to that custom. This reason is plainly given in the second part of the verse : We gave her to you as a wife, so that there should be no difficulty for the believers in respect of the wives of their adopted sons. The Qur-án does not give any other reason for the marriage.

This simple story is made the basis of a mean attack upon the Holy Prophet. It is stated that the Prophet, having seen Zainab by chance through a half-open door, was fascinated by her beauty, and that Zaid, having come to know of this, divorced her, and then she became the Prophet's wife. That Muir and Arnold, not to mention more prejudiced writers, accept this, only shows how far religious prejudice may carry "criticism." It is admitted that Zainab was the daughter of the Prophet's real aunt ; it is admitted that she was one of the early believers in Islam who fled to Medina ; it is admitted that the Prophet himself had arranged the marriage between Zaid and Zainab ; and finally it is admitted that Zainab desired, as did also her brother, before she was married to Zaid, that she should be taken in marriage by the Holy Prophet. What was it then which prevented the Holy Prophet from marrying her when she was a virgin ? Had he not seen her before ? He was so closely related to her that on the face of it such a supposition is absurd. Then, there was no seclusion of women before Zainab's marriage with the Prophet, a fact the truth of which is attested by Muir himself. Having not only seen the lady when she was a virgin, but knowing her full well on account of her close relationship to him and her early belief in Islam, while both the lady and her relatives were desirous that the Prophet should take her for a wife, what was it that made her beauty so unattractive to him when she was a virgin, while the same beauty seen through a half-open door at a later date so fascinated his heart that he ruthlessly disregarded the close spiritual and friendly relationship existing between Zaid and himself ? The story is so absurd that any man possessing ordinary common sense would unhesitatingly reject it, but Christian prejudice is too strong for even such unblushing calumny.

¹⁹⁹² It being lawful for the Prophet to marry Zainab, he should not have refrained merely for fear that some men might object to it. In fact, the Prophet's insisting at first that Zainab should marry Zaid, and her yielding to it at last only in deference to the Prophet's wishes, followed by disagreement and ultimate divorce, had given such a shock to Zainab that the only way to remove it was that the Prophet himself should yield to that which he had at first rejected, viz. the taking of Zainab in marriage for himself. It was out of sympathy with Zainab's feelings, and not from any desire on his own part, that the Prophet married her, for his own wishes, previous to her marriage with Zaid, were against it. But when she had shown her submission and faithfulness by accepting a match against her own desires, and it was Zaid now who would not retain her, the Prophet could no longer justifiably treat the lady's wishes with indifference.

39 Those who deliver the messages of Allah and fear Him, and do not fear any one but Allah; and Allah is sufficient to take account.¹⁹⁹³

40 Muhammad is not the father of any of your men, but he is the Apostle of Allah and the seal of the prophets; and Allah is Cognizant of all things.¹⁹⁹⁴

الَّذِينَ يَبْلُغُونَ رِسَالَاتِ اللَّهِ وَيَخْشَوْنَ

وَلَكِن رَّسُولَ اللَّهِ وَخَاتَمَ النَّبِيِّينَ
وَكَانَ اللَّهُ بِكُلِّ شَيْءٍ عَلِيمًا ۝

1993 The statement that those entrusted with Divine messages do not fear any one but Allah explains the statement of v. 37, where the Prophet is spoken of as fearing men, the significance, as shown in the foot-note, from the circumstances of the case, being that he did not fear men but for them, lest they should fall into an error.

1994 The word Khâtam means primarily a seal and secondarily the end or the last part or portion of a thing, the latter being the primary significance of the word khâtim. Though the Holy Prophet was admittedly the last of the prophets, and even history shows that no prophet appeared after him in the world, yet the Holy Qur-ân has adopted the word khâtam, and not khâtim, because a deeper significance is carried in the phrase seal of the prophets than mere finality. In fact, it indicates finality combined with the perfection of the attributes of prophethood, along with a continuance among his followers of certain blessings of prophethood. He is the seal of the prophets because with him the object of prophethood, the manifestation of Divine will in laws which should guide humanity, was finally accomplished in the revelation of a perfect law in the Holy Qur-ân, and he is also the seal of the prophets because certain favours bestowed on prophets were for ever to continue among his followers. The office of the prophet was only necessary to guide men, either by giving them a law or by removing the imperfections of a previously existing law, or by giving certain new directions to meet the requirements of the times, because the circumstances of earlier human society did not allow the revelation of a perfect law which should suit the requirements of different generations in different places. Hence prophets were constantly raised. But through the Holy Prophet a perfect law was given, suiting the requirements of all ages and all countries, and this law was guarded against all corruption, and the office of the prophet was therefore no more required. But this did not mean that the Divine favours bestowed on His chosen servants were to be denied to the chosen ones in future. Men did not need a new law, because they had a perfect law with them, but they did stand in need of receiving Divine favours. The highest of these favours is Divine inspiration, and it is recognized by Islam that the Divine Being speaks to His chosen ones now as He spoke in the past, just as He hears and sees as He heard and saw in the past. Human requirements may be satisfied in one way or another, but Divine attributes do not cease to work.

What is stated above is corroborated by a saying of the Holy Prophet: لَم يَبْقَ مِنَ النُّبُوَّةِ إِلَّا الْمُبَشِّرَاتُ i.e. nothing has remained of prophethood except the receiving of good news.

Prophethood itself has gone, but one of its blessings remains, and shall exist for ever among the followers of the Holy Prophet. Hence also he is called their spiritual father, because he has made them to be for ever heirs to one of the blessings of prophethood. Thus, while prophethood terminated with the Holy Prophet, a phase of prophethood was made to continue for ever among the true followers of the Prophet.

1995 As this section deals with the marriages and divorces of the Holy Prophet, on account of which his opponents had greatly vilified him, it opens with a statement ascribing purity to the Divine Being, giving rise to the inference that no impurity can be ascribed to His Holy Prophet.

1996 This statement suggests another argument of the Holy Prophet's purity. It was by means of the transformation wrought by the Holy Prophet that his companions were led out of the darkness of ignorance. Could it then be that the man who purified others was himself impure? This argument obtains breadth and lucidity in the verses that follow.

1997 The words clearly imply that one who could give light to others and raise them from the depth of vice and immorality to the height of purity and perfection could not himself be in the darkness of impurity.

1998 That the previous verses imply the absurdity of the objections of opponents and critics on the score of his marriages is made clear here, for the Prophet is told not to have any anxiety on account of the annoying talk of his opponents, and to rely on Allah, Who will guard him from the evil consequences of their fault-finding. Compare 3: 185.

1999 The reason for putting this ordinance here, in speaking of the Holy Prophet's marriages, seems to apply to the Holy Prophet's marriage with a woman named Asma, daughter of Numan Kindi; but before he went in to her she asked for a divorce, and the Prophet released her as she had desired. It is related that 'Umar decided against her being regarded as a wife of the Prophet.

2000 The marriages of the Holy Prophet have furnished his critics with the chief implement of attack, and the low-minded missionary has gone so far as to call him a voluptuary, although some of his own revered spiritual leaders were known to possess as many as a hundred wives. Therefore I give below full particulars regarding the Prophet's marriages. His first marriage was contracted while he was twenty-five years of age, and the widow Khadija whom he married was forty years old, i.e. fifteen years his senior. It was with her, and her alone, that he passed all the years of his youth and manhood until she died three years before the Hejira, when he was already an old man of fifty. This circumstance alone is sufficient to give the lie to those mean carpers who call him a voluptuary. After her death, while still at Mecca, he married Sauda and 'Ayesha, the latter of whom was his only virgin wife.

Then followed the flight to Medina, and subsequent to the Flight he had to fight many battles with his enemies, the Quraish, or such tribes as sided with the Quraish and persecuted the Muslims. The result of these battles was a great discrepancy between the number of males and females, and as his favourite followers fell in the field of battle fighting with his enemies, the care of their families devolved upon the Prophet and his surviving companions. In the battle of Badr fell Khunais, son of Huzafa, and the faithful 'Umar's daughter Hafsa was left a widow. 'Umar offered her to 'Usgman and Abu Bakr in turn, and she was at last married by the Holy Prophet in the third year of Hejira.

Abdulla, son of Juhsh, fell a martyr at Uhud, and his widow Zainab, daughter of Khuzaima, was taken in marriage by the Prophet in the same year. In the next year Abū Salma died, and his widow, Umm-i-Salma, was taken to wife by the Prophet. The events are narrated in the last section, leading to Zainab's divorce by Zaid; the Prophet married her in the fifth year of Hejira under circumstances already narrated. Umm-i-Habiba was one of his devoted followers who fled to Abyssinia with her husband 'Ubaidulla, who there became a Christian, and when he died his widow found comfort in being taken as a wife by the Holy Prophet in the seventh year of Hejira.

Besides these widows of his faithful followers whom it fell to his lot to take under his protection, the Prophet took three widows of his enemies in marriage, and in each case this step led to the union and pacification of a whole tribe. These three, Juwairiya, Maimoona, and Safiyya, he married in the years six and seven of Hejira. Regarding one of these, it is sufficient to note that when the Prophet took Juwairiya for a wife, over a hundred families of the tribe of Bani Mustaliq, to which tribe she belonged, were at once liberated by the Muslims.

Thus it will be seen that all the marriages of the Holy Prophet were due either to feelings of compassion for the widows of his faithful followers or to put a stop to bloodshed and ensure union with some tribe. Compare also 535, where it is shown that the permission for polygamy was given under similar circumstances; in fact, many of the companions had to follow the example of the Holy Prophet. For another reason see 2007. See also 1985 and 1989.

2001 Two interpretations have been given of these words: according to Abu Hanifa, the meaning is, the taking of a woman in marriage without assigning any dowry, if a woman offers herself in marriage to the Prophet, is a special privilege of the Holy Prophet; according to Shafa'i the meaning is that a woman married by the Holy Prophet shall not be married by any other person (Rz). This, if any, is the only special privilege allowed to the Holy Prophet. But as against this the Prophet was not allowed to divorce his wives, while his followers could divorce theirs if they liked. See 2004.

2002 This verse must be read along with vv. 28 and 29, where a choice is given to the Prophet's wives to remain with him or to part. A similar choice is given here to the Prophet. And when his wives preferred to lead simple lives with him rather than seek worldly goods by leaving him, the Prophet was no less considerate for their feelings; for notwithstanding the choice given to him to retain such of his wives as he liked, he did not exercise this choice to the disadvantage of any one of them, but retained them all, as they had chosen to remain with him. A reference is, indeed, contained to vv. 28 and 29 in the words that they should be pleased, all of them, with what you give them, which indicate that this was altogether a new arrangement in which both parties were given free choice and both sacrificed all other considerations to the sanctity of the marriage-tie.

Rules of Conduct in Domestic Relations

53, 54. Prophet's house and separating of female compartments. 55. Near relations are allowed. 56-58. False charges against the Prophet and believers.

53 O you who believe! do not enter the houses of the Prophet unless permission is given to you for a meal, not waiting for its cooking being finished—but when you are invited, enter, and when you have taken the food, then disperse—not seeking to listen to talk; surely this gives the Prophet trouble, but he forbears from you, and Allah does not forbear from the truth. And when you ask of them any goods, ask of them from behind a curtain;²⁰⁰⁶ this is purer for your hearts and (for) their hearts; and it does not behove you that you should give trouble to the Apostle of Allah, nor that you

2003 When the Prophet's wives chose to remain with him, limitation was placed upon the Holy Prophet, viz. that he should not take any other wife. The Prophet did not contract any marriage after the seventh year of Hejira, when this verse was revealed.

2004 This is another limitation, viz. that it was not after this allowed to the Prophet to divorce any one of those who had chosen to remain with him.

2005 By those whom your right hand possesses are indicated the wives of the Prophet whom he had lawfully married.

2006 Christian bigotry discovers personal motives even in these beautiful rules of conduct. It must be borne in mind that any rule of conduct to be observed in relation to the Holy Prophet is really a rule that must be observed by all in social relations. The Qur-án teaches not only high morals, but also good manners, for it is meant for all men. In this verse it disparages the custom of giving trouble to the owner of a house who invites his friends to a dinner by coming before the appointed time or staying after dinner to indulge in idle talk. This is a rule which the Muslims were desired to observe towards one another as well as towards the Holy Prophet. Similarly, the rule relating to strangers speaking to women from behind a curtain applies equally to all, and is not to be observed only towards the Prophet's wives.

should marry his wives after him ever;²⁰⁰⁷ surely this is grievous in the sight of Allah.

54 If you do a thing openly or do it in secret, then surely Allah is Cognizant of all things.

56 Surely Allah and His angels bless the Prophet; O you who believe! call for (Divine) blessings on him and salute him with a (becoming) salutation.²⁰⁰⁹

57 Surely (as for) those who speak evil things²⁰¹⁰ of Allah and His Apostle, Allah has cursed them in this world and the hereafter, and He has prepared for them a chastisement bringing disgrace.

اللَّهُ فِي الدُّنْيَا وَالْآخِرَةِ وَأَعَدَّ لَهُمْ عَذَابًا مُهِينًا

2007 It is difficult to see what jealous motive on the Prophet's part lies hidden beneath this injunction. With the exception of 'Ayesha, the Prophet's wives were all widows, Zainab alone being divorced. The respect due to the Prophet is alone a sufficient reason for the injunction, but a little consideration will show that the absence of the injunction would have led to difficulties. One of the objects which the Prophet's marriages served was the faithful communication of incidents that play an important part in the life of a man, but whose knowledge is only limited to a man's family circle. The remarriage of any of the Prophet's widows would have surely impaired this object to a great degree, as it would have had a possible effect upon the independence of opinion of the lady who entered into marital obligations with another man. Such incidents would have, moreover, given rise to schisms, which possibility assumes a high probability when the great schism dividing Islam into the Sunni and Shia sects is borne in mind, which was no doubt the result of a partisanship for the offspring of the Prophet's daughter Fatima.

2008 The verb ittaqina (plural, fem. gen.) shows that the Prophet's wives are addressed.

2009 The invocation of Divine blessings on the Holy Prophet is mentioned in connection with the false imputations against him as regards his marital relations, the implication being that all such imputations would be brought to naught by the blessings which Allah would shower on him, showing that he is pure and holds communion with the fountain-head of purity.

2010 The word yu'zinu occurring here is from the root aga, which occurs in v. 48 in this chapter and in 3 : 185, and means the annoying talk of the unbelievers and the hypocrites in the form of false imputations against the Holy Prophet. This sense of the word is made very clear in the next verse, where the same word is used about the believers, and is explained in the concluding words of the verse as indicating a false accusation against them.

58 And those who speak evil things of the believing men and the believing women without their having earned (it), they are guilty indeed of a false accusation and a manifest sin.

2011 The injunction to wear an over-garment is here given with the object that free women may be distinguished from slaves, so that they may not be annoyed and followed by men inclined to evil, who would come to know by this mark of distinction that these were pure and chaste women who would not tolerate insult or illtreatment (Rz).

2012 This and the following verse relate to hypocrites as well as to certain Jews who spread evil reports concerning the Muslims. Before the Prophet died Medina was cleared of these mischievous elements.

2013 Such has been the fate of the Jews all over the world, and such was also the fate of the hypocrites who were turned out of the mosque.

2014 By the hour is meant the hour of their doom as prophesied in the previous verses.

2015 For a false imputation against Moses by his own people, and even his own sister; see Num. 12. As this chapter deals with false imputations, the case of a false imputation against the prophet in whose likeness the Holy Prophet came is cited, and attention is drawn to the fate of those who had taken part in the accusation. The false accusations against the Holy Prophet are all forged by his opponents, not by his followers, as in the case of Moses.

73 So²⁰¹⁷ Allah will chastise the hypocritical men and the hypocritical women and the polytheistic men and the polytheistic women, and Allah will turn (mercifully) to the believing men and the believing women, and Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

اللَّهُ غَفُورًا رَحِيمًا ۝

2016 حمل الامانة means he was unfaithful to it (LL). TA explains yaḥmilna-há as meaning takhun-há, i.e. they were unfaithful to it, and حلمها الإنسان as meaning خانها الإنسان i.e. man was unfaithful to it. And the reason is thus given by Az, إنها لم تحملها أى أدتها وكل من خان الامانة فقد حملها i.e. not bearing the trust signifies that they paid it back, and everyone who is unfaithful to a trust is said to have borne it (TA). The meaning is that nature is true to its laws which bring about its evolution, but man is not true to the laws on which depends his real happiness.

2017 The lám is the lám-ul-'áqibah, and is hence translated as meaning so or therefore, i.e. the result of being unfaithful to the Divine laws is that men suffer punishment. The hypocrites and the unbelievers are untrue to law and suffer, while the faithful submit to it and are happy.

CHAPTER XXXIV

THE SABA

(As-sabā)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(6 sections and 54 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Judgment is certain.
- Sec. 2. Favours followed by retribution.
- Sec. 3. A victory for the Muslims.
- Sec. 4. The leaders of evil.
- Sec. 5. Helplessness of the gods.
- Sec. 6. Truth shall prosper.

The Title and context.

THE title of this chapter is taken from that of a city of the same name, i.e. Saba, which was situated in Yaman and was destroyed by a flood. The warning given in this chapter applies to all nations that are made great and prosperous but fall into luxurious habits. Ease engenders evil, which brings decay and ruin. Hence it was a warning to the Quraish, no doubt, but it was equally a warning to the Muslims, who were made masters of the earth but fell into the ways of ease and luxury and are now suffering the consequences. The warning to the Quraish is placed here appropriately, because the previous chapter deals with their hard struggle, actually carried on later, to destroy Islam.

Date of revelation and subject-matter.

It is a Meccan revelation and belongs to the early Meccan period. The first section asserts the truth of the judgment, a judgment the truth of which shall not be witnessed only in the life after death, but is clearly seen working in this very life. This judgment overtakes individuals as well as nations, and two instances are cited in the second section of how prosperous nations are swept out of existence when they fall into evil ways. Judgment shall therefore overtake the Quraish, and their false deities, we are told in the third section, shall not avail them in the least, and an encounter shall be brought about between the two parties, resulting in a victory for the Muslims. The fourth section describes the plight of the leaders of evil, the leaders and the followers blaming each other. The fifth section states that their very deities shall then be unable to help them, and that they shall be punished as deniers of truth have always been punished. The last section asserts that truth shall prosper and falsehood vanish before it.

SECTION 1

Judgment is certain

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 (All) praise is due to Allah,
Whose is what is in the heavens and what is in the earth, and to Him is due (all) praise in the hereafter; and He is the Wise, the Aware.

2 He knows that which goes down into the earth and that which comes out of it, and that which comes down from the heaven and that which goes up to it; and He is the Merciful, the Forgiving.

3 And those who disbelieve say: The hour shall not come upon us. Say: Yea! by my Lord, the Knower of the unseen, it shall certainly come upon you; not the weight of an atom becomes absent from Him, in the heavens or in the earth, and neither less than that nor greater, but (all) is in a clear book.²⁰¹⁸

4 That He may reward those who believe and do good; these it is for whom is forgiveness and an honourable sustenance.

5 And (as for) those who strive hard in opposing Our communications,²⁰¹⁹ these it is for whom is a painful chastise-ment of an evil kind.²⁰²⁰

6 And those to whom the knowledge has been given see that which has been revealed to you from your Lord, that is

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

2021 This is the ever-recurring argument of the Holy Qur-ān. The unbelievers deny the last resurrection, the life after death, the sublime principle of the accountability of human actions, which form the only basis of high morals, and they are told that, as a proof of the truth of the resurrection and of their evil deeds producing evil consequences, they shall be punished in this very life for their mischiefs: they will be brought to disgrace in the land of which they are the masters, and they shall be overtaken by a punishment which will cover them so effectively that they will not be able to save themselves from it.

2022 Awwaba literally signifies he returned (LL), and applied to a company of men, it journeyed by day (LL), and metonymically aba or awwaba signifies he returned from disobedience to obedience or repeated the praises of God. The phrase يا جبال اروي معه is usually interpreted as meaning O mountains, repeat with him the praises of Allah, by which some understand the praising of Allah by the mountains in the sense in which all inanimate objects are stated in the Holy Qur-ān to glorify Allah, while others think that the mountains' echoing of David's loud praises is meant. But the mention of birds, the attendants of a victorious army (see 1387), and iron along with it shows that the reference is to the conquests of David; and the singing of praises by the mountains therefore carries the significance of yielding to David. Or the jibāl may here signify mighty men (see 1604), who are thus commanded to march along with him to conquer the enemy.

2023 The making of the iron pliant to him signifies the extensive use of iron by him in his battles, and so do the coats of mail in the next verse.

2024 The subject of the previous verse is continued. David is enjoined to prepare himself and his army for severe battles, hence the necessity of coats of mail to save life. Some think that the commandment signifies that David should not take anything from the treasury for his own livelihood, and that he should earn his livelihood by an industry, such as the making of coats of mail (Kf). Sābighāt is the plural of sābighah, which is an adjective meaning ample or vast, and is here considered as standing for the noun which it qualifies, for you say deeds, which I give in the margin. Sard means coats of mail or their rings (LL), and qaddara signifies he made it according to a measure or proportioned for it, and also he assigned a particular time for it (Q-LL). Rz favours the latter interpretation as being meant here, i.e., David is commanded not to employ his whole time in such occupations, for the real object is to do good.

نعمة سابغة meaning an ample coat of mail. But you also say عل سابتات may only be meant do perfect

2025 The significance is that Solomon's ships were made to traverse a month's journey in a day by favourable winds. For Solomon's navy, see 1 Kings 9: 26. But it should be noted that rih means also power or dominance or conquest (S, TA-LL), and therefore the meaning may be that Solomon's kingdom was so large that it was a month's journey in the east and a month's journey in the west.

2026 "Also he made a molten sea of ten cubits from brim to brim" (2 Chron. 4: 2).

2027 These jinn were no other than the strangers whom Solomon subjected to his rule and forced into service. See 2 Chron. 2: 12-18: "And he set threescore and ten thousand of them to be bearers of burdens, and fourscore thousand to be hewers in the mountains." Note that the jinn of this verse are the shayāṭīn of 38: 37, where it is said that "We subjected to Solomon the devils, every builder and diver," where the shayāṭīn or devils are explained by the Qur-ān itself to be no others than the builders and divers whom Solomon had forced into labour. In the first volume, Tabrezi in his commentary on Himasa remarks: "Abu Ula

13 They made for him what he pleased of fortresses and images, and bowls (large) as watering-troughs and cooking-pots that will not move from their place;²⁰²⁸ give thanks, O family of David! and very few of My servants are grateful.

14 But when We decreed death for him, naught showed them his death but a creature of the earth that ate away his staff; and when it fell down, the jinn came to know plainly that if they had known the unseen, they would not have tarried in abasing torment.²⁰²⁹

15 Certainly there was a sign for Saba in their abode: two gardens on the right and the left; eat of the sustenance of your Lord and give thanks to Him: a good land and a Forgiving Lord!

16 But they turned aside, so We sent upon them a torrent of which the rush could not be withstood, and in place of their two gardens We gave to them two gardens yielding bitter fruit and (growing) tamarisk and a few lote-trees.²⁰³⁰ says the Arabs speak of the jinn frequently, likening a man who is clever in executing affairs to the jinni and the shaitān or devil, and hence they say his jinn is gone when they mean that he became weak and abased." This explanation, along with that which the Qur-ān itself affords, settles the question of the jinn and the devils employed by Solomon.

2028 For graving of the cherubims on the walls see 2 Chron. 3 : 7 ; for casting of oxen, 2 Chron. 4 : 3 ; for making of lavers, pots, basins, etc., 2 Chron. 4 : 11, 14.

2029 The reference in the creature of the earth that ate away his staff is to his son's weak rule, under whom the kingdom of Solomon went to pieces. It appears that Solomon's successor, Rehoboam, led a life of luxury and ease, and instead of acting on the advice of the older men, he yielded to the pleasure-seeking wishes of his companions (1 Kings 12 : 13), and it is to his luxurious habits and easy mode of life that the Holy Qur-ān refers when it calls him a creature of the earth. The eating away of his staff signifies the disruption of the kingdom. The jinn, as already remarked, mean the rebellious tribes who had been reduced to subjection by Solomon, and who remained in subjection to the Israelites for a time, until the kingdom was shattered. This instance, as well as the one following, contained a warning for the Muslims as to the result of falling into luxury and ease, by which, however, they benefited little; the ultimate fate of the respective kingdoms of Umayyads and Abbasides was the same as that of Solomon's kingdom. See also 2141.

It is usual to speak of two gardens, for large cultivated areas were bounded by a garden on each side.

2032 It is not necessary that they should have thus prayed with their tongues. On the other hand, it may be a description of their actual condition, i.e. they were not grateful for the blessings and fell into evil ways, which resulted in punishment overtaking them.

Some commentators think that the petition was actually made, the object being that they might get advantage from the poor, who would be obliged to remain longer on the road (JB).

Speaking of the trade of Yaman with Syria, Muir says : " The commerce assumed great dimensions and enriched the nation . . . and, which is remarkable, the number of stages of Hadhramant to Ayla, given . . . as seventy, exactly corresponds with the number at the present day." The reference in the previous verse to the appointment of the journey might be to these stages.

2033 It refers to the helplessness of the supposed gods to assist their votaries when distress overtakes them.

2034 The meaning is that as surely as you are in manifest error, as surely we are in the right direction.

2035 This is a prophecy which was fulfilled in the first decisive battle which clearly decided the issue between the Muslims and the unbelievers.

2036 This shows that the unbelievers realized that the above verses contained a prophecy.

30 Say: You have the appointment of a day²⁰³⁷ from which you cannot hold back any while, nor can you bring it on.

قُلْ لَكُمْ يَتَعَادَى يَوْمٌ لَا تَسْتَأْخِرُونَ

Elsewhere the same question is answered by the words: "Maybe part of that which you hasten on will come to you after I am gone." (See the alternative significance of 27: 72 given in the margin.)

2039 This expression is always used to signify that Allah intends now to give ample means of subsistence to the poorer party and to strengthen them against the wealthy transgressors. Because they took pride in their wealth, as the previous verse shows, they are told that even this shall be taken away from them.

2040 Not only in the highest places in paradise, but also in the highest places in this life, a truth which finds abundant illustration in the lives of the early Muslims.

2041 Akhlaḥ is used in the sense of exceeding or surpassing so as to leave another thing behind (from khalf, meaning behind). You say أَخْلَفَ الْبَازِلُ i.e. he (a camel) exceeded in age the bāzil, which is generally one that has entered his ninth year (LL). Hence yukhlifuhu here signifies that Allah gives him such a great reward as to leave behind what he had spent in His way. What the companions of the Prophet gave in Allah's way was given back to them manifold.

41 They shall say: Glory be to Thee! Thou art our Guardian, not they; nay! they worshipped the jinn; most of them were believers in them.²⁰⁴²

And they say: This is naught but a lie that is forged. And those who disbelieve say of the truth when it comes to them: This is only clear enchantment.

Ar. three.

2042 Compare this with the last section, and it will be clear that the very persons mentioned there as the proud ones are spoken of here as the jinn.

2043 That is, no book was ever given nor any warner ever raised that should teach polytheism; or the meaning may be that whereas warners appeared all about Arabia, Mecca had not yet seen one.

2044 That is, in power or in material prosperity the Quraish do not stand comparison with many of the early nations.

كَانُوا فِي شَكٍّ مَرِيبٍ ۝

2045 The truth may stand for the Unity and the falsehood for polytheism, so that it is here declared that the doctrine of the Unity shall be established in Mecca and idol-worship shall never again find access thereto. Or, truth and falsehood carry the ordinary wider significance. The truth of this prophecy shines out in full brilliance during the last thirteen centuries, and affords a certain evidence of the truth of the revelation of the Qur-ān. Compare 17:81: "Say: The truth has come and the falsehood vanished, and falsehood is a vanishing thing."

ما يبدى الباطل وما يبعد is explained variously. Bq says the expression is taken from the annihilation of a people, for when they perish there remains not for them idda, i.e. originating a thing, nor i'dāh, i.e. reproducing a thing.

2046 They were seized upon at Badr and again at Mecca.

2047 For death shall have then removed them into the other world.

2048 Their conjectures that the Prophet will not be successful have no value, as they have no access to the unseen.

2049 Indeed, no punishment is greater than failure to attain that which a man desires most eagerly. This is the real hell.

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Truth of the Divine promise.
- Sec. 2. Truth shall prevail.
- Sec. 3. A new generation will be raised.
- Sec. 4. Peace and safety promised to the faithful.
- Sec. 5. Punishment is due to evil deeds.

The Title and context.

THE title of this chapter is taken from the Divine attribute mentioned in its opening verse, what is stated in the chapter being really a manifestation of this attribute, because the Originator of the heavens and the earth sweeps away the old order and generates a new one. If truth must prosper, as the previous chapter upholds, a new generation must be raised to propagate that truth.

Date of revelation and subject-matter.

The date of the revelation of this chapter is approximately the same as that of the previous one. In the first section it upholds the truth of the Divine promise with which the last chapter ends, and in the second reasserts the promise that truth will prevail. The third section refers to the rising of a new generation, which must take the place of the old generation that has proved itself unfit to promote the cause of truth and justice in the world. The section that follows promises peace, safety, success, and abundance to the believers, while the last section reiterates the law that punishment is due to evil deeds.

2 Whatever Allah grants to men of (His) mercy, there is none to withhold it, and what He withholds there is none to send it forth after that, and He is the Mighty, the Wise.

3 O men! call to mind the favour of Allah on you; is there any Creator besides Allah who gives you sustenance from the heaven and the earth? There is no god but He; whence are you then turned away?

4 And if they call you a liar, truly apostles before you were called liars, and to Allah are all affairs returned.

5 O men! surely the promise of Allah is true, therefore let not the life of this world deceive you, and let not the arch-deceiver * deceive you respecting Allah.

6 Surely the devil is your enemy, so take him for an enemy; he only invites his party that they may be inmates of the burning fire.

7 (As for) those who disbelieve, they shall have a severe chastisement, and (as for) those who believe and do good, they shall have forgiveness and a great reward.

2050 Angels in the Qur-án as well as in the Bible are the immaterial beings who act as ministers to execute the orders of Providence or to execute His judgment, and malak is derived from the root alaka, meaning he communicated a message. The representation of angels as possessing wings is met with in sacred history, but the jandh or wing of an angel by no means indicates the fore-limbs in a bird which fit it for flight. It is a symbol of power enabling these immaterial beings to execute their functions, and in Arabic the word jandh stands for power, as you say هو مقصوص الجناح (literally, he has the wing clipped), meaning, he is one who lacks strength or power or ability, or he is impotent (TA-LL).

SECTION 2

Truth shall prevail

8. Prophet not to grieve for prevalence of error. 9. Those dead spiritually will be quickened. 10. All plans to destroy truth will perish. 11. Great things have small beginnings. 12. Good and bad doctrines likened to sweet and salt seas. 13. Day of truth follows night of ignorance. 14. False gods will not help.

8 What! is he whose evil deed is made fairseeming to him so much so that he considers it good? Now surely Allah makes err whom He pleases^a and guides aright whom He pleases, so let not your soul waste away in grief for them; surely Allah is Cognizant of what they do.

9 And Allah is He who sends the winds so they raise a cloud, then We drive it on to a dead country, and therewith We give life to the earth after its death; even so is the quickening.

10 Whoever desires honour, then to Allah belongs the honour wholly. To Him do ascend the goodly words; and (as for) the goodly deed, He exalts it; and (as for) those who plan evil deeds, they shall have a severe chastisement; and (as for) their plan, it shall perish.²⁰⁵¹

11 And Allah created you of dust,^b then of the life-germ,^c then He made you pairs; and no female bears, nor does she bring forth, except with His knowledge; and no one whose life is lengthened has his life lengthened, nor is aught diminished of one's life, but it is all in a book: surely this is easy to Allah.²⁰⁵²

2051 The ultimate triumph of truth and the destruction of falsehood could not be expressed in clearer words than those used in this verse. It begins with the statement that those who wish for honour and not disgrace should turn to Allah; it then asserts that good words or doctrines ascend to Him, i.e. prosper and bear fruit, and that good deeds will be exalted. So far as to the triumph of truth and the success of the faithful. It then states that those who invent evil plans to destroy the truth shall suffer a severe punishment, and then, to expel all doubts, adds that all these plans shall perish and prove ineffectual.

2052 The verse first draws attention to the small beginning from which man is made,

12 And the two seas are not alike: the one sweet, that subdues thirst by its excessive sweetness, pleasant to drink; and the other salt, that burns by its saltness; yet from each of them you eat fresh flesh and bring forth ornaments which you wear; and you see the ships cleave through it that you may seek of His bounty and that you may be grateful.

14 If you call on them they shall not hear your call, and even if they could hear they shall not answer you; and on the resurrection day they will deny your associating them (with Allah); and none can inform you like the One who is Aware.²⁰⁵⁴

A New Generation will be raised

15-18. The righteous shall be masters. 19-23. Good and evil cannot be treated alike. 24-26. How warners are received.

15 O men! you are they who stand in need of Allah, and Allah is He who is the Self-sufficient, the Praised One.

thus giving a hint that the seed of the truth is sown and generates in a similar manner. The latter portion, relating to Divine knowledge of what is borne or brought forth by a female, and of the lengthening and diminishing of a man's life, seems to suggest that the children of the opponents will be believers in truth, as will be also those from among the opponents themselves whose lives are lengthened. The concluding words, this is easy to Allah, corroborate this interpretation.

2053 The Arabic word qitmir stands for the white point in the back of a date-stone.

2054 This is also a prophecy relating to the eventual helpless state of the unbelievers and their leaders.

16 If He please, He will take you off and bring a new generation.

2055 This broad doctrine that a prophet was raised among every nation is taught repeatedly in the Qur-ān, and, curiously enough, it is met with in the earlier revelation at Mecca as well as the later revelation at Medina. This great truth, which had remained hidden for thousands of years from the wisest men of the world, had shone upon an unlearned Arabian who could not have even known what nations then existed and what scriptures they possessed. This broad doctrine alone could form the basis of the universality of a Divine message to the whole of mankind. Only he who had the breadth of mind to recognize truth in all could unite all men in one religion and make them pay homage to one Holy Book.

2056 Tijrah literally signifies a buying and selling for gain, hence I render the word here as meaning gain.

2057 Note that as the Holy Qur-ān recognizes that prophets were raised in every nation, so it claims that previous revelation contains prophecies which have been fulfilled in the advent of the Holy Prophet. And this is an early Meccan revelation.

2058 Among those who are chosen to convey the message contained in the Divine revelation to others are three kinds of men; firstly, those who in following the Book have to make their souls suffer loss, because their souls are not inclined to it, and they have to go against their inclinations in following the truth; secondly, those who take a middle course; and thirdly, those whose very inclinations lead them to follow the truth.

2059 The promise refers to this life as well as to the next. See 1885, where it is shown that the Caliph 'Umar made Suraga wear Kisra's bracelets of gold.

2060 Here is drawn a true picture of paradise: Who has made grief to depart from us. This shows that freedom from grief and anxiety is the real bliss of paradise. The repeated promise to the righteous that they shall have no fear nor shall they grieve, as frequently stated in the Holy Qur-ān, expresses the same truth.

2061 Note this further description of the Muslim's paradise, a place where there is no grief, and where toil and fatigue no more afflict a man; it is all peace and satisfaction and the highest bliss. The idea of a spiritual paradise is expressed here in the clearest terms.

CHAPTER XXXVI

YÁSÍN

REVEALED AT MECCA

(5 sections and 83 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Truth of the Qur-án.
- Sec. 2. Its confirmation.
- Sec. 3. Signs of its truth.
- Sec. 4. The righteous and the wicked.
- Sec. 5. The kingdom of Islam.

The Title, context, and date of revelation.

THE title of this chapter is taken from the initial letters Yá, sin, in which the Holy Prophet is addressed. Like the two preceding chapters and the three that follow, this chapter prophesies that Islam shall be established in the land and triumph over all opposition. The six chapters may be dealt with as forming a single group. The first chapter of this group opens with the words All praise is due to Allah, and the last closes with exactly the same words, thus showing that Allah is praised for the triumph of truth. This chapter was decidedly revealed at Mecca, and belongs, if not to the early, at least to the middle Meccan period; and the opinion of Muir, who considers it to have been revealed about the tenth or the eleventh year of the mission of the Holy Prophet, must be rejected. Some critics are in the habit of assigning this or that verse of a Meccan revelation to Medina, merely because they think that some interpolated or imaginary story must be associated with that verse. Such opinion is often unwarranted, and has no testimony to support it. The practice of referring to Medinian revelation one or two verses of a chapter revealed in the early or middle Meccan period seems to me to be of doubtful accuracy. Similarly, the mere fact that a verse of a Meccan revelation speaks of zakát, i.e. the poor-rate, or of the Jews, does not entitle us to assign it to Medina.

Subject-matter.

This chapter upholds the truth of the Holy Qur-án, which is asserted in the first section. The second speaks in parable of its confirmation in earlier revelation. The third draws attention to certain signs of its truth. The fourth shows that its accepters and rejecters shall be dealt with distinctly, so that their reward and requital shall be an evidence of the truth of the Qur-án. The fifth and the concluding section draws attention first to decrepitude following youth, thus referring to the decay of the powerful nation of opponents, and concludes by laying stress upon the great power of the Almighty, to Whom belongs the kingdom of heaven and earth, and Who could at any moment create the like of what He has already created, the allusion being to the establishment of the kingdom of Islam.

SECTION 1

Truth of the Qur-án

1-6. Qur-án is a revelation giving warning. 7-10. Unbelievers are indifferent. 11-12. Believers and unbelievers.

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

of wisdom;
Ar. thou art. 3 Most surely you are one of the apostles,
4 On a right way.
Ar. thou mayest. 5 A revelation of the Mighty,
the Merciful,
6 That you may warn a people whose fathers were not warned, so they are heedless.²⁰⁶⁵

وَٱلْقُرْءَانِ ٱلْحَكِيمِ ٥
إِنَّكَ لَمِنَ ٱلْمُرْسَلِينَ ٥
عَلَىٰ صِرَاطٍ مُّسْتَقِيمٍ ٥
تَنزِيلِ ٱلْعَزِيزِ ٱلرَّحِيمِ ٥
لِيُنذِرَ قَوْمًا مَّا أُنذِرَ آبَاؤُهُمْ
فَهُمْ غَافِلُونَ ٥

7 Certainly the word has proved true of most of them, so they do not believe.²⁰⁶⁶

لَقَدْ حَقَّ ٱلْقَوْلُ عَلَىٰ ٱلَّذِينَ هُمْ
كَآيُومُونَ ٥

8 Surely We have placed chains on their necks, and these reach up to their chins, so they have their heads raised aloft.²⁰⁶⁷

لَا تَأْجَلْنَا فِي ٱعْتَاكِمْ ٱغْلَالًا
فِي ٱلْأَذْقَانِ فَهُمْ مُّقْمَحُونَ ٥

9 And We have made before them a barrier and a barrier behind them, then We have covered them over so that they do not see.²⁰⁶⁸

وَجَعَلْنَا مِن بَيْنِ أَيْدِيهِمْ سَبَآءً
وَمِنْ خَلْفِهِمْ سَبَآءً فَأَعْيَيْنَاهُمْ ٱلْأَبْصَارَ

2064 According to l'Ab, the meaning of yāsin in the dialect of Tayy is yā-insān-u, i.e. O man! or O perfect man! Kf and AH cite an instance of a similar abbreviation in which one of the two words is retained, while the other is represented by one of its prominent letters, as الله يَمِينُ for الله يَمِينُ meaning an oath by Allah. Thus yā, meaning o, is retained in full, while the word insān is represented by sīn. There is almost a consensus of opinion that the reference in this abbreviation is to the Holy Prophet himself; thus we find it generally said: the chapter of Yāsīn, on whom be peace and blessings.

2065 The first warning of the Prophet was for the Meccans, who had had no prophet among them. That the Prophet was also a warner for other nations is asserted clearly in many places; see, for instance, 25:1: "Blessed is He who sent down the Distinction upon His servant that he may be a warner to the nations."

2067 This is a description of the proud attitude of the unbelievers towards the Prophet's preaching. As to the result being attributed to Allah, see 44. The chains of pride and stubbornness are really the things which prevent them from listening to and accepting the message of the Prophet. It may be further noted that the unbelievers had chains actually put on their necks in the battle of Badr.

SECTION 2

Confirmation of the Truth

13-19. A parable of prophets following one another. 20-27. The believer is rewarded. 28-32. Mockers are overtaken with punishment.

13 And set out to them a parable of the people of the town, when the messengers came to it.

14 When We sent to them two, they rejected both of them, then We strengthened (them) with a third, so they said: Surely we are messengers to you.²⁰⁷⁰

15 They said:²⁰⁷¹ You are naught but mortals like ourselves, nor has the Beneficent God revealed any thing: you only lie.²⁰⁷²

مُّرْسَلُونَ ○
قَالُوا مَا أَنْتُمْ إِلَّا بَشَرٌ مِثْلُنَا وَمَا أَنْزَلَ
الرَّحْمَنُ مِنْ شَيْءٍ إِن أَنْتُمْ إِلَّا كَاذِبُونَ ○

2069 What they send before are their deeds, and their footprints are the marks they leave behind for others to follow.

2070 It should be noted that this is called a parable in the previous verse; therefore it is an error to name a particular town and three messengers who should have gone together thereto. The parable is set forth only to point out the truth of the Holy Prophet. The two messengers sent before are Moses and Jesus, both of whom clearly prophesied the advent of the Holy Prophet, and the third, with whom they are strengthened, is no other than the Holy Prophet himself, the fulfilment of prophecy in whose person without doubt strengthened the truth of previous revelation. The conversion of Arabia and its reclamation from idolatry had been tried both by the followers of Moses and Jesus, and both had failed, and a third messenger was now sent.

2071 The message of the prophets to their people is the general message of all prophets, and the reply of the people is the general reply of the people, which is in consonance with the parable.

2072 Note that the people here deny all revelation; they rejected previous revelation as well as the revelation of the Holy Prophet.

16 They said: Our Lord knows that we are most surely messengers to you.

17 And nothing devolves on us but a clear deliverance (of the message).

18 They said: Surely we augur evil from you:²⁰⁷³ if you do not desist, we will certainly stone you, and there shall certainly afflict you a painful chastisement from us.

Or, revile.

19 They said: Your evil fortune is with you: what! if you are reminded!²⁰⁷⁴ Nay, you are an extravagant people.

20 And from the remote part of the city there came a man running; ²⁰⁷⁵ he said: O my people! follow the messengers:

21 Follow him who does not ask you for reward, and they are the followers of the right course:

قَالُوا رَبَّنَا يَعْلَمُ إِنَّآ إِلَيْكُمْ لَمُرْسَلُونَ

وَمَا عَلَيْنَا إِلَّا الْبَلَاءُ الْمُبِينُ

قَالُوا إِنَّا نَتَّقِيكَ إِنَّا بِكَ لَكَيْنُ لَمْ نَتَّبِعُوا

لَتَرْيَبُنَّكُمْ وَلَكَيْسَ بَعْضُكُمْ عَدَابُ الْآخِرِ

قَالُوا طَائِرُكُمْ مَعَكُمْ أَإِنْ ذُكِّرْتُمْ بَلْ

أَنْتُمْ قَوْمٌ مُّسْرِفُونَ

وَجَاءَ مِنْ أَقْصَا الدِّيَارِ نَذِيرٌ

قَالَ يَقُومُوا لِتَبِعُوا الْمُرْسَلِينَ

اتَّبِعُوا مَنْ لَا يَسْأَلُكُمْ أَجْرًا وَهُمْ مُّهْتَدُونَ

PART XXIII

22 And what reason have I that I should not serve Him Who brought me into existence? and to Him you shall be brought back:

23 What! shall I take besides Him gods whose intercession, if the Beneficent God should desire to afflict me with a harm, shall not avail me aught, nor shall they be able to deliver me?

24 In that case I shall most surely be in clear error:

وَمَا لِيَ لَا أَعْبُدُ اللَّهَ الَّذِي فَطَرَنِي وَ

إِلَيْهِ رُجُوعٌ

أَتَأْتِيهِمْ مِنْ دُونِهِ إِلَهًا إِنْ يُرِيدِ الرَّحْمَنُ

بِضَرٍّ لَا تَغْنِي عَنْهُمْ شِفَاعَتُهُمْ شَيْئًا وَ

لَا يُقْدِرُونَ

إِنِّي إِذًا لَفِي ضَلَالٍ مُّبِينٍ

2073 Distress in one form or other always overtakes a people when a prophet appears among them. The law is elsewhere stated in the Holy Qur-ān thus: "And certainly We sent apostles to nations before you, then We seized them with distress and affliction in order that they might humble themselves" (6: 42). It is to this distress that the rejecters of apostles refer.

2074 They are told that distress is not due to the Prophet's advent, but is the result of their own evil deeds, and the Prophet does no more than remind them and warn them of the consequences of their evil deeds.

2075 This man represents the believer in the parable. Every prophet has testimony borne to his truth by one from among the people themselves. Thus the Holy Qur-ān speaks of a believer from among the people of Pharaoh (40: 28), and Joseph of Arimathæa believed in and helped Jesus. The Holy Prophet Muhammad had such a follower in Abū Bakr, who was the first to believe, while the others rejected.

25 Surely I believe in your Lord, therefore hear me.

26 It was said: Enter the garden.²⁰⁷⁶ He said: O would that my people had known 27 Of that on account of which my Lord has forgiven me and made me of the honoured ones!

28 And We did not send down upon his people after him any hosts from heaven, nor do We ever send down.²⁰⁷⁷

29 It was naught but a single cry, and lo! they were still.²⁰⁷⁸

30 Alas for the servants! there comes not to them an apostle but they mock at him.

31 Do they not consider how many of the generations have We destroyed before them, because they do not turn to them?²⁰⁷⁹

32 And all of them shall surely be brought before Us.

أَخْرَجْنَا مِنْهَا حَبًّا فَيَسْتَكُونُ

2076 It is a promise to the believer that he shall enjoy bliss and be successful. There is not a word to show that the man is killed. On the other hand, the next verse shows that he is made to possess honour in the world.

2077 This removes a misconception with regard to the coming of punishment. Hosts are not sent down from above to chastise the wicked, but causes are brought into existence on this very earth.

2079 That is, many generations have been destroyed before them because they did not turn to the apostles.

2080 Quickening of the dead earth is again and again compared to the transformation which was to be brought about by the Holy Qur-ān. How dead the earth, and particularly

43 And if We please, We can drown them, then there shall be no succourer for them, nor shall they be rescued,²⁰⁸⁶

44 But (by) mercy from Us and for enjoyment till a time.

45 And when it is said to them: Guard against what is before you and what is behind you, that mercy may be had on you.²⁰⁸⁷

46 And there comes not to them a communication of the communications of their Lord but they turn aside from it.

47 And when it is said to them, Spend out of what Allah has given you, those who disbelieve say to those who believe: Shall we feed him whom, if Allah please, He could feed? you are in naught but clear error.²⁰⁸⁸

48 And they say: When will this threat come to pass, if you are truthful?

49 They wait not for aught but a single cry which will overtake them while they yet contend with one another.

50 So they shall not be able to make a bequest, nor shall they return to their families.²⁰⁸⁹

SECTION 4

Reward and Punishment

51-54. The resurrection. 55-58. Reward of the faithful. 59-67. Punishment of unbelievers.

51 And the forms shall be breathed into,* when lo! from their graves they shall hasten on to their Lord.

وَنُفِخَ فِي الصُّورِ فَإِذَا هُمْ مِنَ الْأَجْدَاثِ إِلَىٰ رَبِّهِمْ يَنْسِلُونَ ۝

2086 This is a warning of the impending punishment. Drowning in the sea signifies their destruction wherever it may take place. The word chosen to describe the punishment is one which shows utter helplessness of the sufferers; for nowhere is man so helpless as in the sea, where, notwithstanding all the help that science has brought to man, he is as helpless in the Titanic of to-day as he was in the galley or barge of former days.

2087 What is before you signifies the punishment which must overtake them in this life, and what is behind you means the consequences of evil which they should witness in the hereafter.

2088 So they turned neither to submission to Allah nor to sympathy for fellow-beings.

2089 This is a prophetic description of the happenings at Badr.

52 They shall say : O woe to us ! who has raised us up from our sleeping-place ?²⁰⁹⁰ this is what the Beneficent God promised and the apostles told the truth.

53 There would be naught but a single cry, when lo ! they shall all be brought before Us.

54 So this day no soul shall be dealt with unjustly in the least ; and you shall not be rewarded aught but that which you did.

55 Surely the dwellers of the garden shall on that day be in an occupation quite happy.

56 They and their wives shall be in shades, reclining on raised couches.

57 They shall have fruits therein, and they shall have whatever they desire.

58 Peace : a word from a Merciful Lord.²⁰⁹¹

59 And withdraw aside to day, O guilty ones !

60 Did I not charge you, O children of Adam ! that you should not serve the devil ? surely he is your open enemy,²⁰⁹²

61 And that you should serve Me ; this is the right way.

62 And certainly he led astray numerous people from among you. What ! could you not then understand ?

63 This is the hell with which you were threatened.

64 Enter into it this day because you disbelieved.

65 On that day We will set a seal upon their mouths, and their hands shall speak to Us, and their feet shall bear witness of what they earned.

2090 The grave is called a sleeping-place even for the unbelievers, because, as compared with the severer punishment of hell, the grave would be to them a sleeping-place. It should be noted that the grave signifies the condition after life is ended in this world.

2091 Here we have another picture of the Muslim paradise. After describing the various blessings, it sums them up in a single word, peace.

2092 This and the two verses that follow establish conclusively that Allah always invited men to the truth, whereas it is the devil that misleads them.

56 And if We please We would certainly put out their eyes, then they would strive to get first to the way, but how should they see?²⁰⁹³

67 And if We please We would surely transform them in their place, then they would not be able to go on, nor will they return.²⁰⁹⁴

The Kingdom of Islam

68. Decrepitude follows youth and vigour. 69, 70. Prophecy is not the idle talk of a poet. 71-73. Benefits conferred. 74-76. They shall not be helped. 77-83. Power and kingdom are Allah's.

68 And whomsoever We cause to live long, We reduce (him) to an abject state in constitution; do they not then understand?²⁰⁹⁵

69 And We have not taught him poetry, nor is it meet for him;²⁰⁹⁶ it is nothing but a reminder and a plain Qur-ān,

Or, he.

70 That it may warn him who would have life, and (that) the word may prove true against the unbelievers.*

أَيْدِيَنَا أَنْعَامًا فَهُمْ لَهَا مَالِكُونَ ۝

2093 It is a punishment for their reprobation. They shut their eyes to the truth with such persistence that their eyes become blind; they no longer see even if they would.

2095 It is a general law of nature that every living thing must deteriorate; the application here is to individuals as well as nations.

2096 Its negation as poetry is meant to convey the seriousness of the prophecies of the Qur-ān. The following anecdote will show how far off was the Prophet from being a poet. It is related that one of his companions recited to him the verse : كفى الشيب والإسلام بالمرء ناهيا : i.e. old age and Islam are sufficient to keep a man back from evil. The Holy Prophet praised the verse, but in reading it changed the order of the words thus : كفى الإسلام والشيب بالمرء ناهيا placing Islam first and old age afterwards. This destroyed the measure. Upon his attention being drawn to it, he repeated it in the same manner, sacrificing the measure to the meaning.

72 And We have subjected them to them, so some of them they have to ride upon, and some of them they eat.

73 And therein they have advantages and drinks; will they not then be grateful?

74 And they have taken gods besides Allah that they may be helped.

75 (But) they shall not be able to assist them, and they shall be a host brought up before them.²⁰⁹⁷

Ar. thos.

76 Therefore let not their speech grieve you; surely We know what they do in secret and what they do openly.

77 Does not man see that We have created him from the small life-germ? then lo! he is an open disputant.

78 And he strikes out a likeness for Us²⁰⁹⁸ and forgets his own creation. Says he: Who will give life to the bones when they are rotten?

79 Say: He will give life to them Who brought them into existence at first, and He is Cognizant of all creation,

80 He Who has made for you the fire (to burn) from the green tree, so that with it you kindle (fire).^{2099A}

CHAPTER XXXVII

THE RANGERS

(As-Sáffát)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(5 sections and 182 verses)

SECTION 1

Unity shall prevail

1-5. A prophecy of the ultimate triumph of Unity. 6-10. Opposition of soothsayers and diviners. 11-21. Mockers shall be brought low.

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Unity shall prevail.
- Sec. 2. The judgment.
- Sec. 3. Preaching of Noah and Abraham.
- Sec. 4. Moses, Elias, and Lot.
- Sec. 5. Jonah, and the Holy Prophet's triumph.

The Title and date of revelation.

THE title of this chapter, The Rangers, is taken from its opening, which is devoted to a description of the faithful. The date of its revelation is, without doubt, the early Meccan period. As regards the context and arrangement, see introductory note to the last chapter.

Subject-matter.

The chapter announces in the first section a clear prophecy of the ultimate prevalence of Unity, and asserts the truth of the judgment in the second ; calls attention to the preaching of Noah, Abraham, Moses, Elias, Lot, and Jonah in the third, fourth, and fifth sections ; and concludes with a clear prediction of the triumph of the Holy Prophet.

2099 I translate wāw (lit. and) as meaning consider. The wāw in such places is generally rendered by, as signifying an oath. It must, however, be borne in mind that the oath in such cases simply draws attention to a certain testimony. Ordinarily when a person swears by Allah, he really calls Allah to witness that he speaks the truth. The real object in taking an oath is to make an assertion more convincing. But in the Qur-án, when such a

فَالَّذِينَ ذَكَرُوا
إِنَّ إِلَهَهُمْ لَوَاحِدٌ

رَبُّ السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ وَمَا بَيْنَهُمَا

وَرَبُّ الْمَشَارِقِ

إِنَّا زَيَّنَّا السَّمَاءَ الدُّنْيَا بِنُجُومٍ الْكَوَكِبِ

وَحِفْظًا مِنْ كُلِّ شَيْطَانٍ مَارِدٍ

form is adopted, the conviction is produced not by mere allegation as in the case of an ordinary oath, but by some clear argument which upholds the truth of the assertion made. Sometimes attention is called in these oaths to obvious laws of nature, as the change of night and day, etc., to infer spiritual laws from them, and on other occasions the oath reveals a kind of prophecy, so that the fulfilment of the prophecy makes the truth of the preaching of the Prophet to be obvious. The latter is the case here.

The description given in the first three verses applies to the believers. The first verse shows them as drawing themselves out in ranks, which the Muslims do five times daily in their prayers in congregation, and may prophetically refer to their subsequent drawing themselves out in ranks in the field of battle against their enemies. The second verse describes them as holding in restraint their passions, so that a people who were ruled by passions were so entirely changed that they became complete masters of their passions. The words, however, also contain a prophetic reference to their holding in restraint a powerful enemy bent upon their extirpation. These two descriptions are followed by another in the third verse which makes it clear that only the Muslims are described here: those who recite, being mindful. It is a special characteristic of the Muslims that even their armies in the field of battle are regular in their prayers and remember Allah.

This description can only apply to the Muslim congregation praying five times a day and holding in restraint their passions and to the Muslim armies fighting against and holding in restraint their persecutors. Each of these two circumstances bears evidence to the truth of the grand message of Islam, the Divine Unity; for as, in the one case, the wonderful change brought about in Arabia by the transformation of a nation deeply immersed in immorality was a clear witness of the purity and Divine source of that message, in the other, the wonderful prophecy of the triumph of the persecuted believers over their powerful enemies was no less a clear proof that some powerful hand was working in support of the Holy Prophet, and this also demonstrated the truth of Divine Unity.

It may also be noted that though the commentators have suggested that the description in the first three verses may apply to angels, they also state that the description is applicable to the Muslim armies fighting against the enemies of Islam (Rz). Another point worth noting is that as the final triumph of the doctrine of Unity is announced in the commencement, the end of the chapter asserts the same again in forcible language (see vv. 171 to the end).

2100 The reference to the eastern lands in rabb-ul-mashâriq is a prophecy of the early spread of Islam in them, while Islam's conquests in the West seem to have been reserved for a later age. Mashâriq is the plural of mashriq, which means the rising-place of the sun, and is, like its English equivalent east, applicable to an eastern land.

2101 The Prophet's preaching was confronted by a twofold opposition from among the Arabs: the opposition of secular classes and the opposition of the priestly class, the diviners and the soothsayers, the class known as kâhin. It is these soothsayers who are called the rebellious devils, because they thought that they could invoke spirits and answer questions put to them relating to the future. This phase of opposition was equally swept away before the forceful tide of Islamic truth, and the profession of the kâhin disappeared from Arabia as Islam

8 They cannot listen to the exalted assembly and they are reproached from every side,²¹⁰²

Or, thrown at.

9 Being driven off,²¹⁰³ and for them is a perpetual chastisement,

10 Except him who snatches off but once, then there follows him a brightly shining flame.²¹⁰⁴

11 Then ask them whether they are stronger in creation or those (others) whom We have created. Surely We created them of firm clay.²¹⁰⁵

Ar. thou wonderest.

12 Nay! you wonder while they mock,

13 And when they are reminded, they mind not,

14 And when they see a sign they incite one another to scoff,

15 And they say: This is nothing but clear enchantment:

لَا يَتَّبِعُونَ إِلَى الْمَلَأِ الْأَعْلَى وَيَقْدِرُونَ
مِنْ كُلِّ جَانِبٍ ۝

بَلْ عَجَبْتَ وَيَسْخَرُونَ ۝

وَإِذَا دُكِّرُوا لَا يَذْكُرُونَ ۝

وَإِذَا رَأَوْا آيَةً يَسْتَسْخَرُونَ ۝

وَقَالُوا إِن هَذَا إِلَّا سِحْرٌ مُبِينٌ ۝

advanced. This Arab superstition disappeared before the light of Islam (see LA under the word kahn). The mention of heaven and stars in the previous verse refers to the popular superstition that the diviners and soothsayers obtained their knowledge of the future from the stars. The safeguard against every rebellious devil indicates that they have no access to Divine secrets. See further 2365, 2530, and 2582.

2102 The reference here is to the conjectures of the soothsayers regarding the future, by which they maintained their ascendancy over the masses. It is pointed out that they have no access whatever to the source of prophecy. The exalted assembly signifies those angels to whom Divine revelation is first made known. If the other significance of the word yusafūn given in the margin is adopted, the reference may be to the secular opponents of the Prophet, who, it is here foretold, would be thrown at from every side, so that success should not attend any of their efforts.

2103 This verse and those preceding it describe the state of the soothsayers at the advent of the Prophet. Before the advent of the Holy Prophet the soothsayers may have been able to mislead the people to a certain extent by their guesses regarding future events, but after his advent they were reproached on every side, none of their oracles proving true. Or, as stated in the last foot-note, the reference may be to the overthrow of ordinary opposition.

2104 Khatifa signifies he carried off or snatched away; and khatfatun signifies a single act of carrying off or snatching away. The meaning is, if a soothsayer gets but one opportunity, there soon follows a flame that pierces through the darkness; in other words, dispels the darkness to which the soothsayer leads men. The flame dispelling darkness signified the mighty prophecies of the Prophet. It should be noted that shihāb means only a flame (see LL, and compare 27: 7, where Moses goes to bring a shihāb), and ṣāqib means that pierces through the darkness or brightly shining (LL).

2105 Lāzib is derived from lazaba, meaning it was or remained fixed, settled, firm, or constant (LL); hence lāzib signifies firm (S, LL), and so I render it. Those created of firm clay are the spiritually perfect men, the prophets. The verse points to the opposition of the soothsayers to the Prophet, and warns the former that the Prophet will be triumphant, because he is made perfect by Allah's hand.

16 What! when we are dead and have become dust and bones, shall we then certainly be raised:

17 Or our fathers of yore?

18 Say: Aye! and you shall be abject.²¹⁰⁶

Or, cry.
Or, wait.

19 So it shall only be a single chiding, when lo! they shall see.

20 And they shall say: O woe to us! this is the day of requital.

21 This is the day of the judgment which you called a lie.

The Judgment

22 Gather together those who were unjust and their associates, and what they used to worship.²¹⁰⁷

23 Besides Allah, then lead them to the way to hell.

24 And stop them, for they shall be questioned:

25 What is the matter with you that you do not help each other?

26 Nay! on that day they shall be submissive.

27 And some of them shall advance towards others, questioning each other.

28 They shall say: Surely you used to come to us from the right side.

29 They shall say: Nay, you (yourselves) were not believers:

30 And we had no authority over you, but you were an inordinate people:

²¹⁰⁶ That is, you shall not only be raised after death to taste of your evil deeds, but even here you will be made abject.

²¹⁰⁷ Though the description of the helplessness of the unjust given in this and the following verses applies to life after death, it equally describes their condition in this life.

31 So the sentence of our Lord has come to pass against us : (now) we shall surely taste :

32 So we led you astray, for we ourselves were erring.

33 So they shall on that day be sharers in the chastisement one with another.

34 Surely thus do We deal with the guilty.

35 Surely they used to behave proudly when it was said to them : There is no god but Allah :

36 And to say : What ! shall we indeed give up our gods for the sake of a mad poet ?

37 Nay : he has come with the truth and verified the apostles.²¹⁰⁸

38 Most surely you will taste the painful chastisement.

39 And you shall not be rewarded except (for) what you did,

40 Save the servants of Allah, the purified ones.

41 For them is a known sustenance.²¹⁰⁹

42 Fruits, and they shall be highly honoured,

43 In gardens of pleasure,

44 On thrones, facing each other.

45 A bowl shall be made to go round them from water running out of springs, 46 White, delicious to those who drink.

47 There shall be no trouble in it, nor shall they be exhausted therewith.^{2109a}

2108 The early revelation of this chapter, which belongs at the latest to the fourth year of the Holy Prophet's mission, is universally admitted, and here too we have a clear statement that the Prophet came in fulfilment of earlier prophecy.

2109 The word m'altim (known) must be carefully noted, for it shows that the sustenance mentioned in the verses that follow is one that is already known to those servants of Allah who are purified from every pollution. This description of the blessings that follow shows us clearly that all those blessings were spiritually tasted by the righteous in this life. In fact, their brief but important description as fruits in the next verse clearly shows those blessings to be the fruits of their good deeds.

2109a The whole of this description makes it self-evident that the blessings spoken of are not the physical blessings of this world but spiritual blessings. The drinks of this life

48 And with them shall be those who restrain the eyes, having beautiful eyes;

49 As if they were eggs carefully protected.²¹¹⁰

50 Then shall some of them advance to others, questioning each other.

51 A speaker from among them shall say: Surely I had a comrade of mine,

Ar. art thou.

52 Who said: What! are you indeed of those who accept (the truth)?

53 What! when we are dead and have become dust and bones, shall we then be certainly brought to judgment?

Or, held under authority.

54 He shall say: Will you look on?

55 Then he looked down and saw him in the midst of hell.

Ar. thou hadst.

56 He shall say: By Allah! you had almost caused me to perish:

57 And had it not been for the favour of my Lord, I would certainly have been among those brought up.

58 Is it then that we are not going to die,

59 Except our previous death? And we shall not be chastised?

60 Most surely this is the mighty achievement.

61 For the like of this then let the workers work.

وَعِنْدَهُمْ قُضِرَتِ الْأَعْيُنُ عَيْنٌ

كَأَنَّهُنَّ بَيْضٌ مَكْنُونٌ

فَأَقْبَلَ بَعْضُهُمْ عَلَى بَعْضٍ يَتَسَاءَلُونَ

قَالَ قَائِلٌ مِنْهُمْ إِنِّي كَانَ لِي رَافِقٌ

يَقُولُ إِنِّي كُنْتُ مِنَ الْقَايِظِينَ

مَرَدًا امْتَنَّا وَكُنَّا كَرَاهًا وَعِطَاءًا لَنَا

لَمَذِيبُونَ

قَالَ هَلْ أَنْتُمْ مُطْمَئِنُونَ

فَاعْلَمْ أَنَّهُ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا سُبْحَانُ الْحَمْدِ

قَالَ تَاللَّهِ إِنِّي كُنْتُ مِنَ الْخَائِبِينَ

وَلَوْلَا رَحْمَةُ رَبِّي لَكُنْتُ مِنَ الْخَاسِرِينَ

أَفَسَاءَ لِمَنْ يَسْتَبِينَ

إِلَّا مَوْتَتَنَا الْأُولَى وَمَا خُنَّ بِمَعْدٍ بِإِذْنِ

إِنَّ هَذَا الْقَوْمَ الْعَظِيمُ

لَيُنْشِلُ هَذَا فَلْيَجْعَلِ الْعَمَلُونَ

sometimes give trouble to man, producing exhaustion, but such are not the drinks of the other life. The name is common, but the nature of the one is not the same as the nature of the other.

2110 The description of women given here calls attention to the prominent feature of the character of a good woman. In the first place, they are described as restraining their eyes, and attention is thus called to the fact that the most valuable virtue of woman is that rare chastity which is described here as restraint or freedom of eyes from lust. Then the beauty of their eyes is praised, the suggestion clearly being that the purity of the eye leads to its beauty or that the real beauty of the eye consists in its purity. In the second place, they are described as being eggs carefully protected, which alludes to their pure and unsoiled character. It should, however, be noted that what is apparently a description of women is really a description of the fruits of deeds done in this life, the words adopted being applicable to both (see the word Qur in 2356), and these are in fact spiritual blessings manifested physically. The Qur-án nowhere speaks of conjugal relations being maintained in the life after death. The blessings which it promises, whatever they may be, are as much meant for men as for women; the only thing certain about them is that their nature is different from the nature of the physical blessings of this life. See also 2148a.

62 Is this better as an entertainment or the tree of Zaqqûm?²¹¹¹

• 1442. 63 Surely We have made it to be a trial to the unjust.*

64 Surely it is a tree that grows in the bottom of the hell;

65 Its produce is as it were the heads of the serpents.²¹¹²

66 Then most surely they shall eat of it and fill (their) bellies with it.

67 Then most surely they shall have after it to drink of a mixture prepared in boiling water.

68 Then most surely their return shall be to hell.²¹¹³

69 Surely they found their fathers going astray,

70 So in their footsteps they are being hastened on.

71 And certainly most of the ancients went astray before them,

72 And certainly We sent among them warners.

73 Then see how was the end of those warned,

74 Except the servants of Allah, the purified ones.

أَفَلَا تَحْسِبُونَ أَنَّ بَقَرَةَ الزَّقُّومِ

إِنَّا جَعَلْنَاهَا نَبْتًا لِلظَّالِمِينَ

أَهَا شَجَرَةً تَخْرُجُ فِي أَصْلِ الْجَحِيمِ

طَلْعُهَا كَأَنَّهُ رِئَاسُ الشَّيَاطِينِ

فَأَنَّهُمْ لَا يَكُونُونَ فِيهَا قَائِمِينَ

الْبَاطِلُونَ

نَحْنُ نَكْتُمُ عَلَيْهِمُ الشَّوْبَ إِنَّا كَاشِفُ

ثَمَرِهِمْ وَأَنزَجْنَاهُمْ لَهَاجِرِينَ

إِنَّهُمْ أَلْقَوْا أَبَاءَهُمْ فَصَابُوا

فَهُمْ عَلَىٰ أَثَرِهِمْ يَعْتَمُونَ

وَلَقَدْ مَكَّلْنَا لَهُمُ الْقُرْآنَ لَأَذِّنَ

وَلَقَدْ أَرْسَلْنَا فِيهِمْ مُّنَادِينَ

فَانظُرْ يَفَيْكَ كَانَ حَاقِقَ النَّادِينَ

إِلَّا عِبَادَ اللَّهِ الْمُخْلَصِينَ

2111 Zaqqûm is, according to Bḍ, a certain tree having small leaves, stinking and bitter, found in Tihama. TA gives a fuller explanation: "AHn says on the authority of an Arab of the desert that the zaqqûm is a dust-coloured tree having small round leaves without thorns. It has a pungent odour and is bitter, and has knots in its stems . . . the heads of its leaves are very foul" (LL). But note that zaqqûm also means any deadly food (TA, TH-LL). Zaqqûm also signifies fresh butter with dates, and Abû Jahl is said to have scoffed at the idea of zaqqûm being the food of those in hell by having prepared a repast of fresh butter with dates for a party of the Quraish chiefs, telling them that, according to the Holy Prophet, such was the food that would be given to those who go to hell. Hence it is called a trial for the unjust in the next verse. But see 1442.

2112 The correct interpretation of رِئَاسُ الشَّيَاطِينِ is that adopted in the text, for the Arabs apply the name shaitân to a sort of serpent having a mane, ugly or foul in the head and face. According to others it is the name of a certain ugly plant (TA-LL).

2113 The words, then . . . their return shall be to hell, are very significant, as if the food and drink described above were to be given to them before they went to hell. This is the reason that it is called an entertainment. It is in fact a description of their evil plight in this life as well as in the hereafter. The explanation given in 1442 is thus corroborated.

SECTION 3

Preaching of Noah and Abraham

periah. 88-96. Abraham preaches against idolatry. 97-99. He is delivered from his enemies. 100-111. The sacrifice of Ishmael. 112, 113. He is blessed with another son, Isaac.

75 And Noah did certainly call upon Us, and most excellent answerer of prayers are We.

76 And We delivered him and his followers from the mighty distress.*

77 And We made his offspring the survivors.

78 And We perpetuated to him (praise) among the later generations.

79 Peace on Noah among the nations.

80 Thus do We surely reward the doers of good.

81 Surely he was of Our believing servants.

82 Then We drowned the others.

83 And most surely of his party was Abraham.

84 When he came to his Lord with a free heart,

85 When he said to his sire and his people: What is it that you worship:

86 A lie—gods besides Allah—do you desire?

87 What is then your idea about the Lord of the worlds?

88 Then he looked at the stars, looking up once,

89 Then he said: Surely I am sick (of your worshipping these).²¹¹⁴

90 So they went away from him, turning back.

* 902.

Or, bear spite to.

2114 The people with whom Abraham contended were not only worshippers of idols, but also worshippers of stars. Hence Abraham looked up to the stars and declared that he could not bear their worshipping others than God. LL gives the following as one of the explanations of the words إِنِّي سَقِيمٌ on the authority of TA: I am sick of your worshipping what is not God. But we also speak of a person as being sāqim when he bears spite against another. Thus you say هو سقيم الصدر عليه i.e. he is affected with spite against him (TA-LL).

91 Then he turned aside to their gods secretly and said: What! do you not eat?²¹¹⁵

92 What is the matter with you that you do not speak?

93 Then he turned against them secretly, smiting them with the right hand.

94 So they advanced towards him, hastening.

95 Said he: What! do you worship what you hew out?

96 And Allah has created you and what you make.

97 They said: Build for him a building, then cast him into the burning fire.

98 And they desired a war* against him, but We brought them low.

99 And he said: Surely I fly to my Lord: He will guide me:

100 My Lord! grant me of the doers of good deeds.

101 So We gave him the good news of a boy, possessing forbearance.

102 And when he attained to working with him, he said: O my son! surely I have seen in a dream that I should sacrifice you:²¹¹⁶ consider then what you see. He said: O my father! do what you are commanded: if Allah please, you will find me of the patient ones.

103 So when they both submitted and he threw him down upon his forehead, 104 And We called out to him saying, O Abraham!

105 You have indeed shown the truth of the vision; surely thus do We reward the doers of good:

فَوَاعَرَ إِلَىٰ آلِهِمْ تَوَّالٍ ۚ لَا تَأْكُلُونَ ۚ

مَا لَكُمْ لَا تَسْطِقُونَ ۚ

فَوَاعَرَ عَلَيْهِمْ ضَرْبًا بِالْيَمِينِ ۚ

فَأَقْبَلُوا إِلَيْهِ يَزْعِفُونَ ۚ

وَاللَّهُ خَلَقَكُمْ وَمَا تَعْمَلُونَ ۚ

قَالُوا أَبْنَاؤُهُ بَنِيَانَا ۖ فَالْقُوَّةُ فِي الْحَبِيرِ ۚ

فَأَرَادُوا بِهِ كَيْدًا فَجَحِلْنَاهُمُ ۚ الْأَسْفَلِينَ ۚ

وَقَالَ إِنِّي ذَاهِبٌ إِلَىٰ رَبِّي سَيَهْدِيهِ ۚ

رَبِّ هَبْ لِي مِنَ الصَّالِحِينَ ۚ

فَبَشِّرْنَاهُ بِعِلْمٍ حَلِيمٍ ۚ

فَلَمَّا بَلَغَهُ مَعَهُ السَّعْيُ قَالَ يَبْنَئِي رَأْيِي ۚ

أَرَىٰ فِي الْمَنَامِ أَنِّي أَذْبَحُكَ ۚ فَانْظُرْ مَاذَا

تَرَىٰ ۚ قَالَ يَا أَبَتِ افْعَلْ مَا تُؤْمُرُ ۖ سَيجِدُ فِي

إِنْ شَاءَ اللَّهُ مِنَ الْهَدْيِ ۚ

فَلَمَّا أَكْمَلُوا نَذْلًا لِلْبَعِيثِ ۚ

وَنَادَيْنَاهُ أَنْ يَا إِبْرَاهِيمُ ۚ

قَدْ صَدَّقْتَ الرُّؤْيَا ۚ إِنَّا كُنَّا لَمَكِينِينَ ۚ

فَجَزَيْنَا الْحُسَيْنِينَ ۚ

Ar. thee.
Ar. thou
seest.
Ar. thou
art.
Ar. thou
wilt.

Ar. thou
hast.

2115 The fa does not show that he went to their gods immediately after his people had left him. This incident is quite distinct.

2116 The dream probably meant that Ishmael would have to be sacrificed by being turned out of his home and left in a strange land. That the child spoken of here was Ishmael and not Isaac is made clear by v. 112. This no doubt contradicts the Bible statement, but the fact that Ishmael's descendants kept a memorial of this sacrifice in the annual pilgrimage to Mecca shows clearly that Ishmael, and not Isaac, was the son whom Abraham was commanded to sacrifice; and that sacrifice was in one sense accomplished by Abraham leaving Ishmael in a strange land in accordance with the wishes of his wife, Sarah.

106 Most surely this is a manifest trial.

107 And We ransomed him with a great sacrifice.²¹¹⁷

108 And We perpetuated (praise) to him among the later generations.

109 Peace be on Abraham.

110 Thus do We reward the doers of good.

111 Surely he was one of Our believing servants.

112 And We gave him the good news of Isaac, a prophet among the good ones.

113 And We showered Our blessings on him and on Isaac;²¹¹⁸ and of their offspring are the doers of good, and (also) those who are clearly unjust to their own souls.

SECTION 4

Moses, Elias, and Lot

114-122. Moses and Aaron are delivered and their enemies perish. 123-132. Elias is delivered. 133-138. Lot is delivered and his enemies perish.

114 And certainly We conferred a favour on Moses and Aaron.

115 And We delivered them both and their people from the mighty distress.

116 And We helped them, so they were the vanquishers.

117 And We gave them both the Book that made (things) clear.

وَلَقَدْ مَنَّا عَلَىٰ مُوسَىٰ وَهَارُونَ

وَنَجَّيْنَاهُمَا وَقَوْمَهُمَا مِنَ الْكَرْبِ الْعَظِيمِ

وَنَصَّرْنَاهُم نَكَالًا هُمُ الْغَالِبِينَ

وَاتَيْنَاهُمَا الْكِتَابَ الْمُسْتَبِينَ

2117 Human sacrifice, which was common among most ancient people, prevailed among the Chaldeans; it also remained in vogue among the Hindoos till a very late date. Abraham's seeing in a vision that he, too, was sacrificing his son, his preparation to fulfil it literally, and lastly the Divine commandment to sacrifice an animal in his stead, marked the abolition of the savage custom of human sacrifice, which may have arisen from some such misunderstanding as would have caused Ishmael to be actually sacrificed if Divine commandment to sacrifice an animal instead had not been communicated to Abraham. And this act of Abraham abolished human sacrifice from among many nations, and to-day more than half the world stands indebted to that righteous patriarch for his noble example in uprooting a savage custom.

2118 Here only Abraham and Isaac and the descendants of these two are spoken of. Ishmael is not mentioned distinctly to show that he and his offspring are meant when the offspring of Abraham is spoken of. The other branch of Abraham's offspring is included in Isaac's offspring.

118 And We guided them both on the right way.

119 And We perpetuated
(praise) to them among the later generations,

120 Peace be on Moses and Aaron.

121 Even thus do We reward
the doers of good.

122 Surely they were both of
Our believing servants.

123 And Elias was most surely of the apostles.

124 When he said to his people: Do you not guard (against evil):

125 What! do you call upon Ba'l²¹¹⁹ and forsake the best of the creators,

126 Allah, your Lord and the Lord of your fathers of yore?

127 But they called him a liar, therefore they shall most surely be brought up,

128 But not the servants of Allah, the purified ones.

129 And We perpetuated to him (praise) among the later generations,

130 Peace be on Elias.²¹²⁰

131 Even thus do We reward
the doers of good.

132 Surely he was one of Our believing servants.

133 And Lot was most surely of the apostles.

134 When We delivered him and his followers, all—

135 Except an old woman (who was) amongst those who tarried.*

136 Then We destroyed the others.

137 And most surely you pass by them in the morning,

138 And at night: do you not then understand?

2119 Ba'l stands for the sun, or the sun-god.

2120 Ilydsin is only another form of the name of Ilyds, as Idrisin or Idrsin is another form of the name of Idris (Kf). Elias is mentioned as being one of the prophets in 6: 86. Some commentators are of opinion that Idris and Elias are two different names of the same prophet, but, as I have shown in 1553, Idris in the Holy Qur-ān stands for Enoch, and Elias is the same as the Elijah of the Bible.

SECTION 5

Jonah and the Prophet's Triumph

139-148. Jonah is delivered from distress. 149-163. Idol-worship and demonology of the Moccans are condemned. 164-169. True worshippers of Allah. 170-182. Triumph of messengers declared to be certain.

139 And Jonah was most surely of the apostles.

140 When he fled²¹²¹ to a ship completely laden,

141 So he shared (with them), but was of those who are cast off.²¹²²

142 So the fish drew him with its mouth²¹²³ while he did that for which he was blamed.

143 But had it not been that he was of those who glorify (Us), 144 He would certainly have tarried in *his tribe*²¹²¹ to the day when they are raised.

145 Then We cast him on to the vacant surface of the earth while he was sick.

146 And We caused to grow up for him a gourd-plant.

147 And We sent him to a hundred thousand, rather they exceeded.

Or, its belly.

2121 It is quite meaningless to say that Jonah fled from God. He was a prophet and knew that no one could fly from God, for God's kingdom is unlimited. Nor does the Qur-án say that he fled from God. Even the commentators do not accept this (Rz). It would appear that he fled from his people or from the king. See also 1651 and 1652.

2122 Sáhamu, which is generally rendered as meaning he cast lots, also means he shared with another, fi kazá, i.e. in such a thing (LL). All that the Qur-án says about him is that he was afterwards cast off.

2124 The word baṭn means both a tribe (LL) and belly. I prefer the former as explaining the meaning of the words that follow, the significance being, had he not been one of those who glorify Allah he would have remained as an ordinary man in his tribe and would not have been made a prophet. Taking the meaning to be belly, the pronoun hi would refer to the fish; but even then it does not lead to the conclusion that he was actually devoured by the fish, the significance being only that he would have been devoured if he had not been one of those who glorify Allah.

169 We would certainly have been the servants of Allah—the purified ones.

170 But (now) they disbelieve in it, so they will come to know.

171 And certainly Our word has already gone forth in respect of Our servants, the apostles:

172 Most surely they shall be the assisted ones,

173 And most surely Our host alone shall be the victorious ones.

174 Therefore turn away from them till a time,²¹²⁵

175 And (then) see them, so they too shall see.

176 What! would they then hasten on Our chastisement?

177 But when it shall descend in their court, evil shall then be the morning of the warned ones.

178 And turn away from them till a time,

179 And (then) see, for they too shall see.

Ar. thy.

180 Glory be to your Lord, the Lord of Honour, above what they describe.

181 And peace be on the apostles.

182 And all praise is due to Allah, the Lord of the worlds.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

ŞĀD

REVEALED AT MECCA
(5 sections and 88 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. A prophecy of the enemy's discomfiture.
- Sec. 2. David's enemies.
- Sec. 3. Solomon and his enemies.
- Sec. 4. Job and the triumph of the righteous.
- Sec. 5. Opposition to prophets.

The Title.

THIS chapter, which is entitled Şād from its initial letter, describes the sufferings of prophets at the hands of their enemies. Even prophets like David and Solomon, who ruled mighty kingdoms, and like Job, who had been granted abundance, could not escape opposition and had to suffer at the hands of their enemies, and the Prophet of Arabia could not be an exception. But as the name of the chapter signifies, Allah was a Truthful God, Who at the height of opposition had foretold the discomfiture of the enemy, and the final triumph of truth, and His promise would be fulfilled, even as it was fulfilled in the deliverance of earlier prophets from the hands of their enemies.

Date of revelation and subject-matter.

The date of the revelation of this chapter, about whose Meccan origin no doubt can be entertained, may be fixed at about the same time as that of the preceding one. The opposition had no doubt grown intense, and the earlier emigration may have already taken place, or may have followed it soon. It should be placed about the close of the early Meccan period. The first section clearly speaks of the determined opposition of the enemy and prophesies its discomfiture; the second asserts how even a king-prophet like David had his enemies, and how he was delivered from their hands; the third states that even Solomon with all his glory could not escape the opposition of enemies, yet it was the grace of Allah, not the glory of his kingdom, that delivered him from his enemies. Job's sufferings are spoken of in the fourth section, and the triumph of the righteous is plainly stated; and the typical opposition of the devil to the prophet-man forms the subject-matter of the concluding section.

SECTION 1

A Prophecy of the Enemy's Discomfiture

1-3. A warning. 4-8. Polytheists stick to their gods. 9-11. A prophecy of the defeat of combined forces. 12-14. Opponents of previous prophets were destroyed.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

2099. 1 Truthful God²¹²⁶ Consider* the Qur-ān, possessing eminence.²¹²⁷

2 Nay! those who disbelieve are in self-exaltation and opposition.

Ar. was not. 3 How many did We destroy before them of the generations, then they cried while the time of escaping had passed away.²¹²⁸

4 And they wonder that there has come to them a warner from among themselves, and the disbelievers say: This is an enchanter, a liar.

5 What! makes he the gods a single God? A strange thing is this, to be sure!

b 1356. 6 And the chief persons of them break forth, saying: "Go and steadily adhere to your gods: this is most surely a thing sought after."²¹²⁹

7 We never heard of this in the former faith: this is nothing but a forgery:

8 Has the reminder been revealed to him from among us? Nay! they are in doubt as to My reminder. Nay! they have not yet tasted My chastisement!

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

شَايِعِينَ ذِكْرُنِي بَلْ كَسِبَتْ

أَعْدَائِي

2126 Sād, which is also the name of this chapter, stands for As-Sādiq, meaning Truthful God (JB).

2127 Zikr means eminence here, as in 48:44 (TA-LL). The calling to witness of the Qur-ān possessing eminence indicates that the truth of the Qur-ān will become manifest by the eminence to which it will raise those who follow it.

2128 That is, they did not heed the warning, but cried for help and deliverance from the punishment when it had actually overtaken them and no time for escaping remained.

2129 By a thing sought after is to be understood either a thing that the Prophet seeks after but to which he cannot attain, or it is meant that the preaching of the Prophet is a thing that is decreed by fate. They think it is a misfortune that must befall them because it is so decreed by fate (Bd).

Ar. thy. 9 Or is it that they have the treasures of the mercy of your Lord, the Mighty, the great Giver?

10 Or is it that theirs is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and what is between them? Then let them ascend in the means.²¹³⁰

Ar. what a host. 11 A mighty host of the allies shall be here put to flight.²¹³¹

Or, a strong dominion. 12 The people of Noah, and 'Ad, and Pharaoh, the lord of hosts,²¹³² rejected (apostles) before them.

13 And Samood and the people of Lot and the dwellers of the thicket: these were the parties.

* 1347.

14 There was none of them but called the apostles liars, so just was My retribution.

2130 As they think themselves to be powerful in the land and to be masters of it, they should find the best means that would make their power permanent, and prove the warning of the Prophet to be false. That they will not be able to do so, they are told in the next verse.

2131 This is a prophecy relating to the absolute discomfiture and overthrow of the opponents of Islam at a time when they shall combine all possible forces against it. The Prophet is thus not only enjoined patience under his present sufferings, but he is further told that the opposition against him will assume yet more formidable proportions. He is comforted at the same time with the knowledge that the combined forces of opposition will be utterly routed and overthrown. This happened in the battle known as ghazwat-ul-Ahzab, or the battle of the Allies, for which see 1981.

2132 Autād is the plural of watad, which means literally a peg which is firmly driven into the ground. But it is frequently used metaphorically. Thus اوتاد البلاد signifies the chiefs of the towns, provinces, or countries (Li-Li). Bq interprets ذو الاوتاد as meaning خدا المجموع الكثيرة i.e. lord of many hosts. And generally it is also taken as meaning ذو الملك الثابت, i.e. lord of a strong dominion, and as an authority for this is quoted the verse of Aswad, which says فى ظل ملك ثابت الاوتاد i.e. under the protection of a king who is firm in a strong dominion (Kf). And he adds that the word autād is therefore metaphorically used for the firmness of power and kingdom and the stability of affairs.

SECTION 2

David's Enemies

15, 16. Judgment impending over the Meccans. 17-20. A great kingdom was given to David. 21-25. A plan against him frustrated. 26. His goodness and wisdom.

15 Nor do these await aught but a single cry, there being no delay in it.²¹³³

16 And they say: O our Lord! hasten on to us our portion before the day of reckoning.²¹³⁴

17 Bear patiently what they say, and remember Our servant David, the possessor of power;²¹³⁵ surely he was frequent in returning (to Allah).

18 Surely We made the mountains subject to him, to declare the glory* (of Allah) at the evening and the sunrise, 19 And the birds gathered together;^b all were obedient to him.

20 And We strengthened his kingdom and We gave him wisdom and a clear judgment.

21 And has there come to you the story of the adversaries, when they made an entry into the private chamber by ascending over the walls?

22 When they entered in upon David and he was frightened at them, they said: Fear not: two litigants, of whom one has acted wrongfully towards the other, therefore decide between us with justice, and do not act unjustly, and guide us to the right way:

23 Surely this is my brother: he has ninety-nine ewes and I have a single ewe; but he

2134 Here we have in plain words a demand on the part of unbelievers for punishment in this life.

2135 Yad means jāh and quwwat, i.e. dignity and power (T.A.). According to the same authority yad also means authority, ownership, favour, or benefit.

said, Make it over to me, and he has prevailed against me in discourse.

Ar. thy.

24 He said: Surely he has been unjust to you in demanding your ewe (to add) to his own ewes; and most surely most of the partners act wrongfully towards one another, save those who believe and do good, and very few are they; and David was sure that We had tried him, so he sought the protection* of his Lord, and he fell down bowing and turned time after time (to Him).²¹³⁶

26 O David! surely We have made you a ruler in the land; so judge between men with justice and do not follow desire, lest it should lead you astray from the path of Allah; (as for) those who go astray from the path of Allah, they shall surely have a severe chastisement because they forgot the day of reckoning.

فَقَالَ الْكٰفِرِيْنَ هٰذَا عَزَّتْ فِي الْحَطَابِ

فَيُضِلَّكَ عَنْ سَبِيْلِ اللّٰهِ اِنَّ الَّذِيْنَ
يُضِلُّوْنَ عَنْ سَبِيْلِ اللّٰهِ لَهُمْ عَذَابٌ
شَدِيْدٌ بِمَا كَانُوْا يَحْسَبُوْنَ

2136 The absurd story that is added here by the commentators is utterly opposed to what the Qur-án says regarding David. The men who thus attacked David by climbing over the wall were his enemies, as the Qur-án plainly states. They had thought of taking David unawares and putting him to death. But David, though terrified, was ready to meet them, and the two men, finding their plan thus frustrated, made an excuse for coming to him in such an unusual manner. The Qur-án does not anywhere say that these were angels; the suggestion is, moreover, inconsistent with their description as adversaries, and with their climbing over the walls. The story of David committing adultery and two angels having come to him thus to remind him of the sin is a puerile falsehood wherever it may be found. It has been repudiated by the true Muslim opinion. Rz says: "Most of the learned and those who have searched for the truth among them declare this charge false and condemn it as a lie and a mischievous story." And the Caliph 'Alí, when he heard the false story, said: "Whoever shall relate the story of David as the story-tellers relate it, I will give him 160 stripes, and this is the punishment of those who falsely charge the prophets" (Rz). The words istaghfara and ghafarná occurring in this and the next verse by no means indicate that David had committed a sin, for istighfár really signifies the seeking of protection (see 2194), and David sought Divine protection when he saw that his enemies had grown so bold against him; and by ghafarná in the next verse is meant the rectification of his affair, the reason given there making this significance clear: "Most surely he had a nearness to Us and an excellent resort." This incident in the career of David is narrated to enable the Prophet to realize his own difficulties; for when a great ruler like David could not succeed in keeping his enemies under complete control, the position of the Prophet was much more difficult. It may also be added that a party of the Israelites themselves was opposed to

SECTION 3

Solomon and his Enemies

27-29. The righteous and the mischief-makers are not dealt with alike. 30-33. Solomon's greatness. 34. His successor's worthlessness. 35-40. Solomon's enemies subjected to him.

27 And We did not create the heaven and the earth and what is between them in vain; that is the opinion of those who disbelieve;²¹³⁷ then woe to those who disbelieve on account of the fire.

28 Shall We treat those who believe and do good like the mischief-makers in the earth? Or shall We make those who guard (against evil) like the wicked?

29 (It is) a Book We have revealed to you abounding in good,²¹³⁸ that they may ponder over its verses, and that those endowed with understanding may be mindful.

30 And We gave to David Solomon; most excellent the servant! Surely he was frequent in returning (to Allah).

31 When there were brought to him in the evening (horses) still when standing,²¹³⁹ swift when running—

32 Then he said: Surely I love the good things on account of the remembrance of my Lord—until they were hidden behind the veil, (he said):

33 Bring them back to me; so he began to stroke (their) legs and necks.²¹⁴⁰

رُدُّوْهَا عَلَيَّ طُفُوقَ سَحَابِ السُّوقِ وَالْأَعْقَابِ

David and Solomon; and the revolt of the ten tribes against Rehoboam, Solomon's son, is a clear proof of this animosity. Hence many of the false charges against these two prophet-kings.

2137 The believer is guided by the principle of the accountability of human actions and of a significance underlying every thing that exists in heaven or earth. The unbeliever, on the other hand, makes mischief, as he believes that he will not be any the worse for it, and thus ignores the law of cause and effect which prevails in the universe.

2138 Mubārak means blessed, also abounding in good (LL).

2139 Sāfināt is plural of sāfin, and signifies a horse standing upon three legs and the extremity of the hoof of the fourth leg; hence it means a horse that is still when standing.

2140 These plain words are twisted into the puerile story that Solomon, enraged on account of the horses having detained him from his afternoon prayers, began to cut off their legs and necks, as if it were the fault of the horses and not his own fault. But 34 And certainly We tried Solomon, and We put on his throne a (mere) body,²¹⁴¹ so he turned (to Allah).

35 He said: My Lord! do Thou forgive me and grant me a kingdom which is not fit for (being inherited by) any one after me;²¹⁴² surely Thou art the great Giver.

36 Then We made the wind subservient to him; it made his command to run gently wherever he desired,

37 And the devils, every builder and diver,

38 And others fettered in chains.²¹⁴³

39 This is Our free gift, therefore give freely or withhold, without reckoning.

40 And most surely he had a nearness to Us and an excellent resort.

وَلَقَدْ قَتَلْنَا سُلَيْمَانَ وَآلَيْهِمَا عَلَى كُرْسِيِّهِ

جَسَدًا أَنتُمْ أَتَابَ ۝

قَالَ رَبِّ اغْفِرْ لِي وَهَبْ لِي مُلْكًا آتِيَنِي

فَتَمَرَّكَالَهُ الرِّيحُ بِحُجْرِي بِأَمْرِهِ رُحَاءَ

حَيْثُ أَصَابَ ۝

وَالشَّيَاطِينَ كُلَّ بَنَّاءٍ وَغَوَّاصٍ ۝

وَأَخْرَجْنَا مُقَرَّنِينَ فِي الْأَصْفَادِ ۝

هَذَا عَطَاؤُنَا فَامْنُنْ أَوْ أَمْسِكْ بِبَيِّنَاتٍ

وَاتَّانَ لَهُ عِندَنَا لُفْنِي وَحُسْنُ مَا رِغْ

the Qur-án does not at all say that Solomon neglected any prayer on seeing the horses, nor does it say that he cut off their legs and necks. مسح شياً means he wiped a thing with his hand, or passed his hand over it, and horses are always stroked on their legs and necks after a race. It was simply this that Solomon did. The material out of which the strange story is woven is not met with in the Qur-án. The words تارات

تارات refer to the horses, which had gone so far in the race that they were hidden from Solomon's eyes. To make the words refer to the sun, of which no mention at all is made here or anywhere else in this chapter, is surely a distortion of plain words.

2141 It appears that Solomon knew that his son Rehoboam, the heir-apparent to the throne, was unfit to rule, and therefore, seeing apparent signs of the disruption of the kingdom, or being informed of it by Divine revelation, he turned to Allah. By the mere body that was put on his throne is meant either his son Rehoboam, who lost the allegiance of all except a single tribe of Israel (1 Kings 12 : 17), or Jeroboam, who led the revolt against the house of David, and on becoming king of ten tribes set up image-worship in Dan and Beth-el, the two calves being supposed to be images of Jehovah (1 Kings 12 : 28), and also began the worship of molten images (1 Kings 14 : 9). Thus both Rehoboam and Jeroboam answer the description of a body (without real life) thrown on Solomon's throne. See also 2029.

2142 The previous verse speaks of the imbecile heir-apparent to Solomon's throne. Hence we find Solomon praying here for a spiritual kingdom, for that is the only kingdom which is not in danger of being spoiled by an heir. The glory of Solomon's temporal kingdom was not maintained after his death.

2143 The description given here of the devils shows clearly that the designation applies to the men of foreign tribes subjected to Solomon's rule, because it was the latter who were forced into labour by Solomon, and therefore the words every builder and diver make it clear that the jinn and devils who are related to have been subjected to Solomon were only human beings. This is further proved by the words fettered in chains, because the immaterial beings known as devils and jinn are not fettered in chains. The chains are needed to keep in control material beings, such as men. See also 2027.

SECTION 4

Job and the Triumph of the Righteous

41-44. Job rewarded for his patience. 45-54. All righteous servants were rewarded. 55-58. Their opponents meet with evil. 59-64. Mischief-makers reproach each other.

41 And remember Our servant Job, when he called upon his Lord: The devil has afflicted me with toil and torment.²¹⁴⁴

Ar. thy.

42 Urge with your foot; here is a cool washing-place and a drink.²¹⁴⁵

Or, followers.

43 And We gave him his family and the like of them with them,²¹⁴⁶ as a mercy from Us, and as a reminder to those possessed of understanding.

وَاذْكُرْ عَبْدَنَا أَيُّوبَ إِذْ نَادَىٰ رَبَّهُ أَنِّي
مَسْنِي الشَّيْطَانُ يَنْصِبُ وَعْدَآيَهُ
أَرْضُ بَرَجِلِكَ هَذَا مُغْتَسَلٌ بَارِدٌ وَشَرَابٌ
وَوَهَبْنَا لَهُ أَهْلَهُ وَمِثْلَهُم مَّعَهُمْ
رَحْمَةً مِنَّا وَذِكْرَىٰ لِقَوْمِ الْآلِبَابِ

2144 The story of Job is given here as well as in the 21st chapter, the reference being more brief there than here. All that the Qur-ān states about him is that he was a righteous person who suffered some kind of distress, remained patient under trials, and was ultimately delivered from affliction. All these circumstances of his life are disposed of in the space of a few lines. The dramatic poem of forty-two chapters known as Job's book finds no place in the Holy Qur-ān.

The toil and torment of which Job complains seem to relate to some journey of his in a desert, where he finds himself in an evil plight, on account of the fatigue of the journey and the thirst which afflicts him. There are many circumstances which point to this conclusion. The use of the word nugh, signifying toil or fatigue, is one of them. Another is that, as a remedy for this, he is led to a place where he finds a cool washing-place and a drink. A third is the mention of the devil (shaitān) in connection with his trouble, for, شيطان الفلا lit. the devil of the desert, signifies thirst (Q-LI). The mention of this distressing journey of Job's contains, no doubt, a hint of the Prophet's long journey from Mecca to Medina, which was to be undertaken under particularly distressing circumstances.

2145 اركض برجلك literally signifies urge with thy foot, the significance being urge your horse. The word rakaḍa is used especially in connection with a beast, meaning, as LL says, he struck and hit therewith like as one strikes and hits therewith a beast (IAS). This special use is made clear in all lexicons by further examples of the use of the word. Thus you say ركضت الفرس برجلي i.e. I urged the horse to run with my foot

(S, O, Msh-LL). And again ركض الدابة برجل i.e. he struck the beast to urge it with a foot (LL). The meaning is therefore urge your horse to go further, and the result is that there he finds a place where he is able to refresh himself both with drink and washing. He thought that he was in a waterless desert, and he complained that he was troubled with fatigue from the journey and with thirst; in reply he is told to urge his horse or the beast he rode upon to run further on, where he will find rest. It is a lesson not to despair under difficulties.

2146 Ahla-hu may mean either his people or his family. The giving of it to him means that he is brought back to them from the long journey which is referred to in the previous verse. Migla-hum or the like of them may signify either that he was brought back to his

Ar. thy.

44 And take in your hand somewhat of worldly goods, then be satisfied with it and do not incline to what is false;²¹⁴⁷ surely We found him patient; most excellent the servant! Surely he was frequent in returning (to Allah).

45 And remember Our servants Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, men of power and insight.

46 Surely We purified them by a pure quality, the keeping in mind of the (final) abode.

47 And most surely they were with Us, of the elect, the best.

48 And remember Ishmael and Elisha and Zulkifl;* and they were all of the best.

وَحَذَّ يَدَكَ ضَعْفًا فَاصْبِرْ بِهِ وَلَا تَحْنُتْ
إِنَّا وَجَدْنَاهُ صَابِرًا نَزَّاهِمُ الْعَبْدِ إِنَّهُ أَوَّابٌ
وَإِذْ كَرَّمْنَا عَبْدَنَا إِبرَاهِيمَ إِذْ سَمِعَ وَيَعْقُوبَ
أُولَى الْأَيْدِي وَالْأَبْصَارِ
إِنَّا أَخْلَصْنَاهُمْ بِخَالِصَةٍ ذُكِّرَى الدَّارِ
وَأَنَّهُمْ عِنْدَنَا لَمِنَ الْمُصْطَفَيْنَ الْأَخْيَارِ
وَإِذْ كَرَّمْنَا إِسْمَاعِيلَ إِذْ أَلَيْسَ وَذَا الْكَفْلِ وَكُلٌّ مِّنَ الْأَخْيَارِ followers, to even a larger number than he had left, or that he was given a larger family, being blessed with more children.

2147 This passage contains three different statements, all of which have been generally misunderstood. The commentators follow each other in the story. They say that Job had sworn to inflict a hundred stripes on his wife, and that he ultimately fulfilled this oath by striking her with a bundle of sticks. There is not the slightest vestige of this story in the Holy Qur-án or in any authentic saying of the Holy Prophet. The first statement made in this passage is حَذَّ يَدَكَ ضَعْفًا. Now, although dighz does signify a bundle of twigs, it bears other significances as well, and the duty of the translator is to see which significance suits the context, and to give the most rational meaning to the words without inventing a story to explain words at once clear and simple. We find the same words occurring in a saying of the Holy Prophet, where أَخَذَ الضَّغْتِ is explained as meaning مَنْ نَالَ مِنَ الدُّنْيَا شَيْئًا i.e. he who attains anything of worldly goods (IAs). The same saying is explained by TA: hus: الْأَخْذُ الضَّغْتُ meaning among them is he who attains somewhat of worldly goods. The very words akhz and dighz occur in the Holy Qur-án, and the sentence thus bears a simple meaning that Job is given somewhat of the goods of the world.

The only word to be explained now is لَا تَحْنُتْ. There is not much difficulty about it, as hanaga is plainly given to mean he inclined from what was true to what was false (Q-LI). The meaning of the passage is that Job is told not to incline to an evil course when he is given wealth. Thus v. 41 speaks of his distress, v. 42 of the removal of distress, v. 43 of his finding his family, and v. 44 of his finding worldly goods.

49 This is a reminder; and most surely there is an excellent resort for those who guard (against evil),

50 The gardens of perpetuity, the doors are opened for them.²¹⁴⁸

51 Reclining therein, calling therein for many fruits and drink.

52 And with them shall be those restraining their eyes,* equals in age.^{2148a}

53 This is what you are promised for the day of reckoning.

54 Most surely this is Our sustenance: it shall never come to an end;

55 This (shall be so); and most surely there is an evil resort for the inordinate ones:

56 Hell: they shall enter it, so evil is the resting-place.

57 This (shall be so); so let them taste it, boiling and intensely cold (drink).²¹⁴⁹

58 And other (punishment) of the same kind—of various sorts.

59 This is an army plunging in without consideration along with you; no welcome for them, surely they shall enter fire.

60 They shall say:^{2149a} Nay! you—no welcome to you: you did proffer it to us, so evil is the resting-place.

هَذَا ذِكْرٌ وَإِنَّ لِلْمُتَّقِينَ لَحُسْنَ مَآبٍ
جَنَّاتٍ عَدْنٍ مُّنتَهَى لَهُمْ الْأَبْوَابُ
مُتَّكِئِينَ فِيهَا يَدْعُونَ فِيهَا بِكُلِّ شَايِءٍ
كَثِيرٍ مِّنْ وَشْرَابٍ

وَإِذَا كُنْتُمْ فَخْرًا تَطْرُدُ الَّذِينَ فِيهَا
هَذَا مَا وَعَدُونَا لَكُمْ لِيَوْمِ الْحِسَابِ
إِنَّ هَذَا الْبَرَزُ مَا لَمْ يَكُنْ ثَقُلًا
هَذَا أَوَّلُ الْخَيْرِ لَاشْرَابٍ
جَهَنَّمَ يَصْلَوْنَهَا فَنُفْسٌ لِّهَآدٍ
هَذَا أَفْلَيْدٌ وَتَوَهُّ جَمِيمٌ وَغَسَّاقٌ
وَأَخْرَجْنَا مِنْهُ شَجِيرَةً آزْوَاجٍ
هَذَا أَتَوْهَا مُّتَّقِمَةً فَمَعَهُمْ لَمَّحَجَبٌ
لَّهُمْ صَاوِلَاتُ النَّارِ
قَالُوا بَلْ أَنْتُمْ لَمَّحَجَبٌ بِكُمْ أَنْتُمْ
قَدْ مَتُّوهُ لَنَا فَنُفْسٌ لِّقَرَارٍ

2148 That is, the doors of these gardens are opened for them in this very life; or, they are always open to them.

2148a What is the meaning of those restraining their eyes has been explained in 2110, but here, in addition, they are called equals in age, as showing that their growth begins with the growth of spiritual life in man, thus showing that they are the fruits of good deeds, whether done by males or females, who would all have these fruits equally.

2149 The word ghassāq, which is generally rendered as ichor, is really a qualification of drink (understood, as in the case of hamīm, which means boiling), and means intensely cold (I'Ab, I Msd-TA). It also means stinking (S-LI), but being mentioned along with hamīm, or boiling, the significance adopted suits the context. They shall be made to consume intensely hot and intensely cold drink, because they went to the two extremes and did not follow the mean.

2149a The speakers here are the weak followers, those addressed being the ringleaders. These followers are spoken of in the previous verse as an army plunging in without consideration along with you.

61 They shall say: Our Lord! whoever prepared it first for us, add Thou to him a double chastisement in the fire.

62 And they shall say: What is the matter with us that we do not see men whom we used to count among the vicious?

63 Was it that we (only) took them in scorn, or have our eyes (now) turned aside from them?

64 That most surely is the truth: the contending one with another of the inmates of the fire.

قَالُوا رَبَّنَا مَنْ قَدَّمَ لَنَا هَذَا فِرْدَوْهُ

Opposition to Prophets

2150 The message of importance is the prophecy of the utter discomfiture of the opponents of the Holy Prophet. But see also 2640.

2152 Note the connection with the previous verse, where the exalted chiefs are spoken of as contending about the appearance of the Holy Prophet, which is, as it were, explained by what follows here. The creation of Adam and the submission of the angels typifies the raising of a prophet and the submission to him of the good and the righteous. The mortal created from dust is the Prophet Muhammad (may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him!), the angels that make obeisance are his holy companions, the evil spirit who leads people

CHAPTER XXXIX

THE COMPANIES

(Az-Zumar)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(8 sections and 75 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Obedience to Allah.
- Sec. 2. Believers and unbelievers.
- Sec. 3. The Qur-án is a perfect guidance.
- Sec. 4. Rejecters shall be abased.
- Sec. 5. Evil shall not be averted.
- Sec. 6. Divine mercy.
- Sec. 7. The final judgment.
- Sec. 8. Each party meets with its desert.

The Title.

THE name of this chapter, The Companies, refers to the two classes, the believers and the unbelievers, which receive and reject the truth respectively, and the chapter deals with the fate of each.

Subject-matter.

The internal arrangement is clear. Obedience to Allah is required in the first section. Those who obey are the believers, and those who refuse to obey are the unbelievers, and the two are spoken of in the next section. The third shows that the Qur-án is a perfect guidance, and the fourth that its rejecters shall be punished. While the fifth emphasizes the punishment of rejecters, by stating that evil shall not be averted from those who persist in rejection, the sixth calls attention to Divine mercy, which is ever ready to take those by the hand who repent, and therefore sinners have no reason to despair. The last two sections speak of the coming of the judgment, when each of the two parties shall be made to taste that which it deserves.

Date of revelation.

Although this chapter is considered by both Muir and Rodwell to have been a late Meccan revelation, the opinion is not based on reliable data. The prophetic reference to the flight to Abyssinia contained in v. 10 has been misunderstood as being a reference to the later flight to Medina, and this error has led these critics to assign a late date to this chapter. The absence of reference to any plan against the Holy Prophet's life, while it deals with opposition to his cause, is a conclusive argument of its early revelation, and thus, like the other chapters of this group, it belongs to the early Meccan period.

SECTION 1

Obedience to Allah

1-3. Obedience required. 4. Allah has no son. 5, 6. His manifestation in His creation. 7. He loves gratefulness in man. 8. Man calls upon Allah alone in adversity. 9. Believers and unbelievers are not equal.

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 The revelation of the Book

Ar. thee.

2 Surely We have revealed to you the Book with the truth, therefore serve Allah, being sincere to Him in obedience.

ence is due to Allah (alone), and besides Him, (saying), We do not serve them save that they may make us nearer to Allah,²¹⁵⁴ surely Allah will judge between them in that in which they differ; surely Allah does not guide him aright who is a liar, ungrateful.

4 If Allah desire to take a son to Himself, He will surely choose those He pleases from what He has created.²¹⁵⁵ Glory be to Him: He is Allah, the
One, the Subduer (of all).

2154 The Arabs believed that they could only approach the Divine Being through the mediation of their idols, and they asserted that they worshipped idols only to attain nearness to the Divine Being. This is condemned by the Holy Qur-án as a polytheistic doctrine. But how many Muslims hold the same belief with respect to their pirs (spiritual leaders) and yet consider themselves to be monotheists!

2155 The Christian commentators think that the Qur-án does not refer to the doctrine of Jesus' sonship here. But that is a mistake. We find the Christian doctrine referred to and refuted in very early Meccan chapters, such as the 19th chapter, which was recited by the Muslim refugees in Abyssinia before the Negus, in or about the fifth year of the Prophet's mission. The Qur-án refers to the error of attributing a son to the Divine Being almost as frequently as to the doctrine of setting up idols with Allah. What is pointed out here is that no one holds a relation of peculiar sonship to Allah, but that it is His chosen servants, chosen above others from among His creation, that are metaphorically called His sons; because in being manifestations of the Divine attributes they stand to Allah in the same relation as a son stands to a father, being images of those attributes as a son is an image of a father. This is entirely in accordance with what is taught in the Bible, absolutely uprooting the Christian doctrine of the sonship of Jesus, who is regarded, not as a creature, but as the Creator.

the day and makes the day overtake the night, and He has made the sun and the moon subservient; each one runs on to an assigned term; now surely He is the Mighty, the great Forgiver.

6 He has created you from a single being, then made its mate of the same (kind),* and He has made for you eight of the cattle in pairs.²¹⁵⁶ He creates you in the wombs of your mothers—a creation after a creation—in triple darkness; that is Allah your Lord, His is the kingdom; there is no god but He; whence are you then turned away?

7 If you are ungrateful, then surely Allah is Self-sufficient, above all need of you; and He does not like ungratefulness in His servants; and if you are grateful, He likes it in you; and no bearer of burden shall bear the burden of another;^b then to your Lord is your return, then will He inform you of what you did; surely He is Cognizant of what is in the breasts.

8 And when distress afflicts a man he calls upon his Lord, turning to Him frequently; then when He makes him possess a favour from Him, he forgets that for which he called upon Him before, and sets up rivals to Allah that he may cause (men) to stray off from His path. Say: Enjoy yourself in your ungratefulness a little, surely you are of the inmates of the fire.

2156 The word anzala (infinitive noun inzāl) is not applied only to the actual sending down of a thing, but also to making it accessible to men. Thus TA says:

انزال الشيء قد يكون بنفسه وقد يكون بانزال اسبابه والهداية اليه

i.e. the sending down of a thing is sometimes its actual sending down, and sometimes the procuring of its means and the attainment of it. It is in this sense that the cattle are spoken of here as being sent down for men. The eight of the cattle are the four pairs spoken of in 6:144. The four animals are mentioned particularly as being most useful for man.

9 What! he who is obedient during hours of the night, prostrating himself and standing, takes care of the hereafter and hopes for the mercy of his Lord! Say: Are those who know and those who do not know alike? Only the men of understanding are mindful.

Believers and Unbelievers

10. Good for doers of good. 11-14. Prophet a sincere believer. 15-16. Loss for unbelievers. 17-20. The pious shall be elevated. 21. A lesson in the growth and decay witnessed in physical nature.

10 Say: O my servants who believe! be careful of (your duty to) your Lord: for those who do good in this world is good, and Allah's earth is spacious;²¹⁵⁷ only the patient will be paid back their reward in full without measure.

11 Say: I am commanded that I should serve Allah, being sincere to Him in obedience, 12 And I am commanded that I shall be the first of those who submit.

13 Say: I fear, if I disobey my Lord, the chastisement of a grievous day.

14 Say: Allah (it is Whom) I serve, being sincere to Him in my obedience:

15 Serve then what you like besides Him. Say: The losers surely are those who shall have lost themselves and their families on the day of resurrection: now surely that is the clear loss.

16 They shall have coverings of fire above them and coverings beneath them; with that Allah makes His servants to fear; so be careful of (your duty to) Me, O My servants!

قُلْ يٰٓعِبَادِ اللَّهِ إِنَّمَا أَتَوَّابٌ لِلَّذِينَ

الْمُتَّقِينَ

2157 The words are a comfort for the Muslims, who were subjected to sufferings in their own land, and contain, no doubt, a prophetic allusion to the first flight, i.e. the flight to Abyssinia.

17 And (as for) those who keep off from the worship of the idols and turn to Allah, they shall have good news, therefore give good news to My servants,

18 Those who listen to the word, then follow the best of it;²¹⁵⁸ those are they whom Allah has guided, and those it is who are the men of understanding.

Ar. word.

Ar. canst thou.

19 What! as for him then against whom the sentence of chastisement is due: What! can you save him who is in the fire?

20 But (as for) those who are careful of (their duty to) their Lord, they shall have high places, above them higher places,²¹⁵⁹ built (for them), beneath which flow rivers; (this is) the promise of Allah: Allah will not fail in (His) promise.

Ar. dost thou.

Or, colours

Ar. thou seest.

21 Do you not see that Allah sends down water from the cloud, then makes it go along in the earth in springs, then brings forth therewith herbage of various sorts, then it withers so that you see it becoming yellow, then He makes it a thing crushed and broken into pieces?²¹⁶⁰ Most surely there is a reminder in this for the men of understanding.

وَالَّذِينَ اجْتَنَبُوا الطَّاغُوتَ أَنْ يَعْبُدُوهَا

ثُمَّ يَجْعَلُهُ حُطًا إِنَّ فِي ذَٰلِكَ لَذِكْرًا

لِأُولِي الْأَلْبَابِ ۚ

2158 Attention is here drawn to the teachings of the Qur-án by describing them as the best words to which a man can listen. Or, since the Qur-án is meant for the whole of mankind, and therefore contains teachings for men in every grade of society or state of civilization, the faithful are enjoined to follow the best.

2159 This shows that there is an unceasing progress in the life after death, for the high places to which the righteous shall attain shall have places still higher above them. Thus the Muslim paradise is not a place for enjoyment, but for an unceasing advancement.

2160 The allusion is to the fate of nations; they are brought into existence, made to rise, then decay and are swept out of existence. This is also a solace to the Muslims that their opponents shall not retain their power for ever.

SECTION 3

The Qur-án is a Perfect Guidance

22, 23. The Qur-án is a light. 24-26. Its rejecters shall meet with disgrace 27, 28. The Qur-án a perfect book. 29-31. Absolute submission to Allah necessary.

Ar. breast.

22 What! is he whose heart Allah has opened for Islam so that he is in a light from his Lord (like the hard-hearted)? Nay, woe to those whose hearts are hard against the remembrance of Allah; those are in clear error.

23 Allah has revealed the best announcement, a book conformable in its various parts,²¹⁶¹ repeating, whereat do shudder the skins of those who fear their Lord, then their skins and their hearts become pliant to the remembrance of Allah; this is Allah's guidance, He guides with it whom He pleases; and (as for) him whom Allah makes err,* there is no guide for him.

* 44.

24 Is he then who has to guard himself with his own person against the evil chastisement on the resurrection day? And it will be said to the unjust: Taste what you earned.

25 Those before them rejected (prophets), therefore there came to them the chastisement from whence they perceived not.

26 So Allah made them taste the disgrace in this world's life, and certainly the chastisement of the hereafter is greater: did they but know!

أَتَنْبِئُكَ أَنَّ اللَّهَ صَدَقَ الْإِسْلَامَ نُوْحًا

وَالْعَذَابِ الْآخِرَةِ أَكْبَرُ لَوْ كَانُوا يَعْلَمُونَ ۝

2161 The Qur-án is here called كتابا متشابها i.e. a book conformable in its various parts. This claim is by no means insignificant. The Qur-án was revealed by portions during a period of twenty-three years, and during this period the circumstances under which the Holy Prophet lived were of such a nature that the history of no other man offers a similar combination of varying circumstances, and yet, through all these vicissitudes, the Qur-án shows a strict uniformity. The conformability of its various parts, however, signifies more than a mere uniformity; it signifies that some parts explain other parts. Mutashábih, it should be noted, signifies, according to the best authorities, that some parts of it verify other parts. Again, it is called magání, because it repeats over and over again the most important subjects, especially the doctrine of the Unity of the Divine Being. See also 387.

27 And certainly We have set forth to men in this Qur-an similitudes of every sort that they may mind.²¹⁶²

28 An Arabic Qur-an without any crookedness, that they may guard (against evil).

29 Allah sets forth a parable: there is a man in whom are (several) partners differing with one another, and there is another man (devoted) wholly to a man. Are the two alike in condition? (All) praise is due to Allah: nay! most of them do not know.

Ar. thou shalt.

30 Surely you shall die and they (too) shall surely die.

31 Then surely on the day of resurrection you will contend one with another before your Lord.

وَلَقَدْ صَرَّفْنَا لِلنَّاسِ فِي هَٰذَا الْقُرْآنِ مِنْ كُلِّ مَثَلٍ لَعَلَّهُمْ يَتَذَكَّرُونَ

SECTION 4

Rejecters shall be abased

32. Rejection of truth. 33-35. Reward of those who accept. 36, 37. Allah is sufficient for His servant. 38-40. An abasing punishment. 41. The Qur-an a true revelation.

PART XXIV

32 Who is then more unjust than he who utters a lie against Allah and (he who) gives the lie to the truth when it comes to him; is there not in hell an abode for the unbelievers?

33 And he who brings the truth and (he who) accepts it as the truth—these are they that guard (against evil).

34 They shall have with their Lord what they please; that is the reward of the doers of good;

35 So that Allah will do away with the worst of what they did and give them their reward for the best of what they do.

2162 The Holy Qur-an repeatedly claims to be a collection of the best teachings for the moral and spiritual welfare of man. It also claims, in these words, to be a perfect book as not only containing all the necessary teachings, but also answering all the objections of its opponents. See also 1467 and 1785.

38 And should you ask them, Who created the heavens and the earth? they would most certainly say: Allah. Say: Have you then considered that what you call upon besides Allah, would they, if Allah desire to afflict me with harm, be the removers of His harm, or (would they), if Allah desire to show me mercy, be the with-holders of His mercy? Say: Allah is sufficient for me; on Him do the reliant rely.

39 Say: O my people! work in your place, surely I am a worker, so you will come to know 2163 The superstitious Arabs no doubt believed that their idols could work harm to men who did not admit their authority, and it is to this that reference is made. The stories of the breaking of Al-lât and Al-'Uzzâ relate to a much later period, while the revelation of this chapter belongs to the early Meccan period.

2164 Two kinds of punishment are plainly spoken of, viz. the punishment that will bring disgrace, which is clearly the punishment of this life, and the lasting punishment that the wicked receive in the life after death. The first of these demonstrates the truth of the other.

SECTION 5

Evil shall not be averted

42. Dead shall not return to life. 43-48. Intercession and redemption would not avail. 49-52. Unbelievers will suffer the evil consequences.

42 Allah takes the souls at the time of their death, and those that die not, during their sleep; then He withholds those on whom He has passed the decree of death²¹⁶⁵ and sends the others back till an appointed term; most surely there are signs in this for a people who reflect.

43 Or, have they taken intercessors besides Allah? Say: What! even though they did not ever have control over anything, nor do they understand.

44 Say: Allah's is the intercession altogether; His is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth, then to Him you shall be brought back.

45 And when Allah alone is mentioned, the hearts of those who do not believe in the hereafter shrink, and when those besides Him are mentioned, lo! they are joyful.²¹⁶⁶

46 Say: O Allah! Originator of the heavens and the earth, Knower of the unseen and the seen! Thou (only) judgest between Thy servants as to that wherein they differ.

47 And had those who are unjust all that is in the earth and the like of it with it, they وَلَوْ أَنَّ لِلَّذِينَ ظَلَمُوا فِي الْأَرْضِ

جَمِيعًا وَمِثْلَهُ مَعَهُ

2165 This verse affords a conclusive proof that the Qur-án does not admit the return to life in this world of those who are actually dead. It states that the soul is taken away either in sleep, in which case it is returned, or at death, in which case it is withheld and is not allowed to return. Thus the soul can only be returned if death has not actually occurred. This verse completely refutes all stories of the dead miraculously returning to life. See also 1659 and 1731.

2166 This is true not only of the Meccan unbelievers, but of most of those who call themselves believers. Elsewhere the Holy Qur-án says: "And most of them do not believe in Allah without associating others with Him" (12: 106). It is quite true that even most of the Muslims are not satisfied if Allah alone is mentioned, and they like that some of their saints should be mentioned along with Allah.

would certainly offer it as ransom (to be saved) from the evil of the chastisement on the day of resurrection; and what they never thought of shall become plain to them from Allah.^{2166a}

48 And the evil (consequences) of what they wrought shall become plain to them,^{2166b} and the very thing they mocked at shall beset them.

49 So when harm afflicts a man he calls upon Us; then, when We give him a favour from Us, he says: I have been given it only by means of knowledge.²¹⁶⁷ Nay, it is a trial, but most of them do not know.

50 Those before them did say it indeed, but what they earned availed them not.

51 So there befell them the evil (consequences) of what they earned; and (as for) those who are unjust from among these, there shall befall them the evil (consequences) of what they earn, and they shall not escape.²¹⁶⁸

52 Do they not know that Allah makes ample the means of subsistence to whom He pleases, and He straitens; most surely there are signs in this for a people who believe.

2166a What they never thought of signifies the overthrow of their power in this life and the manifestation of the evil consequences of their deeds in the hereafter.

2166b The fact that the heaven and hell of the next life are only physical manifestations of the spiritual realities of this life is stated here in the most clear and forcible language. The evil consequences of what they do are hidden from the eye in this life, but they shall become plain in the next life.

2167 There is no difficulty about the significance of this passage. When a man is afflicted he calls upon Allah, but when Allah favours him he does not attribute it to Allah, but to his own cleverness and knowledge.

2168 Here is another prophecy, in the clearest words, of the distress that shall overtake the Meccans.

SECTION 6

Divine Mercy

53. Sinners should not despair. 54-59. A warning. 60-68. The law of requital.

53 Say: O My servants! who have acted extravagantly against their own souls, do not despair of the mercy of Allah; surely Allah forgives the faults altogether; surely He is the Forgiving, the Merciful.²¹⁶⁹

54 And return to your Lord time after time and submit to Him before there comes to you the chastisement, then you shall not be helped.

55 And follow the best²¹⁷⁰ that has been revealed to you from your Lord before there comes to you the chastisement all of a sudden while you do not even perceive;

56 Lest a soul should say: O woe to me! for what I fell short of my duty to Allah, and most surely I was of those who laughed to scorn;

57 Or it should say: Had Allah guided me, I would certainly have been of those who guard (against evil);

58 Or it should say when it sees the chastisement: Were there only a returning for me, I should be of the doers of good.

59 Aye! My communications came to you, but you rejected them, and you were proud and you were one of the unbelievers.

60 And on the day of resurrection you shall see those who 2169 The mercy and love of Allah, which are much talked of in other religions, find their true and practical expression in Islam. No religion gives the solace and comfort which we find in this verse. It discloses the all-comprehensive mercy of Allah, before which the sins of men become quite insignificant. He is not a mere judge who decides between two parties, but a Master who deals with His servants as He pleases, and therefore He can forgive the guilty without injustice to anybody.

2170 Ahsan, or best, stands for the revelation of the Qur-án. It is the best revelation, for the manifestations of Divine love and mercy which find expression in it are not to be met with anywhere else.

It was about twenty years after this that they were made masters of the Holy Land of Palestine and the fertile lands, the garden, of Mesopotamia.

CHAPTER XL

THE BELIEVER

(Al-mu'min)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(9 sections and 85 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Protection of the faithful.
- Sec. 2. Failure of the opponents.
- Sec. 3-5. A warning in Moses' history.
- Sec. 6. Apostles are assisted.
- Sec. 7. The power of Allah.
- Sec. 8, 9. The end of opposition.

The Title, context, and date of revelation.

From this, the 40th to the 46th chapter, another group of seven chapters is formed which all begin with Hā mim, and are therefore called zwāt-i-Hāmim, i.e. the chapters beginning with Hā mim. They all belong to the period when opposition to the Holy Prophet was persistent and determined, and active persecution of the Muslims had begun, which culminated in their first flight to Abyssinia; and therefore, like the last group, belong to the close of the early Meccan period. All these chapters are further akin inasmuch as they all offer a solace to the persecuted Muslims, warn the persecutors, and foretell the triumph of truth and the failure of opposition. In fact, the failure of opposing forces is the chief theme of these chapters; this is made plain by a saying of the Holy Prophet, for which see 2171. There is little history of the earlier prophets, with the exception of Moses and Abraham, and bare references to others or the fate of their people. The Unity and the Power of Allah is the constant theme, and there are frequent appeals to the unbelievers to take advantage of Divine mercy.

Subject-matter.

The chapter opens with a statement relating to the Divine plan for the protection of the faithful, who are told that they should not be misled by the power of the opponents, whose power will soon be broken. The second section continues the subject, only laying greater stress upon the failure of the opponents and the approach of their doom, when they should be perfectly helpless. The next three sections repeat the warning with reference to Moses' history. The sixth states that the apostles of God and the believers in them are always assisted against their opponents, while the seventh calls attention to the great power of Allah, with Whom nothing is impossible. The last two sections again deal with the end of opposition, repeatedly warning the unbelievers.

SECTION 1

Protection of the Faithful

رَسُولَهُمْ لِيَأْخُذَهُ وَجَادِلُوا

2171 Hāmim occurs in the beginning of this and the six chapters that follow, which are called the ذَوَاتِ حَم. That the letters signify a name or names of the Divine Being is made certain by a saying of the Holy Prophet: ان ياتم فقولوا حم لا يصرن meaning, if you are attacked by night, say hāmim, they shall not be made victorious (Mgh-LL), or the meaning of the latter part is O God! they shall not be made victorious (I As, TA-LL). It is also related that an Arab of the desert questioned the Holy Prophet about hā mim, as to what it was. The Prophet's reply was اسماء وفواتح سورى, i.e. names and opening words of chapters (AH). Reading it along with the first saying, it would appear that by names are meant names of the Divine Being which are contained as abbreviations in the letters hā mim, for hāmim as one word is not one of the names of the Divine Being. The most probable suggestion seems to be that the hā stands for Hamid, i.e. the Praised, and the mim stands for Majid, i.e. the Glorious, the two names of the Divine Being which often occur together, and the significance of the names is quite in consonance with the significance of the saying quoted above. The two letters may also stand for Ar-Rahmān and Ar-Rahīm, i.e. the Beneficent, the Merciful One, or for Al-Hayy and Al-Qayyūm, i.e. the Living and Self-subsistent God.

2172 It is noteworthy that, of the four attributes, the first two and the last refer to Divine forgiveness, mercy, and bounty, while only one refers to punishment of evil, and thus the attribute of mercy always preponderates even when punishment is spoken of.

2173 The literal significance of akhz is the taking hold of a thing or withholding it. But akhza also signifies he gained the mastery over a person and killed him (Zj, LA-IL), or he destroyed him or extirpated him (Msb, Mt-LL), or he punished or chastised him (LA-LL).

a 895. 7 Those who bear the power^a and those around Him celebrate the praise of their Lord and believe in Him and ask protection for those who believe:²¹⁷⁴ Our Lord! Thou embracest all things in mercy and knowledge,²¹⁷⁵ therefore grant protection^b to those who turn (to Thee) and follow Thy way, and save them from the chastisement of the hell:

b 2194. 8 Our Lord! and make them enter the gardens of perpetuity which Thou hast promised to them and those who do good of their fathers and their wives and their offspring: surely Thou art the Mighty, the Wise,²¹⁷⁶

9 And keep them from evil deeds, and whom Thou keepest from evil deeds this day, indeed Thou hast mercy on him, and that is the mighty achievement.

2174 It is clear that those who bear the 'arsh or the power are not the bearers of any material thing, but the bearers of some responsibility with respect to the Divine power; in other words, the manifestations of the Divine power. These are, in fact, the angels who are charged with the affairs of the world, while those around Him are the angels nearest to Him, through whom the Divine decrees are made known to those entrusted with the affairs of the world. For a full discussion on this word see 2555. The istighfār of angels is really their asking of protection for the righteous, so that the physical as well as the spiritual laws prevailing in the world contribute to their protection against their opponents. See 2194 for this significance. Bq explains 'arsh as meaning the original of the material universe.

2175 Here we are told that Divine mercy is as comprehensive as Divine knowledge, and they both extend over all things. No other religion takes such a broad view of the mercy of the Divine Being.

2176 The wives and the offspring of the faithful are here mentioned as entering paradise along with them. So far as the promise relates to this life, the gardens which the faithful were made to inherit, the fertile lands of Mesopotamia, were given them for a perpetual inheritance, and they settled in those lands.

SECTION 2

Failure of the Opponents

10, 11. Unbelievers regret their doings. 12-14. God's kingdom shall be established. 15-20. Their doom is decreed justly.

10 Surely those who disbelieve shall be cried out to: Certainly Allah's hatred (of you) when you were called upon to the faith and you rejected, is much greater than your hatred of yourselves.²¹⁷⁷

11 They shall say: Our Lord! twice didst Thou make us subject to death, and twice hast Thou given us life,²¹⁷⁸ so we do confess our faults: is there then a way to get out?

12 That is because when Allah alone was called upon, you disbelieved, and when associates were given to Him, you believed;²¹⁷⁹ so judgment belongs to Allah, the High, the Great.

13 He it is Who shows you His signs and sends down for you sustenance from heaven,²¹⁸⁰ and none minds but he who turns (to Him) again and again.

14 Therefore call upon Allah, being sincere to Him in obedience, though the unbelievers are averse:

إِنَّ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا بِآيَاتِ اللَّهِ
لَكَبِيرُ مَقْتٍ أَنْفُسَكُمْ إِذْ تُدْعَوْنَ
إِلَى الْإِيمَانِ فَتَكْفُرُونَ ○

قَالُوا رَبَّنَا آتِنَا آيَاتَيْنِ
وَاحِدَتَنَا أَنْتَنِيَيْنِ فَأَعْرِضْنَا
بَيْنَ نُبُونَا فَقُلْ إِلَى
خُرُوجٍ مِنْ سَبِيلٍ ○

ذَلِكُمْ بِأَنَّهُ إِذَا دُعِيَ اللَّهُ
وَحْدَهُ كَفَرْتُمْ وَإِنْ يُشْرَكَ
بِهِ تُؤْمِنُوا فَالْحُكْمُ
لِلَّهِ الْعَلِيِّ الْكَبِيرِ ○

هُوَ الَّذِي يُرِيكُمْ آيَاتِهِ
وَيُرِيكُمْ لَكُمْ مِنَ السَّمَاءِ
رِزْقًا وَمَا يَتَذَكَّرُ إِلَّا مَنْ
شَتَّيْبٍ ○ نَادِعُوا اللَّهَ
مُخْلِصِينَ لَهُ الدِّينَ
وَلَوْ كَرِهَ الْكَافِرُونَ ○

2177 The violent hatred referred to is the hatred of the evil-doers for themselves, when the evil consequences of their evil deeds become manifest to them. If those who loved evil so violently hate themselves, how much greater must be the hatred of Allah, the Fountain-head of purity, for them when they committed those deeds. How Forbearing and Merciful was He not to visit them with immediate punishment!

2178 The first death is that which marks the end of life in this world, and the second death is the spiritual death which is the hell of the next life. The two lives are the natural life of man and his being raised to taste of the consequences of his deeds. Generally however, the first state of death is considered to be the state of nothingness from which man is brought into existence.

2179 And ye, how strange it is that a man should not believe in the pure Unity of Allah, and that he should believe that there are associates with Him.

2180 The passage shows what is the significance of sending down a thing from heaven. The meaning is simply that He provides the means of sustenance, and that sustenance is not provided by the idols or their associate-gods. Or, the sustenance from heaven means the spiritual sustenance.

15 Exalter of the degrees, Lord of power :^{*} He makes the inspiration to light by His command upon whom He pleases of His servants,²¹⁸¹ that he may warn (men) of the day of meeting.

16 (Of) the day when they shall come forth; nothing concerning them remains hidden to Allah.²¹⁸² To whom belongs the kingdom this day? To Allah, the One, the Subduer (of all).

17 This day every soul shall be rewarded for what it has earned; no injustice (shall be done) this day: surely Allah is quick in reckoning.

18 And warn them of the day that draws near,²¹⁸³ when hearts shall rise up to the throats, grieving inwardly;²¹⁸⁴ the unjust shall not have any compassionate friend nor any intercessor who should be obeyed.

19 He knows the stealthy looks and that which the breasts conceal.

20 And Allah judges with the truth; and those whom they call upon besides Him cannot judge aught; surely Allah is the Hearing, the Seeing.

2181 That the word rûh as used in the Holy Qur-ân conveys the meaning of inspiration or revelation is settled conclusively by this verse, because the soul is given to every one, while the rûh is here spoken of as being only granted to the elect, and the object of it is to warn men; hence it is the Divine revelation.

2182 It is implied that the hidden consequences of the deeds shall be made manifest on that day, for from Allah nothing is hidden. This is made clearer in the next verse.

2184 The verse clearly depicts the state of the hearts of the unbelievers on the day of the conquest of Mecca by the Holy Prophet.

A Warning in Moses' History

21, 22. How nations met their doom previously. 23, 24. Moses' warning to Pharaoh and Korah. 25-27. Pharaoh persecutes the Israelites.

21 Have they not travelled in the earth and seen how was the end of those who were before them? Mightier than these were they in strength and in fortifications²¹⁸⁵ in the land, but Allah destroyed them for their sins; and there was not for them any defender against Allah.

22 That was because there came to them their apostles with clear arguments, but they rejected (them), therefore Allah destroyed them; surely He is Strong, Severe in retribution.

23 And certainly We sent Moses with Our communications and clear authority, 25 So when he brought to them the truth from Us, they said:²¹⁸⁷ Slay the sons of those who believe with him and keep their women alive; and the struggle of the unbelievers will only come to a state of perdition.

26 And Pharaoh said: Let me alone that I may slay Moses and let him call upon his Lord; surely I fear that he will change your religion or that he will make mischief to appear in the land.

2185 Āḡār is plural of agar, which means a mark, and also a monument or memorial of antiquity. Here it is considered to signify the great buildings and fortifications (JB).

2186 The words do not indicate that the message to Pharaoh and Haman and Korah was given at one and the same time. All that is meant is that these three were the chief men who did not accept his message and were destroyed. Of these Korah was an Israelite who rejected Moses' prophethood. See 1895.

2187 It is not meant that all the three persons mentioned in the previous verse met Moses with this reply. A perusal of the verses that follow will show that the speaker here is only Pharaoh, as advised by his chiefs, both he and Haman being mentioned by name, the latter in v. 36, while no mention is made of Korah.

27 And Moses said : Surely I take refuge with my Lord and your Lord from every proud one who does not believe in the day of reckoning.

A Warning in Moses' History

28-35. A believer in secret. 36, 37. Pharaoh's rejection of Moses and his and Haman's evil plans.

28 And a believing man of Pharaoh's people who hid his faith said : What ! will you slay a man because he says, My Lord is Allah, and indeed he has brought to you clear arguments from your Lord ? and if he be a liar, on him will be his lie, and if he be truthful, there will befall you some of that which he threatens you (with) : surely Allah does not guide him who is extravagant, a liar.²¹⁸⁸

29 O my people ! yours is the kingdom this day, being masters in the land, but who will help us against the punishment of Allah if it come to us ? Pharaoh said : I do not show you aught but that which I see (myself), and I do not make you follow any but the right way.

يَقُومُ لَكُمْ الْيَوْمَ ظَاهِرِينَ فِي الْأَرْضِ فَمَنْ يَنْصُرُنَا مِنْ بَأْسِ اللَّهِ إِنْ جَاءَنَا قَالَ فِرْعَوْنُ مَا أُرِيكُمْ إِلَّا مَا أَرَىٰ وَمَا أَهْدِيكُمْ إِلَّا سَبِيلَ لِسَادِ ۝

30 And he who believed said : O my people ! surely I fear for you the like of what befell the parties.²¹⁸⁹

وَقَالَ الَّذِي آمَنَ يَوْمَ يَقُومُ رَبِّيَ أَخَافُ عَلَيْكُمْ مِثْلَ يَوْمِ الْأَحْزَابِ ۝ مِثْلَ دَابِ قَوْمِ نُوحٍ وَعَادٍ

31 The like of what befell the people of Noah and 'Ad

2188 He says that some of that with which they are threatened will befall them, because the mercy of Allah wards off some of the deserved punishment. Compare the believer's argument with that advanced by Gamaliel to deal leniently with the apostles of Christ : " Refrain from these men, and let them alone ; for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to naught : but if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it ; lest haply ye be found even to fight against God " (Acts 5 : 38, 39).

2189 يوم الاحزاب signifies الامم الماضية i.e. the events which befell the people of yore (Bd). By the parties are meant the parties who organized opposition to the prophets. The word yaum is used in Arabic, as its equivalent day is used in English, to signify a contest or a fight (LL), and in the phrase ايام العرب lit. the days of the Arabs, it signifies accidents or struggles. Hence I render it as what befell. There is nothing extraordinary in an Egyptian knowing how certain people on the borders of Arabia perished.

and Samood and those after them, and Allah does not desire injustice for (His) servants :

32 And, O my people ! I fear for you the day of calling out,²¹⁹⁰

33 The day on which you will turn back retreating ; there shall be no saviour for you from Allah, and whomsoever Allah causes to err,^a there is no guide for him.²¹⁹¹

34 And certainly Joseph came to you before with clear arguments, but you ever remained in doubt as to what he brought ; until when he died, you said : Allah will never raise an apostle after him. Thus does Allah cause him to err who is extravagant, a doubter, 35 Those who dispute concerning the communications of Allah without any authority that He has given them : greatly hated is it by Allah and by those who believe. Thus does Allah set a seal over the heart of every proud, haughty one.

36 And Pharaoh said : O Haman ! build for me a tower that I may attain the means of access, 37 The means of access to the heavens, then reach the God of Moses, and I surely think him to be a liar.²¹⁹² And thus the evil of his deed was made fairseeming to Pharaoh, and he was turned away from the way ; and the struggle of Pharaoh was not (to end) in aught but destruction.

heart of a.

2190 يوم التناد means the day of calling out to one another, i.e. the day of distress on which one will call out to the other for help, none being able to help himself or another. Every day of distress is the day of calling out, and the description need not be limited to the day of judgment. On the other hand, the day meant here, as the next verse also shows, is clearly the day of the doom which overtook these people in this life.

2191 Who it is whom Allah causes to err is explained in the very next verse : " Thus does Allah cause him to err who is extravagant, a doubter : those who dispute concerning the communications of Allah without any authority that He has given them."

A Warning in Moses' History

38-44. The believer reasserts his warning. 45. Doom overtakes Pharaoh.
46-50. The leaders of evil and those who follow them reproach each other.

38 And he who believed said:
O my people! follow me, I will guide you to the right course:

39 O my people! this life of the world is only a (passing) enjoyment, and surely the hereafter is the abode to settle:

40 Whoever does an evil, he shall not be recompensed (with whoever does good, whether male or female, and he is a believer, these shall enter the it that I call you to salvation and you call me to the fire?

should disbelieve in Allah and associate with Him that of which I have no knowledge, and I call you to the Mighty,
the most Forgiving:

43 No doubt that what you call me to has no title to be called to in this world, nor in the hereafter, and that our turning back is to Allah, and that the extravagant are the inmates of the fire:

44 So you shall remember what I say to you, and I entrust my affair to Allah: surely Allah sees the servants.

45 So Allah protected him from the evil (consequences) of what they planned, and the most evil chastisement overtook
Pharaoh's people:

46 The fire; they shall be brought before it (every) morning and evening and on the day when the hour shall come to pass: Make Pharaoh's people enter the severest chastisement.

2192 As Moses spoke of the Lord of the heavens and the earth, Pharaoh mocked the idea by suggesting that he would build a tower to attack Moses' God.

47 And when they shall contend one with another in the fire, then the weak shall say to those who were proud: Surely we were your followers; will you then avert from us a portion of the fire?

48 Those who were proud shall say: Surely we are all in it: surely Allah has judged between the servants.

49 And those who are in the fire shall say to the keepers of hell: Call upon your Lord that He may lighten to us one day of the chastisement.

50 They shall say: Did not your apostles come to you with clear arguments? They shall say: Yea. They shall say: Then call. And the call of the unbelievers is only in error.

لَذَنْبِكَ وَسَيِّئَ بِحَمْدِ رَبِّكَ
 بِالْعَشِيِّ وَالْإِبْكَارِ

Again, the Holy Prophet is repeatedly spoken of in the Holy Qur-án as walking in the way of perfect righteousness and entire submission to Allah. Obedience to the Apostle is obedience to Allah (4:80); if you love Allah, then follow me, Allah will love you (3:30); these and a hundred other statements of a similar nature clearly prove that the Qur-án does not allow us to attribute sin to the Holy Prophet. And a perusal of the Holy Book further proves that the Qur-án does not allow us to attribute sin to any prophet: "They do not precede Him in speech, and only according to His commandment do they act" (21:27). And the doctrine of the sinlessness of all the prophets, with very slight differences, is held by all the followers of the Holy Qur-án.

Now we take the words under discussion. The two words occurring in the phrase واستغفر لذنبيك are istighfár and zamb. The latter of these words has been fully explained in 393, where it is shown that the word does not actually mean sin, the exact word for which in the Arabic language is igm. The word zamb, in fact, includes, as there shown, all shortcomings resulting from inattention or incapacity, and also defects or imperfections of which the result may be disagreeable. Then we come to istighfár. It is of the measure of istifál, and signifies the asking of ghafr or maghfirah. According to Rgh ghafr means الباس ما يصونه عن الدس i.e. the covering of a thing with that which will protect it from dirt. Hence the words ghufrán and maghfirah on the part of Allah signify, according to the same authority, His granting protection to His servants against chastisement. And istaghfara is clearly explained as meaning he sought of God covering or forgiveness or pardon (TA-LL). It will thus be seen that the idea of protection is the dominant idea in the word ghafr and its derivatives, and the word not only signifies the forgiveness of sin, but also the covering of sin, which is really the granting of protection against sin. And LL quotes several authorities showing that the phrase غفر الامر بغفرته (lit. he covered the affair with its covering) means he rectified the affair with that wherewith it was requisite that it should be rectified. Thus ghafr clearly includes two cases: (1) as against a fault that has been committed, protection from punishment, and (2) as against a fault that may be committed or to which man is liable, protection from the commission of it, which corresponds really to rectification. And istighfár therefore includes both covering and forgiveness, i.e. the seeking of protection against the commission of a fault to which a man is liable and the seeking of protection against the punishment of a fault that has been committed.

56 Surely (as for) those who dispute about the communications of Allah without any إِنَّ الَّذِينَ يُجَادِلُونَ فِي آيَاتِ اللَّهِ بِغَيْرِ

Let us see now how the word is used in the Holy Qur-án. Its use in connection with some of the prophets may be disputed. But there are occasions where the word clearly carries a wider significance. For instance, when Moses finds his people guilty of the worship of a calf and accepts the excuse of his brother Aaron showing that he had no part in making the calf, he prays to Allah, saying, رَبِّ اغْفِرْ لِي وَارْحَمِي i.e. My Lord! grant protection to me and my brother (7: 151), this being the correct significance, for no sin was committed by him or his brother, and therefore it was a prayer to be protected from committing a sin. Again, in connection with prohibited foods, where permission is given to use prohibited food when compelled by necessity, it is contained in the following words: "But whoever is driven to necessity, not desiring, nor exceeding the limit, no sin shall be upon him: surely Allah is Forgiving (Ghafûr), Merciful" (2: 173). It will be noted that though it is expressly stated here that no sin rests upon a person in such a case, yet the Divine attribute following it is ghafûr, i.e. One granting protection, ordinarily rendered as Forgiving.

The following instances of the use of ghafr and its derivatives make the sense still clearer. At the end of the second chapter is taught a prayer in which occur the words رَاعِفْنَا عَنَا meaning, And pardon us and grant us protection and have mercy on us (2: 286). The word ighfir can here be rendered only as meaning grant protection, for if we render it as forgive the word becomes redundant, there being already the word pardon. Three distinct things are here prayed for, viz. (1) pardon for the sins already committed; (2) protection from sins to which one is liable; (3) mercy or favour from God. And the three supplications are well-arranged, for mercy or favour is shown only when a man is protected from the commission of sins, and this requires that if any fault has already been committed its evil consequences may not overtake a man. Again, we have in 17: 25 اَنْ تَكُونُوا صٰلِحِيْنَ قٰنِهٖ كَانَ لِلّٰهِ اٰيٰتٍ غٰفِرٌ i.e. If you are the doers of good deeds, then He is surely the Granter of protection to those who turn to Him frequently. Here I render Ghafûr not as the Forgiving, but as the Granter of protection, for there is no mention of sinners or sins here, and consequently no forgiveness of sins. For God to be Ghafûr here, the condition is, if you are ṣāliḥīn. Now, ṣāliḥ is one who does good deeds (ṣāliḥāt being the word which is throughout the Holy Qur-án used to signify good deeds, which are again and again commended), and it is for the doers of good deeds that Allah is said to be ghafûr, the sense being made still clearer by the concluding word awwābin, i.e. those who turn to Him again and again, a word always used in connection with the righteous servants. Hence, Ghafûr, in this case, is clearly the Granter of protection against the commission of sins to which a man is liable.

Another very clear instance of this use of the word is met with in 40: 7, where the angels are shown as praying for the righteous in the following words: Grant protection to those who turn to Thee and follow Thy way; where in the original the word ighfir is used, which cannot here be translated as meaning forgive, for not forgiveness of sins but protection from sins is the thing required for those who follow the way of Allah. And what follows there shows this to be the correct significance, for 40: 9, as it were, explains the meaning when it says: And keep them from evil deeds. The use of the word ighfir in 66: 8 is conclusive on this point, for there those who have entered paradise are made to say: "Our Lord! make perfect for us our light, and grant us protection," the words in the original being ighfir lanā, a prayer for the forgiveness of sins being quite out of question after entry into paradise.

The meaning of اِسْتَغْفِرْ لَذَنْبِكَ therefore is ask protection for your fault, i.e. against the imperfections of human nature which make a man liable to sin unless he is protected by Allah. This is the only significance which is in consonance with the character of the prophets of God as depicted in the Holy Qur-án. Another thing to be borne in mind, however, is that it is a mistake to consider the person addressed when in the authority that has come to them, there is naught in their breasts but (a desire) to become great which they shall never attain to; therefore seek refuge in Allah, surely He is the Hearing, the Seeing.

57 Certainly the creation of the heavens and the earth is greater than the creation of the men, but most people do not know.²¹⁹⁵

Ar. and.
Ar. nor.

58 And the blind and the seeing are not alike, nor those who believe and do good and the evil-doer; little is it that you are mindful.

59 Most surely the hour is coming, there is no doubt therein, but most people do not believe.

60 And your Lord says: Call upon Me, I will answer you; surely those who are too proud for My service shall soon enter hell abased.

The Power of Allah

61-64. Allah is the Maker of all things. 65, 66. He alone deserves to be worshipped. 67, 68. Creator of man.

61 Allah is He Who made for you the night that you may rest therein and the day to see; most surely Allah is Gracious to men, but most men do not give thanks.

62 That is Allah, your Lord, the Creator of every thing; there is no God but He; whence are you then turned away?

63 Thus were turned away those who denied the communications of Allah.

singular to be always the Holy Prophet himself. Very often in the Qur-ān it is the reader or any and every person that is addressed, and there is nothing to show that the Holy Prophet Muhammad is the person addressed here or in 47: 19, where the same phrase occurs again. For another explanation see 2307.

2195 By an-nās, or the men, some understand that ad-dajjāl, or the Antichrist, is meant (Ma'alim ut Tanzil), another indication that Antichrist is not the name of a person. The same authority adduces the following saying of the Holy Prophet: "Hishām bin Amir relates 69 Have you not seen those who dispute with respect to the communications of Allah: how are they turned away?

70 Those who reject the Book and that with which We have sent Our Apostle; but they shall soon come to know,

71 When the fetters and the chains shall be on their necks: they shall be dragged²¹⁹⁶

72 Into hot water, then in the fire shall they be burned;

73 Then shall it be said to them: Where is that which you used to set up 74 Besides Allah? They shall say: They are gone away from us, nay, we used not to call upon anything before. Thus does Allah confound the unbelievers.

75 That is because you exulted in the land unjustly and because you behaved insolently.

76 Enter the gates of hell to abide therein; evil then is the abode of the proud.

77 So be patient, surely the promise of Allah is true. So should We make you see part of what We threaten them with, or should We cause you to die. to Us shall they be returned.²¹⁹⁷

78 And certainly We sent apostles before you: there are some of them that We have mentioned to you and there are others whom We have not mentioned to you; and it was not meet for an apostle that he should bring a sign except with Allah's permission, but when the command of Allah came, judgment was given with truth, and those who treated (it) as a lie were lost.

having heard the Apostle of Allah saying that from the creation of man to the coming of the Hour there is no creation greater in temptation than that of the Antichrist." And the temptations of the present age bear testimony to the truth of these words. But the meaning is clear if we give an-nās its ordinary significance.

2196 A party of the Quraish were brought with chains on their necks after the battle of Badr, while another party, who fell on the field, were dragged into their graves to taste of the punishment of their evil deeds in the life after death.

2197 The statement is made only to impress that they must suffer the evil consequences of their deeds, whether the Prophet lives to see their punishment or dies before they are punished.

SECTION 9

The End of Opposition

79, 80. Allah's favours. 81-84. A lesson in the fate of previous nations.
85. Punishment is not averted when it comes.

79 Allah is He who made the cattle for you that you may ride on some of them, and some of them you eat.

80 And there are advantages for you in them, and that you may attain thereon a want which is in your breasts,^{2197A} and upon them and upon the ships you are borne.

81 And He shows you His signs: which then of Allah's signs will you deny?

82 Have they not then journeyed in the land and seen how was the end of those before them? They were more (in numbers) than these and greater in strength and in fortifications in the land, but what they earned did not avail them.

83 Then when their apostles came to them with clear arguments, they exulted in what they had with them of knowledge, and there beset them that which they used to mock.

84 But when they saw Our punishment, they said: We believe in Allah alone and we deny what we used to associate with Him.

85 But their belief was not going to profit them when they had seen Our punishment; (this is) Allah's law, which has indeed obtained in the matter of His servants, and there the unbelievers are lost.

ĤĀ MĪM

REVEALED AT MECCA

(6 sections and 54 verses)

SECTION 1

Invitation to the Truth

1-4. A revelation to announce good news and to warn. 5. Its rejection.
6-8. Believers and unbelievers.

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

3 A Book of which the verses are made plain, an Arabic Qur-ān for a people who know :

كِتَابٌ فَصَّلَتْ آيَاتُهُ قُرْآنًا عَرَبِيًّا

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Invitation to the truth.
- Sec. 2. The warning.
- Sec. 3. Man's evidence against himself.
- Sec. 4. Believers strengthened.
- Sec. 5. Effect of the revelation.
- Sec. 6. Gradual spread of truth.

General remarks.

THIS chapter bears the name of its initial letters, but the word fussilat, i.e. made plain, is added to distinguish it from other chapters of the same group. It is the second chapter of the Ĥā mīm group. As regards its subject-matter, date of revelation, and its connection with the preceding chapter, the introductory note to the last chapter is sufficient. The first section contains an invitation to the acceptance of the truth ; the second gives a warning in case of persistence in rejection ; the third refers to the evidence of man's own faculties against the rejection of truth ; the fourth shows that believers are strengthened by inspiration ; the fifth points to the effect of revelation, which gives life to those who are morally and spiritually dead and heals the spiritual diseases of man. But if all these warnings and arguments are not heeded, the doom is inevitable, the signs of which could be witnessed in the gradual spread of truth.

4 A herald of good news and a warner, but most of them turn aside so they hear not.

5 And they say : Our hearts are under coverings from that to which you call us, and there is a heaviness in our ears, and a veil hangs between us and you,²¹⁹⁸ so work, we too are working.

6 Say : I am only a mortal like you ; it is revealed to me that your God is one God, therefore follow the right way to Him and ask His forgiveness ; and woe to the polytheists,

7 (To) those who do not give alms and they are unbelievers in the hereafter.

8 (As for) those who believe and do good, they shall surely have a reward never to be cut off.

SECTION 2

The Warning

9-12. Disbelief in the Creator. 13. Warning like that of 'Ad and Samood. 14-18. How those people were dealt with.

9 Say : What ! do you indeed disbelieve in Him who created the earth in two periods, and do you set up equals with Him : that is the Lord of the worlds ?

10 And He made in it mountains above its surface, and He blessed therein and made therein its foods, in four periods :²¹⁹⁹ alike for the seekers.²²⁰⁰

قُلْ إِنِّي كُنْتُ مِنَ الْخَاسِرِينَ
الْأَرْضُ فِي يَوْمَيْنِ وَتَجْعَلُونَ لَهُ
أَنْدَادًا ذَٰلِكَ رَبُّ الْعَالَمِينَ ۖ
وَجَعَلَ فِيهَا دَارًا وَمِنْ فَوْهًا وَبَرَكَ
فِيهَا وَقَدَّرْنَا فِيهَا فُجُورًا وَبِرًّا
إِنَّا بِمَا تَعْمَلُونَ لَبِذِينَ ۖ

2199 Most of the commentators regard the four periods here as including the first two, so as to make the whole (including the two periods of v. 12) to be six periods, to make the statement tally with the description repeatedly given elsewhere in the Qur-án to the effect that the heavens and the earth were created in six periods. But I regard these passages in a different light. That the creation in six periods or days does not refer to the time actually taken in making the heavens and the earth is noted even by the earlier commentators ; for, in the first

11 Then He directed Himself to the heaven and it is a vapour, so He said to it and to the earth: Come both, willingly or unwillingly. They both said: We come willingly.²²⁰¹

12 So He ordained them seven heavens in two periods, and revealed in every heaven its affair: and We adorned the lower heaven with brilliant stars and (made it) to guard,* that is the decree of the Mighty, the Knowing.

13 But if they turn aside, then say: I have warned you of a scourge like the scourge of 'Ad and Samood.²²⁰²

14 When their apostles came to them from before them and from behind them,²²⁰³ saying, Serve nothing but Allah, they said: If our Lord had pleased He would certainly have sent down angels, so we are surely unbelievers in that with which you are sent.

15 Then as to 'Ad, they were unjustly proud in the land, and they said: Who is mightier in strength than we? Did they not see that Allah Who created them was mightier than they in strength, and they denied Our communications?

ثُمَّ اسْتَوَى إِلَى السَّمَاءِ وَهِيَ دُخَانٌ فَقَالَ لَهَا وَلِلْأَرْضِ ائْتِيَا طَوْعًا أَوْ كَرْهًا قَالَتَا أَتَيْنَا طَائِعِينَ ۝

فَقَضَاهُنَّ سَبْعَ سَمَوَاتٍ فِي يَوْمَيْنِ أَوْخَفِي فِي سَبْعِ آيَاتٍ أَمْرَهُمَا وَرَبُّنَا السَّمَاءُ الَّذِي يَصَابِعُ فِي وَحْظِهِ ذَلِكَ تَقْدِيرُ الْعَزِيزِ الْعَلِيمِ ۝ فَإِنْ أَعْرَضُوا فَقُلْ أَنْذَرْتُكُمْ صِغَةً ۝ فَمِثْلَ صِغَةِ عَادٍ وَثَمُودَ ۝

إِذْ جَاءَتْهُمْ الرُّسُلُ مِنْ بَيْنِ أَيْدِيهِمْ وَمِنْ خَلْفِهِمْ أَلَّا تَعْبُدُوا إِلَّا اللَّهَ قَالُوا لَوْ شَاءَ رَبُّنَا لَأَنْزَلْنَا مَلَائِكَةً فَإِنَّا بِمَا أُرْسِلْتُمْ بِهِ كَافِرُونَ ۝ فَأَمَّا عَادُ فَاسْتَكْبَرُوا فِي الْأَرْضِ بِغَيْرِ الْحَقِّ وَقَالُوا مَنْ أَشَدُّ مِنَّا قُوَّةً أَوَلَمْ يَرَوْا أَنَّ اللَّهَ الَّذِي خَلَقَهُمْ هُوَ أَشَدُّ مِنْهُمْ قُوَّةً وَكَانُوا بِآيَاتِنَا يَجْحَدُونَ ۝

place, the day is a particular period of time, the extent of which depends on certain circumstances relating to the earth and the sun, and it is those very things that are referred to as being created in so many days; and, secondly, because time itself is a created thing (JB). In fact, the six periods, or the two or four periods spoken of here, refer to so many stages in the creation of those things; and accordingly the creation of the heavens and the earth in six periods signifies the six stages through which they have passed; the same six stages are spoken of here with regard to the earth, the two periods of v. 12 being quite distinct from it.

2200 The meaning of this passage is that the foods which are made in the earth are equally accessible to all seekers.

2201 The reference here is to the Divine laws working throughout the universe and the whole of nature being subject to laws.

2202 The first thirteen verses of this chapter were recited by the Holy Prophet when 'Utba bin Rabi'a came to him with a message from the Quraish. The message was to the effect that the Prophet should discontinue speaking ill of their gods and condemning their ways, and then they would be willing to make him their chief, or give him the most beautiful woman in marriage, or collect wealth for him.

When 'Utba had delivered his message the Holy Prophet read these verses, but when he reached v. 13, warning the Meccans of the fate of 'Ad and Samood, 'Utba entreated him to speak no more, and went back to the Quraish to make known to them the Prophet's reply (Rz).

16 So We sent on them a furious wind in unlucky days, that We may make them taste the chastisement of abasement in this world's life; and certainly the chastisement of the hereafter is much more abasing, and they shall not be helped.²²⁰¹

17 And as to Samood, We showed them the right way, but they chose error above guidance,²²⁰⁵ so there overtook them the scourge of an abasing chastisement for what they earned.

18 And We delivered those who believed and guarded (against evil).

فَأَرْسَلْنَا عَلَيْهِمْ رِيحًا صَرْصَرًا فِي أَيَّامٍ مَّحْسُورَةٍ
لِّنُذِيقَهُمْ عَذَابَ الْخَزْزِيرِ فِي الْحَيَاةِ الدُّنْيَا
وَالْعَذَابُ لِلْآخِرَةِ أُخْرَىٰ قَوْمٍ لَا يُبْصِرُونَ
وَأَمَّا قَوْمُ فَهْرٍ فَهُمْ أَنَا ضَاكِبُونَ الْعَصَىٰ عَلَى

Man's Evidence against Himself

19-23. Testimony of ears and eyes. 24, 25. Excuses.

19 And on the day that the enemies of Allah shall be brought together to the fire, then they shall be formed into groups.

20 Until when they come to it, their ears and their eyes and their skins shall bear witness against them as to what they did.²²⁰⁶

21 And they shall say to their skins: Why have you borne witness against us? They shall say: Allah Who makes everything speak has made us speak, and He created you at first, and to Him you shall be brought back.

وَيَوْمَ يُجْشَرُ أَعْيُنُهُمْ إِلَىٰ النَّارِ فَهُمْ

2203 The coming of the prophets from before and behind signifies their impressing the truth of their message upon their people in every possible way. Some understand the coming of the prophets from near and from far (JB).

2204 The Quraish are warned in these words of an abasing punishment in this life, and a still more abasing punishment in the hereafter. By unlucky days are meant the days of drought.

2205 'Amy is metaphorically used in relation to the mind, as meaning an erring; the connection between the two meanings being the not finding or not taking the right way (MSB), or the being blind in respect of the mind (LL).

2206 The bearing of witness by the ears and the eyes and the skins shows the truth of the law that the consequences of evil deeds shall become manifest in the very parts and faculties which were employed in their performance. As in the material world we see that every

Believers strengthened

26-29. Plans of unbelievers to suppress the Qur-ān. 30-32. Believers strengthened by angels.

26 And those who disbelieve say: Do not listen to this Qur-ān and make noise therein, perhaps you may overcome.

27 Therefore We will most certainly make those who disbelieve taste a severe chastisement, and We will most certainly reward them for the evil deeds they used to do.

28 That is the reward of the enemies of Allah—the fire; for them therein shall be the house of long abiding; a reward for their denying Our communications.

وَقَالَ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا لَا تَسْمَعُوا لِهَذَا

Effect of the Revelation

33-36. Evil to be repelled with good. 37-39. It brings light and gives life.
40-43. Falsehood has no access to it. 44. It is a healing.

يُلْقِيهَا إِلَّا دُوحٌ عَظِيمٌ

2208 This verse and the one before it clearly show that it is in this life that the angels descend upon the faithful, giving them the joyful news that they should not have any fear. It is an error to think that this coming of the angels relates to the next life. It is here, when the faithful are persecuted and oppressed, and when the powers of evil are apparently in the act of overwhelming the believer, that those assurances are most needed, and the words نحن اولياءكم في الحياة الدنيا clearly show that it was here that they received these assurances. The angels' telling them in the life after death that they protected them from their enemies in a previous life is meaningless.

39 And among His signs is this, that you see the earth still, but when We send down on it the water, it stirs and swells;²²¹⁰ most surely He who gives it life is the Giver of life to the dead; surely He has power over all things.

40 Surely they who deviate from the right way concerning Our communications are not hidden from Us. What! is he then who is cast into the fire better, or he who comes safe on the day of resurrection? Do what you like, surely He sees what you do.

41 Surely those who disbelieve in the reminder when it comes to them, and most surely it is a Mighty Book:

42 Falsehood shall not come to it from before it nor from behind it: a revelation from the Wise, the Praised One.

لَا تَجْعَلُ لِلشَّيْطَانِ تَرْغَةً اسْتَعَاذَ

مِنْ خَلْفِهِ تَنْزِيلٌ مِّنْ حَكِيمٍ حَمِيدٍ

2209 The previous verse teaches the repelling of evil with good. This verse suggests another remedy for evil. Nazh is according to Rgh دخول في الامر لافساد, i.e. intrusion on or interference in an affair for the purpose of causing mischief in it, and the word is used in this sense in 12:100. The Prophet is here told that if his work is interfered with by the evil-doers he should seek refuge in Allah, and Divine help, which always comes to the righteous, would remove the interference and make truth triumphant.

2210 The still earth signifies land dried up and without herbage: its stirring indicates its moving with life, and its swelling, the producing of herbage. This is entirely metaphorical. It indicates that when Divine revelation comes to men it fills dead hearts with life. Attention is called to this in the words that follow. The effect of rain upon earth is likened to the effect of the Qur-ān upon the hearts of men, and thus attention is drawn to an evidence of the truth of the Qur-ān. The word dead, in the "Giver of life to the dead," signifies those who were spiritually dead.

Ar. thes.

44 And if We had made it a Qur-án in a foreign tongue, they would certainly have said: Why have not its communications been made clear? What! a foreign (tongue) and an Arabian!²²¹¹ Say: It is to those who believe a guidance and a healing;²²¹² and (as for) those who do not believe, there is a heaviness in their ears and it is obscure to them; these shall be called to from a far-off place.

Gradual spread of Truth

45-47. Certainty of the doom. 48. False gods will not help. 49. They despair when evil afflicts them. 50. Denial of the hour. 51. Prayer for its removal. 52-54. Truth gaining ground.

Ar. thy.

45 And certainly We gave the Book to Moses, but it has been differed about; and had not a word already gone forth from your Lord, judgment would certainly have been given between them; and most surely they are in a disquieting doubt about it.

46 Whoever does good, it is for his own soul, and whoever does evil, it is against it; and your Lord is not in the least unjust to the servants.

وَلَقَدْ آتَيْنَا مُوسَى الْكِتَابَ فَآخْتَلَفَ

فَعَلَيْهَا ۚ وَمَا رَبُّكَ بِظَلَّامٍ لِلْعَمَلِ ۝

2211 There seems to be a reference here to the prophecies which spoke of the coming of an Ishmaelite or an Arabian prophet. The reference to Moses in the next verse confirms this, because Moses spoke plainly of a prophet like himself appearing from among the brethren of the Israelites, who are no others than the Ishmaelites.

2212 The Qur-án is here called a healing because it was a remedy for the spiritual diseases which prevailed in the world. It is the book which proved itself to be a healing, because it found a nation affected with the worst possible spiritual and moral diseases, and within less than a quarter of a century cleansed a whole country and a whole nation of all those diseases. Its healing effect, however, has not been limited to Arabia, and to-day there is no people on the surface of the earth that does not bear witness to the great healing power of the Qur-án, which is so far-reaching in its effect that non-Muslims have benefited by it equally with, rather, in some cases, more than, the Muslims.

PART XXV

47 To Him is referred the knowledge of the hour. And there come not forth any of the fruits from their coverings, nor does a female bear, nor does she give birth, but with His knowledge; and on the day when He shall call out to them, Where are (those whom you called) My associates? they shall say: We declare to Thee, none of us is a witness.²²¹³

48 And away from them shall go what they called upon before, and they shall know for certain that there is no escape for them.

49 Man is never tired of praying for good, and if evil touch him, then he is despairing, hopeless.

50 And if We make him taste mercy from Us after distress that has touched him, he would most certainly say: This is of me,²²¹⁴ and I do not think the hour will come to pass, and if I am sent back to my Lord, I shall have with Him sure good: but We will most certainly inform those who disbelieved of what they did, and We will most certainly make them taste of hard chastisement.

51 And when We show favour to man, he turns aside and withdraws himself; and when evil touches him, he makes lengthy supplications.

52 Say: Tell me, if it is from Allah, then you disbelieve in it, who is in greater error than he who is in a prolonged opposition?

2215 People were being drawn to Islam from the borders of Arabia as well as from among the Meccans themselves. This was a clear sign that truth was advancing, notwithstanding the severest opposition, and that an unseen hand was working in support of the Holy Prophet; for, had it not been so, the strong and determined opposition it encountered would have utterly annihilated Islam. That was a sign for the Meccans. But the word afāq, meaning borders or extremities of the earth, or its remote sides, shows the meaning to be that Islam shall spread to the most distant regions of the earth, while anfusi-him denotes their own people, or the Arabians. What is stated here is this that Islam will quickly spread, not only in Arabia but in the remote regions of the earth, and this prophecy is contained in a chapter revealed early at Mecca, when the few Muslims were being severely persecuted and the message of Islam had apparently little hope of finding acceptance anywhere.

CHAPTER XLII
THE COUNSEL
(Ash-Shūrā)
REVEALED AT MECCA
(5 sections and 53 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Divine mercy in giving a warning.
- Sec. 2. A judgment shall be given.
- Sec. 3. Allah's dealing is just.
- Sec. 4. Believers should be patient.
- Sec. 5. Revelation guides aright.

The Title.

THIS is the third chapter of the Hā mim group, and is known as The Counsel. The title is taken from v. 38, which enjoins the Muslims to make it a rule to take counsel in all affairs of importance. The injunction lays down the basis of government by council or parliamentary government.

Context and subject-matter.

As regards the date of revelation and the context, see the introductory note to chapter 40. Having spoken of the consequences of the rejection of truth in the last chapter, we are here told that Divine mercy is predominant over all other Divine attributes, and accordingly the first section tells us that even the act of warning is a merciful act on the part of the Divine Being, for He reveals His will through His prophets, while His angels solicit forgiveness for men. Thus Allah is the true Protector, and it is through warning that a party is drawn into the merciful protection of Allah. The second section states that the Divine judgment must be given to settle differences. The third shows that Allah's dealing with men is just and none is destroyed unjustly. The fourth section calls attention to the fact that even the unjust are not suddenly punished for their shortcomings, but Allah, being their Creator, forbears with them and even removes their afflictions, therefore the believers must wait patiently, and meanwhile do good in accordance with the directions given them. The last section states that the Qur-ān, being a revelation from the Divine Being, guides aright, hence those who do not follow its directions will find themselves in an evil plight.

SECTION 1

Divine Mercy in giving a Warning

1-4. Allah ever reveals His will to Prophets. 5. Angels ask forgiveness for all on earth. 6. Allah watches all. 7. The Prophet warns. 8, 9. Allah is the true Protector.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 Praised, Glorious,*

2 Knowing, Hearing, Powerful God.²²¹⁶

3 Thus does Allah, the Mighty, the Wise, reveal to you, and (thus He revealed) to those before you.

Ar. thee.

Ar. thee.

4 His is what is in the heavens and what is in the earth, and He is the High, the Great.

5 The heavens may almost rend asunder from above them and the angels celebrate the praise of their Lord and ask forgiveness for those on earth;²²¹⁷ now surely Allah is the Forgiving, the Merciful.

6 And (as for) those who take guardians besides Him, Allah watches over them, and you have not charge over them.

Ar. thou hast.

7 And thus have We revealed to you an Arabic Qur-án, that you may warn the mother city and those around it, and that you may give warning of the day of gathering together wherein is no doubt;²²¹⁸ a party shall be in the garden and (another) party in the burning fire.

Ar. thee.

Ar. thou mayest.

Ar. thou mayest.

2216 The first two letters are the same as at the commencement of chapter 40. In the latter three 'ain stands for 'alim or Knowing, sin for sami' or Hearing, qáf for qadîr or Powerful.

2217 The significance is that the wickedness of man calls for immediate punishment, but the mercy of Allah withholds it. The rending asunder of the heaven is elsewhere used to signify Divine displeasure at the Christian doctrine of the divinity of Jesus. The Divine displeasure at the wickedness of man is very great, but the quality of His mercy supersedes all, so that the angels seek man's forgiveness. The angels' request for forgiveness to man shows that it is Allah Himself who desires to forgive man. The deeds of men do not merit forgiveness, but forgiveness is the attribute of the Divine Being, and that Divine attribute is exercised through the solicitude of the angels. The attributes with which the verse concludes corroborate this.

2218 The day of the gathering together, the yaum-ul-jam', seems to refer here to the first conflict between the Muslims, who are here called the party in the garden, or the successful

8 And if Allah had pleased He would surely have made them a single nation, but He makes whom He pleases enter into His mercy, and the unjust it is that shall have no guardian or helper.

Ar. nor.

9 Or have they taken guardians besides Him? but Allah is the Guardian, and He gives life to the dead, and He has power over all things.

SECTION 2

A Judgment shall be given

10-12. Allah judges all differences. 13. True religion of the prophets. 14. A term is appointed. 15. A conflict must take place. 16. Punishment of the unbelievers. 17, 18. The hour is near. 19. Power and Might of Allah.

10 And in whatever thing you disagree, the judgment thereof is (in) Allah's (hand); that is Allah, my Lord, on Him do I rely and to Him do I turn time after time.

11 The Originator of the heavens and the earth; He made mates for you from among yourselves, and mates of the cattle too, multiplying you thereby; nothing is like a likeness of Him; and He is the Hearing, the Seeing.²²¹⁹

12 His are the treasures of the heavens and the earth; He makes ample and straitens the means of subsistence for whom He pleases; surely He is Cognizant of all things.

13 He has made plain to you of the religion what he enjoined upon Noah and that which We have revealed to you, and that which We enjoined party, and the unbelieving Meccans, or the party in the burning fire, or the party that shall witness failure; thus prophesying success for the former and defeat for the latter. The next verse makes it clearer by suggesting that the faithful shall be made to enter into Divine mercy, which stands for the garden, and that the unjust Meccans shall be left helpless and without protection, which condition represents the burning fire.

Ar. thoe.

upon Abraham and Moses and Jesus, that keep to obedience and be not divided therein;²²²⁰ hard to the unbelievers is that which you call them to; Allah chooses for Himself whom He pleases, and guides to Himself him who turns (to Him) frequently.

14 And they did not become divided until after knowledge had come to them out of envy among themselves; and had not a word gone forth from your Lord till an appointed term, certainly judgment would have been given between them; and those who were made to inherit the Book after them are most surely in disquieting doubt concerning it.²²²¹

Ar. thy.

15 To this then go on inviting, and go on steadfastly on the right way as you are commanded, and do not follow their low desires, and say: I believe in what Allah has revealed of the Book, and I am commanded to do justice between you: Allah is our Lord and your Lord; we shall have our deeds and you shall have your deeds: no plea need there be (now) between us and you: Allah will gather us together, and to Him is the return.²²²²

Ar. between

16 And (as for) those who dispute about Allah after that obedience has been rendered to Him, their plea is null with their Lord, and upon them is

لَهُمْ جَهَنَّمَ دَاخِلَةً يُعَذِّبُهُمْ وَعَلِيمٌ

2220 Even so early did the Qur-án announce that the religion preached by the Prophet was not a new religion, but, so far as its basic principles were concerned, it was the same religion as was preached by Noah and Abraham and Moses and Jesus. In fact, it is a very conclusive evidence of the truth of Islam that its basic principles are the basic principles of the common religion of humanity.

2221 The persons spoken of here are those to whom the Prophet now delivered his message. The judgment in their case is postponed. The personal pronoun them in those who were made to inherit the Book after them refers to the prophets.

2222 These words point to the time when the Prophet found them absolutely unwilling to listen to his preaching, so he now gives them a warning that they will soon witness the evil consequences of their deeds on a day when the two parties shall gather, the words clearly implying a separation first. It is to this separation that the words no plea need there be now between us and you refer. Hence it is clear that even in this early revelation there is an obvious prophecy of the Holy Prophet's Flight.

Ar. thes. 17 Allah it is Who revealed the Book with truth, and the balance,²²²⁴ and what shall make you know that haply the hour be nigh.

Ar. remote. 18 Those who do not believe in it would hasten it on, and those who believe are in fear from it, and they know that it is the truth. Now most surely those who dispute obstinately concerning the hour are in a great error.

19 Allah is Benignant to His servants; He gives sustenance to whom He pleases; and He is the Strong, the Mighty.

SECTION 3

Allah's Dealing is Just

20-23. Every one reaps what he sows. 24. Truth will be established. 25, 26. Allah is Gracious. 27. Ampleness causes men to rebel. 28, 29. He multiplies His mercy.

20 Whoever desires the gain of the hereafter, We will give him more of that gain; and whoever desires the gain of this world, We give him of it, and in the hereafter he has no portion.

21 Or have they associates who have prescribed for them any religion that Allah does not sanction? And were it not for the word of judgment, decision would have certainly been given between them; and surely the unjust shall have a painful chastisement.²²²⁵

مَنْ كَانَ يُرِيدُ حَرْثَ الْآخِرَةِ نَزِدْ لَهُ
 فِي حَرْثِهِ ۚ وَمَنْ كَانَ يُرِيدُ حَرْثَ الدُّنْيَا
 نُؤْتِهِ مِنْهَا ۖ ذَوَالَهُ فِي الْآخِرَةِ مِنْ يَصْدِ
 أَمْ لَهُمْ شُرَكَاءُ شَرَعُوا لَهُمْ مِنَ الدِّينِ
 مَالَهُ يَأْذَنُ بِهِ اللَّهُ ۚ وَلَوْ لَا كَلِمَةُ
 الْفَصْلِ لَفُتْنَى بَيْنَهُمْ وَإِنَّ الظَّالِمِينَ
 لَهُمْ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٌ

²²²³ The reference in those who dispute about Allah after that obedience has been rendered to Him may be to the followers of earlier revelation, because their books required obedience to a prophet who should appear after them. Or the meaning may be, after people have begun to enter Islam (Bd).

²²²⁴ The construction is, Allah revealed the Book and the balance. The balance signifies the law (Bd, JB), by which the rights and obligations of men are weighed. Mark how material terms are converted into spiritual usage by the Holy Qur-án. A right realization of this point removes many of the difficulties in the study of the Holy Book.

²²²⁵ The word of judgment indicates a judgment already pronounced, that a respite shall be given to the unjust so that they may have an opportunity to reform themselves.

Ar. thou
will.

22 You will see the unjust fearing on account of what they have earned, and it must befall them; and those who believe and do good shall be in the meadows of the gardens; they shall have what they please with their Lord: that is the great grace.

23 That is of which Allah gives the good news to His servants, (to) those who believe and do good deeds. Say: I do not ask of you any reward for it but love for relatives;²²²⁶ and whoever earns good, We give him more of good therein; surely Allah is Forgiving, Grateful.

Ar. thayy

24 Or do they say: He has forged a lie against Allah? but if Allah pleased, He would seal your heart;²²²⁷ and Allah will blot out the falsehood and confirm the truth with His words;²²²⁸ surely He is Cognizant of what is in the breasts.

25 And He it is Who accepts repentance from His servants and pardons the evil deeds, and He knows what you do;

26 And He answers those who believe and do good deeds, and gives them more out of His grace; and (as for) the unbelievers, they shall have a severe chastisement.

وَيَزِيدَهُمْ مِنْ فَضْلِهِ وَالْكَافِرُ لَهُمْ
عَذَابٌ شَدِيدٌ ○

²²²⁶ Commentators generally think that the love enjoined here in respect of relationship signifies loving the relatives of the Prophet, but there is nothing in the words which entitles us to place that limitation upon the words, and the meaning is rejected by I'Ab (Bkh). The misunderstanding is due to a misconception of the meaning of illā (see 59). The meaning is not that love for relatives is a reward which the Prophet asks for himself. The correct significance of the words is that I do not ask of you any reward at all; what I ask you is to love your own relatives. The Arabs, closely related as they were to each other, were in a state of constant warfare. They are told to give up mutual warfare and to love each other. Or the meaning may be that the Prophet asked them to cease their persecution of him and to regard him with the love of a relative, as all the tribes were related to each other (I'Ab-Bkh).

²²²⁷ The sealing of the Prophet's heart does not imply its being sealed against the truth which was revealed to him, but the making of it secure against their abuses, for they abused the Prophet and called him an impostor (Bd). This significance is, moreover, in accordance with the context, for by blotting out the falsehood and confirming the truth, the abuses would be stopped, and thus his heart would be made secure against them.

²²²⁸ The words here imply the prophecies whose fulfilment would firmly establish the truth.

27 And if Allah should amplify the provision for His servants they would certainly revolt in the earth; but He sends it down according to a measure as He pleases; surely He is Aware of, Seeing, His servants.

28 And He it is Who sends down the rain after they have despaired, and He unfolds His mercy; and He is the Guardian, the Praised One.

29 And one of His signs is the creation of the heavens and the earth and what He has spread forth in both of them of living beings; and when He pleases He is all-powerful to gather them together.

وَلَوْ بَسَطَ اللَّهُ الرِّزْقَ لِعِبَادِهِ لَبَغَوْا فِي الْأَرْضِ وَلَكِنْ يَنْزِلُ بِقَدَرٍ مَّا يَشَاءُ إِنَّهُ بِعِبَادِهِ خَبِيرٌ بَصِيرٌ ۝

SECTION 4

Believers should be Patient

30-36. Divine dealing with men is characterized by mercy. 37, 38. Believers should avoid evil and be guided by counsel. 39-43. They have a right to defend themselves, but patience is better.

30 And whatever affliction befalls you, it is on account of what your hands have wrought, and (yet) He pardons most (of your faults).

31 And you cannot escape in the earth, and you shall not have a Guardian or a Helper besides Allah.

32 And among His signs are the ships in the sea like mountains.

33 If He pleases, He causes the wind to become still so that they lie motionless on its back; most surely there are signs in this for every patient, grateful one,

34 Or He may make them founder for what they have earned, and (even then) pardon most; ²²²⁹

وَمَا آصَابَكُمْ مِنْ مُصِيبَةٍ فَبِمَا كَسَبَتْ أَيْدِيكُمْ وَيَعْفُوا عَنْ كَثِيرٍ ۝

أَوْ يُوقِعَهُمْ فَبِمَا كَسَبُوا وَيَعْفُ عَنْ كَثِيرٍ ۝

2229 The ship in these two verses is the ship of the affairs of the unbelieving Meccans, which is ultimately to be wrecked, yet Allah deals with them mercifully by pardoning most of the wicked things that they do. The next verse makes this significance clear by drawing attention to the fact that the statement is a warning to those who dispute about the communications of Allah, i.e. the Meccans, that they shall find no refuge when their ship is wrecked.

35 And (that) those who dispute about Our communications may know; there is no place of refuge for them.

36 So whatever thing you are given, that is only a provision of this world's life, and what is with Allah is better and more lasting for those who believe and rely on their Lord.

37 And those who shun the great sins and indecencies, and whenever they are angry they forgive.

38 And those who respond to their Lord and keep up prayer, and their rule is to take counsel among themselves, and who spend out of what We have given them.²²³⁰

39 And those who, when great wrong afflicts them, defend themselves.²²³¹

40 And the recompense of evil is punishment like it, but whoever forgives and amends, he shall have his reward from Allah; surely He does not love the unjust.²²³²

2230 The occurrence in an early Meccan revelation of the words their rule is to take counsel among themselves is very significant. It should be noted that these early revelations contain the clearest prophecies of a conflict between the mighty forces of the Quraish and the few Muslims, and of the kingdom of Islam being established as a result of that conflict. This is one of the verses affording clear testimony of the latter statement. The Muslims are here enjoined as usual to observe prayer and to spend from what Allah has given them. Yet between these two injunctions, which always go together in the Holy Qur-ān, is placed a third: And their rule is to take counsel among themselves. It is clear that at this early period the Muslims had no important matters to decide for which they might have stood in need of counsel, yet between two injunctions which are the basis of a true Islamic life a third is inserted enjoining that, as a rule, counsel should be taken. The injunction is clearly meant to prepare them for transacting the momentous affairs of state and all matters connected with national weal or woe. In fact, the word amr, which I have translated as rule, means command; and amr-ul-Allah, or Allah's command, often signifies the establishment of the kingdom of God, which stands for an Islamic kingdom. The use of the word amr therefore here refers to the Islamic kingdom, the affairs of which must be transacted by counsel. The words mean that the Muslims shall be governed by counsel, because they are told that that which should be taken by them as a command should be a matter that has been settled by counsel. In this Islam has laid the basis of government by parliaments, and the idea found a clear practical expression in the early days of the Caliphate, when the Khalifa had to refer every important affair to a Majlis-i-Shura (council), and it is strange indeed that government by parliament is now looked upon by Europeans as an institution which is quite foreign to Islam and unsuited for the Muslim people.

2231 Intaḡara alone signifies he defended himself against his injurer (TA-LL); followed by min, it signifies the taking of revenge. The first meaning is applicable here, as it is not followed by min.

41 And whoever defends himself after his being oppressed, these it is against whom there is no way (to blame).

42 The way (to blame) is only against those who oppress men and revolt in the earth unjustly; these shall have a painful chastisement.

43 And whoever is patient and forgiving, that most surely is of the affairs the doing of which should be determined upon.

2232 A golden rule relating to forgiveness of evil is given here. The rule laid down is that evil must be requited by punishment proportionate thereto. Note here that punishment which is meted out for an evil is called a sayyiah or an evil, because the Arabs speak of the requital of an evil in terms of that evil (see 27). Also note that the punishment must be proportionate to the evil. A very just and necessary restriction. And this beautiful maxim is given by a man whose people were in the habit of slaughtering whole tribes for the most trifling fault of one member. Again, forgiveness is not neglected, nor preached in such a manner as to make it impracticable. There is in Islam neither the one extreme of tooth for tooth nor the opposite one of turning the left cheek when the right is smitten or giving away the cloak to one who has already wrongfully taken the coat of his brother; it is the golden and beautiful mean that forgiveness may be exercised if forgiveness will mend the matter and do good to the wrong-doer himself. The object to be kept in view is to amend, whether it may be attained by giving proportionate punishment or by exercising forgiveness.

2233 Note that abasement is again and again identified with the punishment of hell.

46 And they shall have no friends to help them besides Allah; and whomsoever Allah makes err,^a he shall have no way.

44

47 Harken to your Lord before there comes the day from Allah for which there shall be no averting; you shall have no refuge on that day, nor shall it be yours to make a denial.

Ar. thos.

Ar. thos.

48 But if they turn aside, We have not sent you as a watcher over them; on you is only to deliver (the message); and surely when We make man taste mercy from Us, he rejoices thereat; and if an evil afflicts them on account of what their hands have already done, then surely man is ungrateful.

Ar. females.

Ar. males.

49 Allah's is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth; He creates what He pleases; He grants to whom He pleases daughters and grants to whom He pleases sons,

50 Or He makes them of both sorts, male and female; and He makes whom He pleases barren; surely He is the Knowing, the Powerful.²²³⁴

51 And it is not for any mortal that Allah should speak to him except by revelation or from behind a veil, or by sending a messenger and revealing by His permission what He pleases;²²³⁵ surely He is High, Wise.

2234 The birth of a daughter was looked upon, by the Arabs as a calamity, this being due to the low position which women held in their society. The wonderful change brought about by Islam in the status of woman is clearly foreshadowed in this early Meccan revelation, where the daughter has the precedence over the son—the mention of daughters before the sons clearly implying that the grant of a daughter was as great a Divine favour as that of a son, if not greater. Contrast this with the condition of Arabia before the Holy Prophet: "And when a daughter is announced to one of them, his face becomes black and he is full of wrath. He hides himself from the people because of the evil of that which is announced to him. Shall he keep it alive with disgrace or bury it alive in the dust?" (16: 58, 59).

2235 This verse shows how Allah speaks to a person or makes known His will to him. Three modes of this are stated. (1) By wahy, which word is generally translated as meaning revelation. The primary significance of the word wahy is, however, الإشارة السريعة, i.e. a hasty suggestion (Rgh), and since the different kinds of revelation are spoken of here, the meaning intended must be the primary significance of the word. Hence the inspired word

Ar. thou
Ar. thou
dilest.

52 And thus²²³⁶ did We reveal to you an inspired book^{2236a} by Our command. You did not know what the Book was, nor (what) the faith (was), but We made it a light, guiding thereby whom We please of Our servants; and most surely you show the way to the right path :

Ar. thou
showest.

53 The path of Allah, Whose is whatsoever is in the heavens and whatsoever is in the earth; now surely to Allah do all affairs eventually come.

وَكَذَلِكَ أَوْجَيْنَا إِلَيْكَ رُوحًا مِّنْ أَمْرِنَا
مَا كُنْتَ تَدْرِي مَا الْكِتَابُ وَلَا الْإِيمَانُ
وَلَكِن جَعَلْنَاهُ نُورًا نَّهْدِي بِهِ مَن نَّشَاءُ
مِّنْ عِبَادِنَا وَإِنَّكَ لَتَهْدِي إِلَى صِرَاطٍ
مُّسْتَقِيمٍ ۝

صِرَاطِ اللَّهِ الَّذِي لَهُ مَا فِي السَّمَوَاتِ وَمَا
فِي الْأَرْضِ أَلَا إِلَى اللَّهِ تَصِيرُ الْأُمُورُ ۝

which enters the hearts of the prophets and of the righteous is called wahy or revelation, because it is like a hasty suggestion made directly to the heart of the inspired one (Rgh :

اللقاء في الروح). It is in this sense that a revelation is spoken of as being granted to the mother of Moses (28 : 7) and to the apostles of Jesus who were not prophets (5 : 111). Visions may be included in this. (2) The second mode of Allah's speaking to His servants is that He speaks from behind a veil, i.e. the words are heard by the person spoken to as from behind a veil. A voice is heard, but the utterer of the voice is not seen. (3) The third form of revelation is that in which an apostle—an angel—is chosen by the Almighty to deliver His message to the person to whom He wishes to speak. This is the surest and clearest form of revelation, and such is the revelation of the Qur-án as granted to the Holy Prophet, being recited by Gabriel. This is called روح متلو or revelation that is recited. This revelation is granted only to prophets, while the other two may also be granted to the righteous who are not raised to the dignity of prophethood. It should, however, be borne in mind that in all these cases the recipient of the revelation is granted certain other senses. He observes what others do not see and he hears words which others do not hear. It is, therefore, with what may be called the spiritual senses that he hears and sees and feels things which others do not hear, see, or feel.

2236 Thus refers to the last mode of granting revelation, because the Holy Qur-án is repeatedly spoken of as having been brought by the faithful spirit or the Angel Gabriel (2 : 97, 26 : 193).

2236a The use of the word ruh as meaning inspiration, and not the soul, is conclusive here. The ruh here is the Qur-án. Compare with this 17 : 85, and the use of the words amr-i-rabbi (by the command of my Lord) there with amr-i-nā (by Our command) here, and there remains not the shadow of a doubt that ruh in 17 : 85 means the Qur-án.

CHAPTER XLIII

THE EMBELLISHMENT

(Az-Zukhruf)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(7 sections and 89 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Divine Unity.
- Sec. 2. Polytheism condemned.
- Sec. 3. Allah's choice of a prophet.
- Sec. 4. A means of raising to eminence.
- Sec. 5. Pharaoh's opposition to Moses.
- Sec. 6. Jesus as a prophet.
- Sec. 7. The two parties.

The Title.

"THE EMBELLISHMENT" is the fourth chapter of the Ilâ mim group, and is so named from the mention of zukhruf in v. 35, where it is stated that the embellishments of lower life keep men back from the truth. The subject-matter and the date of revelation have been discussed in the introductory note to chapter 40.

Subject-matter.

The chapter opens with a declaration of the revelation of the Holy Qur-ân from the Almighty God, as do all the chapters of this group. It then states that notwithstanding the "extravagance" of the Arabs the reminder is not withheld from them. Divine Unity is then declared, because it is the chief object which Divine revelation must establish. The second section is devoted to a condemnation of the various sorts of polytheism. The third begins with a mention of Abraham, the father of many a chosen one of God, and after referring to the Prophet's rejection, answers the objection as to why an influential man was not chosen to convey the Divine message. The fourth follows, stating that the Qur-ân will make the nation rise to greatness, and, therefore, those who, being misled by evil companions, deny it, shall regret their deeds. The fifth shows how a great ruler like Pharaoh was destroyed when he opposed Moses, and the sixth refers to Jesus' prophethood and the idolaters' objection to it, and they are told that Jesus was only a prophet and his position affords no justification for their idolatry. The last section contrasts the fate of the two parties, the believers and the unbelievers.

SECTION 1

Divine Unity

1-4. An Arabic Qur-án. 5. Reminder is not withheld from an extravagant people. 6-8. Former nations mocked their apostles and were destroyed. 9-15. Unity of Allah inferred from His creation and His favours on man.

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 Praised, Glorious God,*

2 Consider^b the Book that makes manifest:

3 Surely We have made it an Arabic Qur-án that you may understand.

4 And surely it is in the original of the Book with Us, truly elevated, full of wisdom.²²³⁷

Or, eminence.

5 What! shall We then turn away the reminder from you altogether because you are an extravagant people?²²³⁸

6 And how many a prophet have We sent among the ancients.

7 And there came not to them a prophet but they mocked at him.

8 Then We destroyed those who were stronger than these in prowess, and the case of the ancients is effectual.²²³⁹

Ar example.
Or. has gone before.
Ar. thou
shouldst.

9 And if you should ask them,
Who created the heavens and the earth? they would most certainly say: The Mighty, the Knowing One, has created them:

حَمْدٌ

وَالْكِتَابِ الْمُبِينِ

إِنَّا جَعَلْنَاهُ قُرْآنًا عَرَبِيًّا لَعَلَّكُمْ تَعْقِلُونَ

وَأَنَّهُ فِي أُمِّ الْكِتَابِ لَدَيْنَا عَلَى حَكِيمَةٍ

أَنفَضِرْبَ عَنْكُمْ إِلَيْنِ كَوْمُضًا أَأَلَمْتُمْ

وَمَا مَسْرُوفِينَ

وَكَمْ أَرْسَلْنَا مِنْ نَبِيِّ فِي الْأَوَّلِينَ

وَمَا يَنْبِئُهُمْ مِنْ نَبِيِّ إِلَّا كَانُوا بِهِ

يَسْتَهْزِءُونَ

فَأَهْلَكْنَا أَسَدًا مِنْهُمْ بِطُغْيَانٍ وَكُفْرٍ

مِثْلَ الْأَوَّلِينَ

وَلَيْنَ سَاءَ لَهُمْ مَنْ خَلَقَ السَّمَوَاتِ الْأَرْضَ

لَيَقُولُنَّ خَلَقَهُنَّ الْعَزِيزُ الْعَلِيمُ

2237 Umm-ul-kitáb literally signifies mother or original of the Book, and the opening chapter of the Qur-án is also known by this name, because, in its essence, it contains the whole of the Qur-án. But here it signifies the original source from which the Qur-án comes, and the meaning is that the Qur-án cannot be destroyed because it exists in Divine Knowledge. The words, in fact, contain a prophecy, uttered at a time when the Prophet was alone and helpless, that the Qur-án shall be exalted in the world, for that is its position in Divine Knowledge. Another explanation of the words is that they refer to the clear prophecies of the advent of the Holy Prophet as stated in the Bible—for instance, Deut. 18: 15-18, which indicates the advent of the Holy Prophet, to whom alone it applies.

2238 Zikr may be translated here as meaning either the reminder or eminence. The meaning in the first case is that Allah would not refrain from admonishing a people who have become extravagant, and in the second case that He intends to raise a people to eminence who are so "extravagant" that there is no hope for their regeneration.

2239 مضى القول means the saying was effectual (LL). The ordinary significance is given in the margin.

10 He Who made the earth a resting-place for you, and made in it ways for you that you may go aright :

11 And He Who sends down water from the cloud according to a measure, then We raise to life thereby a dead country : even thus shall you be brought forth :²²⁴⁰

12 And He Who created pairs of all things, and made for you of the ships and the cattle what you ride on,

13 That you may firmly sit on their backs, then remember the favour of your Lord when you are firmly seated thereon, and say : Glory be to Him Who made this subservient to us and we were not able to do it, 14 And surely to our Lord we must return.

15 And they assign to Him a part of His servants ; man, to be sure, is clearly ungrateful.

الَّذِي جَعَلَ لَكُمُ الْأَرْضَ مَهْلًا وَجَعَلَ
لَكُمْ فِيهَا سُبُلًا لَعَلَّكُمْ تَهْتَدُونَ ۝
وَالَّذِي نَزَّلَ مِنَ السَّمَاءِ مَاءً يَفْعَلُ بِهِ
فَأَنْشُرْنَا بِهِ بَلْدَةً مَيِّتَةً كَذَلِكَ نَحْيِي
وَالَّذِي خَلَقَ الْأَزْوَاجَ كُلَّهَا وَجَعَلَ

الْإِنْسَانِ لَكُفُورٌ مِّمَّنْ ۝

SECTION 2

Polytheism condemned

16-19. They ascribe daughters to Allah. 20-23. Following their forefathers. 24, 25. Fate of those who reject the truth.

16 What! has He taken daughters to Himself of what He Himself creates and chosen you to have sons?*

17 And when one of them is given news of that of which he sets up a likeness for the Beneficent God, his face becomes black and he is full of rage.

18 What! that which is made in ornaments and which in contention is unable to make plain speech!²²⁴¹

الْخِصَامِ غَيْرَ مُبِينٍ ۝

* 1376.

2240 Attention is called here to the laws prevailing in the physical world to impress the need of similar laws in the spiritual world. As rain descending from heaven quickens a dead earth, so Divine revelation would regenerate or raise to life the Arabians, who, sunk in ignorance and superstitions, were spiritually, morally, and intellectually a dead people.

2241 The reference in this verse is to the idols which were bedecked with ornaments. The inability of the idols to speak is adduced by Abraham as an argument against their divinity (21 : 63), and the same inability of the idols to answer the prayers of their devotees is advanced as an argument against the divinity of the golden calf (20 : 89).

19 And they make the angels—them who are the servants of the Beneficent God—female (divinities).^a What! did they witness their creation? Their evidence shall be written down and they shall be questioned.

20 And they say: If the Beneficent God had pleased, we should never have worshipped them. They have no knowledge of this; they only lie.

21 Or have We given them a book before it so that they hold fast to it?

22 Nay! they say: We found our fathers on a course, and surely we are guided by their footsteps.

23 And thus, We did not send before you any warner in a town, but those who led easy lives in it said: Surely we found our fathers on a course, and surely we are followers of their footsteps.

24 (The warner) said: What even if I bring to you a better guide than that on which you found your fathers? They said: Surely we are unbelievers in that with which you are sent.

25 So We inflicted retribution on them, then see how was the end of the rejecters.

وَجَعَلُوا الْمَلَائِكَةَ الَّذِينَ هُمْ عِبْدُ الرَّحْمَنِ
إِنَاثًا أَنَّهُمْ وَإِخْوَانُهُمْ سَبَّحُوا

وَقَالُوا لَوْ شَاءَ الرَّحْمَنُ مَا عَبَدْنَاهُمْ مَالَهُمْ
يَدُكَ مِنْ عِلْمِنَا هُمْ لَا يَخْرُصُونَ
أَمْ أُنِيسَهُمْ كُتُبًا مِّن قَبْلِهِ فَهُمْ بِهِ
مُسْتَسْكُونَ ۝

بَلْ قَالُوا إِنَّا وَجَدْنَا آبَاءَنَا عَلَىٰ أُمَّةٍ
وَرَأَيْنَا عَلَىٰ آبَائِهِمْ مُّقَنَّدُونَ ۝

وَكَذَٰلِكَ مَا أَرْسَلْنَا مِن قَبْلِكَ فِي قَرْيَةٍ
مِّن نَّذِيرٍ إِلَّا قَالَ مُتْرِكُوهَا هَآءَ إِنَّا
وَجَدْنَا آبَاءَنَا عَلَىٰ أُمَّةٍ وَإِنَّا عَلَىٰ
آثَرِهِمْ مُّقْتَدُونَ ۝

قُلْ أَوْ لَوْ أَنَّكُمْ تَأْتُونَنَا بِدُخَانٍ مِّمَّا
عَلَيْهِمْ إِنَّا كَفُورُونَ ۝

فَآتَيْنَاهُمُ أَهْلَهُم فَأَنظَرُوا كَيْفَ كَانَ
عَاقِبَةُ الْمُكَذِّبِينَ ۝

SECTION 3

Allah's Choice of a Prophet

26-28. Abraham's preaching. 29, 30. Denial of the Prophet. 31-35. Why choice did not fall upon some renowned leader.

26 And when Abraham said to his sire and his people: Surely I am clear of what you worship, 27 Save Him Who created me, for surely He will guide me.

28 And he made it a word to continue in his posterity that they may return.²²⁴²

وَلَاذَ قَالَ إِبْرَاهِيمُ لِأَبِيهِ وَقَوْمِهِ إِنَّنِي
بَرَاءٌ مِّمَّا تَعْبُدُونَ ۝

إِلَّا الَّذِي فَطَرَنِي فَإِنَّهُ سَيَهْدِينِ ۝
وَجَعَلَهَا كَلِمَةً بَاقِيَةً فِي عَقِبِهِ
لَعَلَّهُمْ يَرْجِعُونَ ۝

2242 This shows that the Arabs possessed enduring traditions that their great ancestor Abraham was a preacher of Unity.

29 Nay! I gave them and their fathers to enjoy until there came to them the truth and an Apostle making manifest (the truth).

30 And when there came to them the truth they said: This is enchantment, and surely we are disbelievers in it.

31 And they say: Why was not this Qur-án revealed to a man of importance in the two towns?²²⁴³

Ar. thy. 32 Will they distribute the mercy of your Lord? We distribute among them their livelihood in the life of this world, and We have exalted some of them above others in degrees, that some of them may take others in subjection; and the mercy of your Lord is better than what they amass.²²⁴⁴

33 And were it not that all people had been a single nation, We would certainly have assigned to those who disbelieve in the Beneficent God (to make) of silver the roofs of their houses and the stairs by which they ascend,²²⁴⁵

34 And the doors of their houses and the couches on which they recline,

Or, the lower. 35 And (other) embellishments; and all this is naught but provision of this world's life, and the hereafter is with your Lord only for those who guard (against evil).

بَلْ سَخَّرْنَا هَؤُلَاءِ وَاَبَاءَهُمْ حَتَّىٰ جَاءَهُمُ

وَلَوْ لَا اَنْ يَّكُوْنَ التَّاسِئَةُ وَاَحَدَةً
جَعَلْنَا لِمَنْ يَّكْفُرْ بِالرَّحْمٰنِ لِيُؤْتِيَهُمْ سُلْطٰنًا
مِّنْ رِّضْنٰٓةٍ وَمَعٰرِجَ عَلَيْهِمْ يَظْهَرُوْنَ ۝^{٢٢٤٤}

وَلِيُخْرِجُوْهُمْ مِنْ كُلِّ اِلْمَامٍ مِّنَ الْيَٰسْرِ
الدُّنْيَا وَالْآخِرَةِ عِنْدَ رَبِّكَ لِلْمُتَّقِيْنَ ۝^{٢٢٤٦}

2243 The two towns referred to are Mecca and Táif (Bd). They would not follow any but an important man of the world. They could bow before men of the world, but not before a man of God. So low and earthly were their desires that moral greatness possessed no value in their eyes.

2245 Gold and silver have no worth or value in the sight of Allah, and He would grant these things only to unbelievers in full abundance, were it not that most people would be misled by these worldly temptations.

SECTION 4

A Means of raising to Eminence

36, 37. Evil associates. 38, 39. Their regret. 40. They are deaf and blind. 41, 42. The evil consequences. 43. The Prophet to hold fast to revelation. 44. It shall raise the Arabs to eminence. 45. All prophets preached Unity.

36 And whoever turns himself away from the remembrance of the Beneficent God, We appoint for him a devil, so he becomes his associate.²²⁴⁶

37 And most surely they turn them away from the path, and they think that they are guided aright :

38 Until when he comes to Us, he says: O would that between me and you there were the distance of the East and the West;²²⁴⁷ so evil is the associate!

39 And since you were unjust, it will not profit you this day that you are sharers in the chastisement.

40 What! can you then make the deaf to hear or guide the blind and him who is in clear error?

41 But if We should take you away, still We shall inflict retribution on them;

42 Rather We will certainly show you that which We have promised²²⁴⁸ them; for surely We are the possessors of full power over them.

43 Therefore hold fast to that which has been revealed to you; surely you are on the right path.

2246 As the words that follow show, the devil here is no other than the evil companion of man who leads him to evil.

2247 The word which I translate the East and the West is mashriqain, which would literally signify the two Easts. But the dual number in such cases often denotes the thing mentioned with its opposite. Thus mashriqain means the place of sunrise and the place of sunset (M, O-LL).

2248 The clear promise of punishment overtaking the opponents of the Holy Prophet in his lifetime is here asserted in forcible language. The first verse only describes the general law of the punishment of the wicked; even if the Prophet dies, the wicked shall meet their doom. But that the general statement should not give rise to any misconception, we are immediately told that the Prophet would see the discomfiture of his enemies with his own eyes. I translate au, in the commencement of this verse, as meaning rather, for au is equivalent to bal in a case of amplification of speech (T, S, Mughnee, Q). See LL.

Pharaoh's Opposition to Moses

46, 47. Pharaoh and his people mock Moses' message. 48-54. Signs are shown, but in vain. 55, 56. They are drowned.

46 And certainly We sent Moses with Our communications to Pharaoh and his chiefs, so he said: Surely I am the apostle of the Lord of the worlds.

47 But when he came to them with Our signs, lo! they laughed at them.

48 And We did not show them a sign but it was greater²²⁵⁰ than its like, and We overtook them with chastisement that they may turn.

Ar. thy.

Ar. thee.

49 And they said: O enchanter! call on your Lord for our sake, as He has made the covenant with you; we shall surely be the followers of the right way.²²⁵¹

50 But when We removed from them the chastisement, lo! they broke the pledge

51 And Pharaoh proclaimed amongst his people: O my people! is not the kingdom of Egypt mine? And these rivers flow beneath me; do you not then see?

وَلَقَدْ أَرْسَلْنَا مُوسَىٰ بِآيَاتِنَا إِلَىٰ فِرْعَوْنَ
وَمَلَائِكِهِ فَقَالَ إِنِّي رَسُولُ رَبِّ الْعَالَمِينَ
فَلَمَّا جَاءَهُمْ بِآيَاتِنَا إِذْ هُمْ يَنْتَهِسُونَ
يَضْحَكُونَ ۖ

وَمَا نُرِيهِمْ مِنْ آيَةٍ إِلَّا هِيَ أَكْبَرُ مِنْ أُخْتِهَا
وَأَخَذْنَاهُمْ بِالْعَذَابِ لَعَلَّهُمْ يَرْجِعُونَ
وَقَالُوا يَا أَيُّهَا السِّحْرُ ادْعُ كُنَّا رَبَّكَ يَمَّا
عَمَدَ عِنْدَكَ إِنَّا لَمُهْتَدُونَ ۖ
فَلَمَّا كَشَفْنَا عَنْهُمْ الْعَذَابَ إِذَا هُمْ
يَنْكُرُونَ ۖ

وَنَادَىٰ فِي قَوْمِهِ قَالَ يَقَوْمِ
الْيَسَعَ لِمَ تَمُوتُونَ وَهَذِهِ الْأَنْهَارُ تَجْرِي
مِنْ تَحْتِي ۚ أَفَلَا تُبْصِرُونَ ۖ

²²⁴⁹ The meaning is that the Qur-án shall raise the Prophet's people to a state of eminence; for gitr means eminence (LL).

²²⁵⁰ The meaning is that great signs were shown, each sign being greater than the one which preceded it.

²²⁵¹ The covenant made was that punishment would only be inflicted if the truth was rejected. See Exod^{ch.} 8, from which it appears that every time a sign was shown Pharaoh entreated Moses to pray for the removal of the punishment, promising that he would not in that case oppose him.

52 Nay! I am better than this fellow, who is contemptible, and who can hardly speak distinctly :

53 But why have not bracelets of gold been put upon him,²²⁵² or why have there not come with him angels as companions ?²²⁵³

54 So he incited his people to levity and they obeyed him : surely they were a transgressing people.

55 Then when they displeased Us, We inflicted retribution on them, so We drowned them all together, 56 And We made them a precedent and example to the later generations.

2252 Pharaoh's suggestion is that if Moses were the apostle of an Almighty God he should have been made a king, for bracelets of gold signify abundance of wealth. It is shown here that Pharaoh's objection to Moses was similar to the objection of the Quraish against the Holy Prophet.

2253 That is, Moses should have come with angels, as a king comes with his armies.

2254 The Qur-an condemns the doctrine of attributing children to the Almighty in many places. Such a condemnation is contained in this very chapter in the section preceding the last. But when the case of Jesus was cited, the unbelievers objected to the respect shown to him when their own idols were condemned. This is the meaning of the words occurring in the next verse: Are our gods better, or is he? Why should not the same honour be shown to their national gods as was shown to the god of another nation - for was not Jesus accepted as God by the Christians?

60 And if We please, We could make among you angels to be successors in the land.

61 And most surely it is a knowledge of the hour,²²⁵⁶ therefore have no doubt about it and follow me: this is the right path.

62 And let not the devil prevent you; surely he is your open enemy.

63 And when Jesus came with clear arguments, he said: I have come to you indeed with wisdom, and that I may make clear to you part of what you differ in; so be careful of (your duty to) Allah and obey me:

64 Surely Allah is my Lord and your Lord, therefore serve Him; this is the right path:

65 But parties from among them differed, so woe to those who were unjust because of the chastisement of a painful day.

66 Do they wait for aught but the hour,²²⁵⁷ that it should come upon them all of a sudden while they do not perceive?

67 The friends shall on that day be enemies one to another, except those who guard (against evil).

2255 This verse contains the answer to the objection of the Quraish. Jesus was not honoured for being the god of a people, but because he was a righteous servant of Allah on whom He had bestowed favours. Not only was Jesus the recipient of Divine favours, but he was also an example of virtue for the Israelites to whom he was sent as a prophet, a model whom they could imitate in righteousness. The idol-worshippers, on the other hand, represented even their great men as sunk in immorality. As an instance, one may cast a cursory glance at the Puranas of the Hindus, and it will be found that even such Hindu gods as Shiva are represented as so deeply sunk in immorality as to cause the ordinary man to shudder in disgust.

2256 The hour signifies the hour of the departure of prophethood from the house of Israel. Such is the clear significance of the parable of the vineyard in Matt. 21: 33, Mark 12: 1, and Luke 20: 9, which ends with these remarkable words: "Therefore I say unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof" (Matt. 21: 43). Prophethood had long remained in the house of Israel, and, as history shows Jesus was the last prophet of the Mosaic dispensation. Is it not strange that a nation in which prophet after prophet had appeared should witness such an entire change with the advent of Jesus, after whom no single prophet appeared? It is in this sense that Jesus is a knowledge of the hour, for the hour signifies the doom of a people, and in this case it was the doom of the Israelites.

2257 This hour signifies the doom of the Quraish.

71 There shall be sent round to them golden bowls and drinking-cups, and therein shall be what their souls yearn after and (wherein) the eyes shall delight, and you shall abide therein.

72 And this is the garden which you are given as an inheritance on account of what you did.²²⁵⁹

73 For you therein are many fruits of which you shall eat.

2258 It is with their wives that the faithful are told to enter paradise, and yet Islam is said to deny a soul to woman. The word zauj also signifies a like, a fellow, an associate, or a comrade (LL).

2259 The companions were made to inherit gardens in this life as a proof that the promise of gardens in the next life was true.

2260 Malik means literally Master. Here it signifies the angel appointed over those in hell.

80 Or do they think that We do not hear what they conceal and their secret discourses? Aye! and Our messengers with them write down.²²⁶²

81 Say: If the Beneficent God has a son, I am the foremost of those who serve.²²⁶³

82 Glory to the Lord of the heavens and the earth, the Lord of power, from what they describe.

83 So leave them plunging into false discourses and sporting until they meet their day which they are threatened with.

84 And He it is Who is God in the heavens and God in the earth; and He is the Wise, the Knowing.

85 And blessed is He Whose is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and what is between them, and with Him is the knowledge of the hour, and to Him shall you be brought back.

86 And those whom they call upon besides Him have no authority for intercession, but he who hears witness of the truth and they know (him).²²⁶⁴

إِلَّا مَنْ شَهِدَ بِالْحَقِّ وَهُمْ يَعْلَمُونَ

2261 The unbelievers are told that they should not think that they have settled the affair of the Holy Prophet by their plans to kill him, for it is Allah who really settles all affairs.

2262 The words contain a clear reference to the plots against the Holy Prophet.

2263 The significance of this verse has been much misunderstood. It does not mean that if God had a son the Prophet would be the foremost of those who serve that son. It states that when a man serves God he is metaphorically called a son of God, and therefore the Holy Prophet, being the foremost of those who serve, would be a son in that sense. This verse should in fact be read along with 39:4, where it is said: "If Allah desire to take a son to Himself, He should surely choose those He pleases from what He has created." Thus the relation of sonship to God is really the relation of a chosen servant to the master. If therefore God had a son, the Prophet had the foremost claim to that dignity. In a literal sense, or in the sense in which the Christians and others attributed a son to God, God had no son, but metaphorically a chosen servant of God could be called His son. See also 2155. Or, the in may be here naftyah, the meaning being: "The Beneficent God has no son, so I am . . ." Thus the very use of the word Rahmān here negatives His having a son, for which see 1571.

2264 The bearer of the witness of truth is no other than the Holy Prophet, and they know him well, for he was the Ameen who had never told a lie. They had seen also the fulfilment of his prophecies.

The verse tells us that a clear proof of the intercession of the Holy Prophet shall be given

Ar. thou
shouldst.

87 And if you should ask them who created them, they would certainly say: Allah. Whence are they then turned back?

88 Consider* his cry: O my Lord! surely they are a people who do not believe.²²⁶⁵

89 So turn away from them and say, Peace, for they shall soon come to know.²²⁶⁶

وَلَيْنَ سَأَلْتَهُمْ مَنْ خَلَقَهُمْ لَيَقُولُنَّ
اللَّهُ فَآلَيْ يُؤْتُونَ ۖ
وَقِيلَ لَهُ رَبِّ إِنَّا هُوَ لَا فَوْقَ ۖ
لَا يُؤْمِنُونَ ۖ
فَاصْفُرْ عَنْهُمْ وَقُلْ سَلَامٌ فَسَوْفَ يَكْفُرُونَ ۖ

by raising his followers to dignity while his enemies are discomfited, their idols being unable to intercede on their behalf. It affirms in clear words the intercession of the Holy Prophet on behalf of his followers. For the meaning of intercession and its object see 79, 339, and 607.

2265 After years of hard work among them and after being subjected to every kind of persecution, and lastly finding them planning against his very life, the Holy Prophet still prays to Allah not to inflict punishment upon his opponents. He, however, unburdens his mind in the mildest possible terms: "O my Lord! surely they are a people who do not believe." One would in vain search for another such example of heroic fortitude under trials and loving sympathy for fellow-men.

2266 The turning away from them and saying "Peace" are clear prophecies of the Flight. It should be noted that early Meccan revelation contains undeniable prophecies of all the important later events in the life of the Holy Prophet; the fact that a particular event is prophesied in a certain revelation does not settle the date of that revelation. It may even be that this turning away did not mean actually departing from Mecca, but leaving the opponents in the condition they were in.

رَبَّنَا اكْشِفْ عَنَّا الْعَذَابَ إِنَّا مُّؤْمِنُونَ disappeared from the world. A prophet's advent is always preceded by such darkness, and when the Holy Prophet Muhammad (may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him!) made his appearance, such darkness prevailed in all countries. This night is called a blessed night because in it the world received the greatest manifestation of Divine light.

2268 Because Divine revelation distinguishes truth from falsehood and reveals the treasures of wisdom to men. According to some, lailat-ul-qadr signifies the whole period during which a prophet is engaged in preaching the truth revealed to him by Allah. See 2778.

2269 Dukhān has other meanings than smoke, and the commentators agree on the basis of highly trustworthy reports that its meaning here is drought. According to TA, dukhan means al-jadab, i.e. dearth or drought, and al-ju' or hunger, for (the drought brought on such misery that) the hungry man beheld smoke between him and the sky, superinduced by the severity of hunger. Others, however, say the real reason why hunger is called dukhan is that because of the dry earth in a drought dust rises, creating a dusty atmosphere which is likened to smoke, and for this reason a year of hunger or drought is called a dusty year or dusty hunger. See also LL, where, however, the words "the hungry once saw a smoke between him and the sky" are a wrong translation of the original words. The chapter, as the whole tenor of it shows, belongs to the early Meccan period. The suggestion that this verse and those that follow, up to the 16th, or according to some only vv. 15 and 16, belong to Medina, is entirely without a foundation. The statements made in these verses are all prophetic, and such is also the statement of v. 15, We will remove the punishment a little, because the removal of the drought was followed by the "violent seizing" which brought on the conquest of Mecca. Bkh has the following reference to it: "When the Quraish opposed the Holy Prophet (may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him!) he prayed that they might be overtaken by years of drought like the years of Joseph (i.e. seven years); so famine and distress overtook them until they ate bones and dead bodies, and a man used to look to heaven, and he saw between him and it something like smoke on account of hard affliction."

25 How many of the gardens and fountains have they left!

26 And cornfields and noble places!

in they rejoiced;

28 Thus (it was), and We gave them as a heritage to earth did not weep for them, nor were they respited.²²⁷³

SECTION 2

Good and Evil Rewarded

30-33. Israelites delivered from Pharaoh. 34-36. The Quraish deny responsibility for actions. 37. Destruction of Tubba's people. 38-42. Certainty of the judgment.

30 And certainly We delivered the children of Israel from the abasing chastisement,

31 From Pharaoh; surely he was haughty, (and) one of the extravagant.

32 And certainly We chose them, having knowledge, above the nations.

33 And We gave them of the communications wherein was clear blessing.

34 Most surely these do say:

35 There is naught but our first death and we shall not be raised again.

36 So bring our fathers
(back), if you are truthful.

37 Are they better or the people of Tubba?²²⁷⁴ and those before them? We destroyed them, for surely they were guilty.

38 And We did not create the heavens and the earth and what is between them in sport.

وَلَقَدْ بَعَثْنَا نَبِيًّا إِسْرَءِيلَ مِنَ الْعَذَابِ
الْمُهِينِ ۝
مِنْ فِرْعَوْنَ إِنَّهُ كَانَ عَالِيًا مِّنَ
النَّاسِ فِينِ ۝
وَلَقَدْ اخْتَرْنَاهُمْ عَلَىٰ أَعْيُنِنَا الْعَالَمِينَ ۝
وَأَيْنَاهُمْ مِّنَ الْآيَاتِ مَا يَذَكِّرُنَا لِمُنْذِرِينَ
إِن هُوَ إِلَّا يَنْفَوُونَ ۝
إِن هِيَ إِلَّا أَمْوَاتُنَا الْأُولَىٰ وَمَا نَحْنُ بِمُنْذِرِينَ ۝
فَأْتُوا بِآيَاتِكُمْ إِن كُنْتُمْ صَادِقِينَ ۝
أَهُمْ خَيْرٌ أَمْ قَوْمُ بُيُوتِهِمْ وَالَّذِينَ بَيْنَ يَدَيْهِمْ
أَهْلُ كُفْرِهِمْ إِنَّهُمْ تَكُونُوا عَجِيزِينَ ۝
وَمَا خَلَقْنَا السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضَ وَمَا
بَيْنَهُمَا الْبَاطِلِينَ ۝

2273 The weeping for a dead man signifies the remembering of his good qualities or actions, which often bring tears to the eyes. The meaning of the heaven and the earth not weeping for them is that they neither had relations with the Divine Being nor had they done anything for the good of men, so that their good qualities should have been remembered either in heaven or on earth.

2274 The kings of the Hamyarites bore the title Tubba' (Kf, JB).

39 We did not create them both but with the truth, but most of them do not know.

40 Surely the day of separation is their appointed term, of all of them;

41 The day on which a friend shall not avail (his) friend aught, nor shall they be helped,

42 Save those on whom Allah shall have mercy; surely He is the Mighty, the Merciful.

مَا خَلَقْنَاهُمَا إِلَّا بِالْحَقِّ وَلَكِنَّ أَكْثَرَهُمْ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ
 إِنَّ يَوْمَ الْفَصْلِ مِيقَاتُهُمْ أَجْمَعِينَ
 يَوْمَ لَا يُغْنِي عَنْكَ قَوْلُ شَيْئٍ وَلَا لَهُمْ مُنْصَرُونَ
 إِلَّا مَنْ رَحِمَ اللَّهُ إِنَّهُ هُوَ الْوَهَّابُ الرَّحِيمُ

SECTION 3

Good and Evil Rewarded

43-50. Suffering of the evil-doers. 51-57. The faithful attain success.
 58, 59. The end to be waited for.

43 Surely the tree of the Zaqqum,*

44 Is the food of the sinful,

45 Like dregs of oil; it shall boil in (their) bellies,

46 Like the boiling of hot water.

47 Seize him, then drag him down into the middle of the hell;

48 Then pour above his head of the torment of the boiling water:

Ar. thou art 49 Taste; you forsooth are the mighty, the honourable:²²⁷⁵

50 Surely this is what you disputed about.

51 Surely those who guard (against evil) are in a secure place,

52 In gardens and springs;

53 They shall wear of fine and thick silk, (sitting) face to face;

54 Thus (shall it be), and We will unite them with pure, beautiful ones.^b

b 2356.

55 They shall call therein for every fruit in security;

إِنَّ شَجَرَةَ الزَّقُّومِ
 طَعَامُ الْأَشِيمِ
 كَالْمُهْلِ يَغْلِي فِي الْبُطُونِ
 كَغَلِي الْحَمِيمِ
 خَذُّوا فَاغْتَلَوْهُ إِلَىٰ سَوَاءٍ الْجَحِيمِ
 نَسُوبُوا أَتَوَىٰ رَأْسَهُ مِنْ عَذَابِ الْجَحِيمِ
 ذُقْ إِنَّكَ أَنْتَ الْعَزِيزُ الْكَرِيمُ
 إِنَّ هَذَا مَا كُنْتُمْ بِهِ تَمْتَرُونَ
 إِنَّ الْمُتَّقِينَ فِي مَقَامٍ أَمِينٍ
 فِي جَنَّاتٍ وَعُيُونٍ
 يَلْبَسُونَ مِنْ سُدُسٍ وَمِنْ سُدُسٍ مُتَقِيلِينَ
 كَذَلِكَ وَرَوْنَاهُمْ مَحْجُورِينَ
 يَدْعُونَ فِيهَا بِكُلِّ نَاكِلَةٍ آمِينَ

²²⁷⁵ The above verses depict the internal condition of those who, being mighty and honourable in the land, are made to stoop before those whom they despised and oppressed. This is fully explained in 1442.

56 They shall not taste therein death except the first death, and He will save them from the chastisement of the hell,

Ar. thy.

57 A grace from your Lord; this is the great achievement.

Ar. thy. *

58 So have We made it easy in your tongue that they may be mindful.

59 Therefore wait; surely they are waiting.

لَا يَذُوقُونَ فِيهَا الْمَوْتَ إِلَّا الْمَوْتَةَ
الْأُولَىٰ وَوَعْدُهُمْ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٌ
فَضْلًا مِّن رَّبِّكَ ذَٰلِكَ هُوَ الْفَوْزُ الْعَظِيمُ
فَأَمَّا يَتَذَكَّرُ لَوْلَا أَنذَرْتَهُمْ يَتَذَكَّرُونَ
فَأَذْنَبُوا لَهُم مَّا يَتْلُونَ ۖ

THE KNEELING

(Al-Jâhiyah)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(4 sections and 37 verses)

SECTION 1

Denial of Revelation

1, 2. Revelation of the Qur-ân. 3-6. Revelation of Allah in His works
7-11. Deniers shall be punished.

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

وَفِي خَلْقِكُمْ وَمَا يَبْدَأُ مِن دَآبَّةٍ آيَاتٌ
لِّلْقَوْمِ الْيَاقِينِ

Abstract :

Sec. 1. Denial of revelation.

Sec. 2. Truth of the revelation of the Qur-ân.

Sec. 3. Denial of judgment.

Sec. 4. The doom.

General remarks.

THIS is the sixth chapter of the Hâ mim group. Its title is taken from v. 28, which speaks of every nation being brought to its knees before the mighty power of God, according to its deserving. The first two sections speak of revelation. The revelation is from a Mighty, Wise God, and there are many signs of its truth, but the unbelievers still reject it. The signs of its truth are mentioned in the second section, among these being the promise of conquests to those who would follow it and the fulfilment of earlier prophecy respecting it. The third section refers to judgment and the unbelievers' denial of it, because of the hardness of their hearts. The fourth speaks of the doom of the unbelievers and of the substitution of the believers in their places.

5 And (in) the variation of the night and the day, and (in) what Allah sends down of sustenance from the cloud, then gives life thereby to the earth after its death, and (in) the changing of the winds, there are signs for a people who understand.*

* 203.

Ar. thec.

6 These are the communications of Allah which We recite to you with truth; then in what announcement would they believe after Allah and His communications?

7 Woe to every sinful liar,

8 Who hears the communications of Allah recited to him, then persists proudly as though he had not heard them; so announce^b to him a painful chastisement.

b 408.

9 And when he comes to know of any of Our communications, he takes it for a jest; these it is that shall have abasing chastisement.

10 Before them is hell, and there shall not avail them aught of what they earned, nor those whom they took for guardians besides Allah, and they shall have a grievous chastisement.

11 This is guidance; and (as for) those who disbelieve in the communications of their Lord, they shall have a painful chastisement on account of uncleanness.

وَأَخْيَارِ اللَّيْلِ وَالنَّهَارِ وَمَا أَنزَلَ

تِلْكَ آيَاتُ اللَّهِ تَنزِيلُهَا عَلَيْكَ يَا مُحَمَّدُ
فِي أَيِّ حَالٍ يَبْتَغِي بَعْدَ اللَّهِ وَآيَاتِهِ يُؤْمِنُونَ
وَيْلٌ لِكُلِّ أَفَّاكٍ أَثِيمٍ ٦
يَسْمَعُ آيَاتُ اللَّهِ تَنْزِيلُهَا عَلَيْهِ ثُمَّ يُغْمِزُ الْمُسْتَكْبِرِينَ
كَأَنَّهُمْ يَسْمَعُهَا فَيَتَّبِعُونَ بِعَدَابٍ يَلْبِسُونَ
وَإِذَا عَلِمَ مِنْ آيَاتِنَا شَيْئًا اتَّخَذَ هَاهُنَا
أَوَّلِيكَ لَهُمْ عَذَابٌ مُهِينٌ ٧
مِنْ دَرَائِمٍ جَهَنَّمَ وَلَا يُغْنِي عَنْهُمْ مَا

اللَّهِ أَوْلِيَاءَ وَلَهُمْ عَذَابٌ عَظِيمٌ ٨
هَذِهِ هُدًى وَالَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا بِآيَاتِ رَبِّهِمْ
لَهُمْ عَذَابٌ مِنْ رِجْزٍ أَلِيمٌ ٩

SECTION 2

Truth of the Revelation of the Qur-ân

12-15. Conquests promised to believers. 16, 17. Prophecies of the Prophet's advent. 18-21. The Qur-ân is a true guidance.

12 Allah is He who made subservient to you the sea that the ships may run therein by His command, and that you may seek of His grace, and that you may give thanks.

13 And He has made subservient to you whatsoever is in the heavens and whatsoever

اللَّهُ الْإِلَهِيُّ سَخَّرَ لَكُمْ الْبَحْرَ لَنْزِيلِ مَا تَلْفَلَهُ
فِيهِ بِأَمْرِهِ وَلَتَبْتَ تَوَاسِعُ فَضْلِهِ
وَن ١٢

وَسَخَّرَ لَكُمْ مِمَّا فِي السَّمَوَاتِ وَمَا

is in the earth, all, from Himself; most surely there are signs in this for a people who reflect.

14 Say to those who believe (that) they forgive those who do not fear the days of Allah²²⁷⁶ that He may reward a people for what they earn.

15 Whoever does good, it is for his own soul, and whoever does evil, it is against himself; then you shall be brought back to your Lord.

16 And certainly We gave the Book and the wisdom and the prophecy to the children of Israel, and We gave them of the goodly things, and We made them excel the nations.*

a 77.

17 And We gave them clear arguments in the affair,²²⁷⁷ but they did not differ until after knowledge had come to them out of envy^b among themselves; surely your Lord will judge between them on the day of resurrection concerning that wherein they differed.

Or, revolting.
b 132
Ar. thy.

Ar. thee.

18 Then We have made you follow a course in the affair, therefore follow it, and do not follow the low desires of those who do not know.

19 Surely they shall not avail you in the least against Allah; and surely the unjust are friends of each other, and Allah is the guardian of those who guard (against evil).

Ar. thee.

20 These are clear proofs for men, and a guidance and a mercy for a people who are sure.

2276 The days of Allah are the contests in which the righteous shall be made successful (see 1298). These words make it clear that there is an assurance given to the faithful in the two previous verses that they shall be triumphant in this world, and rule the land as well as the sea.

2277 The affair or amr here signifies the prophethood of Muhammad, regarding which the Israelites were given the most direct prophecies (Bd). See the next verse, where the Holy Prophet Muhammad (may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him!) is plainly addressed as having been given this affair, where the law given to him is called 21 Nay! do those who have wrought evil deeds think that We will make them like those who believe and do good—that their life and their death shall be equal?²²⁷⁸ Evil it is that they judge.

أَمْ حَسِبَ الَّذِينَ اجْتَرَوْا السَّيِّئَاتِ أَنْ

سَوَاءً عِندَ رَبِّهِمْ وَأَمَّا تِلْكَ الْأَمْثَلُ

SECTION 3

Denial of Judgment

22. Justice prevails in the universe. 23. The reprobate. 24-26. Denial of judgment.

22 And Allah created the heavens and the earth with truth and that every soul may be rewarded for what it has earned and they shall not be wronged.

Ar. hast
thou.

23 Have you then considered him who takes his low desire for his god, and Allah has made him err^a having knowledge²²⁷⁹ and has set a seal upon his ear and his heart and put a covering upon his eye.^b Who can then guide him after Allah? Will you not then be mindful?

a 44.

b 21.

24 And they say: There is nothing but our life in this world; we live and die and nothing destroys us but time, and they have no knowledge of that; they only conjecture.

25 And when Our clear communications are recited to them, their argument is no other than that they say: Bring our fathers (back) if you are truthful.

26 Say: Allah gives you life, then He makes you die, then will He gather you to the day of resurrection wherein is no doubt, but most people do not know.

وَخَلَقَ اللَّهُ السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضَ بِالْحَقِّ
يَجْزَى كُلُّ نَفْسٍ مِمَّا كَسَبَتْ وَلَيْسَ لَهَا
أَفْرَيتٌ مِنَ الْخُذْلِ اللَّهُهُ هُوَ وَأَصْلَهُ
اللَّهُ عَلَى عِلْمٍ وَخَلَقَ عَلَى سَمْعِهِ وَقَلْبِهِ
جَعَلَ عَلَى بَصَرِهِمْ عِشْرَةَ فَرَسٍ لِيُصْهِرَهُ
مِنْ بَعْدِ اللَّهِ أَفَلَا تَذَكَّرُونَ
وَقَالُوا مَا هِيَ إِلَّا حَيَاتُنَا الدُّنْيَا مَمْنُتٌ
وَنَحْنُ أَمْثَلُ كَالَّذِينَ الْأَوَّلِينَ وَالْآخِرِينَ
يَذْكُرُ مِنْ عِلْمِهِ إِنْ هُمْ إِلَّا يَظُنُّونَ
وَإِذَا تَنَادَوْا عَلَيْهِمْ إِنْ تَنَادَيْتُمْ تَنَادَا
فَجَعَلَهُمُ الْآتَانَ قَالُوا آمَنُوا بِآيَاتِنَا
كُنْتُمْ صَادِقِينَ
قُلِ اللَّهُ يَحْيِيكُمْ ثُمَّ مِمَّنْ تَمُوتُ ثُمَّ يَجْمَعُكُمْ
إِلَى يَوْمِ الْقِيَامَةِ لَا رَيْبَ فِيهِ وَلَكِنَّ
أَكْثَرَ النَّاسِ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ

2278 The meaning may be, either that the righteous are not like the wicked in their life or in their death; or, that the wicked shall not find themselves in death (after death) in a state of ease resembling that which they enjoy in this life (Bd). Or, belief and the doing of good is here compared to life, and the doing of evil to death, because good deeds give life to man and evil deeds cause his spiritual death; therefore the meaning is, that the performance of good or evil cannot receive similar treatment, inasmuch as there is no resemblance between life and death.

2279 The words having knowledge imply that Allah knows the heart and mental attitude of men of low desires, and the consequence of their evil deeds is that they go astray.

SECTION 4

The Doom

27-29. Every nation has a doom. 30. Believers shall be made successful. 31-35. Unbelievers shall meet their doom. 36, 37. Divine glory shall be established.

27 And Allah's is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth; and on the day when the hour shall come to pass, on that day shall they perish who say false things.

Ar. thou shalt.

28 And you shall see every nation kneeling down; every nation shall be called to its book:²²⁸⁰ to-day you shall be rewarded for what you did.

29 This is Our Book that speaks against you with justice; surely We wrote what you did.

30 Then as to those who believed and did good, their Lord will make them enter into His mercy; that is the manifest achievement.

31 As to those who disbelieved: What! were not My communications recited to you? but you were proud and you were a guilty people.

32 And when it was said, Surely the promise of Allah is true and as for the hour, there is no doubt about it, you said: We do not know what the hour is; we do not think (that it will come to pass) save a passing thought, and we are not at all sure.

33 And the evil (consequences) of what they did shall become manifest to them and that which they mocked shall encompass them.

34 And it shall be said: To-day We forsake you as you neglected the meeting of this day of yours and your abode is the fire, and there are not for you any helpers:

وَلِلّٰهِ الْمُلْكُ السَّمٰوٰتِ وَالْاَرْضِ وَيَوْمَ

²²⁸⁰ The book signifies the book of deeds. That every nation shall have a book shows that nations are also judged according to their deeds; the law that applies to the case of individuals also applies to nations. Nations are judged in this life, therefore the day on which every nation is called to its book is the day of its doom.

35 That is because you took the communications of Allah for a jest and the life of this world deceived you. So on that day they shall not be brought forth from it, nor shall they be granted goodwill.

36 Therefore to Allah is due (all) praise, the Lord of the heavens and the Lord of the earth, the Lord of the worlds.

37 And to Him belongs greatness in the heavens and the earth, and He is the Mighty, the Wise.

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Truth of revelation.
- Sec. 2. Witness of truth.
- Sec. 3. The fate of 'Ad.
- Sec. 4. A warning.

General remarks.

This is the last chapter of the Há mim group, and is entitled the Sandhills, the title being taken from the tracts of sand which contributed to the destruction of the tribe of 'Ad (v. 21). The fact is mentioned to warn the Arabs that when the fate of a nation is sealed, it may be brought about by sea, as in the case of Pharaoh and his hosts, or in sand, as in the case of the tribe of 'Ad.

The chapter continues the subject-matter of the last chapter, dealing with the truth of revelation in the first section and with the witness of truth in the second. The last two sections, after referring to the fate of 'Ad, contain a warning for those who reject the truth.

4 Say: Have you considered what you call upon besides Allah? Show me what they have created of the earth, or have they a share in the heavens? Bring me a book before this or traces of knowledge, if you are truthful.

5 And who is in greater error than he who calls besides Allah upon those that will not answer him till the day of resurrection and they are heedless of their call?

6 And when men are gathered together they shall be their enemies, and shall be deniers of their worshipping (them).

7 And when Our clear communications are recited to them, those who disbelieve say with regard to the truth when it comes to them: This is clear enchantment.

8 Nay! they say: He has forged it. Say: If I have forged it, you do not control anything for me from Allah;²²⁸² He knows best what you utter concerning it: He is enough as a witness between me and you, and He is the Forgiving, the Merciful.²²⁸³

9 Say: I am not the first of the apostles,²²⁸⁴ and I do not know what will be done with me or with you: I do not follow any thing but that which is revealed to me, and I am nothing but a plain warner.²²⁸⁵

2282 That is, you cannot avert the punishment that Allah sends upon one who forges a revelation (Bq, JB).

2283 It is noteworthy that whenever the punishment of the opponents is alluded to, as in the statement He is enough as a witness between me and you, the Divine attribute of mercy and forgiveness is also mentioned to indicate that mercy always predominates in the Divine nature.

2284 Bid'un signifies a novelty, or a thing existing for the first time (Q-LL). And you say فَلَا يَدْعُ فِيْ هٰذَا اِمْرًا meaning such a one is the first doer in this affair; the first who has done it (Msb-LL). The words, that he was not the first of the apostles, are put into the Holy Prophet's mouth to direct attention to the fact that he must be judged in the manner in which the truth of the previous prophets was recognized.

SECTION 2

Witness of Truth

11, 12. Moses' testimony. 13-20. Believers and unbelievers shall witness truth in their lives.

11 And those who disbelieve say concerning those who believe: If it had been a good, they would not have gone ahead of us therein. And as they do not seek to be rightly directed thereby, they say: It is an old lie.

12 And before it the Book of Moses was a guide and a mercy; and this is a Book verifying^a (it) in the Arabic language²²⁸⁷ that it may warn those who are unjust and as good news for the doers of good.

13 Surely those who say, Our Lord is Allah, then they continue on the right way, they shall have no fear nor shall they grieve.

14 These are the dwellers of the garden, abiding therein: a reward for what they did.

وَقَالَ الَّذِينَ يَكْفُرُوا لِلَّذِينَ آمَنُوا لَوْ كَانُوا
خَيْرًا أَمَا سَبَقُونَا إِلَيْهِ وَإِذْ لَمْ يَكُنْ لَهُ
بِهِ فَيَسْقُوتُونَ هَذَا الْفِكَرُ قَدِ يَمُرُّ
وَمِنْ قَبْلِهِمْ كَتَبْتُ مُوسَى إِمَامًا وَرَحْمَةً
هَذَا كِتَابٌ مُصَدِّقٌ لِسَانِ آدَمَ إِبْرَاهِيمَ

إِنَّ الَّذِينَ قَالُوا رَبُّنَا اللَّهُ ثُمَّ اسْتَقَامُوا
فَلَا خَوْفٌ عَلَيْهِمْ وَلَا هُمْ يَحْزَنُونَ ۝

جَزَاءً بِمَا كَانُوا يَعْمَلُونَ ۝

a 70.

2285 While on the one hand the Prophet is made to deny any knowledge as to the ultimate end of one or the other party, he is made to assert, on the other, his being a plain warner. Hence, not knowing simply signifies not having the knowledge of the details only.

2286 The witness from among the children of Israel who bore witness of one like him is Moses: "I will raise them up a prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee. . . . And it shall come to pass that whosoever will not hearken unto My Word which he shall speak in My Name, I will require it of him" (Deut. 18: 18, 19). It is to the concluding statement in the above quotation that attention is called in the words: have you considered if it is from Allah and you disbelieve in it.

2287 The words refer to the subject-matter of v. 10, which speaks of Moses' prophecy. The Qur-ān is here declared as fulfilling that prophecy, and the reference to its being in the Arabic language signifies the coming of the Prophet from among the Ishmaelites, who spoke that language—a fact mentioned in Moses' prophecy.

15 And We have enjoined on man the doing of good to his parents; with trouble did his mother bear him and with trouble did she bring him forth; and the bearing of him and the weaning of him was thirty months; until when he attains his maturity and reaches forty years,^{2287A} he says: My Lord! grant me that I may give thanks for Thy favour which Thou hast bestowed on me and on my parents, and that I may do good which pleases Thee and do good to me in respect of my offspring: surely I turn to Thee, and surely I am of those who submit.

16 These are they from whom We accept the best of what they have done and pass over their evil deeds, among the dwellers of the garden; the promise of truth which they were promised.

17 And he who says to his parents: Fie on you! do you threaten me that I shall be brought forth when generations have already passed away before me? And they both call for Allah's aid: Woe to you! believe, surely the promise of Allah is true. But he says: This is nothing but stories of the ancients.

18 These are they against whom the word has proved true among nations of the jinn and the men that have already passed away before them; surely they are losers.

19 And for all are degrees according to what they did, and that He may pay them back fully their deeds and they shall not be wronged.

20 And on the day when those who disbelieve shall be

Ar. thes.

2287A It would appear from this that the spiritual maturity of man usually takes place at the age of forty. Evidence of this is also found in the fact that the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him, received the Divine message for the regeneration of mankind at the age of forty.

²²⁸⁸ The brother of a people signifies their prophet, Húd being the prophet sent to 'Ad. Aḥqáf is plural of ḥiqf, which signifies a heap or hill of sand that has assumed a bowled form (TA LL), and al-aḥqáf applies particularly to certain oblong tracts of sand in the region of Esh-Shihr (TA-LL). Rodwell and Muir locate the Adites in the country round about Táif; others in Hadramaut. The latter opinion is the correct one, as maps of Arabia plainly show Al-Aḥqáf to be situated in Hadramaut.

A Warning

27, 28. A lesson in the fate of those living on the borders of Arabia. 29-32. Some believers. 33-35. Punishment must overtake opponents.

27 And certainly We destroyed the towns which are around you,²²⁸⁹ and We repeat the communications that they might turn.

28 Why did not then those help them whom they took for gods besides Allah to draw (them) nigh (to Him)? Nay, they were lost to them; and this was their lie and what they forged.

Ar. thee 29 And when We turned towards you a party of the jinn²²⁹⁰ who listened to the Qur-ān; so when they came to it, they said: Be silent; then when it was finished, they turned back to their people warning (them).

30 They said: O our people, we have listened to a Book revealed after Moses verifying that which is before it,* guiding to the truth and to a right path:

31 O our people! accept the Divine caller and believe in Him, He will forgive you of your faults and protect you from a painful chastisement.

وَلَقَدْ أَهْلَكْنَا مَا حَوْلَكُمْ مِنَ الْقُرَىٰ وَصَدْنَا

2289 The cities of 'Ad, Samood, and Sheba lay on the borders of Arabia; thus the people living in the metropolis are told how those living around them were aforetime destroyed, and they should take a lesson from their fate.

2290 The jinn spoken of here seem to be the leaders of certain Jewish tribes, because they are spoken of in the next verse as believers in Moses. In fact, they are of the same class as those spoken of in 72:1. For full explanation see 2580.

32 And whoever does not accept the Divine caller, he shall not escape in the earth and he shall not have guardians besides Him: these are in manifest error.

33 Have they not considered that Allah, Who created the heavens and the earth and was not tired by their creation, is able to give life to the dead? Aye! He has surely power over all things.

34 And on the day when those who disbelieve shall be brought before the fire: Is it not true? They shall say: Aye! by our Lord! He will say: Then taste the chastisement, because you disbelieved.

35 Therefore bear up patiently as did the apostles endowed with constancy bear up with patience and do not seek to hasten for them (their doom). On the day that they shall see what they are promised they shall be as if they had not tarried save an hour of the day. A sufficient exposition! Shall then any be destroyed save the transgressing people?

CHAPTER XLVII

MUHAMMAD

REVEALED AT MEDINA

(4 sections and 38 verses)

Abstract:

Sec. 1. Opponents shall perish in wars.

Sec. 2. Oppressors shall be brought low.

Sec. 3. The weak-hearted ones.

Sec. 4. An exhortation.

The Title and context.

THIS chapter is entitled Muhammad, and also Qital or war. The first title is due to the fact that this chapter foretells the material improvement in the condition of those who believe in the Holy Prophet Muhammad. They were in a very helpless condition at the time of its revelation, having fled from their homes for the safety of their lives, and being threatened by a powerful enemy in their new home. The other title is due to the fact that this chapter shows that the punishment with which the unbelievers were threatened would be brought about by wars in which their ringleaders would perish; others will be made prisoners, or vanquished and brought low. This very circumstance gives us the key to the connection of this chapter with the concluding one of the last group. In that chapter we have only a repeated warning of the impending doom of the opponents, while we are clearly told herein what form that punishment will take.

Subject-matter.

The chapter is divided into four sections. Opening with the statement that the exertions of those who prevent people from accepting the truth shall be utterly fruitless, while the believers shall soon enjoy an improvement in their condition, it then states that this altered condition shall be accomplished by wars, and proceeds to give a direction regarding prisoners of war. The second section is mainly devoted to the same subject, and further states that Mecca shall be subjugated, the unbelievers shall be brought low, and the believers shall be triumphant. The third section refers to those who regarded this, the most righteous war in history, as a calamity, and who therefore, assuming an attitude of hypocrisy, slowly returned to unbelief. The fourth section states that a separation shall occur between the truly faithful and the hypocrites. In concluding, it also exhorts the Muslims to exert themselves to their utmost in the cause of truth, for if they failed, another people would be raised to supplant them.

The date of revelation.

The revelation of this chapter undoubtedly belongs to a period when war with the Quraish had not yet begun, but when circumstances had arisen which showed war to be inevitable. Therefore, some of the earlier authorities have considered it a Meccan revelation (Dk, IJubair, Sudy-AH), but this view is certainly erroneous, for v. 13 clearly speaks of the Meccans having already expelled the Prophet from Mecca; and moreover, though the permission to fight is no doubt met with in a Meccan revelation (ch. 22), the plain injunctions given here, and the mention of those who showed weakness of heart and went back to unbelief (became hypocrites)

SECTION I

Opponents shall perish in Wars.

1-3. Exertions of opponents shall be fruitless, and condition of believers shall be bettered. 4. Unbelievers shall be vanquished in battles. 5-7. Help and success for believers. 8-11. Destruction awaiting unbelievers.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 (As for) those who disbelieve and turn away from Allah's way, He shall render their works ineffective.²²⁹¹

2 And (as for) those who believe and do good, and believe in what has been revealed to Muhammad, and it is the very truth from their Lord, He will remove their evil from them and improve their condition.²²⁹²

3 That is because those who disbelieve follow falsehood, and those who believe follow the truth from their Lord; thus does Allah set forth to men their examples.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ
الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا وَاصْبَرُوا غَيْرَ سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ
أَضَلَّ أَعْمَالَهُمْ
وَالَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّالِحَاتِ وَ
آمَنُوا بِمَا نُزِّلَ
مِنْ رَبِّهِمْ فَعَزَّاهُمْ سَيِّئَاتِهِمْ وَ
أَصْلَحَ بَالَهُمْ
ذَلِكَ بِأَنَّ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا اتَّبَعُوا الْبَاطِلَ
وَأَنَّ الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا اتَّبَعُوا الْحَقَّ مِنْ رَبِّهِمْ
كَذَلِكَ يَضْرِبُ اللَّهُ لِلنَّاسِ أَمْثَالَهُمْ

(sec. 3), is clear testimony of its being an early Medina revelation; and such it is considered to be by the majority of the Muslim authorities. Portions of the chapter may have been revealed during the Holy Prophet's flight from Mecca, as held by some authorities, but as a whole, it may be assigned to the first year of the Flight, and therefore it is to be placed before the battle of Badr. This is also the time assigned to it by Muir.

²²⁹¹ Ahlakū-hū is synonymous with ahlakū-hū (TA) or adā'ahū (S, TA), the first meaning he destroyed him or caused him to perish, and the second he wasted it or made it ineffective. The works which this verse foretells will be made ineffective are hinted at in the description: who disbelieve and turn men from Allah's way, i.e. their works of disbelief, such as asking help from their idols and their exertions to turn men away from Islam. Thus the verse contains a clear prediction that while the unbelievers themselves shall be left helpless, Islam and the Muslims will prosper and the exertions of the unbelievers against the truth shall be brought to naught. As this chapter was revealed at a time when the enemies of Islam were at the height of their power, and had apparently uprooted Islam from Mecca, and were preparing to give it a death-blow at Medina, the verse contains one of the most wonderful prophecies.

²²⁹² This is another prophecy, a counterpart of the one contained in the previous verse. The Muslims, whose condition, it is here announced, will be bettered, were in a most helpless condition at the time. The majority of them had just fled from their homes, almost penniless, to save their lives and to settle down at Medina, where, however, they were not left alone, the enemy being determined to crush them by force. They are told that not only will the exertions of their opponents be brought to naught, but also that their own condition would soon be greatly improved.

4 So when you meet in battle²²⁹³ those who disbelieve, then smite the necks until when you have overcome them, then make (them) prisoners, and afterwards either set them free as a favour or let them ransom (themselves) until the war terminates.²²⁹⁴ That (shall be so); and if Allah had pleased He would certainly have inflicted retribution on them, but that He may try some of you by means of others;²²⁹⁵ and (as for) those who are slain in the way of Allah, He will by no means allow their deeds to perish.

5 He will guide them and improve their condition.

6 And cause them to enter the garden which He has made known to them.²²⁹⁶

Or, bestow

2293 The word used is laqitum, which is from liqá, and signifies, according to Kf, harb, i.e. meeting in battle.

2294 The word askhana occurring in this passage has been fully explained in 1024. This passage mentions the only case in which prisoners of war can be taken, and thus condemns the practice of slavery, according to which men could be seized everywhere and sold into slavery. Here we are told that prisoners of war can only be taken after meeting an enemy in regular battle, and even in that case they must be set free, either as a favour or after taking ransom. It was the former of these alternatives that the Holy Prophet adopted in most cases; for instance, in the case of the prisoners of the Bani Mustaliq, in which a hundred families were set at liberty, and in the case of Hawazin, in which fully six thousand prisoners of war were released merely as an act of favour. In the case of the seventy prisoners taken at Badr alone there is mention of redemption having been taken, but this was when Islam was very weak and the powerful enemy was determined to crush it. Even in this case the taking of slaves was to cease when war terminated, which shows clearly that the injunction given in the beginning of the verse was due to the fact that a state of warfare existed when this injunction was given, though no encounter had yet taken place, and that it was to apply only so long as war lasted.

2295 Intazara min-hu signifies he inflicted retribution on him (LA), or he exacted his due completely from him (TA-LL). The meaning in the first case is that if Allah had pleased He would have punished the enemies of Islam otherwise than by wars, but as He means to punish them by the hands of the Muslims, therefore battles must be fought. If the meaning given in the margin is adopted, the reference may be to the injunction to release prisoners; because, if the Muslims had given them the punishment which they deserved on account of the cruelties to which they subjected the Muslims, they could have justly slain them. But Allah wanted, because of His great mercy, to show a favour to the unbelievers, and that from the hands of the Muslims.

2296 The garden of the next life is made known to the righteous in this life by granting them a triumph over their enemies, thus making them taste the fruit of their deeds even here. It has already been noted that the promise of gardens in this life stands for success, while the garden of the next life is the fruit of the good deeds done here.

7 O you who believe ! if you help (the cause of) Allah, He will help you and make firm your feet.

8 And (as for) those who disbelieve, for them is destruction, and He has made their deeds ineffective.

9 That is because they hated what Allah revealed, so He rendered their deeds null.

10 Have they not then journeyed in the land and seen how was the end of those before them : Allah brought down destruction upon them, and the unbelievers shall have the like of it.

11 That is because Allah is the Protector of those who believe, and because the unbelievers shall have no protector for them.

2297 The town which had driven away the Holy Prophet was Mecca, and the overthrow of its power is here foretold in the clearest words. It will be seen that the Meccans were not destroyed when their final overthrow came, nor did the Holy Prophet punish them for their crimes and tyrannies against the Muslims ; they were dealt with very mercifully—so mercifully, indeed, that the history of the world does not present another instance of such merciful treatment of a conquered nation of oppressors where the oppressed were the conquerors. Nevertheless, the Meccans did not go unpunished ; their overthrow at the hand of the Muslims brought about the fulfilment of the earlier prophecies.

2298 Note that the description given does not mention the actual blessings of paradise, for they are blessings "which no eye has seen, nor has any ear heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man to conceive of them," but it is only a parable, and an example which shows what they are like. The parable not only describes to them the blessings of the life after death, but also gives them a description of the fertile land which they were to inherit in this very life—the garden of Eden of Gen. 2 : 8, where there is abundance of all things, so that the Muslims were promised the Holy Land in addition to Mecca.

2298a Here is another instance of the use of the word maghfirat in the Holy Qur-ān, showing that it does not mean forgiveness of sins, but protection against the frailties of human nature. Among the various blessings of paradise, which its inmates shall find after admission is maghfirat, and it is clear that this maghfirat cannot be forgiveness, for forgiveness would require that there should be sinning in paradise, an idea diametrically opposed to the description of paradise as given in the Holy Qur-ān. The fact, as repeatedly stated, is that there is no sinning in paradise, and hence maghfirat in paradise signifies protection from sins.

2300 Since a conquest is promised here to the Muslims, and conquests are necessarily attended with difficulties, the Prophet is told to ask Divine protection for his shortcomings and those of his companions. See 2194 for further explanation. Or the meaning is as pointed out in 2307.

2301 Allah's knowing the returning place and the abiding place of the faithful is an allusion to their new abode and their re-entry into Mecca; or, the Mutaqallab refers to the going to and fro of the unbelievers in their plans to destroy Islam.

2302 The Muslims had been persecuted beyond all measure; they had been oppressed, slain, and turned out of their houses. Hence they naturally desired that they should be allowed to defend themselves. By a chapter is meant a revelation allowing them to fight.

2303 Unbelievers are addressed here.

23 Those it is whom Allah has cursed, so He has made them deaf and blinded their eyes.²³⁰⁴

24 Do they not then reflect on the Qur-án? Nay, on the hearts are their locks.

25 Surely (as for) those who return on their backs after that guidance has become manifest to them, the devil has made it a light matter to them; and He gives them respite.

26 That is because they say to those who hate what Allah has revealed: We will obey you in some of the affairs; and Allah knows their secrets.

27 But how will it be when the angels cause them to die smiting their faces and their backs.

28 That is because they follow what is displeasing to Allah and are averse to His pleasure, therefore He has made null their deeds.

CHAPTER XLVIII

THE VICTORY

(Al-fat-h)

REVEALED AT MEDINA

(4 sections and 29 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. The Hudaibiyya truce was a victory.
- Sec. 2. The defaulters.
- Sec. 3. More victories for Islam.
- Sec. 4. The triumph of Islam over all other religions.

The Title and context.

THIS chapter is entitled The Victory, a very appropriate name, because it deals with the conquests of Islam, from the great moral victory gained at Hudaibiyya (see 2306) mentioned in the opening verse, to the final triumph of Islam over all other religions of the world (v. 28). The word fat-h itself occurs several times in this chapter. It is remarkable that although the Muslims had already been victorious in several battles, not one of those victories but a truce, apparently disadvantageous to the Muslims, is made the basis of the triumphant career of Islam. There is no doubt an indication in this that though war was forced on Islam, and the Muslims had been victorious, yet its real triumph lay in its moral conquests; the first of these after the Flight being the apparent disadvantage, but the real moral conquest, gained at Hudaibiyya. There was no fighting there, but a truce was concluded which, although not allowing the Muslims to retain any Muslim refugee from Mecca, nevertheless opened the way for people, by laying aside hostilities, to reflect on the beauties of Islam. The truce at Hudaibiyya was thus a moral victory, and, regarded, as it is, as the basis of the future conquests of Islam, is a clear indication that moral conquests were looked upon as the real conquests of Islam. Even the importance of the conquest of Mecca lies in the conquest of hearts which the Holy Prophet made by showing an example of forgiveness unparalleled in the history of the human race.

The connection of this chapter with the last is clear. Whilst the last chapter speaks of the overthrow of the opponents of Islam in wars, and of the betterment of the condition of the Muslims, here we are told how that improved condition in Muslim affairs was accomplished. Victory in battle was, no doubt, the immediate cause of the overthrow of an enemy who wished to destroy Islam by physical force, but the real success of Islam lay in its moral conquests.

Date of revelation and subject-matter.

As regards the date of revelation of this chapter, there can be no two opinions. We have 'Umar's testimony on record that the Holy Prophet recited it for the first time when returning from Hudaibiyya (Bkh), and hence its revelation belongs to the sixth year of the Hejira.

The chapter opens by declaring the Hudaibiyya truce to be a real victory, and after referring to the disappointment of the hypocrites and the idolaters, concludes with a reference to the aid and allegiance which the faithful rendered to the Holy Prophet. The second section deals with the false excuses of the hypocrites, and separates them from the faithful by not allowing them to join the Muslims in their expeditions. The third section prophesies more victories in battles—that at Khaibar and the conquest of Mecca being clearly hinted at. The fourth section brings the chapter to a close by making the important announcement that Islam shall be made triumphant over all other religions of the world.

2306 The victory referred to here is no other than that gained by the truce at Hudaibiyya (Bkh). The fact that there was no actual fighting at Hudaibiyya has led many to think that the words contain a prophecy about the conquest of Mecca, which, however, is referred to later on in the third section of this chapter. The truce at Hudaibiyya was surely a real victory for the Muslims, because it opened the way for the propagation of Islam among the unbelievers, and by putting a stop to hostilities gave the opponents an occasion to ponder over the merits of the religion against which they had hitherto struggled in vain in the field of battle. As a result of this truce large numbers came over to Islam, and the words are thus prophetic, and their truth was demonstrated long after their revelation.

It may be added here that 'Umar had some misgivings as to the good of the truce concluded at Hudaibiyya; he thought that the truce was not honourable for the Muslims, for the conditions to which they yielded were disadvantageous to them. Thus one of the conditions of the truce was that if any one from among the Meccans came over to the Holy Prophet he would return him to the Quraish, though he were a Muslim. The Muslims felt it very hard that one of their brethren should be returned to suffer persecution at the hands of the unbelievers; but as the Quraish refused to make a truce unless this condition was included, the Holy Prophet accepted it. Immediately afterwards Divine revelation dispelled all these misgivings, and declared the truce to be a great victory leading to glorious results, as it actually proved to be.

2307 The second verse beginning with a lām, meaning that, enumerates the consequences of the victory which was gained by the Muslims in the truce of Hudaibiyya, and so does the third. The first of these يَغْفِرُ لَكَ اللَّهُ مَا تَقَدَّمَ مِنْ ذَنْبِكَ وَمَا تَأَخَّرَ has been much misunderstood. The forgiveness of faults cannot be the result of the gaining of a victory. On the other hand, as explained in the previous note, a state of hostilities having continued for a long time, the people had never had occasion to reflect on the beauties of Islam, and only a dark picture of it was present to their minds. Hence zanbi-ka here signifies

On them is the evil turn, and Allah is wroth with them and has cursed them and prepared hell for them, and evil is the resort.

the shortcomings and failures which the opponents attributed to the Prophet, to the removal of which the truce at Hudaibiyya had opened the way, for it was after that that the brighter side of the picture was brought before their eyes. For a similar expression see 687, where it has been shown that izmi, literally meaning my sin, really signifies the sin committed against me. The meaning of ghafr has been fully explained in 2194, where it has been shown that غفر الامر means he rectified the affair. A perusal of that footnote is necessary to understand what is said here. The truce opened the way for the removal of all misunderstandings, many of them disappearing immediately by the propagation of Islam, and the rest being swept away by the conquest of Mecca, to which the truce at Hudaibiyya had opened the way. There is also a reference here to that which remains behind. By this is meant the later carplings of the enemies of Islam. As I have stated, this chapter deals not only with the immediate triumph of Islam, but prophesies also its ultimate triumph over the whole world. Hence there is a promise here that not only those misunderstandings will be corrected which already exist, but even those that remain behind, and will be spread at a later date by the enemies of Islam, will also be dispelled, and Islam will thus shine in its full lustre not only in Arabia but in the whole of the world.

2308 The two consequences of the truce made at Hudaibiyya, which are described in the concluding words of the verse, can be easily conceived. The completion of favours was accomplished by the spread of Islam, and the guiding on the right way signified the right way to success.

2309 Large numbers becoming converts to Islam proved a mighty help in its cause. While proceeding to Hudaibiyya the Holy Prophet was accompanied by 1,500 men; two years later, when advancing on Mecca, 10,000 men marched under his banner.

10 Surely those who swear allegiance to you do but swear allegiance to Allah; the hand of Allah is above their hands. Therefore whoever breaks (his faith), he breaks it only to the injury of his own soul, and whoever fulfils what he has covenanted with Allah, He will grant him a mighty reward.²³¹⁰

They say with their tongues what is not in their hearts. Say: Then who can control anything for you from Allah if He intends to do you harm or if He intends to do you good: nay, Allah is Aware of what you do:

سَيَقُولُ لَكَ الْمُخَلَّفُونَ مِنَ الْأَعْرَابِ

2310 The swearing of allegiance referred to here took place before the truce was concluded. The Holy Prophet had started with his men with the object of performing a pilgrimage, but when he reached Hudaibiyya, the Meccans opposed his entry into Mecca. Thereupon the companions of the Holy Prophet swore allegiance to him (under a tree as stated in v. 18), that they would defend him at all costs and die fighting at his side (Bkh). The necessity for this seems to have arisen from the fact that the Quraish advanced to fight the Muslims, who had started unprepared, because they intended only to perform the pilgrimage. It appears that Abū Bakr requested the Holy Prophet to go forth prepared for a war, for the Quraish were likely to oppose him, but the Holy Prophet did not approve of this (Bkh).

It may be noted here that the companions of the Holy Prophet swore allegiance to him on three different occasions; viz. twice at Mecca before the Flight—the swearers being in both cases the citizens of Medina. Both these are known by the name of Bai'at-ul-'Aqaba. In the first of these twelve men only were present, and the swearing of their allegiance implied only their belief in the truth of Islam, the promise given being: "We will not serve any one

The second pledge at 'Aqaba was given by seventy-three Medinites who undertook to defend the Holy Prophet, "as we defend our own backs." The third occasion on which an oath of allegiance was taken was the Hudaibiyya, and this is known as the Bai'at-i-riq'wan (see v. 18). Women swore al'egiance on one occasion, for which see 2493.

2311 The reference is to those who lagged behind in the Hudaibiyya expedition.

2312 Even so late as the sixth year of Hejira the Muslims were so weak, as compared with their enemies, that whenever they had to go into the field, the weak-hearted thought that the Muslims were going into the very mouth of death.

2313 The reference here is not to 9:83, which is a much later revelation. It appears that an order similar to that contained in 9:83 was given by the Holy Prophet to the laggards on the occasion of the Hudaibiyya.

More Victories for Islam

18-20. Victory at Khaibar. 21. Conquest of Mecca. 22, 23. Unbelievers would give back if they fight. 24. Withheld from fighting in the valley of Mecca. 25, 26. They prevent the Muslims from going to the sacred mosque.

2314 The power of the Meccan enemy was now broken, as was proved by the advance on Mecca two years later. Hence, the defaulters are told that they would be called on to join the forces of Islam against another powerful enemy. This may refer to the expedition to Tabūk, or to the wars against the Roman and Persian empires in the time of the early Caliphs.

2315 It should be noted that the 1,500 men who swore allegiance at Hudaibiyya are here declared to be those with whom Allah is well pleased; these words should set at rest the doubts of the adherents of a great schism in Islam as to the sincerity of the companions of the Holy Prophet.

2316 The near victory prophesied here was obtained at Khaibar, soon after the return from Hudaibiyya.

2317 These many acquisitions predict the later conquests of the Muslims, among which the conquest of Mecca occupies the first place, and is referred to in the next verse.

2318, see next page.

21 And others which you have not yet been able to achieve, Allah has surely encompassed them, and Allah has power over all things.²³¹⁹

22 And if those who disbelieve fight with you, they would certainly turn (their) backs, then they would not find any protector or a helper.

23 Such has been the course of Allah that has indeed run before, and you shall not find a change in Allah's course.

2318 What was hastened on was the conquest of Mecca. There was no fighting there, and it is to this that the holding back of the hands of men refers.

2319 This reference is to the great Muslim conquests under the successors of the Holy Prophet. The vanquishment of the enemy is plainly spoken of in the next verse.

2320 It is stated that about seventy or eighty men (thirty according to another report) made a raid upon the Muslims, but they were captured and afterwards set free (Muslim, Nasai-JB). The holding back of the hands in the valley of Mecca may refer to the arrangement of the truce between the two parties, or to the conquest of Mecca.

2321 The terms of the truce made at Hudaibiyya were dissatisfying to the Muslims. Authentic reports state clearly that 'Umar openly gave vent to his injured feelings (Bkh). The chief terms of the agreement were: (1) That the Muslims should return without performing a pilgrimage. (2) That they should be allowed to perform a pilgrimage next year, but should not stay for more than three days. (3) That if an unbeliever, being converted, went over to the Muslims he should be returned, but if a Muslim went over to the unbelievers he should not be given back to the Muslims. The last term of the agreement was specially dissatisfying to the Muslims; but it shows the strong conviction which the Holy Prophet had in the truth of Islam, for he was confident that none of his companions would go over to unbelief and join the Quraish; and also that those who became converts to Islam would not desert it on account of persecution, or because they were not given shelter by the Muslims. And thus it happened that the converts to Islam from among the Meccans, not being allowed to settle at Medina, formed an independent colony of their own, proving thereby the genuineness of their convictions and the strength of their faith.

One of the reasons given here for the truce was to be found in the fact that the welfare of the Muslims demanded it, inasmuch as there were Muslims at Mecca who were unknown even to their brethren at Medina, and that if a battle had taken place, they would have suffered along with the enemy. This shows how Islam was making silent progress at Mecca itself, even without the guidance of a preacher.

2322 The Holy Prophet's journey to Mecca to perform a pilgrimage with from 1,200 to 1,500 of his companions was undertaken on the basis of the vision stated here. In a vision, he had seen himself and his companions performing a pilgrimage; convinced of the truth of his vision, he set out with the object of performing a pilgrimage. The Meccans, however, opposed him at Hudaibiya, and a truce was there arranged according to which the Holy Prophet had to return without performing a pilgrimage. The truth of the vision is therefore asserted here. It is made clear that the Prophet's return did not falsify the vision which had to be, and was, fulfilled in the next year. This was the answer which the Holy Prophet gave to 'Umar when he objected to returning without performing a pilgrimage (Bkh).

28 He it is who sent His Apostle with the guidance and the true religion that He may make it prevail over all the religions; and Allah is enough for a witness.²³²³

29 Muhammad is the Apostle of Allah, and those with him are firm of heart against the unbelievers,²³²⁴ compassionate among themselves; you will see them bowing down, prostrating themselves, seeking grace from Allah and pleasure; their marks are in their faces because of the effect of prostration; that is their description in the Torah and their description in the Gospel; like as seed-produce that puts forth its sprout, then strengthens it, so it becomes stout and stands firmly on its stem, delighting the sowers that He may enrage the unbelievers on account of them; Allah has promised those among them who believe and do good, forgiveness and a great reward.

2323 This prophecy of the prevalence of Islam over all other religions is a prophecy which extends into the distant future. Arabia had seen its fulfilment in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet. The meaning of the prevalence of Islam is not, however, to be found in the political supremacy of its adherents at all times, nor does the prophecy signify that other religions would at any time entirely disappear; it only indicates that the superiority of the religion of Islam to all other religions will at last be established, and Islam will be the religion of the majority of the nations of the earth. No other scripture prophesies the triumph of the religion it preaches in such unmistakable terms.

2324 Ashidda is plural of shadid, which means ordinarily firm, strong, powerful (LA-LI), but also brave, firm of heart (LA, Q-LI). Shiddat, the root word, also signifies firmness of heart according to TA. The translation fierce, or vehement, adopted in English translations is not correct here.

CHAPTER XLIX
THE CHAMBERS
(Al-Hujurât)

REVEALED AT MEDINA
(2 sections and 18 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Respect for the Prophet.
- Sec. 2. Respect for each other.

The Title.

THE chapter takes its title from v. 4, which enjoins the Muslims not to call out to the Prophet from behind the private chambers. As this chapter was revealed when large masses began to enter Islam and deputation after deputation came to Medina, it was necessary to teach these masses good manners as well as good morals, and herein we find a lesson in respect not only for the privacy of the Holy Prophet, but also for the privacy to be observed among Muslims. The Holy Prophet was not only the spiritual head of a people; he was also a prophet who had to direct his people in their religious and temporal affairs. He had to teach them manners as well as morals; to decide their cases and to make laws for them; to lead them to prayer, to bow before God, and into the field to fight against a powerful enemy; and, therefore, it was necessary that the new converts to Islam should appreciate the value of his time.

Date of revelation, context, and subject-matter.

The chapter was revealed at Medina in the year 9 A.H. The opening verses are unanimously referred to the time of the visit of the deputation of Bani Tamim. As the previous chapter speaks of victories for the Muslims, and as victory brings ease, this chapter denounces the vices of a civilized society living in ease and comfort. The first five verses teach what manners must be observed towards the Holy Prophet, the next three require all matters of importance to be referred to him, and the section is concluded with a statement requiring the Muslims to make peace between two Muslim parties who fight with each other. This last injunction is also based on respect for the Prophet, for all Muslims are spiritually his children; and therefore to make peace between them really shows respectfulness for him who laid the basis of the brotherhood of the different nations and tribes of the world. The second section teaches the Muslims some of the social virtues, and enjoins them to avoid certain vices which are the bane of society, as the evil propensities deal a death-blow to the loving affection which the principle of the common brotherhood of man established by Islam requires. a brotherhood which is not based on the distinctions of tribes and families, but on piety and righteousness, so that the most righteous shall be the most respected. The section concludes with the statement that men do not lay Islam under obligation by joining its brotherhood, but that Islam is a real blessing to them, and in failing to recognize this they cannot reap the advantages attendant upon joining the brotherhood of Islam.

SECTION 1

Respect for the Prophet

1-5. Believers should be respectful to the Prophet. 6-8. All matters of importance to be referred to him. 9, 10. Peace-making between believers.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

Or, do not anticipate (any matter).

1 O you who believe! be not forward in the presence of Allah and His Apostle, and be careful of (your duty to) Allah; surely Allah is Hearing, Knowing.²³²⁵

2 O you who believe! do not raise your voices above the voice of the Prophet, and do not speak loud to him as you speak loud to one another, lest your deeds become null while you do not perceive.²³²⁶

3 Surely those who lower their voices before Allah's Apostle are they whose hearts Allah has proved for guarding (against evil); they shall have forgiveness and a great reward.

4 (As for) those who call out to you from behind the private chambers, surely most of them do not understand.²³²⁷

5 And if they wait patiently until you come out to them, it would certainly be better for them, and Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

6 O you who believe! if an unrighteous man comes to you with a report, look carefully into it, lest you harm a people in ignorance, then be sorry for what you have done.²³²⁸

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ
يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا لَا تَقْدُمُوا بَيْنَ
يَدَيِ اللَّهِ وَرَسُولِهِ وَاتَّقُوا اللَّهَ إِنَّ
اللَّهَ سَمِيعٌ عَلِيمٌ
يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا لَا تَرْفَعُوا أَصْوَاتَكُمْ
فَوْقَ صَوْتِ النَّبِيِّ وَلَا تَجْهَرُوا لَهُ
بِالْقَوْلِ كَجَهْرِ بَعْضِكُمْ لِبَعْضٍ أَن تَحْطَ
أَعْمَالُكُمْ وَأَنتُمْ لَا تَشْعُرُونَ
إِنَّ الَّذِينَ يَصُنُّونَ أَصْوَاتَهُمْ عِندَ رَسُولِ
اللَّهِ أُولَٰئِكَ الَّذِينَ امْتَحَنَ اللَّهُ فَلَؤَنَّهُمْ
لَيَسْتَوْفَى لَهُمْ مَغْفِرَةٌ وَأَجْرٌ عَظِيمٌ
إِنَّ الَّذِينَ يُبَادُونَكَ مِنَ الْذِّكْرِ
لَآ تَرْهَمُهُمْ لَا يَعْقِلُونَ
وَلَوْ أَنَّهُمْ صَبَرُوا حَتَّى تَخْرُجَ إِلَيْهِمْ
لَكَانَ خَيْرًا لَّهُمْ وَاللَّهُ غَفُورٌ رَحِيمٌ
يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا إِن جَاءَكُمْ فَاسِقٌ
بِنَبَأٍ فَتَبَيَّنُوا أَن تُصِيبُوا قَوْمًا بِمَآلِهِ
تُظَاهَرُونَ عَلَيْهِ مَا عَلَّمْتُمْ بِلَا يَدَيْنِ

2325 Tuqaddimū is here equivalent to tataqaddamū (Rz). The ordinary rendering is given in the margin, because it requires an understood object, do not anticipate any matter. The presence of Allah means the presence of His commandments. The words imply the utmost obedience.

2326 The Qur-ān not only inculcates high morals but also regulates social conduct, because its teachings are intended for all grades of men. When large numbers of men began to enter Islam such directions became necessary, and they will always be needed by the masses in any society. A loud voice is expressive of arrogance or resentment.

2327 As already pointed out, when the masses began to enter Islam many of them were ignorant even of the ordinary social rules, and they called out to the Prophet with loud voices while he was within his house. The practice is deprecated because it meant disrespect to the Holy Prophet.

2328, see next page.

7 And know that among you is Allah's Apostle; should he obey you in many a matter, you would surely fall into distress, but Allah has endeared the faith to you and has made it seemly in your hearts, and He has made hateful to you unbelief and transgression and disobedience; these it is that are the followers of a right way,

8 By grace from Allah and as a favour; and Allah is Knowing, Wise.

9 And if two parties of the believers quarrel, make peace between them; but if one of them acts wrongfully towards the other, fight that which acts wrongfully until it returns to Allah's command; then if it returns, make peace between them with justice and act equitably; surely Allah loves those who act equitably.²³²⁹

10 The believers are but brethren, therefore make peace between your brethren and be careful of (your duty to) Allah that mercy may be had on you.

وَأَعْلَمُوا أَنَّ فِيكُمْ رَسُولَ اللَّهِ لَوْ يُبِيعُكُمْ
فِي كَثِيرٍ مِّنَ الْأُمْرِ لَعَيْنُمْ وَلَكِن
اللَّهُ حَبَّبَ إِلَيْكُمُ الْإِيمَانَ وَزَيَّنَهُ
فِي قُلُوبِكُمْ وَكَثَرَ بَلَائِكُمُ الْكُفْرُ
الْمُبِينُ وَالْعَصِيانَ أُولَٰئِكَ هُمُ
الرَّاشِدُونَ ۝

فَصَلِّا مِّنَ اللَّهِ وَنِعْمَهُ مَا وَاللَّهُ عَلِيمٌ حَكِيمٌ
وَإِن طَائِفَتَانِ مِنَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ اقْتَتَلُوا
فَأَصْلِحُوا بَيْنَهُمَا ۚ فَإِن بَغَتْ إِحْدَاهُمَا
عَلَى الْأُخْرَىٰ فَجَاهِلَا الْآخَىٰ تَبْغِي حَتَّىٰ
تَفِيَّ إِلَىٰ أَمْرِ اللَّهِ فَإِن فَاءَتْ فَأَصْلِحُوا
بَيْنَهُمَا بِالْعَدْلِ وَأَقْسِطُوا ۚ إِنَّ اللَّهَ
يُحِبُّ الْمُقْسِطِينَ ۝

إِنَّمَا الْمُؤْمِنُونَ إِخْوَةٌ فَأَصْلِحُوا بَيْنَ
أَخَوِكُمْ وَأَتَّقُوا اللَّهَ لَعَلَّكُمْ تُرْحَمُونَ ۝

2328 Such a direction was expedient when a condition of war necessitated prompt action to be taken against the enemy. But even the exigencies of war were to be carried out with the utmost carefulness, so that uninimical people should not suffer loss.

2329 It is related that the occasion of the revelation of this verse was a quarrel between Aus and Khazraj, the two chief tribes of Medina, which led to some blows being exchanged (Kf); but this does not mean that the verse applied only to that case. The verse, in fact, requires the Muslims not to be indifferent when one party of them quarrels with another. In such cases they must bring every kind of pressure within their reach to bear upon the party in error. Had the Muslims followed this injunction, their power would not have departed nor would the Muslim community have been at the mercy of a few mischief-makers who sowed disunion. An attitude of indifference towards fatwas of kufir, directed against their own brethren by ignorant Mullas, has dealt a fatal blow to the union of the Muslim brotherhood, and if the Muslims do not in one mass raise their voice against these fatwas they must never hope to make any progress towards real union.

SECTION 2

Respect for each other

11, 12. Muslims enjoined to avoid what leads to another's disrespect. 13. Principle of the brotherhood of man laid down. 14-18. Novices in Islam.

11 O you who believe ! let not (one) people laugh at (another) people, perchance they may be better than they, nor let women (laugh) at (other) women, perchance they may be better than they ; and do not find fault with your own people nor call one another by nicknames ; evil is a bad name after faith, and whoever does not turn, these it is that are the unjust.²³³⁰

12 O you who believe ! avoid most of suspicion, for surely suspicion in some cases is a sin, and do not spy nor let some of you backbite others. Does one of you like to eat the flesh of his dead brother ? But you abhor it ; and be careful of (your duty to) Allah, surely Allah is Oft-returning (to mercy), Merciful.

13 O you men ! surely We have created you of a male and a female, and made you tribes and families that you may know each other ; surely the most honourable of you with Allah is the one among you most careful (of his duty) ; surely Allah is Knowing, Aware.²³³¹

14 The dwellers of the desert say : We believe. Say : You do not believe but say, We

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا لَا تَسْخَرُوا قَوْمًا مِنْ قَوْمٍ عَسَى أَنْ يَكُونُوا خَيْرًا مِنْهُمْ وَلَا نِسَاءً مِنْ نِسَاءٍ عَسَى أَنْ يَكُنَّ خَيْرًا مِنْهُنَّ وَلَا تَلْمِزُوا أَنْفُسَكُمْ وَلَا تَنَابَرُوا بِالْأَلْقَابِ بِشْرٍ لَكُمْ لَكُمْ الْعُشُورُ بَعْدَ الْإِيمَانِ ۚ وَمَنْ لَمْ يَتُبْ فَأُولَٰئِكَ هُمُ الظَّالِمُونَ ۝

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا اجْتَنِبُوا كَثِيرًا مِّنَ الظَّنِّ إِنَّ بَعْضَ الظَّنِّ إِثْمٌ وَلَا تَجَسَّسُوا وَلَا يَغْتَبَ بَعْضُكُم بَعْضًا ۚ أَيُحِبُّ أَحَدُكُمْ أَنْ يَأْكُلَ لَحْمَ أَخِيهِ مَيْتًا فَكَرِهْتُمُوهُ وَاتَّقُوا اللَّهَ ۚ إِنَّ اللَّهَ تَوَّابٌ رَّحِيمٌ ۝

يَا أَيُّهَا النَّاسُ إِنَّا خَلَقْنَاكُمْ مِنْ ذَكَرٍ وَأُنْثَىٰ وَجَعَلْنَاكُمْ شُعُوبًا وَقَبَائِلَ لِتَعَارَفُوا ۚ إِنَّ أَكْرَمَكُمْ عِنْدَ اللَّهِ أَتْقَاكُمْ ۚ إِنَّ اللَّهَ عَلِيمٌ خَبِيرٌ ۝

قَالَتِ الْأَعْرَابُ آمَنَّا قُلْ لَمْ نُؤْمَرْ بِاللَّحْنِ قُلُوا

2330 This verse and those that follow deal with some of the evils which are most rampant in civilized societies, and which corrupt a society to its core. These evils mostly arise with wealth, for, living in ease, people are most concerned with seeking each other's faults, and thus mutual hatred takes the place of brotherly love and friendly concord.

2331 The principle of the brotherhood of man laid down here is on the broadest basis. The address here is not to believers, as in the two previous verses, but to men in general, who are told that they are all, as it were, members of one family, and their divisions into nations, tribes, and families should not lead to estrangement from, but to a better knowledge of, each other. Superiority of one over another in this vast brotherhood does not depend on nationality, wealth, or rank, but on the careful observance of duty—moral greatness.

submit ; and faith has not yet entered into your hearts ; and if you obey Allah and His Apostle, He will not diminish aught of your deeds ; surely Allah is Forgiving Merciful.²³³²

15 The believers are only those who believe in Allah and His Apostle then they doubt not and struggle hard with their wealth and their lives in the way of Allah ; they are the truthful ones.

16 Say : Do you apprise Allah of your religion, and Allah knows what is in the heavens and what is in the earth ; and Allah is Cognisant of all things.

Ar. thee. 17 They think that they lay you under an obligation by becoming Muslims. Say : Lay me not under obligation by your Islam : rather Allah lays you under an obligation by guiding you to the faith if you are truthful.

18 Surely Allah knows the unseen things of the heavens and the earth ; and Allah sees what you do.

أَسْلَمْنَا وَلَمَّا يَدْخُلِ الْإِيمَانُ فِي قُلُوبِكُمْ
وَأَنْ تُطِيعُوا اللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُ لَا يَلِفَنَّ
مِنْ أَكْمَالِكُمْ شَيْئًا إِنَّ اللَّهَ عَفُورٌ رَحِيمٌ
إِنَّمَا الْمُؤْمِنُونَ الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا بِاللَّهِ وَ
رَسُولِهِ ثُمَّ لَمْ يَرْتَابُوا وَجَاهَدُوا
بِأَمْوَالِهِمْ وَأَنْفُسِهِمْ فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ
أُولَئِكَ هُمُ الصَّادِقُونَ
قُلْ أَعْلَمُونَ أَنَّ اللَّهَ يَعْلَمُ
مَا فِي السَّمَوَاتِ وَمَا فِي الْأَرْضِ وَاللَّهُ
بِكُلِّ شَيْءٍ عَلِيمٌ
يَمْنُونَ عَلَيْكَ أَنْ أَسْلَمُوا قُلْ لَّا مَمْنُؤَا
عَلَى إِسْلَامِكُمْ بَلِ اللَّهُ يَمُنُّ عَلَيْكُمْ
أَنْ هَدَاكُمْ لِلْإِيمَانِ إِنْ كُنْتُمْ صَادِقِينَ
إِنَّ اللَّهَ يَعْلَمُ غَيْبَ السَّمَوَاتِ وَالْأَرْضِ
وَاللَّهُ بَصِيرٌ بِمَا تَعْمَلُونَ

2332 Here the Muslims are enjoined to deal kindly and leniently, even with those who, being novices, were not yet really grounded in the faith, though they were members of the Muslim brotherhood.

QAF

REVEALED AT MECCA
(3 sections and 45 verses)

SECTION 1

The Resurrection

1-5. The unbelievers wonder. 6-11. Nature testifies to the truth of resurrection. 12-15. A lesson in the fate of former peoples.

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

قَدْ أَنْفَرَ الْإِنْسَانِ الْحَبِيدُ

Abstract:

Sec. 1-3. The Resurrection.

The Title and subject-matter.

THIS chapter, which is entitled the Qáf, from its initial letter calling attention to the greatness of the power of the Divine Being, deals with the resurrection. The first section draws attention to the testimony of nature, and to there being a lesson in the fate of former peoples; the second shows that every action has a consequence, and these consequences shall be made manifest on the day of judgment; and the third states that the good and the bad must each receive their due, and that the judgment must be brought about in this life as well as in the hereafter. In fact, the judgment of this life is inseparably mingled with the judgment of the next throughout this chapter.

Context and date of revelation.

The last chapter dealt with certain manners and morals which are the necessary concomitants of a state of ease. And, as it is this state of ease that contributes to neglect of the hereafter—and the judgment that overtakes men here as well as hereafter is entirely overlooked when this condition obtains—the connection of this chapter with the one preceding it is clear. The chapter is unanimously regarded as a Meccan revelation, and may be assigned to the early Meccan period.

2333 The letter qáf stands either for the name Qádir, or Qadír, of the Divine Being, meaning Almighty God, or for the phrase قضى الأمر, i.e. the affair (meaning the doom) is decreed (Rz).

2334 An expression of wonder at the unbelief of Meccans. The whole of the Qur-án is spoken of as one book even at this early period.

2 Nay! they wonder that there has come to them a warner from among themselves, so the unbelievers say: This is a wonderful thing:

3 What! when we are dead and have become dust? That is a far (from probable) return.

4 We know indeed what the earth diminishes of them, and with Us is a writing that preserves.²³³⁵

5 Nay, they rejected the truth when it came to them, so they are (now) in a state of confusion.²³³⁶

6 Do they not then look up to heaven above them how We have made it and adorned it and it has no gaps.

7 And the earth, We have made it plain and cast in it mountains and We have made to grow therein of all beautiful kinds, 8 To give sight and as a reminder to every servant who turns frequently (to Allah).

9 And We send down from the cloud water abounding in good, then We cause to grow thereby gardens and the grain that is reaped,

10 And the tall palm-trees having spadices closely set one above another,

11 A sustenance for the servants, and We give life thereby to a dead land; thus is the rising.²³³⁷

12 (Others) before them rejected (prophets): the people of Noah and the dwellers of Ar-Rass^a and Samood,^b

13 And 'Ad^c and Pharaoh and Lot's brethren,

بَلْ يَجْعَلُونَ أَنْ جَاءَهُمْ مُنْذِرٌ مِنْهُمْ

^c 903, 907.

2335 This refers to a record of the consequences of one's actions, what is necessary for a life after death being preserved in its entirety.

2336 They are said to be in a state of confusion as not knowing how to treat it. They had seen by this time that their first opinion about it was wrong, and the truth of it was becoming clear day by day. But having rejected it once, they found it difficult to admit its truth.

2337 This is a reference to the regeneration to be effected by the Qur-ān.

SECTION 2

The Resurrection

16-18. Every word and action of man is preserved. 19-22. Removal of veil. 23-29. The disclosure of hell.

16 And certainly We created man, and We know what his mind suggests to him, and We are nearer to him than his life-vein.

17 When the two receivers receive, sitting on the right and on the left.

18 He utters not a word but there is by him a watcher at hand.²³³⁹

19 And the stupor of death will come in truth; that is what you shunned.

Ar. thou didst shun.

20 And the trumpet shall be blown; ^c that is the day of the threatening.

^c 789.

21 And every soul shall come, with it a driver and a witness.²³⁴⁰

Ar. thou wert.

22 Certainly you were heedless of it, but now We have removed from you your veil, so your sight to-day is sharp.²³⁴¹

Ar. thee.
Ar. thy.
Ar. thy.

وَلَعَدَّ خَلْقَنَا الْإِنْسَانَ وَنَعْلَمُ مَا تُوَسْوِسُ
بِهِ نَفْسُهُ وَحِثُّ أَوَّلِ الْيَمِينِ خَلِ الْأَوَّلِ
إِذْ يَتَلَفَّى الثَّالِثِينَ عَنِ الْيَمِينِ وَحِثُّ
الْشِّمَالِ قَبِيلُ
مَا يَلْفُظُ مِنْ قَوْلٍ إِلَّا لَدَيْهِ رَقِيبٌ عَيْنُهُ
وَجَاءَتْ سَكْرَتُ الْمَوْتِ بِالْحَقِّ ذَلِكَ
مَا كُنْتُمْ مِنْهُ تُخِيدُونَ
وَنُفِخَ فِي الصُّورِ ذَلِكَ يَوْمُ الْوَعِيدِ
وَجَاءَتْ كُلُّ نَفْسٍ مَعَ مَا سَاءَتْ فِي
وَشْهِيدُ
لَقَدْ كُنْتُمْ فِي غَفْلَةٍ مِّنْ هَذَا فَكَشَفْنَا
عَنكُمْ غُطَاءَ كُفِّ بَصَرِكُمْ الْيَوْمَ حَدِيدٌ

2338 The meaning is that Allah did not lack power in dealing with the former generations so that they should doubt His power in dealing with a new one. Or, the first creation is the physical creation of man, and the second creation his spiritual regeneration.

2339 The three verses impress on man that all his deeds and words bear fruit, that nothing is said or done in vain. The yamīn, or the right side, represents the good, and the shimāl, or the left side, the evil (TA).

2340 The driver signifies the impeller to evil, and the witness the caller to truth. Some other explanations are also given (Bq).

2341 This verse shows clearly that the consequences of evil actions which remain hidden from the eye of man in this life shall be made manifest after death. This is the significance of the sight being made sharp, so that he shall then see what he is unable to see here. Such is hell, according to the teachings of the Qur-ān, viz. the hidden consequences of evil deeds, when made manifest to a man, become his hell.

23 And his companion shall say: This is what is ready with me.

24 Do cast into hell every ungrateful, rebellious one,²³⁴²

25 Forbider of good, ex-ceder of limits, doubter,

26 Who sets up another god with Allah, so do cast him into severe chastisement.

27 His companion will say: Our Lord! I did not lead him into inordinacy but he himself was in a great error.

Ar. remote.

28 He will say: Do not quarrel in My presence, and indeed I gave you the threatening beforehand:

Ar. the word with Me.

29 My word shall not be changed, nor am I in the least unjust to the servants.

وَقَالَ قَرِينُهُ هَذَا مَا لَدَىَّ عَيْنِي ۖ
الْقِيَاءُ فِي جَهَنَّمَ كُلَّ كَفَّارٍ عَيْنِي ۖ
مَتَاعِ الْحَيَاةِ الدُّنْيَا مُغْتَبًى فَرِي ۖ
بِالَّذِي جَعَلَ مَعَ اللَّهِ إِلَهًا آخَرَ فَأَلْفِي ۖ
فِي السَّنَابِ الشَّدِيدِ ۖ
قَالَ قَرِينُهُ رَبَّنَا مَا أَطْعَمْتُهُ وَلَكِنْ
كَانَ فِي ضَلَالٍ بَعِيدٍ ۖ
قَالَ لَا تَخْصِمُوا لَدَيَّْ وَقَدْ قَدَّمْتُ
إِلَيْكُمْ بِالْوَعِيدِ ۖ
مَا يُبَدِّلُ الْقَوْلُ لَدَيَّْ وَمَا أَنَا
بِظَلَامٍ لِّلْعَبِيدِ ۖ

2342 The word in the original which I translate as do cast is alqiya, the form used being dual, and the same word is repeated in v. 26. Some think that two angels are addressed, but more learned opinion favours a different explanation. Kf, Bd, Rz and others hold that it is allowable to take the person addressed as being only one person, though the form used is dual, because this is allowed by Arab idiom. Kf gives two reasons. The first reason is that given by Mubarrad: the making of the nominative dual, stands for the repetition of the verb, because of their oneness, and thus the dual form may stand for alq-i alq-i (i.e. cast, cast), indicating force. The other reason is that the Arabs have a custom that most often one of them would have two companions on a journey, so that the use of the dual became frequent among them, and one of them would say, my friend and my companion, and stay ye two, and be ye two happy, so that they would use the dual even when addressing one man. Thus of Hajjaj it is reported that he used to say: يا حرسى اضربا عنقه, i.e. O my guard: do strike his neck, using the dual iqriba instead of iqrib. Bq quotes a verse

فَان تَزْجُرَانِي يَا بَنَ عَفَانَ انْزَجِرْ ۖ وَات تَدْعَانِي اِحْمَ عَرْضَا مَعَا where the dual forms تَزْجُرَانِي and تَدْعَانِي are used, while only the singular is meant. And the same authority adds that it is permissible that the alif (in alqiya, which gives the verb a dual form) may stand for the nūn of takid (i.e. intensiveness), and this explanation, he says, is supported by a reading of Hasan, who read alqiyan instead of alqiya. It is undisputed that the variety of reading affords an explanation of the meaning of the original word, and hence I think the dual form alqiya is properly rendered by do cast, which gives an idea of the force of the original.

SECTION 3

The Resurrection.

30-35. The evil and the good each receive their recompense. 36, 37. A warning. 38. The power of Allah. 39, 40. Patience is necessary. 41-45. The destructive cry.

Ar. art thou?

30 On the day that We will say to hell: Are you filled up? And it will say: Are there any more?

31 And the garden shall be brought near to those who guard (against evil), not far off:

32 This is what you were promised, (it is) for every one who turns frequently (to Allah), keeps (His limits);

33 Who fears the Beneficent God in secret and comes with a penitent heart:

34 Enter it in peace, that is the day of abiding.

35 They have therein what they wish and with Us is more yet.²³⁴³

36 And how many a generation did We destroy before them who were mightier in prowess than they, so they went about and about in the lands: is there a place of refuge?

37 Most surely there is a reminder in this for him who has a heart or he gives ear and is a witness.

38 And certainly We created the heavens and the earth and what is between them in six periods and there touched Us not any fatigue.^{2343a}

Ar. thy.

39 Therefore be patient of what they say, and celebrate the praise of your Lord before the rising of the sun and before the setting.

Ar. prostrations.

40 And glorify Him in the night and after the prayers.

2343a The Bible says: "And He rested on the seventh day from all His work which He had made" (Gen. 2:2). The act of taking rest applies to one who is tired, and hence the Qur-an negatives any such idea in relation to God, Who does not stand in need of rest; hence it says: there touched Us not any fatigue.

41 And listen on the day when the crier shall cry from a near place, 42 The day when they shall hear the cry in truth; that is the day of coming forth.

CHAPTER LI
THE SCATTERERS
(As-Záriyât)
 REVEALED AT MECCA
 (3 sections and 60 verses)

SECTION 1

Falsehood is doomed

1-6. Manifest evidence of the coming of the judgment. 7-9. Evidence of nature. 10-14. Punishment of those who lie. 15-19. Reward of the good. 20-23. Signs of the truth of judgment.

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Falsehood is doomed.
 Sec. 2. The fate of previous nations.
 Sec. 3. The Meccans shall be judged.

The Title and subject-matter.

THE title of this chapter is taken from the mention of the Scatterers of truth in the first verse. It deals with the fact that the Meccans who reject the truth shall be judged, attention being drawn in the first section to the gradual advancement of truth, which was, quite naturally, daily gaining ground, and the whole section lays stress upon the certainty of the judgment; the second section, opening with the announcement of the birth of a son to Abraham (from whom descended the greatest of the prophets), deals with the fate of some previous nations who were judged because of their evil deeds; and the third again, after an exhortation to seek a refuge in Allah—because the service of Allah is the object of the creation of man—warns the Meccans that their turn of good fortune is about to be ended and they shall be judged even as those before them.

Context and date of revelation.

While the last chapter dealt with the resurrection—the resurrection of the dead in a life after death as well as the resurrection of those who were spiritually dead—the one under consideration states that those who give the lie to this truth shall be judged according to their evil deeds. The chapter is undoubtedly an early Meccan revelation and may without hesitation be assigned to the early Meccan period.

4 Then those dividing the affair ;

with is most surely true,

6 And the judgment must most surely come about.²³⁴⁴ variance with each other in what you say,

9 He is turned away from it who would be turned away.²³⁴⁶

10 Cursed be the liars

11 Who are in a gulf (of ignorance) neglectful ;

12 They ask: When is the day of judgment?

13 (It is) the day on which they shall be tried at the fire.²³⁴⁷

14 Taste your persecution !
this is what you would hasten on.²³⁴⁸

بِهِ تَسْتَحْجُونَ ۝

2344 In the first four verses of this chapter attention is called to certain facts by means of what is generally understood to be an oath, for which see 2099, while the two verses that follow indicate the conclusion to which those facts lead. It is generally considered that by the "broadcast scatterers" are meant the winds that raise up dust before the coming of a cloud. The bearers of the load are the clouds that carry rain ; the easy runners are the winds that carry the clouds along, and the dividers are the winds that distribute the rain : attention being drawn in this description to a similar arrangement in the spiritual world by which truth gradually advances. But we may as well say that attention is herein drawn to more manifest facts, to the scattering of truth broadcast through the Holy Prophet and his faithful followers, which led to some bearing the load of it as if they had become pregnant with truth, while others ran easily towards the acceptance of truth. Others there were who were termed the dividers of the affair those who are elsewhere called muqtasimîn, i.e. dividers, because they divided the Qur-ân into portions, admitting one part and rejecting another (15: 90). In the existence of these three classes, of which the first two increased day by day, while the third was gradually but slowly diminishing, there was a clear sign that the triumph of Islam would soon be established in the land. Or, again, the reference may be to the battles which were ultimately intended to accomplish the overthrow of the Meccans.

2345 The description of heaven as full of ways is one which an ordinary Arab of 1,300 years ago could not give. It is, however, in perfect agreement with the most recent scientific discoveries, which show every star to be the centre about which planets revolve, even as our own sun is the centre around which the earth and several other planets revolve. The ways in the heavens are the orbits of the various planets.

2346 Note the clear statement that only those are turned away from the truth who themselves turn away.

2347 The fire in ~~the~~ this world stands for the battles which brought destruction upon them.

2348 Fitanakum or your persecution signifies their persecution of the Muslims, for which they are threatened with a punishment which they will have to taste.

15 Surely those who guard (against evil) shall be in gardens and fountains, 16 Taking what their Lord gives them; surely they were before that the doers of good.

17 They used to sleep but little in the night.

18 And in the morning they asked forgiveness.

19 And in their property was a portion due to him who begs and to him who is denied (good).²³⁴⁹

20 And in the earth there are signs for those who are sure,

21 And in your own souls (too); will you not then see?²³⁵⁰

22 And in the heaven is your sustenance and what you are threatened with.²³⁵¹

23 And by the Lord of the heavens and the earth! it is most surely the truth, just as you do speak.²³⁵²

The Fate of previous Nations

24-37. A son announced to Abraham and Lot's people destroyed. 38-40. Pharaoh. 41, 42. 'Ad. 43-45. Samood. 46. Noah's people.

Ar. there.

24 Has there come to you information about the honoured guests of Abraham?

25 When they entered upon him, they said: Peace. Peace, said he, a strange people.

26 Then he turned aside to his family secretly and brought a fat (roasted) calf,^a

27 So he brought it near them. He said: What! will you not eat?^b

فَقَرَّبَ إِلَيْهِمْ قَالَ أَلَا تَأْكُلُونَ ۝

2349 The word maḥrūm is understood by some to mean a poor man who does not beg (Kf), and by others, one who has not the faculty of speech, like the dog and the cat (Har-LL).

2350 That is, signs showing that truth was gaining ground.

2351 That is, Allah has both a goodly sustenance and a punishment in store for you and He will give you what you deserve.

2352 Note the high degree of certainty, the unshakable faith in the ultimate triumph of the truth at this early period.

28 So he conceived in his mind a fear on account of them. They said: Fear not. And they gave him the good news of a boy possessing knowledge.

29 Then his wife came up in great grief, and she struck her face and said: An old barren woman!

Ar. thy. 30 They said: Thus says your Lord: Surely He is the Wise, the Knowing.

31 He said: What is your affair then, O messengers!

32 They said: Surely We are sent to a guilty people

33 That we may send down upon them stones of clay,

Ar. thy. a 918. 34 Sent forth from your Lord for the extravagant.*

35 Then We brought forth such as were therein of the believers.

Ar. the Muslims. 36 But We did not find therein save a (single) house of those who submitted.

37 And We left therein a sign for those who fear the painful chastisement.

38 And in Moses: When We sent him to Pharaoh with clear authority.

39 But he turned away with his forces and said: An enchanter or a mad man.

40 So We seized him and his hosts and hurled them into the sea, and he was blameable.

41 And in 'Ad: When We sent upon them the destructive wind.^b

42 It did not leave aught on which it blew, but it made it like ashes.

43 And in Samood: When it was said to them: Enjoy yourselves for a while.

44 But they revolted against the commandment of their Lord, so the rumbling overtook them while they saw.*

قَالَ فَمَا خَبَرُكُمْ أَيُّهَا الْمُرْسَلُونَ
قَالُوا إِنَّا أُرْسِلْنَا إِلَىٰ قَوْمٍ مُّجْرِمِينَ ۖ
إِنَّمَا أَمْرُنَا بِجَارَةٍ مِّنْ طِينٍ ۖ
مُّسَوَّمَةٌ عِندَ رَبِّكَ لِلْمُسْرِفِينَ ۖ
فَأَخْرَجْنَا مَن كَانَ فِيهَا مِنَ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ
فَمَا وَجَدْنَا فِيهَا غَيْرَ بَيْتٍ مِنَ الْمُسْلِمِينَ ۖ
وَتَرَكْنَا فِيهَا آيَةً لِلَّذِينَ يَخْتَفُونَ
الْعَذَابَ إِلَّا لِيُؤْمِنُوا
وَفِي مُوسَىٰ إِذْ أُرْسِلْنَاهُ إِلَىٰ فِرْعَوْنَ
يُسْلُطِينَ مِصْرَ ۖ
فَتَوَلَّىٰ بَرَكِيهٖ وَقَالَ لِحُجْرٍ أُوْحِيُونِي
فَأَخَذْنَاهُ وَجُودَهُ فَنَبَذْنَاهُ فِي الْيَمِّ
وَهُوَ مُلِيمٌ ۖ
وَفِي عَادٍ إِذْ أُرْسِلْنَا عَلَيْهِمُ الْمَوْجَهُ الْعَقِيمَ
مَا تَذَكَّرْنَا مِنْ شَيْءٍ أُنْتِ عَلَيْهِ إِلَّا
جَعَلْنَاهُ كَالرَّمِيمِ ۖ
وَفِي ثَمُودَ إِذْ قِيلَ لَهُمْ مَتَّعُوا مَنَاحِيْرَكُمْ
فَلَمَّا أَغْنَىٰ عَنْهُمْ زِينَتُهُم فَأَخَذْتَهُمُ الصَّيْقَةُ
وَهُمْ يَنْظُرُونَ ۖ

45 So they were not able to rise up, nor could they defend themselves ;

46 And the people of Noah before : surely they were a transgressing people.

فَمَا اسْتَطَاعُوا مِنْ قِيَامٍ وَمَا كَانُوا مُنْصِرِفِينَ
وَقَوْمَ نُوحٍ مِنْ قَبْلِهَا هُمْ كَانُوا
قَوْمًا ضَالِّينَ ۝

SECTION 3

The Meccans shall be Judged

47-51. Refuge to be sought in Allah. 52-55. A warning given. 56-58. Man created to serve Allah. 59, 60. Their doom will come to pass.

47 And the heaven, We raised it high with power, and most surely We are the makers of things ample.

48 And the earth, We have made it a wide extent : how well have We then spread (it) out.

49 And of every thing We have created pairs that you may be mindful.

50 Therefore fly to Allah, surely I am a plain warner to you from Him.

51 And do not set up with Allah another god : surely I am a plain warner to you from Him.

52 Thus there did not come to those before them an apostle but they said : An enchanter or a mad man.

53 Have they charged each other with this ? Nay ! they are an inordinate people.

Ar. thy.

Ar. thou art.

54 Then turn your back upon them for you are not to blame ;²³⁵³

55 And continue to remind, for surely the reminder profits the believers.

56 And I have not created the jinn and the men except that they should serve Me.

57 I do not desire from them any sustenance and I do not desire that they should feed Me.

2353 Turning the back here upon the unbelievers does not signify departing from them, as the revelation of this chapter belongs to an early period. The words that follow make this clear, for the Prophet is enjoined to continue to remind, for there will be some who will believe, and these will profit by the reminder. The meaning of turning the back is to disregard their reviling, as pointed out in the two previous verses.

58 Surely Allah is the Bestower of sustenance, the Lord of Power, the Strong.

59 So surely those who are unjust shall have a portion like the portion of their companions, therefore let them not ask Me to hasten on.

60 Therefore woe to those who disbelieve because of their day which they are threatened with.

Abstract :

Sec. 1. Success of the Faithful.

Sec. 2. The opponents are doomed.

General remarks.

THIS chapter refers to the Mountain to which Moses was called in its opening verse ; thus indicating the similarity between the Holy Prophet and the Israelite lawgiver, because it was also in the cave of a mountain that the Holy Prophet received a call. It contains only two sections ; the first speaks of the reward of the faithful, the second of the punishment of those who opposed the preaching of the truth and contrived plans to nip it in the bud. The judgment of the wicked in the last chapter called for an assurance of success for the faithful, which is the real object of this chapter—the destruction of the opponents being necessary for the attainment of that object. The chapter belongs to the same period as the two previous chapters—the early Meccan period.

²³⁵⁴ The first six verses draw attention to a set of parallel facts in the revelations of Moses and Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon them. The mount in the one case is the mount Sinai, and in the other the mount Hira ; the Book stands for the Torah and the Qur-ān; the house that is visited and the elevated canopy refer, on the one hand, to the tabernacle raised by Moses for the Israelites as a sacred place where they worshipped God and offered sacrifices, and on the other to the Sacred House at Mecca, which was to be the centre of the Muslims of all nations, all countries, and all ages, and where they were to offer sacrifices. The swollen sea represents 'he sea which brought destruction to Pharaoh and his hosts, while the Holy Prophet's enemies are told in the next verse that the punishment of their Lord would as surely overtake them on land as it overtook the enemies of Moses in the swollen sea. But note that the word bahr signifies sea as well as land, and this word occurring in a saying of the Holy Prophet, كتب لهم بجرهم, is explained by IAs as meaning their city and land. The whole passage draws attention to the close similarity of the revelations of Moses and the Holy Prophet, and warns the unbelievers that their power shall be brought to naught, as it was in the case of Pharaoh. Here again we have the Prophet's likeness to Moses indicated in a very early revelation.

2355 The most wonderful change that was to be brought about by the overthrow of a mighty nation, and the raising to the highest dignity of one who was considered a madman, is imaged in the words that the heavens shall move from side to side and the mountains (great men who opposed the Holy Prophet) shall pass away (see 1804 for this significance of the passing away of mountains). The result is that those who rejected the Holy Prophet shall be in woe. Note that the punishment that is promised to the unbelievers in this life and that which they must have hereafter are spoken of in one breath.

2356 The word hūr occurs four times in the Holy Qur-án, here and in 44: 54, 55: 72, and 56: 22. It is a plural of ahwar (applied to a man) and of haurá (applied to a woman), signifying one having eyes characterized by the quality termed hawar, which means intense whiteness of the white of the eye and intense blackness of the black thereof. The word is from the same root as hawárit, which signifies a thing that is pure or unsullied, and hence denotes a true and a sincere friend. The word ahwar (singular of hūr) also signifies pure or clear intellect (I.L.). The other word, 'in', is plural of a'yan (meaning a man wide in the eyes) and of 'ainá' (meaning a woman beautiful and wide in the eye). The latter word also signifies a good or beautiful word, or saying (I.L.). It may be noted that whiteness is also a symbol of perfect and unsullied purity, and hence the two words hūr and 'in' really stand for purity and beauty; and therefore, instead of white-eyed and large-eyed ones, which words give a more literal significance of the original words, I adopt the words pure and beautiful ones as being more expressive of the true significance, leaving the other significance for the margin.

What are these pure, beautiful ones or the white-eyed, large-eyed ones? I have already explained in 2110 that the Holy Qur-án does not speak of any conjugal relations being maintained in a physical sense in the life to come. Moreover, it has been shown on various occasions that where the blessings of paradise or the torments of hell are spoken of, these are nothing but physical manifestations of the spiritual blessings which the doers of good enjoy in this life too. There are gardens, trees, rivers, milk, honey, fruits, and numerous other blessings spoken of as being met with in paradise, but that all these are not things of this life has been shown more than once in these footnotes, and a saying of the Holy Prophet already quoted makes it clear that the blessings of paradise are not the things of this life, for the Holy Prophet is reported to have said: Allah says I have prepared for My righteous servants what no eye has seen and no ear has heard and what the heart of man has not conceived (Bkh). The Holy Qur-án also speaks of them in similar words: No soul knows what is hidden for it. These clear statements need no comment, and they establish beyond the shadow of a doubt that whatever blessings are spoken of as existing in paradise, the one thing sure about them is that they are not things of this world. Hence, even the white-eyed, large-eyed ones, or the pure, beautiful ones, the hūr and 'in' of this verse, are not actually the beautiful women of this life. These are heavenly blessings which the righteous women shall have along with the righteous men, for v. 17 plainly says that those who guard against evil shall find these blessings, and therefore the pure, beautiful ones are as much a blessing meant for the righteous women as for the righteous men.

The question may still be asked, Why are these blessings described in words which apply to women? The fact is that the reward spoken of here is one having special reference to the purity of character and the beautiful deeds of the righteous, and it is womanhood, not manhood, that stands for a symbol of purity and beauty. Moreover, it should be noted that in Arabic ḍalīḥāt and ṭayyibāt signify good deeds and pure things as well as good women and pure women, and this is another reason why the reward of good and pure deeds is spoken of in terms which apply to women. But note also that both hūr and 'in' are plurals of words applying to men as well as to women, as also to qualities and deeds.

2358 Note the clear doctrine of man's responsibility for his actions.

2359 This cup is therefore entirely of a different nature from what is known in this life.

2360 It should be noted that the boys spoken of as hidden pearls in this verse may either be the offspring of the faithful mentioned in v. 21, or these may be heavenly blessings of a nature similar to what is said of hūr in 2356.

2361 This is another clear statement showing that righteous women shall be in paradise along with righteous men. The difference of sex counts for nothing in the sight of Allah.

33 Or do they say: He has forged it. Nay! they do not believe.

34 Then let them bring an announcement like it if they are truthful.²³⁶²

أَمْ يُرِيدُونَ كَيْدًا فَالَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا هُمُ الْمَكِيدُونَ

2362 If their calling it a forgery or the work of a poet or a madman is true, why are they unable to make an announcement like the one that is made by the Holy Prophet? So early did the Qur-án challenge its opponents to produce the like of it. See 36, as to the uniqueness of the Holy Qur-án.

2363 That is, without a cause, or without any purpose, or without there being an author of their existence.

2364 That is, their authority or power in the land would soon be brought to naught.

2365 This verse shows that the Arab astrologers and diviners pretended that they could listen to the secrets of the future, but their conjectures about the future failed to make any impression, as they did not turn out true. The word used here is sullam, which I translate as means. It signifies primarily a ladder, the Arabs believing that their diviners could ascend to the higher regions, and there obtain news of the future (Rgh). This throws light upon the statements made in 15:17, 37:8, 67:5, 72:8. From what is said farther on in v. 41, and elsewhere, challenging them to put down their pretended knowledge of the unseen in writing, a challenge repeatedly given but never accepted, it is clear that the diviners themselves knew that what they said was no more than mere conjecture.

2366 Here we have a clear proof that from the very beginning the Qur-án was written down as it was revealed. This chapter is one of the very early revelations, and here we find the opponents challenged to write down prophecies relating to the future, the suggestion clearly being that the prophecies of the Qur-án relating to the future were handed over to them in a written form.

2367 Mark the clear language in which wars are spoken of, and the consequent vanquishment of the unbelievers and the overthrow of their power. For kaid meaning war see LL, 43 Or have they a god other than Allah? Glory be to Allah from what they set up (with Him).

which gives this significance of the word on the authority of the best Arabic lexicons, TA, LA, Q, etc., and quotes the saying, غزا فلان فلم يلق كيده. i.e. such a one went on a hostile expedition and found not war (S,LA), i.e. did not fight (LL). For makid see JB and Kf, the latter of which interprets the words هم مكيدون thus: They it is to whom the consequences of their war will return and their own plans would destroy them, and this was so, as they were slain on the day of Badr.

2369 The two kinds of punishment with which the opponents were threatened are spoken of distinctly in this verse, viz. a punishment which was to overtake them in this very life in the form of famines, and the wars which were to result in a complete overthrow of their power, and a punishment in the form of spiritual torment in another life.

2370 The judgment of the Lord signifies the punishment of the wicked. The Prophet is not to have any fear, for he is spoken of as being before Our eyes.

Abstract :

Sec. 1. Eminence to be attained by the Prophet.

Sec. 2. Nothing shall avail against truth.

Sec. 3. Allah's power manifested in the destruction of falsehood.

General remarks.

THE word Star, which gives its name to this chapter, occurs in the first verse. The last chapter dealt with the success of the faithful, and this speaks of the eminence to which the Holy Prophet must rise—thus the two chapters are connected. The first section states that the Prophet does not err, and therefore, being on the right way, must rise to the highest eminence to which man can rise; it denounces idol worship, which does not allow man to aspire to greatness and rise to the high eminence to which man can rise. The second section states that nothing can avail against truth, while the third refers to Allah's power as manifested in the destruction of falsehood. The date of the revelation of this chapter may be assigned to the fifth year of the call, and therefore it belongs, like the last chapter, to the early Meccan period.

2371 The words والنجم إذا هوى may be interpreted variously, according to the meaning of najm and hawā that is adopted. The best known significance of najm is the star, and when used as a proper noun it signifies the Pleiades, and hawā may signify, according to Rgh, ذهاب في الخدار, i.e. going down low. Now, the Arabs believed that when An-najm (the Pleiades) rose in the morning, disasters and calamities came to an end. Thus we have the remnant of this belief in a report النجم ارتفعت العاهة or ما طلع إذا طلع النجم, meaning that when the najm rises, no disaster remains on the earth; and IAs, who quotes this under the word najm, says that by its fulul is

- 2 Your companion does not

Or, does he

3 Nor does he speak out of

4 It is naught but revelation

5 The Lord of Mighty Power has taught him,²³⁷⁴

مَا مَنَلْنَا صَاحِبَكُمْ وَمَا عَوَى ۚ
وَمَا يَنْطِقُ عَنِ الْهَوَى ۚ
إِنْ هُوَ إِلَّا وَحْيٌ يُوحَى ۚ عَلَّمَهُ شَدِيدُ الْقُوَى ۚ

meant its rising at morning. And he adds: "The Arabs believe that between its rising in the morning and its disappearance there are diseases and plagues and calamities for men and camels and fruits." After its disappearance, we are told, it rises in the morning. Therefore its going down at morning time, i.e. its appearance in the west so as to be about to set, is a sign not only of its approaching disappearance, but also of the disappearance of the consequent calamities, and in إذا هوى والنجم attention is clearly called to the disasters which were about to overtake the Arabs. This significance has a very clear connection with the end of the last chapter, in which the following pertinent passage occurs: "That day of theirs wherein they shall be smitten with punishment. . . . And wait patiently for the judgment of your Lord, for surely you are before Our eyes, and celebrate the praise of your Lord when you rise; and in the night, give Him glory too, and at the setting of the stars." In the setting of the star the opponents are warned of the calamities which would soon overtake them, and then we are told that it is not an error on the part of the Prophet, but is a revelation granted by the Mighty One. In fact, it would be equivalent to telling them that their star of fortune was about to set.

There is, however, a less known significance of the word najm, which I give in the margin. It sometimes means a portion of the Qur-ān (Bd, Rz, Kf). This meaning also suits the context. Attention in this case is drawn to the portions of the Qur-ān revealed to the Holy Prophet, which are a clear proof that the Prophet is not erring (v. 2), for they do not contain any erroneous teaching. The 3rd verse and those that follow make this interpretation very clear, for there it is asserted that the Qur-ān is a revelation from the Divine Being and the Prophet does not "speak out of desire" (v. 3). Kf and other commentators accept this as a correct interpretation, the former saying: "Or najm indicates one of the portions of the Qur-ān, and it was revealed in portions during twenty years. Hawā means when it descends or is revealed." Rgh gives the following interpretation: "And it is said that by this (i.e. najm) is meant the Qur-ān as revealed in portions, one part after another. And by His saying hawā is meant its revelation; and the same interpretation must be adopted in His saying بمواقع النجوم." The concluding words occur in 56:75, and, according to Rgh, the interpretation of the word najm adopted here also applies there, the meaning thus being the revelation of the portions of the Qur-ān. There is also a third explanation, if hawā is taken to mean rises. The star when it rises is a guide for the wayfarer in a desert country like Arabia, and the spiritual wayfarer is told that he will find a sure guide in the Holy Prophet in his spiritual wanderings.

2372 The verse consists of two parts, the first part containing an assertion that the Prophet does not err, and the second giving, as it were, the argument for this assertion, viz. that he shall not fail to attain the object, for it is clear that if a person errs in starting and takes a wrong course he cannot attain the goal. The doubters are told that if the Prophet attains the object, that will be a clear proof that he is not erring. Or, adopting the alternative significance, mā qalla means he has a true knowledge, and mā ghawā, he acts according to that knowledge.

2373 This verse and the one preceding it conclusively establish the sinlessness of the Holy Prophet, for while the first denies that he does anything which is wrong, this verse denies that he says anything which is not an expression of Divine will.

2374 The Lord of Mighty Power that teaches the Holy Prophet, though generally supposed to be Gabriel, is Allah Himself. Compare 55:1, 2: "The Beneficent God taught the Qur-ān."

6 The Lord of Strength ; so he attained completion,²³⁷⁶

7 And he is in the highest part of the horizon.²³⁷⁶

2375 الرجل استوى means بلغ أشده (M, Q), i.e. he became full-grown and mature in body and intellect, or he attained the completion of his make and intellect (LL). As there is no mention of Gabriel in any of the verses, the personal pronoun, therefore, does not refer to him. It is the Holy Prophet that is spoken of here as having attained spiritual completion because the Almighty Himself was his Teacher.

2376 The Prophet's being in the highest part of the horizon is in reference to the resplendence of his light, which was to illuminate all corners of the world: a prophecy, in fact, that he will shine out in the full brilliance of his light as the midday sun. It is to this that the following verse in praise of the Holy Prophet refers:

انت لما ولدت اشرقت الارض وضأت بنورك الافق

i.e. when you were born the earth became bright and the horizon shone with your light.

2377 Tadallá signifies he was lowly or humble (LL). The verse draws attention to the twofold perfection of the Holy Prophet, i.e. his nearness to the Divine Being, and his lowliness in his relations with men, and thus establishes his perfection as a man.

2378 The qāb of a qaus is the portion of a bow that is between the part that is grasped by the hand and the curved extremity (Q, MsB-LL). According to Qatada, its meaning is from one extremity of the twig to the other extremity (AH). According to Hasan and Mujāhid the qāb is from the chord to the twig in the middle of the bow near the place grasped by the hand (AH). IAs and LA favour measure (qadr) as the meaning of qāb, and the latter quotes the Arab proverb بينهما قاب قوسين i.e. between them two is the measure of a bow, which is a proverb to indicate close relationship between two persons. There is another proverb رُمونا عن قوس واحد i.e. they shot at us from one bow, denoting agreement (LL).

Whatever significance of the word qāb may be adopted, the mention of a single qāb for two bows indicates close union. The two bows seem to indicate the Holy Prophet's twofold perfection, i.e. his nearness to the Divine Being and his humility in his relations with men. The commentators generally understand the phrase as only indicating the distance of two bows.

2379 The mā (what) in mā awhā (i.e. what He revealed) is according to all commentators for the purpose of tafkhīm, i.e. to indicate that a mighty revelation was given to him.

2380 That is, what he saw was a certain truth and not an imaginary picture.

2381 The sidrah, or the lote-tree, is, in Arabia, the tree in the shade of which people alight and rest (LL), or in the shade of which people gather together (Bd). The word occurs elsewhere in the Qur-án as indicating a tree in paradise (56 : 28), and Rgh thus explains the word : " And the shade of it is sought, and thus it is made to serve as a parable for the shade of paradise and its blessings in the words في سدر مخضود on account of the ampleness of its shadow."

As for its meaning in this verse, the same authority takes it either as meaning a place in which the Holy Prophet, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him, was chosen for Divine favours and great blessings, or as signifying the tree under which the companions of the Holy Prophet took the pledge to defend him with their lives when at Hudaibiyya, the mention in the latter case being prophetic. The qualification of sidrah by the word al-muntahá shows that it is a place beyond which human knowledge does not go, one of the explanations given by Kf being, " the knowledge of angels and the others ends there, and no one knows what is beyond it." Hence the significance conveyed by the words is that the Prophet's knowledge of things Divine was the utmost which could be vouchsafed to man. According to some it conveys the same significance as 'illiyyūn in 83 : 18 (Har-LL), for which see 2695.

2382 Verses 19-21 are made the basis of the false story of what is called the "Lapse of Muhammad," or "Compromise with idolatry," by the Christian writers. Certain reports narrated by Waqidy and Tabri are the sole authority for this charge against that incessant preacher against idolatry, every incident of whose life condemns it as a bare falsehood. Muir's assertion that "pious Muhammadans of after-days, scandalized at the lapse of their Prophet into so flagrant a concession, would reject the whole story," is without a grain of truth. Muhammad bin Ishāq, who died as early as 151 A.H., does not mention the incident, while Muir's earliest authority, Waqidy, was born more than forty years later. It is stated in the Bahrain that when questioned about it he called it a fabrication of the Zindeeqs. And the famous Bukharee, the most trustworthy authority on the sayings of the Holy Prophet, was Waqidy's contemporary, and his collection of sayings contains no mention of the story. As regards Waqidy, all competent authorities entertain a very low opinion of his trustworthiness. The Meezán ul I'tidál, a critical work on the lives and characters of the reporters of sayings, speaks of Waqidy as unreliable and even as a fabricator of reports. As regards Tabri, Muir himself represents him as guilty of "indiscriminate reception." As against these two unreliable authorities, "those who reject this story are highly learned men" (Rūh-ul Ma'āni). The six collections of reports known as the Sihah Sitta (or the six reliable works) do not mention it at all and contain instead a report which essentially contradicts the story of the so-called compromise. Internal evidence, too, is wholly against the story. We are told that instead of

v. 21 the Prophet read the words : تلك الغرائق العلى وإن شفاعتهن لترتجى
i.e. "These are exalted females whose intercession is to be sought after." But the insertion of these few words in a chapter which is wholly directed against idolatry is quite out of place :

22 This indeed is an unjust division!

23 They are naught but names which you have named, you and your fathers; Allah has not sent for them any authority. They follow naught but conjecture and the low desires which (their) souls incline to; and certainly the guidance has come to them from their Lord.

24 Or shall man have what he wishes?

25 Nay! for Allah is the hereafter and the former (life).

Nothing shall avail against Truth

26-27. Intercession of angels shall not avail. 28-30. Conjectures do not avail against truth. 31, 32. Good and evil rewarded.

26 And how many an angel is there in the heavens whose intercession does not avail at all except after Allah has given permission to whom He pleases and chooses.

27 Most surely they who do not believe in the hereafter name the angels with female names.²³⁸³

28 And they have no knowledge of it; they do not follow anything but conjecture, and surely conjecture does not avail against the truth at all.

29 Therefore turn aside from him who turns his back upon Our reminder and does not desire anything but this world's life.

v. 23 condemns idols; v. 26 denies their intercession; v. 28 condemns the giving of names of female deities to angels, and so on. It is further asserted that 22: 52 was revealed in connection with this change, but it should be noted that a period of at least eight years must have elapsed between the revelation of this verse and that of 22: 52. Moreover, if the Prophet had made any such compromise it could not have been a sudden event, and traces of it should have been met with in other chapters revealed about the same time. But a perusal of these shows clearly that the Qur-an's condemnation of idolatry was never marked by the slightest change. See further 2387.

But this by no means amounts to an intention or an attempt to commit a sin.

2387 Here is a command to prostrate oneself, which is literally obeyed by all Muslims when reciting the Qur-án or hearing it recited. This command, which is contained in eleven other chapters of the Holy Qur-án and thirteen times in all, was revealed for the first time in this chapter, and the chapter, when first revealed, was read in a large assembly containing Muslims as well as unbelievers. When the Holy Prophet prostrated himself in obedience to the command, not only did the Muslims prostrate themselves, but even the idolaters were so overawed that they also prostrated themselves, with the exception only of Umayya bin Khalf, who raised some gravel to his forehead. This man was afterwards killed, dying an unbeliever, says the report, evidently implying that all others were gradually converted to Islam (Bkh).

It is this simple incident which is connected with the story of the so-called "lapse" and is adduced as proof of its truth. But it will be seen that the prostration was made in obedience to the direct Divine command, so make obeisance to Allah, and had nothing to do with the worship of idols. The incidents narrated before it, relating to the grandeur and majesty of Allah and to the destruction of the wicked, are so impressive that the idolaters could not resist prostrating themselves. It is possible that the story of the prostration reached the Abyssinian exiles, some of whom might have returned under the impression that the unbelievers no longer opposed the movement.

CHAPTER LIV
THE MOON
(Al-Qamar)
REVEALED AT MECCA
(3 sections and 55 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Judgment shall overtake the Prophet's opponents as it overtook Noah's people and 'Ād.
- Sec. 2. Sāmūd and Lot's people.
- Sec. 3. Pharaoh and the Prophet's opponents.

The Title and subject-matter.

THE word Moon, which occurs in the first verse and gives its title to this chapter, was a symbol of the power of the Arabs, and as the chapter deals with the fact that judgment has always overtaken the opponents of prophets, it refers to the overthrow of the power of the Quraish both in its opening and concluding verses. For a fuller explanation see 2388. As the last chapter referred to the eminence to which the Holy Prophet and his faithful companions were to rise, this one deals with the ultimate fate and overthrow of the opposition, even as resulted in the case of those who opposed former prophets. The first section, after clearly warning the opponents of the Holy Prophet, contains further mention of Noah and 'Ād, the second of Sāmūd and Lot's people. The third, after a brief reference to Pharaoh and his hosts, contains a clear prophetic reference to the battle of Badr, which was to humble the power of the Quraish and be the means of elevating an oppressed and helpless community.

Date of revelation.

The date of revelation of this chapter cannot be later than the close of the early Meccan period, and it is simply absurd to assign to it a later date on the ground that it contains an order to the Holy Prophet to turn his back upon the polytheists; for, as I have already said, "turning the back" in this case signifies assuming an attitude of forbearance in reference to their persecutions, which had no doubt taken active shape by the commencement of the fourth year of the Call, at which time it was deemed necessary that the faithful should remove to Arqam's house for prayers, which were prohibited by the Quraish from being performed in public.

SECTION 1

Judgment shall overtake the Prophet's Opponents as it overtook Noah's People and 'Ad.

1, 2. Rending asunder of the moon. 3-8. Meccans reject the Prophet, so they shall meet with a severe day. 9-17. Noah's people destroyed. 18-22. 'Ad overtaken.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 The hour drew nigh and the moon did rend asunder.²³⁸⁸

2 And if they see a sign they turn aside and say: Transient enchantment [2389]

Or, a powerful or continual enchantment.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ
إِذَا زُلْزِلَتِ السَّاعَةُ وَالشَّقَقُ الْقَمَرِ
وَأَن يَرَوْا آيَةً يُعْرِضُوا وَيَقُولُوا
سِحْرٌ مُّسْتَمِرٌّ

2388 The "rending asunder of the moon" in the time of the Holy Prophet is an incident related by a number of his companions; and the reports of this incident are classed as Mashhūr (i.e. well-known) (Rz), and are accepted as correct by such well-known Islamic authorities as Bukharee and Muslim. While the main fact is thus undisputed, there are some differences as to details. IMad says that he saw the peak of the Mount Hira interposing between the two parts. I'Ab informs us that one of the two parts remained, while the other disappeared (Kf). Answering the objection to the possibility of such an unusual incident, Rz concludes from the different versions of the report that it was a kind of lunar eclipse, and the appearance of something in the form of half the moon in the firmament (Itz). The best authorities, however, agree that there is no reason to doubt the trustworthiness of the report, and that the same incident is referred to here. In the whole history of the miracles, this is the only miracle of which a contemporaneous record exists. It thus stands unique even among the miracles of the Holy Prophet.

A very few commentators are, however, of opinion that the verse under discussion refers to the rending asunder of the moon at the approach of the day of judgment. There is also a suggestion that الشَّقَقُ الْقَمَرِ means ظهر الامر i.e. the matter has become manifest, the reason given being that the Arabs used to set forth the example of the moon for an affair becoming manifest, as the morning is spoken of as fulaq, literally a split, fissure, or cleft (AH). Rgh explains the phrase under the root shaqq as bearing any of the following three significances: "One explanation of the phrase is that the moon was rent asunder in the Holy Prophet's time; another, that the rending would be brought about at the approach of the Judgment Day; and a third, that the meaning is that the affair became manifest."

The scientific objections to the possibility of the incident may be dismissed in a few words. It may have been a particular kind of lunar eclipse, the moon appearing as if it were cloven into two, a part remaining bright and the other part darkening, this being the meaning of one part disappearing and the other remaining, or some great commotion might have taken place in the moon or some other unusual phenomenon may have occurred. It may be noted that the force of the sign lies in the incident having come to pass at a time prophesied by the Holy Prophet, not in its extraordinary nature.

The rending asunder of the moon, in whatever form it took place, signified the departure of the power of the Meccans. The moon was the motto of the Arabs. Safiyya, who was afterwards married by the Holy Prophet, had seen in a vision that she received the moon in her lap, and the dream was interpreted as meaning that she would marry the king of the Arabians. Hence the moon represented the power of the idolatrous Arabians, and its being cloven into two parts signified the departure of that power through the Holy Prophet's instrumentality.

2389 By calling it transient enchantment, they meant to indicate that it was a magical illusion, not an actual occurrence. But the word mustamir, which is here translated as transient, may bear either of the significances given in the margin.

3 And they call (it) a lie, and follow their low desires; and every affair is settled.²³⁹⁰

Or, must draw to an end.

4 And certainly some narratives have come to them wherein is prevention—²³⁹¹

Or, warners.

5 Consummate wisdom—but warnings do not avail;

6 So turn (your) back on them (for) the day when the inviter shall invite them to a hard task,

Ar. thing.

7 Their eyes cast down, going forth from their graves as if they were scattered locusts,

8 Hastening to the inviter. The unbelievers shall say: This is a hard day.²³⁹²

9 Before them the people of Noah rejected, so they rejected Our servant and called (him) mad, and he was driven away.

Or, re-strained with rough speech.

10 Therefore he called upon his Lord: I am overcome, come Thou then to help.

11 So We opened the gates of the cloud with water pouring down,

12 And We made water to flow forth in the land in springs, so the water gathered together according to a measure already ordained.

13 And We bore him on that which was made of planks and nails, 14 Running on, before Our eyes, a reward for him who was denied.

وَكَذَّبُوا وَاتَّبَعُوا أَهْوَاءَهُمْ وَكُلُّ أَمْرٍ مُسْتَقَرٌّ

وَلَقَدْ جَاءَهُمْ مِنَ الْأَنْبَاءِ مَا فِيهِ مُرْدَجَرٌ

حِكْمَةٌ بِالْعَمَلِ فَمَا لَنَ الْيَوْمِ نَرُحَ

فَنُؤَلَّ عَنْهُمْ يَوْمَ يَدْعُ الدَّاعِيَ إِلَى

شَيْءٍ يُشْكِرُ

خَشَعًا أَبْصَارُهُمْ يَخْرُجُونَ مِنَ الْأَجْدَاثِ

كَأَنَّهُمْ جَرَادٌ مُنتَشِرٌ

مُتَّطِيعِينَ إِلَى الدَّاعِي يَقُولُ لِلْكَافِرُونَ

هَذَا يَوْمُ عَسِيرٍ

كَذَّبَتْ قَبْلَهُمْ قَوْمُ نُوحٍ فَكَذَّبُوا

عَبْدَنَا وَاتَّخَذُوا لِحُجُوتٍ وَأَزْدَجَرٌ

فَدَعَا رَبِّي أَنِّي مَغْلُوبٌ فَانْتَصِرُ

فَتَفَتَحْنَا أَبْوَابَ السَّمَاءِ بِمَاءٍ مُنْهَرٍ

وَوَجَّعْنَا الْأَرْضَ عَيْنُونَا فَانْقَلَبَ الْمَاءُ

عَلَى أَمْرٍ قَدْ قُدِرَ

وَحَمَلْنَاهُ عَلَى ذَاتِ الْأَوْبَارِ وَدُسِيرٍ

يَجْرِي بِأَعْيُنِنَا جَزَاءً لِمَن كَانَ كَفِرٍ

2390 According to Qatada, the meaning is those who deserve good shall meet with good, and those who deserve evil shall meet with evil; or the meaning is that the truth will be established, and become manifest, and the falsehood pass away (AH). In fact, the words are so clear that they hardly require an explanation; it is the affair of the punishment of the rejectors that is declared to be settled; or, adopting the interpretation given in the margin, the power of the opponents of the Holy Prophet must draw to an end.

2391 The fate of the ancients, of whom narratives are recited, should have prevented the Meccans from following in their footsteps.

2392 The commentators make all verses of this description apply to the life after death, but comparison with the fate of other people whose stories are narrated by way of illustration shows clearly that the punishment of this life is also meant. The hard day of trouble overtakes the opponents of prophets in this life, and the hereafter only brings it in a more palpable, and therefore more terrible, form. The inviter is the Prophet, who invites them to truth, and the graves may signify their homes because they are spiritually dead.

15 And certainly We left it as a sign, but is there any one who will mind ?²³⁹³

²³⁹³ The fate of Noah's people is a sign to the deniers of the Holy Prophet. Compare 51: 37-46, where a sign is said to be left in the people of Noah, in Moses's enemies, in 'Ad and in Samood. The words "is there any one who will mind" support this conclusion, for the planks of the ark were not left as a sign for the Arabs of the Holy Prophet's time.

28 And inform them that the water is shared between them; every share of the water shall be attended.²³⁹⁴

29 But they called their companion, so he took (the sword) and slew (her).

30 How (great) was then My chastisement and My warning!

31 Surely We sent upon them a single cry, so they were like the dry fragments of trees which the maker of an enclosure collects.²³⁹⁵

32 And certainly We have made the Qur-ān easy for remembrance, but is there any one who will mind?

33 The people of Lot treated the warning as a lie.

34 Surely We sent upon them a stone-storm,²³⁹⁶ except Lot's followers; We saved them a little before daybreak, 35 A favour from Us; thus do We reward him who gives thanks.

36 And certainly he warned them of Our violent seizure, but they obstinately disputed the warning.

2394 Water is here said to be shared between them, i.e. between the people themselves, as the word baina-hum shows, and not between the people and the she-camel. The concluding statement, كل شرب محتضر signifies that "every share of the water shall be attended" by the she-camel, i.e. the water shall not be withheld from her on account of its division. These words, therefore, do not show that the she-camel had a whole day to herself, during which the people could not have a drink. All that they signify is that, because of a certain division between themselves, the camel was not to suffer from thirst, but that as a beast she should be at liberty to drink water at any time when there was access to water. See also 1821.

2395 The punishment which overtook Samood is called sometimes rajfah, i.e. the earthquake (7 : 78), sometimes ʿāʾiqah, i.e. the destructive punishment (41 : 13 ; 51 : 44), sometimes ʿaiḥah as here, i.e. the cry, or the rumbling before an earthquake, and sometimes ṭāghiyah (69 : 5), which is synonymous with ʿāʾiqah; but its description here, as also in 27 : 52, shows that it was a severe earthquake which destroyed the men and their houses. Muḥtaṣir is the maker of a ḥaṣṭrah, which signifies an enclosure made of dry canes, etc., to confine and protect sheep or camels, etc. (LL). Ḥaṣṭm signifies the dry fragments of wood. This description also shows that they were destroyed by an earthquake.

2396 Hāṣib signifies a thrower or a peltor of stones (TA-LL), that being its primary significance; hence it also comes to signify a storm raining pebbles. As other occasions on which details of the punishment are given show that it was a volcanic eruption, I render the word as meaning stone-storm, because stones mixed with ashes were rained upon them.

37 And certainly they endeavoured to turn him from his guests, but We blinded their eyes; so taste My chastisement and My warning.²³⁹⁷

38 And certainly a lasting chastisement overtook them in the morning.

Pharaoh and the Prophet's Opponents

41, 42. Pharaoh's people overtaken. 43-53. Forces of Meccan unbelievers shall be routed. 54, 55. The righteous shall be honoured.

41 And certainly the warning came to Pharaoh's people.

42 They rejected all Our communications, so We overtook them after the manner of a Mighty, Powerful One.²³⁹⁸

43 Are the unbelievers of yours better than these, or is there an exemption for you in the scriptures?

44 Or do they say: We are a host allied together to help each other?

45 Soon shall the hosts be routed, and they shall turn (their) backs.²³⁹⁹

46 Nay, the hour is their promised time, and the hour shall be most grievous and bitter.²⁴⁰⁰

2397 They endeavoured to prevent him taking his guests into his house, but were unable to see their way to it.

2398 Akhḡ (infinitive noun) signifies a way or manner of life (Lā, Q-LL).

2399 An incident of the battle of Badr, narrated by Bukhārē in his comment on this verse, explains how the Holy Prophet and his companions understood such clear prophecies of the vanquishment of the Quraish. It is related by Ibn-i-Abbas that the Holy Prophet prayed within his tent on the day of Badr, saying: "O Lord! I beseech Thee according to Thy covenant and Thy promise; O Lord! if such is Thy will, Thou mayest not be served after this day." Abu Bakr took his hand and said: "Allah is sufficient for you, O Apostle of Allah." So he went out and he recited: "Soon shall the hosts be routed, and they shall turn their backs; but the hour is their promised time, and the hour shall be most grievous and bitter."

2400 See the last note, which shows that the Holy Prophet understood the hour to mean the hour or time of the discomfiture of the Quraish, and looked upon the battle of Badr as fulfilling this prophecy.

47 Surely the guilty are in error and distress.

48 On the day when they shall be dragged upon their faces into the fire; taste the touch of hell.²⁴⁰¹

49 Surely We have created every thing according to a measure.²⁴⁰²

50 And Our command is but one, as the twinkling of an eye.

51 And certainly We have already destroyed the likes of you, but is there any one who will mind?

52 And everything they have done is in the writings.

53 And everything small and great is written down.

54 Surely those who guard (against evil) shall be in gardens and amplitude,²⁴⁰³

55 In the seat of truth, with a most Powerful King.

إِنَّ الْجُورِمِينَ فِي ضَلَالٍ وَسُعُرٍ

Or, (among) rivers.

2401 All these verses give a prophetic description of what happened at Badr. The Quraish who were slain at Badr were removed to a pit for burial: this is spoken of as their being dragged upon their faces into the fire. At the same time the Holy Prophet is reported as having addressed them in the following words: "Surely we have found true what our Lord promised us: have you too found true what your Lord promised you?" (Ibn-i-Hisham). The punishment of this life is called here a touch of hell.

2402 So that even nations and people cannot go beyond a certain limit.

2403 As contrasted with the disasters which were to befall the Quraish, the faithful are promised not only mastery over their opponents, but also other lands of gardens with rivers flowing in them.

CHAPTER LV
THE BENEFICENT
(Ar-Rahmān)
REVEALED AT MECCA
(3 sections and 78 verses)

SECTION 1
Divine Beneficence

1-4. Revelation is an act of Divine beneficence. 5-9. A measure of all things. 10-25. Creation and its provision an act of beneficence.

In the name of Allah the
 Beneficent, the Merciful.

- 1 The Beneficent God,
- 2 Taught the Qur-ān.²⁴⁰⁴

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Divine beneficence.
- Sec. 2. Judgment of the guilty.
- Sec. 3. Reward of the righteous.

The Title.

THIS chapter takes its title from the name of the Divine Being, The Beneficent, with which it begins, and the entire chapter speaks of the beneficence of Allah, repeating the words which then of the bounties of your Lord will you reject?

Subject-matter.

The chapter opens with the statement that the revelation of the Qur-ān to the Holy Prophet is an act of Divine beneficence, and then proceeds to speak of the means which Allah has created for the physical sustenance of man, showing that He who made such elaborate arrangements for the material welfare of man could not have neglected his spiritual care ; it further enumerates certain bounties of the Divine Being. The second section speaks of the judgment which shall overtake the guilty because they persist in rejecting the benefits which a Beneficent God has provided for them : while the third deals with the reward that shall accrue to the faithful who avail themselves of those benefits. Thus it is shown that if the faithful are rewarded or the guilty visited with punishment, as the last two chapters show, it is not because there is any partiality in Divine nature, or because wrath takes precedence of mercy in Him in some cases, but because the people themselves reject the benefits of a Beneficent God and thus render themselves deserving of punishment.

As regards the date of revelation, like other chapters of this group, it can only be assigned to the early Meccan period.

2404 Ar-Rahmān is the Beneficent God who brought things into existence for the sustenance of man before his creation. Man has not earned them. The same Beneficent God, we are here told, has taught the Qur-ān, which is a necessity of the spiritual life of man, i.e. the Prophet did not produce it by his exertion, but it was a Divine gift for the spiritual sustenance of man, like so many gifts for his physical sustenance.

12 And the grain with (its) husk and fragrance.

بِأَنَّى الْآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبِينَ ۝

2405 I translate al-insán as meaning man in a general sense, and accordingly translate al-bayán as meaning the mode of expression, because it is in the faculty of speech that lies man's superiority above other animals. But many commentators interpret Al-insán as meaning the perfect man, i.e. the Prophet, because al-bayán, or that in which everything is made manifest (LL) is an appellation applied to the Holy Qur-án in 3 : 137.

2406 This verse and the one preceding it show how every thing created, from those large orbs in the heavens to the smallest herbs that grow on land, follows a law : is not, then, a law needed for the spiritual perfection of man ?

2407 Meezán does not signify in the Holy Qur-án a pair of scales for weighing things, but a measure, as signifying any standard of comparison, estimation, or judgment, and the term is here, as elsewhere, used in this broad sense. This is made plain in 57 : 25, "Certainly We sent Our apostles with clear arguments, and sent with them the book and the measure (Ar. meezán), that men may conduct themselves with equity," where the meezán is that which enables men to be just in their actions. It is in this sense that most of the commentators understand this word. Thus, according to Mjd, Tabri, and most commentators, meezán signifies 'adl, i.e. justice (AH), which is explained by Rk as meaning the giving of their due to those who deserve it.

2408 This verse is repeated several times in this chapter. In the original the dual form is used instead of the plural, and thus we have instead of your Lord, rabbi-kumá, i.e. the Lord of you two, and instead of will you reject?, tukazzibán, i.e. will you two reject? The commentators generally take the dual form literally, and suppose that the two kinds of rational beings, i.e. the jinn and the men, are meant. But see 2342 on the meaning of the dual form, where it is shown that the form is sometimes used by the Arabs to give force to the meaning. That here the dual is used for this purpose is shown by the fact that the blessings mentioned are those which serve as means of sustenance for mankind, such as palms and grain, which are not needed for ethereal beings, as the jinn are considered to be. Hence it is mankind only that are addressed; and even if the dual is to be taken literally, the two classes addressed may be taken to be the believers and the unbelievers or the strong and the weak, divisions which are of frequent occurrence in the Holy Qur-án.

14 He created man from dry clay like earthen vessels,

15 And He created the jinn of a flame of fire.²⁴⁰⁹

SECTION 2

Judgment of the Guilty

26-28. Everything in nature is subject to decay except God. 29-34. All are dependent on and subject to Him. 35-45. The guilty shall be punished.

26 Every one on it must pass away.²⁴¹³

كُلُّ مَنْ عَلَيْهَا فَانٍ

The former of these is specially referred to in the concluding words of the last chapter, and hence the personal pronoun kumâ may refer to them; the jinn not being mentioned in any previous verse, the personal pronoun cannot be taken as referring to them.

2409 The creation of jinn from fire is also mentioned in 7:12 and 15:27, where it is contrasted with the creation of men from earth, and the meaning is explained in 862 and 1336.

2410 The two Easts and the two Wests signify the different points of the horizon at which the sun rises and sets at the summer and winter solstice.

2411 The two seas are mentioned in 25:53 and 35:12 as the sweet-water sea and the salt-water sea. A note on the first of these shows what the two seas represent. As in v. 22 here, we find that 35:12 also states that from both seas fresh flesh and ornaments are obtained; the significance being that useful men would continue to arise from among both believers and unbelievers. Taken literally, some understand the Red and the Mediterranean Seas to be meant. These seas were separated formerly, but are now united by the Suez Canal, and the verse is considered to contain a prophetic mention of their union.

2412 That is, He will make the Muslims masters of sea as well as of land.

2413 History bears out that, to say nothing of individuals, even the most powerful nations decayed and passed away, making room for others.

2414 LA thus sums up the comments on this verse: "It is His attribute to raise up a mighty one from the lowly and to bring down one who is mighty, and to enrich one who is poor and to impoverish one who is rich."

2415 Saqalân, dual of saql, signifies, literally, things that a man has with him of such things as burden him (Ham-LL), and then the household and kindred and party or domestics or servants (LL). And Ham explains the saying كلا ثقلينا طامع بغنيمة as meaning each of the two armies is longing for spoil (LL). The two armies here are the believers and the unbelievers, and Allah's applying Himself to them signifies the judging of their cases so that each should have its reward or punishment. Ham understood the Arabs and the foreigners (LL), and thus the allusion may be to the conquest of Arabia and the foreign countries. This explanation lends support to what is stated in 2580, that the word jinn in the Holy Qur-ân sometimes stands for foreigners.

2416 The jinn and the men of this verse are the great and the small opponents of the Holy Prophet or the foreigners and the Arabs as shown in the previous foot-note. See also 2593. All these opponents are told that they cannot escape the punishment.

2417 The fire and the smoke were sent in this life in the form of battles that brought destruction upon them. Fire was a symbol of war among the Arabs, though the two terms would express modern warfare much better, which is nothing but fire and smoke. According to Az (TA-JL), all interpreters of the Qur-ân consider nûḥās as meaning smoke here. The smoke may also indicate the famine, as it is called dukhān in 44: 10

38 Which then of the bounties of your Lord will you reject?

Reward of the Righteous

46 And for him who fears to stand before his Lord are two gardens.²⁴¹⁹

47 Which then of the bounties of your Lord will you reject?

48 Having in them various kinds.

49 Which then of the bounties of your Lord will you reject?

وَلَسَنَ خَاتَمَ مَقَامِ رَبِّهِ جَنَّتَيْنِ

فَيَا أَيُّ الْآلَاءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكذِّبَانِ

ذَوَاتَا أَفْنَانٍ

فَيَا أَيُّ الْآلَاءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكذِّبَانِ

2418 All these verses depict the evil plight in which the guilty will find themselves in this life as well as after death.

2419 The two gardens which are promised to the faithful followers of the Holy Prophet are the fertile lands watered by the Euphrates and the Tigris. The two gardens are spoken of as a sign of the fertility of the land, as in the case of the two gardens of Saba in 34 : 15 (see 2030), or the two gardens represent the two tracts of land watered by the Tigris and the Euphrates, which are called the two fountains flowing in v. 50. These two rivers, along with the two chief rivers of Persia, mentioned in v. 66, form the four rivers which, according to a report recorded in the Sahih Muslim, are the four rivers of al-Jannah or the Garden. That four rivers flowing on earth should be called anhâr-ul-jannah, or the rivers of the garden, by the Holy Prophet, shows clearly that the promises of al-jannah for the faithful were not limited to the life after death, but that these promises related also to this life. The saying of the Holy Prophet referred to above runs thus :

عن ابى هريرة قال قال رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم سيحان وجيحان
والفراات والنيل كل من انهار الجنة

(Muslim, vol. 2, p. 351, ط). (ما في الدنيا من انهار الجنة). It is therefore clearly shown that the lands watered by these four rivers, which form the gardens of this verse and v. 62, were promised to the Muslims.

50 In both of them are two fountains flowing.

51 Which then of the bounties of your Lord will you reject?

52 In both of them are two pairs of every fruit.

53 Which then of the bounties of your Lord will you reject?

55 Which then of the bounties of your Lord will you reject?

56 In them shall be those who restrained their eyes;* before them neither man nor jinni shall have touched them.

57 Which then of the bounties of your Lord will you reject?

58 As though they were rubies and pearls.²⁴²⁰

59 Which then of the bounties of your Lord will you reject?

2420 The noble ladies of high families who were married by the Muslim conquerors after the conquest of Syria seem to be described here, so far as the promise relates to this life. As to the blessings which shall be granted to the righteous in the next life, the subject has been explained fully elsewhere; see 2356.

2421 These gardens refer to the fertile lands of Persia, so far as the promise relates to this life.

2422 Bq concludes from this description of these two gardens that these gardens will chiefly produce herbs or inferior kinds of vegetables, whereas the former will be planted chiefly with fruit trees. This distinction is a further proof that the fertile lands of Syria are referred to in the first description and those of Persia in the second.

2423 Khairat is plural of khairah, feminine of khair. Now khairah means a good thing of any kind, a good quality, an excellency (LL). The other word, hisān, is plural of hasanā, which, applied to a woman, signifies comely, beautiful, or pleasing (LL). The significance as regards blessings of a life after death is the same as explained in 2356. As regards the promise of this life, noble ladies of high families and even ladies of royal descent in Persia were married by the Muslim conquerors.

2424 The costly furniture of the Persians fell into the hands of the Muslim conquerors, and thus the prophecy was fulfilled in this life, which serves as a proof and an example of its fulfilment in the hereafter.

CHAPTER LVI
THE GREAT EVENT
(Al-Wāq'ah)

REVEALED AT MECCA
(3 sections and 96 verses)

SECTION 1

Three Classes of Men

1-12. The coming of judgment and the division of men. 13-26. The foremost. 27-38. The righteous.

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 When the great event comes to pass,²¹²⁵

2 There is no belying its coming to pass —

لَيْسَ لَوْفَتِهَا كَافَّةٌ

Abstract :

Sec. 1. Three classes of men.

Sec. 2. The guilty.

Sec. 3. Judgment is inevitable.

General remarks.

THE title of this chapter also is taken from its first verse, and the "Great Event" referred to is the time of the meting out of reward and punishment to the faithful and the opponents respectively with which the last chapter deals. This chapter speaks of three classes of men, the foremost among the faithful being indicated as a separate class, while the other two are the believers and their opponents. The first section, after stating that men will be divided into three classes, speaks of the two classes of the faithful; the second refers to the guilty opponents, while the third states that judgment is inevitable and the three classes will receive what they deserve.

As regards the date of revelation, there is no reason to assign it to a period other than that at which the other chapters of this group were revealed. It is a Meccan revelation and belongs to the early Meccan period.

2425 Note that the Holy Qur-ān speaks of the hour or the event not only as signifying the resurrection, but also very frequently as signifying the doom of its opponents. In fact, the doom of the opponents of the Holy Prophet in this life was a foretaste of what they would suffer in the life after death.

2426 This description of the great event is a clear testimony that it signifies the time when the opponents of the Holy Prophet will be humbled and the faithful followers exalted and made masters of the country in this life, though its complete manifestation can only be accomplished in the life after death.

2427 The crumbling of the mountains signifies the fall of great men. See 1604.

2428 The meaning is that those foremost in doing good shall be foremost in reaping their reward.

2429 Those who were foremost in accepting the Holy Prophet were raised to high dignities in the land. Those who accepted the Holy Prophet in the earlier stages of his mission, and were compelled to make great sacrifices, were adequately rewarded; but those who waited until Islam was established in the land rarely made any sacrifices. The pioneers were rewarded in this life by being made masters of the land, while a fuller reward is promised to them in the life after death. Compare 57: 10 and see 2446.

2430 Khallad-a when used transitively signifies he adorned another with ornaments (AA-LL); and mukhalladun therefore either signifies adorned with ornaments (Zj-LL), or that never become decrepit (Q-LL), or never altering in age (Fr-LL), because there is no decay in the life after death.

2430a This description of the paradise in early revelation does not differ from that of later revelation. After various blessings are enumerated, their true nature is depicted in one word, peace.

2431 These represent another class of believers who, though not foremost, had the "good-luck" not to reject the Prophet. For the blessings promised to them see the last note.

2432 It is noteworthy that the blessings granted to the righteous, the companions of good-luck, are first spoken of as shades, water, fruits, and resting-places; and then, as it were, to dispel all doubts as to what these blessings of the next life are, it is said in v. 35, We have made them to grow into a new growth. These words settle conclusively that, whatever these blessings are, whether shades or trees or water or fruits, they are all the fruits of deeds which have been made to grow into a new growth. The words that follow this statement are no doubt primarily applicable to women, but, as shown in 2356, it is only because womanhood stands as a symbol of purity and beauty. Thus abkâr, plural of bikr, means a virgin, and also an action that has not been preceded by its like (Q-LL) Similarly, atrâb, or equals in age, as already shown in 2148a, signifies that the growth of those blessings begins with the growth of spiritual life in man; while 'urub' is plural of both 'urûb' and 'urîb', the former signifying a woman that manifests love to her husband, and the latter, a man who is chaste in speech, and thus conveys the idea of chastity or love. As applying to the conquests of this life, see 2419, 2420, etc.

2434 These verses draw a picture of the distress and abasement which were in store for the unbelieving Quraish in this life as well as in the hereafter.

2435 That is, the violation of Divine commandments.

61 In order that We may bring in your place the likes of you and make you grow into what you know not.

62 And certainly you know the first growth, why do you not then mind?

63 Have you considered what you sow?

64 Is it you that cause it to grow, or are We the causers of growth?

65 If We pleased, We should have certainly made it broken down into pieces, then would you begin to lament:

66 Surely we are burdened with debt:

67 Nay! we are deprived.

68 Have you considered the water which you drink?

69 Is it you that send it down from the clouds, or are We the senders?

70 If We pleased, We would have made it saltish; why do you not then give thanks?

71 Have you considered the fire which you strike?

2436 These verses and the one that follows tell them plainly that they were ordained to be overtaken by death, others (the Muslims) taking their place, while they themselves were to be reduced to a state of abjection of which they had no knowledge. It is this state of abjection, that can never be realized by a powerful nation, that is referred to in the words of the next verse, and make you grow into what you know not.

2437 The fire burned at night points out to the desert wayfarer a habitation of men where he will be welcome. It is called "a reminder" because the fire served as a symbol of the wars which were to bring destruction upon the unbelievers; it also represents the reward of evil deeds in another life. The above verses all contain clear prophecies of the failure and final disruption of the power of the Quraish.

وَتَجْعَلُونَ رِزْقَكُمْ أَنْ كُفِّرُوا
تَكَذِّبُونَ ۝

2438 The meaning adopted is in consonance with the context. As to mujim meaning portions of the Qur-án see 2371, where this verse also is explained. Mawāqī' is the plural of mauqa', i.e. the time or place of the coming down of a thing, which is the revelation of the Qur-án in this case. V. 77 makes it clear that it is the revelation of the Qur-án, for it is to this that the personal pronoun it occurring there refers.

As already stated in 2099, the object of an oath in such cases is to draw attention to certain facts, hence I render the word uqsim-u as meaning I call to witness. The use of lá in such cases is explained in 2606.

2139 Vv. 77, 78, and 79 contain three statements regarding the Qur-án: (1) That it shall be an honoured reading; in other words, its reciters shall be honoured and great men; (2) that it shall be protected in all its purity in writing; and (3) that the impure idolaters shall not even touch it, i.e. they shall not derive advantage from it as long as they remain in their impurity. This also shows that an understanding of the Qur-án is granted only to those who are pure in heart. It also shows that the Qur-án should not be touched by one who is impure. Hence the companions were forbidden to carry the Qur-án to an enemy's country. نهينا ان نساخر بالقرآن الى ارض العدو are the words of a report accepted by Bukharae. Both the verses and this report further show that the Qur-án existed in a written form from the first, otherwise such injunctions as not to touch or travel with it to the enemy's country would have been meaningless.

2440 Mudhīnān is here equivalent to متهاونون مكذبون i.e. holding in light estimation, rejecting (JB) All interpreters accept this significance. As to how the word came to have this meaning, LL says: "It originally signified the anointing such a thing as a hide with some oil or the like; and as such a thing is rendered soft to the sense of feeling, it was used metaphorically to denote ideal softness, hence the treating with gentleness, soothing, coaxing, beguiling, or deluding . . . and then the word mudhīnān was tropically used as signifying the holding a thing in light estimation or in contempt (Mf, TA)."

2441 The meaning of the passage is quite clear, taking rizq in its ordinary significance of means of subsistence, i.e. you are bent upon giving the lie to the Qur-án to such an extent

83 Why is it not then that when it comes up to the throat,

84 And you at that time look on—

85 And We are nearer to it than you, but you do not see—

Or, made low.

86 Then why is it not—if you are not held under authority—

87 That you send it (not) back—if you are truthful?²⁴⁴²

88 Then if he is one of those drawn nigh (to Allah),

89 Then happiness and bounty and a garden of bliss.

90 And if he is one of those on the right hand,

Ar. thee.

91 Then peace to you from those on the right hand.

92 And if he is one of the rejecters, the erring ones,

93 He shall have an entertainment of boiling water,

94 And burning in hell.

* 95 Most surely this is a certain truth.²⁴⁴³

Ar. thy.

96 Therefore glorify the name of your Lord, the Great.

as if to give it the lie were your means of subsistence without which you could not live. But the word has another significance, because you say رزق فلانا meaning he thanked such a one (LL). TA gives another instance of the same significance in the saying فعلت ذلك لما رزقتني i.e. I did that since thou didst thank me. The meaning of the passage would thus be: And you make your thanking to be that you give (it) the lie, i.e. Is this the thanks that you return for the benefit of Divine revelation, that you give it the lie?

2442 Salc and others translate غير مدِين as meaning not to be rewarded or not to be judged, and call the passage obscure. But madīn means mamlūkīn, i.e. held under authority (Rz). Zj gives the same interpretation, which is accepted by LL, i.e. it means not held under authority. In fact the root word dāna means primarily he became obedient, or he became abased and submissive (IAR, Q, TA-LL). This interpretation makes the meaning quite clear: If you are your own masters and not subject to the authority of a Higher Power, why can you not resist death when it comes to you and prolong your lives?

2443 Mark the force and conviction of the truth of the judgment which is present to the Prophet's mind.

CHAPTER LVII

THE IRON

(Al-Hadid)

REVEALED AT MEDINA

(4 sections and 29 verses)

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. Greatness of the Divine kingdom.
- Sec. 2. The light of faith.
- Sec. 3. Unbelievers' enjoyment is short-lived.
- Sec. 4. Divine grace for believers.

The Title, subject-matter and context.

THIS chapter is entitled The Iron, in reference to the punishment which it was necessary should be inflicted upon the opponents who were bent upon extirpating Islam with the sword. It opens with a description of the vastness of the Divine kingdom and of the greatness of the power and knowledge of Allah, thus containing a clear prophecy of the future conquests of Islam, in contrast with the last group of Meccan revelation, which promised eminence and conquests in metaphorical language. They were wonderful prophecies, relating as they did to the eminence of one nation, almost non-existent at the time of their declaration, and the overthrow of another, holding all power in their hand. How were all these prophecies to be accomplished? By the greatness of the power and knowledge of Allah is the answer, and that is the answer given here; while the Muslims are told that they must spend money and exert themselves to their utmost, and thus sacrifice their own interests to the cause of the truth if they would be heirs to the Divine kingdom. There is also a clear reference to the vastness of the kingdom which was promised to the Muslims, a kingdom by no means to be limited to the confines of Arabia. Yet there were those who, while professing Islam with the lips, did not make the necessary sacrifices. The second section therefore tells us that these hypocrites, not having the light of faith, will ultimately find themselves in darkness, and concludes with an exhortation to the believers. The third section refers to the temporary nature of all those worldly enjoyments which keep a man away from the truth, and it closes with a reference to the punishment of those who take up the sword to annihilate Islam. The last section speaks of the Divine grace which is in store for the believers, the vast kingdom to which they are to be made heirs, again exhorting them that they can obtain that grace not by resorting to such practices as monkery, which Islam does not sanction, but by exerting themselves and thus employing their faculties for the attainment of the object which was set before them. The chapter, in fact, if it contains, on the one hand, a reply to those who object to the Muslims having emerged from a purely religious life and to their having taken up the sword in defence of the truth, is a warning, on the other hand, to the Muslims themselves against following monkish practices. For just as truth would have perished if they had not been allowed to defend it, the greatness to which they attained could not have been maintained had they neglected the cares of this life. Islam, moreover, required a development of all the human faculties, while a purely religious life would have led to a practice resembling monkery, and thus most of the faculties granted to man would have remained quite dormant in him.

SECTION 1

Greatness of Divine Kingdom

1-6. Knowledge and power belong to Allah. 7-10. Muslims shall be given the kingdom, so they must spend.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 Whatever is in the heavens and the earth declares the glory of Allah, and He is the Mighty, the Wise.

2 His is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth; He gives life and causes death; and He has power over all things.

3 He is the First and the Last and the Ascendant (over all) and the Knower of hidden things,²⁴⁴⁴ and He is Cognizant of all things.

4 He it is who created the heavens and the earth in six periods, and He is firm in power;^a He knows that which goes deep down into the earth and that which comes forth out of it, and that which comes down from the heaven and that which goes up into it, and He is with you wherever you are; and Allah sees what you do.

5 His is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth; and to Allah are (all) affairs returned.

6 He causes the night to enter in upon the day, and

Date of revelation.

With this chapter is introduced a group of Medianian revelation which is continued to the 66th chapter. That this chapter was revealed at Medina there can be little doubt, the fact being established by the most influential section of Muslim opinion (AH). The dissenting voices are, in fact, quite unworthy of serious consideration. The date assigned to it by Noéldeke is between the battles of Uhud and the Allies; but in face of indisputable statements relating to the conquest of Mecca, this view is absolutely untenable.

2444 The Holy Prophet has thus explained the four attributes of the Divine Being mentioned here: "Thou art al-Awwal, i.e. the First, so that there was nothing before Thee, and Thou art al-Akhir, i.e. the Last, so that there is nothing after Thee, and Thou art az-Zâhir, i.e. the Ascendant over all, so that there is nothing above Thee, and Thou art al-Bâtin, i.e. the Knower of the hidden things, so that there is nothing hidden from Thee" (JB). How sublime is the conception of the Divine attributes expressed here!

causes the day to enter in upon the night, and He is Cognizant of what is in the hearts.

Ar. breasts.

7 Believe in Allah and His Apostle, and spend out of what He has made you to be successors of; for those of you who believe and spend shall have a great reward.

8 And what reason have you that you should not believe in Allah? and the Apostle calls on you that you may believe in your Lord, and indeed He has made a covenant with you if you are believers.²¹⁴⁵

9 He it is who sends down clear communications upon His servant, that he may bring you forth from utter darkness into light; and most surely Allah is Kind, Merciful to you.

10 And what reason have you that you should not spend in Allah's way? and Allah's is the inheritance of the heavens and the earth; not alike among you are those who spent before the victory²⁴⁴⁶ and fought (and those who did not): they are more exalted in rank than those who spent and fought afterwards; and Allah has promised good to all; and Allah is Aware of what you do.

2145 The believers, who are addressed, are exhorted to be true to their belief and make their actions correspond with their doctrines.

2446 The victory means the conquest of Mecca; it is in this sense that the word fat-h is taken ordinarily, when it stands alone (Rz). Prior to the conquest of Mecca the Muslim power was not firmly established, and Islam was surrounded on all sides by enemies, therefore only those who were ready to lay down their lives in the cause of truth could openly join the ranks of Islam. These men had to make great sacrifices, while those who joined the ranks after the Muslim power became predominant in Arabia neither suffered the persecutions to which the earlier converts were subjected nor made those sacrifices in the cause of truth which were the distinctive characteristic of the early believers. It should be noted that the foremost mentioned in 56:10 are here plainly stated to be those who made sacrifices for Islam before the conquest of Mecca; see 2428.

SECTION 2

The Light of Faith

11, 12. Believers guided by light of faith. 13-15. Hypocrites shall have no light. 16-19. Believers exhorted to what may give them their light and reward.

831.

Ar. Thou wilt.

11 Who is there that will offer to Allah a good gift* so He will double it for him, and he shall have an excellent reward.

12 On that day you will see the faithful men and the faithful women—their light running before them and on their right hand²⁴⁴⁷—good news for you to-day: gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide therein, that is the grand achievement.

13 On the day when the hypocritical men and the hypocritical women will say to those who believe: Wait for us, that we may have light from your light; it shall be said: Turn back and seek a light. Then separation would be brought about between them, with a wall having a door in it; (as for) the inside of it, there shall be mercy in it, and (as for) the outside of it, before it there shall be chastisement.²⁴⁴⁸

14 They will cry out to them: Were we not with you? They shall say: Yea! but you caused yourselves to fall into temptation, and you waited²⁴⁴⁹ and doubted, and vain desires deceived you till the threatened punishment²⁴⁵⁰ of Allah came, while the arch-deceiver deceived you about Allah.

15 So to-day ransom shall not be accepted from you nor from

مَنْ ذَا الَّذِي يُقْرِضُ اللَّهَ قَرْضًا حَسَنًا
يَضْعِفَهُ لَهُ وَلَهُ أَجْرٌ كَرِيمٌ

يَوْمَ تَرَى الْمُؤْمِنِينَ وَالْمُؤْمِنَاتِ يَسْعَى
نُورُهُمْ بَيْنَ أَيْدِيهِمْ وَبِأَيْمَانِهِمْ بُشْرَانُكُمْ
الْيَوْمَ جُمِعَتْ تِجَارَتُكُمْ مِنْ تَحْتِهَا الْأَنْهَارُ خَالِدِينَ
فِيهَا ذَلِكَ هُوَ الْفَوْزُ الْعَظِيمُ

يَوْمَ يَقُولُ الْمُنَافِقُونَ وَالْمُنَافِقَاتُ
لِلَّذِينَ آمَنُوا انظُرُوا زَانِعِينَ مِنْ نُورِهِمْ
فِيكَالٍ نَجْعُوا وَإِرَاءَكُمْ فَالْتَمِسُوا نُورًا
فَضُرِبَ بَيْنَهُمُ سُورٌ لَهُ بَابٌ بَاطِنٌ فِيهِ
الرَّحْمَةُ وَظَاهِرٌ مِنْ قِبَلِهِ الْعَذَابُ

يَبَادُوهُمْ وَهُمْ أَلَمَ نَكُنْ مَعَكُمْ قَالُوا
بَلَى وَلَكِنَّكُمْ فَتَنْتُمْ أَنْفُسَكُمْ وَتَرَبَّصْتُمْ
وَارْتَبْتُمْ وَغَرَّتْكُمُ الْأَكْمَانُ فِي حَتَّى جَاءَ أَمْرُ اللَّهِ
وَعَصَّيْتُمْ بِاللَّهِ الْعَدُوَّ وَرُؤُوسِهِ

فَالْيَوْمَ لَا يُوَفَّى كُفْرَكُمْ فَدِيَةً وَلَا مَرَّ

2447 The light of faith which guided the faithful to the truth will become a manifest light on the day of resurrection.

2448 Although the hypocrites remained mixed with the believers for a time, yet separation was brought about even in this life. As the resurrection will bring hidden things to light, the hypocrites will find themselves devoid of light, because they did not possess the light of faith in this life.

2449 The hypocrites hoped that the Muslims would be annihilated by their powerful opponents.

2450 Amr-Ullah signifies the threatened punishment of Allah (LL).

those who disbelieved; your abode is the fire; it is your friend,²⁴⁵¹ and evil is the resort.

16 Has not the time yet come for those who believe that their hearts should be humble for the remembrance of Allah and what has come down of the truth? and (that) they should not be like those who were given the Book before, but the time became prolonged to them, so their hearts hardened, and most of them are transgressors.

17 Know that Allah gives life to the earth after its death; indeed, We have made the communications clear to you that you may understand.

18 Surely (as for) the charitable men and the charitable women and (those who) set apart for Allah a goodly portion,* it shall be doubled for them and they shall have a noble reward.

19 And (as for) those who believe in Allah and His apostles, these it is that are the truthful and the faithful ones in the sight of their Lord: they shall have their reward and their light; and (as for) those who disbelieve and reject Our communications, these are the inmates of the hell.

Ar. with.

2451 The fire is here called a mauld, or a friend or guardian, of the unbelievers, thus showing that it is for their good that they will have to undergo the suffering of fire. In fact, hell is elsewhere also represented to be a place or a state which will ultimately lead to the purification of man, as fire purifies gold of dross. Those who do not prepare themselves in this life for a life after death, will have to be purged of their evil deeds and inclinations in the next life, so that they may be fit to make the spiritual progress necessary for a heavenly life. The process of purification, which is in other words hell, is thus a necessary stage in the spiritual perfection of those who do not avail themselves of the opportunity granted to them in this life. The keenness of the torments of that other life are due to the keener perception of the soul, which is the necessary result of its separation from the earthly vessel. Bliss and torment therefore grow equally keener in that life.

SECTION 3

Unbelievers' Enjoyment is short-lived

20. Unbelievers' enjoyment shall be changed into torment. 21. Greatness of the reward of believers. 22-24. They should suffer patiently. 25. Justice required the punishment of the guilty.

20 Know that this world's life is only sport and play and gaiety and boasting among yourselves, and a vying in the multiplication of wealth and children,²⁴⁵² like the rain, whose causing the vegetation to grow, pleases the husbandmen;^{2452A} then it withers away so that you will see it become yellow, then it becomes dried up and broken down;²⁴⁵³ and in the hereafter is a severe chastisement and (also) forgiveness from Allah and (His) pleasure;²⁴⁵⁴ and this world's life is naught but means of deception.

•21 Hasten to forgiveness from your Lord and to a garden the extensiveness of which is as the extensiveness of the heaven and the earth;^{2454A}

اعْلَمُوا أَنَّ الْحَيَاةَ الدُّنْيَا لَإِغْوَاءٌ وَلَهُنَّ

شَدِيدٌ وَمَغْفِرَةٌ مِّنَ اللَّهِ وَرِضْوَانٌ
وَمَا الْحَيَاةُ الدُّنْيَا إِلَّا لَمْتَاعٌ الْعُرُورِ

2452 This world's life in the Holy Qur-ān stands for the vanities of life, as this passage clearly shows. The meaning is that life must be taken seriously, not devoted to sport and worldly enjoyment, but turned to good use. The earnestness, the seriousness, of life is a factor which is gradually losing its importance in the daily lives of most men and women in civilized society.

2452A The word kuffār, which by the consensus of the opinion of all interpreters signifies here husbandmen, is the plural of kāfir, and has been used throughout the Holy Qur-ān to signify unbelievers. But the context here does not allow us to adopt that significance, hence the departure. It will thus be seen how sometimes a well-known significance of a word may be misleading, and how we are compelled at times to give a word a significance other than that which ordinarily obtains.

2453 The fate of the unbelievers, i.e. of those who take life for a sport, is likened to vegetation that will soon decay and be dried up. The parable shows that their power must soon be broken. This is made clear by what follows, and in the hereafter is a severe chastisement. But it is equally a warning to the Muslims that if they do not take life seriously their power will also come to naught.

2454 Note how Divine forgiveness is constantly mentioned when punishment is spoken of, to show that the attribute of mercy is the predominant attribute in Divine nature.

2454A The garden of the paradise is here said to be as extensive as the heavens and the earth, and a similar statement occurs in 3:132, where it is said: "And hasten to forgiveness from your Lord, and (to) a garden, the extensiveness of which is as the heavens and the earth." These statements afford us the key to a right conception of the Muslim paradise. It is not limited to one particular place but is as wide as the heavens and the earth. The following incident is related under 3:132: "A messenger of Heracleus asked the Holy Prophet: 'If paradise were as extensive as the heavens and the earth, where would be hell?' The Prophet it is prepared for those who believe in Allah and His apostles; that is the grace of Allah: He gives it to whom He pleases, and Allah is the Lord of mighty grace.

22 No evil befalls on the earth nor in your own souls, but it is in a book before We bring it into existence; surely that is easy to Allah:

23 So that you may not grieve for what has escaped you, nor be exultant at what He has given you; and Allah does not love any arrogant boaster:

24 Those who are niggardly and enjoin niggardliness on men; and whoever turns back, then surely Allah is He who is the Self-sufficient, the Praised.

25 Certainly We sent Our apostles with clear arguments, and sent down with them the Book and the measure,²⁴⁵⁵ that men may conduct themselves with equity; and We have made the iron,²⁴⁵⁶ wherein is great violence and advantages to men, and that Allah may know who helps Him and His apostles in the secret; surely Allah is Strong, Mighty.

replied: سبحان الله ذابن الليل اذا جاء النهار i.e. 'Glory be to Allah, where is the night when the day comes?' (Itz). The two verses referred to above and this incident show clearly that heaven and hell are not the names of two places, but really two conditions, because if paradise were the name of a particular place, hell could not exist, as paradise would according to those verses extend over the whole of space. This conclusively settles the nature of heaven and hell.

2455 As to what is meant by mizān, or the measure, see 2407. In fact, the statement here is clear enough, for the object of sending down the mizān is stated to be that men may conduct themselves with equity. It therefore stands for rules of justice or principles of equity. Bq thus explains the word: "So that rights may be sought thereby equitably and justice may be maintained." For sending it down, see the next note.

2456 Of all the metals none has proved of greater utility than iron, and this metal has played an all-important part in civilization, which, indeed, would have been well-nigh impossible without this factor in its development. The meaning of these words could not have been so clear to the mind of an Arab 1300 years ago as it is to ours to-day. It should be noted that inzāl (infinitive noun of anzala) does not only signify the sending down of a thing from above, but it also means causing a thing to grow, or bringing the means of it into existence (Itz). Hence it is that in the Holy Qur-ān we find the word used with reference to the clothes that a man wears, and to cattle, etc.

The mention of iron undoubtedly refers to the resistance against the enemy, which as a 26 And certainly We sent Noah and Abraham, and We gave to their offspring the (gift of) prophecy and the Book; so there are among them those who go aright, and most of them are transgressors.

27 Then We made Our apostles to follow in their footsteps, and We sent Jesus son of Mary afterwards, and We gave him the Gospel; and We put in the hearts of those who followed him kindness and mercy; and (as for) monkeny, they innovated it—We did not prescribe it to them—only to seek Allah's pleasure, but they did not observe it with its due observance;²⁴⁵⁷ so We gave to those of them who believed their reward, and most of them are transgressors.

28 O you who believe! be careful of (your duty to) Allah and believe in His Apostle: He will give you two portions of His mercy,²⁴⁵⁸ and make for you a light with which you will walk, and forgive you, and Allah is Forgiving, Merciful; last resource had to be effected with the sword. Rz gives several explanations of the three things mentioned here together, viz. the Book, the measure, and the iron. One of these is that a man's dealings with Allah are judged by the Book (i.e. Divine revelation), his dealings with men in general by the mizân, i.e. the principle of equity, and his dealings with his enemies by the ḥadid, i.e. the sword or war. Another explanation is that there are three kinds of men (as indicated in ch. 56): (1) the foremost, who deal with men according to the Book, so that they give them their dues without exacting their own; (2) those who take a middle course, giving to others their dues and exacting their own—these act according to the principle of equity; (3) those who are unjust, not giving to men their dues while exacting their own—they must be dealt with by ḥadid, which stands for severity and punishment.

2457 لا رهبانية في الاسلام i.e. there is no monkeny in Islam, is a well-known saying of the Holy Prophet, quite in accordance with this verse, which states that even among the Christians monkeny is an institution which was introduced by themselves, not being a Divine ordinance, although it is quite true that their object in adopting this innovation was to seek Divine pleasure. The Muslims were now becoming a great nation, and as they were brought up in the utmost simplicity, and were also enjoined to disdain the gaiety of this life, they are told that their greatness as a nation depended upon the development of all their faculties, so that they, while retaining their simplicity of life, should not stoop to practices like that of monkery. Indeed, to stick to a middle course is the most difficult task. People generally go to this or that extreme. The Muslims are, however, told that they must neither lean to the extreme of worldliness nor to the extreme of monkery—evils which are both represented in their worst form in the Christian religion.

2458 By two portions of mercy is meant only a great mercy. The double mercy promised here is indicated in the words that follow, i.e. forgiveness of faults and the granting of a light as a guide for the future. It is not meant, as usually supposed, that believers from among the people of the Book will get a reward the double of that which is given to other believers. And it should be borne in mind that a greater reward is only the result of greater exertion in the cause of truth. See 1888, where the double reward is due to their being steadfast and to their repelling evil with good and spending out of what is given to them.

2459 The great reward which the Muslims would have from Allah, and the light which would guide their steps aright, would convince the followers of the Book that Allah's grace was not to remain with them for ever, and that He had now chosen the Muslims for the manifestation of His grace.

CHAPTER LVIII
THE PLEADING ONE
(Al-Mujádilah)

REVEALED AT MEDINA
(3 sections and 22 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Safeguarding of women's rights.
- Sec. 2. Secret counsels condemned.
- Sec. 3. Internal enemy to be guarded against.

The Title and subject-matter.

THE title of this chapter is taken from the circumstances narrated in its first section. There was an old Arab custom of putting away the wife by calling her a mother, but she was not divorced, neither did she continue to hold the status of a wife. A Muslim did the same. The wife complained to the Holy Prophet, and it is by reason of her complaint that she is called one who pleads. The custom was, however, abolished. The whole of the first section is devoted to this matter. The second section condemns secret counsels against the Holy Prophet, which, owing to Islam having gained power, had become very frequent at Medina—the hypocrites, and the Jews especially, taking part in these conspiracies. The third section speaks more plainly of the hypocrites and the Jews, and enjoins the Muslims to be wary of them, and, as they were hidden enemies of Islam, not to befriend them.

Context.

The last chapter having referred to the future conquests of the Muslims, this warns them of the secret plans of the enemies of Islam, which were now being employed against them to encompass their fall. Overt means had failed, and, notwithstanding the severest opposition from outside, Islam was daily gaining ground; therefore, as an internal enemy was now using covert means, this chapter is employed to warn the Muslims of the new danger.

Date of revelation.

As regards the date of revelation, the chapter, which is regarded as Medinian by general consent, may be placed a little before the 33rd chapter, for the custom known as zihár is fully dealt with here, while only a reference to it is contained in the 33rd chapter. And as the case of Khaulah shows (see 2460) that the Prophet waited for the Divine revelation before giving a decision, it is evident that the reference to zihár contained in 33:4 was a later revelation. The subject is thought not to be relevant, but, as already remarked in the second chapter, it was one of the first needs of a progressive society that a period should be put to the cruel treatment of women. The reformation wrought by the Holy Qur-án would have been incomplete had it neglected the rights of half the human race. Hence the subject of the greatness of the Muslim nation is always attended with references to the rights of, and the relations with, women. This chapter, read concurrently with the one preceding it, affords an instance of this.

Safeguarding of Women's Rights

1-4. Abolition of the custom of zihar and atonement for it. 5, 6. The Prophet to be obeyed.

Ar. thee.

2 (As for) those of you who put away their wives by likening their backs to the backs of their mothers,²⁴⁶¹ they are not their mothers; their mothers are no others than those who gave them birth; and most surely they utter a hateful word and a falsehood; and most surely Allah is Pardoning, Forgiving.

3 And (as for) those who put away their wives by likening their backs to the backs of their mothers then would recall what they said, they should free a captive before they touch each other; to that you are admonished (to conform); and Allah is Aware of what you do.

2460 سَمِعَ اللَّهُ قَوْلَ signifies Allah knows your saying (L.L.). The woman referred to was Khaula, wife of Aus bin Samit, who was separated by her husband in an old Arab form, the husband saying to the wife, Thou art to me as the back of my mother, the word zihar being derived from zahr, meaning back. The result of the pronouncement of these words was a total estrangement of the husband from the wife, but the woman was not free to marry. The Prophet refused to interfere until he received this revelation abolishing this objectionable practice.

2461 For this form of putting away the wife see 1967, under 33 : 4, where the abolition of this practice is also referred to. This revelation, however, seems to be earlier, the reference to it in 33 : 4 being only for the sake of the abolition of another practice.

Nowhere is there a secret counsel between three persons but He is the fourth of them, nor (between) five but He is the sixth of them, nor less than that nor more but He is with them wheresoever they are; then He will inform them of what they did on the day of resurrection: surely Allah is Cognizant of all things.²⁴⁶²

10 Secret counsels are only (the work) of the devil that he may cause to grieve²⁴⁶⁶ those who believe, and he cannot hurt them in the least except with Allah's permission; and on Allah let the believers rely.

11 O you who believe! when it is said to you, Make room in (your) assemblies, then make ample room, Allah will give you ample; and when it is said, Rise up, then rise up. 2464 The meaning is that they invoke death and destruction for you while Allah wishes that you should live and prosper. There is a report that the Jews used to say when they came to the Prophet: السلام عليك, i.e. death overtake you! instead of عليك السلام, i.e. peace be with you, the two phrases sounding nearly alike.

2465 Islam condemns secret societies, whose object is frequently the destruction of law and order. No Muslim should be a member of a secret society.

2466 Ḥazana-hū, the aorist being yahzun, signifies the same as aḥzana-hū, i.e. he caused him to be affected with grief, or grieved him or made him sad or unhappy (S, Msb, Q-L). It is the devil's object to cause the believers to grieve, but that his efforts are unsuccessful is herein shown.

2467 As I have already stated, the progress of Islam brought large numbers of people into its fold who stood in need of being taught manners as well as morals. In their assemblies they crowded and pressed upon each other in order to be able to sit nearest to the Holy Prophet. The injunction to make room in assemblies means, either that room should be made for others, or that the people should not sit close to each other, but leave ample space between one another (Bd).

12 O you who believe ! when you consult the Apostle, then offer something in charity before your consultation ; that is better for you and purer ; but if you do not find, then surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.²⁴⁶⁸

13 Do you fear that you will not (be able to) give in charity before your consultation ? So when you do not do it and Allah has turned to you (mercifully), then keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate and obey Allah and His Apostle ; and Allah is Aware of what you do.

Internal Enemy to be guarded against 14-19. Those who assure the Muslims of their friendship but are secret enemies. 20, 21. They shall be abased. 22. Muslims should not befriend them.

Ar. hast

14 Have you not seen those who befriend a people with whom Allah is wroth ? They are neither of you nor of them, and they swear falsely while they know.²⁴⁶⁹

15 Allah has prepared for them a severe chastisement ; surely what they do is evil.

16 They make their oaths to serve as a cover so they turn away from Allah's way ; therefore they shall have an abasing chastisement.

17 Neither their wealth nor their children shall avail them aught against Allah ; they are the inmates of the fire, therein they shall abide.²⁴⁷⁰

مِنَ اللَّهِ شَيْئًا أُولَٰئِكَ أَصْحَابُ النَّارِ
هُمْ فِيهَا خَالِدُونَ

2468 This is an instance of a verse being declared as abrogated without the least possible reason. The verse that follows does not cancel the injunction of the previous verse, but rather shows that the injunction contained in v. 12 is not obligatory but optional ; the legal alms called the zakât being the only obligatory alms, as is shown by the words keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate. It should also be noted that the Prophet and his family derived no benefit whatever from the alms, for to them the alms were totally prohibited.

2469 The Jews were the people on whom Allah had sent down His wrath and the people who befriended them were the hypocrites (JB). The Jews also played a double policy.

2470 This prophecy was abundantly verified in the case of both the Jews and the hypocrites, as Medina was ultimately cleared of both.

18 On the day that Allah will raise them up all, then they will swear to Him as they swear to you, and they think that they have something; now surely they are the liars.²⁴⁷¹

19 The devil has gained the mastery over them, so he has made them forget the remembrance of Allah; they are the devil's party; now surely the devil's party are the losers.

20 Surely (as for) those who act in opposition to Allah and His Apostle, they shall be among the most abased.

21 Allah has written down: I will most certainly prevail, I and My apostles; surely Allah is Strong, Mighty.²⁴⁷²

2472 Note the certain conviction of the final triumph of truth which is expressed here. The next verse concludes with similar words: Surely the party of Allah are the successful ones.

2473 Note that the Muslims are described as the people who believe in Allah and the latter day; hence this description applies only to the Muslims.

2474 In a state of war between the two parties, friendly connections with the hostile tribes were prohibited, as these would have resulted in great harm to the weaker community of the Muslims. As to those who were not actually engaged in hostilities against the Muslims, see the express directions contained in 60:8, "Allah does not forbid you respecting those who have not made war against you on account of your religion and have not driven you forth from your homes that you show them kindness and deal with them justly."

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. The exiled Jews.
- Sec. 2. Hypocrites fail to fulfil their promises to Jews.
- Sec. 3. An exhortation.

General remarks.

THIS chapter is appropriately termed the Banishment, as it deals entirely with the banishment of the Jewish tribe called the Banī Naḍir, and matters arising out of it. The last chapter warned the Muslims of the secret plans of the Jews and the hypocrites, and this offers an example. The first section deals with the banishment itself and the property acquired thereby; the second shows how the hypocrites gave the Jews secret promises of help, but failed to fulfil them; and the third ends the chapter with an exhortation to the faithful and an exposition of some of the Divine attributes, indicating the greatness and purity of the Divine Being.

The chapter is undoubtedly a Medinian revelation, and the date of revelation may be placed a little after the banishment which it narrates.

²⁴⁷⁵ The banishment spoken of here took place six months after the battle of Uhud, when the Banī Naḍir, a Jewish tribe of Medina who had at first entered into a covenant

they were certain that their fortresses would defend them against Allah; but Allah came to them whence they did not expect, and cast terror into their hearts; they demolished their houses with their own hands and the hands of the believers; therefore take a lesson, O you who have eyes!²⁴⁷⁶

3 And had it not been that Allah had decreed for them the exile, He would certainly have chastised them in this world, and in the hereafter they shall have chastisement of the fire.

4 That is because they acted in opposition to Allah and His Apostle, and whoever acts in opposition to Allah, then surely Allah is severe in retributing (evil).

with the Holy Prophet, showed signs of treachery and were punished with banishment (Bkh). This is called the first banishment, to distinguish it from the second, which took place in the time of 'Umar, when the Jews settled at Khaibar were banished to Syria, and which is prophetically referred to in the words awwal-il-hashr, or the first banishment, to distinguish it from a second or later banishment. The following detailed account is given by Rz: The Banī Naḍir made a treaty with the Holy Prophet to stand neutral between him and his enemies. When he was victorious at Badr, they said that he was the Prophet promised in the Torah, on account of the victory, but when the Muslims suffered a loss on the day of Uhud, they (i.e. the Banī Naḍir) repudiated their vow and broke the agreement. Ka'b, son of Ashraf, went to Mecca with forty horsemen and made an alliance with Abū Sufyān. As a consequence, Ka'b was murdered, and the Holy Prophet told the tribe to leave Medina. They wanted ten days for preparation, but Abdulla bin Ubayy (the head of the hypocrites) advised them not to leave Medina, but remain and fight against the Holy Prophet, promising the help of his own men. He also assured them that if they were compelled to go forth he would depart with them. So they fortified themselves within their strongholds. After having remained besieged for twenty-one days, and having despaired of help from the hypocrites, they surrendered. The Prophet raised the siege on the condition that they would depart from Medina. With the exception of two families that chose to remain at Khaibar, they all went to Syria.

Dr. Prideaux, so notorious for vilifying Islam, says that the Prophet ordered a party of the Muslims to pursue the emigrants, and that thus they were all put to death. Sale has shown in his note on this verse that the incident from which Dr. Prideaux draws this strange conclusion relates really to the murder in cold blood of seventy Muslims, who, being invited to preach Islam, were treacherously put to death by an Arab tribe. Strange are the ways of the learned Christians when they write anything about Islam!

2476 The Banī Naḍir, being granted ten days in which to collect and take with them such of their property as they desired, devoted the time at their disposal to the destruction of their houses, lest they should be a source of strength to the Muslims. What remained of them was demolished by the Muslims.

7 Whatever Allah has restored to His Apostle from the people of the towns, it is for Allah and for the Apostle, and for the near of kin and the orphans and the needy and the wayfarer, so that it may not be a thing taken by turns among the rich of you, and whatever the Apostle gives you, accept it, and from whatever he forbids you, keep back, and be careful of (your duty to) Allah; surely Allah is severe in retributing (evil):²⁴⁷⁷

نَحْنُكُمْ عَنْهُ فَأَنذَرُوكُمُ اللَّهَ ۚ
إِنَّ اللَّهَ شَدِيدُ الْعِقَابِ ۝

2477 This verse relates to the third kind of property acquired in war, which is called al-fai, being derived from afá'a, which occurs in this verse, the other two being mentioned in 8 : 1 and 8 : 41, for which see 979 and 1007. Afa'tu-hú means I made it to return (O-LL), and accordingly إفاء الله على المسلمين مال الكفار signifies, according to LL, God restored to the Muslims, or gave to them as spoil, the property of the unbelievers (S). Hence fai comes to mean such of the possessions of the unbelievers as accrue to the Muslims without war (TA-LL), or such as are obtained from the believers in a plurality of gods after the laying down of arms (A'Obeid, Mgh, and Msh-LL).

The fai is not distributed among the warriors for the very reason that there has been no fighting. It is described here as being for Allah and for the Apostle, the near of kin, the orphans, the needy, and the wayfarer. From this it will be seen that the whole of it was to be distributed in exactly the same manner as the one-fifth of the ghanimah, for which see 1007. A reference to that note will show that the Prophet's share was for the benefit of the Muslims. Bq states that there are three different opinions as to the Prophet's share after his death. According to one it should go to the Imám or the head; according to a second, it should be spent on the army and the fortification of the boundaries; and according to a third, it is for the benefit of the Muslims in general. The lives of the Holy Prophet and his earlier successors—a conqueror like 'Umar, wearing patched clothes, before whom was brought all the hoarded wealth of Persia and Syria—are a sufficient testimony that the Prophet's share was always spent for the benefit of the Muslims. In fact, this share was considered as a part of the Bait-ul-Mál, the public treasury, for when, after the Holy Prophet's death, his daughter Fatima claimed a share of Fúlk, which was also a part of fai, Abú Bakr refused it on the ground that it was not the personal property of the Holy Prophet (Rz), and he decided in fact that a prophet does not leave any property to be inherited by his heirs. The feud which thus arose rent the Muslim world into two great schools. The prohibition contained in the words so that it may not be a thing taken by turns among the rich of you is directed against the Prophet's share being inherited at all.

رَبَّنَا اغْفِرْ لَنَا وَلِإِخْوَانِنَا الَّذِينَ
سَبَقُونَا بِالْإِيمَانِ وَلَا تَجْعَلْ

2478 It should be noted that the Muhājirin in general did not receive any share of this property: it was only to the poor Refugees that something was given for maintenance, the reason of which is stated clearly in the verse, viz. they had lost everything and had to leave their homes as well as their property. It is necessary to remember, moreover, that one of the important heads of expenditure in the public treasury of the Muslims, which is called the Bait-ul-Mil, was the help of the poor and those who were unable to earn their own livelihood, and thus with all its poor laws and old age pension rules, the English law is yet far behind that early Muslim law. It was under that head that the Refugees who had lost all their wealth and homes and were still so poor that they could not carry on any business of their own were to receive anything from what the Bani Naḍir left, all of which became part of the public funds. Sale's note, "wherefore Muḥammad distributed those spoils among the Muhājirin . . . and gave no part thereof to the Anṣār," is simply a distortion of the facts, borne out by his own admission that three of the Anṣār "who were in necessitous circumstances" also received help. See also next note.

2479 By those who made their abode in the city and in the faith are meant the Anṣār or the Helpers, i.e. the Muslim residents of Medina. Dār means a house or a mansion as well as a country, or a city or a town or village (Mgl., Q-LL), and with the article al, al-madinah or the city of the Prophet (Q-LL). The meaning is that they made an abode in the city of the Prophet and the faith; the faith being likened to a place of abode. Before them signifies before their (i.e. the Refugees') coming to Medina.

When the Muslims fled from Mecca they found a refuge in Medina, where the Muslim inhabitants received them as if they were their brothers, lodging them in their own houses, and many of them were still living in the houses of their benefactors when the banishment of the Bani Naḍir took place. On this the Holy Prophet asked the Helpers to consent to either of the two proposals, i.e. to have a share of what was acquired from the Bani Naḍir and give part of their houses and wealth to the Refugees, or to let the (poor) Refugees alone have a share in that property, so that with it they might build their houses and make a start in some business or trade. The Anṣār replied that they were willing that the Refugees alone should have a share, and, notwithstanding that, they might continue to lodge in their houses (RZ).

CHAPTER LX
THE EXAMINED ONE
(Al-Muntahanah)

REVEALED AT MEDINA
(2 sections and 13 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Friendly relations with enemies of Islam forbidden.
- Sec. 2. Other friendly and social relations.

General remarks.

THE whole of this chapter deals with the relations between the Muslims and the non-Muslims, and in particular with the undesirability of relations with those enemies who were bent upon extirpating Islam, and who, not being satisfied with expelling the Muslims from their homes, now made war on them. It is in this connection that the Holy Prophet is enjoined to examine the women who came to him from among the idolaters for the purpose of embracing Islam, so that if they are found to be inspired by sincere motives they should be retained. It is this circumstance which gives the title of the Examined One to this chapter, and thus it shows that, notwithstanding enmity, the Muslims were required to be fair in their dealings with the unbelievers. The connection with the last chapter is self-evident. A clear statement was needed regarding the relations of the two communities on account of the hostilities which had sprung up between them.

The first section opens with an injunction against entering into friendly relations with the enemies of Islam, whose hostile attitude had now assumed the gravest aspect, and the example of Abraham is quoted, who was similarly compelled to sever his connection with his opponents when they became hostile to him. The second section, however, adds that every non-Muslim is not to be regarded as an enemy; a distinction is drawn between the conduct which should be observed towards enemies and mere unbelievers. This direction, given as it was at a very late date, furnishes a basic principle in a discussion of the question of friendly relations. It is then stated that women who fled from Mecca to escape persecutions could be given shelter if they were found on examination to be sincere. Marriage relations between Muslim husbands and idolatrous wives, and idolatrous husbands and Muslim wives, were declared to be void, arrangements being made for the compensation of dowries. The chapter closes with a statement as to the pledge which should be demanded from women coming over to Islam, for the pledge in the case of men included the defence of the faith against the enemies, a duty which women could not perform.

The date of the revelation of this chapter may be approximately placed about the year 8 A.H., between the truce made at Hudaibiyya and the conquest of Mecca.

SECTION 1

Friendly Relations with Enemies of Islam forbidden

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 O you who believe! do not take My enemy and your enemy for friends: would you offer them love while they deny what has come to you of the truth, driving out the Apostle and yourselves because you believe in Allah, your Lord?²⁴⁸⁴ If you go forth struggling hard in My path and seeking My pleasure, would you manifest love to them? And I know what you conceal and what you manifest; and whoever of you does this, he indeed has gone astray from the straight path.

2 If they find you, they will be your enemies, and will stretch forth towards you their hands and their tongues with evil,²⁴⁸⁵ and they ardently desire that you may disbelieve.

3 Your relationships would not profit you, nor your children, on the day of resurrection; He will decide between you, and Allah sees what you do.

4 Indeed, there is for you a good example in Abraham and those with him when they said to their people: Surely we are clear of you and of what you serve besides Allah; we declare ourselves to be clear of you,^{2485A}

2484 It should be noted that the reason given for not befriending the unbelievers is that they are the enemies of Allah and His Apostle, who have driven out the Apostle and the Muslims from their homes. To say that the passage was revealed on account of Hatib ibn Abi Balta', who had sent a letter informing the Meccans of the Holy Prophet's advance on Mecca, is only to give an instance of the harm which may result from friendship with an enemy in a state of war.

2485 That is, they would slay you with their hands and revile you with their tongues.

Other Friendly and Social Relations

2486 As shown in 790, it was not Abraham's father for whom he thus prayed, for ultimately this sire of Abraham proved to be a deadly enemy. Abraham's example is quoted to show how loving and tender he was towards his people, yet when it became clear to him that they were bent upon uprooting the truth, even Abraham could not maintain relations of friendship with them. The Holy Prophet and his companions were in like manner now obliged to renounce all relationships of friendship with a people who were not only the avowed enemies of the Muslims but also in a state of continual war with them. For Abraham's promise to ask forgiveness for his sire, see 19:47.

2487 This verse makes it clear that the prohibition against friendly relations with the unbelievers was only temporary, to be operative only so long as the war continued. The friendship prophetically referred to here was brought about after the conquest of Mecca.

مُؤْمِنَاتٍ فَلَا تَرْجِعُوهُنَّ إِلَى الْكُفَّارِ

2488 This verse and the one that follows, revealed as they were at a time when the relations between the Muslims and the unbelievers were most strained, on account of the existence of a continual state of war between the two parties, settle conclusively that friendly relations between Muslims and non-Muslims, as such, are not prohibited by the Holy Qur-ān. It is in the light of these verses that all the verses forbidding friendly relations with the unbelievers should be read, because here the true principle is revealed in unmistakable language, allowing friendly relations with one kind of unbelievers and prohibiting such relations with those of another kind. It also upsets the oft-repeated libel of Christian writers, wherein the uninformed are led to believe in the existence of a fanatic intolerance of all non-Muslims on the part of the followers of the Holy Prophet.

2489 It appears from the above that, up to this time, not only did people continue to embrace Islam at Mecca, although there was now no preacher of the faith there, but that this gradual conversion to Islam also continued notwithstanding the bitter persecution of the new converts, which still compelled them to flee from their homes. It is an unparalleled example of the deep impression which the Holy Prophet's truth had made upon the Meccans. The example cited here relates to believing women who fled to Medina under these circumstances. But note the broadness of the principles of Islam. These women are not taken unconditionally, for they might have deserted their husbands. The Holy Qur-ān requires that they should be examined. In accordance with this injunction we find it related that the Holy Prophet obtained the assurance of such women under oath that they had not left their homes except on account of Islam, and that it was not the desertion of their husbands or the love of any one that had prompted them to flee (JB, Kf). Those women who gave a satisfactory answer to these questions were not returned to the unbelievers. It is an error to suppose that this was a violation of the conditions of the truce made at Hudaibiyya, for had it been so, the Meccans would not have remained silent. There was no doubt a condition in that truce that the Meccans who went over to the Holy Prophet should be returned to Mecca, and that condition, which only related to men, was faithfully observed by the Holy Prophet, who refused to allow the Muslims who fled from the persecutions of the Meccans to remain with him, and these men had therefore to make a colony of their own, having no connection whatever with the Medina Muslims, nor were they subject to the Meccans. The truth of this is further clarified by the incident relating to Umm-i-Kalsum, daughter of Aqaba and wife of Amr bin 'As, who was accompanied by her two brothers, Ammara and Walid: both were handed over by the Holy Prophet to the unbelievers, but not their sister (Rz). In fact, the are these (women) lawful for them, nor are those (men) lawful for them, and give them what they have spent; and no blame attaches to you in marrying them when you give them their dowries;²⁴⁹⁰ and hold not to the ties of marriage of unbelieving women, and ask for what you have spent, and let them ask for what they have spent. That is Allah's judgment; He judges between you; and Allah is Knowing, Wise.²⁴⁹¹

11 And if any thing (out of the dowries) of your wives has passed away from you to the unbelievers, then your turn comes, give to those whose wives have gone away the like of what they have spent, and be careful of (your duty to) Allah in Whom you believe.²⁴⁹²

12 O Prophet! when believing women come to you giving you a pledge that they will not associate aught with Allah, and will not steal, and will not commit fornication, and will not kill their children, and will not bring a calumny which they have forged of themselves, and will not disobey you in what is good, accept their pledge, and condition was introduced by the Quraish to guard against the growing strength of the Muslims by permitting the converts to come over to them; and hence they were quite satisfied when the Holy Prophet told them that the condition did not apply to women. And though the condition did not apply to women, yet these women were only granted protection after their dowry was returned to their husbands, who were not allowed to suffer a loss. The acceptance of the dowry by the husband brought about a divorce, and these women could then be married by the Muslims.

2490 Whereas payment of a dowry to the first husband marked the termination of the marriage relationship with him, the payment of a dowry to the wife was necessary for the new conjugal relationship.

2491 The state of permanent warfare maintained between the Muslims and the unbelievers did not allow of any social relationships to be established between the two parties; hence the marriage relationships between Muslim men and unbelieving women as well as those between the Muslim women and the unbelieving men could no longer be maintained: each party having returned the dowry, divorce, ipso facto, automatically resulted.

2492 It is a case in which a Muslim husband is allowed to recoup the loss sustained of an unbelieving wife's dowry who has deserted him, from the sum due for the payment of a Muslim woman's dowry who has fled from the unbelievers and joined the Muslims, or from the acquisition gained in war (Kf). This was necessary because the unbelievers refused to return the dowries of women who had gone over to them. It should be noted, however, that, notwithstanding this treatment which the Muslims suffered at the hands of the unbelievers, the Muslims were enjoined to make over to the unbelievers the dowries of the women who came over to them.

2493 Most of the commentators think that the pledge spoken of in this verse was only taken by the Holy Prophet after the conquest of Mecca, when large numbers of women as well as men embraced Islam. Itz relates the whole of this incident in detail, in which some lively responses by Hind, wife of Abu Sufyan, are given.

2494 The reference is to the Jews. One sect of the Jews denied resurrection, to which reference is contained in the concluding words of the verse.

Abstract :

Sec. 1. Triumph of Islam.

Sec. 2. Great sacrifices must be made.

General remarks.

THE Muslims, having been enjoined in the last chapter to have no friendly relations with the unbelievers, and a hint being given in v. 7 that friendly relations would soon be restored, are herein told that the final triumph of Islam would bring about this restoration, for so long as the unbelievers retained power, their efforts would always be directed to extinguish the light of Islam. Hence, it was only by means of the establishment of a Muslim government that a state of peace would be established in the peninsula. The title of this chapter is taken from the injunction to the Muslims to fight in defence of the faith in ranks, for fighting was now essential for the preservation of the very life of the Muslim community. After giving that injunction, the first section proceeds to cite an example of the persecution of Moses at the hands of his own people, and then a prophecy announced by Jesus as to the Holy Prophet's advent, which made it clear that truth should be finally victorious. Then follows a prophecy of the triumph of Islam over all other religions, the basis of whose fulfilment was laid in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet in the vanquishment of all religions within Arabia. The second section exhorts the Muslims to exert themselves in the cause of truth if they would see that prophecy fulfilled, citing the example of Jesus, whose followers, notwithstanding the apparent triumph of the enemy, finally succeeded in propagating the truth.

2 O you who believe! why do you say that which you do not do?

3 It is most hateful to Allah that you should say that which you do not do.²⁴⁹⁵

4 Surely Allah loves those who fight in His way in ranks as if they were a firm and compact wall.

5 And when Moses said to his people: O my people! why do you give me trouble? and you know indeed that I am Allah's apostle to you; but when they turned aside, Allah made their hearts turn aside, and Allah does not guide the transgressing people.

6 And when Jesus son of Mary said: O children of Israel! surely I am the apostle of Allah to you, verifying that which is before me of the Torah and giving the good news of an Apostle who will come after me, his name being Ahmad; ²⁴⁹⁶ but when he came to them with clear arguments

Date of revelation.

The chapter is by all authorities admitted to be a Medianian revelation. The actual date is not certain, but it may be approximately assigned to the year 4 A.H.—a time of despondency for the Muslims on account of the loss sustained at Uhud. From the first we find prophecies of the triumph to have been announced at a time when conditions leading to such a triumph were most adverse, and consequently when the assurances were most needed.

2495 It is an exhortation to those who professed belief in the truth to make their actions correspond to their assertions.

2496 Jesus' verification of the Torah, or the books of Moses, here, refers to the prophecy therein about the advent of the Holy Prophet, which is clearly stated in the latter part of the passage, where Jesus is spoken of as prophesying the advent. It should be borne in mind that the Holy Prophet had two names: he was called Muhammad as well as Ahmad, both names being derived from the same root hamd, which signifies praising, the word Muhammad meaning a man praised much or repeatedly or time after time (LA, Q-LI), and Ahmad meaning one who praises much. It should not be supposed that Jesus uttered the very words which are reported in the Holy Qur-án, for he spoke the Hebrew language and not Arabic. Another great difficulty is that the actual words of Jesus Christ are not preserved in the Gospels, and we have to depend on a Greek translation, in which we find the word paraclete, which is translated in English as comforter. We are well aware how translations are sometimes misleading, and therefore the use of the word paraclete in the Greek version, or that of comforter in the English version, does not show what the actual word in the language spoken by Jesus was. But all those qualifications which are given in John 14: 16 and 16: 7 are met with in the person of the Holy Prophet. He is stated to be one who shall abide for ever, and

So a party of the children of Israel believed and another

2501 The description applies to the triumph of the teachings of Christ over those who opposed the dissemination of his teachings, and speaks prophetically of the ultimate triumph of Islam over all other religions of the world.

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Muslims chosen for Divine favours.
 Sec. 2. Friday prayers.

General remarks.

THIS chapter receives its name from the exhortation to gather together on the day of congregation, or Friday. The first section, after stating that the Prophet was a purifier of his immediate followers as well as of those who would come later on, warns the Muslims of the danger which brought about the downfall of the Jewish nation. They had with them the letter of the law, but were not true to its spirit. The reason of this was that they gave themselves up to worldly occupations and did not even observe their Sabbath, which was set apart for religious devotion. The second section therefore enjoins the Muslims not to neglect their prayers in congregation, and the congregation of Friday is specially spoken of.

The date of the revelation of this chapter may be assigned to about the second year of Hejira ²⁵⁰² Ummul-qur'ā is the name by which Mecca is known, and hence a Meccan is called an ummi (Majma'-ul-Bihār), the other significance of the word being illiterate. For a full discussion of the meaning of the word see 117, 950.

2503 Abu Huraira says: "We were sitting with the Holy Prophet when the chapter entitled Friday was revealed to him, and in it the words others from among them who have not yet joined them. I asked the Holy Prophet: 'Who are these?' He gave no reply until I questioned him thrice. Salmân, the Persian, was sitting among us, and the Holy Prophet placed his hand on Salmân and said, 'Even if faith were near the Pleiades, men (or a man) from among these would surely find it' " (Bkh) This report would show that the verse applies to one man or certain men of Persian descent. But commentators understand that non-Arabs are meant (Rz); others think that all Muslims coming after the time of the Holy Prophet are meant (Rz, JB). But while the general significance of the words must be regarded as true, Bkh's report shows the reference to be to a man in particular. As other reports show that the Messiah would appear among the Muslims at a time when they would have the letter of the law with them but would not be true to its spirit, the reference in the report given here is particularly to the Messiah or to his time. The significance is that after a time, when the true spirit of Islam should have been lost, a man or a people would be raised who, again receiving the light from the Holy Prophet, would spread the light of Islam in the world.

2504 The prayer for death spoken of here is the same as that in 2:94, for which see 138.

2505 The time of the Jumu'ah prayer is just after noon, and the service, which consists only of two rak'ats instead of the four rak'ats of the early afternoon prayer, is preceded by a sermon. The words of this verse and those of the following show that ordinary business may be carried on by a Muslim on Friday before or after the Jumu'ah prayer. Hence, unlike the Jewish and the Christian Sabbaths, it is not necessarily a day of rest. But attendance at the Jumu'ah prayers is obligatory, and as soon as the call to prayer is given, every Muslim is bound to leave business of every kind and immediately to hasten to the mosque. It is a pity that in a country like India, having seventy millions of Muslims, officialdom did not recognize the necessity of the Muslims performing this obligatory duty until a very late date, and even now it is only partially recognized. Every nation has a Sabbath, or a so-called day of Divine service set apart from the ordinary weekdays, but in practice, the whole day is never given to prayer. In fact, a Muslim, who is allowed to do his ordinary work on Friday, gives more time to his prayers than the majority of those who recognize a seventh day as their Sabbath. The idea underlying the Sabbath is, no doubt, a temporary cessation of the material and physical activities, to give place to spiritual exercise and to holding communion with the Divine Being, but in practice that idea is practically non-existent. Islam, on the other hand, requires communion with the Divine Being to be observed throughout the entire week, and five times daily, in the most occupied hours of business ; thus it gives a real chance to its followers for the exercise and development of the spiritual faculties which in others lie quite dormant. The Islamic division of prayers is much more suited to elevate a man spiritually, affording true spiritual food to the soul, than is to be discovered in any other form of worship.

1 When the hypocrites come to you, they say: We bear witness that you are most surely Allah's Apostle; and Allah knows that you are most surely His Apostle, and Allah bears witness that the hypocrites are surely liars.

2 They make their oaths a shelter, and thus turn away from Allah's way; surely evil is that which they do.

3 That is because they believe, then disbelieve, so a seal is set upon their hearts so that they do not understand.²⁵⁰⁶

Abstract:

- Sec. 1. The hypocrites.
 Sec. 2. An exhortation.

General remarks.

THE entire chapter, as its name shows, deals with the Hypocrites and condemns hypocrisy. The first section speaks of the hypocrites, their false promises and their desire to see Islam abased and trampled under foot, while the second section concludes with an exhortation to the Muslims to be sincere and not to be led away by the love of wealth and children. The hypocrisy of the upholders of a cause is fatal to its advancement; hence its connection with the last chapter.

The date of revelation may be assigned to a time when the hypocrites became separated from the believers, which first took place in the battle of Uhud, and therefore it was probably in the third year of Hejira that it was revealed.

2506 Note how the setting of a seal upon the hearts is described here. It is man's own action which is the cause, while the setting of the seal is only the necessary consequence of that action.

4 And when you see them, their persons will please you, and if they speak, you will listen to their speech; (they are) as if they were big pieces of wood clad with garments: they think every cry to be against them. They are the enemy, therefore beware of them; may Allah destroy them, whence are they turned back? ²⁵⁰⁷

Ar. thou

5 And when it is said to them: Come, the Apostle of Allah will ask forgiveness for you, they turn back their heads and you may see them turning away while they are big with pride.

Ar. thou.

6 It is alike to them whether you beg forgiveness for them or do not beg forgiveness for them; Allah will never forgive them; surely Allah does not guide the transgressing people.

7 They it is who say: Do not spend upon those who are with the Apostle of Allah until they break up. And Allah's are the treasures of the heavens and the earth, but the hypocrites do not understand.

8 They say: If we return to Medina, the mighty will surely drive out the meaner therefrom; and to Allah belongs the might and to His Apostle and to the believers, but the hypocrites do not know. ²⁵⁰⁸

2507 By the cry is here meant the hostile incursion of the enemy by which the tribes are surprised (TA-LL). Whenever there was an incursion of the enemy they showed cowardice and thought that the Muslims would be crushed by their adversaries.

2508 So late as this revelation, the hypocrites considered themselves, in conjunction with their unbelieving friends, to be the stronger party and the Muslims to be the weaker party, whom they could easily drive out of Medina. But they are told that they themselves shall be disgraced, and so it was, for when the hypocrites were expelled from the mosque, each one's name was called out aloud; ultimately their opposition came to naught. See 1090.

CHAPTER LXIV
THE MANIFESTATION OF DEFECTS
(At-Taghábun)
REVEALED AT MEDINA
(2 sections and 18 verses)

Abstract:

Sec. 1. Unbelievers warned.

Sec. 2. An exhortation for believers.

General remarks.

As the previous chapters speak of believers and unbelievers separately, we now arrive at a chapter which speaks of them together, wherein the latter are warned of the consequences of their deeds, and the former are exhorted to continue their march towards spiritual excellence, not permitting worldly attractions to interfere in the necessary attainment of perfection. The reference to both unbelievers and believers is contained in the second verse. The chapter is appropriately entitled The Manifestation of Defects, because, not only will unbelievers find their defects manifested on a certain day, but believers will also find such defects manifested if they have failed in their conduct and have abandoned those principles which have been promulgated for their guidance, allowing worldly attractions to distract their minds from the attainment of religious and moral perfection.

The first section, after referring to Allah as being the Creator of both believers and unbelievers, and to His great knowledge, warns the unbelievers of their fate and of the consequences on a certain day of gathering, the reference being clearly prophetic of the first great gathering of the believers and the unbelievers in the field of Badr, as well as of the day of resurrection. The second section exhorts the Muslims to be obedient to the Apostle, and not to be led into a wrong course by the worldly allurements of wealth and families.

There is a difference of opinion as to whether this chapter is of Meccan or Medinian origin; the majority incline to the latter opinion. Internal evidence shows it to be an early Medinian revelation; so early indeed does its date appear to be that the battle of Badr is still prophetically referred to; the later growth of hypocrisy is, however, only remotely hinted at, in the exhortation against being led away by attractions of wealth and family. It is due to its early revelation at Medina that some have spoken of it as a Meccan revelation. But the weight of opinion is in favour of its Medinian origin.

SECTION 1

Unbelievers warned

1-4. Allah has created believers and unbelievers, and He knows what they do. 5-7. Unbelievers reminded of the fate of opponents of apostles. 8-10. They are warned of a day of gathering which will bring to light their defects.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 Whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth declares the glory of Allah; to Him belongs the kingdom, and to Him is due (all) praise, and He has power over all things.

2 He it is who created you, but one of you is an unbeliever and another of you is a believer; and Allah sees what you do.

3 He created the heavens and the earth with truth, and He formed you, then made goodly your forms, and to Him is the ultimate resort.

4 He knows what is in the heavens and the earth, and He knows what you hide and what you manifest; and Allah is Cognizant of what is in the hearts.

Ar. breasts.

5 Has there not come to you the story of those who disbelieved before, then tasted the evil result of their affair, and they had a painful chastisement?

6 That is because there came to them their apostles with clear arguments, but they said: Shall mortals guide us? So they disbelieved and turned back, and Allah does not stand in need (of anything), and Allah is Self-sufficient, Praised.

7 Those who disbelieve think that they shall never be raised. Say: Aye! by my Lord! you shall most certainly be raised, then you shall most certainly be informed of what you did; and that is easy to Allah.

8 Therefore believe in Allah and His Apostle and the Light

SECTION 2

An Exhortation for Believers

11-13. Believers should obey the Apostle. 14 18 Worldly attractions to be despised.

11 No affliction comes about but by Allah's permission; and whoever believes in Allah, He guides aright his heart; and Allah is Cognizant of all things.

12 And obey Allah and obey the Apostle, but if you turn back, then upon Our Apostle devolves only the clear delivery (of the message).

13 Allah, there is no God but He; and upon Allah, then, let the believers rely.

14 O you who believe! surely from among your wives and your children there is an enemy

مَا أَصَابَ مِنْ مُصِيبَةٍ إِلَّا بِإِذْنِ اللَّهِ
وَمَنْ يُؤْمِنْ بِاللَّهِ يَهْدِ اللَّهُ قَلْبَهُ وَاللَّهُ
بِكُلِّ شَيْءٍ عَلِيمٌ
وَاطِيعُوا اللَّهَ وَاطِيعُوا الرَّسُولَ قُلْ إِنَّمَا
أَسْأَلُكُمْ لِتَتَّقُوا اللَّهَ فَإِنَّ اللَّهَ
يُخْتَارُ أُولَئِكَ هُمُ الْمُتَّقُونَ
يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا اتَّقُوا اللَّهَ
أَوْ لَا تَحْكُمُوا وَأُولَئِكَ هُمُ الْعَادُونَ

²⁵⁰⁹ The day of resurrection is here called the day of the manifestation of defects, because the hidden defects of man's nature will on that day be completely manifested. But the unbelievers had also their defects manifested in this life, when on the day of gathering (i.e. at Badr) they found to their amazement that their power was so weak that they could not subdue even a third of their number. Hence the manifestation of their defects began in this life.

²⁵¹⁰ Note that he who acts righteously will have his evil removed, because a change comes over his life. There is no doubt that when a complete transformation takes place in the life of a man, the consequences of the evil which he might have previously wrought are immediately arrested.

to you ;²⁵¹¹ therefore beware of them ; and if you pardon and forbear and forgive, then surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

15 Your possessions and your children are only a trial, and Allah it is with Whom is a great reward.

16 Therefore be careful of (your duty to) Allah as much as you can, and hear and obey and spend, it is better for your souls ; and whoever is saved from the greediness of his soul, these it is that are the successful.

17 If you set apart for Allah a goodly portion,^a He will double it for you and forgive you ; and Allah is the Multiplier (of rewards), Forbearing, 18 The Knower of the unseen and the seen, the Mighty, the Wise.

لَكُمْ فَأَحْذَرُوهُمْ وَإِنْ تَعْلَوْا تَضْحَكُوا

عِلْمُ الْغَيْبِ فِي الشَّهَادَةِ الْعَزِيزُ الْحَكِيمُ

^a 321.

2511 Because it is most often for the sake of one's wife and children that one acts wrongfully towards others. Thus, in some cases the wife or the children become an enemy to man. Note the use of the word min, which shows that wives and children do not necessarily lead man to evil, but that sometimes he inclines to evil on account of them. The next verse speaks of one's possessions and children as a fitnah, or trial, because through these the light of the sincere is manifested or the weakness of the frail becomes clear as the noonday sun.

CHAPTER LXV

THE DIVORCE

(Aṭ-ṭalāq)

REVEALED AT MEDINA

(2 sections and 12 verses)

SECTION 1

Directions for Divorce

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 O Prophet! when you divorce women, divorce them for their prescribed time,²⁵¹² and calculate the number of the days prescribed, and be careful of (your duty to) Allah, your Lord. Do not drive them out of their houses, nor should they themselves go forth,

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ
يَا أَيُّهَا النَّبِيُّ إِذَا طَلَقْتُمُ النِّسَاءَ
فَطَلَقُوهُنَّ لِعَدَّتِهِنَّ وَأَحْصُوا الْعِدَّةَ
وَاتَّقُوا اللَّهَ رَبَّكُمْ لَا تُخْرِجُوهُنَّ
مِنْ بُيُوتِهِنَّ وَلَا يَخْرُجْنَ

Abstract:

Sec. 1. Directions for divorce.

Sec. 2. Mecca warned.

General remarks.

THIS chapter deals with certain rules regarding divorce in its first section, and is accordingly entitled The Divorce. The second gives an unmistakable warning to the Meccans and shows that the Prophet had brought to them light. The law of divorce had already been given to the Muslims in the second chapter, but its misuse called for additional directions (see 2512). These directions were, indeed, given to warn the Muslims against the abuse of the institutions laid down by Islam, and the subject is in consonance with what is said in the previous chapter.

The date of revelation may be assigned approximately to the sixth year of Hejira, when the incident referred to in the first verse is said to have taken place.

2512 The prescribed time is ordinarily, according to 2: 228, three courses. But in the case of women with child, and in certain other cases, the prescribed time is laid down in v. 4 of this chapter. It should be noted how every direction in connection with the subject of divorce is followed by the injunction, be careful of your duty to Allah, throughout this chapter, from which it may be inferred that the Holy Qur-ān requires the utmost carefulness in the matter of divorce. In a saying of the Holy Prophet, divorce is called unless they commit an open indecency; and these are the limits of Allah, and whoever goes beyond the limits of Allah, he indeed does injustice to his own soul. *You do not know that Allah may after that bring about reunion.*²⁵¹³

Ar. thou dost.

Ar. an event.

2 So when they have reached their prescribed time, then retain them with kindness or separate them with kindness, and call to witness two men of justice from among you, and give upright testimony for Allah. With that is admonished he who believes in Allah and the latter day; and whoever is careful of (his duty to) Allah, He will make for him an outlet,

3 And give him sustenance from whence he thinks not; and whoever trusts in Allah, He is sufficient for him; surely Allah attains His purpose; Allah indeed has appointed a measure for every thing.

4 And (as for) those of your women who have despaired of menstruation, if you have a doubt, their prescribed time shall be three months, and of those too who have not had their courses; and (as for) the pregnant women, their prescribed time is that they lay down their burden; and whoever is careful of (his duty to) Allah, He will make easy for him his affair.

5 That is the command of Allah which He has revealed to you, and whoever is careful of (his duty to) Allah, He will remove from him his evil and give him a big reward.

the most hateful to Allah of all things allowed. Without the remedy of divorce, healthy conjugal relations could not be maintained in any society, yet the marriage tie is too sacred to allow of this remedy being lightly resorted to.

It is reported that the directions contained in this chapter were needed to correct a mistake made in connection with the law of divorce by Ibn-i-'Umar (Bkh).

2513 The amr or event here means reunion (JB). Note that the person addressed here, though singular, is not the Prophet, but the man who divorces his wife.

6 Lodge them where you lodge according to your means, and do not injure them in order that you may straiten them; and if they are pregnant, spend on them until they lay down their burden; then if they suckle for you, give them their recompense, and enjoin one another among you to do good; and if you disagree, another (woman) shall suckle for him.

7 Let him who has abundance spend out of his abundance, and whoever has his means of subsistence straitened to him, let him spend out of that which Allah has given him; Allah does not lay on any soul a burden except to the extent to which He has granted it; Allah brings about ease after difficulty.²⁵¹⁴

•2514 Note the directions for the treatment of women contained in this verse as well as the previous one. They should be lodged where a man himself is lodged, no injury is to be inflicted on them, and if a man possesses abundant wealth he must spend on his wife abundantly. All these directions give the wife a position of practical equality with the husband.

Prophet and a true follower of his is often metaphorically compared to the relation subsisting between husband and wife. It should also be noted that unbelievers and believers are in the concluding verses of the section compared to women, the wives of Noah and Lot on the one hand, and the wife of Pharaoh and Mary the mother of Jesus on the other.

The date of the revelation of this chapter may be placed about the year 7 A.H., which is the probable date of the separation.

2517 This verse, as already noted, has been utilized to attack the admitted purity of the Holy Prophet's life. It is said to contain a reference to the Prophet's conjugal relations with Mary, the Coptic woman, which, it is alleged, being discovered by his wife Hafsa, the Prophet swore not to have anything more to do with her. And this is claimed to be a case of "gratifying an unholy passion."

How far this story is worthy of credit may be gathered from the fact that this Mary did enjoy the honour of standing in the same relation to the Prophet as his other wives, and that she gave birth to Ibrahim, a son of the Holy Prophet who died in infancy. Why then should the Prophet's conjugal relations with her be regarded with a suspicious eye, and why should the holy relations of husband and wife, on which is based the very existence of human life, be called a gratification of "unholy passions"? Is this not another of the many proofs of Christian bias, and Christian antagonism, of a most cruel and unscrupulous character? Mary was not an Arab lady, and therefore socially her status may not have been the same as that of the other wives, but so far as her relation with the Holy Prophet was concerned, there was nothing in it of a clandestine nature, and as a son's mother (Ar. umm-i-walad) she is ranked equally with the Holy Prophet's wives, for it is a fact that the Prophet never kept a slave. The case of Safiyya illustrates this. She was a prisoner of war and might have been treated as a slave, but from the first she enjoyed the honour of being a wife, and no distinct or separate treatment was ever accorded to her. Nor does it appear that Mary was ever treated otherwise than as a son's mother. The story therefore that Hafsa's discovery of the Prophet having conjugal relations with her upset the Prophet to such a degree that he swore not to have anything more to do with her is a pure invention, and the known facts not only nullify the calumny, but brand it as another of those fables invented by Christian writers who seek to vilify Islam.

The commentators' version is that the Holy Prophet had gone in to Mary when he ought to have been in Hafsa's house, but even such commentators as IJ have held that the reference may as well be to the Prophet's forbidding himself the company of his wives for a month, or to his having forbidden himself the use of honey in deference to the wishes of one of his wives; other commentators are also of the opinion that the reference may be to one of these latter incidents. Sale could have discovered this even in Bq, if no other commentary was accessible to him. But strange indeed are the ways of the Christian

2 Allah indeed has sanctioned for you the expiation of your oaths; and Allah is your Protector, and He is the Knowing, the Wise.²⁵¹⁸ critics. One of these calls the latter incident a "ludicrous story," while Noeldeke says that it was probably invented by 'Ayesha, the reason given being that she was chiefly concerned in this quarrel. Strange to say, the reason given is just the opposite of what is held by Noeldeke himself to be true. It was Hafsa that was chiefly concerned in the quarrel, if the story credited by Sale, Muir, and others is to be taken as correct. Again, we do not see what blame rested on either Hafsa or 'Ayesha, if that story is correct, whereas the incident of the honey casts the blame upon both of them. Why should 'Ayesha herself have invented a story which cast a blame (slight though it be) on her? while according to the story of the Christian critics she was blameless. Not only had she no motive in inventing the story, but she should have been the first person to repudiate the incident of the honey if it were false. In fact, it is a proof of the great trustworthiness of the reports relating to the Holy Prophet that 'Ayesha herself is found circulating a report which cast blame on her. It shows how scrupulous, how conscientious, and how true were the companions in reporting sayings and incidents relating to the life of the Holy Prophet. For the incident is thus narrated by 'Ayesha: "The Holy Prophet, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him, used to take honey at Zainab's house, and Hafsa and I agreed to tell the Holy Prophet that he smelled as if he had taken Maghâfir," which being done, the Holy Prophet, accepting their word, solemnly promised that he would eat honey no more. Now this story could not be invented, for the reporter is 'Ayesha, and the report contains some evidence against herself, while what Christian prejudice takes to be the true incident does not cast the least aspersion upon 'Ayesha.

قَدْ قَرَضَ اللَّهُ لَكُمْ مَخْلَّةَ أَيْمَانِكُمْ وَاللَّهُ مَوْلَاكُمْ وَهُوَ الْعَلِيمُ الْحَكِيمُ

I, however, consider that the reference is to the well-known temporary separation, regarding which the Holy Prophet made a vow, and which is actually spoken of as being referred to in these verses by no less an authority than 'Umar. Bukharee relates the following report of I'Ab in his commentary on this chapter. I'Ab, according to that report, was long doubtful as to the two women spoken of in this chapter, and finding himself alone with 'Umar on a certain day, questioned him thereupon. I'Ab tells us that before he had finished the question 'Umar told him that these were 'Ayesha and Hafsa, and then went on to tell him a long story. 'Umar told I'Ab that they did not customarily give the women any status in the days of ignorance, until Allah revealed concerning them what He revealed in the Holy Qur-ân. "One day," said Umar, "my wife said to me that I should take such and such a course in such and such an affair." "It is no concern of yours," was the curt reply. "Why! your daughter [Hafsa] returns the Prophet answer for answer until he becomes displeased, and yet you do not like that I should speak to you in an affair," was the rejoinder. 'Umar at once repaired to Hafsa, and warned her against altercations with the Prophet. "'Ayesha should not mislead you in this matter," was the father's counsel to the daughter. Then he went to Umm-i-Salma, who was equally curt, and told 'Umar that he had no business to interfere in matters between the Holy Prophet and his wives. Soon afterwards the Prophet separated himself temporarily from all of his wives, swearing not to go to the house of any one of them for a month. Whereupon news of this being brought to 'Umar, he immediately went to the Holy Prophet and related what had passed between Hafsa, Umm-i-Salma, and himself, at which the Holy Prophet heartily laughed.

This incident shows clearly that 'Umar understood this verse to refer to this temporary separation, and the incident being a very well known one, of which the truth cannot be doubted, seems to be the real incident referred to in v. 1. Whether it is the incident of the honey or that of the temporary separation, the verse shows the loving and affectionate treatment of his wives by the Holy Prophet; for he was always ready to subject himself to any privation rather than give offence to his wives. This noble treatment made his domestic life the happiest that could be desired.

3 And when the Prophet secretly communicated a piece of information to one of his wives—but when she informed (others) of it, and Allah made him to know it, he made known part of it and avoided part: so when he informed her of it, she said: Who informed you of this? He said: The Knowing, the one Aware, informed me.²⁵¹⁹

2518 Dr. Prideaux translates the words قد فرض الله لكم تحلة إيمانكم occurring here as meaning "God hath granted unto you to lie with your maid-servants." If the Doctor did not do this intentionally he was utterly ignorant of the Arabic language, and for such a man to pose as an Arabic scholar, misleading an ignorant public, is, to say the least, shameful.

The expiation of oaths is allowed in 5 : 89, which was revealed much earlier than this chapter, and accordingly, it is a distortion of facts to represent this verse as having been revealed to legalize the conjugal relations of the Holy Prophet with the Coptic woman Mary.

2519 There is no trustworthy report showing to what particular incident reference is here made. But really what we stand in need of learning from it is not the actual incident, but the noble moral lesson which it affords. The Prophet's kind treatment of his wives was proverbial, and there is a report extant which attributes to him the following noble words: "The best of you is he who is most kind to his wife, and I am kindest of you all to my wives." In fact, it is difficult to gauge how great was the kindness to woman with which his heart was filled, for from a position of no status at all he raised her to one of practical equality with her "lord and master."

2520 The Holy Prophet, however, did not divorce any of his wives, which shows that all those qualifications were met with in them. He had been given a choice to divorce any of his wives whom he did not desire and to marry another in her place, but when the wives refused to leave him, notwithstanding the extreme austerity of his home life, he refused to divorce them; see 2002.

2521 This shows that, according to the Holy Qur-ān, paradise is not only a place to enjoy the blessings and reap the rewards of one's previous good deeds, but it is also the starting-point of a never-ceasing spiritual advancement. The prayer for the perfection of the light is really an unceasing desire for perfection, showing that spiritual progress in that life will be endless. Every stage of excellence to which man shall attain shall seem to be imperfect when compared with the next stage of progress to which man shall aspire. Thus the Holy Qur-ān teaches the principle that the development of man's faculties, as it takes place in this life, however unlimited, is not sealed by finality, but is really the starting-point towards an immeasurably wider vista of the realms to be traversed, opening out after death when the soul is liberated from the limitations of its casement of clay, assuming another body, which will be in accord with the deeds performed here below. Hence it is also that those who have wasted their opportunity in this life shall, under the inevitable law which makes every man taste of what he has done, be subjected to a course of treatment for the spiritual diseases which they have brought about with their own hands, and when the effect of the poison which vitiated their system has been nullified and they are fit to start on the onward journey to the great goal, they shall no more be in hell. This is the reason why, according to the Holy Qur-ān, no man shall be expelled from paradise, but (as stated very clearly in sayings of the Holy Prophet) all men shall after a time be taken out of hell, for it is only meant to clear a man of the dross which is a hindrance in his spiritual progress, and when that object has been effected its need vanishes.

2522 The verb translated strive hard is jāhid, from which is derived the word jihād, and the context shows that the carrying on of a war is not meant by striving hard, for war was never proclaimed against the hypocrites, who in fact were, for all practical purposes, treated as Muslims. Therefore, when the Prophet is commanded to carry on a jihād against the unbelievers and the hypocrites, it is clear that jihād is something else than mere fighting.

2523 This is an instance of the followers of prophets going against the principles of their teachers; therefore, those prophets will not be able to save them.

2524 This is an example of good men who are not yet made free from the bondage of sin, for which Pharaoh stands here as a typical example; but they ardently desire to be rid of sin, striving hard to free themselves from all trammels.

2525 The example of the righteous given in this parable illustrates how Divine inspiration is granted to the perfect ones. The words "We breathed into him of Our inspiration" are remarkable. Evidently the word him (Ar. hi in fih) cannot refer to Mary, and therefore the Christian theory which seeks to draw from these words the conclusion that the soul of God was breathed into Mary falls to the ground. The personal pronoun is taken by some commentators to refer to Jesus (Rz); and thus the meaning is that Mary gave birth to a son who received Divine inspiration. But the reference in the personal pronoun him might as well be to the believer for whom Mary is set as an example, and the object of the change might be to draw attention to the fact that it is really the granting of inspiration to the believer that is meant here and not the breathing of a soul.

CHAPTER LXVII

THE KINGDOM

(Al-Mulk)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(2 sections and 30 verses)

Abstract:

Sec. 1. The kingdom of God.

Sec. 2. The unbelievers' doom.

General remarks.

From this point to the end there are forty-eight chapters, and all these were revealed at Mecca, with the single exception of ch. 110, which belongs to the Medinian period of revelation, though it too was revealed at Mecca when the Holy Prophet was there in his last pilgrimage. All of them contain prophecies of the greatness to which Islam should rise and of the failure of its opponents, sometimes in plain and sometimes in metaphorical language. But while they mostly belong to the earliest period of the Holy Prophet's revelation, the prophecies contained in them very often relate to the distant future of Islam, and are certainly not limited to the prevalence of Islam in Arabia or to the lifetime of the Prophet. While the distinct character of each chapter will be dealt with in the usual introductory note, these few words will suffice as to their general character and their relation towards each other.

The title of this chapter is taken from the statement contained in the first verse, that kingdom is in the hands of Allah, the evident conclusion of which is, that that kingdom which was known as the kingdom of God in prophetic language was now about to be established on earth. Attention is then called to the perfect working of Divine laws in physical nature, and from this the inference is drawn that evil must bear evil consequences, while good yields good fruit. The second section speaks of the doom that awaits the unbelievers because of their ungratefulness to the Divine Being, inasmuch as they would not use those very faculties with which Allah has endowed them to distinguish truth from falsehood, and that which is conducive to their good from that which is calculated to bring ultimate ruin.

2526 The short Meccan chapters, which are no doubt generally among the earliest revelations of the Holy Prophet, often speak most forcibly of the greatness and glory of Allah. The statement here that the kingdom is Allah's and that He has power over all things is like a prophetic statement as to the establishment of the kingdom of Islam, which was really the kingdom of God. Compare the words in the sayings of Jesus Christ: "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof" (Matt. 21 : 43).

2527 The law of life and death or growth and decay works throughout nature, but it has a special meaning in reference to man, because death does not end his life, but is really the starting-point for a new life of spiritual progress. Life to him below is, therefore, a trial, i.e. a means of bringing to light his hidden qualifications for the performance of good. But life and death have another and a deeper significance for man in the life and death of nations, and it is of this life and death of the nations that the Holy Qur-ān speaks more frequently. Nations that work evil are swept away, and others are raised in their place that they may do good. They live only so long as they do more good than harm to humanity; but when they begin to devote their lives to luxury and to indulge in evil, decay overtakes them. Compare the form adopted here with that in 7 : 129, where the Jews are addressed: "It may be that your Lord will destroy your enemy and make you rulers in the land, then He will see how you act"; and that in 10 : 14, where the Muslims are addressed: "Then We made you (their) successors in the land after them, so that We may see how you act."

2528 My translation of ṭibāqā differs from the ordinary translations, and is based on the saying mentioned by LL on the authority of IA'r and others under the word ṭabq as follows: هذا الشيء طبق هذا أو طباقه i.e. this thing is the match of this, or conforms or corresponds with this, or is the like of this. This significance, moreover, suits the context, for the verse goes on to describe the uniformity prevailing in nature.

2529 Attention is here called to the regularity and uniformity of the laws working in nature; neither is there incongruity, so that things belonging to the same class should be

4 Then turn back the eye again and again; your look shall come back to you confused while it is fatigued.

9 They shall say: Yea! indeed there came to us a warner, but we rejected (him) and said: Allah has not revealed anything: you are only in a great error.

10 And they shall say: Had we but listened or pondered, we should not have been among the inmates of the burning fire.

subject to different laws, nor is there a disorder (fuṭūr, which Rgh translates as meaning skhtilāl, i.e. disorder and luxury), so that a law should not work uniformly. The verse, while no doubt calling attention to the existence of a Supreme Being as witnessed in the regularity and uniformity of the laws working in creation, draws special attention to the spiritual laws, which should also work uniformly, and thus evil and good must each bring its special reward.

2530 The lights with which the lower heaven is lighted, i.e. the stars, are made the means of conjectures regarding the future by the astrologers. This is the plain meaning of the words. Rujūm is the plural of rajm, and explaining it IAs says: "Rajm means conjectures about what Allah has not stated." And classing the munajjim, i.e. the astrologer, and the kāhin, i.e. the diviner, and the sāhir, i.e. the magician, as one, he goes on to say: "Thus he [i.e. the Prophet, whose saying is explained] considered the astrologer, who learns about stars so that he may judge thereby, and attributes to them the effect of good and evil, to be an unbeliever." And Rgh, explaining these very words, says: "And rajm is used metaphorically to signify conjectures and surmises." LL also gives this significance of the verse on the authority of Bq and TA: "We have made them to be means of conjectures to the devils of mankind, i.e. to the astrologers." Thus the astrologers, who deceived people by telling them many things which they posed as having learned from the stars, are referred to here. They are told that they shall have the punishment of burning for these false conjectures.

11 So they shall own their faults, so far be the inmates of the burning fire (from good).

12 (As for) those who fear their Lord in secret, they shall surely have forgiveness and a great reward.

Ar breasts. 13 And conceal your word or manifest it; surely He is Cognizant of what is in the hearts.

14 Does He not know who created? And He is the Knower of the subtilties, the Aware.

16 Are you secure of those in the heaven that He should make the earth to swallow you up? then lo! it shall be in a state of commotion.²⁵³¹

17 Or are you secure of those in the heaven that He should send down upon you a punishment? then shall you know how was My warning

Or changing of the attitude. 18 And certainly those before them rejected (the truth), then how was My disapproval.

²⁵³¹ By those in the heaven are meant the angels who have been charged with bringing about a punishment upon the opponents of truth (Bd). Or the words mean, He who is in the heaven, the significance being whose command prevails in the heaven, the reference to the command in the heaven indicating His power to deal out punishment which none would be able to avert.

20 Or who is it that will be a host for you to assist you besides the Beneficent God? The unbelievers are only in deception.

24 Say: He it is who multiplies you in the earth and to Him you shall be gathered.

25 And they say: When shall this threat be (executed) if you are truthful?

26 Say: The knowledge (thereof) is only with Allah and I am only a plain warner.

27 But when they shall see it nigh, the faces of those who disbelieve shall be sorry, and it shall be said: This is that which you used to call for.

28 Say: Have you considered if Allah should destroy me and those with me—rather He will have mercy on us; yet who will protect the unbelievers from a painful chastisement?²⁵³⁵

عَذَابٍ أَلِيمٍ

Or. marred.

2532 The withholding of the birds signifies the delay of the conquests of Islam, for the birds are spoken of as following a victorious army (see 1387). The question in the next verse as to who shall assist them corroborates this significance.

2533 This is also a prophecy. Their sustenance was withheld in the great famine which prevailed at Mecca, prophecies regarding which abound in the Holy Qur-ān in early as well as later revelation. See 2269.

2534 One going "prone upon his face" is one who stumbles and falls at every step, not being guided by truth.

2535 The meaning is that the guilty will by all means be called to account and suffer the evil consequences of what they have done, whether the Prophet and his companions live or die, but the uncertainty as to the reward of the righteous is at once removed by the words rather He will have mercy on us. For au, meaning rather, see I, I, which quotes Mgh.

29 Say: He is the Beneficent God, we believe in Him and on Him do we rely, so you shall come to know who it is that is in clear error.

30 Say: Have you considered if your water should go down, who is it then that will bring you flowing water?

CHAPTER LXVIII
THE PEN
(Al-Qalam)
 REVEALED AT MECCA
(2 sections and 52 verses)

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. Not a madman's message.
- Sec. 2. A reminder for the nations.

General remarks.

WHEN the Holy Prophet delivered his message, the unbelievers first called him a madman, and this chapter is taken up with a consideration of this allegation. The inkstand and the pen and what they write are called to bear witness to the fact that the utterances of the Prophet are not those of a madman; it is from this circumstance that the chapter receives its title. How these things bear witness to the Prophet's truth is shown in 2536. The first section closes with a parable clearly foretelling that all the struggles of the Meccans against the Holy Prophet will be a complete failure, and that they will in the end regret what they do. The second section lays stress on the knowledge of the future which was revealed through the Holy Qur-án, and the Holy Prophet is told that he should wait patiently for the successful issue of his affair, the example of Jonah being quoted to show how trials and sufferings sometimes make the issue doubtful, notwithstanding its certainty, and the chapter concludes with the statement that not only is the Prophet not a madman, but his message, being a reminder for all the nations, will ultimately raise the whole of humanity to eminence. It should be noted that the message of the Holy Qur-án is declared to be meant for all nations in this chapter, which is admittedly one of the earliest revelations.

Date of revelation.

As regards the time of revelation, learned opinion is admittedly in favour of a very early date, so much so that it is generally considered to be the second chapter in the order of revelation. But as the 74th chapter is shown by trustworthy reports to have been the second revelation, we can place it only after that chapter. Muir and those who follow him consider it to have been revealed towards the close of the early Meccan period, but that is surely a mistake. There is no doubt that the first allegation of the unbelievers against the Holy Prophet was that he was a madman, and it is with this allegation, and this only, that the chapter deals, the reference in the second verse and the last but one being conclusive on this point. This consideration shows it to be clearly one of the earliest revelations.

SECTION 1

Not a Madman's Message

1-7. Prophet's high morals and their evidence. 8-16. Proud ones shall be brought low. 17-33. A parable showing that opposition will not prosper.

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

1 (Consider) the inkstand ²⁵³⁶ and the pen and what they write,

2 By the grace of your Lord
you are not mad. ²⁵³⁷

مَا أَنْتَ بِنِعْمَةِ رَبِّكَ بِجُنُونٍ ۝

2536 Nun is not an abbreviation, but a word meaning inkstand. Āz objects to this in the TA, on the ground that when meaning an inkstand nun is written as a word and not as a letter; but the Qur-ān makes a departure from the ordinary method of writing in several places and preserves the form of writing met with in the first manuscript, from which all copies were made. Moreover, there is the authority of the earliest commentators that the letter nun here stands for the word nun, for both Ḥaṣan and Qatada regard it as meaning inkstand, while I'Ab considers the meaning to be fish; the context, which mentions the pen and writing, clearly favouring the former interpretation (JB).

Rodwell's note here, that "the meaning of this and the similar symbols throughout the Qur-ān was unknown to the Muhammadans themselves even in the first century," shows a lamentable ignorance on the part of a translator of the Holy Qur-ān. The abbreviations in the beginning of chapters are in many cases explained by the companions of the Holy Prophet, Ibn-i-'Abbās being the chief authority. Qatada, who was a disciple of I'Ab, decidedly lived in the first century, and he handed down to posterity most of the interpretations of the Holy Qur-ān by I'Ab.

2537 The first allegation of the unbelieving Meccans against the Holy Prophet was that he was majnūn, i.e. mad, and this allegation is dealt with in this chapter, and the first answer to it is contained in the first two verses. By mentioning the inkstand and the pen and what they write, attention is really called to the fact that his prophecies about his own future and the fate of the Meccans, which were already put down in writing, would prove that the Prophet was not mad, for the ravings of a madman could not bear fruit. It should be noted that the Holy Qur-ān again and again challenges its opponents to write down their prophecies about the Holy Prophet, thus showing that its own were actually written down from the first; and thus this chapter, which is one of the earliest, conclusively establishes the truth that every revelation of the Holy Qur-ān was put down in writing as soon as it was communicated to the Holy Prophet. For the assertion made here see v. 47, and 52:41, "Or have they the knowledge of the unseen so that they write it down?" Hence the inkstand and the pen and what they write stands for the prophecies which are mentioned as regards the Holy Prophet in v. 3 and as regards the opponents in vv. 17-33, while they are called upon to write down the prophecies of their own diviners.

But the words have a wider significance, indicating that the Qur-ān will always continue to occupy a unique position among all the books which are ever written, and thus there will always be a conclusive proof that the Prophet to whom it was revealed was not a madman. The unique position of the Holy Qur-ān among all the books of the world consists in its completeness and exhaustive dealing with all the truths about religion, so that every religious truth is found within its covers, and every false doctrine is condemned therein. See 1785.

8 So do not yield to the rejecters.

وَأَنَّ لَكَ لَا جُرَاعَةَ مِمَّنْ

وَأَنَّكَ لَعَلَىٰ خَلْقٍ عَظِيمٍ

فَسَتُبْصِرُ وَيُبْصِرُونَ

يَا بَيْكُمُ الْمَفْسُونَ

إِنَّ رَبَّكَ هُوَ أَعْلَمُ بِمَنْ ضَلَّ عَنْ

سَبِيلِهِ وَهُوَ أَعْلَمُ بِالْمُهْتَدِينَ

فَلَا يُطِيعُ الْمَكِيدِينَ

وَدُّوا لَوْلَا آلُ هُنَّ يَدُ هُنَّ

2538 As proof of the assertion contained in the previous verse, the Prophet is told that his exertions shall be followed by a reward which shall never be cut off, i.e. he shall be successful in establishing a religion which shall never cease to exist, whereas a madman's actions do not bear any fruit even in his lifetime. Thus there is not only a clear prophecy here of the final triumph of the Prophet over his enemies, but there is also a prophecy that what is stated in the Qur-ân rests on such a firm foundation that it shall never prove untrue.

2539 The Prophet's conforming to the sublimest morality is a further proof that he cannot be a madman. This was not only an assertion, but the Holy Prophet had already won from them the recognition of his sublime morality, inasmuch as he had won the title of Al-amin, a title which not only was never given by the Arabs to anybody, but one which has never been conferred by any nation as a whole upon an individual in the history of the world. The Arabs, on account of their haughty spirit and tribal and family feuds, were perhaps the last nation that would have thus recognized the high qualities of a man who was neither a king, nor the chief of a tribe, nor a great warrior, nor a famous poet; so that flattery would have been the motive of the people in according him an unparalleled honour. Al-amin signifies the one who may be trusted (LL), and by giving the Prophet that title the people expressed their high appreciation of his sublime morality, as if he were the one, and only one, as indicated by prefixing al, who could be trusted in all matters. His moral greatness was thus testified to by 'Ayesha, than whom none was more intimate with the Holy Prophet : كان خلقه القرآن or his morals are the Qur-ân, meaning that all pictures of sublime morality depicted by the Holy Qur-ân afford really a glimpse of the moral greatness of the Prophet. The Holy Qur-ân plainly calls him an exemplar (33:21). The one thing which places him high above all other prophets and great men is that his moral sublimity found an expression in every phase of life, whereas the life of every other prophet affords an instance of moral greatness only in one or more particular aspects of life.

2540 The first desire of the Quraish was no doubt, owing to their great respect for the Holy Prophet, that he should not condemn their evil deeds in strong language, and thus they too would not be severe in opposition to him. This circumstance also shows this chapter to be one of the earliest revelations, for in later years the opposition of the Quraish became very severe.

2541 The person alluded to is Walid bin Mughira (JB), or Abu Jahl, or Aswad bin 'Abd-i-Yaghus, or Akhnas bin Shuraiq (Itz). In fact, the description applies to all the leaders of opposition to the Holy Prophet, as the words of v. 8, "so do not yield to the rejecters," show.

2542 Branding on the nose is equivalent to bringing a man to disgrace which shall stick to him (Rgh). Khurṭūn signifies really "the proboscis of an elephant (Rgh), or the nose of a beast of prey (TA), or a large or an elevated nose (MA)" (LL), and the word is here applied to the nose of a man to indicate its ugliness (Rgh). The anaf, or nose, being the most prominent part of the face, is looked upon as standing for al-hamiyyat (Rz), i.e. disdain. Hence also anfāt-un signifies disdain (LL). Those who apply this description to Walid bin Mughira in particular take the branding of the nose literally, a prophecy fulfilled in the battle of Badr, where Walid received a wound on his nose, the mark of which remained till his death (Bd, Rz). Bd also adds : And it is said to express that He will bring him to the utmost disgrace.

2543 This is a parable which sets forth the ultimate fate of the Quraish, viz. that they shall not reap the advantage of what they sow. Stated as it is in unmistakable terms, it is one of the earliest prophecies, when opposition to the Holy Prophet had not yet assumed that severity which characterized it during his latter days at Mecca.

25 And in the morning they went, having the power to prevent.

26 But when they saw it, they said: Most surely we have gone astray:

27 Nay! we are made to suffer privation.

28 The best of them said: Did I not say to you, Why do you not glorify (Allah)?

29 They said: Glory be to our Lord, surely we were unjust.

30 Then some of them advanced against others, blaming each other.

31 Said they: O woe to us! surely we were inordinate:

32 Maybe, our Lord will give us instead one better than it; surely to our Lord do we make our humble petition.²⁵⁴⁴

33 Such is the chastisement, and certainly the chastisement of the hereafter is greater, did they but know!²⁵⁴⁵

SECTION 2

A Reminder for the Nations

3 -41. The righteous and the wicked are not alike. 42-47. The prophecy. 48-50. The issue must be waited for patiently: Jonah's example. 51, 52. A reminder for the nations.

34 Surely those who guard (against evil) shall have with their Lord gardens of bliss.

35 What! shall We then make those who submit as the guilty?

إِنَّ لِلْمُتَّقِينَ عِندَ رَبِّهِمْ جَنَّاتٍ ۝

الْعَالِيَةِ ۝

أَتَجْعَلُ الْمُسْلِمِينَ كَالْمُجْرِمِينَ ۝

2544 It shows that while the Qur-án threatened the Meccans with punishment, it foretold at the same time that they would accept the truth ultimately. What is foretold here happened about twenty years afterwards in the conquest of Mecca. They lost what they had so long contended for against the Holy Prophet; all their exertions came to naught and their power in the land was frustrated, but they then saw their error, came over to Islam, and were made the rulers of vast kingdoms; thus their Lord gave them instead one better, because they made their humble petition to Him.

2545 The separate mention of the chastisement of the hereafter is a clear evidence that the punishment spoken of in the previous verses, which is referred to at the commencement of this verse in the words such is the chastisement, was a punishment which was to overtake them in this life, and thus to afford a proof of the truth of the chastisement of the hereafter.

36 What has happened to you? How do you judge?

37 Or have you a book wherein you read,

38 That you have surely therein what you choose?

39 Or have you received from Us an agreement confirmed by an oath extending to the day of resurrection that you shall surely have what you judge?

سَسْتَنْدِرُهُمْ مِنْ حَيْثُ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ ۝

2546 The meaning of كشفت عن اساق has been fully explained with reference to the lexicons in 1855. I may add here a few words from the commentaries. Bq interprets يوم يكشف عن ساق as meaning يوم يشند الامر i.e. on the day when there shall be a severe affliction, giving the alternative significance as يوم يكشف عن اصل الامر

i.e. when the truth of the matter shall be laid bare. Kf says: "اكشفت عن الساق

(lit., laying bare of the shank), and الابداء عن الخدام (lit., disclosing the anklet) is a proverb signifying the hardness of an affair and the severity of a calamity, and the origin of it is in the fright and the flight and the tucking up of their garments by women from their shanks in fleeing, and the disclosing of their anklets"; and then, quoting two verses as his authority for the statement made, he adds: "يوم يكشف عن ساق means the day on which the affair shall become hard and formidable, and there is neither any laying bare nor a shank." IAs when explaining the similar words

يكشف عن ساق occurring in a saying of the Holy Prophet, almost repeats the words of Kf. Rz holds the meaning of as-saq to be ash-shiddat, and quotes five verses, rejecting at the same time the opinion of the Mushabbihah, who take the words literally.

Commentators also differ as to whether this severity will be brought about in this life or in the life after death, Abu Muslim holding the first opinion, which Rz admits. But, as I have often stated, the severity and distress with which the unbelievers were threatened overtook them in this life, though a more complete manifestation of it will take place in the life after death.

45 And I do bear with them, surely My plan* is firm.²⁵⁴⁷

51 And those who disbelieve would almost smite you with their eyes when they hear the reminder, and they say: Most surely he is mad.²⁵⁵⁰

52 And it is naught but a reminder to the nations.

وَإِنِّي لَهُمْ إِن كُنتُمْ مِتُّنْ
أَمْ تَسْأَلُهُمْ أَجْرًا فَهُمْ مِنْ مَغْرَمٍ مُثْقَلُونَ

بِأَبْصَارِهِمْ لَنْ يَسْمَعُوا إِلَّا كُرْهُهُمْ يُؤْذُونَ
إِنَّهُ لَيَجْعَلُونَ
وَمَا هُوَ إِلَّا ذُرٌّ تُلْغَايُنْ

2547 They are given respite, but their punishment is sure.

2548 Writing is always mentioned in connection with the knowledge of the unseen, because it is writing alone that makes the truth of a prophecy sure. Such verses are a clear proof that the Qur-ān itself, containing as it did numerous prophecies, was written from the first, otherwise a challenge to the opponents in these early revelations to write down the knowledge of the future which they had through their diviners would be meaningless.

2549 The Prophet Jonah is here called the companion of the fish, because of the incident mentioned in 37: 142.

2550 The chapter ends with exactly the same allegation on the part of the unbelievers as the one with which it opened. And the last verse, and it is naught but a reminder to the nations, thus sums up the arguments advanced against that allegation. In fact, the arguments advanced in this chapter are equally true in all ages and for all nations. Note that even so early as the revelation of this chapter the Prophet's message is declared to be meant for all people. In fact, a saying of the Holy Prophet shows it to have been the very first message delivered by him. Thus, speaking of Abu Bakr, the first convert to Islam, the Holy Prophet is reported to have said: "I said to the people, I am the apostle of Allah to you all; but you said, You lie, and Abu Bakr said, You speak the truth" (Bkh, commentary on ch. 7).

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. The doom.
- Sec. 2. False allegations refuted.

General remarks.

THIS chapter is clearly later in revelation than its predecessor, because it deals with the later allegations of the unbelievers that the Prophet is a poet, or a diviner, and last of all that he is an impostor (vv. 41-44), the last chapter dealing with their first allegation that the Prophet is a madman. Al-hāqqah or the Sure Calamity, with which the Quraish are threatened in the opening verse, and which gives its name to this chapter, is the doom of the Quraish, and the warning is followed by a reference to the fate of the earlier nations. The latter half of the first section states that the sure calamity means the time of the reward of the faithful and of the punishment of the evil-doers. The second section shows that the allegations of the opponents in which they aver that the Prophet is a poet, or a diviner, or an impostor, are all false. •

2551 Al-hāqqah is derived from the root haqq, meaning the truth, and is interpreted in several ways, in all of which the sense of the root word is present. Thus it is synonymous with haqqat, meaning truth, as in the saying لما رأى الحاقة منى هرب i.e. when he saw the truth from me, he fled (TA). It also signifies a severe calamity the happening

4 Samood and 'Ad called the striking calamity a lie.²⁵⁵²

5 Then as to Samood, they were destroyed by an excessively severe punishment.²⁵⁵³

6 And as to 'Ad, they were destroyed by a roaring, violent blast,

7 Which He made to prevail against them for seven nights and eight days unintermittingly, so that you might have seen the people therein prostrate as if they were the trunks of hollow palms.

Ar. thou mightest.

8 Do you then see of them one remaining?

Ar. doest thou.

9 And Pharaoh and those before him and the overthrown cities* wrought evil.

of which is fixed or established (Q-LL), or the hour which must come to pass, or the hour in which shall be حَوَاتِقُ الْأُمُورِ i.e. severe calamities (Rz), or the hour in which things shall be surely known (LL), or the hour in which deeds shall be requited (Rz). According to Az, al-hāqqah is the hour in which the truth shall be triumphant, the reason given being that it is so called because it shall overcome every one who contends falsely in the matter of the religion of Allah.

The commentators say that by this hour the resurrection is meant, but I see no reason why, in any one of the numerous senses of the word given above, it is not also applicable to the hour of the doom of a nation which overtakes it in this life. In fact, the instances given about 'Ad, and Samood, and Pharaoh, and the Sodomites, all show that the sure calamity spoken of here as al-hāqqah is the sure fate which must overtake the Meccans, there being no doubt that a fuller manifestation of the truth, of the requital, of the calamity, or of the triumph of truth which comes to pass in this life shall take place hereafter, and hence the word signifies both the doom of a nation in this life and the resurrection.

2552 Al-qāri'ah is derived from qar', which signifies the striking of one thing over another (Rgh); hence al-qāri'ah is the striking calamity or the calamity that will strike terror into the hearts of the people (Rz), and here it signifies the calamity of which 'Ad and Samood were warned, but which they called a lie.

2553 At-tāghiyah is derived from the root ṭaghā, meaning he exceeded the limit, and means either an excessively severe punishment (Rz's interpretation of it being an event exceeding all limits in severity), or it is here a substantive and means ṭaghyan, or inordinacy. The latter is the interpretation of I'Ab and Mjd and Ibn-i-Zaid (AH).

يَوْمَئِذٍ تُنْزَعُونَ لَا تُخَفُّ مِنْكُمْ خَافِيَةٌ

2554 The consequences of this great event are described in 56:3; see 2425 and 2426, where it is shown that the great event, alwāqī'ah, signifies the doom of the Meccans in this life, while it is true that a full manifestation of these events will take place in the life after death. The passing away of the earth and the mountains and their being crushed, signifies the fall of the small and great men in connection with that doom.

2555 As I have said so often, a full manifestation of such events on the day of resurrection does not preclude the possibility of a certain manifestation of them taking place in this life. In fact, such manifestation affords a proof of the greater manifestation hereafter, and this is a distinctive feature of the Quranic prophecies relating to the hereafter. Thus the cleaving asunder of heaven took place in a certain sense in the battle of Badr (984), and the angels also were there helping the cause of the Muslims.

The bearing of the power on that day by eight is a point attended with some difficulty. In the first place, above them means above the angels spoken of in the previous verse (Rz). From this we may conclude that the eight bearers of the power either represent something above the angels, or particular angels above the ordinary angels. It is noteworthy that the word gamāniyah, or eight, is not followed by any word which shows who or what these eight are. The commentators generally suppose them to be angels, but the more cautious among them refrain from even specifying the number. Some say the meaning may be eight thousand, others say eight ranks (Kf, the latter being Dk's opinion). Kf adds: "And maybe these eight are from among the spirit or some other creation." Now the one thing that should be borne in mind in interpreting such allegorical words is that the Divine Being Himself is Al-qayyūm, or the Self-subsisting by whom all things subsist (2:255). This being taken as the basis, it is clear that other things are not a support for the Divine Being, but all created things, whether angels or any beings above angels, subsist by God. Another consideration which helps us in understanding what is meant by these bearers is a saying of the Holy Prophet, reported by all commentators, that at present such bearers are four (Rz, Kf, Bq). Now, are there any four attributes of the Divine Being which are specially connected with the maintenance of the world? The opening chapter of the Holy Qur-ān is, as shown in the preliminary note to that chapter, the essence of the whole of the Qur-ān, and that chapter speaks of four attributes of the Divine Being in connection with the maintenance of al-'ālamīn, i.e. the whole of the creation. These attributes are mentioned in the names Rabb, Rahmān, Rahīm, and Malik, and a reference to the notes on these four words in the opening chapter will show that these four attributes, providence, benevolence, mercy, and Equital, are really the chief attributes which bring the creation to perfection and from which all other attributes may be inferred. These four are thus the Personal attributes of the Divine Being which precede all, encompass all, make all to attain to their goal of perfection and remain after all. Hence these are the four hamalat-ul-'arsh, or the bearers of the power so far as this world is concerned.

How do they become eight on the day of resurrection? The other world is a complete, but at the same time a new, manifestation of the spiritual realities of this life. Hence, there is a new manifestation of the four attributes of the Divine Being by which the world subsists, and thus these four attributes become eight on the day of resurrection. To clear any misunderstanding I may add that, as Divine attributes are brought into action through the agency of angels, the four or eight attributes that are considered the bearers of the power would also be manifested through angels, and in this sense we may look upon the bearers of the power as being four or eight angels.

2556 This verse speaks clearly of the manifestation of the hidden realities on the day of resurrection to which I have referred in the above note.

2557 These fruits are the manifestation of the fruits of righteous deeds that remained hidden from the ordinary eye in this life.

2558 He would wish that death had made an end of him, it referring to death. Or the meaning may be that this state had been my death (Rz), or that the life of the world had never come to pass (Bd).

2559 It should be noted that in these verses the spiritual torture of this world is represented as a physical punishment in the next. The chain to be put upon the neck, for instance, represents the desires of this world, which keep a man with his head bent upon the earth, and it is these desires that shall assume the shape of a chain.

Lord of the worlds.

فَلَا أَنْتِمْ بِهَا بِخَبَرُونَ

إِنَّهُ لَقَوْلُ رَسُولٍ كَرِيمٍ
وَمَا هُوَ بِقَوْلِ شَاعِرٍ قَلِيلًا مَا تُؤْمِنُونَ
وَلَا يَقُولُ كَاذِبٍ قَلِيلًا مَا تَكْفُرُونَ
تَنْزِيلٌ مِنْ رَبِّ الْعَالَمِينَ

Similarly, the entanglements of this world shall be seen as chains on the feet. The heartburnings of this world shall likewise be clearly seen as flames of burning fire. The wicked one has, in fact, in this very world within himself a hell of the passions and inextinguishable desires of this world, and feels the burning of that hell in the failures he encounters. When, therefore, he shall be cast farther off from his temporal desires and shall see an everlasting despair before him, his heartburnings and bitter sighs for his dear desires shall assume the shape of burning fire. The Holy Qur-án says: "And a barrier shall be passed between them and that which they desire" (84: 54), and this shall be the beginning of their torture.

The thrusting into a chain of the length of seventy cubits reveals the same deep secret. The limit of age may as a general rule be fixed at seventy, and a wicked person may live up to that age in his wickedness. He may sometimes even enjoy seventy years, excluding the periods of childhood and decrepitude. These seventy years during which he could work with honesty, wisdom, and zeal are wasted away only in the entanglements of the world and in following the sensual passions. He does not try to free himself from the chain of desires, and therefore in the next world the chain of the desires which he indulged in for seventy years shall be embodied into a chain of seventy cubits length, every cubit representing a year, in which the wicked one shall be fettered.

2560 I'Ab, being questioned as to what ghislin was, replied that he did not know (Rz). Mjd says it is a certain food of the inmates of the fire. According to Dk it is a species of trees in the fire, while Ls considers ghislin to be any thing that is intensely hot (TA-LL). Literally it signifies what is washed off, to which the commentators add from the bodies of the unbelievers. I think refuse the best word for it.

44 And if he had fabricated against Us some of the sayings,

45 We would certainly have seized him by the right hand,

2561 This verse and the three preceding it show that one who fabricates Divine revelation does not prosper. Compare Deut. 18: 20, where the prophecy of the advent of a Prophet like Moses is followed by these words: "But the Prophet which shall presume to speak a word in My name, which I have not commanded him to speak, or that shall speak in the name of other gods, even that prophet shall die." Jesus' words in Matt. 7: 19: "Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire," after comparing a false prophet with a corrupt tree that does not bring forth good fruit, point to a like effect.

2562 Because the punishment of which it warns them must surely overtake them.

2563 The haqq-ul-yaqin or true certainty of this verse is not different from al-haqqah of the opening verse. Note that it is the punishment of the unbelievers which is called here the true certainty.

Abstract:

Sec. 1. Certainty of the punishment.

Sec. 2. A new nation shall be raised.

General remarks.

THE title of this chapter is taken from v. 3, where Allah is called the Lord of the Ways of Ascent. While holding out the certainty of the punishment in the clearest and most emphatic words, this chapter points out at first that great ends are achieved in a long period of time, so much so that a period, or a yaum, of fifty thousand years is mentioned, and the Holy Prophet is then told to wait patiently for the day which must overtake the opponents. Towards the close of the first section we are told what the ways or means are by which the faithful attain the nearness of the Divine Being, and the reference in v. 3 may be to these means of ascent. The second section speaks very clearly of the disgrace which the opponents shall meet with, a new nation being raised in their place.

The revelation of this chapter is considered by all authorities to be not later than the close of the early Meccan period. The allegations of the unbelieving Quraish having been dealt with in the two previous chapters, we are here told that the punishment of the opponents, although very certain, must take some time.

²⁵⁶⁴ There is no reason that one man should be particularized as demanding the threatened punishment. The prophecies of the final triumph of the Holy Prophet and of the doom of his opponents were so frequently announced in the Holy Qur-ān that the question was often asked: "When will this threat come to pass if you are truthful?" (36:

5 Therefore endure with a goodly patience.

6 Surely they think it to be far off,

7 And We see it nigh.

8 On the day when the heaven shall be as molten brass,

9 And the mountains shall be as tufts of wool;

10 And friend shall not ask of friend,

11 (Though) they shall be made to see each other. The guilty one would fain redeem himself from the chastisement of that day by his children,

12 And his wife and his brother,

13 And the nearest of his kinsfolk who gave him shelter,

14 And all those that are in the earth, (wishing) then (that) this might deliver him.

15 By no means! Surely it is a flaming fire,

16 Dragging by the head,

17 It shall claim him who retreats and turns the back,

2565 Several explanations are given of the words gil-ma'arj or Lord of the ways of ascent, but I think the reference is to the exaltation of the Prophet along with the punishment of his opponents. The Divine Being is here stated to be the Lord of the ways of ascent as indicating that, while punishing the Prophet's opponents, He will grant to his followers the means of ascent, or the means of exaltation. Compare 56: 3, where the great event is spoken of as being abasing, exalting. The means of exaltation of the believers are pointed out further; see vv. 22-35.

2566 A day is here spoken of as being equal to fifty thousand years. Whether that would be the period in which the final triumph of truth would be brought about in the whole world, or whether it is a cycle of 50,000 years, in the same manner as a cycle of a thousand years is mentioned in 32: 5, it is difficult to say. It shows at any rate that the Holy Qur-ân does not accept the theory of seven thousand years being the world's age. The words being followed by an injunction to the Holy Prophet, therefore endure with a goodly patience, show at any rate that the day spoken of here is a period of time with reference to this life.

2567 Note the clear prophecies that the power of the Meccans shall be brought to naught and another people (the Muslims) shall be made the rulers of the land in their stead.

2568 The picture of the final defeat of the Quraish at the conquest of Mecca could not be drawn in clearer words. Their homes are here designated as graves because they were dead spiritually.

CHAPTER LXXI

NOAH

(Nuh)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(2 sections and 28 verses)

SECTION 1

Noah preaches

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

Ar thy. 1 Surely We sent Noah to his people, saying: Warn your people before there come upon them a painful chastisement.

2 He said: O my people!
Surely I am a plain warner to you:

3 That you should serve Allah and be careful of (your duty to) Him and obey me:

4 He will forgive you some of your faults and grant you a delay to an appointed term;
surely the term of Allah when it comes is not postponed: did you but know!

5 He said: O my Lord!
surely I have called my people
by night and by day:

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ
إِنَّا أَرْسَلْنَا نُوحًا إِلَىٰ قَوْمِهِ أَنْ أَنْذِرْ
قَوْمَكَ مِنْ قَبْلِ أَنْ يَأْتِيَهُمْ
عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٌ ٥

قَالَ لِقَوْمِي إِنِّي كُنْتُ نَذِيرٌ
إِنْ اعْبُدُوا اللَّهَ وَاتَّقُوهُ وَأَطِيعُوا أَمْرِي
يَغْفِرْ لَكُمْ ذُنُوبَكُمْ وَأُوخِّرْكُمْ إِلَىٰ أَجَلٍ
مُسْتَعَيٍّ إِنَّ أَجَلَ اللَّهِ إِذَا جَاءَ لَا يُؤَخَّرُ
لَوْ كُنْتُمْ تَعْلَمُونَ ٦

قَالَ رَبِّ إِنِّي دَعَوْتُ قَوْمِي لَيْلًا
وَنَهَارًا ٧

Abstract:

Sec. 1. Noah preaches.

Sec. 2. Noah's prayer for destruction of transgressors.

General remarks.

THE threat of certain punishment contained in the last chapter is herein followed by an example. The entire chapter is devoted to the preaching of Noah, after whom it is named, and his prayer that the transgressors may be destroyed, so that evil may not prosper on earth, the two subjects being dealt with respectively in the two sections. As regards the date of revelation, the chapter may be classed with the group with which it is associated.

6 But my call has only made them flee the more :²⁵⁶⁹

7 And whenever I have called them that Thou mayest forgive them, they put their fingers in their ears and cover themselves with their garments,²⁵⁷⁰ and persist and are puffed up with pride:

8 Then surely I called to them aloud:

9 Then surely I spoke to them in public and I spoke to them in secret:

10 Then I said, Ask forgiveness of your Lord: surely He is the most Forgiving:

11 He will send down upon you the cloud, pouring down abundance of rain:

12 And help you with wealth and sons, and make for you gardens, and make for you rivers.²⁵⁷¹

13 What is the matter with you that you hope not for greatness from Allah?²⁵⁷²

فَلَمْ يَزِدْهُمْ دُعَايَ إِلَّا فِرَارًا
وَإِنِّي كُلَّمَا دَعَوْتَهُمْ لِتَغْفِرَ لَهُمْ
جَعَلُوا آصَابِعَهُمْ فِي آذَانِهِمْ وَاسْتَغْشَوْا
ثِيَابَهُمْ وَأَصْرُوا وَاسْتَكْبَرُوا وَاسْتَكْبَرُوا
ثُمَّ إِنِّي دَعَوْتُهُمْ جَهَرًا
ثُمَّ إِنِّي أَعْلَنْتُ لَهُمْ وَأَسْرَرْتُ
لَهُمْ إِسْرَارًا
فَقُلْتُ اسْتَغْفِرُوا رَبَّكُمْ إِنَّهُ كَانَ
غَفَّارًا
يُرْسِلُ السَّمَاءَ عَلَيْكُمْ مِدْرَارًا
وَيُمِدُّكُمْ بِأَمْوَالٍ وَبَنِينَ وَ
يَجْعَلُ لَكُمْ جَنَّاتٍ وَيَجْعَلُ لَكُمْ أَنْهَارًا
مَا لَكُمْ لَا تَرْجُونَ لِلَّهِ وَقَارًا

2569 The meaning is really, the more I call them, the more they flee, but the call is here made the nominative, though it is not the immediate and effective cause of their flight, which is really due to the stubbornness of their hearts. Exactly in the same sense a chapter of the Qur-án is spoken of as "adding uncleanness" to the uncleanness of those in whose hearts is a disease (9:125); and on another occasion, exactly in the same sense, Allah is spoken of as adding to the disease of those in whose hearts is a disease (2:10). In all these cases the nominative is not the real doer or the effective cause of the thing, but is really in some way remotely connected with the consequence. This explanation is given by the Qur-án itself in the words that immediately follow this verse: "Whenever I have called them that Thou mayest forgive them, they put their fingers in their ears and cover themselves with their garments, and persist and are puffed up with pride." Thus all those actions which amount to their fleeing the more are their own actions voluntarily committed.

2570 The phrase استغشوا ثيابهم is variously explained. Rgh gives two explanations. The first is "they put them (i.e. their garments) as a covering over their ears, and this denotes their holding back from giving ear." The other explanation is that it is "an allusion to running away," and as instances of this he mentions the phrases شمر ذيلًا and القي ثوبه and after giving the literal meaning adds as an explanation, in order that he might not see nor hear (LL). Some take riab as meaning the heart, as in 74:4, the meaning being that they cover their hearts, refusing to ponder over what is said.

2571 They are promised various blessings if they turn to Allah, which really means that their doom shall be averted, for nations are no doubt destroyed when they indulge in evil inordinately, and they prosper so long as their good qualities preponderate.

2572 The words may be taken either as a continuation of Noah's preaching or as being addressed to the Quraish. Even in the former case, the Meccans are told in the story of various

SECTION 2

Noah's Prayer for Destruction of Transgressors

21 Noah said: My Lord! surely they have disobeyed me and followed him whose wealth and children have added to him nothing but loss.

22 And they have planned a very great plan.

23 And they say: By no means leave your gods, nor leave Wadd, nor Suwâ'; nor Yaghûs, and Ya'uq and Nasr.²⁵⁷⁷

قَالَ نوحُ رَبِّ! إِنَّمَا عَصَوْنِي وَأَتَّبَعُوا مَن
لَّمْ يَزِدَّهُمْ مَالَهُ وَوَلَدَهُ إِلَّا خَسَارًا ۝

وَمَكْرُوا مَكْرًا كَبِيرًا ۝
وَقَالُوا لَا تَنْدُرُنَّ إِلَهِتَكُمْ وَلَا تَذَرُنَّ

وَدًّا وَلَا سِوَاعَاهُ وَلَا يَعُوثَ وَ
يَعُوثَ وَنَسْرًا ۝

Noah that if they follow the Prophet they will be made a great nation. Rz favours the interpretation of Kf, which I have adopted, and rejects the other, which I give in the margin. Kf says: "The meaning is, What is the matter with you that you are not in a state in which you should hope for Allah making you great?"

2573 The words may be taken as alluding to the theory of evolution. The commentators generally take them to refer to the various conditions through which the fetus passes. But they may as well imply that man has been brought to the present state of physical perfection after passing through various conditions.

2574 Note here again that man is described as having grown out of the earth as a growth, i.e. by a process of development. This is no doubt true, even in the process of creation which we daily observe working before our eyes. Vegetables grow out of earth: from these man obtains food, and from the food which he eats is produced the life-germ, which itself goes through a further process of development. But more probably the reference in this growth, and in the grades spoken of in v. 14, is to that great process of development through which man has attained to the present stage of physical perfection.

2575 The new bringing forth refers either to the rise of a new nation after one has been swept away, or to the new spiritual growth in the life after death.

2576 The wide paths made for man's earthly existence are an indication of the spiritual paths wherein God-fearing man attains to spiritual perfection.

2577 The strangest of all criticisms is that directed against certain names, of persons or idols, occurring in the Holy Qur-ân, as if names of the time of the Holy Prophet were

24 And indeed they have led astray many, and do not increase the unjust in aught but perdition.²⁵⁷⁸

Or, error.
25 Because of their wrongs they were drowned, then made to enter fire, so they did not find any helpers besides Allah.

Or, shall be.
Or, shall.
26 And Noah said : My Lord ! leave not upon the land any dweller from among the unbelievers :²⁵⁷⁹

27 For surely if Thou leave them they will lead astray Thy servants, and will not beget any but immoral, ungrateful (children) :

وَقَدْ أَضَلُّوا كَثِيرًا وَلَا تَزِدِ الظَّالِمِينَ إِلَّا ضَلَالًا ۝

بِمَا كَانُوا يَسْعَوْنَ فَاذْخُلُوا نَارًا فَلَمْ

يَجِدُوا إِلَهُهُمْ مِنْ دُونِ اللَّهِ أَنْصَارًا ۝

وَقَالَ نُوحٌ رَبِّ لَا تَذَرْ عَلَى الْأَرْضِ مِنَ

الْكَاذِبِينَ دِيَارًا ۝

إِنَّكَ إِنْ تَذَرَهُمْ يَفْضَحُوا عَمَلَكَ وَكَلِيدًا

إِلَّا قَاجِرًا كَفَّارًا ۝

logically a bar to similar names having existed three or four thousand years before his time. It is said that because the Arabs had certain idols of these names, therefore it is an anachronism to have asserted that these idols were identical in name with those of the people of Noah. But why? Look at any other idol-worshipping nation; take the Hindus, for example, and you find the same names of idols going on through thousands of years. And yet Arabia was not more distantly situated from the territory of Noah's people than are any two parts of India from each other. Moreover, there is reason to believe that the Arabs obtained most of their idols from foreign countries. Thus Hubal, the chief Arab idol in the Ka'ba, "was brought from Belka in Syria into Arabia by 'Amr ibn-i-Lohay, pretending it would procure them rain when they wanted it." Usáf and Náila are also said to have been brought from Syria (Salo's Preliminary Discourse, sec. 1). There is nothing strange, therefore, in the circumstance that the Arab idols were imported from some ancient nations. But it should be borne in mind that vv. 22-25 may be parenthetical, like vv. 13-20; and the address here may be to the Arabian idolaters. The Qur-án frequently adopts this mode of addressing and warning the opponents of the Holy Prophet in the midst of an account relating to a former prophet or a former people. This interpretation is favoured by the fact that both vv. 21 and 26 begin with the words Noah said. The only difficulty would be about v. 25, which speaks of the drowning, but any punishment which destroys a people may be spoken of as gharq (lit. drowning), as you say : غرق في البلاد meaning he went downwards and disappeared in the lands or tracts of land (TA-LL). Similarly you say اغرق أعماله meaning he destroyed his works (by doing evil) (TA). As regards the use of the past tense in that verse, it is frequently adopted in prophetic language to indicate the great certainty of an event.

Wadd was worshipped in the form of a man, Suwá' in that of a woman, Yaghús in that of a lion, Ya'úq in that of a horse, and Nasr in that of an eagle (Rz), and these were worshipped respectively by the tribes of Kalb, Hamdan, Mazhaj, Murad, and Hamyar (Rz, AH, the latter having Huzail instead of Hamdan).

2578 Several explanations of qalál are given. Kf says it means khuglán, i.e. their being forsaken by Allah, or hilák, i.e. loss and perdition, which is supported by the concluding verses of the chapter; Ibn-i-Bahr says it means 'azáb', i.e. chastisement, as in سعى في ضلال وسعي in 54:24 and 47; others say it means loss, and others still, going astray in their plans (AH). For qalál meaning perdition we have also the authority of the lexicons (S, Q-LL).

2579 It should be noted that Noah was speaking only of his own people and praying against them only. All his statements and prayers refer to them, and not to the whole world. Hence al-arq simply signifies the land in which they lived, and not the earth.

28 My Lord ! forgive me and my parents and him who enters my house believing, and the believing men and the believing women : and do not increase the unjust in aught but destruction !

رَبِّ اغْفِرْ لِي وَلِوَالِدَيَّ وَلِمَنْ دَخَلَ

وَلَا تَزِدِ الظَّالِمِينَ إِلَّا تَبَارًا

CHAPTER LXXII

THE JINN

(Al-jinn)

REVEALED AT MECCA

sections and 28 verses)

SECTION 1

Foreign Believers

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 Say : It has been revealed to me that a party of the jinn²⁵⁸⁰ listened, and they said : Surely we have heard a wonderful
Qur-án,

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ
قُلْ أُوحِيَ إِلَيَّ أَنَّهُ اسْتَمَعَ نَفَرٌ مِّنَ الْجِنِّ
فَقَالُوا إِنَّا سَمِعْنَا قُرْآنًا مَّجْبُورًا ۝

Abstract :

Sec. 1. Foreign believers.

Sec. 2. Protection of revelation.

General remarks.

Thus chapter speaks of the protection which is granted to the prophets against their enemies, and the subject, hinted at in v. 8 of the first section, is made clear in the second section. The title is taken from the mention in v. 1 of certain believers in the Holy Prophet's truth called jinn.

The revelation of this chapter is generally ascribed to the time of the Holy Prophet's return from Táif, which took place two years before the Hejira, and thus the chapter belongs to a time when opposition had reached its climax. Abu Talib and Khadija had died ; a ban had been put in force against the Prophet and the families of Hashim and Abd-ul-Muttalab ; the believers had fled to Abyssinia, and those that remained were severely persecuted ; the Quraish were deaf to all preaching and warning, and finally a visit to Táif had resulted only in adding to the circumstances which would have most assuredly driven an ordinary individual to despair. Under those circumstances an assurance was sorely needed, and a very emphatic assurance is indeed given in this chapter. But beyond an assurance, we are told here that there are other believers, and thus if the Arabs persisted in unbelief Islam was making other spiritual conquests which unquestionably foreshadowed its vast conquests outside Arabia.

2580 The existence of jinn, or ethereal beings like the angels (the former being the spirits of evil and the latter the spirits of good), is a question quite distinct, but it is clear that the jinn spoken of here did not belong to this class. This very party is also

2 Guiding to the right way, so we believe in it, and we will not set up any one with our Lord :

3 And that He—exalted be the majesty of our Lord—has not taken a consort, nor a son :

4 And that the foolish amongst us used to forge extravagant things against Allah :

5 And that we thought that men and jinn did not utter a lie against Allah :

6 And that persons from among men used to seek refuge with persons from among jinn, so they increased them in wrong-doing :

referred to in 46 : 20-31, where they are made to say : " O our people ! we have listened to a book revealed after Moses, verifying that which is before it." This shows that they were Jews. The commentators cite a report to this effect. Rz says : " It is reported that these people were Jews." Rz again narrates a report by IMsd, saying that he heard them beating their drums, يقرعون في دفوفهم كما تقرع النساء في دفوفها and that he saw them hiding the Holy Prophet in their midst, حتى غشوه تغاب عن بصرى These words show that they were in all respects like other men. Again, the word jinn is applied to a man. LL quotes Ham : " The Arabs liken a man who is sharp and effective in affairs to a jinni." But stranger than this is the fact that the word jinn is recognized by lexicologists as signifying معظم الناس (Q, TA, etc.), i.e. the main body of men or the bulk of mankind (LL).

Now what is meant by the bulk of mankind ? In the mouth of an Arab, who considers his own people as distinct from the rest of the world, it would mean only foreigners, and I am of the opinion that this is the meaning of the word jinn here. And why were foreigners called jinn ? Because they were concealed from the eye of an Arab ; the primary significance of the word jann (from which jinn is derived) being concealing or veiling (Rgh). Hence the party of the Jews of Nisibis who came to the Holy Prophet are here spoken of as jinn because they were non-Arabs. For this very reason the Amalekites and other non-Israelites who were forced into labour by Solomon to build the Temple are called jinn in 34 : 12. See 2027.

2581 This means either the raising of a prophet or the raising to life of those spiritually dead. Qm sect of the Jews did not believe in resurrection.

2582 By reaching heaven is meant learning secrets of the heaven or news of the future. It shows that there were diviners and astrologers among them who thought that they could read the secrets of the future from the stars. See 2530.

2583 عذابا signifies literally a punishment so distressing as to overcome the sufferer thereof.

2584 The servant of Allah is the Holy Prophet Muhammad. There may be a hint here of the Prophet being mobbed by the people of Tâif.

2585 A solitary man left to himself without a friend, without helper, rejected at home and cruelly treated abroad (as he was at Taif, to which period this chapter belongs), could not speak these words. And thus did he pour out his soul in this state of utter helplessness before his Divine Master : "O Lord ! I make my complaint unto Thee of my helplessness and frailty and my insignificance before mankind. But Thou art the Lord of the poor and feeble, and Thou art my Lord. Into whose hands wilt Thou abandon me ? Into the hands of the strangers that beset me round about ? Or of the enemy Thou hast given at home to have the mastery over me ? . . . I seek for refuge in the light of Thy countenance . . ." (Muir). Now contrast with it the revelation which he received, just then, which speaks of his opponents as weak and few, who would soon be brought low, and it is clear as daylight that the source of the Holy Prophet's revelation was other than his own heart, for the same heart could not simultaneously vent feelings of utter helplessness and weakness and those of the most unbounded confidence in his ultimate triumph.

2586 The reformers promised for the Muslims at the commencement of every century, being representatives of the apostles, have also secrets of the future revealed to them, so that by the signs manifested through them they may establish true faith in the hearts of men. But note that the ghaib (or secrets) spoken of here refer particularly to the expression of the Divine will, to what are called the messages of their Lord in the next verse, being the commandments revealed through the prophets. The secrets on the other hand which are made known to the reformers in Islam are prophecies, not messages, because, the Holy Qur-án being a perfect expression of Divine will and containing all that is necessary for the guidance of humanity, no new message is needed. The prophecies made known to the righteous Muslims are only meant to confirm the truth of the final message known as the Holy Qur-án.

2587 Note the firm tone of these revelations under the disheartening circumstances to which attention has been drawn in 2585. Could these words proceed from any but the All-Powerful Divine source? The message must be delivered—Allah encompasses all.

Abstract :

- Sec. 1. The Prophet is enjoined to pray.
 Sec. 2. Prayer enjoined on Muslims.

General remarks.

The chapter receives its title from the Holy Prophet's description in the first verse as one who had wrapped up himself. The various significances of that word are given in the foot-note on that verse, but having regard to the subject-matter of this chapter, which enjoins prayer, the word Muzzammil signifies one who has prepared himself for prayer. The chapter opens with an injunction to the Holy Prophet to pass the night in prayer, ending with a general injunction to all believers to be ever mindful of prayer. The latter part of the first section enjoins the Holy Prophet to bear patiently the ill-treatment of his enemies, who should soon receive their due punishment, as did Pharaoh when in opposition to Moses. The previous chapter not only promises protection, but, as is clearly indicated in v. 9, the Prophet is told to seek protection in constant prayer.

The revelation of this chapter belongs to the early Meccan period, and the commentators generally think it to be one of the very early revelations. General opinion, however, represents the last verse, which forms the second section of this chapter, to have been revealed at Medina, because fighting in the way of Allah is mentioned therein. See also 2595, where it is shown that the reference may be prophetic, and therefore that verse may also belong to the same early period.

2588 The Prophet is here called Muzzammil, or one who has wrapped up himself. The ordinary explanation is that the Holy Prophet had wrapped himself up in clothes on receiving his first revelation, or a call to messengership. But various other explanations are given. Rgh says that it is an allusion to one who considers an affair to be easy: Kalbi and Farra state that the word signifies his preparation for prayers (Rz). 'Ikrama says it means one who was burdened with a great affair, for zamil means 'amal' (Rz). In all its senses, and particularly in the last mentioned, every follower is addressed through the Holy Prophet.

2589 قَوْلٌ ثَقِيلٌ or a weighty word, is in consonance with the significance of muzzammil given by 'Ikrama, as stated in the previous note. Being burdened with the guidance of the whole world was indeed a weighty word.

2590 A reason is here given for maintaining a prayerful attitude during the night. It is the firmest way to tread, i.e. to tread every evil under the feet, and the best corrective of speech, and thus it accomplishes correction of deeds as well as correction of speech.

2591 Reading vv. 12-14 along with v. 11, where the Prophet is told to give them a little respite to continue in their mischiefs, it becomes clear that those verses speak of the wretched condition in which the erstwhile possessors of ease and plenty would find themselves, and how the great difficulties attendant upon the spread of truth would be dispersed before the advance of truth. Prayer enjoined on Muslims

Ar. thū.
Ar thou
artest.

20 Surely your Lord knows that you pass in prayer nearly two-thirds of the night, and (sometimes) half of it, and (sometimes) a third of it, and (also) a party of those with you; and Allah measures the night and the day. He knows that you are not able to do it, so He has

إِنَّ رَبَّكَ يَعْلَمُ أَنَّكَ تَقُومُ أَدْنَىٰ مِنْ ثُلُثِ
الَيْلِ وَبَعْضُهَا ۖ وَثُلَاثُهَا مِنْ نَوْمٍ ۚ وَاللَّهُ
الَّذِينَ مَعَكَ ۚ وَاللَّهُ يُقَدِّرُ اللَّيْلَ وَالنَّهَارَ ۚ
عِلْمًا أَنَّ لَكَ مَخْصُوفًا

2592 The Holy Prophet's likeness to Moses is stated in the clearest terms in this, one of the earliest revelations, and thus the Holy Prophet's claim to be the promised prophet of Deut. 18:18, who is expressly stated to be the "like" of Moses, is as old as his revelation. Is it not wonderful in the case of one who had never read the Torah? Hence it is that the Holy Qur-ān is in all later revelations described as verifying what is before it, or coming in fulfilment of earlier prophecy, the truth of which is thus confirmed.

2593 Note the clear and decided tone of these verses, which at so early a period warned the Quraish of the evil fate which they were destined to meet. The horrors of that day are spoken of as making the children grey-headed and rending asunder heaven. Now, even if the words be taken as applying solely to the day of resurrection, the first description cannot be taken literally, for children would not be made actually grey-headed on the resurrection day. And the commentators therefore admit that it is an allegorical description of the horrors of the day, for you say, speaking of a terrible day يوم يشيب فاصى الاطفال i.e. a day which makes grey the forelocks of the children (Rz). The coupling of this decidedly allegorical description with the rending asunder of heaven is conclusive proof that the latter description must also be taken allegorically; in fact, as such, the description is applicable to both the day of resurrection and the doom of the opponents in this life, whereas, taken literally, it cannot apply to either of the two. Such phrases as the rolling up of heaven (21:104), rending asunder of heaven (as here and in 82:1), removing the covering of heaven (81:11), and similar other phrases, all really speak of the sweeping off of an old order of things to give place to a new, attended with the necessary terrors and disasters, and hence the description applies to the doom of a nation in this world as well as to the entirely new order of things which will be ushered in with the resurrection. See also 1665 and 2677.

turned to you (mercifully),²⁵⁹⁴ therefore read what is easy of the Qur-án. He knows that there must be among you sick, and others who travel in the land seeking of the bounty of Allah, and others who fight in Allah's way,²⁵⁹⁵ therefore read as much of it as is easy (to you), and keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate and offer to Allah a goodly gift,* and whatever of good you send on beforehand for yourselves, you will find it with Allah; that is best and greatest in reward; and ask forgiveness of Allah; surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

قَاتَبَ عَلَيْكُمْ فَأَقْرَأُوا مَا تيسَّرَ مِنَ
الْقُرْآنِ عَلِمَ أَنَّ سَيَكُونُ مِنْكُمْ مَرْضَى
وَأَخْرُونَ يَضْرِبُونَ فِي الْأَرْضِ
يَبْتَغُونَ مِنْ فَضْلِ اللَّهِ وَأُخْرُونَ
يُقَاتِلُونَ فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ فَأَقْرَأُوا مَا
تيسَّرَ مِنْهُ، وَأَقِيمُوا الصَّلَاةَ وَآتُوا
الزَّكَاةَ وَأَقْرِضُوا اللَّهَ قَرْضًا حَسَنًا
وَمَا تَقْدِمُوا إِلَّا أَنْفُسَكُمْ مِنْ خَيْرٍ يَجِدُوهُ
عِنْدَ اللَّهِ هُوَ خَيْرٌ وَأَعْظَىٰ أَخْرَأَ وَ
سْتَغْفِرُ اللَّهُ وَإِنَّ اللَّهَ لَغَفُورٌ رَحِيمٌ

2594 The first portion of the verse contains no commandment for the believers to pass such and such a part of the night in prayer; it simply states the fact that the Holy Prophet and those with him pass sometimes two-thirds, sometimes a half, and sometimes a third of the night in prayer; and hence it is meaningless to say that the first portion of the verse is abrogated by the second. A statement cannot be abrogated. The latter portion of the verse only states that though the Holy Prophet and his early zealous companions passed a great part of the night in prayer (instead of the revelries in which their opponents indulged), yet all Muslims could not follow their example, and hence they are told that they might pray by night so long as it was easy to them and not a burden. By you, in "you are not able to do it," are meant the Muslims in general. Note that the word taba (infinitive noun taubah), meaning He turned mercifully, occurs here, though there is no sin on the part of those to whom Allah turns mercifully. This shows that the word taubah has a much wider significance in the Holy Qur-án than its English equivalent repentance.

2595 The mention of fighting in this revelation is very probably a prophetic statement, as we find in many other places in the Holy Qur-án; hence the occurrence of the word is no argument that the verse was not revealed at Mecca.

CHAPTER LXXIV
THE CLOTHED ONE
(Al-Muddasir)
 REVEALED AT MECCA
(2 sections and 56 verses)

Abstract:

Sec. 1. The Prophet is enjoined to warn.

Sec. 2. The warning.

General remarks.

THE previous chapter tells the Prophet how to attain to perfection. Here he is told to get out of solitude so as to make others perfect. This chapter is by general consent admitted to be the second in the order of revelation, and the circumstances relating to its revelation are given in trustworthy reports. A period probably of six months had elapsed since the first revelation before the second was received, and this period is known as the fatrah or intermission. It is remarkable that a period of full six centuries of fatrah or intermission had elapsed before the advent of the Holy Prophet, for the six centuries from the appearance of Jesus to that of the Holy Prophet himself did not witness the appearance of any prophet in any part of the world, and in the Prophet's short fatrah there may be a reminder of the six centuries for which the whole of the world had to wait the appearance of the last and the greatest of the prophets, the Prophet, not of one nation or one age, but of all nations and all ages. This period of fatrah pressed heavily on the Holy Prophet, and he was very grieved on account of this intermission. Once more, however, after the fatrah had passed away, the angel of the Lord appeared to him, and the Prophet sought to cover himself with his clothes; but it was not the Divine will that he should remain in seclusion, and he was at once commanded to rise and warn. The clothed one was clothed with absorption in contemplation of the Divine Being, and he was enjoined now to leave the corner of solitude. The whole of this chapter, which clearly belongs to the early Meccan period, was evidently not revealed at one time, but there is nothing to show that any part was revealed at Medina.

The solitary report giving the impression of Jábír, through Abu Salma bin Abdur Rahmán, that this chapter is the very first revelation is no doubt an error. It was first only in the sense that it was first after the period of fatrah, but not actually the first of all the revelations granted to the Holy Prophet. The premier position is universally accorded to the opening verses of the 96th chapter.

2596 Al-muddassir is one wearing a digir, i.e. any garment (I.I.). Some take the word literally, others metaphorically, the meaning according to the latter being one clad in the garments of prophethood or one obscure, as he was in the Hira (Rz).

2597 Compare with the address contained in the last chapter: there the Holy Prophet is commanded to engage himself in devotion so that he should attain to perfection; here he is commanded to convey the message and to warn, thus making others perfect.

2598 The purification of the garments does not relate only to the outward act of purification, but also to the purification of the heart, as is shown in the next verse, where he is commanded to shun every kind of uncleanness. This interpretation is accepted by most of the commentators (Rz).

2599 Either do not expect, when bestowing a favour, that you will receive much from the person whom you have laid under an obligation, or do not recount what little you have done, accounting it much.

2600 This description applies generally, but the case of Walid bin Mughira is specially noticed by almost all commentators. Rz notices the report giving details of an occurrence in which Walid was specially concerned. Abu Jahl and other leaders in the persecution of the Holy Prophet assembled together to ponder what name to give to the Holy Prophet, as in the pilgrimage season people could not see their way to the acceptance of one particular epithet for the Holy Prophet. Somebody suggested that he was a poet, but Walid answered that his word was not like that of a poet. Then another suggested that he was a soothsayer, but Walid rejected this too on the ground that Muhammad never spoke a lie, whereas the soothsayers often proved liars. A third suggestion was that he was a madman, but this too was found inconsistent with the circumstances of the Holy Prophet's life. Then Walid left the company, his comrades thinking that he was going over to Islam. Abu Jahl followed him to question him about the matter, and was told that after pondering deeply on the question he had come to the conclusion that the Prophet was a sihir, i.e. an enchanter, because, he said, "It is the enchanter who separates the father from the son, the brother from the brother, and the husband from the wife." Thereupon a proclamation was made in the streets of Mecca that the Prophet was a sihir. To this the verses that follow refer.

²⁶⁰¹ ارهُقْتُهُ صَعُودًا signifies I made him to do a difficult or troublesome thing. The reference is to the fate of Walid, three of whose sons became converts to Islam, and the rest perished, his wealth began to diminish, and ultimately he himself died in great disgrace and poverty.

²⁶⁰² Sihr here means the same as in the Prophet's saying البيان لِسِحْرِ i.e. skilful eloquence. See 148 for full explanation of the word. The Qur-ān was called an enchantment because it was enchanting in its attraction.

^{2602A} It should be noted that this is called a parable in the next verse: what does who have been given the book may be certain and those who believe may increase in faith, and those who have been given the book and the believers may not doubt, and that those in whose hearts is a disease and the unbelievers may say: What does Allah mean by this parable? Thus does Allah make err whom He pleases,* and He guides whom He pleases, and none knows the hosts of your Lord but He himself; and this is naught but a reminder to the mortals.

Allah mean by this parable? All that the Qur-án says is that over it are nineteen. The commentators think that nineteen angels, or nineteen classes, or nineteen ranks may be meant (Rz). The particular number is considered to be due to the misuse of nineteen faculties which are enumerated by the commentators (Rz).

2603 The moon, or qamar, as I have stated in 2388, represents the power of the Arabs. The night in the next verse represents the ignorance in which the Arabs were involved: this ignorance would pass away, but along with it would also pass away the power of the Meccans. The light of truth would shine forth, but not without a grave misfortune to those who refuse to go forward, and this is a warning. Those who go forward, on the other hand, will not be affected by that, the gravest of misfortunes, for the people of the right hand shall be in gardens, every soul being pledged for what it earns. The prophetic strain adopted here regarding the doom of the Meccans is continued to the end of the chapter.

2604 Every one of them would have a revelation granted to him direct from heaven. To this they gave expression repeatedly: Why does not Allah speak to us? (2 : 118).

2605 The Qur-án is called a tazkirah, which signifies, like zikr, a reminder, but at the same time carries a deeper significance, indicating glory and honour for those who shall follow it.

2605a The Qur-án has repeatedly asserted that God does not compel men to adopt one way or another; it points out the right course from the wrong and leaves it to the choice of the individual. Even here it is plainly stated: so whoever pleases may mind it (v. 55). And in 76:3 we have: Surely we have shown him the way—he may be thankful or unthankful. Similar verses abound in the Holy Qur-án. What does, then, the statement, and they will not mind unless Allah please, mean? This statement is subject to the Divine laws already explained. Allah is pleased to guide those in the right way and to make those “mind” who open their hearts to receive it. Note how clearly the verses preceding it depict the peculiar condition of those who do not even listen to the reminder: What is then the matter with them, that they turn aside from the reminder, as if they were asses taking fright that had fled from a lion? (vv. 49-51.) The pleasure of Allah is itself a law, not an arbitrary thing, so that He should turn away those from minding who are anxious to receive the truth. It is in accordance with Divine laws, so frequently referred to in the Holy Qur-án, that the Divine pleasure guides some and leaves others in error. We have here, in fact, a prophecy that Allah will be pleased to make even those mind the warning who turn aside, and the same subject is continued in the next chapter.

For a similar statement occurring in 76 : 30, see 2633a.

Abstract:

Sec. 1. The truth of the resurrection.

Sec. 2. The dead shall rise.

General remarks.

THIS chapter continues the subject dealt with at the end of the last, namely, that the Qur-ān is a reminder which will raise to eminence those who follow it. As proof of this, the day of spiritual rising, or the Resurrection, which gives its name to this chapter, and the self-accusing spirit are called to witness, which means that the eminence of the faithful will be marked by a general rising of those who are now dead spiritually and by the self-accusations of those who did not benefit by the reminder. The chapter thus speaks of the rising to life of the dead.

Its revelation belongs to the early Meccan period, and may be assigned to about the fourth year of the Prophet's call.

2606 By the resurrection is here meant the spiritual resurrection of the Arabs, as also the greater Resurrection. The primary significance of qiyāmah is only rising. Thus Raghīb says: "Al-qiyāmah originally signifies the rising of a man all at once." Al-qiyāmah is now a term which is synonymous with the great Resurrection, but it has not

Or, whole make.

وَنَسَفَ الْقَمَرُ ⑤
وَجُمِعَ الشَّمْسُ وَالْقَمَرُ lost its original significance, and means also the rising to life of those who are spiritually dead. The li in the beginning of this verse and the next carries the same significance as in فلار ربك لا يومنون in 4:65, and the verse of Imra ul Qais:

لار ابيك ابنة العامرى : لا يدعى القوم انى اضر is for تركيد القسم i.e. to give emphasis to the oath. The wāv in the latter two cases stands for uḡsimu, and hence the two forms are equivalent.

2607 There is no reason why the opponents should deny Allah's power to make a people great: can He not give life to dry bones? (to which the Prophet's case is likened from the point of view of the opponents); nay, more than this, he has the power to make man attain perfection, completing all the members of his body, even to the ends of his fingers. The word banūn primarily means only the fingers, or the ends of the fingers, but is also applicable to all members of the body (Abou-Ishāq, M-LL), and therefore might also be translated as the whole make of his body. But even if the primary significance, fingers, be adopted, the meaning will still be the same, because the superiority of man lies in his hand, and especially in the make of his fingers, without which his advancement would have been impossible. The root word band signifies he remained in the place, and the fingers are according to Msb called banūn "because by their means are ordered those circumstances whereby man continues in existence" (LL), or according to Rgh and TA, because therewith one fights and defends oneself. Both verses therefore prophesy a great future for the Holy Prophet, and the verse that follows makes this clear: But man desires to give the lie to what is before him, i.e. he is not willing to believe that such a thing can ever take place.

2608 Here follow some signs of the day of rising. برق البصر signifies the sight becomes confused, or according to Rz, he became confounded; and bariqa alone signifies much the same: he became confounded and unable to see his right course, or he became frightened (Q, TA-LL). Therefore some great calamity is implied which would confound the opponents. Some commentators take these to be the signs of the approach of the death of a person (Rz).

2609 The darkening of the moon implies the departure of the power of the Meccans (as against the Holy Prophet) or of the Semitic races in general (referring to the latter days): see 2388.

2610 The bringing together of the sun and the moon implies the disappearance of the light of both (Rz). If the reference is to the final disruption of the solar system, the meaning is clear: but besides that it seems to signify metaphorically the departure of the power of Persia, of which the sun was the special symbol, along with that of the Meccans—see 1930, where it is shown that the discomfiture of the Meccans and the Persians began and ended simultaneously. It should be noted that all these verses also refer to the general Resurrection of the dead, but their fulfilment, which was metaphorically accomplished in this very life, was intended as a sign of the truth of the promises relating 10 Man shall say on that day: Whither to fly to?

11 By no means! there shall be no place of refuge!

Ar. thy. 12 With your Lord alone shall on that day be the place of rest.²⁶¹¹

13 Man shall on that day be informed of what he sent before and (what he) put off.²⁶¹²

14 Nay! man is evidence against himself,

15 Though he puts forth his excuses.²⁶¹³

Ar thy. 16 Do not move your tongue with it to make haste with it.²⁶¹⁴

17 Surely on Us (devolves)

يَقُولُ الْإِنْسَانُ يَوْمَئِذٍ إِنْ الْمَقَرُّ

مَكَامٌ لَا أُوْتَرَكُ

إِلَى رَبِّكَ يَوْمَئِذٍ اسْتَقَرُّ

بِسَعْوَةِ الْإِنْسَانِ يَوْمَئِذٍ بَسَا

قَدَمٌ وَأَخْرَجَ

بَلِ الْإِنْسَانُ عَلَى نَفْسِهِ بَصِيرَةٌ

وَلَوْ أَنَّهُ لَمَّا عَاذَ بِنِعْمَةِ رَبِّهِ

لَا تُخَوِّرُكَ بَرِيَّتُهُ لِنُجْلِ بِهَا

إِنَّ عَيْنَنَا

to the hereafter, and this indication is made clear by what follows. Those commentators who consider these signs to be the signs of the approach of death understand the bringing together of the sun and the moon as meaning the departure of the soul (which is compared to the moon) to the hereafter (which is compared to the sun because of the removal of every obscurity and doubt in the life to come).

2611 This and the two preceding verses show that the reference is clearly to the utter discomfiture of the opponents, because it tells a powerful enemy that the day is coming when no place of refuge shall be left for them except with your Lord, i.e. under the banner of the Holy Prophet.

2612 What he sent before implies the evil deeds which he did but ought not to have done; what he put off being the good deeds which he failed to do but which he ought to have done.

2613 Man has not been made in such a manner as to be unable to distinguish between right and wrong, but he always "puts forth excuses" for leaving the right and adopting the wrong course.

2614 Verses 16-19 are thought by some to have no connection with the context. Rodwell regards them parenthetical. But, as I have shown in commenting upon the first verse of this chapter, the Qur-án is really the subject, and the mention of the day of rising is only proof that those who follow the Qur-án will be made to rise by its means and become triumphant as against their opponents. But the connection is made apparent in another way. The preceding verses speak of the distress which must befall those who do not forsake the wrong course. The Prophet naturally desired to make it clear to them, and therefore he was anxious that the warning should be given immediately in plainer words. Therefore, he is told not to make haste with it, for in the first place they could distinguish between right and wrong, and secondly, the Prophet must remain contented with what was revealed to him from time to time. Hence the statements made in the verses that follow, viz. that the recitation and collection of the whole of the Qur-án, together with its effective explanation to the opponents, were matters which Allah had decided to bring about, and the Prophet should experience no anxiety on that account; compare 20: 113, 114 with the statement made here and this exposition becomes clear: "And thus have We revealed it an Arabic Qur-án, and have distinctly set forth therein of threats that they may guard against evil, or that it may produce a reminder for them. . . . And do not make haste with the Qur-án before its revelation is made complete to you and say, O my Lord! increase me in knowledge." It should also be noted that, as opposition to the Holy Prophet became stronger, the warning became clearer.

the collecting of it and the reciting of it.²⁶¹⁵

18 Therefore when We have recited it, follow its recitation.

19 Again on Us (devolves) the explaining of it.

24 And (other) faces on that day shall be gloomy,

25 Knowing that there will be made to befall them some great calamity.²⁶¹⁷

26 Nay! When it comes up to the throat,

27 And it is said: Who will be a charmer?²⁶¹⁸

28 And he is sure that it is the (hour of) parting,

Or ascend
(with it).

جَمْعَهُ وَقُرْآنَهُ ۚ
فَإِذَا قُرْءَانَهُ فَاسْتَبِعْهُ ۖ قُرْآنَهُ ۙ
كُتِّمَتْ عَلَيْكَ بَيِّنَاتُهُ ۙ
كَلَّا بَلْ تُحِبُّونَ الْعَاجِلَةَ ۖ
وَتَذَرُونَ الْآخِرَةَ ۚ
وَسُجُودٌ يُكَسِّمُونَ فَاضِيَةً ۖ
إِلَىٰ رَيْثَ مَا ظَنَرْتُمْ ۚ
وَوُجُوهٌ يُكَسِّمُونَ بِأَسْرَةٍ ۖ
تُظَنُّ أَنْ يُفْعَلَ بِهَا فَاقِرَةٌ ۖ
كَلَّا لَإِذَا بَلَغَتِ النَّارَاقُ ۖ
وَقِيلَ مَنْ سَاحِرٌ زَائِرٌ ۖ
وَوُظِنَ أَنْتَ الْفَرَاقُ ۖ

2615 There can be no clearer evidence that the collection of the verses into chapters and of the chapters into one whole is here claimed by the Qur-ān to be a matter which, like its revelation, was to be entirely carried out under Divine guidance by the Holy Prophet himself. The Holy Book was thus from the first intended to be arranged and collected into one whole. It is curious to observe that Rodwell, who has paid little regard to the proper and orderly arrangement of the Qur-ān, is constrained to remark in a foot-note to this verse: "In either case we are led to the conclusion that from the first Muhammad had formed the plan of promulgating a written book." But the words of the Qur-ān clearly indicate much more: the collection of the Qur-ān was to be accomplished under Divine guidance, and collection includes the arrangement of the parts. In fact, it could not be called a book unless its various portions were arranged into one whole. On the other hand, if the order of revelation were to be followed in the arrangement of its parts, its collection would not have been spoken of as something distinct from its revelation, which is implied in the word recitation.

2616 As that day represents both the day of the triumph of the truth and the day of the resurrection, the words looking to their Lord have also a double significance, indicating looking to the Lord for their reward in the former case, and the highest bliss of all, the sight of the Lord in the hereafter. It should be noted that the sight of the Lord does not imply that the Lord will have a body; it is not with the material eye that the Lord will be seen, but by the spiritual eye which the righteous will possess on the day of resurrection.

2617 Note that this great calamity also befell them in this life, and thus it demonstrated the truth of the calamity in the hereafter.

2618 Man Rāq-in has two significances. It either means who will ascend with it? i.e. shall the angels of mercy ascend with it or shall the angels of punishment? (TA, RZ.) Or the meaning is, where is the charmer that would now avert the doom? because they trusted, in their soothsayers and charmers that they could avert their doom. A poet says:

لَقَدْ عَلِمْتُ وَالْإِجْلُ الْبَاقِي بِرَأْسِ مَنْ يَرِي الْقَدْرَ الرَوَاقِي "Assuredly thou knowest, by the most Majestic, the Everlasting, that the potent charmers will not avert that which is decreed." I prefer the second significance, for the calamities and afflictions spoken of no doubt refer to the punishment of the evil-doers when they are overtaken by their doom.

2619 For sāq, meaning affliction, see 1855. The meaning suits the context.

2620 The opponent is spoken of as an individual person throughout. This does not mean that allusion is made to one particular man, as some suppose. The description applies to every opponent.

2621 It is related that Abu Jahl said to the Holy Prophet that he and his Lord had not the power to do him any harm (Rz). The haughty opponent is warned that destruction is very near. Or, the meaning is, Woe to you! The commentators admit here that the repetition shows that the opponents were threatened with a double punishment, viz. in this life and in the hereafter (Rz). In fact, the double punishment is spoken of throughout the chapter, as I have shown in the notes; here it is made plainer.

2622 The verse draws attention to the seriousness of life and to man's responsibility for his actions—a doctrine denied as much to-day as it was by the Arabs.

2623 The giving of "life to the dead" not only signifies raising after death, but also spiritually raising a dead nation to life.

CHAPTER LXXVI

THE MAN

(Al-Insān or Ad-Dahr)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(2 sections and 31 verses)

SECTION 1

Attainment of Perfection

1-4 Man's creation and the pointing out of the right way. 5-16. The first stage of perfection, in which evil is suppressed. 17-22. The second stage of perfection, in which positive good is done.

Abstract:

Sec. 1. Attainment of perfection.

Sec. 2. Another generation will be raised.

General remarks.

THE last chapter having shown the truth of the resurrection which stands for the spiritual life of man, this deals with man's attainment to perfection, which is the true object of that life, and is accordingly called The Man, the word itself occurring in the opening verse of the chapter. The first section shows how man is created out of nothing, and then the way to perfection is pointed out to him. It is then shown that in the attainment of perfection there are two stages, the first stage being the perfect suppression of all evil tendencies or the stage of attaining to sinlessness, but this is not the goal to which the spiritual wayfarer should aspire. The goal lies far beyond. It is the way uphill, as it is termed elsewhere and briefly hinted here. The pilgrim must be prepared to accomplish the most difficult tasks and to perform astonishing deeds of sacrifice in the way of Allah. The two stages of perfection are called respectively the kafûr and the zanjabeel. The second section shows that if those addressed by the Holy Prophet do not accept his message and try to attain to the perfection to which he would have them attain, Allah will cause another people to take their place, for the Qur-ān, being the perfect revelation of the Almighty, must accomplish the object which it has set before itself, and that object is none other than to enable man to attain to perfection.

Or, have chosen him (above other creatures).

Or, accept or reject.

2 Surely We have created man from a small life-germ uniting (itself): We mean to try him, so We have made him hearing, seeing.

3 Surely We have shown him the way: he may be thankful or unthankful.²⁶²⁴

4 Surely We have prepared for the unbelievers chains and shackles and a burning fire.²⁶²⁵

5 Surely the righteous shall drink of a cup the admixture of which is camphor,²⁶²⁶

6 A fountain from which the servants of Allah shall drink; they make it to flow a (goodly) flowing forth.

7 They fulfil vows and fear a day the evil of which shall be spreading far and wide.

8 And they give food out of love for Him to the poor and the orphan and the captive:

9 We only feed you for Allah's sake; we desire from you neither reward nor thanks:

10 Surely we fear from our Lord a stern, distressful day.

11 Therefore Allah will guard them from the evil of that day and cause them to meet with ease and happiness;

إِنَّا خَلَقْنَا الْإِنْسَانَ مِنْ نُطْفَةٍ أَمْشَاجٍ

إِنَّ الْأَبْرَارَ يَشْرَبُونَ مِنْ كَأْسٍ كَانَ

حَيْنًا يَقْرَبُ بِهَا عِبَادُ اللَّهِ يُفَجِّرُونَهَا
تَفْجِيرًا ۝

يُفُونَ بِالنَّذْرِ وَيَخَافُونَ يَوْمًا كَانَ
شَرُّهُ مُسْتَطِيرًا ۝

وَيُطْعَمُونَ مِنْ لَدُنْهُمْ عَلَى حُجَّتِهِمْ مِنْ شَبَابٍ
وَبَيْنَمَا وَأَسْبَا ۝

إِذَا نَظَعُوا لَكُمْ يَوْجَدُ اللَّهُ لَكُمْ لَاحِظًا
مِنْكُمْ جَزَاءً وَلَا شُكُورًا ۝

إِنَّا خَافُ مِنْ رَبِّنَا يَوْمًا عَبُوسًا
شَدِيدًا ۝

فَوَقَّعَهُمُ اللَّهُ فِي ذَلِكَ الْيَوْمِ بَلْغَمًا
مِنْ أَنْفُسِهِمْ يَلْعَنُونَ ۝

As regards the date of revelation, nothing can be said beyond the fact that it belongs to the early Meccan period. Mujāhid and Qatada are, however, of opinion that it is a Medinian revelation. Some hold it to be in part Meccan and in part Medinian. But there is nothing to support these allegations.

2624 The right way is shown clearly; it is for man himself to walk in it, and thus be thankful, or away from it, and thus be unthankful. Or the meaning given in the margin may be adopted.

2625 As to how these chains represent man's own actions, see 2559.

2626 The word kāfur, used in connection with the state of the just, is derived from kafr, meaning to cover and to suppress, and refers to the total extinction of worldly love and the complete suppression of all the worldly desires of those who have drunk of the cup of love of Allah, and a truly sincere severance from all other connections. The more a man leans towards Allah, the farther off he is from carnal passions, and therefore the righteous, who trust only to Allah for support, have their hearts cooled from the fire of passion, and their sensual desires as completely suppressed as poisonous matter is dispersed by camphor.

In the spiritual advancement of man this is the first stage, because it is not until the evil tendencies of man are completely suppressed that he is able to advance to the higher stages of spiritual perfection. Sinlessness, according to the Holy Qur-ān, is not the goal of perfection, but only the first stage of the way to that goal.

12 And reward them, because they were patient, with garden and silk, 13 Reclining therein on raised couches, they shall find therein neither (the severe heat of) the sun nor intense cold.

14 And close down upon them (shall be) its shadows, and its fruits shall be made near (to them), being easy to reach.

15 And there shall be made to go round about them vessels of silver and goblets which are of glass,

16 (Transparent as) glass, made of silver; they have measured them according to a measure.²⁶²⁷

17 And they shall be made to drink therein a cup the admixture of which shall be ginger.²⁶²⁸

18 (Of) a fountain therein which is named Salsabil.

19 And round about them shall go youths never altering in age;^a when you see them you will think them to be pearls scattered broadcast.²⁶²⁹

20 And when you see there, you shall see blessings and a great kingdom.²⁶³⁰

2627 That is, every one shall receive them according to the measure of his deeds.

2628 Zanjabeel is a compound of zana'a and jabal. Of these component parts the first means he ascended, and the second mountain. The compound word zanjabeel therefore means he ascended the mountain. Now, from a severe attack of a poisonous disease to perfect restoration of health there are two stages. In the first stage the poisonous germs are completely destroyed, the violence of the attack is mitigated, and the danger which threatened life itself is over. But the weakness which is the result of the attack does not vanish with the poison. The second stage of restoration is therefore that in which the patient regains his strength. The body is again full of life and vigour, and he is not only able to walk with firm legs upon even ground, but has courage and strength to try the ascent of a steep mountain, and scale the heights cheerfully and without any fear. It is in reference to this stage that Almighty God says of the perfectly righteous that they are made to drink of a cup tempered with zanjabeel; i.e. having attained full spiritual strength, they are able to go up steep mountainous paths, accomplish most difficult tasks, and perform astonishing deeds of sacrifice in the path of Allah. It should also be borne in mind in connection with this point that zanjabeel (ginger) is the root of a plant very useful in promoting the natural heat of the body. The name given to it points to this property, for it gives strength to and generates heat in the weak body so as to enable a man to ascend precipitous heights.

2629 For the meaning of mukhalladun see 2430. Degeneration and decay stop with this life.

2630 A great kingdom was granted to the companions of the Holy Prophet in this life.

21 Upon them shall be garments of fine green silk and thick silk interwoven with gold, and they shall be adorned with bracelets of silver, and their Lord shall make them drink a pure drink.²⁶³¹

إِنَّ هَؤُلَاءِ تَذَكَّرُ فَمَنْ شَاءَ اتَّخَذَ
إِلَىٰ رَبِّهِ سَبِيلًا
وَمَا تَشَاءُونَ إِلَّا أَنْ يَشَاءَ اللَّهُ إِنَّ
اللَّهَ كَانَ حَكِيمًا ④

2631 As they led pure lives here, they shall have a pure drink in the hereafter.

2632 This shows that the blessings mentioned in the previous section would also find a manifestation in this life; the Divine judgment will bring about the fall of one party and the rise of another.

2633 The mention of the grievous day in the previous verse and the statement here that another people will take the place of these are clear prophecies for this life. Hence it is called a warning in the verse that follows.

2633a As the context clearly shows, the faithful are spoken of here; the previous verse states that whoever pleases takes to his Lord a way, and the verse that follows refers to the faithful in the words, He makes whom He pleases to enter into His mercy. The meaning

31 He makes whom He pleases to enter into His mercy; and (as for) the unjust, He has prepared for them a painful chastisement.

يَدْخُلُ مَنْ يَشَاءُ مِنْ رَحْمَتِهِ وَ
الظَّالِمِينَ أَعَدَّ لَهُمْ عَذَابًا أَلِيمًا ۝

is that true and sincere believers have so completely submitted themselves to the Divine will and are so completely resigned that they have no desires of their own, and all their desires are in accordance with Allah's pleasure. Hence they are made to enter into Divine mercy.

Taking the words as a general statement, there can still be little doubt as to their real significance. The chapter opens with the clear statement, Surely We have shown him the way: he may accept or reject; so that man has not been constrained by the Divine Being to adopt a particular course, whether for good or for evil. The end of the chapter is equally clear: Surely this is a reminder, so whoever pleases takes to his Lord a way. And notwithstanding those clear statements, we are told that you do not please except that Allah please, which is equivalent to saying that man's choice would have no effect if it did not please Allah. The first thing to be borne in mind is that the two verses, so closely following each other, cannot be set against each other. Verse 29 is clear and decisive that man is not constrained to one course: whoever pleases takes to his Lord a way. And therefore the words that follow this statement cannot be so interpreted as to negative it. And it is remarkable that almost the same words occur again in ch. 81, and there too they are preceded by similar words. Thus in 81: 27, 28, we have: It is naught but a reminder for the nations, for him among you who pleases to go straight. And these words are followed by the statement: And you do not please except that Allah please (81: 29).

This repetition makes it clear that the words whoever pleases takes to his Lord a way cannot be ignored in interpreting the statement, you do not please except that Allah please. In fact, the latter statement is qualified by the former, and this is the reason that it is preceded by it on both occasions. And we can easily see that there are two things necessary for the guidance of man: firstly, the revelation of the reminder by Allah, and secondly, the acceptance of that reminder by man. If Allah had not pleased to reveal the reminder, man's choice would have been nowhere. This is what is meant by the words you do not please except that Allah please, i.e. man's choice to adopt one way or another would have no effect unless Allah had first pleased to point out the way and reveal the reminder.

It may also be added that every benefit is ascribed to Allah in the Holy Qur-ān. Thus we are plainly told: "Whatever benefit comes to you, O man, it is from Allah, and whatever misfortune befalls you, it is from yourself" (4: 79). And Abraham's prayer is thus quoted: "And when I am sick then He restores me to health" (26: 80), where Abraham attributes sickness to his own doing, but ascribes healing to Allah. Hence, even if we take the words under discussion as meaning that man's choice to accept the reminder does not take place unless Allah is pleased, this statement would only mean that the good to which man thus attains is ascribable to Allah. See also 2605A.

Abstract:

Sec. 1. Consequences of rejection.

Sec. 2. Consequences of rejection—continued.

General remarks.

THIS chapter is, as it were, a supplement to the one that precedes it, for while it is shown therein how the righteous attain to perfection being the accepters of the message—here the fate of the rejecters is made clear. The Sent forth are the apostles, the rejection of whose message brings evil consequences, and that word, occurring in the first verse, gives its name to this chapter.

• The fourth year of the call is regarded as the probable date of the revelation of this chapter.

2634 As stated in 2099, attention is drawn in what are called oaths to certain indisputable facts which lead to a conclusion. The conclusion here is that what the opponents are threatened with, i.e. their doom (as clearly stated in v. 12, is sure to take place, and the characteristics described in the first six verses apply to prophets whose opponents their light.

Or, long

8 So when the stars are made to disappear,

9 And when the heaven is rent asunder,

10 And when the mountains are carried away as dust,²⁶³⁵

11 And when the apostles are made to reach their appointed time,

12 To what day is the doom fixed?

13 To the day of decision.

Ar thee.

14 And what will make you comprehend what the day of decision is?

15 Woe on that day to the rejecters.

16 Did We not destroy the former generations?

17 Then did We follow them up with later ones.

18 Even thus shall We deal with the guilty.

19 Woe on that day to the rejecters.²⁶³⁶

20 Did We not create you from contemptible water?

21 Then We placed it in a secure resting-place,

22 Till an appointed term,

وَإِذَا النُّجُومُ طُحِّسَتْ ①

وَإِذَا السَّمَاءُ فُرِجَتْ ②

وَإِذَا الْجِبَالُ سُيِّفَتْ ③

وَإِذَا الرُّسُلُ أُوْتِتْ ④

بِأَيِّ يَوْمٍ أُخِّلَتْ ⑤

وَمَا أَذْرَكَ مَا یَوْمُ الْقَضِی ⑦

وَبَلِّغْ یَوْمَئِذٍ لِلْمُكَذِّبِیْنَ ⑧

أَلَمْ نُهَیْلِ الْأَوَّلِیْنَ ⑨

ثُمَّ نُنْفِخُهُمْ الْأُخْرَیْنَ ⑩

كَذَلِكَ نَعْمَلُ بِالْمُجْرِمِیْنَ ⑪

وَبَلِّغْ یَوْمَئِذٍ لِلْمُكَذِّبِیْنَ ⑫

أَلَمْ تَخْلُقْهُمْ مِنْ تُمَاءٍ مِیْهِیْنَ ⑬

فَجَعَلْنَاهُ فِي قَرَارٍ مَكِیْنٍ ⑭

were similarly destroyed. This is made clear by the mention of the appointed time of the apostles in v. 11, by which, of course, is meant the appointed time of the destruction of their enemies. The opponents of the Holy Prophet are told that they should consider how the truth was spread by former prophets. In the first verse they are spoken of as being sent with ma'ruf, i.e. goodness; in the second, as "driving off the chaff" of falsehood before them; in the third, as scattering the seed of goodness far and wide or giving life to dead earth; in the fourth, as ultimately bringing about a distinction (farq or furqan) between truth and falsehood, and they give the reminder that one party may be cleared and the other warned. These considerations about the former prophets should lead the opponents to the certain conclusion that as the same Divine law was being followed in the case of the Holy Prophet, their doom was also a certain thing, as was that of those before them who opposed the prophets.

2635 The disappearance of the stars (v. 8) was a sign for the Arabs of the befalling of a calamity (2371); the rending asunder of the heaven (v. 9) indicated the same, because the heaven was considered a protection. Compare 21 : 32, And We have made the heaven a guarded canopy. And see 2593. The passing away of the mountains signified the disappearance from among them of their great men, whose protection they sought in time of distress. All these things, as the next verse shows, would be brought about when the appointed time of the apostles, i.e. the time of the destruction of their opponents, came.

2636 Note the clear words of this and the three previous verses. The former generations were destroyed because of their wickedness and others were brought up in their place; the like shall be the fate of the guilty Meccans: the day of their doom is the day of the decision.

23 So We proportion it—how well are We at propor-tioning (things).

24 Woe on that day to the rejecters.

25 Have We not made the earth to draw together to itself

26 The living and the dead,²⁶³⁷

27 And made therein lofty should offer excuses.

37 Woe on that day to the cision: We have gathered you

الْأَوَّلِينَ ۝

2637 This shows that all mortals, living or dead, must remain on earth, and that the belief of the ascent of Jesus to the fourth heaven is an error.

2638 It is most likely that by the three branches of the covering of fire are meant its three characteristics stated in the verses that follow. Here it is called zill, which ordinarily means shadow, but a covering (of fire) seems to be more suitable to the context. The three qualifications are that it gives no shade and does not avail against the flames and itself sends up sparks. ظل الشيء means that which serves for the covering or protecting of a thing (M-LL). Hence one says: فلان يعيش في ظل فلان. ف. e. such a one lives in the protection of such a one (S, O, Msb-LL). Thus the very thing which should have served them for protection proves not only devoid of comfort (giving no shade), but also does not avail against calamity—nay, it turns out to be itself a source of distress. The sparks are likened to qasr, i. e. palaces, and to tawny camels in colour, signifying that it is inordinate love of these things that will take the shape of such sparks on the day of resurrection.

2639 The opponents are even so early challenged to execute their plans against the Holy Prophet. Kaid also means fighting or struggle, and the words may as well be translated: so if you would fight, fight against me now.

Sec. 1. The day of decision.

Sec. 2. The day of decision—continued.

General remarks.

THE doom of the unbelievers being certain, they ask, When will it come? This doom is the Announcement which gives its title to, and forms the subject-matter of, this chapter. It is regarded as one of the earlier revelations in the early Meccan period.

2640 The original words are نَبَأٌ عَظِيمٌ which also occur in 38 : 67, and it is shown in 2150 that this great announcement is the prophecy of the utter discomfiture of the opponents of the Holy Prophet. Some commentators take it to signify the Holy Qur-ān, others the prophethood of Muhammad, and still others the day of resurrection (Rz). This last significance is quite in consonance with the first, while the other two are equally evident. According to Rgh, naba' is an announcement of great utility conveying knowledge or probability. This significance, too, is in accordance with any of the three explanations given above.

13 And We made a shining lamp,²⁶⁴²

14 And We send down from the clouds water pouring forth vehemently, وَالْجِبَالَ أَوْتَادًا

وَخَلَقْنَاهُ أَزْوَاجًا

وَجَعَلْنَا قُورُوقَكُمْ سُبَاتًا

وَجَعَلْنَا اللَّيْلَ لِبَاسًا

وَجَعَلْنَا النَّهَارَ مَعَاشًا

وَبَنَيْنَا فَوْقَكُمْ سَبْعًا شِدَادًا

وَجَعَلْنَا سِرَاجًا وَهَّاجًا

إِنَّ يَوْمَ الْفَصْلِ كَانَ مِيقَاتًا

يَوْمَ يُنفَخُ فِي الصُّورِ نَفَاتًا وَنُفَّاتًا

وَيُخَوِّتُ السَّمَاءَ فَرْجَاتٍ

أَوْتَاتًا

وَسُيِّرَتِ الْجِبَالُ فَكَانَتْ سَرَابًا

2641 The earth is called mihād and the mountains are called autād. Rgh explains mihād as a place made even for walking upon; and explains مهدت لك كذا as meaning I prepared it and made it even. He also says that the words here are similar to what is said in 2: 22, where the earth is spoken of as being made a firāsh, i.e. an expanse. Watid (plural autād) is a peg or a stake fixed in the ground or in a wall, and the mountains are likened to pegs on the surface of the earth. And, in fact, watid is anything projecting from the surface; thus the teeth are called the أوتاد الفم (literally pegs of the mouth), and watid also signifies the prominent part next the temple (LA-LL).

2642 The seven strong ones of the previous verse are apparently the seven major planets of the solar system, the words above you clearly showing that the earth itself belongs to the same class, and the sun, the centre of the solar system, is spoken of in the words a shining lamp.

2643 The day of decision was witnessed by the opponents in this life in the field of Badr, and thus it demonstrated the truth of a day of decision in the next life.

2644 The description contained in vv. 18-20 is an excellent prophetic description

وَكَذَلِكَ بَيِّنَاتُ الْآيَاتِ

وَكُلُّ شَيْءٍ أَحْصَيْنَاهُ كِتَابًا

applying to the meeting of the armies (v. 18) on the day of Badr, to the rain poured forth (v. 19), and to the chiefs of the Quraish killed (v. 20). That these things will take place at the greater resurrection goes without saying. The opening of heaven signifies metaphorically the descent of the threatened punishment.

2645 Huqub, of which ahqab is a plural, denotes eighty years, or seventy years, or a year or years, or a long time (see LL, which quotes various authorities for each of those meanings). Whatever significance may be adopted, the use of the word leaves no doubt that the punishment of hell shall not continue for an unlimited time. The use of a word which signifies a limited period in the case of the punishment of hell, while such words are never used regarding the bliss of heavenly life, is a clear indication that the latter shall never come to an end, while the former shall. To escape the difficulty of the punishment of hell being for a limited period, some commentators say the verse is abrogated, others think that it applies not to unbelievers, but only to the sinful among the Muslims (an opinion quite untenable in face of what is said in vv. 27, 28); and again, that the limited period is only that during which they shall not be made to taste of cool or drink. But all these explanations are unnecessary and unsatisfactory, the limited duration of the punishment of hell being quite in accordance with the entire spirit of the Holy Qur-ān and with its description elsewhere; see 1201.

2646 The description of the punishment of hell as corresponding requital throws a flood of light on the Islamic doctrine of hell. It may have been noted that various names are given to hell itself, and various sorts of punishment are spoken of. It is, in fact, the different nature of the sin that produces a difference in the nature of the punishment, which, being really the consequence of the sin, corresponds to the sin. For instance, the punishment spoken of here is for those who are called the inordinate or those exceeding the limits in disobedience (LL). The punishment of their exceeding the limits is correspondingly either too hot or too cold drink or air, i.e. excess of heat and excess of cold.

It may be added that the word ghassaq signifies the cold thing which is so cold that it is unbearable (Rz). It is interpreted in other ways too, but the significance adopted is the one that best suits the context.

2647 As they in their inordinacy added evil to evil, they shall have correspondingly punishment added to punishment. It is not stated here that this shall go on for ever, for elsewhere it is said: "And he who brings an evil deed shall not be recompensed but with the like of it, and they shall not be dealt with unjustly" (6: 161). Thus the addition in punishment will last only till the evil deeds of the doer are exhausted.

39 That is the sure day, so whoever desires may take refuge with his Lord.

40 Surely We have warned you of a chastisement near at hand:²⁶⁵² the day when man shall see what his two hands have sent before, and the unbeliever shall say: O! would that I were dust!

يَنْظُرُ الْمَرْءُ مَا قَدْ مَتَّ يَدُهُ وَيَقُولُ

الْكُفْرُ يَلِكُنِي كُنْتُ تَرَابًا

2648 Note that the reward of good is achievement, as repeatedly described in the Holy Qur-ān; it is an achievement of the object of this life as also of the great goal of the next life. It is this achievement which becomes a garden for a man.

2649 The word Ka'aba literally signifies, when applied to a girl's breast, its swelling when she grows youthful, and a girl is said to be Ka'ib (plural Kawā'ib) when she grows youthful, or nears maturity, and her breasts begin to swell (LL). But it should be noted that neither the word kawā'ib nor atrab is preceded or followed by the word jariyah (i.e. girl), and hence as a qualifying word kawā'ib only means showing freshness of youth. I have already stated, in 2356, why some of the blessings of paradise are described in words usually applicable to women, but as these are only fruits of the righteous deeds, we are not justified in saying what these blessings actually are. The description given here probably indicates that the fruits of deeds will appear in their full freshness.

2650 Dihāq means either pure, for which we have 'Ikrama's authority, or it means full, which is the interpretation adopted by I'Ab (Rz).

2651 Note as the punishment of evil is called a corresponding requital, so the reward of the good is called a gift according to a reckoning, i.e. in accordance with the good done.

2652 The punishment of which the unbelievers are warned throughout this chapter is a punishment near at hand, which term, like the nearer punishment of 32:21, indicates the punishment of this life.

Abstract:

Sec. 1. The great commotion.

Sec. 2. The great calamity.

General remarks.

THIS chapter receives its title from the description of the believers as drawing forth to the full, the reference being to the later wars and the drawing of bows, thus indicating that the fall of the unbelievers, their doom, with which the last chapter deals, was to be brought about in wars. The fate of Pharaoh, who was drowned while pursuing the Israelites, is referred to, while the second section, after recounting Divine benefits, speaks of the certainty of the punishment, here as well as hereafter.

About its date of revelation it can be said with certainty that it belongs to the early Meccan period.

2653 We shall first consider the plain meaning of those five verses. Nāsi'āt is the plural of Nāsi', which is derived from nasa'a, signifying he drew, and نزع في القوس means he drew the bow (Q-LI). Gharqan bears the significance to the full, also in connection with the bow, for you say غرق في القوس meaning he drew the bow to the full (LL).

"According to Ish ighraq signifies the sending the arrow far by vehement drawing (of the bow); according to Useyd-al Ghanawee, the drawing of the bow so that it brings the sinews that are wound upon the socket of the arrow, so far as the iron head, to the part that is grasped by the hand" (LL). Nashaṭa signifies he was brisk, or he went forth (TA-LL). Sab-ḥ signifies the running of a horse, in which the forelegs are stretched forth well (like as are the arms of a man in swimming) (TA-LL), and the act of being quick or swift (Mf-LL). The remaining words need no explanation. The commencement of the early Meccan suras very often refers prophetically to later Medina events, the occurrence of which served as a proof of the truth of the statements made. Those that draw forth to the full are the archers, those that go forth briskly are the arrows, those that run swiftly and go ahead are the horses, and those that regulate the affair are either the angels or the leaders who have control, the affair undoubtedly being the victory of the Muslims and the destruction of the enemy, as the subsequent verses show. This explanation agrees generally with that of Abu Muslim, as quoted by Rz, and is the one that best agrees with the context and the similar commencement of other chapters.

2654 Rajafa signifies it was in a state of commotion, agitation, or convulsion (Q-LL), but رجفت القوم means the people or party prepared themselves for war (Lth, O, Q-LL).

As rajiḥ is not followed by any qualifying words, it may as well signify the party preparing for war as the quaking earth. Though the first meaning suits the context and the mention of the archers and the horses in the previous verses, I leave it for the margin, for even the significance adopted leads to the conclusion that wars are prophetically spoken of here, for the quaking of the land or its being in a state of commotion would signify the commotion or disturbance among the inhabitants. A general war brings about a greater commotion in the land than an earthquake. See 38: 11, where, a great battle being forced upon the Muslims, they are spoken of as being shaken with a severe shaking.

2655 What must happen afterwards in the translation stands for the single word ar-rādifah in the original, as this is the literal significance of the nominative from radifu, meaning he or it followed or came after it or him (LL). In fact, rādifah would mean the consequence of an affair, a significance given under the word ridf by the lexicologists (S, O, Q-LL). The thing that must happen afterwards is the departure of the power of the Meccan opponents, or the destruction of the enemy, and this appears to be the true aim of the prophecies contained in these verses, as the mention of the palpitating hearts and cast-down eyes in the next two verses shows.

2656 It is the opponents who are referred to in they say. It is not meant that they shall say it when all the events spoken of in the previous verses have come to pass, but that they say this now, being deniers of the resurrection.

14 When lo! they shall be wakeful.

Ar. thee 15 Has not there come to you the story of Moses?

16 When his Lord called upon him in the holy valley, twice,*

1570. 17 Go to Pharaoh, surely he has become inordinate.

Ar. thou fear.
Ar. thou shouldst.

20 So he showed him the mighty sign.

21 But he rejected (the truth) and disobeyed.

22 Then he went back hastily.

23 Then he gathered (men) and called out.

24 Then he said: I am your Lord, the most High.

25 So Allah seized him with the punishment of the hereafter and the former life.²⁶⁵⁷

26 Most surely there is in this a lesson to him who fears.

SECTION 2

The Great Calamity

27-33. Divine benefits on man. 34-41. The befalling of calamity.
42-46. The hour of doom.

27 Are you the stronger in creation or the heaven? He made it.

28 He raised high its height,²⁶⁵⁸ then put it into a right good state.

29 And He made dark its night and brought out its light.

ءَأَنْتُمْ أَشَدُّ خَلْقًا أَمِ السَّمَاءُ
بَنَاهَا
رَفَعَهَا سَنَوَاهَا
وَإِعْطَسَ لَيْلَهَا وَآخِرُهَا ضُجُهَا

2657 The Holy Qur-ān always makes itself clear by quoting instances of the fate of the previous peoples. The nature of the punishment in store for the Meccans is made clear by citing the example of Pharaoh, the opponent of Moses, whose resemblance to the Holy Prophet is stated in 73:15, and elsewhere. And how distinctly is it stated that Pharaoh's punishment was the punishment of the hereafter as well as the former life. Even such was to be the punishment of the Meccan opponents, hence there was a sure lesson for them in Pharaoh's fate as stated in the next verse.

2658 Samk means the extent of a thing from the bottom to the top of it, as opposed to 'umq, which signifies the extent of a thing from the top to the bottom of it (Rz). Hence samk signifies height and 'umq depth. The raising high of the height is, says Rz, an allusion to its extremely great height.

30 And the earth, He expanded it after that.²⁶⁵⁹

31 He brought forth from it its water and its pasturage.

32 And the mountains, He made them firm,

33 A provision for you and for your cattle.

34 But when the great predominating calamity²⁶⁶⁰ comes;

35 The day on which man shall recollect what he strove after,

36 And the hell shall be made manifest to him who sees.

37 Then as for him who is inordinate,

38 And prefers the life of this world,

39 Then surely the hell, that is the abode.

40 And as for him who fears to stand in the presence of his Lord and forbids the soul from low desires,²⁶⁶¹

41 Then surely the garden—that is the abode.

42 They ask you about the hour, whither is its destination?

43 About what? You are one to remind of it.

44 To your Lord is the goal of it.

45 You are only a warner to him who would fear it.

46 On the day that they see it, it will be as though they had not tarried but the latter part of a day or the early part of it.

2659 This is a clear statement that the earth was made after the heaven. No statement elsewhere should be so interpreted as to contradict this clear statement.

2660 Ṭammah signifies a calamity that predominates over others (Q, Har LL) or a great or formidable thing (TA-LL). By the at-ṭammah is generally understood only the Resurrection, but it would be equally applicable to any great calamity such as overtakes a whole nation, for instance. And, as I have shown, such words when used in the Holy Qur-ān convey a double meaning, signifying the calamity that was to happen in this life as well as the greater calamity in the hereafter. The words of v. 36, in fact, show that the reference is more to the calamity of this life, for there it is said that hell shall on that day be made manifest to him who sees, not to all, so that it will be only a partial manifestation such as often occurs in this life. The hell of the next life is spoken of in v. 39.

2661 Refraining from going after low desires is the chief source from which grows a paradise.

CHAPTER LXXX

HE FROWNED

('Abasa)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(42 verses)

SECTION 1

1-10. Prophet's frowning at the blind man. 11-16. Those who accepted the truth shall be made eminent. 17-32. Divine blessings on man. 33-42. The deafening cry.

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 He frowned and turned
(his) back,

2 Because there came to him
the blind man.²⁶⁶²

Ar. thes.

3 And what would make you know that he would purify himself,

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ
عَبَسَ وَتَوَلَّى
أَنْ جَاءَهُ الْأَعْمَى
وَمَا يَذُرُّكَ لَعْنَةُ
يَزْزَى

General remarks.

OPENING with a touching incident as to how a blind man interfered with the Holy Prophet's conversation with some of the chiefs of the Quraish, and how he frowned at this interference, this chapter, to which the incident gives its title, really states that those poor and humble followers who had accepted the truth would be raised to eminence, and therefore the Prophet should not be anxious if eminent men did not listen to his message, for while these humble Muslims would be raised to high positions, the eminent men who rejected the message would be abased. The chapter thus speaks of the greatness to which the Qur-án would raise its followers, and of its conquests in the far future. It is admittedly one of the very early revelations, and as such its announcements relating to the future deserve to be especially noted.

2662 The very words of these verses show that they relate an incident which had actually taken place. And the story of the blind man finds a place in the most trustworthy accounts, so that there is not the least reason to doubt it. The blind man was Ibn-i-Umm-i-Maktum (Abdulla son of Shuraib), who came to the Holy Prophet while he was explaining the doctrines of Islam to an assembly made up of the leaders of the Quraish, hoping that the conversion of eminent men would end the troubles of Islam. The blind man, interrupting, asked to be taught what Allah had revealed to the Holy Prophet. The Holy Prophet took this untimely interruption ill—he frowned and turned his back; on which he received this revelation.

4 Or become reminded so that the reminder should profit him?

5 As for him who considers himself free from need (of you),

Ar. doest thou. 6 To him do you address yourself.

Ar. thee. 7 And no blame is on you if he would not purify himself.²⁶⁶³

Ar. thee. 8 And as to him who comes to you striving hard,

9 And he fears,

Ar. will thou. 10 From him will you divert yourself.

Ar. thyself. 11 Nay! surely it is (a source of) eminence.

12 So let him who pleases mind it.

13 In honoured books,

14 Exalted, purified,

15 In the hands of scribes,

أَوَيْدَ كَرَّمْتَنفَعَهُ الدَّكْرَى
أَنَا مِنْ اسْتَعْنَى
فَأَنْتَ لَكَ تَصَدَّى
وَمَا عَلَيْكَ أَلَّا يَزَّيِّنَ
وَأَمَّا مَنْ جَاءَكَ
يَهْتَمُّ
وَهُوَ يَخْتَمُّ
فَأَنْتَ عَنْهُ تَلَهَّى
كَلَّا لَإِنْهَا نَذْرٌ كَرِيهُ
فَمَنْ شَاءَ ذَكَرَهُ
فِي صُحُفٍ مُكَرَّمَةٍ
قَرُوءَةٍ مَوْطَأَةٍ
بِأَيْدِي سَفَرَةٍ

This incident shows that the source of the Holy Prophet's revelation was other than his own heart, for in the first place there was no ill-treatment for which the Holy Prophet should have repented, as Rodwell supposes him to have done. In fact, the Prophet's inattention to an intruder while he had not yet finished his conversation was quite natural; he did not chide the intruder for his interruption, but only disliked it and gave him no answer, as the words of the Qur-án plainly show. Secondly, even if he may be supposed to have repented for not having given an answer to the blind man, it would have been sufficient to have recalled him and treated him more gently. At any rate, if it were left to the option of an individual, he himself would be the last person to give permanence to a reproof for his own act. However much a man may disapprove of what he has himself done, he will never consent to such disapproval being made an incident that should be repeated day and night by his own followers. Hence the source from which the Holy Prophet received his revelation was outside his own heart or his own inclinations. It is quite sufficient to show the magnanimity of the Prophet's heart that he never thought of suppressing a passage like this, but gave it the same wide publicity as he gave the passages containing his praise.

It may be noted that the chief trait of the Holy Prophet's character was his great regard for the poor. There are numerous incidents on record showing how he would do an old woman's work for her, and how he, even when the head of a State at Medina, would carry the load for one too weak to bear it; but no better description of this trait can be given than that contained in those words of comfort addressed by Khadija, the most intimate companion of his youth: "Never, never will Allah bring you to disgrace, for you are true to ties of relationship, and you honour your guest and you earn for the indigent and you help all in their real distresses" (Bkh). He not only loved the poor from his youth to his old age, from the time that he was an ordinary citizen to the time that he became the ruler of the whole of Arabia, but he himself chose to be classed among the poor in his life as well as in his death. Even when the wealth of Arabia lay at his feet, and his wives claimed a share in that wealth, he showed his readiness to sacrifice every comfort, but not the honour of remaining a poor man.

2663 If the Quraish leaders would not come out of the impurities of sin, the Prophet was not to blame for it, so that on their account he should even neglect the poor who came to him earnestly desirous to be delivered from the bondage of sin.

16 Noble, virtuous.²⁶⁶⁴

17 Cursed be man! how ungrateful is he!

18 Of what thing did He create him?

19 Of a small life-germ; He created him, then He empowered him,²⁶⁶⁵

Or, made him according to a measure.

20 Then (as for) the way—He has made it easy (for him),

21 Then He causes him to die, then assigns to him a grave,

22 Then, when He pleases, He will raise him to life again.

23 Nay! but he has not done what He bade him.

24 Then let man look to his food,

25 That We pour down the water, pouring (it) down in abundance,

26 Then We cleave the earth, cleaving (it) asunder,

27 Then We cause to grow therein the grain,

28 And grapes and clover,

29 And the olive and the palm,

30 And thick gardens,

31 And fruits and herbage,

كَرَامَةً ۖ
قُلِ الْإِنْسَانُ مَا كَفَرًا ۚ
مِنْ آيِ شَيْءٍ خَلَقَهُ ۚ
مِنْ نُّطْفَةٍ مُّخَلَّقَةٍ فَقَدَرَهُ ۚ
ثُمَّ السَّبِيلَ يَسْرَهُ ۚ
ثُمَّ أَمَانَةً فَأَكْبَرَهُ ۚ
ثُمَّ إِذَا أَشَاءَ أَنشَرَهُ ۚ
كَلَّا لَمَّا يُفْقِضْ مَا أَمَرَهُ ۚ
فَلْيَنْظُرِ الْإِنْسَانُ إِلَى طَعَامِهِ ۚ
أَكَا صَبَبْنَا الْمَاءَ صَبًّا ۚ
ثُمَّ شَقَقْنَا الْأَرْضَ شَقًّا ۚ
فَأَنْبَتْنَا فِيهَا حَبًّا ۚ
وَعَسَا وَفُصْبًا ۚ
وَرَزَقْنَاهُ وَاخْلَافًا ۚ
وَحَدَّيْنِ عُلْبًا ۚ
فَاكْهَمَهُ وَآثَارًا ۚ

2664 The six verses from 11 to 16 are really a comfort to the Holy Prophet for the hint contained in the first ten, that the leaders would not mind his warning or accept his message, and that therefore he must apply himself to the poor, who would be raised to eminence by the Qur-án. These verses tell him that the Qur-án is a tagkirah, which is generally translated a reminder; but see 855, where it is shown that the word zikr, with which tagkirah is really synonymous, signifies a source of eminence. In fact, the context here makes this meaning clear, for vv. 15 and 16 clearly state that its scribes shall be virtuous men, who shall be honoured in the world. Not only was this true of men like Abu Bakr, 'Umar, 'Usman, and 'Ali, who were among the first scribes of the Holy Qur-án, but even in its later history great rulers of empires earned their livelihood by writing copies of the Holy Qur-án. Hence the prophecy was given as a comfort to the Holy Prophet that he should not be grieved because the rich and the leaders did not accept him, for the poor who accepted him would be raised to eminence through the Holy Qur-án.

2665 Qaddara-hu sometimes carries the same significance as aqdara-hu, viz. he empowered him, enabled him, rendered him able (Msb, Q, LL), and the meaning here seems to be that Allah has not only created man, but has also given him power and ability, so that he can make progress if he likes. Or, the meaning may be as given in the margin, in which case the significance would be that He has allotted to man a certain sphere, as He has done to everything else, in which he can make progress. It does not mean that Allah has decreed that such and such a man should do such and such good and such and such evil deeds.

32 A provision for you and for your cattle.

33 But when the deafening
cry comes,²⁶⁶⁶

34 The day on which a man shall fly from his brother,

35 And his mother and his father,

36 And his spouse and his sons—

37 Every man of them shall

38 (Many) faces on that day shall be bright,

39 Laughing, joyous.

40 And (many) faces on that day, on them shall be dust,

41 Darkness shall cover them.²⁶⁶⁷

42 These are they who are unbelievers, the wicked.

2666 Sākhkhah is derived from صَحَّ الْأَذُنُ meaning it (a sound) deafened the ear by its vehemence, and hence it literally signifies a cry that deafens by its vehemence (S, Q-IL). Hence it is made to apply to the day of resurrection; but it also means any calamity or misfortune (Q-LL), or a severe calamity (TA-LL).

2667 The brightness of the faces spoken of here indicates their joy; their being covered by the darkness indicates sorrow or gloom.

CHAPTER LXXXI THE FOLDING UP

(At-Takwīr)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(29 verses)

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ
إِذَا الشَّمْسُ كُوِّرَتْ
وَإِذَا النُّجُومُ انْكَدَرَتْ

1 When the sun is covered,²⁶⁶⁸

2 And when the stars darken,²⁶⁶⁹

General remarks.

THIS chapter, whose title is taken from the statement made in the first verse relating to the folding up of the sun (for the significance of which see 2668), also speaks prophetically of the greatness to which Islam would rise, and of the utter failure of all opposition to it. It speaks of many things which took place in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, but at the same time it contains many references to the distant future, and refers to things which are clearly being witnessed in our own time. The consequence of all that is stated is that the final triumph of Islam in Arabia, and through Arabia over the whole world, is the greatest of all certainties. The chapter is one of the earliest revelations of the Holy Prophet. There being no doubt regarding its early revelation, the concluding statement that the Qur-ān was a reminder for the whole world, i.e. for all nations and all ages, deserves to be specially noted.

2668 The first thirteen verses contain twelve signs of what is generally supposed to be the resurrection, but which I think to be prophetic references, in metaphorical language, pointing to the final subjugation of the powerful opponents of the Holy Prophet (including his contemporaries who opposed him personally and those more distant ones who are inimical to the cause of the truth he taught), the result being stated in the words, it is the word of an honoured Apostle, possessor of strength, one to be obeyed; and from v. 19 onwards the significance is that the happening of all these things would establish that the Holy Prophet is an honoured Apostle, who is not weak as the opponents think, but the possessor of strength, and that he is one who shall be obeyed. The covering of the sun is an indication that the day of the good fortune of the opponents of Islam would be over, and that they would be in the darkness of difficulties and distress.

2669 The darkening of the stars indicates complete darkness, for when the sun is set the light of the stars helps men. But here we are told that not only would the light of their day disappear, but even the small lights, to which the traveller looks on in the darkness of the night, would become so dark that not the faintest ray of light would be left for them.

3 And when the mountains are made to pass away,²⁶⁷⁰

4 And when the camels are

5 And when the wild animals are made to go forth,²⁶⁷²

Or, seas.

وَإِذَا الْجِبَالُ سُيِّرَتْ ۝

وَإِذَا الْبُحُورُ سُفِّجَتْ ۝

وَإِذَا الْبُحَارُ يُسْفَرَّتْ ۝

2670 The passing away of the mountains signifies the passing away of the great men, the leaders of the opponents; see 1604.

2671 This draws attention to the horrors of war, the meaning being that when there is a state of general warfare the camels are left without a herd to tend them. Thus عطلت الابل means I left the camels without a herd to tend them (Msb-LL). Or because the 'Ishār or she-camels (that have been ten months pregnant) are most precious to their owners, their being left indicates the terrors of the disaster, or because the horses, and not the camels, are needed in wars. But it may be added that similar words occur in a saying of the Holy Prophet as one of the signs of the latter days, when Islam would be once more trampled under feet, and when the Messiah would be raised among the Muslims to establish the superiority of Islam over all other religions of the world. The words of this saying are ليتركن القلاص فلا يسعى عليها i.e. the camels shall certainly be neglected so that they shall not be used for going swiftly (from place to place). The reference in this saying seems clearly to be to the time when a swifter mode of journeying will come into existence. The railway systems of the world, and more especially the extension of that system into Arabia itself, clearly fulfils this prophecy. It would thus appear that the prophecies announced here relate to the time of the Holy Prophet as well as to future ages. It may, however, be noted that the neglecting of the camels cannot happen on the day of the resurrection.

2672 Ihshara-hū signifies he made him to go forth (LL). The going forth of the wild animals is also in reference to battles, because when men assemble for war in the deserts the wild animals take flight.

2673 I make a departure here from the ordinary translations, leaving the usual significance adopted by interpreters for the margin, but which I may explain first. Taking the ordinary significance of the words, it may be noted that the words used are almost the same as in 52: 6, where البحر المسجور or the swollen sea, is mentioned, as indicating the frustration of the power of the opponents or the Holy Prophet by calling attention to the fate of the opponents of Moses, who were drowned in the swollen sea.

Apart from that, the word bahr stands for destruction in Arab proverbs, the reason being that unforeseen destruction is more frequently associated with the sea than with the land, for in the former case there is no help near at hand, and because there was very little hope of the safe return of those who travelled by the sea in early days, for whom a swollen sea meant almost a sure destruction. Thus we have the Arab saying, يا هادي الليل جرت

يا هادي الليل جرت which TA explains thus: O guide of the night, thou hast deviated from the right way, it is only destruction, or thou wilt see the daybreak (LL). Exactly in the same way may be explained the phrase إذا البحار فجرت occurring in 82: 3, the word fujjirat carrying the same significance as the word suffjirat here. Ka'b's interpretation that by al-bihār, or the seas, is here meant hell (LL) supports the view advanced here, that by the swelling of the seas, if that interpretation is adopted, is meant the destruction of the enemy. Another interpretation (see the significance of fujjirat in what follows) would be, when the seas are set on fire, the allusion in this case being to some such general conflagration as should set the very seas on fire. Such a conflagration took place

7 And when men are united,²⁶⁷⁴

8 And when the one buried alive is asked

9 For what sin she was killed,²⁶⁷⁵

10 And when the books are spread,²⁶⁷⁶

11 And when the heaven has its covering removed,²⁶⁷⁷

وَإِذَا النُّفُوسُ زُوِّجَتْ ۝

وَإِذَا الْمَوْدَّةُ سُيِّلَتْ ۝

وَإِذَا السَّمَاءُ كُشِطَتْ ۝

in Arabia in the lifetime of the Holy Prophet, and at the present time the world has been caught in such another conflagration in the great European war which has actually set the seas on fire.

As for the translation I have adopted, it is based on an equally literal interpretation of the words. The word biḥār is the plural of baḥr as well as of baḥrah (TA-LL), and baḥrah is synonymous with baldah or arḍ (S, Q, TA, IAs), and it signifies a town or a village, "and the plural biḥār they apply to cities as well as towns or villages" (TA-LL). See also IAs, who says والعرب تسمى المدن والقرى البحار i.e. the Arabs call the cities and the towns al-biḥār. The words baḥrah (singular of biḥār) and buḥairah (diminutive of baḥrah) are also applied in a saying of the Holy Prophet to Medina. This would leave no doubt that cities is as literal a significance of the word biḥār as seas. As regards sujjirat, its interpretation as set on fire (LL) is accepted by all commentators, the fire representing the wars in which the Arab cities were soon to be engaged as a consequence of their strong opposition to the truth. For fire representing war see 5: 64. The alternative meaning of sujjirat is mixed together (LL), and the reference in this case, too, is to the mixing together in wars, as is also indicated by the uniting of men in the verse that follows. Whatever interpretation may be adopted, the significance is either the destruction of the powerful enemy or the occurrence of wars.

2674 The meaning is, when each sect or party shall be united with those whom it has followed (TA-LL) in preparing for the war.

2675 The reference here is to the burying alive of the daughters, a practice common among the pre-Islamic Arabs, who, either for fear of hunger or disgrace, buried alive their female children. The questioning refers to the time when, with the predominance of Islam in Arabia, this barbarous practice was to be abolished.

2676 Suḥuf is the plural of ṣaḥifah, which means a written piece of paper or of skin. The reference seems to be to the circulation of written copies of the Holy Qur-ān or its portions, as it is these that are called honoured books in 80: 13. To bring it about it was necessary that the forces of opposition should first be made to vanish. This may also be a prophetic reference to the distant future, which has witnessed the circulation of books and papers to an almost incredible extent. The Muslim world did immense service to the cause of the circulation of literature in the days of its prosperity, and it is recognized on all hands that the revival of learning in Europe, which has brought about the great circulation of books and papers, was itself a direct result of the impetus which Islam gave to the study of letters. Thus there seems to be a double reference in these prophetic utterances: a reference to the time of the Holy Prophet and a reference to what are called the latter days in prophetic language. And the wonderful fulfilment of these prophecies in our own days is an indisputable proof of the Divine origin of the Holy Qur-ān, for none but the Omniscient God could reveal such deep secrets of the future with such clearness at such a distance of time.

2677 For an explanation of this and similar phrases see 2593. The removal of the covering of the heaven signifies the uncovering of the punishment, for the heaven, as it were, stands for protection against disasters, or because great calamities are spoken of as coming down from heaven. The same significance attaches to such forms as إذا السماء انفطرت i.e. when the heaven is cleft asunder (82: 1) and إذا السماء انشقت i.e. when the heaven (or cloud) is burst asunder (84: 1). Compare 21: 32 and 104, and see 1665.

21 One (to be) obeyed, and faithful in trust.²⁶⁸³

2678 The kindling up of the hell signifies its being made ready to receive those opponents of the truth who will be punished in this life. Or it signifies the raging of war, which should destroy the enemies of truth.

2679 The bringing nigh of the garden signifies fulfilment, in part, of the prophecies relating to the reward of the faithful, for they were promised gardens in this life as well as in the next. Their triumph over the unbelievers was thus an indication of the nearness of the gardens promised to them.

2680 The Holy Prophet's words addressed to the slain from among the unbelievers at Badr explain this as regards this life: "Surely we have found what our Lord promised to us to be true: Have you also found what your Lord promised to you to be true?"

2681 Al-khunnas is the plural of khānis (from khanasa, meaning he went back), meaning going backward, and signifies the stars in general, because they retire or hide themselves at setting, or because they become concealed in the day-time (S-I.L), or the planets (Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Venus, and Mercury), because of their retrogression (S, Q-LL). Al-kunnas is the plural of kānis (from kanasa, meaning he, an antelope, entered his kinās, i.e. his hiding-place), meaning an antelope entering his hiding-place (S-LL), and signifies the stars that hide themselves in their places of setting (TA-LL), or the planets, for a similar reason (TA-LL). The calling to witness of the stars that run their course and hide themselves also draws attention to the disasters that awaited the opponents of the truth, for which significance see 2371.

2682 The departing of the night and the rise of the bright morning is clearly the disappearance of the darkness of ignorance, giving place to the bright light of the sun of Islam.

2683 The commentators generally suppose the angel Gabriel to be referred to in vv. 19-21, because they think that the reference in v. 23 is to the angel Gabriel. But the only conclusion to which the words of the Qur-ān lead is that the reference is to the Holy Prophet himself, who is clearly spoken of as your companion. He had earned the reputation of being al-amin, i.e. the faithful one, in Arabia. His being a muṭa' or one to be obeyed, is also spoken of elsewhere in the Holy Qur-án in 4 : 64, " And we did not send any apostle but that he should be obeyed by Allah's permission." His being possessor of strength and honourable prophetically refers to his future career and to his ultimate triumph over his enemies.

لِمَنْ شَاءَ مِنْكُمْ أَنْ يَسْقِيَهُ ۚ

2684 The Prophet's seeing himself on the clear horizon is in reference to the resplendence of his light, for which compare 53 : 7, and see 2376.

2685 The Prophet (not Gabriel) is here declared to be not a tenacious concealer of the unseen, showing that there are some great prophecies relating to the future in what has gone before. And in fact, as I have shown, the chapter opens with prophecies of the disasters in store for the opponents, while the latter part speaks clearly of the great and triumphant future of the Holy Prophet.

2686 It is not the word of the devil, i.e. these are not the conjectures of a soothsayer : the prophecies of the Qur-án shall be duly fulfilled. Sale's comment is worthy of note : " The verse is an answer to a calumny of the infidels, who said the Qur-án was only a piece of divination or magic ; for the Arabs suppose the soothsayer or magician receives his intelligence from those evil spirits who are continually listening to learn what they can from the inhabitants of heaven." It should be borne in mind that where the Qur-án speaks of the listening by stealth of the devils, it is in reference to this old Arab belief. It nowhere refers to this belief in words which would show that it upholds this old Arab belief ; on the other hand, there are ample indications that it rejects this belief.

2687 When the prophecies are brought to fulfilment, no refuge shall be left for you.

2688 How beautifully clear are the words of the Qur-án ! It is a source of eminence for all the nations of the world, yet, not unless people will follow its directions ; hence it adds the words, For him among you who pleases to go straight.

وَإِذَا الْبِحَارُ فُجِّرَتْ

وَإِذَا الْقُبُورُ بُعْثِرَتْ

General remarks.

THIS chapter, which receives its title from a statement made in its opening verses as to heaven being cleft asunder, is, as it were, a counterpart of the one preceding it; for while that chapter, after mentioning certain signs, draws the conclusion of the final triumph of Islam, this refers to that triumph in its opening verses, and as a result of that triumph speaks also of the utter helplessness in which the opponents would find themselves. Its date of revelation does not differ much from that of the preceding chapter.

2689 The first four verses here tell us how a great spiritual rising would be brought about. The cleaving asunder of the heaven stands for the descent of the punishment on the opponents (see 2593), or if samā is taken here as meaning cloud, as noted in the margin, the meaning may be when the cloud bursts asunder and pours forth water on the dead earth; the reference in this case being to the revelation, which is likened to rain. The dispersing of the stars either signifies their disappearance, in which case the reference is to the disasters that should overtake the opponents (see 2371), or it is in reference to the spreading forth of the teachers of Islam, who are likened to stars. The indication is that a time would come when the teachers of truth would disperse themselves in Arabia, and then throughout the whole of the world. The flowing forth of the rivers is in accordance with what is stated elsewhere in the Holy Qur-ān in a parable in 13 : 17 : "He sends down water from the clouds, then watercourses flow with water according to their measure. . . . Thus does Allah set forth parables." The rivers flowing forth were the righteous followers of the Prophet, who, being filled with Divine knowledge, made it reach the dry lands within and without Arabia. (But see also 2673.) The laying open of the graves signifies the spiritual resurrection which was to be brought about by the Holy Prophet, for the reprobates are clearly spoken of as being in the graves (35 : 22). Thus all these four verses speak of the great change that was to be brought about in Arabia by the preaching of the Prophet, while it need not be denied that there may be a deeper reference to the great Resurrection of the dead.

وَمَا أَدْرَاكَ مَا يَوْمُ الدِّينِ
ثُمَّ مَا أَدْرَاكَ مَا يَوْمُ الدِّينِ

يَوْمَ لَا تَمْلِكُ نَفْسٌ لِّنَفْسٍ شَيْئًا
وَالْأَفْرُ يُؤْمِرُ بِهِ إِلَهُ

2690 This verse supports what is said in the previous note. Qaffal holds that the knowledge spoken of here will accrue before the day of resurrection (Rz). A greater manifestation of the same will, however, take place in the life after death.

2691 That every action of man is recorded and bears fruit is one of the principal doctrines of the religion of Islam. Of course, it is not meant that angels are sitting with pens in their hands and inkstands before them, on desks, like copyists, noting down that at such and such a time such a one did such a good or such a bad deed. That would be a distortion of the teaching of the Qur-án. The terminology of writing down, books, and recorders is only meant to show that every deed is preserved so that it has a certain effect, for the best method known to man of preserving what has happened is writing. In what manner it is preserved, who the angels are that are charged with the duty of preserving it, in what form the books will appear as evidence against the guilty, are circumstances which are beyond the compass of the present state of our knowledge. But that all our actions are preserved, the effect of which we must fully witness, is a truth which cannot be denied. If the gramophone can record our very words as we utter them, in a manner previously unknown, why should it be regarded as strange that the recording of our actions is being done in some manner which we are unable to guess at present?

أَلَا يَبْظَنُّ أُولَئِكَ أَنَّهُمْ مَبْعُوثُونَ
لِيَوْمٍ عَظِيمٍ
يَوْمَ يَقُومُ النَّاسُ لِرَبِّ الْعَالَمِينَ

General remarks.

THIS chapter condemns the defaulters, and is accordingly so called. On the other hand, those who fulfil their duties shall be exalted. Thus it continues the subject-matter of the preceding chapters. Why do the righteous prosper? Because they fulfil their duties and are true to their obligations. Why do the guilty suffer and perish? Because they are defaulters and are not true to their responsibilities. It teaches the utmost rectitude in one's dealings. Its revelation belongs to the early Meccan period.

2692 By al-mutaffifin are not only meant those who give short measure in weighing or use false weights and measures. Mutaffif, of which the word here used is a plural, is the nominative form of taffafa, which signifies he made defective or deficient (TA-LL) in a general sense, and hence you say طفت على عياله meaning he scented his household or stinted them in expenditure (TA-LL). And similarly طفت على الرجل signifies he gave to the man less than he had taken from him (TA-LL). A saying of 'Umar is recorded by IAs giving us an idea of the use of the word taffafa. A man did not attend the prayer in time, and being questioned by 'Umar, offered some excuse, to which 'Umar replied, taffafta, which IAs explains as meaning naqastā, i.e. you have made a default. Hence the mutaffifin are the defaulters, who make a default in any of their duties. The taking of the measure and the measuring out, in the next two verses, must also be read in a general sense.

7 Nay! most surely the record of the wicked is in the prison.²⁶⁹³

Ar. thes. 8 And what will make you know what the prison is?

9 It is a written book.

كَلَّا إِنَّ كِتَابَ الْأَبْرَارِ لَفِي عَلِيَيْنَ ۝

2693 Sijjin is supposed by some to be the name of a place of the most degraded nature, but the occurrence of the word with al in a report shows that it is a common noun: ويوتى بكتابه محتوما فيوضع في السجين (IAs). And LA gives sijjin as the equivalent of sin, meaning a prison; this is also the interpretation preferred by Zj, A'Ub and Mubarrad (Rz). But this prison should not be taken as signifying a goal, for the Qur-ān itself explains what this prison is in the verses that follow. It is said to be a written book. This written book or record, which preserves the deeds of the evil-doers, is called a prison because it keeps their faculties for the doing of good shut up as within a prison, and the very consequences of their evil deeds hamper their progress. See vv. 14 and 15, where the actions of the evil-doers are spoken of as becoming a rust on their hearts, and they are further referred to as being debarred from their Lord.

2694 The punishment of the wicked is here described as their being debarred from their Lord. That is their punishment in this life as well as their hell in the next, as plainly stated in the next verse.

2695 'Illiyūn is said by some to be the plural of 'illiy, and by others to be that of 'illiyah, while still others hold that it has no singular (TA-LL). Like sijjin, some would make it a proper name, but others rightly consider it to mean (from 'alid, meaning it was high) على الامكنة واشتت المراتب واقربها من الله في الدار الآخرة i.e. the highest of places and the most exalted of grades and the one (bringing a man) nearest to Allah in the latter abode (IAs). But note that, like sijjin, it is not the name of a place but that of a record (v. 20); Q and Az give similar explanations. The highest places are thus the records of the best deeds, which enable a man to soar high and cut off the chains which bind him to low desires.

34 So to-day those who believe shall laugh at the unbelievers ;²⁶⁹⁷

2696 Tasnim is generally taken to be a proper name, but bearing in mind what has been said regarding sijjin and 'ilhiyyun, Zj's interpretation, a water coming upon them from above (I.L), is preferable. The water coming from above signifies spiritually the knowledge of Allah (He), because it is from this source that those who are drawn nigh to Allah (v. 28) are made to drink. The nature of drinking and of water with regard to the next life cannot be explained in view of what the Holy Prophet said regarding the blessings of paradise : " which neither man's eye has seen, nor has man's ear heard, nor has it entered into the heart of a mortal to conceive of them."

2697 The laughing of the believers is not to be taken literally. The word qāhikah, which literally means laughing, also occurs elsewhere regarding the faces of the righteous

35 On raised couches, they will look.

36 Surely the disbelievers are rewarded as they did.

عَلَى الْأَرْآئِكِ يَنْظُرُونَ
هَلْ تُؤْتَى الْقَوْمَ مَا كَانُوا يَعْمَلُونَ

(80: 39), and signifies only the brightness of hope in their faces. The laughing in this case simply expresses a condition of joy which should make one laugh. The reversal of the condition of the believers and the unbelievers, in fact, took place in this life, and though the Muslims were entitled to laugh at those who erstwhile laughed at them, they did not actually do so, but showed sympathy with them. This shows that their laughing in the hereafter is also spoken of metaphorically; the indication simply being that their position regarding supremacy would be such as was that of their enemies, who in that condition laughed at the believers.

CHAPTER LXXXIV THE BURSTING ASUNDER

(Al-Inshiqāq)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(25 verses)

	In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.	بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

Or, levelled	3 And when the earth is stretched , ²⁷⁰⁰	وَإِذَا الْأَرْضُ مُدَّتْ ۝

General remarks.

THIS chapter also receives its title from the statement made in the opening verse as to the bursting asunder of the cloud. The subject-matter is similar to that of the previous chapter: the reward of the righteous and the evil condition of those who indulge in evil is also asserted. It is regarded as one of the earliest revelations.

2698 The first five verses of this chapter speak of an ordinary phenomenon of nature, viz. the coming down of rain and the growth of vegetation, as a reference to the transformation which was to be brought about by the Divine revelation. For as-sama, meaning cloud, see 33. As attention is called to this phenomenon very often in the Holy Qur-ān, when as-sama and al-ard are spoken of together, I leave the ordinary meaning for the margin, the significance of the words in the latter case being explained in 2593.

2699 اِذْنًا signifies he listened to him (LL). By the cloud or heaven listening to its Lord here, and the earth listening to its Lord in v. 5, is meant their obedience to His commandment. To both phrases is added the word huqqat, signifying that they are made suitable or fit for listening to and obeying the Divine commandments, i.e. it is their very nature to be entirely submissive to the Divine commandments.

2700 Maddahū signifies he pulled it, strained it, extended it by drawing or pulling, stretched it, extended it (LL). The stretching of the earth signifies the same as its stirring and swelling in 22: 5 and 41: 39, "And among His signs is that you see the earth still, but when We send down on it the water, it stirs and swells" (41: 39); see 2210, where the meaning is explained to be the producing of herbage, the expression here as there signifying metaphorically that Divine revelation gives spiritual life to men. The meaning of the earth being stretched is cleared up in the next verse: it casts forth what is in it and becomes empty, i.e. the treasures of life latent within it are brought to light by the coming down of the rain. In case the alternative meaning given in the margin is adopted, the levelling of the earth would mean the sweeping away of the great men who considered themselves as firm mountains, and its listening to the Lord would indicate the ultimate obedience of the people to the Divine commandments. That is, if we take the description to apply to this life. As regards the final disruption of the heaven and the earth no explanation is needed.

2701 This is the conclusion to which a consideration of the first five verses leads. Man must strive hard to attain to his Lord. Those who do this are ultimately joyful (v. 9), but those who give themselves up to the pleasures of this life (v. 13) shall afterwards be in a sad plight (v. 11).

2702 Verses 16-18 draw attention to another phenomenon of nature, thereby indicating the departure of the power of the Arabs. The shafaq, or the sunset redness, stands here for the disappearing sun of the power of the Arabs, the night of adversity which was now to overtake them, driving before it what vestige of light had remained. But they were not to remain submerged in darkness for ever, for the moon (the Holy Prophet) had already made its appearance and would soon grow full, when the Arab nation was to march forth to conquer the world.

2703 Those words make the meaning of the first three verses clearer still. Their first state was one of power, which was now to wane before the Holy Prophet, being likened to the evening glow which remains for a short while and then departs; then there was to follow the night of adversity, entirely driving away the light, i.e. sweeping away every vestige of power before it; this was to be followed by a new state, in which the moon (the symbol of the Arab nation) was to appear in its full lustre. The commentators understand in this verse a prophecy of the final triumph of the Holy Prophet (Rz).

الَّذِينَ ذَابَ الْقُودُ
إِذْ هُمْ عَلَيْهَا قُعُودٌ
وَهُمْ عَلَى مَا يَفْعَلُونَ بِالْمُؤْمِنِينَ
شُهُودٌ

General remarks.

THIS chapter takes its title from the mention in the first verse of heaven full of stars, as referring to the prosperity of the Arab nation. Reference to past history shows that if they reject their prophet the star of their good fortune will set with the rejection. In the early Meccan period this chapter may be placed among the earlier revelations.

2704 The three opening verses draw a comparison between the first condition of the opponents of the Holy Prophet and their final state as predicted by the Holy Prophet. The heaven full of stars stands for a prosperous nation, for which see 2371. As against this prosperous state of the nation is the threatened day, i.e. the day of the downfall of their power, because it was with that that they were again and again threatened. The bearer of the witness is the prophet of a nation, and those against whom the witness is borne are the rejecters of the prophet (Rz). Attention is thus called to the fate of the previous opponents of the prophets, and the Arabs are told that the star of their good fortune is bound to disappear.

2705 The commentators give three different versions of the story supposed to be referred to in this verse, the most well known being that the reference is to the persecution of some Christians by Zu Nawas, a king of Yemen, who was of the Jewish religion (Rz). But Al-Baghwi thinks that the reference is to Nebuchadnezzar's casting Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego into the fiery furnace (Dan. 3: 19-21). I think there may, as well, be a prophetic reference here to the great Arab army against which the Muslims were compelled to defend themselves by means of a trench, in what is called the battle of the Allies or the battle of the Ditch. The words of v. 7, and particularly of v. 10, clearly show that the reference here is to the enemies of the Holy Prophet, who persecuted the believing men and the believing women. The fire kept burning with the fuel need not be taken literally, for the fire stands for war.

8 And they did not take vengeance on them for aught except that they believed in Allah, the Mighty, the Praised,

9 Whose is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth; and Allah is a Witness of all things.

10 Surely (as for) those who persecute the believing men and the believing women, then do not repent, they shall have the chastisement of hell, and they shall have the chastisement of burning.

11 Surely (as for) those who believe and do good, they shall have gardens beneath which rivers flow, that is the great achievement.

Ar thy. 12 Surely the might of your Lord is great.

13 Surely He it is who originates and reproduces,

14 And He is the Forgiving, the Loving,

Ar 'arsh. a 805. 15 Lord of the dominion,^a the Glorious, 16 The great doer of what He will.

Ar thee. 17 Has not there come to you the story of the hosts, 18 Of Pharaoh and Samood?

19 Nay! those who disbelieve are in (the act of) giving the lie to the truth.

20 And Allah encompasses them on every side.

21 Nay! it is a glorious Qur-án,

22 In a guarded tablet.²⁷⁰⁶

2706 The word lauh, or tablet, occurring here, is the same as the alwāh (singular, lauh), or tablets, occurring regarding the book given to Moses (7: 145, 150, 154). But whereas Moses' book was simply in some tablets, the Qur-án, to which the qualifying word glorious is added, as indicating that its followers shall be made great and glorious, is here spoken of as being in a guarded tablet. The significance of these words is simply this, that the Holy Qur-án shall be guarded against all attacks. There is no mention here or anywhere else in the Qur-án of the lauh-i-mahfúz on which the decrees of God are written; but even if the reference here be to it, the significance is still the same, viz., that the Qur-án shall be fully guarded. Thus we have a promise regarding the protection of the Holy Qur-án from every kind of corruption in one of the earliest Meccan chapters. Rz also considers this to be the significance:

ان هذا قرآن مجيد مصون عن التغير والتبدل

i.e. that this is a glorious Qur-án, protected against change and alteration.

brightness;²⁷⁰⁷

وَالسَّمَاءِ وَالطَّارِقِ
وَمَا أَدْرَاكَ مَا الطَّارِقُ
النَّجْمُ الثَّاقِبُ

General remarks.

THIS chapter states how great was the difficulty which the Prophet had before him in bringing light to his benighted countrymen, and it is for this reason that he is called the comer by night in the first verse (which description gives the chapter its name), i.e. one who appeared at a time of total darkness and one who stood in need of knocking at the doors which were shut against him. But he is given the comfort that a spiritual resurrection will be brought about. Before his advent the whole world had been submerged in a gulf of ignorance, and the night had lasted for fully six hundred years, and it was no easy task to awaken the world from such a long and deep sleep. That the Holy Prophet was acquainted with the difficulties of his task is borne out in this chapter, which is classed among the earliest revelations. The reference to plans in vv. 15, 16 does not show that that part was revealed later, for while it is true that plans against the Prophet's life were formed very early, the reference in these verses may be prophetic.

2707 T'áriq (from tarq, primarily meaning the striking a thing) originally signifies a comer by night, because one who comes by night finds the doors shut, and knocking at the doors becomes necessary (IAs). The comer by night is here the Holy Prophet; the revelation of the Qur-án is also spoken of as taking place on a blessed night (44 : 3 and 97 : 1). The reason is that the Holy Prophet appeared when total darkness spread on the earth, and no one ever stood more in need of knocking at the doors which were shut against him and fastened with strong bolts. It is noteworthy that Jesus compares his advent to that of a thief: "If the goodman of the house had known in what watch the thief would come, he would have watched. . . . Therefore be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the son of man cometh" (Matt. 24 : 43, 44). It may also be added that at-táriq is also the name given to the morning star (S, O, Q-LL), because it

4 There is not a soul but over it is a keeper.²⁷⁰⁸

5 So let man consider of what he is created :

6 He is created of water

7 Coming from between the back and the ribs.²⁷⁰⁹

8 Most surely He is able to 9 On the day when hidden things shall be made manifest,²⁷¹⁰

10 He shall have neither strength nor helper.

• 2099. 11 Consider* the cloud pouring rain,²⁷¹¹

12 And the earth splitting
(with plants) ;

13 Most surely it is a decisive word,²⁷¹²

إِنَّ كُلَّ نَفْسٍ لَتَأْكُلُهَا

حَافِظٌ

فَلْيَنْظُرِ الْإِنْسَانُ مِمَّ خُلِقَ

خُلِقَ مِنْ مَّاءٍ دَافِقٍ

يَخْرُجُ مِنْ بَيْنِ الصُّلْبِ وَ

الدُّرَيْبِ

إِنَّهُ عَلَى رَجْعِهِ لَقَادِرٌ

يَوْمَ مَرْثِيَةِ الشَّعَاءِ

فَمَا لَهُ مِنْ قُوَّةٍ وَلَا نَاصِرٍ

وَالسَّمَاءِ ذَاتِ الرَّجَمِ

وَالْأَرْضِ ذَاتِ الصُّدُورِ

إِنَّهُ لَقَوْلٌ فَصْلٌ comes in the end of the night. But in that sense too the word is applicable to a great man or a chief, as in the saying of Hind on the day of Uhud, quoting proverbially what was said by Az-Zarqa Al-Iyadeeyoh when Kisra warred with Iyad :

نحن بنات طارق + لا ننثنى لى امانى + نمشى على النار

i.e. "We are the daughters of the morning-star : we bend not to a lover : we walk upon pillows, where the meaning is that we are the daughters of a chief, likening him to the star in elevation " (O, TA-LL).

In the third verse "the comer by night" is called النجم الثاقب or the star of piercing brightness (in reference to the other significance of at-tāriq), indicating that the comer by night is a star of such resplendent brightness that all darkness will be dispelled before him.

2708 Though the words are general, and signify that the deeds done by man are guarded so that he cannot escape their consequences, there is also a comfort for the Holy Prophet here that his opponents shall not be able to harm him and that in time they shall meet their doom. This is made very clear at the end of the chapter.

2709 ماء دافق which may signify either water poured forth or water pouring forth, means the sperma genitale. The expression between the back and the ribs is a euphemism. A similar expression occurs in a saying of the Holy Prophet :

من يضمن لى ما بين لحيته و ما بين رجله فاضن له الجنة

i.e. Whoever gives me a guarantee as to what is between his two jaws and what is between his two feet I will guarantee for him the paradise ; where what is between his two feet is a euphemism. Delicate subjects relating to sexual relations or sexual desires are never referred to in blunt words in the Holy Qur-án.

2710 Note this description of the day of resurrection. The hidden things are the consequences of one's good or evil deeds, which will be made palpably manifest in the shape of gardens and fruits or chains and fire.

2711 Raj' signifies matr, or rain (Zj-Rz), and this interpretation is generally accepted by the commentators ; the connection with the root, meaning returning, is explained variously : "Because God returns it time after time, or because the clouds raise water from the seas and then return it to the earth " (Bq-LL).

2712 The decisive word is the Holy Qur-án. Just as when rain comes down, the earth must produce vegetation, so the coming of the Divine revelation is bound to raise a dead nation to life, and no efforts against it would hamper its progress. There is also a reference to the doom of the unbelievers in v. 10 in the words he shall have neither strength nor helper.

2713 Whatever doubt there may be as to the significance of this chapter is dispelled by the last three verses, which speak of the plans of the opponents to destroy the Holy Prophet and the Divine promise that their doom will soon overtake them.

7 Except what Allah pleases;²⁷¹⁶ surely He knows

إِلَّا مَا شَاءَ اللَّهُ إِنَّهُ يَعْلَمُ

General remarks.

ATTENTION having been drawn to the difficulties of the Holy Prophet, we have here a promise that those difficulties will be made easy; He will make your way smooth to a state of ease. The title of this chapter is taken from the injunction to the Prophet to glorify the Most High Lord, thus indicating the high position to which he would rise. The reference to the scriptures of Abraham and Moses in the concluding verse is to show not only that the Holy Qur-án agrees with previous scriptures in essential principles, but also that those scriptures contain prophecies of the Holy Prophet's advent. The chapter belongs to the early period of the Prophet's revelation at Mecca.

2714 The glorification of the Most High is an allusion to the high eminence to which the Prophet himself was to be raised.

2715 The making complete of the creation in v. 2 signifies its making such that it is adapted to the requirements of wisdom, which is the real meaning of the word sawwá. The third verse states that everything is made according to a certain measure so that it cannot go beyond that limit, and then Allah has shown to every created thing the way by which it can attain the perfection which is destined for it. The whole is in special reference to the Holy Prophet's attaining to the goal of his perfection, while the two verses that follow point to the fact that as herbage is dried up after a certain period, so the opponents of the Holy Prophet shall also be brought to naught.

2716 The illá (except) is here an استثناء منقطع the meaning being that the Prophet shall not forsake (or forget) anything which Allah has taught him, but he should the manifest, and what is hidden.

Ar. thy.

8 And We will make your way smooth to a state of ease.²⁷¹⁷

9 Therefore do remind, surely reminding does profit.²⁷¹⁸

10 He who fears will mind,

11 And the most unfortunate one will avoid it,

12 Who shall enter the great fire ;

13 Then therein he shall neither live nor die.²⁷¹⁹

14 He indeed shall be successful who purifies himself,

15 And magnifies the name of his Lord and prays.

16 Nay ! you prefer the life of this world,

17 While the hereafter is better and more lasting.

18 Most surely this is in the earlier scriptures,

19 The scriptures of Abraham and Moses.²⁷²⁰

الْبَهْمَ وَمَا يُخْفَىٰ

وَنُبَيِّرُكَ لِكَيْسْرَىٰ ۖ

فَذَكِّرْ إِن نَّفَعَتِ الذِّكْرَىٰ ۖ

سَيَذَكِّرُكَ مَنْ يُخْفَىٰ ۖ

وَيَجْعَلُهَا آتِشَةً ۖ

الَّذِي يَصْطَلِي النَّارَ الْكُبْرَىٰ ۖ

ثُمَّ لَا يَمُوتُ فِيهَا وَلَا يَحْيَىٰ ۖ

قَدْ أَفْلَحَ مَنْ تَزَكَّىٰ ۖ

وَذَكَرَ اسْمَ رَبِّهِ فَصَلَّىٰ ۖ

بَلْ تُؤْثِرُونَ الْحَيَاةَ الدُّنْيَا ۖ

وَالْآخِرَةُ خَيْرٌ وَأَبْقَىٰ ۖ

إِنَّ هَذِهِ أَلْفَى الصُّحُفِ الْأُولَىٰ ۖ

صُحُفِ إِبْرَاهِيمَ وَمُوسَىٰ ۖ

forsake such things as Allah pleases. For nisydn not only signifies actually forgetting a thing, but also forsaking it intentionally, for, as Rgh says, nisydn may be applied to that which is done intentionally. He says that nisydn is of three kinds, the last of which is described as being عن قصد حتى يحذف عن القلب ذكر i.e. purposely, so that man turns it out of his mind altogether.

And even if the meaning of nisydn may be taken to be the forgetting of a thing, the 6th verse is, as Rgh holds, a guarantee from Allah that He will so ordain that the Prophet shall not forget what he hears of the truth. The words what Allah pleases therefore refer not to that which the Prophet learns from Allah, but that which he was made to forget, or forsake, because Divine revelation brought something better in its place. There is no mention of any doctrine of abrogation here. Compare 2 : 106 and see 152.

Moreover, it is absurd to suppose that any verse which the Prophet was made to forget was removed also from the writing to which it was consigned as soon as revealed or from the memories of the numerous companions who committed it to memory and recited it in their prayers. In fact, the chapter belongs to so early a period, that even if it be supposed for the sake of argument that abrogation was needed at a later period, it was not necessary at the time of the revelation of this chapter.

2717 The words predict the Prophet's triumph and the removal of the distress in which Islam was.

2718 For in, meaning gad, i.e. surely, see LL, which quotes numerous instances from the Qur-án as well as from Arabic literature and poetry.

2719 There is no life in hell, for life is only for the righteous ; neither is there death, because death signifies a state of complete rest.

2720 The preference of the good of the hereafter to the transitory advantages of this life is the one great truth preached by all the Prophets. But the reference here is to the prophecies concerning the Holy Prophet which are to be found clearly indicated in the revelations granted respectively to Abraham and to Moses ; see 168 and 70. Or, the essential principles of religion are meant, which are common to all the great religions.

²⁷²² Ibil means, according to Abu 'Amr Ibnul 'Ala, clouds that bear the water for rain (TA-IL). As this significance suits the context better, I adopt this instead of the usual rendering, the camels, the mention of the clouds along with heaven, where they exist, and with mountains, which cool the vapours so that they pour down water, and the earth, which benefits by that water, being in accordance with what is said in many other places.

وَالسَّعِيرِ وَالْوُتْرِ
وَاللَّيْلِ إِذَا يَسِيرُ
هَلْ فِي ذَلِكَ قَسَمٌ لِّذِي حَبِيرٍ

General remarks.

THE important Daybreak which gives its name to this chapter is the first morning of the month of Zulhaj, or the month of the pilgrimage, because pilgrimage gave Mecca a great importance as a trade centre and made its residents enjoy a life of ease, the trade of the whole country being brought to their very doors. A warning is given here of punishment that must overtake the city, as the cities of previous nations, 'Ad, Samood, etc., had been destroyed. It is one of the earliest revelations, though the opinion of one writer as to its being a Medinian revelation is not wanting.

2723 There is a great variety of opinion as to what is meant by the daybreak, the ten nights, and the even and the odd. I think the reference is to the importance attached to Mecca (which is mentioned as the city in the commencement of the next chapter), because it was made the centre by pilgrims resorting to it from all parts of Arabia, a circumstance which contributed to its becoming a trade centre. The daybreak would thus signify the day-break of the first of the month of Zulhijja; the ten nights would stand for the first ten nights, the tenth day being the day of sacrifices; the even would stand for the two days following the tenth of Zulhijja, during which certain rites of the pilgrimage were performed, the odd signifying the thirteenth day, which was also a day for the performance of certain rites, but it is distinctly mentioned because those who desired could depart on the evening of the twelfth. See 2: 203. Mecca, on account of the pilgrimage, had become not only the religious metropolis of Arabia, but also the centre of its trade, and its prosperity therefore depended on the pilgrimage, and it is of this that the Meccans are reminded, being told in the verses that follow how mightier nations than they were previously destroyed on account of their wickedness.

 كَلَّا بَلْ لَا تَفْكُرُمُونَ الْإِنْسَانِ
 وَلَا تَحْضُرُونَ عَلَى طَعَامِ الْمَسْكِينِ

2724 Aram was, according to one account, the name of the grandfather of 'Ad, from whom the tribe took its name (see 903), and according to another, the name of a city in which it lived (Rz).

2725 Saut signifies primarily the mixing of one thing with another (Rgh). It then comes to signify a whip, but here means a portion or a share (S, Q-LL), the significance being that they received a portion of the punishment here, the other portion overtaking them after death. Or, in consonance with the root-meaning, it may be interpreted as meaning a mixture prepared for them of various punishments (LL).

2726 The watching of the Lord refers to the punishment in store for the Meccans: the Lord is watching their deeds and will soon overtake them.

2726a The statement in v. 15 relates to the state of affluence of the Meccans, and that in v. 16 to their disgrace, which was to be brought about in this very life because of the wrong they did to the poor and the weak out of the desire to hoard wealth, as the verses that follow show.

• 2727 Verses 17 and 18 (as also the 19th) show how the Prophet felt for the orphans, the poor, and the weak, so much so that he warns his powerful and wealthy opponents that their indifference to the orphans and the poor and their injustice to the weak shall bring down upon them the Divine judgment, which shall shatter their power. As he was in the beginning so he remained to the end, a true well-wisher of the weak and the oppressed. And when he had the power he brought into practice what he taught in theory before, by providing for the orphans and the poor out of the public funds, thus forestalling the Poor Laws and Old Age Pension systems by thirteen centuries. See 9:60.

2728 Among the Arabs women and young children were not allowed to have any share in the inheritance, because they could not fight the enemy.

2729 The crumbling to pieces of the earth, the coming of the Lord with angels, and the appearance of the hell, equally refer to the portion of punishment in this life as to that in the next. The earth crumbled, the angels came, and hell appeared in those great battles which, commenced by the unbelievers themselves, ultimately brought utter discomfiture to them, and swept them off the face of the earth. It should be noted that the coming of the angels to assist the Muslim cause in the battles is repeatedly spoken of in the Holy Qur-ān. Fire signifies war.

2730 Being "mindful" is of little avail to a man when the thing he is warned of has made its appearance.

2731 Every one shall be bound by the consequences of his deeds, and this will no doubt be a unique punishment and a unique "binding."

2732 The concluding verses of this chapter refer to the highest stage of the spiritual development of man, the stage in which he rests contented with his Lord, and finds his quietude, his happiness, and his delight in Him. This is the stage of life which we term the heavenly life. The pure and perfect sincerity, truth, and righteousness of a person are rewarded by Almighty God by granting him a heaven upon this earth. All others look to a prospective paradise, but he enters paradise in this very life. It is at this stage, too, that a person realizes that the prayers and worship which at first appeared to him as a burden are really a nourishment on which the growth of his soul depends, and that this is the basis of his spiritual development. He then sees that the fruit of his efforts is not to be reaped in a future life only. The spirit—which in the second stage, although blaming a man for the impurities of life, was yet powerless to resist the evil tendencies, or to blot them out wholly, and too infirm to establish a man upon the principle of virtue with firmness—now reaches a stage of development in which its efforts are crowned with success. The state of struggle with sinful propensities passes away, an entire change comes over the nature of man, and the former habits undergo a complete transformation.

CHAPTER XC

THE CITY

(Al-Balad)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(20 verses)

Ar. thou shalt	2 And you shall be made free from obligation in this city ²⁷³⁴ —	وَأَنْتَ حَلٌّ بِهَذَا الْبَلَدِ

General remarks.

THE city spoken of in the first verse, from which this chapter receives its name, is Mecca—the city which had been warned in the last chapter of punishment overtaking it as it had overtaken former nations. But it was to be the Prophet's city, and there is a clear prophecy in the second verse that a time would come when not only would the Muslims be not persecuted in that city, but they would even enjoy freedom from all obligations in it; the clear reference being to the establishment of their rule therein. Thus there is a clear prophecy here of the conquest of Mecca by the Holy Prophet, and this was necessary because the Prophet was the true well-wisher of the poor, the oppressed, and the orphans. By general consent the chapter is regarded as one of the very earliest revelations, so much so, that it is assigned to the first year of the call.

2733 By this city is meant Mecca (Rz), where the Prophet was at the time of the revelation of this chapter. The very existence of Mecca was a witness of the great power and knowledge of the Divine Being, and particularly to an Arab, who know for certain how thousands of years before Abraham had prayed for a city to be raised in that wilderness where he had left one branch of his descendants. It was also a witness of the truth of the Holy Prophet, for the prayer of Abraham also included the raising of a prophet from among the posterity of Ishmael; see 168.

2734 The words انت حل بهذا البلد are parenthetical. Hill is an infinitive noun, and signifies the same as haldl, meaning in a state which is the opposite of hardness, and hence it signifies free from obligation or responsibility with respect to a thing.

English translators have generally adopted a different translation: And thou a dweller in this land (Palmer); and thou residest in this territory (Sale); the soil on which thou dost dwell (Rodwell); which is wrong, because halla, as meaning naḥala, i.e. he alighted, or abode, or lodged in a place, has its infinitive hulul or hull (LlL) and not hill, which is the word occurring here. Some commentators have also been led into this error. The significance

الْمُتَعَمِّلُ لَهُ عَيْنَيْنِ
وَلِسَانًا وَشَفَتَيْنِ وَهَدَيْنَاهُ النَّجْدَيْنِ

which I adopt is in accordance with the true significance of the word hill, for you say انت في حل من كذا meaning you are free from obligation or responsibility with respect to such a thing. The statement in this case is prophetic, indicating that the Prophet would be made free from obligation in respect to the sacredness of the territory of Mecca, being allowed to enter it by force (Bd), as he did at the conquest of Mecca, to which, in fact, the words refer. There is also a saying of the Holy Prophet in support of this, according to which, while speaking of the sacredness of Mecca, he said: رُلن تَحَل لى الاساعة

i.e. and even I was made free of obligation with respect to it only for an hour of the day.

Some commentators consider the significance to be, you are made lawful in this city, by which is to be understood the legalization of the Holy Prophet's persecution in the sacred territory of Mecca, which was looked upon as inviolable, so much so that even its game was not killed nor were its trees cut (Bd).

2735 The great begetter is none other than Abraham, the progenitor of the Arabs, and by whom he begot is meant either Ishmael, who assisted Abraham in raising the foundations of the Sacred House at Mecca, or the Holy Prophet himself, who was the object of Abraham's prayer. Both Abraham and Ishmael were witnesses to the truth of the Holy Prophet.

2736 Kabad means distress or difficulty, and the allusion here seems to be to the powerful opponents, who are in the next verse spoken of in general terms of a similar character, thinking that "no one has power over" them; the words thus refer prophetically to the distress in store for them, and this is in fact what is aimed at in this chapter. But the words may also be taken generally, the significance being that man's existence is necessarily one of struggle with difficulties in this life, and notwithstanding this, he thinks that no one has power over him.

2737 The reference is apparently to the ultimate state of the opponents when, after spending all their wealth in opposition to the Holy Prophet, they should find that the Prophet's cause has triumphed, and would then say that they really wasted their wealth in opposition to him. A similar statement is contained in 8:36, "Surely those who disbelieve spend their wealth to hinder (people) from the way of Allah; so they shall spend it, then it shall be to them an intense regret, then they shall be overcome."

2738 Najd signifies المكان الربيع (Rgh), or according to others الطريق في ارتفاع (Rz), i.e. a conspicuous way. The two conspicuous ways are, by the general consent of the commentators and according to a saying of the Holy Prophet, نجد الخير and نجد الشر i.e. the way of good and the way of evil (Rz). Both ways are pointed out to man, and he is at liberty to choose which he will. The two eyes (v. 8) will enable him to distinguish good from evil, while with the tongue and the lips (v. 9) he can ask, if he cannot see, for himself.

Ar. these.

2739 The doing of good to the oppressed, the poor, and the orphans is called an uphill road, because of the difficulty of doing it. The constant reference to the helping of the poor and the orphans and the setting free of slaves brings to light the real character of the Holy Prophet, who is described by one knowing him most intimately as one who earned for those who had no means themselves. Islam is the only religion which enjoins the duty of granting freedom to slaves, and the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him, is the only founder of a religion who showed the noble example of freeing all slaves that he ever had and helping in the freedom of others: yet the Christian missionaries laud the anti-slavery endeavours of Christianity and blame Islam for not taking any steps to uproot slavery. There is even a suggestion that such precepts regarding the nobility of liberating slaves as exist in the Meccan chapters were abrogated by later revelation (see Wherry), a preposterous statement in view of the plain directions given in 9:60 (the latest revelation) to spend a part of the public funds in purchasing freedom for slaves.

4 And the night when it

وَاللَّيْلَ إِذَا أَغْشَاهَا ۝

General remarks.

THE Prophet is the Sun of righteousness (the word giving its title to this chapter), with whose rising the way to perfection is pointed out to man, but only those who purify themselves are really successful, while those who give themselves over to corruption fail to attain the object. The case of Samood is given as an illustration. Like the last chapter, it is one of the earliest revelations.

2740 Ash-shams, or the sun, is feminine, and al-qamar, or the moon, masculine, in the Arabic language, as opposed to English. Duhā, though generally applied to the early part of the forenoon after sunrise, also signifies light, which is the meaning here.

2741 Talā-hā literally signifies it followed him, but according to Rgh this is sometimes (in one thing following another) in body, and sometimes in imitating in respect of predicament. Hence he explains talā-hā in this verse as meaning following it in the way of imitation and in respect of rank, because it borrows light from the sun. Farra takes this to be the real meaning, for he says: such a one follows such a one in respect of such a thing, meaning he takes from him (Rz). Hence the real significance of the words is, when she borrows light from the sun.

2742 By the generality of the commentators the personal pronoun in jallā-hā is taken to refer to ad-dunyā, i.e. the world, though it is not mentioned here, because, as Kf says, in such cases the meaning is clear, as they say: صَبِيحَتٌ بَارِدَةٌ i.e. it was cold, meaning the morning, though they do not mention it in words (Rz).

2743 The personal pronoun in yaghshāhā also refers to ad-dunyā (i.e. the world), though some would interpret it as referring to the sun.

Or, Him
who made it.

Or, Him
who extended it

Or, Him
who made it perfect.

5 And the heaven and its make,

6 And the earth and its extension,

7 And the soul and its perfection,²⁷⁴⁴

8 So He intimated to it by inspiration its deviating from truth and its guarding (against evil).²⁷⁴⁵

9 He will indeed be successful who purifies it,

10 And he will indeed fail
who corrupts it.²⁷⁴⁶

وَالسَّمَاءَ وَمَا بَيْنَهُمَا
وَالْأَرْضَ وَمَا طَحَاها
وَنَفْسٍ وَمَا سَوَّاهَا
فَالْهَبْهَا فُجُورَهَا وَتَقْوَاهَا
ثَدَّ أَفْئِدَةً مِّنْ ذِكْرِهَا
وَقَدْ حَاطَ مِنْ دَشِيمِهَا

2744 I take the mā in vv. 5-7 as being maḍdariyyah, and hence the translation. The difficulty suggested by Kf is not a real one, because the nominative in alhamahd, in v. 8, may be taken to be the Divine Being. But even if the mā may be taken to be manuṣṣūlah, the meaning is clear as given in the margin, the mā referring to the Divine Being in all three cases, for not only is mā very often used for man in the Arabic language, as in 4 : 22, but the reference in the use of mā is also to the majesty of the person spoken of, the statement being equivalent to consider heaven and that great Omnipotent Being who made it.

Attention is drawn in this, the 7th, verse to the perfection of the soul, and thus to its spiritual and moral requirements, as the first six verses speak of its physical requirements. The Almighty Being has made the sun and his light, the moon, the day and the night, the high heaven and the vast earth, all for the benefit of man; yet these things only serve his physical necessities. As to the arrangements for the perfection of the soul, the spiritual requirements must also be fulfilled, and this is stated in vv. 8-10.

2745 The verse is a fitting sequel to the statement made in the previous verse as regards the perfection of the soul, as it points out the way to perfection. The connection is shown by the fā, which is used for ta'qib. It is through inspiration that the soul is made perfect, because inspiration makes clear the two ways, fujūr, or the way of deviation from the truth, i.e. the way of evil, and taqwā, or the way of guarding against evil, or the way of good. It is by avoiding the former and walking in the latter that perfection can be attained. It should be clearly understood that both Rodwell and Palmer are wrong here in translating the verse as meaning, And breathed into it its wickedness and its piety (Rodwell) or, And taught it its sin and its piety (Palmer), for the statement in this form is not only contradicted by the whole of the Qur-ān, but is also self-contradictory and meaningless; because the words would thus imply that when a man left evil and did good, it was Allah who breathed it into him to do so, and when he left good and did evil, it was again Allah who taught him to do so, which is manifestly absurd. The next two verses also belie such a statement. Nor do we stand in need of adding anything to the original to arrive at the true significance, as Sale has done by inserting the words faculty of distinguishing and power of choosing, which are wanting in the original. Al-hama-hū signifies he suggested to him (LL), and the statement thus corresponds with 90 : 10, "And pointed out to him the two conspicuous ways." I have added the words by inspiration because ilhām always signifies an intimation by inspiration from the Divine Being, as Rgh says: "And this is peculiar to that which is intimated by Allah." Rz says the intimation by inspiration of good and evil means the making a man to understand and know them both, and he adds that this explanation is accepted by Ibn-i-'Abbas and the most trustworthy of the commentators.

2746 Zakka-hū is from zakā, meaning it increased, and therefore primarily, the word signifies he made it to increase or thrive (Msb, TA-LL), and dassa-hū is from dassa-hū, meaning primarily he hid it or concealed it. The secondary meaning of the former is

11 Samood gave the lie (to the truth) in their inordinacy,²⁷⁴⁷

12 When the most unfortunate of them broke forth with mischief,

13 So Allah's apostle said to them: (Leave alone) Allah's she-camel, and (give) her (to) drink.

14 But they called him a liar and slaughtered her, therefore their Lord crushed them for their sin and levelled them (with the ground).

15 And He fears not its consequence.²⁷⁴⁸

كَذَّابَتْ شُرُودُ يَطْعُرُهَا ۖ

إِذَا نَعَتْ أَشْقَاهَا ۖ

فَقَالَ لَهُمْ رَسُولُ اللَّهِ نَاقَةَ اللَّهِ

وَسُقِيهَا ۖ

فَكَذَّبُوهُ فَقَتَلُوهَا فَلَمَّا مَدَّ عَلَيْهِمُ

رَبُّهُمْ يَدَ يُبْهِمُ قَسْرُهَا ۖ

وَلَا يَخَافُ عُقْبَاهَا ۖ

he purified it, and that of the latter he corrupted it. The adoption of these two words really indicates that the faculties necessary for perfection are given to every man, but there are some who make them thrive by their development and others who corrupt them by allowing them to remain concealed, not displaying them to their advantage.

Note the Quranic law of salvation: it is the purification of the soul from all dross that makes a man attain the goal, and its corruption by indulging in evil that makes him fail in attaining the true object of his life. This verse gives us a clear indication of the true condition of the Prophet's mind.

2747 The verse gives an instance of those whose end is failure on account of the corrupt manner of their lives, giving at the same time a warning to the Meccans that if they continued in their evil course and did not turn to righteousness, following the call of the Prophet, but molested him as Samood molested their prophet, their end would be the same. If they followed the Prophet they would attain to perfection, but if they went against him they would be given over to destruction as were the former people, who, heedless of the warning of their prophets, indulged in evil.

2748 Allah does not care for the consequences of the punishment to a people when they are found deserving of such punishment. The consequences include their children being left without protectors and supporters.

وَصَدَّقَ بِالْحُسْنَىٰ ۝

فَسَنِّيئِرُهُ إِلَىٰ سُرَىٰ ۝

General remarks.

THE object of this chapter is to show that the Night of unbelief and ignorance (hence the title of it) will give place to the light of the day, for inasmuch as men strive after different objects, those who strive to establish good shall have facility, while those who go after evil shall find themselves in difficulties. It is also one of the earliest revelations. The statement that the chapter was revealed on account of Abu Bakr and Umayya bin Khalf can only be accepted as meaning that Abu Bakr and Umayya are the two most prominent examples of the strivers after good and the strivers after evil respectively in the early history of Islam.

2749 The fourth verse describes the consequence to which a consideration of the circumstances in the first three verses leads. The night draws a veil over all things, while the day sheds light upon them, and these two serve as an evidence that as the variation of darkness and light leads to different ends, so man's striving for good and his striving for bad must lead to different consequences, the one being compared to the light of the day and the other to the darkness of the night. The creation of the male and the female, which stands for the creation of the whole of animate nature, because all living beings are created either male or female, is also a witness to the same truth, for there we find every one striving for an end, and every one reaping according to the manner of his striving.

8 And as for him who is niggardly and considers himself free from need (of Allah),

9 And rejects the best,

10 We will facilitate for him the difficult end.

11 And his wealth will not avail him when he perishes.²⁷⁵⁰

13 And most surely Ours is the hereafter and the former.²⁷⁵¹

14 Therefore I warn you of the fire that flames :

15 None shall enter it but the most unhappy,

16 Who gives the lie (to the truth) and turns (his) back.

17 And away from it shall be kept the one who guards most (against evil), 18 Who gives away his wealth, purifying himself.

19 And no one has with him any boon for which he should be rewarded, 20 Except the seeking of the pleasure of his Lord,²⁷⁵² the Most High.

21 And he shall soon be well-pleased.

فَسَنَيِّرُهُ لَئْسَرَى ۝

الَّذِي كَذَّبَ وَتَوَلَّى ۝

وَسَيَجْجِبُهَا إِلَّا تَقَى ۝

الَّذِي يُؤْتِي مَالَهُ يَتَزَكَّى ۝

وَمَا لِأَحَدٍ عِنْدَهُ مِنْ نِعْمَةٍ تُجْرَى ۝

إِلَّا ابْتِغَاءَ وَجْهِ رَبِّهِ الْأَعْلَى ۝

وَلَسَوْفَ يَرْضَى ۝

2750 The two examples given in these verses represent those who accept and those who reject the Holy Prophet respectively. The end of the former is easy, the end of the latter difficult, being nothing other than perdition. If the verses refer to Abu Bakr and Umayya bin Khalf respectively, as asserted by Qaffal, these are only two typical cases ; the end of the former was ease, in that he was made the ruler of Arabia, and the end of the latter was clearly perdition, and his wealth did not avail him when Divine judgment overtook him.

2751 The hereafter includes the life after death as well as the future of this life, while the former refers to the past.

2752 The pleasure of the Lord is the only boon for which a man should hope, and hence this is the goal of a Muslim's life—his paradise in this as well as the next life. This is in accordance with what is said in 9 : 72, one of the latest revelations : " And Allah's goodly pleasure is the greatest (bliss) : that is the mighty achievement." Let those ponder who hanker after showing differences in the earlier and the later revelations of the Holy Prophet. The object and aim of Islam, the goal to which it invited people, remained one and the same under all the varying circumstances of the Holy Prophet's life.

General remarks.

THIS chapter draws attention to the gradual spreading of the light of the sun of Islam, and is therefore given the title of The Early Hours of the day. The last two chapters metaphorically speak of the advent of the Holy Prophet as the rising of the sun, and the metaphor is continued here. As the sunshine is not fully resplendent immediately after the rising of the sun, so the truth would only shine in its full brightness gradually. It is on all hands considered to be one of the earliest revelations.

2753 Though the light of the sun is not resplendent during the early hours of the day, yet its comparison with the darkness of the night is sufficient to show the change brought about. Even so was the case of the Holy Prophet. In the early days of his mission, though his truth was manifest from the light which shone on Arabia by his advent, as compared with the total darkness that prevailed in the peninsula before his coming, it had not yet shone like the midday sun, and the resplendence of his light was to be brought about gradually, as the next verse shows. The commentators narrate varying reports to the effect that the verse was revealed on the occasion of a long pause in the descent of revelation to the Holy Prophet, two or three days according to Bkh, the unbelievers saying, according to one of these reports, that Allah had forsaken Muhammad and become displeased with him (Rz). That revelation was sent down to the Holy Prophet at intervals is a fact, and the verse may have been revealed to him as a solace, that the pause in revelation was not to be attributed to Divine displeasure; or the words may have been addressed in a general sense, that the Prophet would never be forsaken, but that his cause would grow stronger day by day and triumph in the end, as shown in the verses that follow.

وَلَا خَيْرَ خَلِيلٍ لَكَ مِنَ الْأُولَىٰ
وَأَنْتُمْ يَتَّبِعُونَ رَبَّكَ فَتَرْجُمُونِ
أَلَمْ نَجِدْكَ يَتِيمًا فَآوَىٰ
وَوَجَدَكَ ضَالًّا فَهَدَىٰ

2754 Such is truth that, although it may gain ground only inch by inch, after severe struggle with the forces of falsehood, yet it does continue to advance. Every succeeding movement was to be better for the Holy Prophet than the last, and this not only proved true in his lifetime, but remains true to this day, and shall remain true for ever.

2755 Abdulla, the Holy Prophet's father, died about three months before he was born; his mother, Amina, died when he was six years old. His grandfather, Abdul Muttalab, who took care of him after his mother, died two years later, and from that time he remained in charge of Abu Talib, his uncle, who was alive when the Holy Prophet received the Divine message for the regeneration of mankind.

2756 This verse is for the Christian missionary the crowning evidence of the Holy Prophet's "sinfulness." He would not for a minute consider what the Holy Qur-ān says elsewhere. That erring is not the significance of qall here is shown conclusively by 53 : 2, which says: "Your companion did not err." Now, one who is spoken of as never having erred in one place could not be described as erring in another, while both revelations belong to about the same period, ch. 93 being, if anything, earlier than ch. 53. Nor do the two verses contradict each other. The mistake arises from not paying attention to the breadth of conception of the words, and insisting on attaching always the same significance to a word, whether the context allows it or not. As for the assertion that the Holy Prophet was a worshipper of idols before he was called to prophethood, it is absolutely false. There are authoritative reports that as early as his journey to Syria in the company of his uncle he expressed his strong hatred for idol-worship. Of his childhood many anecdotes are related by his uncle, Abu Talib—whose great affection for the Prophet withstood the opposition of the whole of his nation later on, when the Quraish rose up against him to a man—which afford strong evidence of this abhorrence of idol-worship. Abu Talib told his brother Abbas that he never found Muhammad (may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him) telling a lie, nor did he ever witness in him derisiveness or ignorance (jdhiyyat); nor did he ever go out with children, taking part in their sports. Let us first consider the context. Vv. 6, 7, 8 stand in close relation respectively to vv. 9, 10, and 11; v. 6 tells the Prophet that he was himself an orphan, and the conclusion that he should not therefore oppress the orphan is drawn in v. 9; similarly, v. 8 speaks of the Divine favour on him in making him free of want, and the conclusion is drawn in v. 11 that he should therefore announce the Divine favour on him. Thus it is clear that v. 6 stands in close relation to v. 9, and v. 8 to v. 11, and the conclusion is evident that vv. 7 and 10 refer to the same subject. Now, v. 10 plainly speaks of one who asks to be guided to the truth, or a petitioner generally who needs the help of another, being unable himself to do a thing or undertake a task (see next note). The Holy Prophet was no doubt a sa'il in this sense. He did not worship idols, but neither could he, without the help of Allah, find out the way for the regeneration of his people, for which his soul yearned so eagerly. Hence he was unable to see the way by himself, and the word qall signifies one who is perplexed and unable to see the way for himself, for the verb qalla, of which qall is a nominative, signifies he was perplexed and unable to see his right course (Ibn Sa'eed, TA-LI). The true significance of the word is thus that Allah found the Prophet in quest of the way, but unable to chalk out a way for himself, and therefore He guided him by Divine light. In this manner was the Prophet told not to chide any

Ar. thes.	8 And find you in want and

	9 Therefore, as for the orphan, do not oppress (him). ²⁷⁵⁸
	10 And as for him who asks, do not chide (him), ²⁷⁵⁹
Ar. thy.	11 And as for the favour of your Lord, do announce (it). ²⁷⁶⁰

وَوَجَدَكَ عَائِلًا فَأَغْنِيهِ
فَأَمَّا الْيَتِيمَ فَلَا تَقْهَرْ
وَأَمَّا السَّائِلَ فَلَا تَنْهَرْ وَأَمَّا بِنِعْمَةِ رَبِّكَ فَحَدِّثْ

petitioner, and to render help to him as Allah had helped him. Or qall also signifies one who becomes lost (TA-LI) in the pursuit of some object, as Jacob's children speak of their father as being in qalal (Rgh), i.e. lost in the love of Joseph, and thus the meaning may be that the Holy Prophet had so devoted himself to the quest of the right way for the world that he had lost himself in that quest.

Rz gives twenty different explanations of these words. In addition to what has been said, I may notice the first of these, which is based on the authority of Ibn-i-'Abbas, Hasan, Dk, and others, according to which qall means ghāfil, i.e. not knowing prophecy and the injunctions of law; and this explanation is in accordance with what is said in 42:52: "And thus did We reveal to you an inspired book by Our command; you did not know what the book was, nor what the faith was, but We made it a light, guiding thereby whom We please of Our servants."

The verse quoted above also corroborates the explanations given above, for the gist of these explanations is the same as that of 42:52, viz. that he did not know how to guide others to the right path, but he was anxious for them, and so Allah showed him the way.

2757 Finding the Holy Prophet in want, and freeing him of want, do not refer to his temporal or pecuniary circumstances only (if they refer to them at all), but also to his spiritual needs and the satisfaction of the same; or they refer to his loneliness at first and the gathering round him of men afterwards to help his cause (Rz).

2758 No other teacher in the world has laid such great stress upon the care of orphans. In one of the many of his sayings he says: He who takes care of the orphan and I are like these two (showing his two fingers close to each other). In another he says: When the orphan weeps, his tears fall into the hand of the Beneficent God (Rz).

2759 The word sā'il occurring in this verse is interpreted generally as meaning a beggar. But petitioner, or one who asks, is a much better rendering, for it retains the breadth of the original conception. Hasan, however, interpreted the word as meaning من يسأل العلم i.e. he who asks about knowledge, and this interpretation is corroborated by what is related in the opening verses of ch. 80 (Rz). This interpretation is, moreover, in consonance with the chief object of a prophet's mission, which aims at spreading true knowledge.

2760 The ni'mat, or the favour, is no other than revelation, the greatest of all Divine favours, as it is recognized to be throughout the Holy Qur-ān; and, in fact, this was the favour which the Holy Prophet continued to announce throughout his life. Mujahid says تلك النعمة هي القرآن i.e. this favour is the Qur-ān (Rz).

Ar. thy. your burden,

أَلَمْ نَشْرَحْ لَكَ صَدْرَكَ
وَوَضَعْنَا عَنْكَ وِزْرَكَ

General remarks.

THIS chapter, like its predecessors, also comforts the Prophet. His difficulties were not to continue, but would soon be followed by ease, and it was a sufficient indication of this that his breast was opened or expanded for the truth (whence the title of this chapter). The great burden which almost broke his back, his deep anxiety for humanity, had been removed by the Divine grant of revelation to him. In fact, this chapter is closely connected with the preceding one, as both show that the Holy Prophet had suffered great anxiety on account of fallen humanity, and it was Divine revelation that ultimately took him by the hand, thus guiding his steps and relieving his great anxiety.

2761 What is meant by شرح الصدر or the expanding of the breast, becomes clear by a reference to Moses' prayer in 20:25, where exactly the same words occur:

رب اشرح لي صدري "O my Lord! expand my breast for me." The same words occur also in 6:126, with the same significance: "Therefore (for) whomsoever Allah intends that He should guide aright, He expands his breast for Islam," and as opposed to this it is added: "And (for) whomsoever He intends that He should cause him to err, He makes his breast strait and narrow." There is a report according to which Gabriel opened the breast of the Holy Prophet while he was yet a boy in the charge of his nurse, and washed his heart; the authenticity of this has been questioned on critical grounds by Qazi (Rz). But even that criticism, I think, is due to a misconception, for the same incident is related to have taken place again when the Holy Prophet was entrusted with his Divine mission.

- * The incident was therefore evidently a kashf, or a clear vision, which signifies exactly what the expanding of the breast signifies on the several occasions mentioned above. AH says: "The expanding of the breast signifies its illumination with wisdom and its vastness for the reception of what was to be revealed to him." This is what is accepted generally, but it is better to give the words a wider significance, including what is said here, as well as the severe struggles which he was to meet in inviting men to unity and the possibility of afflictions

	3 Which pressed heavily upon your back, ²⁷⁶²	الَّذِي أَنْقَضَ ظَهْرَكَ ۖ

	7 So when you are free, strive hard, ²⁷⁶⁵

arising from the persecutions of the unbelievers. Raghib gives a similar explanation, viz. its expansion with Divine light and tranquillity. Proof of the breast expansion in this sense is abundantly met with in the Prophet's later life: (1) In his praying for the forgiveness of his enemies after their persecutions had reached the utmost limit, while other prophets, as Noah (71:26) and Moses (10:88), prayed for the destruction of their enemies. (2) In his actually forgiving his severest enemies when he conquered Mecca, an incident unparalleled in temporal or sacred history. (3) In the broadness of his morals. (4) In enduring the hardest trials with the greatest forbearance and without ever uttering words of impatience such as are met with in the lives of other prophets, as the words, Eli, Eli, lama Sabachtani, uttered by Jesus. (5) In the complete trust which he retained in the Divine Being when facing the greatest dangers. (6) In the great fortitude shown on various occasions. (7) In performing with the utmost exactitude his multifarious duties as a spiritual teacher and guide, as a legislator, as a judge, as a general leading his forces to war, as a king and ruler, as a loving husband, as an affectionate father, as a friend, as a guardian of the interests of the poor and the orphans, and as occupying a number of other capacities. The expansion of the breast stands, in one word, for the greatness of the heart of the Prophet.

2762 The burden which pressed heavily upon his back signifies anxiety for raising his people from the ignorance and superstitions in which they were involved. Compare 26:3: "Perhaps you will kill yourself with grief because they will not believe." It may refer to his anxiety as to how he would be able to bear the heavy burden of prophethood (Rz), (also compare Moses' prayer in 20:26, "And make my affair easy to me," uttered along with his prayer for the expansion of his breast); or as to his protection from every sin and purification from every dross. The removal of the burden signifies the relief of anxiety by way of mubalagha, or exaggeration, as you say رفعت عنك مشقة الزيارة i.e. I have removed from you the suffering of the visit, though there was no visit and consequently no suffering (AH).

2763 This is a clear prophecy of the glorious eminence to which the Holy Prophet was to be raised, being uttered at a time when he was alone and unknown. For ziker, meaning eminence, see 855, but even if ziker may be interpreted as meaning mention, the significance of the verse still remains the same.

2764 In consonance with what is said in v. 4, the ease refers to the ultimate triumph of the Holy Prophet, and the difficulty to the trials which he was then undergoing, though the passage as well reveals a general law of nature that difficulty is followed by ease. The statement is repeated, showing that Islam would twice be under great difficulties and trials, and that on both occasions it would come out with ultimate triumph. There are clear indications in the Holy Qur'an and in the sayings of the Holy Prophet of the trials and difficulties of Islam in the latter days, as great as those at the time of its birth, and the reference in the repetition here is probably to that, and to its final predominance over the religions of the world.

2765 Faragha must be followed by a word to make clear its significance. Thus

فرغ من الشغل means he was free, or vacant, from occupation; and فرغ من الامر

Ar. thy. | 8 And make your Lord your
Ar. thy. | exclusive object.

وَالِى رَّبِّكَ فَارْغَبْ ۝ means he had finished the affair; and فرغ له means he applied himself exclusively to him (I.L.). As jaraghta in this verse is not followed by any such word, the commentators make various suggestions, some taking the meaning to be, he had finished the worldly affairs, some the prayers, some the obligatory prayers, and so on (Rz). I think the Prophet's being free signifies his freedom from anxiety, in reference to what is said in the previous verses, because all those verses show that the Prophet's anxiety was completely removed. Hence, being now free from all anxiety, he was to strive hard for the regeneration of his people and make his Lord his exclusive object. The derived word firigh, occurring regarding Moses' mother in 28:10, also signifies free from anxiety; see 1872.

التِّينِ وَالزَّيْتُونِ
طُورِ سِينِينَ
هَٰذَا الْبَلَدِ الْأَمِينِ

General remarks.

THIS chapter shows—by drawing a comparison between the Mosaic dispensation (of which the Fig is a symbol, thus giving its name to this chapter), which was to wither away like the fig in the Gospel, and the Islamic dispensation, which is represented by the olive (which being neither Eastern nor Western, its oil would light the world for ever)—that man is so created that he can rise to the highest degree of eminence if he sets before himself the right principles and acts on them, and that he degrades himself to the lowest position in creation if he is not guided by right principles, or, being so guided, fails to act upon them. Thus it refers to the perfection to which the superstitious Arabs should be raised through the Holy Prophet, as a nation reduced to the abject condition of slavery in Egypt had been made a ruling nation by Moses; at the same time giving a warning that, as the Israelites had failed to abide by those noble principles which had been the means of their exaltation and had again been subjected to disgrace, a similar fate would befall the Muslims if they did not abide by those noble rules of conduct through which they attained to greatness and glory. The chapter belongs to the same early period as the other chapters preceding it, though suggestions have not been wanting as to its being a Medianian revelation, which, however, being devoid of foundation, need not be taken seriously.

2766 The fig and the olive stand respectively for the law given on mount Sinai and that revealed in the sacred city of Mecca; and the two verses that follow make it clear. It must be remembered that a comparison between Moses and the Holy Prophet Muhammad is introduced in very early revelations, as here and in 52:1-6 and 73:15. That the fig stands for the Jewish dispensation is a fact admitted by all commentators of the Bible, and this is the significance underlying that otherwise inexplicable circumstance relating to Jesus cursing the fig-tree and its withering away. It is said in Matt. 21:19 that Jesus, coming from Bethany early in the morning and finding himself to be hungry, drew near to a fig-tree so that he might gather some figs; and seeing nothing but leaves upon it, he cursed the tree, and immediately it withered to the root. Even the Christian commentators of the Bible have had to admit that this action of

8 Is not Allah the best of the Judges? ²⁷⁶⁸

لَقَدْ خَلَقْنَا الْإِنْسَانَ فِي أَحْسَنِ تَقْوِيمٍ
ثُمَّ رَدَدْنَاهُ أَسْفَلَ سَافِلِينَ
إِلَّا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّالِحَاتِ فَلَهُمْ أَجْرٌ غَيْرُ مَمْنُونٍ
فَمَا يَكْفُرُ بِاللَّهِ بَعْدَ الْإِيمَانِ
أَلَيْسَ اللَّهُ بِأَحْكَمَ الْحَاكِمِينَ

Jesus signified the rejection of the Jews. Jesus' action really meant that the Jews resembled the fig-tree, which had only leaves but no fruit, and even the leaves, representing as they did their outward actions of piety, should now wither away. The rejection of the Jews is more plainly referred to by Jesus in the parable of the garden (Matt. 21: 33), which ends with the significant words: "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof" (Matt. 21: 43). The words of the Holy Qur-án we are commenting upon give us to understand that the Muslims are that other nation. It may be added that the prophet Jeremiah also compares the Jewish nation to two baskets of figs, the good figs standing for the righteous from among the Jews and the vile figs for the wicked ones (Jer. ch. 24).

As regards the olive, some Bible references no doubt hint at that also as being a symbol of the Jewish nation, but the Holy Qur-án compares it here to the law of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him, and this is explained and clarified by a later revelation: "A likeness of His light is as a pillar on which is a lamp, the lamp is in a glass, (and) the glass is as it were a brightly shining star, lit from a blessed olive-tree, neither eastern nor western" (24: 35). Here clearly Islam is represented by the olive-tree and hence the olive must be taken for a symbol of Islam.

The comparison shows that whereas the law given on mount Sinai passed away like the fig-tree in Jesus' parable, the new light, lit from the blessed olive-tree, was never to be extinguished, because it belonged neither to the East nor to the West, but was meant for all men in all ages, while Moses' law was limited by considerations both of time and place. Thus, in this place, there is a hint touching the universality of the Holy Prophet's mission.

²⁷⁶⁷ The consideration of the mission of Moses as well as that of Muhammad (peace be on them) leads to one and the same conclusion, viz. that man has been created in the best of moulds, i.e. with enormous capability for progress, but he abases himself so as to make himself the lowest of the low, as the idol-worshippers by bowing low before such inanimate objects as stones, or as the Israelites by neglecting the injunctions which had been given to them through the prophets. All the prophets from Moses down to Jesus, and the Holy Prophet Muhammad, laid stress upon the fact that obedience to Divine commandments was the true source of man's greatness. The words contain a general law for the advancement of man as well as a prophecy relating to the high degree of perfection to which the Arabs were to be raised by the Holy Prophet, and the impending fate of the Meccan opponents, who were to be abased and brought low in the land if they did not respond to the Prophet's call. Only by a wild stretch of imagination could the words be applied to the so-called fall of Adam and its supposed consequences. Adam's departure from the garden could not be described as the lowest of the low, and the exception regarding believers shows the reference to be to the general condition of man.

²⁷⁶⁸ Both this verse and the one preceding it refer to the Divine judgment awaiting the rejecters of the Holy Prophet. The Judgment is as well a judgment of the guilty in this life as in the next.

اقْرَأْ يَا سُوْرِيكَ الَّذِي خَلَقَ
خَلَقَ الْإِنْسَانَ مِنْ عَلَقٍ ۚ

General remarks.

THE first five verses of this chapter are by universal admission the first revelation which the Holy Prophet received. In the arrangement of chapters, however, it is given its present place because the chapters preceding it lay the greatest stress upon the perfection and eminence to which the Holy Prophet was to rise, as well as the perfection and eminence to which he was to raise those who followed him—a goal which could not be attained by human effort; and hence the opening words of this chapter tell him to seek the assistance of the Divine Being. The chapter is called The Clot because of the statement made in the second verse that Allah created man from a clot of blood, which contains a hint that, as a beautiful human form is evolved out of such a humble origin, even so the Holy Prophet would be made to rise to the greatest eminence from the humble circumstances in which he was placed.

2769 On the authority of Bkh as well as other reliable reports, the first five verses of this chapter are agreed to be the first revelation that was received by the Holy Prophet in the Hira, though suggestions are not wanting that it was preceded by the Fātiḥah, or that the opening verses of the 74th chapter form the first revelation. The latter statement has been shown to be erroneous in the introductory note to the 74th chapter, while the former is also unsupported by sufficient authority. The words in the name of your Lord signify by the assistance of your Lord. The circumstances attending this first revelation are met with in trustworthy reports, and from these it appears that the Holy Prophet's first reply to the angel who brought this message was, that he was unable to read. This leaves no doubt as to the Holy Prophet being unable to read or write.

2770 'Alaq signifies a clot of blood as well as attachment and love (TA-ILL). The former significance is the one generally adopted, because of the mention of 'alaqah in the process of the creation of man in other places in the Holy Qur-ān. While there can be no objection to this significance, as indicating the insignificance of man's origin, thereby referring to the greatness to which the Prophet was to be raised from a humble beginning, I note in the margin the other significance of the word. There is also a report according to which Almighty God said: I loved that I should be known, so I created man. Hence the creation of man, or more properly of the Perfect Man, in the image of the Divine Being is due to the attribute of love in Him. This attribute is the groundwork of suffi-ism in Islam. In the mention of man I think there is a special reference to the Perfect Man, or the Holy Prophet.

أَوْ أَمَرَ بِالتَّقْوَى
أَرَأَيْتَ إِن كَذَّبَ وَتَوَلَّى

2771 Rabb, as explained in 5, is the Fosterer, and being such, enables a person or thing to attain one stage after another, until it reaches its goal of completion, and hence in رَبِّكَ الْاَكْرَمُ there is a reference to the great goal of honour and glory which the Prophet was to be made to attain.

2772 The mention of the pen in this the very first revelation of the Holy Prophet is significant, and it not only indicates "the powerful help for propagating the knowledge of the Divine Unity" which the Holy Prophet was to find in the pen (Rodwell), but signifies as well that the pen should be specially used in guarding the revelation which was to be granted to the Holy Prophet—in guarding what was before unknown to the perfect man and which the Lord was now about to teach him (v. 5). It is a fact that the pen has played an important part in the propagation of Islam as well as in the protection of the Qur-án against corruption of every sort. The frequent mention of writing and pen in the Holy Qur-án, and particularly in connection with the revelation of the Holy Prophet, is rather striking when it is borne in mind that not only was the use of writing a rare novelty in the Arabian peninsula, but the man who is the apparent speaker of the words was himself unacquainted with either writing or reading.

2773 Some reports apply the words from here to the end of this chapter to Abu Jahl, as he was the man who, in particular, forbade the Holy Prophet to pray near the Ka'ba, but the fact is as stated on many similar occasions, that general words cannot be exclusively applied to particular persons. In Abu Jahl we no doubt meet with a most prominent example of the description given, because he was the leader of the opponents of the Holy Prophet at Mecca, and his end is an example to all leaders of evil and mischief.

2774 There is special reference in the indefinite form to the Holy Prophet.

15 Nay! if he desist not, We would certainly smite his forehead,²⁷⁷⁵

17 Then let him summon his council,

18 We too would summon the braves of the army.²⁷⁷⁶

19 Nay! obey him not, and make obeisance and draw nigh (to Allah).*

أَلَمْ يَعْلَم بِأَنَّ اللَّهَ يَرَىٰ
كَلَّا لَئِنْ لَمْ يَنْتَهِمْ لَسَنَنْفَعَنَّ يَأْلُوكَ صَدِيدًا

نَاصِيَةٍ كَاذِبَةٍ خَاطِئَةٍ

۞ نَادِيَهُ ۞

سَنَنْفَعُ الرَّاكِبِينَ ۞

كَلَّا لَا طِبَةَ لَهُ فَإِذْ هُوَ أَقْرَبُ

* 978.

2775 The foreheads of the leading Quraish opponents of the Holy Prophet, Abu Jahl among them, were smitten on the day of Badr.

2776 An-nādī signifies al-majlis or the council. The dār-un-nadwah at Mecca (from the same root nada) was the great council hall of the nation, where the chief men assembled together in consultation over matters of importance relating to the whole of the nation, the undertaking of wars, etc. Rz paraphrases نَادِيَهُ as follows: Gather together those whom you consider honourable and able to defend, so that they shall help you. The zabāniyah "with the Arabs of the classical age" signifies the shuraṭ (LL, so also Kf, Bq, Rz), "applied in the earlier sense of the braves of an army, or in the later sense of the armed attendants of the prefect of the police (S). This is the primary significance" (LL). The two verses thus clearly speak of the battles in which the mighty men of both sides were to be brought into conflict. Even taking the zabāniyah as signifying the angels of punishment, the words may apply as well to this life as to the hereafter. Thus Rz says: "It is said that this is an announcement from Allah that he shall be dragged in this world like a dog, and he received this punishment on the day of Badr, and it is said that this is rather an announcement that the angels of punishment will drag him to fire in the hereafter." It is also related that Abu Jahl had once boasted, when addressing the Holy Prophet: وَمَا بِالْوَادِي أَكْبَرُ نَادِيَا مَنِي "And there is none in the valley who has a greater council than I," and that there is a reference to this in v. 17 (AH), which also makes the challenge applicable to this life.

CHAPTER XCVII

THE MAJESTY

(Al-Qadr)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(5 verses)

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Meroiful.

Ar. night of
majesty.
Ar. thee.
Ar. night of
majesty.

1 Surely We revealed it on the grand night.²⁷⁷⁷
2 And what will make you comprehend what the grand night is?

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ
إِنَّا أَنْزَلْنَاهُ فِي لَيْلَةِ
الْقَدْرِ
وَمَا أَدْرَاكَ مَا لَيْلَةُ الْقَدْرِ

General remarks.

THE very first revelation of the Holy Qur-án contained in the last chapter is suitably followed in arrangement by one that relates when the revelation of the Qur-án began. It was the night of Majesty (one of the last ten nights of the month of Ramaḍan) which first witnessed the shining of that light which was destined to illumine the whole world. And the coming of the first revelation on the night of Majesty, which gives its name to this chapter, contained a clear indication that the most majestic of all revelations was now being granted to the world, and that the majesty of this revelation, as well as of its recipient, should be established in the world. The chapter is unquestionably one of the very earliest revelations.

²⁷⁷⁷ Lailat-ul-qadr, which I have rendered as the grand night, and which literally means the night of majesty or grandeur or greatness, is a well-known night in the month of Ramaḍan, being the 21st or 23rd or 25th or 27th or 29th night of the month, or more probably one of the latter three. In 44 : 3 it is called the blessed night. From 2 : 185 it appears that the Holy Qur-án was revealed in the month of Ramaḍan, and from the above it appears to have been revealed on the grand night; by revelation of course being meant its first revelation, because the whole was revealed in portions during twenty-three years, and the word Qur-án is applicable as well to a portion as to the whole. It is for this reason that the i'tikáf, or adhering to the mosques, is fixed for the last ten days of the month of Ramaḍan, and in fact lailat-ul-qadr owes its importance to the fact that it was on this night that the most blessed and perfect of all revelations was vouchsafed to the world. Moses' fasting for forty days previous to the receipt of revelation (Exod. 24 : 18), and Jesus' keeping fast for the same number of days before he was called upon to undertake the office of prophethood (Matt. 4 : 2), show that the gift of revelation comes with fasting; hence the Muslims are required to fast every year for thirty days, and special Divine blessings are promised to them in the concluding days of the fasts.

Ar. *night of
majesty.*

3 The grand night is better than a thousand months.²⁷⁷⁸

Or, spirit.

4 The angels and the inspiration descend in it by the permission of their Lord for every affair.²⁷⁷⁹

5 Peace! it is till the break of the morning.²⁷⁸⁰

لَيْلَةُ الْقَدْرِ خَيْرٌ مِنْ أَلْفِ نَهْجٍ
تَنَزَّلُ الْمَلَائِكَةُ وَالرُّوحُ فِيهَا بِإِذْنِ
رَبِّهِمْ كُلِّ بَحْرٍ

سَلَامٌ تَنْدِيهِ حَتَّى مَطْلَعِ الْفَجْرِ

But the lailat-ul-qadr carries another and deeper significance. The time during which a prophet appears is usually a time of darkness, and, as such, is often compared to a night in the Holy Qur-ān; but as in this darkness comes a blessing from on high in the person of a Divine messenger, this night is a blessed and majestic night. Hence the period of the advent of a Divine messenger may also be metaphorically called lailat-ul-qadr. Its designation as the blessed night in 44:3, followed as it is by the statement that in it "every wise affair is made distinct," shows clearly that the other significance of the word is based on the Holy Qur-ān itself, because it is during the time of a prophet's advent that true wisdom is distinctly established.

2778 A thousand months are equal to about 83 years, leaving 17 years to complete a century. There is a saying of the Holy Prophet according to which a mujaddid, or a reformer, will appear among the Muslims at the commencement of every century. The deeper significance of lailat-ul-qadr given in the previous note finds additional support in the circumstance that such a reformer would, under ordinary circumstances, work for some twenty years, and this period is therefore better and richer than the remaining eighty years marked by the absence of a reformer.

2779 The descent of the angels and the "inspiration" also show that lailat-ul-qadr has a deeper significance, for though a particular night in the month of Ramaḍan may be characterized by great Divine blessings, it is more especially in connection with the mission of one appointed by Allah for the regeneration of the world that "the angels and inspiration" come down from heaven, such being the Divine support of his cause. For the meaning of ruh see 653, 2181.

2780 "Peace" is the chief distinction of lailat-ul-qadr. This peace comes to the hearts of the true devotees in the form of a tranquillity of mind which makes them fit to receive Divine blessings. Its continuance "till the break of the morning" is quite clear when the night is taken literally, the break of morning would signify the approaching end of the reformer, when truth, like the light of the day, has made itself fully manifest.

CHAPTER XCVIII

THE CLEAR EVIDENCE

(Al-Bayyinah)

REVEALED AT MECCA

(8 verses)

In the name of Allah, the
Beneficent, the Merciful.

1 Those who disbelieved from among the followers of the Book and the polytheists could not have separated (from the faithful) until there had come to them the clear evidence:²⁷⁸¹

2 An apostle from Allah, reciting pure pages,²⁷⁸²

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

لَمْ يَكُنِ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا مِنْ أَهْلِ الْكِتَابِ
وَالْمُشْرِكِينَ مُنْفَكِّينَ حَتَّى تَأْتِيَهُمُ
الْبَيِّنَةُ ۝

رَسُولٌ مِنَ اللَّهِ يَتْلُو صُحُفًا مُطَهَّرَةً ۝

General remarks.

THE Holy Prophet, who received the mightiest of the revelations, is here called the Clear Evidence (the words supplying the name to this chapter), who distinguished truth from falsehood, because his revelation, as this chapter shows, contained all the pure and essential teachings of the previous scriptures. It may not be one of the early revelations, but there seems to be no doubt that it is a Meccan revelation, such being the opinion of the majority.

2781 There is a difficulty in this passage about the word munfakkkin, which is ordinarily followed by the object from which the separation is declared. Thus you say:

انفككت منك infakakta minka i.e. the thing became separated from the thing, and انفكك الشئ من الشئ signifies I became separated from you (TA-LL). The commentators have felt a difficulty in supplying the omission, and they generally suppose عن كفرهم i.e. from their disbelief, to be understood after the word munfakkkin. But this introduces new difficulties (Rz). The omission is really, as in the case of all omissions in the Holy Qur-ān, suggested by the context. Those who disbelieved from among the people of the Book and the polytheists clearly suggests two parties of the people, those who disbelieved in the Holy Prophet and those who believed in him, and the mention of one in such a case is always sufficient. The good ones or the faithful could not be distinguished from the evil ones or those who disbelieved until the Distinguisher—al bayyinah, or the Clear Evidence—had made his appearance. What the bayyinah is, is explained in the next verse: it is an apostle from Allah.

2782 It should be noted that the Apostle is here described as reciting pure pages, thus showing clearly that the Qur-ān existed in a written form at the time of the revelation of this chapter; and if the earlier revelations were so systematically written down, it is a clear proof that the later revelation was also regularly consigned to writing.

Or, ordinances.

3 Wherein are all the right books.²⁷⁸³

4 And those who were given the Book did not become divided except after clear evidence had come to them.²⁷⁸⁴

5 And they were not enjoined anything except that they should serve Allah, being sincere to Him in obedience, upright, and keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate, and that is the right religion.

6 Surely those who disbelieve from among the followers of the Book and the polytheists shall be in the fire of hell, abiding therein; they are the worst of men.

7 (As for) those who believe and do good, surely they are the best of men.

8 Their reward with their Lord is gardens of perpetuity beneath which rivers flow, abiding therein for ever; Allah is well pleased with them and they are well pleased with Him;²⁷⁸⁵ that is for him who fears his Lord.

فِيهَا كُتُبٌ قَيِّمَةٌ ۖ

وَمَا تَفَرَّقَ الَّذِينَ أُوتُوا الْكِتَابَ إِلَّا

مِنْ بَعْدِ مَا جَاءَهُمْ الْبَيِّنَةُ ۚ

وَمَا أُمِرُوا إِلَّا لِيَعْبُدُوا اللَّهَ مُخْلِصِينَ

لَهُ الدِّينَ حَقَّاهُ وَيُقِيمُوا الصَّلَاةَ وَ

يُؤْتُوا الزَّكَاةَ وَذَلِكَ دِينُ الْقَيِّمَةِ ۚ

إِنَّ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا مِنْ أَهْلِ الْكِتَابِ وَ

الْمُشْرِكِينَ فِي نَارِ جَهَنَّمَ خَالِدِينَ فِيهَا

أُولَئِكَ هُمُ السَّرَّاءُ ۚ

إِنَّ الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّالِحَاتِ أُولَئِكَ

سَيُجْزَوْنَ أَجْرَهُم مَرَّةً وَفَرَّةً ۖ

وَأُولَئِكَ هُمُ الْمُفْلِحُونَ ۚ

يُحِبُّونَ مَا أُوتُوا وَيُؤْتُونَ زَكَاةَهُمْ

وَهُمْ يَتَّقُونَ اللَّهَ الَّذِي هُوَ عِنْدَهُ

2783 Kutub, plural of kitab, signifies ordinances as well as books. Whichever significance may be adopted, the meaning of the passage is that in the Holy Qur-án all those right directions are to be met with which were revealed in any other book, as well as those which may not have been previously revealed, but which are necessary for the guidance of man. The Qur-án thus claims to contain all the good points of other sacred books, and, in addition, to supply their deficiencies. The addition of the word qayyimah, or right, to kutub, is to show that the Holy Book is freed from all the errors which crept into other sacred books; to the same purpose is the use of the word mutahharah (as qualifying the Qur-án), which signifies مطهرة عن الباطل i.e. purified from falsehood (Rz).

2784 The division into parties mentioned here is either the same as that spoken of in v. 1, or else it means that the people of the Book aforetime became divided into parties, some accepting and others rejecting, some following the good and others the evil, until clear evidence came to them; and thus it is affirmed that the separation of the good and the evil always followed the coming of a separator, and that what happened now also happened before when apostles appeared among the followers of the Book.

2785 This description of the companions of the Holy Prophet is a conclusive proof of the falsity of the abuses levelled at them.
